PVRCHAS

PILGRIMES.

FN FIVE BOOKES.

The first, Containing Peregrinations and Discoueries, in the remotest North and East parts of ASIA; called TAR-

The second, Peregrinations, Voyages, Discouries, of CHINA, TARIA, RYSSIA, and other the North and East parts of the World, by English-men and others.

The third, Voyages and Discoueries of the North parts of the World, by Land and Sea, in A s 1 A, E v R O P E; the Polare Regions, and in the North-west of MERICA.

The fourth, English Northerne Nauigations, and Discouries: Relations of Greenland, Greenland, the North-west passage, and other Arctike Regions, with later RVSSIAN OCCWRENTS.

The fifth, Voyages and Tranels to and in the New World, called AMERICA: Relations of their Pagan Antiquities and of the Regions and Plantations in the North and South parts thereof, and of the Seas and Ilands as accent.

The Third Part.

Unus Deus, Una Veritas.

LONDON

Printed by William Stansby for Henrie Fetherstone, and are to be sold at his shop in Pauls Church-yard at the signe of the Rose.

1.1

HONORABLEAND RIGHT REVEREND

FATHER IN

GOD:

Lord Bishop of LINCOLNE, Lord Keeper of the GREAT SEALE of ENGLAND,&c.

Right Reverend and Honourable:

Hese PILGRIMS deliuering a Historie of the World in their owne Trauels by Sea and Land, not onely needed authoritie from the Admiraltie, but fearing suspition of Rict without warrantable assemblie, become humble Sutors for your Lordships fauour. So shall they in the approbation of both (to apply by a warrant of Ego dixi, dy estis, the Patriarchs mystical Dreame to our Historical purpose)

Gen. 2, 12.

finde a Scala Cali to alcend from the ground where they are prostrate Petitioners, to the Princes Highnesse, whence authorised they may againe descend and become the Commons of Common Readers. Order requires a Medium betwixt Princely Height and his Lowlinesse, whose function is also tearmed Holy Orders, as further tying him to that equall inequalitie; wherein hee befeecheth your Lordihip as by speciall Office and in Proprietie to owne that which hee hath presumed to offer to the Prince in Capite., Quemadmodum sub optimo rege omnia. Rex imperio possidet, Domini dominio. Ad reges potestas

Senec Benefila. pertinet , ad fingulos proprietas.

Many are the reasons which moued the Author to obtude his PI L-GRIMS on your Lordship; because he is deeply obliged Yours for former fauours, euen then when you were initiated in the Mysteries of Honour (learning by feruice to Command) in the Discipline of that Honorable Worthy, Lord Chancellor E G E R TON! because some conceptions of this Worke were in your Honourable Iurisdiction of Westminster, whither lest some traduce Trauellers for Vagrants, they returne in hope of Sanctuarie, not so much trusting to the ancient Liberties. as to your Lordships liberall respect to literate endeauours : because these Trauellers adventuring the world, seeke like Iacob at his going and returne, a Reucrend Fathers Blessing and Confirmation. The Author likewise being called on for his promised Europe, submits himfelfe to your Lordinips Order, heere tendring of that debt, what hee is able, in readie payment. The worke it felfe also being a Librarie in this kind, presents it selfeto your Honour, the Founder of two famous Libraries; one in Westminster, (where the Stones & renued Fabrikes speake your Magnificence) the other in that famous Nurserie of Arts and Vertue Saint I OHN'S Colledge in Cambridge, which sometime knew you a hopefull Sonne, but now acknowledgeth your Lord hip a happie Father, where also the Author first conceived with this Trauelling Geniw, whereof (without trauelling) he hath trauelled euer fince. Learning, the Advancer of your Honour, hath fecured her welwillers not to bee rejected in whatfoeuer indeauours (Scribimus indocti, doctiq.) to advance Learning. The greatnesse of Nature to goodnesse of Nature, varietie of Estates to a prime Pillar of State, the Historie of Religions to a Religious Prelate, of Antiquities to an Antiquarie, cannot bee altogether vnwelcome ; that I mention not the dependance of London Ministers Liuings (fined by the Times iniquitie) on your Lordships equal Sentence. These Causes have moved; One hath inforced; these PIL-GRIMES are your Servants, fitly to called à Servando, faued by your August Co. Lordships hand when they were giving up the ghost, despairing through a fatall stroke of euer seeing light.

Most humbly therefore, sue vnto your Honour, these PILGRIMES for acknowledgement, esteeming your Lordships Name in fore-front a cognisance of blest Libertie and best Seruice; Now when Lanu sends many with gratefull emulations to present their acclamations of a New Yeste, presenting (a wordie rather then worthy Present) a World, yea, a New world, ingreat part one Age younger to mens knowledge then America, sometimes stiled by that Name. I had written other Causes of my addresse to your Honour, but dare not proceed to interrupt Others more weightie. In all humble eatnessmers before the now in this Festivals time, the Author with his PILGRIMES to sinde Hospitals.

DEDICATORIE.

tall entertainment, not at your Honours table, where Great affaires of Church and State are feasted (except some recreation some times permit) but with Schollers and Gentlemen in the Hall, which will welcome such Guests as your Lordship shall Countenance. So thall you encourage euer to pray for the increase of your Lordships happinesse

Happie Service of his MAIESTIE,

Your Lordships

most bounden_,

SAMVEL PVRCHAS

THE CONTENTS OF THE CHAPTERS AND PARAGRAPHS

IN THE SECOND BOOKE OF THE SECOND

PART OF PURCHAS HIS

CHAP. I.

CHAP. I.

CHAP. I.

CHAP. II.

Chinorite Friars, who the East parts of the World, Anno Dom. 1253. H. pag.I.

CHAP. II.

Tartarian and Northerne Relations written in Latin by the famous Frier Roger Bacon. H. p. 32 Relations of Vincentius Beluacensis, the moit of whith be received from Frier Simon de San-Roomand Committee, one of the foure Friers sent by Pope Innocent the four th to the Tartars: sering to the idulations of the four friends of the idulations of the four friends.

CHAP. III.

Relations touching the Tartars, taken out of the Historie of R. Wendouer, and Mat. Paris: with certaine Epifiles of the same fubiet.

CHAP. IIII.

Pag. 60.

The first booke of Marcus Paulus Venetus, or of Master Marco Polo, a Gentleman of Venice, bis Vonages.

Q. 1. The voyages of Master Nicolo and M. Mastio, from Constantinople to the Great Can, and their comming home to Venice: their fecond voyage with the Authour and returne.

Q. 2. Observations of M. Polo, of Armenia, Turkie, Zorzania, Baldach, Persia, Chirmain, Cobniam, Ormus, Knaue-sooles paradise, and other Easterne parts in Asia, and Armenia the lesse.

§ 3. Of Sapurgan, Balac, Thaican, Scattem, two Balaxiam, Bafcia, Chefmur, Vochan, Samarchan, Carchan, Peym, the dreadfull Defart of Lop and Tanguth. pag. 73. dia.

b. 4. Of Carchoran, the originall, proceedings and exploits of the Tartars, of Priefs lohn and his differendants. Cultures of the Tartars. Of Bargu, Erginul, Xandu, the Cans Citie and Palace; of Muske: of Strange Sorcerers, and ansiers Monkets.

Q. 5. Of Cublai Can, his Raigne and Aits, Magnificent feafis and huntings, Court and Counfell. His Citic Cambalu and glorious Palace. Dag. 81.

d. 6. The Cans provisions for Embalfadours and for Poilt, against Dearth, for High-waser; for the Poor in Cambalu, for Africogers; Tattars Wime, Fuell, Religion, Opinions, Behaviour, Court-neatness: Polos proceeding from Cambalu weftward. of Pulisagan, Gouza, Tainfu, Pianfu, Thaigin, Caciansu, Quenzausu, Sindinsu, Thebeth, Caindu, Caraian, Carachan, Cardandan and Vociam.

d. 7. Of the Province of Mien and Bengala, how they were conquered to the Can: of Cangingu, Amu, Tholoman, Cintigui, and some other parts of Cataio. And of the Conquest of Manpic. page 93.

Q. 8. Of the Cities of Mangi (now called China) and the rarities thereof: the many wonders of Quinfai, the Palaces, Plesfares, Rites and Government, observed by the Natines, and the Tartars.

other Eusterne parts in Asia, and Armenia the less pag. 60. 9. The ships of India described, the stee of Light.

2. 9. 3. Of Sapurgan, Balac, Thaican, Scassen, Balaxiam, Bascia, Chesmur, Vochan, Samar-rities therein.

pag. 102.

dia. 10 Of the firme Land of the Greater Inpag. 104e CHAP CRA2. V.

The Historie of Ayton, or Anthonic the Ar- turne to Catalo. menian, of Affa, and Bectally touching the Tartarn, H.P.

of the Tastars : and of Cangius, or Cingis his his fact-look. o eginnings.

conqueles. Of cloccots and his three somes expe- 122, and description thereof. Bu disposition of inc designes of Gino Care; of Mangu Can, who estate and death was viffeed by the King of Armenia, and baorefed; of the expension of his brother Ha-

3. 3. Of Cobila Can the fift Emperour of the Tamatland of the warre with Barcha, and Tarturin our red with the Christians, Haciaons death. Miss of the Solican of Egypt. Of Abaya and other Commer and Sucre Cours of Haloon. D. . . .

4. 4. Of Argon the Sonne of Ataga, and Regares, his brother; of Baido, and of the explosis tagail; here abbremisted. H.P. of Cafan exercit the Soldan of Egypt, and a- i

4. Cafan dreth, Carbanda facceedeth; but neighbouring Regions. Apoliafie. The Anthors entrance into a Religious habit. Of Tamor Can the fixt Emperour, and of Chapar, Hochrai, and Carbanda, three other hubandrie of China; their contemps of the idle. Tartarian Kings. pag.12 (.

CHAP. VI.

CHAP. VII.

The Voyage of Nicolo di Conti a Venetian, so the Indies, Mangi, Cambalu and Quinfai, with some observations of those places.

CHAP. VIII.

Tamerian , touching bis Martiall travels , done into French by Ican du Bec, Abbat of Morti-

3. 1. Tamerlans birth and perfon, bu expedition against the Muscouite; bis marriage with the Cans danghter; bu over-throwing of Ca-dition into China, entring the Wall, conquering 112.

the King, and at poling of the Countrey, and re-

3 2. The difference: between Tamerian and page 108. Baiazet the Turke: his returne to Samercand. 1. 1. Of the Ringdome of Cathay, and divers and Expedicion against Basazza; the battell, and other Produces of Alia, and of the first babetation cultione, bu Caping of Baiazet, and making him

3. A Encrease of Samarcand : Afaires of 4. 2. Of Changing Can his fecond vision and China: Faneral: of the Can; comming to Onin-

> Reports of Charge Memet & Perlian of Tabas m the Promince of Chatan , southmer his tranels and infernations in the Countres of the Great Can, vmo M. G. Baptilla Ramulio. caga: 64. C # 42. %

A Treatife of China, and the advantag 35rions, menten er Galbar da Cruz a Dominican Eriar, and dedicated to Sebaltian King of Por-Of Camboia and the Bramenes there; the pagetan confeet his going to China : Of China and the > 3. 2. Cantan described; the publike and prisate buildings and government. The hipping and and provision for impotent poore.

4. 2. Of their mechanical Trades, Merchan-Tranels and Memorials of Sir John Mande- difes and Moneyes : their promisions of flesh and pag. 128. filb; the Perfors and attyre of Memand Women:

to s. Of their Louthies , Mandermes or Magiftrates, their creation, printledges, maintenance; pag-158. of Prifon: and Tortures; of the King and of Embastadours.

3. 5. Of the Portugall commerce with the Exercits of Albacen bu Arabike Historic of Chinois; of the senere Institute executed upon certaine Magistrates, for wrongs done to the Por-

4. 6. Of the Religion in China; difficultie of bringing in Christianitie. Terrible Earth-anakes and Tempelts in China. pag.1,5.

CHAP. XI. The relation of Galeotto Perera, a Gentleman 2. 2. Cataio, Cambalu; Tamerlans Expe- men of good credit, that lay prisoner in Chi-

The

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the second Booke of the Second part of Purchas his PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. He beginning of English Discoueries towards the North, and North-east, by Sir Hugh Willoughby, Richard Chancellor, and others; of the Mulcouie Trade, as also thorom divers Regions of Tartaria. Ships, fet forth under the charge of Sir Hugh Wil- | Wall. loughby, Knight, in which he dyed; and Musconia was discouered by Captaine Chancellor. ibid. Some additions for better knowledge of this Voyage, taken by Clement Adams, Schoole-mafter to the Queenes Henshmen, from the mouth of Captaine Chancellor.

The Copie of the Duke of Moscouic and Emperour of Ruffia his Letters, fent to King Edward Hifbitals and provisions for the Poore. The Kings the Sixth, by the hands of Richard Chancel-

D. 2. The first voyage made by Master Anthonie lenkinson, from the Citie of London, toward the Land of Russia, begun the twelfih of May, pag.232. in the yeere 1557.

2. 3. Notes taken out of another mans Relation of the same voyage, touching the Ruffian

4. The voyage of Master Anthony Ienkinfon, made from the Citie of Mosco in Ruffia, to the Citie of Boghar in Bactria, in the geere 1558. written by himselfe to the Merchants of London, of the Moscouie Companie.

2. 5. Advertisements and reports of the fixt voyage into the parts of Persia and Media, gathered out of fundrie Letters written by Chri-Ropher Borough; and more especially a voyage ouer the Caspian Sea, and their shipmracke and miseries there endured by the Ice. pag.243.

A Letter of Master Henrie Lane, to the worshipfull Master William Sanderson, contayning a briefe discourse of that which puffed in the North-east discouerie, for the space of three and shirtie yeeres.

CHAP. II. Observations of China, Tartaria, and other Eafterne parts of the World, taken out of Fernam Mendez Pinto his Peregrination.

1. Mendez his many miserable aduentures, bis france Expedition with Antonio de Faria; diners Coasts visited, Pirats tamed, miferies saf- The Answere of Don Pedro de Acunna, Gotered, glorie recouered.

2. 2. Antonio Faria his taking of Nouda a cheo in China.

Citie in China, triumpi at Liampoo; strange voyage to Calempluy, insferable thippurack. p. 258

0. 3. Their Shipwrack in which Faria and most of them were drowned; the miferable wandrings of the rest to Nanquin : their imprisonment, fen-Voyages by Ruffia, oner the Caspian Sea, and sence and appeale to Pequin; rarities observed in those places and wayes; of the beginnings of b. I. The first voyage for discouerie with three the China Kingdome , and of their admirable

3. 4. Mindo Salt pits : Mines of Coretumbaga, Copper-workes ; Idolatrie and Christianities China Trades, and River Faires , their comming to Pequin, triall and fentence. Rarities of Pe-

$. 5. Foure buildings incredibly admirable in Pequin, and divers of their Superstitions: their remenues and Court; their Sects.

d. 6. Their remoone to Quanfie, quarrels, miferies , Tartarian buge Armie , and loffe at the fiege of Pequim, reported. Quantie taken, and Nixianco : Mendez his explois. Their entertainment by the Tartar King , and going to Cauchinchina with his Embaffadours , with many Tartarian obsernations. CHAP. III.

Spanish plantation of the Philippinas , and what entercourse hath thence hapned betwixe them and the Chinois. Q. 1. Firft disconcrie of the Philippinas: written by Friar Juan Gonzales de Mendoza. ibid. 4. 2. First plantation of the Philippinas, by Michael Lopez de Legaspi. d. s. of Limahon a China Robber and Reuer, by whose occasion the Spaniards fent into

d. 4. Friar Martin de Herrada , and other Spaniards entertainment in China, and their returne to the Philippinas.

Two Letters taken out of Barrolome Leonardo de Argenfola bis Treatife, called Conquista delas Islas Mahucas , printed at Madrid, 1609. pag. 336, 337. mentioning the comming of two English Ships to China : which feeme to be two This of the fleet of Beniamin Wood : The former written by the Visitor of Chincheo in China, vnto the Gouernour of the Philippinas, Don Pedro de Acunna. H. P.

pag:252. wornour of the Philippinas, to the Vifitor of Chinpag.310.

CHAP

The report of a Mahometan Merchant, which had beene in Cambalu : and the troublesome trauell of Benedictus Goes, a Portugali Iesuite, from Lahor to China by land, thorow the Tartars Countries. pag. 310.

CHAP. V. A generall collection and historicall representation of the lesuites entrance into lapon and

China, untill their admission in the Royall Citie of Nanquin.

d. 1. Of Francis Xauier, Melchior Nunnes, Valignanus, Ruggerius and Palius.

d. 2. Iaponian Embaffage to the Pope; Of Nabunanga and Quabacondono their gouernment ; Corai inuaded , Embaffage from China, Taicosamas Temple, and Ogoshosamas succes-

$. 3. Ruggerius enters againe into China with Ricius, and is forced backe to Amacao; thence fent for againe by the Vice-roy. Sande and Almeida are fent to them, and enter the Countrey as farre as Cequion, and returne to Sciauchin.

d. 4. False brethren and others accusations detected, they are expelled Sciauchin : erect a Seat at Xauceum. Monasterie of Nanhoa and other things of note in those parts. They alter their habit ; Voyage to Nanquin ; the Lake, Riners, I lols and other rarities.

d. 5. Nanquin described; Ricius expelled thence, be fetleth at Nancian, thence goeth to Nanquin againe, and to Pequin ; description of it, the way thither, the Kings Palace, and of Suceu, and Hamceu.

d. 6. Letters from Tather Longobard and Taifo. Ricius his enter .. inment at Nanquin and residence there. The Chinois unlearned lear-

CHAP. VI. A Letter of Father Diego de Pantoia, one of the Companie of IESVs, to Father Luys de Guzman , Prouinciall in the Prouince of Toledo : written in Paquin, which is the Court of the King of China, the ninth of March, the yeere 1602. Ĥ.P.

Q. I. Difficulties of entring China, their dwelling as Nanquin, going from thence to Paquin, with Prefents for the King, troubles in the way by an Eunuch.

Q. 2. The King fends for them , is delighted of. with their Clocks and Pictures; they are fout up, after take a House, are admired for learning; Christianitie of Chinas

0. 2. The description of the Kingdome of China; of Catay and Musk; the disission into Ptouinces: Citses and Townes described. River. Shipping, Commodities, Diet, and feeding. pag. 360.

d. a. Their moneyes, apparell, per fons, trades, wealth, learning, marriages, superstitions, rites, and opinions.

d. Their bad Souldierie and Artillerie Degrees priniledges honours and promotions of learning. Their Authors and Bookes, and Printing. The Mandarins commended.

d. 6. Of the government of China: Of the Mandarins ; the China complements and manifold nicities.

4. 7. Of their Women : Of the Tartars Conquest, acts and expulsion. The greatnesse of the King, and neighbouring States. Of the Queenes pag-375.

CHAP. VII. A discourse of the Kingdome of China, taken out of Ricius and Trigautius, contamino the countrey, people, government, religion, rites, lects. characters, studies, arts, acts; and a Map of China added, drawne out of one there made with Annotations for the understanding thereof. pag. 380. d. 1. Of the name, lite, and greatnelle: the Tributaries, commoditie, arts , printing , feales, inke, pencill-pennes and fannes. 0. 2. Of their Characters and writing downeward : their studies, Ethikes, Astrologie, Physike. authentike Authors , Degrees how taken both Philo(opbicall and Militarie.

0. 3. Of the Tartarian conquest; Of Humuu the Establisher of the present gouernment. The Reuenues. Magistrates in the Courts Royall. Prouinces, Cities, Orders, Exaltations, Visitations, Deprinations.

O. 4. Their manifold rites in Salutations, Entertainments, and other civilitie : to the King and Magistrates: Of Burials and Marriages, Birthdayes; their Men, Women, Names and Games, Habites-

d. S. Of their Superflitions, Cruelties, feares of Magistrates, of the Kings kindred, of Strangers and Souldiers. Their Deities and three Sects : Priefts, Nunnes, Monasteries, Legends,

Q. 6. Of ftrangers, and forraine Religions in

Q. 7. The Map of China, taken out of a China Map, printed with China Characters: illufirated with Notes, for the understanding there-

CHAP. VIII. A continuation of the lefuites Ads and observations in China till Ricius his death and some yeers after. Of Hanceu or Quinfay. An Extract of Monfarts tranell.

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the third Booke of the first part of Purchas his PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. Treatife of Russia and the adjoyning Regions , written by Doctor Giles Fletcher, Lord Ambaffadour from the late Queene, Euer-glorious Elizabeth, to Theodore then Emperour of Ruffia, A. D. 1588.

A briefe discouerie of the Northerne disconeries of Seas, Coasts, and Countries, delinered in order as they were hopefully begun, and have ever fince happily beene continued by the fingular induftrie and charge of the Worshipfull Societie of Mulcouia Merchants of London, with the ten Senerall Voyages of Captaine Thomas Edge the Authour.

Q. I. Greenland firft discourred by Sir Hugh Willoughby: the Voyages of Frobisher, Pet, and lackman , Dauis , the Dutch ; First Morfe and Whale-killing, with further discoueries.

2. 2. Dutch, Spanish , Danish difturbance; alfoby Hull men, and by a new Patent , with the Succeeding Successe and further disconcries sill this

pag.466.
3. The description of the scueral sorts of Whales, with the manner of killing them : Whereto is added the description of Greenland. p.470. The description of Greenland.

CHAP. III. The first Nauigation of William Barents , 4lias Bernards , into the North Seas ; Written by Gerart de Veer.

CHAP. IIII. A briefe declaration of Barents his fecond Nanigation, made in Anno 1595 behind Norway, Muscouria, and Tartaria, written by Gerart de pag.478.

CHAP. V. The third verage Northward to the Kingdoms of Cathaia, and China, in Anno 1596. Written by Gerare de Veer.

Q. I. What happened to them at Sea, before they came to build their House. ibid.

D. 2. Their cold, comfortle fe, darke and dreadfull winter : she Sunnes absence, Moones light, Summes unexpected returne with miraculous feed. Of Beares, Foxes, and many many wonders. p. 492.

1. 3. Their preparation to goe from thence : they depart in a Boat and Scute both open , and come to Cola, 1143. miles. Their many dangers

This was written by William Barentson in a loofe Paper , which was lent mee by the Reverend Peter Plantius in Amfterdam, March the feuen and twentieth, 1609. pag.518. CHAP. VI.

A Treatife of Iuer Boty a Gronlander translated out of the North language into High Dutch. H.

The Course from Island to Groneland. p. 520. CHAP. VII.

A description of the Countries of Siberia, Samoieda, and Tingoelia. Together with the lourneves leading unto the same Countries toward the East and North-east, as they are daily frequented by the Molcouites.

8. 1. Discource of Siberia, and the subjecting of the same to the Ruffes.

0. 2. A briefe description of the Waves and Riwers, leading out of Molcouis toward the East and North-east into Siberia, Samoiedia, and Tingoefia, as they are daily frequented by the Ruffes : with further discoueries towards Tartaria and

2. 3. A Note of the travels of the Ruffes ouer Land, and by water from Mezen, neere the Bay of Saint Nicholas to Pechora, to Obi, to Yeniffe, and to the Riner Geta , even wnto the Frontiers of Cataia ; brought into England by Mafter Iohn Mericke, the English Agent for Moscouie, and translated out of the Russe by Richard Finch. H.

CHAP. VIII. A voyage made to Pechora 1611. Written by William Gourdon of Hull, appointed chiefe Pis los, for discouerie to Ob, Oc. H. CHAP. IX.

A Letter of Richard Finch to the Right Wor-Stipfull Sir Thomas Smith , Gouernour ; and to the rest of the Worshipfull Companie of English Merchants, trading into Ruffia : touching the former voyage, and other observations. H. pag. 534-

The names of the places that the Rulles Sayle by, from Pechorskoie Zauorot, to Mongozey: with the manner of their travell, and distance betweene each place, or time of Sayling, Halling, and Rowing unto the Same. CHAP. X.

The Voyage of Mafter Iolias Logan to Pechoby Beares, Ice, Famine, Scorbute, in the ra, and his wintering there, with Mafter William Puriglone, and Marmaduke Wilson. Anno 1611. H. pag.541.

Extradis taken out of two Letters of Tofias Lo- ket. pan from Pechora, to Master Hakluyt Prebend pag. 546. of Westminster.

CHAP. XI. A briefe relation of a Voyage to Pechora, and mintering there, began in the yeere 1611. Written William Purfeloue. H.

Other obfernations of the faid William Purf-

The travel from Pechora to Permia, Ougoria, and to the River Ob, and the Townes situated thereupon, ouer Land. Commodities for Pechora, Siberia, Permia, Ougoria, and among the Tinguffies. pag. 552. Commedities for the Tinguffies. CHAP. XII.

Later observations of William Gourdon, in bis mintering at Puftozera, in the geeres 1614. and 1615. with a description of the Samoyeds life. H.

CHAR. XIII. Diners Voyages to Cheric Iland, in the geeres 1604, 1605, 1606, 1608, 1609. Written by Io. pag.556. nas Poole. H.

CHAP. XIIII. Diners Voyages and Northerne disconcries of that worthy trreconerable Disconerer Mafter Henrie Hudion. His Discouerie toward the North Pole, fet forth at the charge of certaine Worfhipfull Merchants of London, in May 1607. Written partly by John Playle one of the Companie, and parily by H. Hudion. H. CHAP. XV.

A fecond voyage or employment of Mafter Henrie Hudson, for finding a passage to the East Indies by the North-cast : written by him-

CHAP. XVI. The third verage of Mafter Hennic Hudson toward Noua Zembla, and at his returne, his passing from Farre Ilands, to New-found-Land, and along to fortie foure degrees and ten minutes, and thence to Cape Cod, and fo to thirtie three degrees; and along the Coast to the Northward, to fortie two degrees and an halfe, and up the River neere to fartie three degrees. Written by Robert Iuet of Lime-house. H. pag.581.

CHAP. XVII. An Abliract of the lournall of Mafter Henrie Hudlon, for the disconerie of the North-west paffage, begun the 17. of Aprill, 1610. ended with his daall. end, being treacheroufly exposed by some of the pag.596. times. Companie. H.

A larger discourse of the same voyage, and the successe thereof, written by Abacak Pric-

A Note found in the Deske of Thomas Widhouse, Student in the Mathematikes, be being one of them who was put into the Shakep. pag.600.

CHAP. XVIII.

The discoveries of M. M. Nicolo, and Amonio Zeni, gathered out of their Letters by Francisco Marcolino: whereto is added Quirino bis (hipporacke, H.P.

The Shipwracke of Master Piero Quirino, de-(cribed by Christophoro Fiorauanti, and Nicolo di Michiel, who were present there : here contracted. H. P. pag. 611.

CHAP. XIX. Ancient commerce betwixt England and Norway, and other Northerne Regions. pag.619.

CHAP. XX. A briefe Memorial of the great tranels by Sea and Land, of Master George Barkley, Merchant of London, in Europe, Afia, Africa, and America, and their Ilands. pag. 625.

CHAP. XXI.

Collections out of Martin Broniouins de Biezerfedea fent Ambassadeur from Stevhen Kine of Poland, to the Crim Tartar : Contagning & description of Tartaria, or Chersonesus Taurica and the Regions Subjett to the Perecop or Crim Tartars, with their Caffomes prinate and publike in peace and warre. CHAT. XXII.

Dithmar Blefkens bis Voyages, and Hillory of Island and Groenland. Pag. 643. of the Islanders Religion. The Life and Manners of the Islanders: ibid. Of the wonderfull flanding Pooles, Lakes and Founfaines in Mand.

Of the wonderfull Mountaines in Island pag. 648. Of the Riches of the Manders. pag.649. Of the Indgement of the Islanders. pag.650. of Groneland. .pag.651.

CHAP. XXIII. Extracts of Arngrim lonas, an Islander, bu Chrymogza or History of Island : publifhed Anno Dom. 1609. H.P.

d. 1. Of Island, the Situation, Difconerie, Plantation and Language. 0. 2. A discourse of the first Inhabitants of the Northerne World, Supposed to be Giants expelled from Canaan. Of the Islanders Houfes, Fewell, Vid. 2. Of their Politie, and Religion in old The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the fourth Booke of the Second part of Parchas his PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. Voyage fet forth by the Right Worshipfull Sir Thomas Smith, and the rest of the Musco-Lic Company, to Cherry lland: and for a further Discouerie to bee made towards the North. Pole, for the likelihood of a Trade or a passage that way, in a Ship called the Amitic, of burthen (euentie tunnes; in the which I Ionas Poole was Mafter, hauhaving foureteene Men and one Boy: Anno Dom.

A briefe note what Beafts, Fowles, and Fishes were feene in this land.

CHAP. II. A Commission for Ionas Poole our Servant, appointed Mafter of a fmall Barke called the Elizabeth, of fiftie tunnes burthen, for Discouery to the Northward of Greeneland, given the last day of May, 1610. H.P.

CHAP. III. Abriefe Declaration of this my Voyage of Discouery to Greeneland, and towards the West of it, as followeth : being fet forth by the right Worshipfull Sir Thomas Smith , Gonernour of the right Worlhipfull Company of new Trades, &c. written by lonas Poole. H.

CHAP. IIII. A Relation written by Ionas Poole of a Voyage to Greeneland, in the yeere 1612. with two Shippes, the one called the VV hale, the other the Seahorse, fet out by the right Worshipfull the Muscouic Merchants.H.

CHAP. V. A Journall of the Voyage made to Greeneland with fixe English Shippes and a Pinnaffe, in the yeere 1613. written by Mafter William Baffin. H.P.

CHAP. VI. A Vojege of Difconery to Greeneland, &c. An. 1614. written by Ro. Potherbye. H.P. pig.720. CHAP. VII.

A true report of a Votate. Anno 1615 for Difcoveries Seas, Lands, and llands, to the Worthwards; as it was performed by Robert Potherbie, in a Pinnaffe of twenty tunnes called the Richard of London. H.P.

A Letter of Robert Fotherby to Captain Edge written in Croffe-rode, Ialy 15.1615. pag 331. CHAP. VIII.

Divers other Voyages to Greenland, with Letters of thele which were there employed, communicated to me by Master William Heley, in the yeere 1617. angell, to Srr Thomas Smith, then Lord Embas-1618.1619. 1620. 1621. 1623. A Letter of Master Robert Salmon to Mafter Sherwin. In Sir Thomas Smiths Bay, the 24. of luns 1618. A Letter of Wafter Th. Sherwin : Bell-found this 29. of lune, 1618.

A Letter of James Beuersham to Master Helev. From Faire-banen, the 12. of Iuly, 16ts. ibid. A Letter of John Chambers to W. Heley, Bel-found, June 16. 1619. A Letter of I. Catcher to Mafter Heley from Faire-hauen. Laus Deo, this fewenteenth of Thine,

A Letter of Robert Salmon from Sir Thomas Smiths Bay, July 6. 1621.

Laus Deo in Faire-Hauen,the foure and twentieth of lune, 1623. Mafter Catchers Letter : the wine and twentieth of Tune 1623.

Captaine William Goodfards Letter E Bejfound this eight of luly, 1623. CHAP. IX.

The late changes and manifold alterations in Ruffia fince Iuan Vafilowich to this prefent, guthered out of many Letters and Obfernations of Engfish Embaffadours and other Travellers in those

d. 1. Of thereigne of Iuan, Pheodore bu fonne,

The most folemne and magnificent coronation of Pheodor Juanowich, Emperour of Ruffia, Or the tenth of lune, in the geere 1,84. frene and obfermed by Matter Ierom Horsey Gentleman, and ferwant to

2. 2. Occurrents of principal Note while happened in Ruffia, in the sime while the Honorable sir Thomas Smith remained there Embaffalout from his Maieflie.

3. 3. One pretending bim Pile to be Demetrils. with the Popes and Poles belpes attaineth the Reaffian Empire bu Arts, Alls Meriage, fauour to the Englith, and misfrable and. The Copie of a Letter sent from the Emperor Demetry Euanowich, otherwife called Griffico O-

The Copie of the translation of a Commission that was fent from the Mosko, from the Emperour Demetry Euanowich, alias Gryfhea Otreapyoue by & Courtier named Gauaryla Samoylowich Salmanoue, who was fent downe to the Cafile of Arch-

The Copie of the Translation of a new Priviledge that was given to the Company, by the Emperour Demerry Euanowich, otherwise called Gryshca Otreapyoue, the which Priniledge was fent into England over-land by Olyver Lyffet Merchant, and (eruant to the forefaid Company. The Copie of the translation of a Contract, made by the Emperour Demetry Euanowich, otherwife called Gryscha Otreapyoue, and the daughter of the Palatine Sendamersko, chiefe Generall of Poland.

0. 4. The Copie of the Translation of a Letter fent from the new Emperour Vaffily Euanowich Shoskey to the Kings Maiesty by Master John Mericke. pag.765.

Captaine Margarets Letter to Master Mericke from Hamborough, Ian.29. 1612. pag.780. 4. 5. Of the miserable estate of Rullia after Swiskeys deportation, their election of the Kino of Polands Sonne, their Interregnum and popular eftate, and choosing at last of the present Emperour, with some remarkeable accidents in his time.H.P. me.H.P. pag.782. Pacta inter Primarium Ducem Exercituum Regni Polonia, & inter Heroes Mofconia. p. 783. CHAP. X.

A briefe Copie of the points of the Contracts betweene she Emperours Maiestie and the Kings Maiestie of Sweden : in Stolbona the senen and twentieth of February, 1616. Снар. ХІ.

A Relation of two Russe Cossacks transiles, out of Siberia to Catay, and other Countries adionning thereunto. Alfo a Copie of the last Patent from the Mulcouite. A Copie of a Letter written to the Emperour from his Governours out of Sibe-

The Copie of the Altine Chars, or tolden Kings Letter to the Emperour of Russia. A Description of the Empires of Catay and La-bin, and other Dominions as well inhabited as places of Pasture called Viulles and Hords, and of the great Riner Ob, and other Rivers and Land paffages. CHAP. XII.

Notes concerning the discovery of the River of Ob, taken out of a Roll, written in the Ruffian | yeere of our Lord 1616. tongue, which was attempted by the meanes of Antonie Marsh, a chiefe Factor for the Moscouic North-east, H.

pag.759. | couie Merchant, and Master Thomas Lundes touching a warme Sea to the South-east of the River Ob, and a Note of Francis Gaulle. H.P. p. 806. CHAP. XIII.

Discourries made by Englishmen to the Northwelt : Voyages of Sir Sebastian Cabot, Master Thorne, and other Ancients: and Master Weymouth.H.P.

The Voyage of Captaine George Weymouth. intended for the discovery of the North-west Passage toward China, with two flye Boates. pag. 809.

CHAP. XIV. lames Hall-bis Voyage forth of Denmarke for the discovery of Greenland, in the yeere 1604.abbreusased. H. pag.814.

CHAP. XV. The fecond Voyage of Mafter Iames Hall, forth of Denmarke into Greeneland, in the yeere 1606. contracted. H.

CHAP. XVI. The Voyage of Master Iohn Knight (which had beene at Greeneland once before 1605. Captaine of a Pinnaffe of the King of Denmarke) for the Discouery of the North-west passage, begunne the eighteenth of Aprill, 1606. H.

CHAP. XVII.

The fourth Voyage of Iames Hall to Groaneland, wherein he was fet forth by English Admenturers, Anno 1612 and flaine by a Greenelander. Written by William Baffin. H.

CHAP. XVIII. A true Relation of (uch things as happened in the fourth Voyage for the Discouerie of the Northwest Passage, performed in the yeare 1615, written by William Baffin. H. P. pag-836.

CHAP. XIX. .

A briefe and true Relation or Iournall, containing such accidents as happened in the fift Voyage, for the discovery of a passage in the North-west. (et forth at the charges of the right Worlhipfull Sir Thomas Smith Knight, Sir Dudly Digges Knight, Mafter Ichn Mostenholme Efquire, Mafter Alderman Iones, with others, in the good (hip called the Discouery of London; Robert Bileth Mafter, and my felfe Pilot , performed in the CHAP. XX

A briefe Discourse of the probability of a pas-Companyof England, 1584 with other notes of the lage to the Wellerne or South Sea, illustrated with pag. 804. sestimonies : and a briefe Treatife and Map by Ma-Thereport of Master Francis Cherry & Mof- fer Brigges. H.P. pag.848.

The

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the Fifth Booke of the second part of Purchas his

PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. Description of the west Indies, by Antonio de Herrera, bis Maiesties chiefe Chroni-La cler of the Indies, and his Chronicler of Castile. H. P.

The Presidents, Counsellors, Secretaries, and Attourners, which vosto this prefent day have ferned, and doe ferme in the supreme Councel of the Indies, from their first Discouerie.

The Gouernours and Vice-royes, which have gouerned untill this time, the Kingdomes of New-Spaine

CHAP. II. Observations gathered out of the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Bookes of Iolephus Acosta, a learned lefuite, touching the natural historie of the Heanens, Ayre, Water, and Earth, at the West Indies. Alfo of their Beafts, Fifhes, Fowles, Plants, and other remarkeable ravities of Nature. d. 1. Of the fashion and forme of Heauen, at the new-found World, and of the Ayre and Winds. ibid. d. 2. Of the Ocean that innirons the Indies, and of the North and South Seas, their ebbing, flowing, Fifbes, fifbing, Lakes, Rivers, and Springs. pag. 928.

d. 3. Of the qualitie of the Land at the Indies in generall. Properties of Peru, and of new Spaine, and other parts: Of Vulcanes and Earth-

d. 4. Of Metals in the Indies, and especially of the Gold and Silver, and Quick-filver. pag.941. 0. 5. Of Emeralds, Pearles, Indian Bread, Trees, Fruits. Flowers naturall, and carried thither from

0. 6. Of Beafts and Fowles in the In-Of Fowles that are proper to the Indies, and

Veni on. CHAP. III.

Extracts of Gonzalo Ferdinando de Ouiedo his Summarie and the generall Historic of the In-Of the Mynes of Gold, and the manner of working

Of the manner of fishing for Pearles. pag.972.

Of the familiaritie which certains of the Indians bane with the Deuill, and bow they receive answere of him of things to come , and other superstiti-

Of divers particular things, as Wormes, Serpents, Beasts, Fowles, Trees, &c.

Of Trees, Fruits, and Plants. pag.981. Of Reedes or Canes. pag.983.

Of venemous Apples, wherwish they poy (on their

Of Fishes, and of the manner of fishing. p.986. Of the increase and decrease (that is) riling and falling of our Ocean Sea, and South Sea, called the Sea of Sur.

Of the Braight or narrow passage of the Land. lying betweene the North and South Sea, by the which Spices may much fooner and easilier be brought from the Ilands of Molucca into Spaine by the West Ocean, then by that way wherby the Portugals faile into the East India.

How things that are of one kinde, differ in forme and qualitie, according to the nature of the place where they are engendred or grow, and of the beasts salled Tigres.

Of the manners and sustames of the Indians of the Firme Land, and of their Women. pag.991. Of the chiefe Hands, Hispaniola and Cu-

CHAP. IIII. Mexican Antiquities gathered out of the writings of Iosephus Acosta a learned lesaite. pag. 1000. 0. 1. Of the ancient Inhabitants of new Spain, and of the fixe Linages of the Nauatlacas. Of the Mexican Exodus, and adventures by the way: the foundation of Mexico, their first King and Tri-

d. 2. Of the second King Vitzilouitli; and of his successioners and their Acts votill the reigne of Motezuma their last King.

0. 3. Of the election of great Motezuma, the last King of Mexico: his pompe and manner of gouernment, prodigious fore warnings, of his ruine, and the Spanish conquest.

CHAP. V.

Of the ancient Superstitions of the Mexicans and Indians of America, gathered out of the fifth booke of Iosephus Acosta. pag.1026. CHAP. VI.

Civill Customes and Arts of the Indians taken out of Acostas 6. Booke. pag.1050. CHAP. VII.

The Historie of the Mexican Nation , described in pictures by the Mexican Author explained in the Mexican language; which exposition translated inpag. 975. | to Spanish, and thence into English, together with Ph. 19 2 d 1. The Mexican Chronicle. ibid. 6. 2. The second part of this Booke contayning the particular Tributes, which every Towne subdued payed unto the Lords of Mexi-

). 3. The third part of this Booke, contagneth the private behaviour in Marriages, education of Children, and Trades : with the Martiall, Ecclesiafticke, and Civill policie of the Mexican peopag. [ 102. CHAP. VIII.

Conquest of Mexico and New Spaine, by Hernando Cortes.

CHAP. IX.

Larger Relations of things most remarkeable obferued by the Spaniards at their first comming : Cholallas holies; Popocatepecs aftes. Mutezumas multiforme Magnificence and Maiestie. Mexican Citie and Temple, with other Antiquities gathered out of the Third part of the Historie of Francis Lopez de Gomara. pag.1123.

The Hillcalled Popocatenec. Description of Mexico as it flourished in these pag.1121.

Other Mexican Antiquities, Letters, Numbers, Teeres, Dayes, Weekes, &c. Pag. 1135. Their reckoning by numbers.

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the fixth Booke of the Second part of Purchas his PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. Briefe Relation of the fenerall Voyages, vndertaken and performed by the Right Honourable, George, Earle of Cumberland, in his owne person, or at his owne charge, and by his direction : collected out of the Relations and Iournals of credible persons Actors there-Dag. 1 141.

CHAP. II. The Voyage to Saint Iohn de Porto Rico, by the Right Honourable, George, Earle of Cumberland, ges. written by himfelfe. H. pag.1150.

CHAP. III. Alarge Relation of Port Ricco Voyage; written as is reported, by that learned man and reverend Dinine Doctor Eglambie, his Lordships Chaplaine and Attendant in that Expedion ; very much abbreviated. H.

d. I. The Ships employed in the Voyage and accidents on the Coasts of Spaine, in the Canaries, and the Nauigation thence to Domini-

0. 2. Description of Dominica and the Virgines. Their landing on Port Ricco, March, fights and taking the Towne.

2. 3. The Fort Mora befreged and taken. The Towne described : the Mines. Purpose to hold the place; altered by the death and sicknesse of mapag.1162.

A refolution, which they were to trust to.p. 1162. d. 4. Purpose of returne. Treatie with the Spaniards. His Lordhips departure. Description of

2. 5. Accidents by Sea in their way to the Azores and there. pag. 1174. CHAP. IIII.

The first Voyages made to divers parts of America by Englishmen, Sir Sebastian Cabor, Sir Thomas Pert : alfo of Sir Iohn Hawkins, and Sir Francis Drake, and many others : collected briefly out of Master Camden, Master Hakluit, and other Writers. A briefe Historie of Sir Francis Drakes Voya-

A briefe recitall or nomination of Sea-fights, other Englishmens Voyages related at large in the printed Workes of Mafter Hakluit. pag. 1186. CHAP. V.

The Relation of Peter Carder of Saint Verian in Cornwall, within feuen miles of Falmourh. which went with Sir Francis in his Vorage about the World, begun 1577. who with fewen others in an open Pinnasse or Shallop of fine tunnes, with eight O ares, was seperated from his Generall by foule weather in the South Sea, in October, Anno 1578. who returning by the Straites of Magellan toward Brafill, were all cast away, faue this one onely aforenamed, who came into England nine yeeres after miraculously, baning escaped many strange dangers, aswell among divers Sauages as Christi-CHAP. VI.

Master Thomas Candish bis Discourse of his fatall and defastrous Voyage towards the South Sea. with his many disaduentures in the Magellan the Iland, the Beafts, Fruits, Plants, &c. pag. 1168. Straits, and other places; written with his

3 341 8ter. H. CHAP. VII. TAL

The admirable adventures and strange fortunes of Master Anthonie Kniuet, which went with Malter Thomas Candilh in his fecond Voyage to he South Sea, 1591. H.P. Dig. 1201. the South Sea, 1591. H. P.

and after, till bee was taken by the Portuibid.

d. 2. Anthonie Krimet his comming to the R. of Ianero, and vlage amonest the Portugals, and Indians : bis diners Travels thorow diners Regions of those parts.

0.3. His frange travels with twelve Pormgals, whom the Sauages did eate. His life with the Canibals : and after that with the Portugals, from whom hee fleeth to Angola, is brought backe, and after manifold chances, is shipped to Lif-D. 4. The divers Nations of Sauages in Brafill, and the adjoyning Regions : their dinerfities of Conditions, States, Rites, Creatures, and other thinges remarkeable, which the Author observed in his many yeeres manifold Peregrinations.

The Giants of Port Defire, and Inhabitants of Port Famine : alfo Angola, Congo, and Maffangana, and Angica, Countries of Afri-

D. 5. The description of diners Rivers, Ports, Harbours, Ilands of Brafill : for instruction of Naui-CHAP. VIII.

Relations of Mafter Thomas Turner who limed the best part of two yeeres in Brafill,&c. which I received of him in conference touching his

CHAP. IX. The taking of Saint Vincent and Puerto Bello, by Captaine William Parker of Plimouth, the fementh of February, 1601. CHAP. X.

Certaine Notes of a Voyage made by David Middleton into the West Indies with Captaine Michael Geare, Ann. Dom. 1601. H. pag. 1242. CHAP. XI.

The Description of the Ile of Trinidad, the rich

owne hand to Sir Triftram Gorges his Execu- Country of Quiana, and the mightie Einer of pag. 1192. Orenoco, written by Francis Sparrey, left there by Sir Walter Baileigh, 1505. and in the end taken by the Spaniards and fent Prifoner into Spaine. and after long Captinitie got into England by great pag. 1247.

CHAP. XII. Captaine Charles Leigh bis Voyage to Gufana, end plantation there. H.

> OR AP. XIFI. the inches

A true Relation of the traiterous Maffacre of the most part of threescore and leven English men Tet on Land out of a Ship of Sir Oliph Leagh, bound for Guiana, in Santa Lucia, an Iland of the West Indie, the three and twentieth of Auguff, written by Iohn Nicol. H. P. pag. 1255.

CHAP. XIIII.

The Relation of Master John Willon of Wanfreed in Effex, one of the last tenne that veturned into England from Wiapoco. in Guiana, 1606. H. CHAP. XV.

Part of a Treatife written by Mafter William Turner, Sonne to Doctor Turner of London & Phylitian, touching the former Koyage, H. pag. 1265

CHAP. XVI.

A Relation of a Voyage to Guiana performed by Robert Harcourt of Stanton Harcourts in the Countie of Oxford Elaure. The names of the Rivers falling into the Sea from Amazones, to Dessequebe, and of the Jenerall Nations inhabiting those Rivers. pag.1282.

CHAP. XVII.

A Relation of the habitation and other Obferuations of the River of Marwin, and the adjoyning Rivers from Brabiffe to the Amazones. p. 1286

CHAP. XVIII.

A Description and Discourrie of the River of Amazons, by William Davies Barber Surgeon of London. pag. 1287.

The

PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. Treatife of Brafill, written by a Portugall which had long lived there. H. pag. 1289. d. 1. Of the beginning and originall of the Indians of Brafill, and of their Customes, Relieions, and Ceremonies.

19 1 7 18

b. 2. Of their manner of killing and eating of Humane flesh : and of their creating Gentle-

Q. 3. Of the disersitie of Nations and Languages, and of the Soyle and Climate. pag. 1297. V. 4. Of the Beafts , Land-ferpents , and Fowles. pag. 1301.

Of Land-Inakes and Servents. pag.1303. Of the Fowles that are in the Land, and are thereon fullamed. 00 5. Of the Brafilian Trees for Fruit, Medicine, and other vies ; and their Herbes of rare opepag. 1306. Of the Herbes that yeeld Fruit, and are ea-

pag.1309. water : alfo Shel-fifbes, Trees, and Fowles of the Sea : of Rivers and the Creatures which line therein ; and the Beufts and Plants brought thither out of Portugall.

Birds that doe feed, and are found in the Salt-

Fresh-water Snakes (and Creatures of the wa-

Of the Beafts, Trees and Herbes, that came from Portugall, and doe grow and breed in Bra-

CHAP. II. ... Articles touching the dutie of the Kings Maieflie our Lord, and to the common good of all the effate of Brasill. Written (as is thought) by the Anthor of the former Treatife. H.

CHAP. III.

Extracts out of the Historie of Iohn Lerius a Frenchman, who lined in Brafill with Monfieur and Plants of Brafill.

0. 2. Of the Warre, Battailes , Fortitude, and Weapons of the Barbarians : and of their Relidren, Policie, Hospitalitie, Difeases, Physitians, Funerals and Lamentations.

CHAP. IIII. The Travels of Hulderike Schnirdel in twentie yeeres space, from 1534. to 1554. abbreuiesed. H. P.

d. 1. His Voyage up the River of Plate, founds. tion of Townes, their expedition up the River of Parana and Parabol; the people of these

d. 2. Martin Eyollas made Generall. Gabreros comming : Scherues Voyage. Nunner his in-Solence. Diners people and accidents descri-

Q. 3. A long and troublefome March from ACfumption into Peru. The Authors returne. p. 1362

CHAP. V.

The Observations of Sir Richard Hawkins. Knight, in bu Voyage into the South Sea. An. Dom. 1593. once before published, now reviewed and corretted by a written Copie, illustrated with Notes. and in diners places abbreniated.

d. 1. What bappened in this Voyage before they came neere the Aquinoctiall Line, with divers accidensall Discourses viefull for Nauigators. pag. 1367

Q. 2. Considerations of Currents : the Scorbute : fire in Ships ; Fishes which attend them : Sea bawking and Hunting : their comming to Brafill and observations thereof.

d. 3. Tharltons treacherie : Disconerie of Land unknowne : Entrance of the Straits, accidents therein, and description thereof : Diners occasionall discourses for the furtherance of Marine and Naturall knowledge.

d. 4. Entrance into the South Sea ; Discouerie of the South parts of the Straits to bee but Ilands. pag. 1320. by Sir Francis Drake (which the Hollanders fcribe to Maire and Schouten.) Of the Iland Mocha, and the parts adjorning.

2. 5. The Vice-roy fends an Armado against the English ; which vieweth them and returneth : Villagagnon, Anno 1557. and 58.H.P. pag. 1325 is againe fet foortb : their fight ; the English Q. 1. Of the Beafts, and other lining Creatures, | yeeld upon composition : diners Martial discourpag.1398.

CHAP. VI. A briefe Note written by Master Iohn Ellis, one of the Captaines with Sir Richard Hawkins, is Q. 3. Of their Marriages, Education of Chil- his Voyage through the Strait of Magelan, begun the ninth of Aprill, 1593. concerning the faid Srait, and certaine places, on the Coast and Inland of pag.1415.

CHAP. VII. A briefe Relation of an Englishman which had beene thirteene yeeres Captine to the Spaniards in Peru, oc. H.

CHAP. VIII. The Relation of Alexandro Vrfino concerning the Coall of Terra Firma, and the fecrets of Peru, and Chili, where bee had lined foure and thirtie neeres. H.

CHAP. IX. Notes of the West Indies, gathered out of Pedro Ordonnes de Ceuallos, a Spanish Priest, his larger Observations.

CHAP. X.

Relation of the new discouerie in the South Sea, made by Pedro Fernandez Giros Portugez, 1600, with his Petitions to the King, one Englished, another in Spanish. pag.1422.

The Copie of a Petition presented to the King of Spaine, by Captaine Peter Ferdinand de Quir, souching the discouerie of the fourth part of the World, called Terra Australis Incognita : and of the great riches and fertilitie of the fame : Printed with licenfe in Sivill, An. 1610.

Nose of Australia del Espiritu Santo. written by Master Hakluyt. pag.1432.

CHAP. XI.

The Historic of Lopez Vaz a Portugali (taken by Captaine Withrington at the River of Plate, Anne 1586. with this discourse about bim) touching American places, discoueries and occurrents; CHAR. XII.

Briefe extracts translated out of Icrom Benzos three bookes of the New World touching the Spaniards craell handling of the Iudians, and the effetts thereof.

CHAP. XIII. Observations of things most remarkable, collested out of the first part of the Commentaries Royall, written by the Inca Garcilasso de la Vega, Na. turall of Co2co, in nine bookes ; Of the Originall. Lines, Conquefts, Lawes and Idolatries of the Incas, or ancient Kings of Peru.

CHAP. XIIII.

The suppliment of the Hiftorie of the Incas. briefly collected out of the Authors fecond part. or Generall Historie of Peru.

CHAP. XV.

Briefe Notes of Francis Pizarro his conquest of Peru, written by a Spanish Captaine therein employed. pag. 1489. CHAP. XVI.

The Conquest of Peru and Cusco, called New Castile, and directed to the Emperour by Francisco de Xeres, Secretarie to Captaine Francis Pizarro which conquered them. pag.1401.

CHAP. XVII.

Relations of occurrents in the Conquest of Peru after Fernand Pizarros departure, written at Xauxa, Iuly 15. 1534. by Pedro Sancho, Notarie Generall in the Kingdoms of New Castile, and Secretarie to the Gouernour Fr. Pizarro, fub (cribed by the faid Gonernour himselfe and others. and lent to his Maiestie. pag.1494

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the Eight Booke of the Second part of Purchas his PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I.

True Relation of Aluaro Nunez, called Capo di Vacca, concerning that which -happened to the Fleet in India, whereof Pamphilo Naruacz was Gouernour, from the reere 1527. Untill the veere 1526, who returned vato Siuill with three of his Companions onely: Translated out of Ramusio, and abbreniated. H.P. pag.1499.

Q. 1. Their Fleet; and admirall and unheard of troubleforme paffages, incounters, difaftrous fucceffe, building Boates for returne.

d. 2. Mifery pursaes them at Sea, and betrayes them to the Indians : their milerable Lines and 0. 3. Their flight from the Indians to others.

wonderfull cures, backe and belly cares : their trauels therow the Country, and bungry aduentures. Diners peoples and their Customes. 4. They come to the South Sea, and tranell

Tempest : their entrance into Florida : the Lakes, | through a plentifull Countrey, till they meet with Spaniards:

The Contents of the eight Booke.

Spaniards; whose crueltie & manner of converting Sausges is related. pag. 1524.

Ferdinando de Soto bis Vezage to Florida, and Discourie of the Regions in that Constinents, with the Transles of the Spaniards four speece together therein, and the accidents which befell than: writtee by a Portugall of the Companie, and here contrasted.

§ 1. Sotos entrance into Florida, taking of Iohn Ortiz one of Naruaz his Companie, comming to Paracossis, and divers other Caciques, with accidents in the way.

§ 2. Sotos surster Discoveries in Florida, and manifold Adventures till bee came to Tulla. pag. 1528.

Q. 3. His departure to Autiamque, Ortiz bu Death and disasters following: Soto takes thought and dyeth. Moscosco fucceedeth. They leave Florida, and arrive at Panuco. pag. 1550. CH AP. III.

Djuers expeditions from Mexico, and other parts of New Spaine and New Biskay, effectally to the more a wetberly parts of America, by duners Spainards in a hundred yeers space.

pag. 1556-

o. i. The Relation of Nunno di Gusman written to Charles the sift Emperous; translated out of Ramussios third Tome, and abridged.

v. 2. The Voyage of Frier Marco de Nica, Don Fr. Vasquez de Coronado, Don Antonio de Espeio, and diuers into New Mexico, and the adiopaing Coasts and Lands. pag. 1560.

6.3. Extracts out of certaine Letters of Father Martin Perez of the Societic of I Exvs, from the new Actiflon of the Province of Cinoloa, to the Fathers of Mexico, dated in the month of Detember, 1591. With a Letter added, written 160s. of later Differencies. H. pag. 1562.

A Letter written from Valladolid by Ludouicus Tribaldus Toletus, to Maffer Richard-Hakluyt, translated out of Latine, touching luan de Onate his Discoueres in New Mexico, sinehundred lesgues to the North from the Old Mexico. H. pag. 1567.

The Prologue of the Biflop Frier Bartholomicw de las Cafas, or Cafaus, to the most high and mightie Prince, Our Lord Don Philip Prince of Spaine.

pag 1568,

CHAP. IIII.

A briefe Nerration of the destruction of the Indies by the Spaniards: written by a Frier Bartholmew de las Casas, a Spaniard, and Bissop of Chiapa in America.

pag. 1.50.
Of the the of Hissoniola.

of the two iles Saint Iohn, & Iamayca p. 1573 of the Ile of Cuba. ibid.

Of Terra Firma, or the firme Land. pag. 1573
Of the Province of Nicaragua. pag. 1576.
Of New Spaine: pag. 1577.

of the Province and Realme of Guarima-of New Spaine, and Panuco, and Xalifco. pag. 1580.

Of the Realme of Yucatan. pag. 1581.
Of the Province of Saint Martha. pag. 1583.
Of the Province of Carthagene. pag. 1584.

Of the Coast of Pearles, and of Paria, and of the ile of the Trinitie. ibid. Of the River Yuia pari. pag. 1587.

Of the River Yuia pari. pag. 1587.
Of the Realine of Venefuela. ibid.
Of the Provinces of the firme Land, or quarter that is called Florida.

is called Florida. pag. 1589.

Of the River of La plata. ibid.

of the mightie Realmes, and large Provinces of Peru. ibid.

Of the new Realme of Granado. pag. 1591.

Part of a Letter written by one which faw things

Part of a Letter written by one which faw things mentioned.

Pag. 1596.

The summe of the Disputation betweene Frier

Barthokomew de las Cafas or Cafaus, and Do-Gor Sepulueda.

CHAR. V.

Notes of Voyages and Plantations of the French in the Northerne America: both in Florida and Canada. pag. 1603.

The Voyage of Samuel Champlaine of Brouage, made unto Canada, in the yeere 1603. dedicated to Charles de Montmorencie, dec. High Admitallof France. H. pag. 1605

CHAP. VII.

The Patent of the French King to Monstieur de Monts, for the Inhabiting of the Countries of La Cadia Canada, and other places, in New

The Voyage of Monsieur de Monts into New France, written by Marke Lescarbot. pag. 1620. CHAP. VIII.

Collections out of a French Booke, called Additions to Noua Francia; contayning the Accidents there, from the peer 1607.10 1611. pag. 1642. CHAP. IX.

The first Plantation of English Colonies in Virginia, briefly mentioned. pag. 1645.

CHAP. X.

The Relation of Captaine Gosnols Forage to the North part of Virginia, begun the fix and twentieth of March, Anno 42. Elizabetha Regina 16:2. and delinered by Gabriel Archer, a Gentleman in shefaid Voyage. H. pag. 164

Noses of the fame Popuse, Taken out of a Tractate written by lames Rolice vo 50 Walter Raileigh, and of Maces Propose to Virginia. pág-1651.

Cyar. XII.

A Voyage set out from the citie of Brittoll, at the charge of the chiefest New chants and inhabitants of after said critic with a final Ship and a Banke for the Discourt of the North part of Virginia; in the prevented, onder the command of mee Martin Pringe. H. pag. 16.4.

A Relation of the voryage made to Virginia, in of certaine m the Elizabeth of London, Barke of fifthe tunnes by hippened during Captaine Bartholmew Gilbert, in theyever 1603. which are relate written by Maffer Thomas Canner, a Gentleman and Prizes.

pag. 1647. of Barnards Inne, bis Compenion in the same Voy.

CHAP. XTII.
Extracts of Wright in Project practe An. 1604.
Extracts of Wright in Project practe An. 1604.
Extracts of Corpe Waymouth, in the Archangell. Set footb by the Right Honourable Henric Baste of South Hampton, and the Lord Thomas Artified, prostries by James Robert H.P. pag. 1659.
CHAP. XIIII.

The description of the lands of Azores, we the Flemith Ilands, taken out of Linkthoten, with certain conservents, and Englisheds. pag. 1667.
Of certain notable summemorable Acidents that happened during long continuance in Tercera? in happened during my contravance in I crecta ? in which are related many English Fleets, Sea fights, and Prizes. pag 1672.

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the Ninth Booke of the Second part of Purchas his Plicarins.

The Art of the first Patent granted by bis Maieslie furphyfor the Plantaism of Virginia, Aprillibe temb 1606.

CHAT. II.

The
furphyfurther further for the Portion of the Portion of Observations gathered out of a Discourse of the Plantation of the Southerne Colonie in Virginia by the English, 1606. Wilken by that Homer able Genteman Master George Percy. H. pag. 1684.

The Description of Virginia by Captaine Iohn 18.
Smith, mlarged out of his written Notes. pag. 1691.
Of such himse which are naturall in Virginia, wand how they of them.
pag. 1694.

Of their planted Fruits in Virginia, and how they we show.

Of the watural Inhabitants of Virginia, and their Cultomes.

pag. 1697.

Of their Religion. pag. 1701-Of the manner of the Virginians Gonernment. pag. 1703.

CHAP. IIII.

The proceedings of the English Colonic in Virginia, taken faithfully out of the writings of Thomas Studley, Cape-Merchant, Anas Todkill, Dottor Russell, Nathaniel Powell, William Phetiplace, and Richard Pot, Richard Wiffin, Tho. Abbay, Tho. Hope; and fine enlarged out of the Writings of Captaine 10th Smith, principal Agent and Patient in these Virginian Occurrents, from the beginning of the Plantation 1606, till Anno 1610, Sembla debreutated.

The Proceedings and Accidents, with the found fupply.

CHAP. V.

A Letter of Master Gabriel Archer, touching the Voyage of the Fleet of Ships, which arrived at Virginia, without Sir Thomas Gates, and Sir George Summers, 1609. H. pag. 1733.

CHAP. VI.

A true reportorie of the wracke, and redemptione of hir Thomas Gates, Knight; wood, and from the lands of the Bermudas: the comming to Virginia, and the efface of that Colonie then, and after, under the Covernment of the Lord La Watt, suly 15,1610. written by Wil.Strachy. Efg. 14,19,1734

d. 2. Aftions and Occurrents whiles they contimucal in the llands: Rusens fent for Virginia; Dimers Mutinies; Painc executed: Two Pinnaces built. pag.1742-

Q. 3. Their departure from Bermuda and arriual in Virginia: Miferies there, departure and returne upon the Lord La Warres arraining. Incu-Towne described. P28, 1747.

Q. 4. The Lord La Wartes beginnings and proceedings in Iames Towne, Sir Thomas Gates feat into England; his and the Companies testimony of Virginia, and cause of the late miscries. pag. 1754. C. H. A. P. VII.

The Voyage of Captaine Samuell Argal, from

th

1610. H. CHAP. VIII.

A [bort Relation made by the Lord De la Warre. to the Lords and others of the Counfell of Virginia, touching his unexpected returne home, and afterwards delinered to the generall Assembly of the faid Companie, at a Court holden the 25. of June, 1611. Publified by anthority of the faid Counfell pag. 1762. CHAP. IX.

A Letter of Sir Samuell Argoll, touching bis Voyage to Virginia, and Actions there : Written to Mafter Nicholas Hawes. Iune, 1613. H. p. 1764.

CHAP. X. - Notes of Virginian Affaires in the government of Sir Thomas Dale and of Sir Thomas Gates, till Ann. 1614. taken out of Master Ralph Hamor (Secretarie to the Colonie) bis Booke. pag.1766. CHAP. XI.

A Letter of Sir Thomas Dale, and another of Master Whitakers, from lames Towne in Virginia lime 18. 1614. And a peece of a Tractate, written by the faid Master Whitakers from Virginia the reere before. pag. 1768.

To the R. and my most esteemed friend, M.D.M. at his boufe at F.Cb. in London.

Partof a Tractate written at Henrico in Virginia, by M. Alexander Whitaker, Minister to the Colonie there, which then governed by Sir Thomas Dale, 1612.

CHAP. XII. of the Lotterie : Sir Thomas Dales returne the Spaniards in Virginia. Of Pocahuntas and Tomocomo: Captaine Yerdley and Captaine Argoll (both fince Knighted) their Gouernment; the Lord La Warres Death, and other occurrents till Anno 1619.

CHAP. XIII. The estate of the Colonie, Anno 1620. and Mafler Dermers Letter to me from Virginia, touching his Voyage for the South Sea.

A Note of the Shipping, Men, and Provisions fent to Virginia, by the Treasurer and Companie, ta the yeere 1619. pag.1776.

A true Relation of a Sea-fight betweene two great and well appointed Spanish Ships, or Men of Warre; and an English fhip, called the Margaret and Iohn, or the Black Hodge, going for Virginia. pag. 1780 CHAP. XV.

Virginian affaires fince the yeere 1620. till this prefent 1624.

Q. I. A Note of the shipping. Men and provisions muda, and miffing the fame, his putting over toward fent and provided for Virginia, by the Right Honon-Sagadahoc and Cape Cod, and fo backe againe to rable Henry Earle of South-hampton, and the Companie, and other private Adventurers, in the yeere 1621. Cc. With other Occurrents then publihed by the Companie.

Ships and People. And for the benefit of the Plantations shele things following have beene here done this yeere. ibid. Other Occurrents of mote.

pag.1784. Q. 2. Newes from Virginia in Letters fent thence 1621. partly published by the Company, partly transcribed from the Originals, with Letters of his Maiestie, and of the Companie touching Silkerkes.

Pag.1787.

His Maiesties gracious Letter to the Earle of South hampton, Trefurer, and to the Connfell and Companie of Virginia here : commanding the present letting up of Silke-workes, and planting of Vines in Virginia.

d. 2. The barbarous Massacre committed by the Sauages on the English Planters, March the two and twentieth, 1621. after the English acpag. 1788. Q. 4. A Note of promissions necessarie for enery

Planter or personall Aduenturer to Virginia : and accidents since the Massacre. CHAP. XVI.

English Voyages to the Summer Hands : Henry Mays Shipwracke there 1592. The first Colons

A Copie of the Articles which Mafter R. More. Goner wour Deputie of the Summer Hands, propounded to the Company that were there with him to be subscribed unto, which both bee and they subscribed the fecond of August, in his House, Anno 1612. which about the same time bee fent into England, to the Worshipfull Companie of the Adnessu-

CHAP. XVII.

Relations of Summer Hands, taken out of Mafter Richard Norwood, bu Map and Notes added thereto, printed 1622. The Historic of the Creatures growing or lining therein, being inlarged out of Captaine Smiths written Relations. pag. 1796. CHAP. XVIII.

Extracts out of Captaine John Smiths Historie of Bermudas, or Summer Hands; touching the English ucts and occurrents there from the beginning of the Plantation.

CHAP. XIX.

Briefe intelligence from Virginia by Letters, a Supplement of French-Virginian occurrants, and pag. 1783. I their Supplantation by Sir Samuel Argal, inright of the English plantation. CHAL XX.

pag. 1805. | benefits which may grow to this Kingdome from American-English Plantations, and specially Virginias Verger : or a discourse showing the those of Virginia and Summer Hands. p. 1809.

The Contents of the Chapters and Paragraphs in the tenth Booke of the Second part of Purchas his

PILGRIMS.

CHAP. I. Briefe Relation of the disconcrie and plantation of New England: and of fundric Laccidents therein occurring, from the yeer of our Lord 1607. to this prefent 1622 published by the President and Connect , and dedicated to the Princes Highneffe, here abbreniated p. 1827. CHAP. II.

The verage of Master Henrie Challons, intended for the North plantation of Virginia, 1606. saken by the may, and ill vied by Spaniards: written by John Stoneman Pilot. H. CHAP. III.

Extracts of a Booke of Captaine Iohn Smith, printed 1622, called New Englands trialls, and continuing the storie thereof, with Motines to the businesse of fishing there.

An Abstract of Letters fent from the Colonie in New England, Inly fixteene, 1622. p. 1840.

CHAP. IIII.

A Relation or lournall of a plantation fetled at Plimoth in New England, and proceedings therof ; printed 1622. and here abbreniated. D.1842. CHAP. V.

Good newes from New England : or , a relation of things remarkable in that Plantation; written by E. Winflow and bere abbrentaliam Alexander Knight, for the plantation of New Scotland in America, and his proceedings therein; with a description of Mawoolien for better knowledge of those parts. pag.1871.

The description of the Country of Maw collien. discovered by the English, in the yeere 1602. 3,5, 6, 7, 8, and 9. H. pag. 1873.

The beginning of the Patent for New-foundland : and the plantation there made by the English, 1610. delinered in a Letter dated thence from M. Guy , to M. Slany : Alfo of the weather the three first winters, and of Captaine Weston: with other remarkable occurrents. H. pag. 1876.

Master Iohn Guy his Letter to Master Slany Treasurer, and to the Counsell of the New-foundland plantation.

To Master Iohn Slany Treasurer, and others of the Councell, and Companie of the New-foundland plantation, the 29. of Inly, 1612. pag. 1879. CHAP. VIII.

Captaine Richard Whitbournes voyages to New found land, and observations there, and thereof; taken out of his printed booke. p.1882. A Relation of New found-land. pag. 1884. CHAPP IX.

The names of diner's honourable persons and ohees, who have undertaken to helpe to aduance his Maiesties plansation in the New-found-land: written by the faid R.W. with extracts of cer-Nous Scotis. The King Patent, to Six Wil. + table Letter written from thence. pag. 1888.

The fecond Part of the tenth Booke.

the Spaniards, by our English Debora, Queene Elizabeth , of glorious memorie : Her manifold delineries and victories. CHAP. XI.

The Popes Bull, the King of Spaines preparations, the Duke of Medinas Expedition, the Duke of the Coast of Andaluzia, and of this Armie of of Parmas Forces, for the invalion of England : diners Sea fights twixt the English and Spanish of the golden Fleece. Fleets, the Sea flight of the Spanish, and mife- The true relation of the successe of the Catholike

OHAF. X. The Special of the Special

Squadron of the Galeons of Portugall. p. 1808. Don Alonso Peres de Gusman, the good Dake pag. 1891. of Medina, Sidonia, Countie of Nebla . Marquelle of Casheshe in Africa. Lord of the Citie of Saint Lucar, Captaine Generall of the Occian Sea. his Maiefile, and Knight of the honorable Order

The Contents of the tenth Booke

Armie against their Enemies, by the Letters of the Post-master of Logrono of the fourth of September, and by Letters from Roan of the 31. of Angust, and by Letters from Paris of the Kings Emballadour there: wherein hee declareth the impriforment of Francis Drake, and other great Nobles | fer Hackluyt, and others. of England, and how the Queene is in the field with an Armie, and of a certaine mutinie which was amongst the Queenes Armie, with the successe of the faid Catholike Armie fince they entred in Whe Groyne, till they came on the Coast of England, with two Ballets compounded by Christouer Brano, a blindemen of Cordowa, printed with hisence by Gabriel Ramos Beigrano prin-1000 00

CHAP. XII. Generalls, written (as is thought) by Colonell An- rences. tonie Wingfield, imployed in the same voyage, ! formerly published by bis friend to whom it was advertisements touching his Maiesties care for written and here abbreniated.

CHAP. XIII.

I briefe and true report of the Honourable voyage unto Cadiz, 1596. of the overshrow of the Kings Fleet, and of the winning of the Citie, with other accidents, gathered out of Meteranus, Ma-

CHAP XIIII.

The verage to the Iles of Azores, under the conduct of the Right Honorable Earle of Effex,

D. 1. Therelation thereof by the faid and other Commissioners.

0. 2. A larger relation of the faid Iland vonage, written by Sir Arthur Gorges Knight, colle-cied in the Queenes ship called the Waft Spite, descourse of the Portugall voyage, Anno wherein he was then Captaine; with Marine and 1589. Sir John Norris and Sir Francis Drake Martiall discourses added according to the occur-

The Conclusion of the Worke, with some later

Maps and Peeces cut in Brasse or VVood in the last ten Bookes.

▲ Merica	p.857	Lithuania	p.629
A America Meridionalis			p. 627
America Septentrionalis	p.853	Magellan Streight	р. 9со
Map of the Artlike Pole	p.625	Mexican hieroglyph	ic. histor. cut
Borussia or Prussia	p.626	in 65. peeces	p.1067, &c.
Hondius bis Map of China		to 1117.
Purchas bis Map of China	p.402	Moscouia_	p.778
Denmarke	p.622	Norwegia_	p.620
	p.1980	Polonia_	p.6jo
Florida	p.689	Rusia	p.220
Great Britaine and Ireland	p.1981	Nous Scotia	p.1874
Greenland		New Spaine	p.871
Vlphilas Gottick letters	p.658	Tartaria	P-234
Hispaniola	p.861	Taurica Chersonesus	p. 632
f stand	p.644	Virginia	p.1692

PEREGRINATIONS AND DISCOVERIES, IN THE

REMOTEST NORTH AND EAST

PARTS OF ASIA, CALLED TARTARIA AND CHINA.

THE FIRST BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

The Iournall of Frier WILLIAM DERVBRYQVIS, a French-man, of the Order of the Minorite Friers, pnto the East parts of the World, Anno Dom, 1253.

O the most Excellent and most Christian Lord, Lewis, by Gods grace the Renowmed King of France, Frier William de Rubruk, * the meanest of the Minorites * Master Hak. Order, witheth health and continuall Triumph in had published

It is written in the Booke of Ecclesiasticus, concer. Author, but ning the Wiseman: He shall trauell into forreme Coun-worke being tries, and good and enil shall beetry in all thingin. The found in Bent very fame Action (my Lord and King) haue I acchie- Colledge Livery tame Action (my Lord and King) made I accine ued: howbeit, I with, that I haue done it like a wile brary in Comman, and not like a Foole. For many there bee, that fit to communify the community of the comm performe the same Action which a wife mandoth, not nicate it to the wifely but more vndifcreetly : of which number I feare World; tbeing my felfe to bee one. Notwithstanding, howfoever I materpubli-haue done it, because you commanded mee, when I de-thanke, name of the parted from your Highnesse, to write all things vnto you, which I should see among the Tur-Language, I tars, and you wished meal o that I should not feare to write long Letters , I have done as your begin with the Maiestie enjoyned me : yet with feare and reverence, because I want words and Eloquence suf- Tartars, as befrient to write write 0 great a Maiellie. Bee't knowne therefore vitro your Sacred Maiellie, my. 2. write that in the year of our Lord 1353, about the Nones of May, we entired into the Sea of Pan. forth, Estate 110, which the Bulgarians call the great Sea. It contayneth in length (as I learned of certayne saity of Sea. 1). Merchants) one thouland and eight miles, and is in a manner, divided into two parts. About or Many be-60 the midit thereof are two Prounces, one towards the North, and another towards the South. came knowne the middle thereof are two Prominess, one towards the North, and another towards are follows.

The South Promines is called Sympolia, and it is the Castle and Port of the Soldan of Turkee by them.

Eccion 31.0.2.3. but the North Province is called of the Latmes, Gufaria: of the Greekes, which inhabit vpon (affaia, or the Sea shoare thereof, it is called Caffaria, that is to say, Cafaria. And there are certayne headlands stretching forth into the Sea towards Sympolis, Also, there are three hundred miles of di-

2

Soldaia.

Zita.

to Constantinople, in length and breadth is about feuen hundred miles ; and feuen hundred miles also from thence to the East, namely, to the Countrey of Hiberia, which is a Province of Georgia. At the Province of Gafaria or Cassaria, wee arrived, which Province is, in a manner, three square, having a Citie on the West part thereof called Kerfous, wherein Saint Clement suffered Martyrdome. And sayling before the said Citie, wee saw an Iland, in which a Church is faid to be built by the hands of Angels. But about the midft of the faid Prouince toward the South, as it were, vpon a sharpe Angle or Point, standeth a Citie called Soldaia, directly against Synopolis. And there doe all the Turkie Merchants, which Traffique into the North Countries, in their lourney outward, arrive, and as they returne home-ward also from Ruffia, IG and the faid Northerne Regions, into Turkie. The forefaid Merchants transport thither Ermines and gray Furres, with other rich and coffly Skinnes. Others carrie Clothes made of Cotton or Bombaft, and Silke, and divers kinds of Spices. But vpon the East part of the faid Province standeth a Citie called Matriga, where the River Tanais dischargeth his streames into the Sea of Pontus, the mouth whereof is twelve miles in breadth. For this River, before it entreth into the Sea of Pontus, maketha little Sea, which hath in breadth and length feuen hundred miles, and it it is in no place thereof aboue fixe paces deepe, whereupon great Veffels cannot faile ouer it. Howbeit the Merchants of Conflantinople, arriving at the foreiaid Citie of " Materta, fend their Barkes vinto the River of Tanais to buy dryed fishes, Sturgeons, Thoses, Barbils, and an infinite number of other fishes. The foresaid Province of Cassaria, is compassed in with 20 the Sea on three fides thereof : namely, on the Well-fide , where Kerfona , the Citie of Saint Clement is situate : on the South-side the Citie of Soldaia, whereat we arrived : on the East-side Maricandis, and there stands the Citie of Matriga, vpon the mouth of the River Tanais. Beyond the faid mouth standeth Zikia, which is not in subjection vinto the Tartars: also the people called Suem and Hibers, towards the East, who likewise are not under the Tartars Dominion. Moreouer, towards the South, standeth the Citie of Trapefunda, which hatha Gouernour proper to it felfe, named Guydo, being of the Linage of the Emperours of Constantinople, and is subject vnto the Tartars. Next vnto that is Synopolis, the Citie of the Soldan of Turkie, who likewise is in subjection vnto them. Next vnto these lyeth the Countrey of Vasacius, whose Sonne is called Aftar, of his Grand-father by the Mothers fide, who is not in fubication. All the 30 Land from the mouth of Tanais West-ward as farre as Danubius is under their Iurisdiction, Yea. beyond Danubins also, towards Constantinople, Valakia, which is the Land of Assaus, and Bulgaria minor, as farre as Solonia, doe all pay Tribute vnto them. And besides the Tribute impoled, they have also, of late yeares, exacted of every houshold an Axe, and all such Corne as they found lying on heapes. We arrived therefore at Soldain, the twelfth of the Kalends of June. And divers Merchants of Constantinople, which were arrived there before vs, reported that certayne Messengers were comming thither from the Holy Land, who were desirous to trauell vnto Sartach. Notwithstanding, I my selfe had publikely given out vpon Palme Sunday within the Church of Santta Sophia, that I was not your nor any other mans Meffenger, but that I travelled unto these Infidels according to the Rule of our Order. And being arrived, the faid Merchants 40 admonished me to take diligent heed what I spake : because they having reported mee to bee a Messenger, if I should say the contrary, that I were no Messenger, I could not have free passage granted vnto me. Then I spake after this manner vnto the Governours of the Citie, or rather vnto their Lieutenants, because the Gouernours themselves were gone to pay Tribute vnto Baatu, and were not as yet returned. We heard of your Lord Sartach (quoth I) in the Holy Land, that he was become a Christian : and the Christians were exceeding glad thereof, and especially the most Christian King of France, who is there now in Pilgrimage, and fighteth against the Saracens, to redeeme the holy places out of their hands : wherefore I am determined to goe vnto Sartach, and to deliuer vnto him the Letters of my Lord the King, wherein hee admonisheth him concerning the good and commoditie of all Christendome. And they received vs with 50 gladnesse, and gaue +s entertaynment in the Cathedrall Church. The Bishop of which Church was with Sarrach, who told me many good things concerning the faid Sarrach, which afterward I found to be nothing fo. Then put they vs to our choice, whether wee would have Carts and Oxen, or packe-horses to transport our Carriages. And the Merchants of Constantinople aduifed me, not to take Carts of the Citizens of Soldana, but to buy couered Carts of mine owne. (fuch as the Ruffians carry their Skinnes in) and to put all our Carriages, which I would daily take out, into them : because, if I should vie Horses, I must be constrayned at every baite to take downe my Carriages, and to lift them vp againe on fundry Horses backes : and besides , that I should ride a more gentle pace by the Oxendrawing the Carts. Wherefore, contenting my selfe with their euill counfell, I was trauelling vnto Sartach two monethes, which I could have done 60 in one, if I had gone by Horse. I brought with me from Constantinople (being by the Merchants aduised so to doe) pleasant Fruits, Muskadell Wine, and delicate Bisket bread to present vnto the Governours of Soldara, to the end I might obtayne free pallage : because they looke fauourably vpon no man which commeth with an empty hand. All which things I bestowed in one of my Carts (not finding the Gouernours of the Citie at home) for they told me, if I could carry them to Sartach, that they would be moit acceptable vnto him. Wee tooke our Journey therefore about the Kalends of June, with foure couered Carts of our owne, and with two other which we borrowed of them, wherein we carried our bedding to rest vpon in the night, and they allowed vs fine Horfes to ride vpon. For there were just fine perions in our company : namely, I my felfe and mine affociate Friet Bartholomen of Cremena, and Gofer the Bearer of thele Pre- na. fents, the man of God Tingemannus, and Nicolss my Servant, whom I bought at Constantinople, with some part of the Almes bestowed vpon me. Moreouer, they allowed vs two men, which draue our Carrs and gaue attendance vnto our Oxen and Horfes. There bee high Promontories 10 on the Sea thoare from Kerfona vinto the mouth of Tanais. Alio there are fortie Caft's between Kersona and Soldria, every one of which almost have their proper Languages: amongst whom there were many Gother, who spake the Dutch Tongue. Beyond the laid Mountaynes towards the North, there is a most beautifull Wood growing on a Plaine full of Fountaynes and Freshets. And beyond the Wood there is a mightie plaine Champian, continuing fine dayes Iourney vnto the very extreamitie and borders of the faid Prouince North-ward, and there it is a narrow finefal. 13hms or neck Land, having Sea on the East and West fides thereof, insomuch that there is a Ditch made from one Sea vnto the other. In the same Plaine (before the Tartars sprang vp) were the Comanians wont to inhabit, who compelled the fore-laid Cities and Caffles to pay Tribute vnto them. But when the Tarsars came vpon them, the multitude of the Comanians

CHAP.3. Great Lakes. Salt-piss, very benefisiall. Tartars boufes.

20 entred into the fore-faid Prouince, and fledall of them, even vnto the Sea shoare, beeing in such extreme Famine, that they which were aliue, were constrayned to eate up those which were dead : and (as a Merchant reported vnto me who faw it with his owne eyes) that the liuing men deuoured and tore with their teeth, the raw flesh of the dead, as Dogges would gnaw vpon Carrion. Towardes the Borders of the faid Prouince there bee many great Lakes: vpon the Bankes whereof are Salt-pits or Fountaynes, the water of which io ioone as it entreth into the Lake , becommeth hard Salt like vnto Ice. And out of those Salt-pits Bases and Sartach have great Revenues: for they repayre thither out of all Ruffia, for Salt : and for each Cart loade they give two Webbes of Cotton, amounting to the value of halte an Tperpera. There come by Sea also many Shippes for Sale, which 30 pay Tribute enery one of them according to their burthen. The third day after wee were departed out of the Precincts of Soldain, wee found the Tartars. Amongst whom beeing The Tartarian entred, me thought I was come into a new World. Whose life and manners I will describe vnto your Highneile aiwell as I can.

Hey haue in no place any fetled Citie to abide in, neither know they of the Celestiall Citie Chap. 2. to come. They have divided all Seythia among themselves , which stretcheth from the Ri- Of the Tanats, uer Danubius even vnto the rifing of the Sunne. And every of their Captaines, according to the and of their great or imall number of his people, knoweth the bounds of his Pastures, and where hee ought houses, to feed his Cattell Winter and Summer, Spring and Autumne. For in the Winter they descend vnto the warme Regions South-ward. And in the Summer they afcend vnto the cold Regions North-ward. In Winter when Snow lyeth vpon the ground, they feed their Cattell vpon Paflures without water, because then they vie Snow in flead of water. Their houses wherein they fleepe, they ground vpon a round foundation of Wickers artificially wrought and compacted together : the Roofe whereof confifteth (in like fort) of Wickers, meeting about into one little Roundell, out of which Roundell ascendeth vpward a necke like vnto a Chimney, which they couer with white Felt, and oftentimes they lay Morter or white Earth vpon the faid Felt, with the powder of bones, that it may thine white. And fometimes also they couer it with blacke

Felt. The faid Felt on the necke of their house, they doe garnish ouer with beautifull varietie of Pictures. Before the deore likewise they hang a Felt curiously painted ouer. For they 50 spend all their coloured Felt, in painting Vines, Trees, Birds, and Beafts thereupon. The faid houses they make solarge, that they contayne thirtie foot in breadth. For measuring once the breadth betweene the wheele-ruts of one of their Carts , I found it to bee twentie feet ouer : and when the house was voon the Cart, it stretched ouer the wheeles on each fide fine feet at the leaft. I told two and twentie Oxen in one Teame, drawing an house vpon a Cart, eleuen in one order according to the breadth of the Cart, and eleuen more before them: the Axletree of the Cart was of an huge bigneffe like vnto the Mast of a Ship. And a fellow stood in the doore of the house, upon the fore-stall of the Cart driving forth the Oxen. Moreover, they make certayne foure fquare Baskets of imall flender Wickers as bigge as great Chefts: and after-

60 and make a doore in the fore-fide thereof. And then they couer the faid Chest or little House with black Felt, ubbelouer with Tallow or Sheeps Milke to keep the rain from foking through, which they deck likewise with printing or with feathers. And in such Chests they put their whole Houshold-stuffe and Treature. Also the same Chests they doe strongly binde vpon other Garts, which are drawne with Camels, to the end they may wade through Rivers. Neither doe they at any time take downe the faid Chefts from off their Carts. When they take downe their dwelling houses, they turne the doores alwayes to the South : and next of all they place the Carts laden with their Chefts, here and there, within halfe a frones cast of the House : insomuch that the House standeth betweene two rankes of Carts. as it were, betweene two Walles. The Matrones make for themselues most beautifull Carts. The benefit of which I am not able to describe vnto your Maiefly but by Pictures only : for I would right wila Painter in lingly haue painted all things for you, had my Skill beene ought in that Art. One rich Moal or firange Coun- Tartar hath two hundred, or one hundred fuch Carts with Chefts. Duke Baats hath fixteene Wives, every one of which hath one great house, besides other little houses, which they place behind the great one, being as it were Chambers for their Maidens to dwell in. And vnto every of the faid houses doe belong two hundred Carts. When they take their houses from off the IQ Carts, the principall Wife placeth her Court on the West Frontier, and so all the rest in their order : fo that the last Wife dwelleth vpon the East Frontier : and one of the faid Ladies Courts is diffant from another about a stones cast. Whereupon the Court of one rich Moal or Tartar will appeare like vnto a great Village, very few men abiding in the fame. One woman will guide twenty or thirty Carts at once, for their Countries are very plaine, and they binde the Carts with Camels or Oxen, one behind another. And there fits a Wench in the fore-most Cart driting the Oxen, and all the refidue follow on a like pace. When they chance to come at any bad passage, they let them loose, and guide them ouer one by one : for they goe a slow pace, as fait as a Lambe or an Oxe can walke.

ward, from one fide to another, they frame an hollow lidde or couer of fich like Wickers,

Idols

Chap. 3. Haung taken downe their houses from off their Carts, and turning the doores South-ward, Of their Beds, Hahey place the bed of the Master of the house, at the North part thereof. The womens Puppets, Ima place is alwayes on the East-side, namely, on the left hand of the good man of the house sitting vpon his bed with his face South-wards : but the mens place is vpon the West-side , namely, at the right hand of their Master. Men when they enter into the house, will not in any case hang their Quiers on the womens side. Ouer the Masters head there is alwayes an Image, like a Puppet, made of Fealt, which they call the Masters Brother : and another ouer the head of the good Wife or Mistris, which they call her Brother, being fastened to the wall : and aboue betweene both of them, there is a little leane one, which is, as it were the keeper of the whole house. The good Wife or Mistris of the house placeth aloft at her beds feet, on the right hand, the 30 Skinne of a Kid Ruffed with Wooll or some other matter, and neere vnto that a little Image or Puppet looking towards the Maidens and women. Next vnto the doore also on the womens fide, there is another Image with a Cowes Vdder, for the women that milke the Kine, For it is the dutie of their women to milke Kine. On the other fide of the doore next vnto the men. there is another Image with the Vdder of a Mare, for the men which milke Mares. And when they come together to drinke and make merrie, they iprinkle part of their Drinke vpon the Image which is about the Matters head : afterward vpon other Images in order : then goetha Servant out of the house with a cup full of Drinke sprinkling it thrife towards the South, and bowing his knee at every time : and this is done for the honour of the Fire. Then performeth he the like Superfitious Idolatry towards the East, for the honour of the Ayre: and then to the West for the honour of the water: and lastly, to the North in the behalfe of the Dead. When the Master holdeth a cup in his hand to drinke, before hee tasteth thereof, hee powreth his part vpon the ground. If he drinketh fitting on Horse-backe, he powreth out part thereof vpon the necke or mane of his Horse before he himselfe drinketh. After the Seruant aforefaid hath so discharged his cups to the foure quarters of the World, hee returneth into the house : and two other Servants stand ready with two cups, and two basons, to carrie Drinke vnto their Master and his Wife, fitting together vpon a bed. And if hee hath more Wines then one, fhee with whom he slept the night before, fitteth by his side the day following : and all his other Wives must that day resort vnto the same house to drinke : and there is the Court holden for that day : the gifts also which are presented that day, are layd up in the Chests of the faid Wife. And upon 50 a bench stands a Vessell of Milke, or of other Drinke and drinking cups.

Chap. 4.

IN Winter time they make excellent drinke of Rice, of Mill, and of Honey, being well and high coloured like Wine. Also they have Wine brought vnto them from farre Countries. In dinkes, and Summer time they care not for any drinke, but Cosmos. And it standeth alwayes within the how they pro- entrance of his doore, and next vnto it stands a Minstrell with his Fiddle. I saw there no such noke one and Citernes and Vials as ours commonly bee, but many other Musicall Instruments which are not vied among vs. And when the Mafter of the house begins to drinke, one of his feruants crieth out with a loude voyce, Ha, and the Minstrell playes vpon his Fiddle. And when they make any great folemne feast, they all of them clap their hands, and dance to the noyse of Musicke, 60 the men before their Master, and the women before their Mistris. And when the Master hath like custome in drunke, then cryes out his feruant as before, and the Minstrell stayeth his Mulicke. Then drinke they all round both men and women, : and sometimes they carowse for the victorie very filthily and drunkenly. Also when they will prouoke any man, they pull him by the Eares to the drinke, and so lug and draw him strongly to stretch out his throat clapping their hands, and dancing before him. Moreouer, when some of them will make great feathing and reloycing, one of the companie takes a full Cup, and two other stand, one on his right hand, and another on his left, and so they three come inging to the man who is to have the Cup reached vnto him, fill linging and dancing before him: and when he stretcheth forth his hand to receive the Cup, they leape fuddenly backe, returning againe as they did before, and so having deluded him thrice or four times by drawing backe the Cup, vntill he be merrie, and hath gotten a good appetite, then they give him the Cup, finging and dancing, and ftamping with their feet, vntill he hath done drinking.

Oncerning their food and victuals, be it knowne vnto your Highnedic, that they doe, with- Chap. q. out all difference or conception, eare all their dead Carions. And amongst so many droues Of their sood it cannot be, but some Cattell must needs die. Howbeit in Summer, so long as their Cosmos, and victuals. that is, their Mares milke lasteth, they care not for any food. And if they chance to have an Oxe or an Horse die, they drie the flesh thereof: for cutting it into thinne slices, and hanging Dryingof flesh it up against the Sunne and the wind, it is presently dried without Salt, and also without stench in the wind. or corruption. They make better Puddings of their Hories then of their Hogs, which they eate being new made : the reft of the flesh they reserve vntill Winter. They make of their Oxe skins great bladders or bags, which they doe wonderfully drie in the smoake. Of the hinder part of their Horsehides, they make very fine Sandals and Pantofles. They give wnto fiftie of 20 an hundred men, the fielh of one Ramme to eate. For they mince it in a bowle with Salt and an infinite ment, the man of a state of the most of the point of a Knife, or a little Forke which they make for the same purpose (such as we rie to take roafted Peares and Apples out of Wine they make for the same purpose (such as we rie to take roafted Peares and Apples out of Wine withall ) they reach vnto every one of the companie a morfell or twaine, according to the mulcitude of Guefts. The Mafter of the house, before the Rams flesh be distributed, first of all himfelfe taketh thereof, what he pleafeth. Also, if he giveth vnto any of the companie a speciall part, the receiver thereof mult eate it alone, and mult not impart ought thereof vnto any other. Not being able to eate it vp all, hee carries it with him, and delivers it vnto his boy, if hee be present, to keepe it: if not, hee puts it vp into his Saptargat, that is to say, his foure square Budget, which they vie to carrie about with them, for the fauing of all fuch prouision, & wherein they lay up their bones, when they have not time to graw them throughly, that they may 30 burnish them afterward, to the end that no white of their food may come to nought.

Heirdrinke, called Cosmos, which is Mares milke, is prepared after this manner. They Chap. 6.

I faften a long line vnto two posts standing firmly in the ground, and vnto the same line they How they tye the young Foales of those Mares, which they meane to milke. Then come the Dammes make their to fland by their Foales gently fuffering themselves to be milked. And if any of them be too drinke, called varuly, then one takes her Foale, and puts it under her, letting it fucke a while, and prefently carrying it away againe, there comes another man to milke the faid Mare. And having gotten a good quantitie of this Milke together (being as fweet as Cowes milke) while it is new they power into a great bladder or bag, and they beat the faid bag with a piece of wood made for the purpose, hauing a Club at the lower end like a mans head, which is hollow within : and so foone as they beat upon it, it begins to boyle like new Wine, and to be fowre and sharpe of taste, and they beate it in that manner till Butter come thereof. Then tafte they thereof, and being indifferently sharpethey drinke it : for it biteth a mans tongue like the Wine of Raspes, when it is drunke. After a man hath taken a draughe thereof, it leaueth behind it a tafte like the tafte of Almond-milke, and goeth downe very pleasantly, intoxicating weake braynes: also it caufeth wrine to be anoyded in great measure. Likewise Caracosmos, that is to say, Blacke Cosmos, Caracosmos for great Lords to drinke, they make on this manner. First, they beat the faid Milke so long till the thickest partithereof descend right downe to the bottome like the lees of white Wine, and that which is thinne and pure remayneth aboue, being like vnto Whay or white Mult. The faid less and dregs being very white, are given to feruants, and will cause them to sleepe exceedingly. That which is thinne and cleere their Matters drinke : and in very deede it is maruellous sweet and wholiome liquor. Duke Baats hath thirtie Cottages or Granges, within a Duke Baats. dayes journey of his abiding place : euery one of which serueth him daily with the Caracofmos of an hundred Mares milke, and so all of them together every day with the Milke of three Store of shoufand Mares, befides white Milke which other of his Subiects bring. For even as the Huf. Mares, and bandmen of Strie bestow the third part of their fruits, and carrie it vnto the Courts of their Mares mike. Lords, even so doe they their Mares milke every third day. Out of their Cowes milke they first churne Butter, boyling the which Butter vnto a perfect decoction, they put it into Rams skins, 60 which they referue for the same purpose. Neither doe they sale their Butter: and yet by reafon of the long feething, it putrifieth not : and they keepe it in store for Winter. The churnmilke which remayneth of the Butter, they let alone till it be as fowre as possibly it may be,

then they boyle it, and in boyling it is turned all into Curds, which Curds they drie in the Sun, making them as hard as the droffe of Iron: and this kind of food also they store up in Sachels against Winter. In the Winter season when Milke fayleth them , they put the foresaid Curde (which they call Gry-ve) into a bladder, and powring hot water thereinto, they beat it luftily till they have resolved it into the said Water, which is thereby made exceedingly sowre, and that they drinke in flead of Milke. They are very scrupulous, and take diligent heed that they drinke not faire Water by it felie.

Reat Lords have Cottages or Granges towards the South, from whence their Tenants bring with thicke water, and are therewithall contented. They will neither eate Mile with long 10

Athem Millet and Meale against Winter. The poorer fort prouide themselues of such pecel-

Chap.7. Or he beafts which they car faries, for the exchange of Rams, and of other bealts skins. The Tartars flaues fill their bellies of their parmen sand of their manner of hunting.

William L

tayles, nor any kind of Mife with short tayles. They have also certaine little beasis, called by them, Sogar, which he in a Caue twentie or thirtie of them together, all the whole Winter sleeping there for the space of fixe moneths; and these they take in great abundance. There are also a kind of Conies having long tayles like vnto Cats: and on the outfide of their tayles grow blacke and white haires. They have many other small beatls good to cat, which they know and discerne right well. I saw no Deere there, and but a few Hares, but a great number of Roes. I faw wild Alles in great abundance, which be like vnto Mules. Alfo I faw another kind of beaft, called Areak, having in all refemblance the bodie of a Ram, and crooked hornes, which are of fuch bignesse, that I could scarce lift up a paire of them with one hand : and of these hornes they make great drinking cups. They have Faulcons, Girfaulcons, and other Hawkes in great plentie: all which they carrie upon their right hands: and they put alwaies about their Faulcons 20 neckes a firing of Leather, which hangeth downe to the midft of their gorges, by the which firing, when they cast them off the filt at the game, with their left hand they bow downe the vie the left f.ft. Another ftrange cuflome, which I leaue to bee fcanned by Falconers themfelues.

heads and breaks of the faid Hawkes, left they should be toffed vp and downe, and beaten with the wind, or left they should foare too high. Wherefore they get a great part of their victuals by hunting and hawking. Concerning their garments and attire, be it knowne vnto your Maiestie, that out of Caraya, and other Regions of the East, out of Persia also, and other Countries of to South , there are brought vnto them Stuffes of filke , Cloth of gold , and Cotton cloth. which they weare in time of Summer. But out of Ruffia, Movell , Bulgaria the greater , and Palcatir, that is, Hungaria the greater, and out of Kerfis (all which are Northerne Regions, and 10 full of Woods) and alto out of many other Couperies of the North, which are subject vnto them, the Inhabitants bring them rich and costly skins of divers forts (which I never faw in our Countries) wherewithall they are clad in Winter. And alwaies against Winter they make themselves two Gownes, one with the force inward to their skinne, and another with the force outward, to defend them from wind and show, which for the most part are made of Wolves skins, or Foxe skins, or elfe of Papions. And when they fit within the house, they have a finer Gowne to weare. The poorer fort make their upper Gowne of Dogs or of Goats skins, When they goe to hunt for wild beafts, there meets a great companie of them together, and emironing the place round about, where they are fire to find fome game, by little and little they approach on all files, till they have gotten the wild beafts into the midit, as it were into a circle, 40 and then they discharge their Arrowes at them. Also they make themselves Breeches of skins. The rich Tarrars sometimes fure their Gownes with pelluce or silke shag, which is exceeding foft, light, and warme. The poorer fort doe line their clothes with Cotton cloth.

which is made of the finest wooll they can picke out, and of the courser part of the faid wooll.

they make Felt to couer their houses, and their chifts, and for their hedding also. Of the same wooll, being mixed with one third part of Horse haire, they make all their cordage. They make for all which purposes they spend a great quantitie of their wooll. And thus much concerning

Great expense also of the faid Felt coverings for their stooles, and caps to defend their heads from the weather:

the attire of the men.

Chap.8. Of the fashion which the Tartars vie in cutting their haire, and ofthe attire of their women.

He men shaue a plot foure square vpon the crownes of their heads, and from the two formost corners they shaue, as it were, two scames downe to their temples : they shaue also their temples, and the hinder part of their head, enemants the mape of the necke: likewife they shaue the fore-part of their scalpe downe to their foreheads, and vpon their foreheads they leave a locke of haire reaching downe vnto their eye-browes : vpon the two hindermost corners of their heads, they have two lockes also, which they twine and braid into knots and fo bind and knit them under each eare one, Moreouer their womens garments differ not from their mens, fauing that they are somewhat longer. Byton the morrow after one of their women is married, flee shares her scalpe from the middest of her head downe to her forebead, and weares a wide garment like vnto the hood of a Nunne, yealarger and longer in all parts then 60 a Nunnes hood, beeing open before, and gire ento them under the right fide. For hetrein doe the Tartore differ from the Turkes: because the Turkes fasten their garments to their bodies on the left fide ; but the Tartare alwaies on the right fide. They have allo an ornament for their heads, which they call, Betta, beeing made of the barke of a Tree, or of some such other lighter matter as they can finde, which by teafon of the thicknesse and roundnesse thereof cannot he holden but in both hands together : and it hath a fquare sharpe spire rising from the top thereof, being more then a cubite in length, and fashioned like vnto a Pinacle. The faid Batta they couer all ouer with a piece of rich Silke, and it is hollow within : and vpon the midft of the faid spire or square top, they put a bunch of Quils, or of slender Canes a cubite long and more : and the faid bunch on the top thereof, they beautifie with Peacockes Feathers, and round about all the length thereof, with the Feathers of a Malards taile, and with precious stones alio. Great Ladies weare this kind of ornament upon their heads, binding it strongly with a certaine Hat or Coyfe, which hash a hole in the crowne, fit for the fpire to come through Io it and under the forefaid ornament they court the fiaires of their heads, which they gather up round together from the hinder part thereof to the growne; and fo lap them vp in a knot or bundell within the faid Borra; which afterward they bind fittingly vader their throats. Hereupon when a great company of such Gentlewomen ride together, and are belield a farre off, they feeme to be Souldiers with Helmets on their heads, carrying their Lances veright: for the faid Botta appeareth like an Helmet wieles Lance ouer it. All their Women fit on horfe-backe, befiriding their Horses like men : and they binde their hoods or gownes about their wastes with a sky-coloured Silke Skarte, and with another Skarfe they gird it about their breafts : and they binde alfo a piece of white Silke like a Mutier or Maske under their eyes, reaching downe unto their breails. Their Gentlewomen are exceeding fat, and the leffer their notes be, the faior rer they are elleemed : they dawbe ouer their fweet faces with greafe too shamefully : and they neuer lyein bed for their trauell of child-birth.

"He duties of Women are to drive Cares : to lay their houles upon Cares, and to take them Chap. o. downe sgaine; to milke Kine; to make Butter and Gry-ve, to dreffe skinnes, and to few Of the duties them, which they virally few with thread made of finewes, for they divide finewes in flender injoyned vate threads, and then twine them into one long thread. They make Sandals and Socks; and other Women, and Garments. Howbeit they neuer wash any apparell! for they lay, that God is then angry, and of their labors. that dreadfull thunder will enfue, if washed garments be hanged forth todry; yea, they beate and also of fuch as wash, and take their garments from them. They are wonderfully afraid of thunder : for their marri-30 in the time of thunder they thrust all strangers one of their houses, and then wrapping them. " ages. feliges in blacke Felt; they lye hidden therein, till the thunder be ouer-paft. They neuer walh their dilhes or bowles : yea, when their fielh is fodden, they wash the platter wherein it milt be put, with scalding hot broath out of the pot, and then powre the faid broath into the por againe. They make Felt also, and couer their houses therewith. The dities of the Men are a to make Bowes and Arrowes, Stirrops, Bridles and Saddles : to build Houses and Carts, to keepe Horses, to milke Mares, to churrie Colmos and Mares Milke, and to make bags wherein to put it : they keepe Camels also, and lay burtlens upon the n. As for Sheepe and Goats, they tend and milke them, as well the Men as the Women. With Sheeps Milke thicked and falted, they dreffeand tan their Hides. When they will wash their hands or their heads, they fill their 40 mouthes full of Water, and spoweing it into their hands by little and little, they frrinkle their haire, and wash their heads therewith. As touching marriages, your Highnesse is to vinders and that no man can have a Wife among them till he hath bought her : whereupon fornetimes their Maids are very stale before they be married, for their Parents alwaies keepe them till they can fell them. They keepe the first and second degrees of Consanguinitie inquolable, as wee doe; but they have no regard of the degrees of Affinitie for they will marrie together, or by frecellion, two Sifters. Their Widowes marrie not at all, for this reason; because they believe that all who have ferred them in this life, shall doe them ferrice in the life to come also. Whereupon they are perfwaded, that every Widow after death shall returne wato her owne Husband. And here-hence arifeth an abominable and filthy custome among them; namely, that the Sonne marright iometimes all his Fathers Wives except his owne Mother For the Court or House of the provide for all his Fathers Wines, because they are part of his Inheritance as well as his Fathers possessions. And then if he will, he vieth them for his owne Wives : for he thinkes it no infurie or difparagement vntohimfelfe, although they returne vnto his Father after death. Therfore when any man hath bargained with another for a Maid, the Father of the faid Damofell makes him a feast : in the means while she fleeth vnto some of her Kinsfolkes to hide her lefte. Then faith her Father vitto the Bridegroome: Loe, my Daughter is yours, take her where focuer you can finde ber. Then he and his friends feeke for her till they can find her, and having found her, he must take her by force and carry her (as it were) violently vnto his owne house.

50 Father or Mother, falleth by inheritance alwaies to the younger Sonne. Whereupon he is to

Oncerning their Lawes, or their Execution of Iustice, your Maiestie is to be advertised, Ot their exethat when two men fight, no third man dare intrude himfelfe to part them. Yea, the Fa- custon of luther dare not help his owne Sonne. But he that goes by the worst, must appeale vnto the Court fice and ludge of his Lord. And whofoeuer elfe offereth him any violence after appeale, is put to death. But thur deaths

he must goe presently without all delay : and he that bath suffered the iniury, carrieth him ( as it were ) captine. They punish no man with sentence of death , volesse he bee taken in the deed doing, or confesseth the same. But being accused by the multitude, they put him vnto extreame torture, to make him confesse the truth. They punish murther with death, and Carnall copulation also with any other beides his owne. By his owne, I meane his Wife or his Maid Servant, for he may vie his Slaue as hee lifteth himselfe. Hainous theft also or felony they punish with death. For a light theft, as namely, for stealing of a Ram, the partie (not being apprehended in the deed doing, but otherwise detected ) is cruelly beaten. And if the Executioner layes on an hundred strokes, hee must have an hundred staves; namely, for such as are beaten upon sentencegiuen in the Court. Also counterfeit Meffengers, because they feine themselues to be Mef- 10 fengers, when as indeed they are none at all, they punish with death. Sacrilegious persons they vie in like manner ( of which kind of Malefactors your Maiestie shall vnderstand more fully hereafter ) because they esteeme such to bee Witches. When any man dyeth, they lament and howle most pittifully for him: and the said Mourners are free from paying any tribute for one whole yeare after. Also, whosoeuer is present at the house where any one growne to mans estate lyeth dead, he must not enter into the Court of Manga-Can, till one whole yeare be expired. If it were a child deceased, hee must not enter into the faid Court till the next moneth after. Neere vnto the graue of the partie deceased, they alwairs leaue one Cottage. If any of their Nobles (being of the stocke of Chingis, who was their first Lord and Father) deceaseth, his Sepulchre is vnknowne. And alwaies about those places where they interre their Nobles, there is 20 one house of men to keepe the Sepulchres. I could not learne that they vie to hide Treasures in the graves of their dead. The Comanians build a great Toombe over their dead, and erect the Image of the dead partie thereupon, with his face towards the East, holding a drinking Cup in his hand before his Nauell. They erect also voon the Monuments of rich men, Pyramides, that is to fay; little sharpe houses or pinacles: and in some places I saw mightie Towers made of Bricke, in other places Pyramides made of stones, albeit there are no stones to be found thereabout. I saw one newly buried, in whose behalfe they hanged up sixteene Horse-hides, vnto each quarter of the world foure, betweene certaine high posts : and they set besides his Graue Cosmos for him to drinke, and flesh to eate: and yet they laid that he was baptized, I beheld other kinds of Sepulchres also towards the East: namely, large floores or pauements made of stone, some round, and some square, and then soure long stones pitched vpright, about the said pauement towards the foure Regions of the world. When any man is ficke, he lyeth in his bed, and causeth a signe to be set vpon his house, to signifie that there lyeth a sicke person there, to the end that no man may enter into the faid house : whereupon none at all visit any sicke partie but his feruant onely. Moreouer, when any one is ficke in their great Courts, they appoint Watch-men to fland round about the faid Court, who will not fuffer any person to enter within the Precincts thereof. For they feare leaft cuill spirits or winds should come together with the parties that enter in. They efteeme of Soothfayers, as of their Priefts.

Cb.p. 11. Of our first entrance among the Tartheir ingrati-

Nd being come amongst those barbarous people, me thought (as I faid before ) that I was 40 And being come amongst those paracous people, me thought (as I said being e) that I was Aentred into a new world : for they came flocking about vs on horse-backe, after they had made ye a long time to awaite for them fitting in the shadow, under their blacke carts. The first question which they demanded, was, whether we had ever beene with them heretofore, or no? And giving them answere that we had not, they began impudently to beg our victuals from vs. And we gave them some of our Bisket and Wine, which wee had brought with vs from the Towns of Soldaia. And having drunke off one Flagon of our Wine, they demanded another; faving, That a man goeth not into the house with one foote. Howbeit we game them no more, excusing our selues that we had but a little. Then they asked vs, whence we came, and whither we were bound? I answered them with the words about mentioned: that wee had heard concerning Duke Sartach, that hee was become a Christian, and that vnto him our determination 60 was to travell, having your Maiesties Letters to deliver vnto him. They were very inquisitive to know whether I came of mine owne accord, or whither I were fent ! I answered, that no man compelled me to come, neither had I come, vnleffe I my felfe had beene willing : and that therefore I was come according to mine owne will, and to the will of my Superior, I tooke diligent heed neuer to fay that I was your Maiesties Embassadour. Then they asked what I had in my Carts; whether it were Gold or Silver, or rich Garments to carrie vnto Sartach? I anfwered, that Sarrach should see what we had brought, when we were once come vnto him, and that they had nothing to doe to aske such questions, but rather ought to conduct me vnto their Captaine, and that he, if he thought good, should cause me to be directed vnto Sartach : if not, that I would returne. For there was in the same Province one of Basts his Kinsmen, called Sca- 60 cati, vnto whom my Lord the Emperour of Constantinople had written Letters of request, to fuffer me to palle through his Territorie. With this answere of ours they were fatisfied, giving vs Horfes and Oxen, and two men to conduct vs. Howbeit, before they would allow vs the forefaid necessaries for our journey, they made vs to awaite a long while, begging our bread for their young Brats, wondring at all things which they faw about our Seruants, as their Kniues, Gloues, Puries and Points, and defiring to have them. I excused my selfe that wee had a long way to trauell, and that we must in no wife so soone depriue our selves of things necessary, to finish so long a journey. Then they faid, that I was a very variet. True it is, that they tooke nothing by force from me : howbeit they will beg that which they fee very importunatly and shamelesly. And if a man bestow ought vpon them, it is but cold lost, for they are thanklesse wretches. They esteeme themselues Lords, and thinke that nothing should be denyed them by any man. If a man gives them nought, and afterwards stands in need of their service, they will do right nought for him. They gave vs of their Cowes Milke to drink, after the Butter was chur-10 ned out of it, being very fowre, which they call Apram. And fo we departed from them. And in very deed it feemed to me that we were escaped out of the hands of Diuels. On the morrow we were come vnto the Captaine. From the time wherein we departed from Soldaia, till wee arrived at the Court of Sartack, which was the space of two moneths, we never lay in House or Tent, but alwaies under the starry Canopie, and in the open Aire, or under our Carts. Neither yet faw we any Village, nor any mention of building where a Village had beene, but the graues of the Comanians, in great abundance. The fame evening our guide which had conducted vs, gave vs some Cosmos. After I had drunke thereof, I sweat most extreamely for the noueltic and strangenesse, because I neuer dranke of it before. Notwithstanding, me thought it was very sauory, as indeed it was.

N the morrow after we met with the Carts of Scacatai laden with houses, and me thought Chap. 12.

Other a mightie Citie came to meete me. I wondred also at the great multitude of huge Othe Court

Droues of Oxen, and Horses, and at the Flockes of Sheepe. I could see but a few men that gui- of Scacatai &

ded all these matters: whereupon I inquired how many men hee had vinder him, and they told frant drinke me that he had not aboue five hundred in all, the one halfe of which number we were come part, no Colmos. as they lay in another Lodging. Then the Servant which was our Guide told mee, that I must present somewhat vnto Scacatai: and so he caused vs to stay, going himselfe before to give notice of our comming. By this time it was past three of the clocke, and they vnladed their houfes neere vnto a certayne water: And there came vnto vs his Interpreter, who being aduertised 30 by ve that we were neuer there before, demanded some of our victuals, and wee yeelded vnto his request. Also hee required of vs some garment for a Reward, because hee was to interpret our Sayings vnto his Maiter. Howbeit, we excused our selues as well as we could. Then hee asked vs, what we would prefent vnto his Lord : And we tooke a flagon of Wine, and filled a Maund with Bisket, and a Platter with Apples and other Fruits. But he was not contented therewith, because we brought him not some rich garment. Notwithstanding, wee entred so into his prefence with feare and bashfulnesse. Hee face upon his bed holding a Citron in his hand, and his Wife fate by him: who (as I verily thinke) had cut and pared her Nose betweene the Eyes, that the might feeme to be more flat and faddle-nofed : for the had left her felfe no Nofe at all in that place, having anounted the very fame place with a blacke Oyntment, and her Eye-browes also: 40 which fight feemed most vgly in our Eyes. Then I rehearfed vnto him the fame words, which I had spoken in other places before. For it stood vs in hand to vse one and the same speech in all places. For we were well fore-warned of this circumstance by some which had been amongst A caucat right the Tartars, that we should never vary in our Tale. Then I befought him, that he would vouch- worthy the nofafe to accept that small gift at our hands, excusing my selfe that I was a Monke, and that it was tingagainst our profession to possesse Gold, or Silver, or precious Garments, and therefore that I had not any fuch thing to give him, howbeit he should receive some part of our victuals in stead of a bleffing. Hereupon he caused our Present to be received, and immediately distributed the same among his men, who were met together for the same purpose, to drinke and make merry. I deliuered also vnto him the Emperour of Constantinople his Letters (this was eight dayes after the 50 Feaft of Ascension) who sent them forth- with to Soldaia, to have them interpreted there: for they were written in Greeke, and he had none about him that was skilfull in the Greeke Tongue. He asked vs also whether we would drinke any Cosmos, that is to say, Mares Milke: (For those that are Christians among them, as namely, the Ruffians, Grecius, and Alamans, who keepe Superflitton, their owne Law very strictly, will in no case drinke thereof, yea, they account themselues no the Kingdome Christians after they have once drunke of it, and their Priests reconcile them vnto the Church, as means and if they had renounced the Christian Faith.) I gaue him answere, that wee had as yet sufficient of drinke. our owne to drinke, and that when our drinke fayled vs, we must be constrayned to drinke such as should bee given vnto vs. Hee enquired also what was contayned in our Letters, which your Maiestie sent vnto Sartach? I answered : that they were sealed up , and that there was nothing 60 contayned in them, but good and friendly words. And he asked what words wee would deliuer vnto Sariach? I answered: the words of Christian Faith. Hee asked againe what these words were? For he was very defirous to heare them. Then I expounded vnto him as well as I could, by mine Interpreter, (who had no wit nor any otterance of speech) the Apossles Creed. Which after hee had heard, holding his peace, he shooke his head. Then hee assigned vnto vs two men, who should give attendance upon our solves, upon our Horses, and upon our Oxen. And hee caused vs to ride in his company, till the Messenger whom he had sent for the Interpretation of the Emperours Letters, was returned. And to wee trauelled in his company till the morrow after Pentecost.

tecoft or Whitfon Ecue. " Or, Akes.

Pon the Eruen of Pentecoft, there came vnto vs certayne Alamians, who are there called Acias, being Christians after the manner of the Greciams , ving Greeke Bookes and Grenion came vor cion Prietts: howbeit, they are not Schismatikes as the Gresians are, but without acception of persons, they honour all Christians. And they brought vnto vs fodden flesh, requesting vs to eat of their meate, and to pray for one of their company beeing dead. Then I faid, because it was 10 the Eeuen of fo great and to folemne a Feast Day , that wee would not eate any flesh for that sime. And I expounded vnto them the Solemnitie of the Laid Feaft, whereat they greatly reloyced : for they were ignorant of all things appertayning to Christian Religion , except only the Name of Christ. They and many other Christians, both Ruffians, and Hungarians demanded of vs, whether they might be faued or no, because they were constrayned to drinke Cosmos, and to eate the dead carkalles of fuch things, as were flaine by the Saracens, and other Infidels! Which even the Greeke and Ruffian Priests themselves also esteeme as things strangled or offered vnto Idols : because they were ignorant of the times of Fasting , neither could they have obserued them albeit they had knowne them. Then instructed I them aswell as I could and strengthened them in the Faith. As for the flesh which they had brought, wee referred it vntill the 20 feast day. For there was nothing to be fold among the Tartars for Gold and Silver, but onely for Cloath and Garments, of the which kind of Merchandize wee had none at all. When our Servants offered them any Coyne, called Tperpera, they rubbed it with their fingers, and put it vnto their nofes, to try by the smell whether it were Copper or no. Neither did they allow vs any food but Cowes Milke onely, which was very fowre and filthy. There was one thing most necessary greatly wanting vnto vs. For the water was so foule and muddy, by reason of their Horses, that it was not meete to be drunke. And but for certaine Bisket, which was by the goodnesse of God remaining vnto vs, we had vndoubtedly perished.

Cloth is the chiefe Mer-Tertarie.

Cb19. 14.

7 Pon the day of Pentecost there came unto vs a certaine Saracen, unto whom, as he talked with vs, we expounded the Christian Faith. Who (hearing of Gods benefits exhibited which find that vinto mankind, by the Incarnation of our Saujour Christ, and the Refurrection of the dead, and he would be the Ilaigement to come, and that in Baptime was a washing away of sinnes) laid, that hee would be baptized. But when wee prepared our felues to the baptizing of him, hee suddenly men whichfer- mounted on horfe-back, taying, that newould go home and confult with his wife what were best med to bee Lest to be done. And on the morrow after he told vs, that he durft in no cafe receive Baptisme, because then he should drinke no more Cosmos. For the Christians of that place affirme, that no true Christians ought to drinke thereof : and that without the faid liquor hee could not liue in that Defart. From which opinion, I could not for my liferemoue him. Wherefore be it knowne of a certaintie vnto your Highnesse, that they are much estranged from the Christian Faith, by 40 reason of that opinion which hath beene broached and confirmed among them by the Russiane, of whom there is a great multitude in that place. The same day Scacatai the Captaine aforesaid gaue vs one man to conduct vs to Sartach, and two other to guide vs vnto the next Lodging, which was distant from that place five dayes Iourney for Oxen to travell. They gave vnto vs alioa Goate for victuals, and a great many Bladders of Cowes Milke, and but a little Colmos. because it is of so great estimation among them. And so taking our Journey directly toward the North, mee thought that wee had passed through one of Hell gates. The Servants which conducted vs began to play the bold Theeues with vs , feeing vs take folittle heed vnto our felues. At length having lost much by there Theeuery, harme taught vs wishome. And then wee came vnto the extremitie of that Prouince, which is fortified with a Ditch from one Sea vnto ano- 10 ther : without the bounds whereof their Lodging was fit late. Into the which, to foone as wee had entred, all the Inhabitants there feemed vnto vs to be infected with Leprofie : for certayne base fellowes were placed there to receive Tribute of all such as tooke Salt out of the Salt-pits aforesaid. From that place they told vs that we must trauell fifteene dayes Journey, before we should find any other people. With them we dranke Cosmos, and gaue vnto them a basket full of Fruits and of Bisket. And they gaue vnto vs eight Oxen and one Goate, to fuflayne vs in fo great a Icumey, and I know not how many bladders of Milke. And fo changing our Oxen, we tooke our Journey which wee finished in tenne dayes, arriving at another Lodging : neither found we any water all that way, but onely in certayne Ditches made in the Valleyes, except two Rivers. And from the time wherein wee departed out of the forelaid Province of Gafaria, 60 we travelled directly East-ward, having a Sea on the South-fide of vs , and a waste Defart on the North, which Delart, in some places, reacheth twentiedayes Iourney in breadth, and there is neither Tree, Mountayne, nor Stone therein. And it is most excellent Pasture. Here the Comarians, which were called Capthac, were wont to feed their Cattell. Howbeit by the Duth-

Iourney.

men they are called Valani, and the Prouince it selic Valania. But Isidore calleth all that tract Valania of Land firetching from the River of Tanais to the Lake of Maosis, and so along as farre as Danabus, the Countrey of Alana. And the fame land continueth in length from Dambius vinto Tanais (which divideth Afia from Europe) for the space of two moneths journey, albeit a man Tanais (Winest annually 25). The Contains vie to ride; and it was all ouer inhabited by the Comanians, Thelength of called Capibac : yea, and beyond Tanais, as farre as the River of Edil, or Volga : the space betweene the two which Rivers is a great and long journey to bee travelled in ten daies. To the North of the same Prounce lyeth Russia, which is full of wood in all places, and stretcheth from Polonia Russia. and Hungaria, even to the River of Tanais : and it hath beene wasted all over by the Tantars, and are able to give them no more gold nor filtuer, they drive them and their Children like flocks Of our officialof Sheepe into the wildernesse, confirming them to keepe their Cattell there. Beyond Russia ons which wee of Sheepe into the windermene, constraining mean to keepe time a state there. Beyond a nijab liyeth the Countrey of Pruffa, which the Dubde Knights of the order of Saint Mariet Hofpital of the Countre of Irrufalam, have of late wholly conquered and jubdued. And in very deede, they might easies the manner of the country of the constraints of the Country of the Coun ly win Ruffia, if they would put to their helping hand. For if the Tartars should but once know buriall, that the great Priest, that is to say, the Pope did cause the Ensigne of the Crosse to be displaied Profile. against them, they would flie all into their Defart and solitarie places. Wee therefore went on 20 towards the East, seeing nothing but Heauen and Earth, and sometimes the Sea on our right hand, called the Sea of Tanais, and the Sepulchres of the Comanians, which appeared vnto vs two leagues off, in which places they were wont to burie their kindred altogether. So long as we were travelling through the Defart, it went reasonably well with vs. For I cannot sufficiently expresse in words the irkesome and tedious troubles which I sustained, when I came at any of their places of abode. For our Guide would have vs goe in vnto euery Captaine with a preor their places of access would not extend fo farre. For we were enery day eight persons of vs fent, and our expences would not extend fo farre.

· Io as yet is daily wasted by them. Hey preferre the Saracens before the Ruffians, because they are Christians, and when they Chap. 1 c.

fpending our way faring prouision, for the Tartars feruants would all of them eate of our victuals. We our felues were fine in number, and the fernants our Guides were three, two to drive mere our Cares, and one to conduct vs vnto Sartach. The fielh which they gaue vs was not sufficient 30 for vs; neither could we find any thing to be bought for our money. And as we fate vnder our Carts in the coole shadow, by reason of the extreame and vehement heate which was there at that time, they did fo importunately and shamelesly intrude themselues into our company, that they would even tread upon vs, to fee whatfoever things we had. Having lift at any time to eafe themselves, the filthie Lozels had not the manners to withdraw themselves farther from vs, then a Beane can be cast. Yea, like vile slovens they would lay their tailes in our presence, while they were yet talking with vs: many other things they committed, which were most tedious and loathiome vnto vs. But aboue all things it griened me to the very heart, that when I would vt. ter ought vnto them, which might tend to their edification, my foolish interpreter would say : you should not make me become a Preacher now; I tell you, I cannot nor I will not rehearse

40 any luch words. And true it was which he faid, for I perceived afterward, when I began to have a little smattering in the language, that when I spake one thing, hee would say quite another. whatfoeuer came next vnto his witleffe tongues end. Then feeing the danger I might incurre in speaking by such an Interpreter, I resolved much rather to hold my peace, and thus we travelled with great toile from lodging to lodging, till at the length, a few daies before the Feast of Saint Marie Magdalene, we atriued at the banke of the mightie River Tanais , which divideth Asia from Europa, euen as the River Nilus of Agypt difioyneth Afia from Africa. At the fame place where we arrived, Baatu and Sartach did caufe a certaine Cottage to be built vpon the Eafterne banke of the River, for a companie of Russians to dwell in, to the end, they might transport Ambaffadours and Merchants in Ferrie-boates ouer that part of the Riuer. First, they ferried 50 vs ouer, and then our Carts, putting one wheele into one Liter, and the other wheele into another

Liter, having bound both the Liters together, and fo they rowed them ouer. In this place our Guide played the foole most extreamely. For he imagining that the said Russians, dwelling in the Cottage, should have provided vs Horses, sent home the Beasts which wee brought with vs, in another Cart, that they might returne vnto their owne Masters. And when we demanded to have some beasts of them, they answered, that they had a priviledge from Baats, whereby they were bound to none other feruice, but onely to ferrie ouer Goers and Commers : and that they received great tribute of Merchants in regard thereof. Wee staied therefore by the said Rivers fule three daies. The first day they gaue vinto vs a great fresh Turbut : the second day they be-Howed Rye bread, and a little flesh woon vs, which the Purueyer of the Village had taken up at 60 every house for vs : and the third day dryed Fishes, which they have there in great aboundance. The faid River was even as broade in that place, as the River of Sein is at Paris. And before wee The breaden of came there, wee passed over many goodly waters, and full of Fish: howbeit the barbarous and Tomin. rude Tartars know not how to take them : neither doe they make any reckoning of any Fish, except it bee so great, that they may prey vpon the flesh thereof, as vpon the flesh of a Ram,

He is much de-

This River is the limit of the East part of Ruffia, and it springeth out of the Fonnes of Maotis, which Fennes fretch vnto the North Ocean. And it runneth Southward into a certaine great Sea leuen hundred miles about , before it falleth into the Sea called Pontus Euxmus. And all the Rivers which we passed over, ran with full streame into those quarters. The foresaid River hath great store of wood also growing vpon the West side thereof. Beyond this place the Tartars ginning of Au. afcend no farther vinto the North : for at that feafon of the yeere, about the first of August, they guft, the Tar- begin to returne backe vnto the South. And therefore there is another Cottage somewhat lower where Passengers are ferried ouer in Winter time, and in this place we were driven to great extremitie, by reason that we could get neither Horses, nor Oxen for any money. At length, afcer I had declared vnto them , that my comming was to labour for the common good of all 10 Christians, they lent vs Oxen and Men; howbeit wee our selues were faine to travell on foot. At this time they were reaping their Rye. Wheate prospereth not well in that soile. They have the feed of Millium in great abundance. The Ruffian women attire their heads like vnto our women. They embroider their Safegards or Gownes on the outfide, from their feet vnto their knees with partie-coloured or grey stuffe. The Russian men weare Caps like vnto the Dutch men. Also they weare voon their heads certaine sharpe and high-crowned Hats made of Felt, much like vnto a Sugar-loafe. Then transiled we three daies together, not finding any people. And when our felues and our Oxen were exceeding wearie and faint, not knowing how farte off we should find any Tartas, on the sudden there came two Horses running towards vs, which we tooke with great joy, and our Guide and Interpreter mounted vpon their backs, to fee how farre off they could descrie any people. At length, vpon the fourth day of our journey, having 20 found fome Inhabitants, we rejoyced like Sea faring men, which had escaped out of a dangerous Tempest, and had newly recoursed the Hauen. Then having taken fresh Horses, and Oxen, we paffed on from lodging to lodging, till at the last, vpon the second of the Kalends of August, we arrived at the habitation of Duke Sartach him felte.

He Region lying beyond Tanais, is a very goodly Countrey, having store of Rivers and Woods toward the North part thereof. There are mightie huge Woods which two forts of people doe inhabit. One of them is called Maxel, being meere Pagans, and without Law. They with whom hee is first of all entertained, all the time of his abode among them. If any lyeth with another mans wife, her husband, volleffe he be an eye-witnesse thereof, regardeth it not :

for they are not icalous ouer their wives. They have abundance of Hogs, and great store of Honie and Waxe, and divers forts of rich and costly Skins, and plentie of Faulcons. Next vnto them are other people called Merclas, which the Latines call Merdan, and they are Saracens. Beyond into a certaine Lake, containing in circuit the space of foure moneths travell, whereof I will speake hereafter. The two foresaid Rivers , namely, Tanais and Etilia , otherwise called Volga, towards the Northerne Regions, through the which we trauailed, are not diffant afunder about ten daies iourney, but Southward they are divided a great space one from another. For Tanais descendeth into the Sea of Pontsu: Etilsu maketh the foresaid Sea or Lake, with the helpe of many other Rivers, which fall thereinto out of Persia. And wee had to the South of vs huge high Mountaines, vpon the fides thereof towards the faid Defart, doe the people called Corgus, and the Alam or Acas inhabit, who areas yet Christians, and wage warre against the Tartars.

Beyond them, next vnto the Sea or Lake of Etilsa, there are certaine Saracens called Lefei, who Derbent, which Alexander built to exclude the barbarous Nations out of Persia. Concerning the fituation whereof, your Maiestie shall understand more about the end of this Treatile: for I tra-uailed in my returne by the very same place. Betweene the two foresid Rivers, in the Regions through the which we passed, did the Comanians of old time inhabit, before they were our-

are in L. biection vnto the Tartars. Beyond thefe is Porta ferrea, or the Iron gate, now called 50

Chap. 16. Of the Domimion of Sartach, and of his have neither Townes nor Cities, but onely Cottages in the Woods. Their Lord and a great part 30 of themselves were put to the Sword in high Germanie. Whereupon they highly commend the The people of braue courage of the Almans, hoping as yet to be delinered out of the bondage of the Tartars, by their meanes. If any Merchant come vnto them, hee must prouide things necessary for him, called Aterdas them is the River of Etilia, or Volga, which is the mightiest River that ever I saw. And it issue being Saracente eth from the North part of Bulgaria the greater, and so trending along Southward, disimboqueth 40

The circuit of the Capita Sca.

Chap. 17. Of the Court

run by the Tartars.

ANI wee found Sartach lying within three daies iourney of the Riuer Etdia: whose Court feemed vnto vs to be very great. For he himselfe had fix wives, and his clock ionne also of Satach, and had three wives : every one of which women hath a great house, and they have each one of them of satisfaction and three wines reactly one of which women that a great hold before named Cold, who is a man of the missing about two hundred Carts. Our guide went vinto a certaine Nefferieur named Cold, who is a man of the missing about two hundred Carts. Our guide went vinto a certaine Nefferieur named Cold, who is a man of the missing about two hundred Carts. of great authoritie in Sartachs Court. He made vs to goe very farre vnto the Lordsgate. For to Coint, the Nells they call him who hath the O.Fce of entertayning Amballadours. In the evening, Coint commanded vs to come vnto him. Then our Guide began to enquire what wee would prefent him withall, and was exceedingly offended, when hee faw that wee had nothing ready to prefent.

We stood before him, and he sate mainfically, having musick and dancing in his presence. Then Hoake vnto him in the words before recited, telling him for what purpole I was come vnto his Lord, and requesting to much fauour at his hands, as to bring our Letters vnto the fight of his Lord, I excuted my felfe also, that I was a Monke, not having, nor receiving, nor ving any gold, or filter, or any other precious thing, face onely our Bookes, and the Veitments wherein wee ferued God : and that this was the cause why I brought no present vato him, nor vato his Lord. For I that had abandoned mine owne goods, could not be a transporter of things for other men-Then he answered very courteously, that being a Monke, and so doing, I did well; for so I should obserue my vow : neither did himselfe stand in need of bught that we had , but rather was ready To to bestow upon vs such thangs as we our felues stood in need of ; and hee caused vs to sit downe, and to drinke of his Milke. And prefently after, hee requested vs to lay our denotions for him : and wee did fo. Hee enquired also who was the greatest Prince among the Francks? And I said. the Emperour, if he could enion his owne Dominions in quiet. No (quoth hee) but the King of France. For hee had heard of your Hignesse by Lord Baldmine of Henault. I found there also one of the Knights of the Temple who had beene in Cypras, and had made report of all things which he faw there. Then returned we visco our Lodging. And on the morrowaiwe fent him a flaggon of Mufcadell Wine (which had lafted verie well in fo long a Journey) and a boxe full of Bisket, which was most acceptable vnto him. And hee kept our Seruants with him for that Euening. The next morning hee commanded mee to come vnto the Court, and to bring 20 the Kings Letters and my Vestments, and Bookes with mee: because his Lord was defirous to fee them. Which we did accordingly, lading one Cart with our Bookes and Vestments, and another with Bisket, Wine, and Fruits. Then hee caufed all our Bookes and Vestments to bee layd forth. And there flood round about vs many Tartars, Christians, and Saracens on Horsebacke. At the fight whereof, hee demanded whether I would befrow all those things voon his Lord or no? Which faving made mee to tremble, and grieved mee full fore. Howbert, differns bling our griefe as well as we could, we shaped him this Answere : Sir, our humble request is, that our Lord your Maiter would vouchfate to accept our Bread, Wine, and Fruits, not as a Prefence because it is too meane, but as a Benediction, least we should come with an emptie hand before bim. And hee shall fee the Letters of my Souereigne Lord the King; and by them hee shall vn-30 derstand for what cause we are come vnto him , and then both our selues, and all that wee haue. shall stand to his courtesse: for our Vestments bee holy, and it is valawfull for any but Priests to touch them. Then he commanded vs to inueft our felues in the faid Garments, that we might goe before his Lord; and we did fo. Then I my felfe putting on our most precious Ornaments, tooke in mine armes a very faire Cushion, and the Bible which your Maiestie gave mee, and a most beautifull Pfalter, which the Queenes Grace bestowed youn mee, wherein there were goodly Pictures. Mine Affociate tooke a Miffall and a Croffe : and the Clerke having put on his Surplice, tooke a Cenfer in his hand. And so we came vnto the presence of his Lord; and they lifted up the Felt hanging before his doore, that hee might behold us. Then they caused the Clerke and the Interpreter thrice to bow the knee : but of vs they required no fuch fub-40 mission. And they diligently admonished vs to take heed, that in going in, and in comming out, wee touched not the threshold of the house, and requested vs to sing a Benediction for him. Then we entred in, finging Salue Regina. And within the entrance of the doore flood a bench with Cosmos, and drinking cups thereupon. And all his Wives were there affembled. Also the Moals or rich Tartars thrusting in with vs pressed vs fore. Then Coins carryed vnto his Lord the Cenfer with Incenfe, which hee beheld very diligently, holding it in his hand. Afterward he carryed the Pfalter vnto him, which he looked earneftly vpon, and his Wife also that fate befide him. After that he carryed the Bible : then Sarrach asked if the Gospell were contayned therein ? Yea (faid I) and all the holy Scriptures befides. He tooke the Croffe also in his hand, and demanded concerning the Image, whether it were the Image of Christ or no. I faid it was. The Neftorians and the Armenians doe neuer make the figure of Christ vpon their Croffes, No good con-50 Wherefore either they feeme not to thinke well of his Passion, or else they are ashamed of it. sequence. Then hee caused them that stood about vs, to stand aside, that hee might more fully behold our Ornaments. Afterward I delivered vnto him your Maiesties Letters, with the Translation thereof into the Arabicke and Syriacke Languages. For I caused them to bee translated at Acon, into the Character and Dialect of both the faid Tongues. And there were certayne Armenian Priefts, which had skill in the Turkib and Arabian Languages. The aforesaid Knight also of the Order of the Temple had knowledge in the Syriake, Turkish, and Arabian Tongues. Then wee departed forth , and put off our Vestments , and there came vnto vs certayne Scribes together with the forelaid Coiat, and caused our Letters to bee interpreted. Which Letters be-60 ing heard, hee caused our Bread, Wine and Fruits to bee received. And hee permitted vs also to carrie our Vestments and Bookes vnto our owne Lodging. This was done vpon the Feast of

S. Peter ad vincula.

Ch.1p.18. How they were giuen in

He next morning betimes came vnto vsa certayne Priest, who was brother vnto Coiat, I requelling to have our boxe of Chrisme, because Sarrach (as he faid) was detirous to see it: and fo we gaue it him. About Euentyde Coist fent for vs, faying : My Lord your King wrote good words vate my Lord and Matter Sartach. Howbeit there are certayne matters of difficultie in Fasher of Ser- them, concerning which he dare not determine ought, without the adulte and counfell of his Father. And therefore of accofficie you must depart vinto his Father, leaving behind you the two Carts, which you brought bither yefterday with Vestments and Bookes, in my custodie: because my Lord is defirous to take more dringent view thereof. I presently suspecting what mischiefe might enfue by his conetoufnesse, fail vnto him : Sir, we will not onely leave those with you, but the two other Caresalto, which we have in our posterion, will wee commit vince your 10 cuitodie. You shall not (quoth he) leave those behind you, but for the other two Carts first named, wee will farishe your request. I faid that this could not conueniently bee done : but needs we must leaue all with him. Then he asked, whether we meant to tarrie in the Land landwered : If you shroughly vaderstand the Letters of my Lord the King, you know that we are even so determined. Then he replyed, that we ought to bee patient and lowly : and so wee departed from him that Enening: On the morrow after he fent a Nefferian Priest for the Carts, and wee caufed all the foure Cares to be delinered. Then came the forelaid brother of Coine to meetvs, and separated all those things, which we had brought the day before vnto the Court, from the reft, namely, the Bookes and Vertments, and tooke them away with him. Howbeit Coist had commanded, that we should carrie those Vestments wish vs, which we wore in the presence of 20 Sartach, that we might put them on before Baatu, if need should require : but the faid Priest tooke them from vs by violence, faying : thou haft brought them vnto Sarrach, and wouldest thou carrie them vinto Baatus? And when I would have rendred a reason, hee answered : bee not too talkatine, but goe your wayes. Then I faw that there was no remedie but patience : for wee could have no accesse viso Sartach himfelfe, neither was there any other, that would doe ws Luftice. I was afraid alto in regard of the Interpreter, leaft he had spoken other things then I faid vnto han : for his will was good, that wee should have given away all that we had. There was yet one comfort remayning vnto mee : for when I once perceived their covetous intent, I conserved from among our Bookes the Bible, and the Sentences, and certayne other Bookes which I made foeciali account of. Howbeit, I durft not take away the Pfalter of my Souereigne 20 Ladie the Queene, because it.was too well knowne, by reason of the Golden Pictures therein. And so we returned with the two other Carts vnto our Lodging. Then came hee that was appointed to be our Guide vnto the Court of Baan, willing vs to take our Iourney in all postehalte: voto whom I faid, that I would in no case have the Carts to goe with me. Which thing he declared unto Coias. Then Coias commanded, that wee should leave them and our Servant with him. And we did as he commandeed. And so travelling directly East-ward towards Baathe third day we came to Etilia or Volga: the streames whereof when I beheld , I wondred from what Regions of the North fuch huge and mightie waters should descend, Before we were departed from Sartach, the forelaid Coist, with many other Scribes of the Court faid vnto vs: doe not make report that our Lord is a Christian, but a Mond. Because the name of a Christian 40 feemeth visto them to be the name of fome Nation. So great is their pride, that albeit they beleeue perhaps some things concerning Christ, yet will they not be called Christians, being defirous that their owne name, that is to lay, Moal should be exalted about all other names. Neither will they be called by the name of Tartars. For the Tartars were another Nation, as I was informed by them.

come as farre 25 Vag4.

The Tarters will be called Mont

Chap. 19. How Sartach, and Manga-Can, and Ken-Can doe reuerence vnto Christians. This Historie of Presbyter Ichn in the North-cast,is alleaged at dus Mercator in his generali

A T the fame time when the Frenchmon tooks Anioch, a certaine man named Con Can, had Dominion ouer the Northerne Regions, lying the teabouts. Con is a proper name: [Anis a name of authoritie or dignitie, which figmfieth a Diviner or Sooth-sayer. All Diviners are called Can among them. Whereupon their Princes are called Can, because that vnto them belongeth the gouernment of the people by Divination. We doe read also in the Hiltorie of Antiochia, that the Turkes fent for ayde against the Frenchmen, vnto the Kingdome of Con Can. For out of those parts the whole Nation of the Turkes first came. The said Con was of the Nation of Kara-Catay. Kara fignifieth blacke, and Catay is the name of a Countrey. So that Kara-Catay fignifieth the blacke Catay. This name was given to make a difference betweene the foresaid people, and the people of Catay inhabiting East-ward over against the Ocean Sea : concerning whom your Manettie shall understand more hereafter. These Catayans dwelt upon certayne Alpes, by the which I trauelled. And in a certaine plaine Countrey within those Alpes, there inhabited a Nostorian shepheard, being a mightie Gouernour ouer the people called Tay-From whence. man, which were Christians, following the Sect of Neftorius. After the death of Con Can, 60 the Turkes first the faid Nafforsan exalted himselfe to the Kingdome, and they called him King John, reporting ten times more of him then was true. For io the Nestorians which come out of those parts, AnOcean Sea. vie to doe. For they blaze abroad great rumours, and reports vpon inft nothing. Whereupon they gave out concerning Sartach, that he was become a Christian, and the like also they reported concerning Manga Can, and Ken Can mamely, because these Tartars make more account of Christians, then they doe of other people, and yet in very deed, themselves are no Christians. So likewife there went forth a great report concerning the faid King Iohn. Howbeit, when I trauelled along by his Territories, there was no man that knew any thing of him, but onely a few Nestorians. In his Pastures or Territories dwelleth Ken Can, at whose Court Frier The place of Andrew was. And I my felfe passed by it at my returne. This John had a Brother, being a Ken Kan his mightieman alfo, and a Shepheard like himfelfe, called Unt, and he inhabited beyond the aboad. mightieman allo, and a Snepheard rice nimited, cancer on, and the innabited of your con, or Alpes of Gara Caray, being diffant from his Brother lobn, the space of three weekes iourney. Vac Can. He was Lord oner a certaine Village, called Cara Garnin, having people also for his Subjects, The Village of

To named Crit, or Merkit, who were Christians of the Sect of Nestorius. But their Lord abando- cara carina. ning the worship of Christ, following after Idols, recaining with him Priests of the faid Idols, On & Merkit. who all of them are Worshippers of Deuils and Sorcerers. Beyond his Pastures, some tenne or fifteene dayes journey, were the Pattures of Moal, who were a poore and beggerly Nation; Moel in old without Gouernor, and without Law, except their Sooth-fayings, and their Daunations, vnto times beagerthe which deteftable fludies , all in those parts doe apply their minds. Neere vaco Moal were ly people. other poore people, called Tartars. The forelaid King John dyed without Iffue Male, and thereupon his Brother Une was greatly inriched; and caused himselfe to be named fan: and his Drones and Flockes raunged even vnto the Borders of Moal. About the fame time there was one Congis, a Blacke. Smith, among the people of Moal. This Congis stole as many Cattell from Congis 20 Vut Can, as he could poffibly get : infomuch, that the Shepheards of Vut complained vnto their Lord. Then provided he an Armie, and marched up into the Countrey of Moal, to feeke for the faid Cyngis. But Cyngis fled among the Tarears, and hid himselfie among it them. And Wast having taken some spoiles both from Moul, and also from the Tarters, returned home. Then Spake Crogis vnto the Tarters, and vnto the people of Maal, faying : Sirs, because we are diffitute of a Gouernor and Captaine, you fee how our Neighbours doe oppresse vs. And the Tartars and Mosts appointed him to be their Chieftaine. Then having fectetly gathered together an Armie, bee brake in fuddenly vpon Um, and ottercame him, and Om fled into Catago. At the fame time was the Daughter of Vas taken, which Gingis married vnto one of his Sonnes, by whom the conceined, and brought forth the great Can, which now reigneth, called Mangu-Can. Mangu-Can. 30 Then Cyngis fent the Tartars before him in all places where he came: and thereupon was their name published and spread abroad : for in all places the people would cry out : Lat, the Tartars come, the Tartars come. Howbeit, through continuall warres, they are now, all of them in a manner, confumed and brought to nought. Whereupon the Most indeuour what they canto extinguish the name of the Tartars, that they may exalt their owne name. The Countrey wherein they first inhabited, and where the Court of Cyngis Comas yet remaineth, is called Mancherule. But because Tartaria is the Region, about which they have obtained their Con- Mancherule. quefts, they efteeme that as their royall and chiefe Citie, and there for the most part doe they elect their great Can.

Now, as concerning Sartach, whether hee believes in Christ or no, I know not. This I Chap. 20. deride and skoffe at Christians. He lyeth in the way of the Christians, as namely, of the Rufa fians, Hungari fians, the Valachians, the Bulgarians of Bulgaria the lefte, the Soldainnes, the Kerkis, and the Ale- and, and Aleni nians : who all of them palle by him, as they are going to the Court of his Father Baatu , to Callian Sez, carrie gifts : whereupon he is more in league with them. Howbeit, if the Saracens come, and bring greater gifts then they, they are dispatched fooner. He bath about him certaine Notice rian Priefts, who pray vpon their Beades, and fing their denotions. Also, there is another vitder Baatu, called Berta, who feedeth his Cattell toward Porta Ferrea, or Derbent, where lysth Os, Berta the pallage of all those Saracens which come out of Perfia, and out of Turke to goe vnto Bas ... in 50 tu, and passing by, they give rewards vnto him. And he professeth himselfe to be a Saracen, and will not permit Swines field to be eater in his Dominions. Howbeit, at the time of our returne, Basis commanded him to remooue himselfe from that place, and to inhabite vpon the East side of Volga: for he was vinwilling that the Saracens Messengers should passe by the faid Berta, because he faw it was not for his profit. For the space of foure daies while wee remained in the Court of Sartach, wee had not any victuals at all allowed vs., but once onely a little Cosmos. And in our sourney betweene him and his Father, wee translled in great fearer For certaine Russians, Hungarians, and Alanians, being Servants vnto the Tartars, (of whom they have great multitudes among them ) affemble themfelues twentie or thirtie in a company, and to fecretly in the night conveying themselves from home, they take Bowes and Ar-60 rowes with them, and whomforeer they finde in the night featin, they put him to death, hiding themselves in the day time. And having tyred their Horses, they goe in the night vato a company of other Horses feeding in some Pasture, and change them for new, taking with them also one or two Horses beikles, to eate them when they stand in neede. Our guide therefore was fore atraid, leaft we should have met with such companions.

In this Journey we had dyed for Famine, had wee not carryed fome of our Bisket with vs. At length we came vnto the mightie River of E-ha, or Volga. For it is four times greater, then the River of Sein, and of a wonderfull depth : and istuing forth of Bulgaria the greater, it runneth into a certayne Lake or Sea, which of late they call the Hircan Sea, according to the name of a certaine Citie in Persia, standing upon the shoare thereof. Howbeit Isidare calleth it the Cafian Sea. For it hath the Cafpion Mountaynes and the Land of Perfia fituate on the South-fide shereof : and the Mountaynes of Musiber, that is to say, of the people called Assalting towards the East, which Mountaynes are conjoyned vnto the Caspian Mountaynes: But on the North-fide thereof lyech the fame Defart, wherein the Tartari doe now inhabit. Howbeit heretofore there dwelt certayne people called Changla. And on that fide it receiueth the ffreames 10 of Etilia, which River increaleth in Summer time, like vnto the River Nilss in Egypt. Vpon the West part thereof, it hath the Mountaynes of Alani, and Lefti, and Porta ferrea, or Derbent, and the Mountaynes of Georgia. This Sea therefore is compafled in on three fides with the Mountaynes, but on the North-fide with plaine ground. Frier Andrew in his Journey travelled round about two fides thereof, namely, the South and the East-fides ; and I my felfe about other two, that is to fay, the North-fide in going from Baatu to Mangu-Can, and in returning likewife and the West-side in comming home from Bastu into Syria. A man may travell round about it in foure moneths. And it is not true which Isdore reporteth, namely, that this Sea is a Bay or Gulfe comming forth of the Ocean: for it doth, in no part thereof, ioyne with the Ocean, but is emironed on all fides with Land.

Chap. 21. of Baats : and how we were enterrayned by The North Ocean, Aftracas.

The descripti-

A Lebe Region extending from the West shoare of the foresaid Sea, where Alexanders
Iron gate, otherwise called the Citie of Derbent, is situate, and from the Mountaynes of Alania, all along by the Fennes of Mastis, whereinto the River of Tanais falleth, and to forth, to the North Ocean, was wont to be called Albania. Of which Countrey Isidore reporteth, that there bee Dogges of fuch an huge stature, and so fierce, that they are able in fight to match Birls, and tomaster Lions. Which is true, as I understand by divers, who told me, that there towards the North Ocean, they make their Dogges to draw in Carts like Oxen, by reason of their bignelle and strength. Moreover, vpon that part of Etilia where we arrived, there is a new Cottage built, wherein they have placed Tarters and Ruffians both together, to ferrie ouer, and transport McKengers going and comming, to and fro the Court of Basts. For Basts remayneth woon the farther fide towards the East. Neither ascendeth hee in Summer time more Northward then the foresaid place where we arrived, but was even then descending to the South. From Ianuary vntill August, both he and all other Tartair afcend by the banks of Rivers, towards cold He descended and Northerly Regions, and in August they begin to returne backe againe. Wee passed downe the Areame therefore in a Barke, from the forelaid Cottage vnto his Court. From the same place who the Villages of Bulgaria the greater, standing toward the North, it is fine dayes lourney.

I wonder what Deuill carried the Religion of Mahomet thither. For, from Derbent, which is vpon the extreme borders of Perfia, it is aboue thirtiedayes lourney to passe ouerthwart the Defart, and fo to ascend by the banke of Etilia, into the foresaid Countrey of Bulgaria. All 40 which way there is no Citie; but onely certayne Cottages neere vnto that place where Etilia falleth into the Sea. Those Bulgarians are most wicked Saracens, more earnestly professing the damnable Religion of Mabones, then any other Nation what socuer, Moreouer, when I first beheld the Court of Baau, I was aftonied at the fight chereof; for his Houles or Tents feemed as though they had beene some huge and mightie Citie, stretching out a great way in length, the people ranging vp and downe about it for the space of some three or source leagues. And even as the people of Ifrael knew every man, on which tide of the Tabernacle to pitch his Tent : even to every one of them knoweth right well, towards what fide of the Court hee ought to place his house Horda fignia one of them knowething in the Cart. Whereupon the Court is called in their Language Horda, firth the midth, when he takes it from off the Cart. Whereupon the Court is called in their Language Horda, which fignifieth, the midft : because the Gouernour or Chieftaine among them dwels alwayes 50 in the middeft of his people: except onely that directly towards the South no subject of interiour person placeth himselfe; because towards that Region the Court gates are set open ; but vnto the right hand, and the left hand they extend themselves as farre as they will, according to the conveniencie of places, to that they place not their houses directly opposite against the Court, At our arrivall wee were conducted vnto a Saracen, who provided not for vs any victuals at all. The day following, we were brought vnto the Court : and Baatu had caused a large Tent to bee erected, because his house or ordinary Tent could not contayne so many men and women as were affembled. Our Guide admonished vs not to speake, till Baatu had given vs commandement so to doe, and that then we should speake our minds briefly. Then Basis demanded whether your Maiellie had fent Ambasadors vnto him or no ! I answered, that your Maiestie had sent Messen 60 gers to Ken-Can: and that you would not have fent Mellengers vnto him, or Letters vnto Sartach, had not your Highnesse beene perswaded that they were become Christians : because you fent not vnto them for any feare, but onely for congratulation, and courtefies fake, in regard that you heard they were converted to Christianitie. Then led he vs vnto his Paullion : and we were charged not to touch the cords of the Tent, which they account in flead of the threshold of the houle. There we itood in our habit bare-footed, and bare-headed, and were a great and ftrange spectacle in their eyes. For indeed Frier Iohn de Plano Carpini , had beene there before my com- 16hn de Plane ming: howbeit, because he was the Popes Messenger, he changed his habit that hee might not Carp.ni. be contemned. Then wee were brought into the very midft of the Tent, neither required they of vs to doe any reuerence by bowing our knees, as they vie to doe of other Messengers. Wee stood therefore before him for the space wherein a man might have rehearled the Plalme, Milereremei Dem: and there was great filence kept of all men. Baain himselfe sate vpon a feat long and broad like vnto a Bed, gilt all ouer, with three staires to ascend thereunto, and one of his Io Ladies sate beside him. The men there assembled, sate downe scattering, some on the right hand of the faid Lady, and some on the left. Those places on the one side which the women filled not up (for there were only the Wives of Baata) were supplyed by the men. Also, at the very entrance of the Tent, flood abench furnished with Cosmos, and with flately great cups of Siluer and Gold, being richly fet with Precious Stones. Basin beheld vs earnestly, and wee him: and he feemed to me to refemble in personage, Monsieur Iohn de Beaumont, whose soule resteth in peace. And he had a fresh ruddie colour in his countenance. At length hee commanded vs to fpeake. Then our Guide gaue vs direction, that we should bow our knees and speake. Wherevpon I bowed one knee as vnto a man : then he fignified that I should kneele vpon both knees:

and I did fo, being loth to contend about fuch circumstances. And againe, hee commanded me to 20 speake. Then I thinking of Prayer vnto God, because I kneeled on both my knees, beganne to pray on this wife : Sir, we befeech the Lord, from whom all good things doe proceed, and who hath given you there earthly benefits, that it would pleafe him hereafter to make you partaker of his heauenly bleffings: because the former without these are but vame and improfitable. And Ladded further. Be it knowne vnto you of a certaintie, that you shall not obtayne the loves of Heauen, vnleffe you become a Christian : for God faith, Whofoener beleeueth and is baptized, fhalbe (aned : but be that beleeneth not, shalbe condemned. At this word he modefly smiled : but the other Models began to clap their hands, and to dende vs. And of my filly Interpreter, of whom especially I should have received comfort in time of need, was himselfe abashed and veterly dashe out of countenance. Then, after filence made, I said vnto him, I came vnto your Sonne, because we 30 heard that he was become a Christian : and I brought vnto him Letters on the behalfe of my Sourreigne Lord the King of France: and your Sonne lent me hither vnto you. The cause of my comming therefore is best knowne vnto your selfe. Then he caused me to rise vp. And he en- The Lenters of quired your Maiesties Name, and my name, and the name of mine Associate and Interpreter, the French and caused them all to be put downe in writing. He demanded likewise (because hee had beene King. informed, that you were departed out of your owne Countries with an Armie) against whom von waged warre ? I answered : against the Saracens, who had defiled the House of God at Ierulalem. He asked allo, whether your Highnesse had euer before that time fent any Messengers vnto him, or no ? To you Sir! (faid I) neuer. Then caused he vs to fit downe, and gaue vs of his Milke to drinke, which they account to be a great fauour, especially when any man is admitted 40 to drinke Colmos with him in his owne house. And as I fate looking downe voon the ground. he commanded me to lift vp my countenance, being defirous as yet to take more diligent view of vs, or else perhaps for a kind of Superstitious observation. For they, esteeme it a signe of ill lucke, or a prognottication of euill vnto them, when any man fits in their prefence, holding downe his head, as if he were fad : especially, when hee leanes his cheeke or chin voon his hand. Then we departed forth, and immediately after came our Guide vnto vs, and conducting vs vnto our Lodging, faid vnto mee : Your Mafter the King requesteth that you may remayne in this Land, which request Basis cannot fatisfie without the knowledge and confent of Mangu-Can. Wherefore you, and your Interpreter must of necessitie goe vnto Mangu-Can, Howbeit your affociate, and the other man shall returne vnto the Court of Sartach, staying there for you, till you 50 come backe. Then began the man of God mine Interpreter to lament, esteeming himselse but a dead man. Mine Affociate also protested, that they should sooner chop off his head, then withdraw him out of my company. Moreouer, I my felfe faid, that without mine Affociate I could not goe : and that we flood in need of two Semants at the least, to attend upon us, because, it one should chance to fall sick, we could not be without another. Then returning vnto the Court, he told these Sayings vnto Baatn. And Baatn commanded, saying : let the two Priess and the Interpreter goe together, but let the Clerke returne vnto Sartach. And comming againe vnto vs, hee told vseuen fo. And when I would have spoken for the Clerke to have had him with vs. he faid : No more words: for Basts hath refolued, that fo it shall bee, and therefore I dare not goe vnto the Court any more. Gofes the Clerke had remayning of the Almes money be-60 flowed vpon him, twentie fixe Tperperus, and no more; ten whereof he kept for himfelfe and for the Lad, and fixteene hee gave vnto the man of God for vs. And thus were we parted a funder with teares: he returning vnto the Court of Sartach, and our felues remayning still in the same place.

7 Pon Affumption Euen our Clerke arrived at the Court of Sarrach. And on the morrow at-

Ch.sp. 22. Or our journcy towards the Court of Mangu-Can.

18

They trauell the banke of Hungarians.

Or, Kangitte.

Chap. 23. Of the River of lagac : Or. Inc, and of diuers Regions or Nati-Ide, twelue daies journey from Volga. Pafcatir. The Hungarifrom the Bafcirdes.

Ualachians.

V ter, the Nestorian Priests were adorned with our Vestments in the presence of the faid Seriach. Then were our felues were conducted vnto another Hoft, who was appointed to prouide vs house-roome, victuals, and Hories. But because wee had not ought to bestow vpon him, hee did all things vntowardly for vs. Then wee rode on forward with Baats, defcending along by the bancke of Etiles, for the space of five weekes together: Somefuewcekes by times mine Affociate was fo extreamly hungry, that hee would tell mee in a manner weeping, that it fared with him as though hee had neuer eaten any thing in all his life before. There is a Faire or Market following the Court of Baatuat all times ; but it was so farre diflant from vs, that wee could not have recourse thereunto. For wee were constrained to Io walke on foote for want of Horses. At length certaine Hungarians ( who had sometime beene after a fort Clergie men ) found vs out : and one of them could as yet fing many Songs without booke, and was accounted of other Hungarians as a Prieft, and was fent for vnto the Funerals of his deceated Countrey-men. There was another of them also pretily well instructed in his Grammar: for he could understand the meaning of any thing that we spake, but could not an-(were vs. These Hungarians were a great comfort vnto vs. bringing vs Cosmos to drinke, vea. and sometimes fiesh for to eate also : who, when they requested to have some Bookes of vs., and I had not any to give them ( for indeed we had none but onely a Bible, and a Breuiary ) it grieued me exceedingly. And I faid vnto them : Bring me some Inke and Paper, and I will write for you fo long as we shall remaine here : and they did so. And I copied out for them Horas bea- 20 ta Virginis, and Officium defunctorum. Moreouer, vpon a certaine day, there was a Comanian that accompanied vs. faluting vs in Latine, and faying: Salvete Domini. Wondering thereat, and falleting him againe. I demanded of him, who had taught him that kind of falletation! He faid, that he was baptized in Hungaria by our Friers, and that of them he learned it. Hee faid moreover, that Baats had enquired many things of him concerning vs, and that he told him the effate of our Order. Afterward I faw Baats riding with his company, and all his Subjects that were housholders of Masters of families riding with him, and (in mine estimation) they were not fine hundred persons in all. At length about the end of Holy-rood, there came a certaine rich Moal vnto vs (whole Father was a Millenary, which is a great Office among them ) fay-Aiourney of ing, I am the man that must conduct you vnto Mangu-Can, and we have thither a journey of 30 four moneths four emoneths long to travell, and there is such extreame cold in those parts, that stones and trees doe even rive afunder in regard thereof. Therefore I would wish you throughly to adule your felues, whether you beable to indure it or no. Vnto whom I answered : I hope by Gods helpe, that we shall be able to brooke that which other men can indure. Then hee faid : if you cannot indure it, I will forfake you by the way. And I answered him: it were not inft dealing for you fo to do, for we go not thither vpon any bufineffe of our owne, but by reason that we are fent by our Lord. Wherefore, fithence we are committed vnto your charge, you ought in no wife to forfake vs. Then he faid; all shall be well. Afterward he caused vs to shew him all our garments : and whatfoeuer he deemed to bee leffe needfull for vs, he willed vs to leave it behind in the cullodie of our Hoft, On the morrow they brought vnto each of vs a furred Gowne, made all of Rams skinnes, with the Woollstill vpon them, and breeches of the same, and boots also or buskins according to their fashion, and shooes made of felt, and hoods also made of skins The fixteenth, after their manner. The fecond day after Holy-rood, we began to fet forward on our journey. of September, having three guides to direct vs : and we rode continually East-ward, till the feast of All-Saints. Throughout all that Region, and beyond also did the people of Changle inhabite, who were by Forty fix daies parentage discended from the Romans. Vpon the North fide of vs wee had Bulgaria the greater, and on the South, the foresaid Caspian Sea.

Having travelled twelve daies iourney from Etilia, we found a mightie River called Ingae:

Which River issuing out of the North, from the land of Pascatir, descended into the fore-50 faid Sea. The language of Pascatir, and of the Hungarians is all one, and they are all of them Shepheards, not having any Citres. And their Countrey bordereth vpon Bulgaria the greater. on the West frontier. From the North-East part of the said Countrey, there is no Citie at all. Out of the faid fore-named Region of Pascatir, proceeded the Hunnes of old time, who afterward were called Hungarians. Next vinto it is Bulgaria the greater. Isidore reporteth, concerning the people of this Nation, that with swift Horses they transfed the impregnable walls and bounds of Alex ander, (which, together with the Rockes of Caucasus, served to restraine those barbarous and blood-thirstie people from inuading the Regions of the South ) insomuch that they had tribute paid vnto them, as farre as Egypt. Likewise they wasted all Countries even vnto France. Whereupon they were more mightie then the Tartars as yet are, And vnto 60 them the Blacians, the Bulgarians, and the Vandals inyned themselves. For out of Bulgaria the greater, came those Bulgarians. Moreover, they which inhabite beyond Dambius, neere vnto Conftantinople, and not farre from Palcatir, are called Ilac, which (fauing the pronunciation ) is all one with Blac, (for the Tartars cannot pronounce the Letter B) from whom also discended

the people which inhabite the Land of Affani. For they are both of them called Ilac, (both thele and the other ) in the languages of the Ruffians, the Polonians, and the Bohemans. The Sclauonians speake all one language with the Vandals, all which banded themselves with the Humnes : and now for the most part, they write themselves vnto the Tartars : whom God hath raised up fro the wemost parts of the earth, according to that which the Lord faith: I will prouble Deut, 32.4.21. them to owny (namely such as keepe not his Law ) by a people, which is no people, and by a foolsh Na_ Ram. 10.7.19. tion will I anger them. This prophecy is fulfilled, according to the literall fenfe thereof, vpon all Nations which observe not the Law of God. All this which I have written concerning the Land of Pafeair, was told me by certaine Friers Pradicants, which travelled thither before e-10 uer the Tartars came abroad. And from that time they were subdued vnto tileir neighbours the Bulgarians being Saracens, whereupon many of them proued Saracens also. Other matters concerning this people, may be knowne our of Chronicles. For it is manifest, that those Prouinces beyond Confiantinople, which are now called Bulgaria, Valachia, and Scianonia, were of old time Provinces belonging to the Greekes. Alfo Hungaria was heretofore called Parmonia. And wee cambean huge were riding ouer the Land of Congle, from the feast of Holy-rood, vatill the feast of All-Saints: plaine Coun travelling almost sucry day (according to mine estimation) as farre, as from Paris to Orleans, trey.

and foretimes farther, ar we were provided of Poil-horfes; for folie dates we had change of horfes twice or thrice maday. Sometimes we transfled two or three daies together, not finding any people, and then we were conftrained not to ride to fast. Of twentie or thirtie Horles we 20 had alwaies the worft, because we were Strangers: For enery one tooke their choice of the best Horfes before vs. They prouded me alwaies of a ffrong Horfe, because I was very corpulent and heavy ; but whether he ambled a gentle pale or no, I durit not make my question. Neither yet durit I complaine, although he trotted full fore. But every man must bee contented with his lot as it fell. Whereupon we were exceedingly troubled; for often times our Horles were tyred before we could come at any people. And then we were confirmined to beate and whip on our Horses, and to lay our Garments voon other emptie Horses : yea, and sometimes two of vs to ride upon one Horie.

but onely in the second . In the morning they vied to give vs a little drinke, or some fod. Of the hunger den Millet to sup off. In the evening they bestowed fiesh vpon vs, as namely, a shoulder and and thirst, and bresit of Reans Mucton, and every man a measured quantitie of broath to drinke. When wee other midries, had fufficient of the fieth-broath, we were maruellously well refreshed. And it seemed to mee flained in our most sheafant, and most nourithing drinke. Every Saturday I remained falting vntill night, journed. without eating or drinking of ought. And when might came, I was constrained, to my great griefe and forrow, to eate fieth. Sometimes we were tame to eate fieth halfe fodden, or almost raw, and all for want of Fewell to feethe it withall; especially, when we lay in the fields, or were benighted before we came at our journeys end : because we could not then conveniently gather together the dung of Horsesor Oxen: for other fewell we found but seldome, except 40 perhaps a few thornes in some places. Likewise vpon the banckes of some Riners, there are woods growing here and there. Howbeit they are very rare. In the beginning our guide highly disdained vs, and it was tedious vneo him to conduct such base fellowes. Afterward, when Cerraine Rihe began to know vs somewhat better, he directed vs on our way by the Courts of rich Moals, uers and we were requested to pray for them. Wherefore, had I carried a good Interpreter with me, I should have had opportunitie to have done much good. The forefaid Chingis, who was the first great Can or Emperour of the Tartars, had foure Sonnes, of whom proceeded by naturall difcent many children, every one of which doeth at this day enion great possessions : and they are daily multiplyed and dispersed ouer that hoge and vast Desart, which is in dimensions, like unto the Ocean Sea. Our guide therefore directed ve, as we were going on our journey, unto 50 many of their habitations. And they maruelled exceedingly, that wee would receive neither Gold nor Silver, nor precious and costly garments at their hands. They inquired also, concerning the great Pope, whether he was of fo lasting an age as they had heard? For there had gone a report among them, that hee was fine hundred yeares old. They inquired likewise of our Countries, whether there were abundance of Sheepe, Oxen, and Horses, or no? Concerning the Ocean Sea, they could not conceive of it, because it was without limits or bankes. Vpon Eight daies the Euen of the feath of All-Saints, wee for sooke the way leading towards the East, (because journy South-the people were now defcended very much South ) and wee went on our journey by certaine ward. Ales, or Mountaines directly South-ward, for the space of eight daies together. In the fore- footfaid Defart I faw many Affes (which they call Colan) being rather like vnto Mules: thefe did High Moun-60 our guide and his companions chafe very eagerly : howbeit, they did but lofe their labour, for taines. the beafts were two swift for them. Vpon the seuenth day there appeared to the South of vs Manured huge high Mountaynes, and we entred into a place which was well watered, and fresh as a Gar- grounds. den, and found Land tilled and manured. The eight day, after the feaft of All-Saints, wee arri- lage of the Saned at a certaine Towne of the Saracens, named Kenebat, the Gouernour whereof met our Guide ratens.

F honger and thirst, cold and wearinesse; there was no end. For they gaue vs no victuals, Chap. 24.

The feuenth day of No-

at the Townes end with Ale and Cups. For it is their manner at all Townes and Villages, fubiect vnto them, to meete the mellengers of Baatu and Mangu-Can with meate and drinke. At the same time of the yeere, they went upon the Ice in that Countrey. And before the feast of Saint Michael, we had froit in the Defart. I enquired the name of that Province : but being now in a strange Territorie, they could not tell mee the name thereof, but onely the name of a very small Citie in the same Prouince. And there descended a great River downe from the Moun-A great River, taynes, which watered the whole Region, according as the Inhabitants would give it passage, by making divers Chanels and Sluces : neither did this River exonerate it felfe into any Sea, but was swallowed up by an hideous Gulfe into the bowels of the earth, and it caused many Fennes

Many Lakes. Chap. 25.

and concer-

A Cottage.

The Moun-

citalas.

How Ban was put to death: ning the habitation of the Dutch men. taynes of Caneafus are extended vnto the The Citie of Talas, or Chin-Frier Andrew.

rics of Mangu-Certaine Alpes wherein the Cara Catayans inhabited. A mightie Ri-Ground tilled. Еднінь.

A Lake of fiftecne daies iourney in compaffe.

Contomanni.

or Lakes. Alfo I faw many Vines, and dranke of the Wine thereof. The day following, we came vnto another Cottage neere vnto the Mountaynes. And I enquired what Mountaynes they were, which I vnderftood to bee the Mountaines of Cancafin, which are stretched forth, and continued on both parts to the Sea, from the West vnto the East: and on the West part they are conjoyned vnto the foresaid Caspian Sea, where into the River of Volga dischargeth his streames. I enquired also of the Citie of Talas, wherein were certaine Duich men, seruants vnto one Buri, of whom Frier Andrew made mention. Concerning whom also I enquired very diligently in the Courts of Sartach and Basin. Howbeit I could haue no intelligence of them, but onely that their Lord and Mafter Bas was put to death vpon the occasion following: This Ban was not placed in good and fertile Pastures. And vpon a cer- 20 taine day being drunken, hee spake on this wife vnto his men. Am not I of the stocke and kindred of Chingis Can, as well as Baatu? (for in very deede he was brother or Nephew vnto Bagtu. ) Why then doe I not passe and repasse vpon the banke of Etilia, to feede my Cattell there. as freely as Baats himfelfe doth : Which speeches of his were reported vnto Baats. Whereupon Bassa wrote vnto his fernants to bring their Lord bound vnto him. And they did fo. Then Baats demanded of him whether he had spoken any such words : And he confessed that he had. Howbeit (because it is the Tarrars manner to pardon drunken men) he excused himselfe that he was drunken at the fame time. How durst thou (quoth Baats) once name mee in thy drunkennesse ! And with that hee caused his head to be chopt off. Concerning the foresaid Dutch men, I could not vnderstand ought, till I was come vnto the Court of Mangu-Can. And there I was 30 informed that Mangu-Can had removed them out of the intifdiction of Baatn, for the frace The Village of of a moneths iourney from Talas Eastward, vnto a certaine Village, called Bolac: where they are fet to dig gold, and to make armour. Whereupon I could neither goe nor come by them, I passed very neere the said Citie in going forth, as namely, within three daies iourney thereof : but I was ignorant that I did to : neither could I have turned out of my way, albeit I had knowne so much. From the foresaid Cottage we went directly Eastward, by the Mountaines aforesaid. And from that time we transalled among the people of Mangu-Can, who in all places fang and danced before our Guide, because he was the messenger of Baatu. For this curtesie they doe afford each to other : namely , the people of Mangu-Can receiving the messengers of Baatu in He entreth in manner aforesaid : and so likewise the people of Basis entertaining the messengers of Mangu- 40 to the Territo- Can. Notwithstanding, the people of Baatuare more surly and stout, and shew not so much curtefie vnto the subjects of Mangu-Can, as they doe vnto them. A few daies after we entered upon those Alpes where the Cara Catayans were wont to inhabit. And there we found a mightie Riner : infomuch that we were constrained to imbarke our selues, and to saile ouer it. Afterward we came into a certaine Valley, where I faw a Castle destroyed, the walls whereof were onely of mulde : and in that place the ground was tilled also. And there wee found a certaine Village, named Equius, wherein were Saracens, speaking the Persian language: howbeit they dwelt an huge distance from Persia. The day following , having passed over the foresaid Alpes, which descended from the great Mountaynes Southward, wee entred into a most beautifull Plaine, having high Mountaynes on our right hand, and on the left hand of vs a certaine Sea or 50 Lake, which containeth fitteene dates journey in circuit. All the foresaid Plaine is most commodiously watered with certaine Freshets, distilling from the said Mountaynes, all which doe fall into the Lake. In Summer time we returned by the North shoare of the faid Lake, and there were great Mountaines on that side also. Vpon the fore-named Plaine there were wont to bee great store of Villages : but for the most part they were all wasted, in regard of the fertile Paitures, that the Tartars might feede their Cattell there. We found one great Citie there, named Coilae, wherein was a Mart, and great store of Merchants frequenting it. In this Citie wee remained fifteene daies, staying for a certaine Scribe or Secretarie of Baats, who ought to have of Merchants. accompanied our Guide for the dispatching of certaine affaires in the Court of Mangu. All this Countrey was wont to bee called Organis: and the people thereof had their proper language, 60 and their peculiar kind of writing. But it was altogether inhabited of the people, called Contomanni. The Nestorians likewise in those parts vie the very same kind of language and writing, They are called Organa, because they were wont to bee most skilfull in playing vpon the Organs or Citherne, as it was reported vnto mee. Here first did I see worshippers of Idols , concerning whom, bee it knowne vnto your Maiestie, that there bee many sects of them in the East Countries.

He first fort of these Idolaters are called Ingures: whose Land bordereth vpon the foresaid Chap. 26. Landof Organum, within the faid Mountaines Eastward : and in all their Cities Nestorians How the Nestodoe inhabit together, and they are differred likewife rowards Perfe ; in the Cities of the Sara- riant, S ratent, cens. The Citizens of the forefaid Citic of Cailso had three Idol-temples; and I entred into and idoleses two of them, to behold their foolish superfittions. In the first of which, I found a man having a reisoned to where Croste painted with Inke vpon his hand, whereupon I supposed him to be a Christian; for he anfo (wered like a Christian ento all questions which I demanded of him. And I asked him, Why called layers therefore have you not the Crosse with the Image of lefu Christ thereupon ! And he answered, Idolusts, We have no fuch custome. Whereupon I coniectured that they were indeed Christians : bur, that for lacke of inflruction they omitted the forefaid ceremonic. For I faw there behind a certaine Cheft (which was vnto them in flead of an Altar, whereupon they fet Candles and Oblatione) an Image having wings, like vnto the Image of Saint Muhael, and other Images also, holding word with their fingers, as if they would bleffe some body. That evening I could not find any thing else. make and For the Saracens doe onely inuite men thither, but they will not have them speake of their Religion. And cherefore, when I enquired of the Saracens concerning fuch Ceremonies, they and the were offended thereat. On the morrow after were the Kalends, and the Saracens feast of Passes 20 uer. And changing mine Inne or lodging the fame day, I tooke vp mine aboade neere vinto another Idol Temple. For the Citizens of the faid Citie of Cailac doe curreoully inuite, and los singly entertaine all messengers, every man of them according to his abilitie and portion. And entruig into the foresaid Idol-temple, I found the Priests of the said Idols there. For alwaies at the Kalends they fet open their Temples, and the Priests adorne themselues, and offer up the peoples Oblations of Bread and Fruits. First therefore, I will describe vnto you those rices and ceremonies which are common vnto all their Idol-temples and then the superstitions of the forefaid Ingures, which be, as it were, a feot diftinguished from the reft. They doe all of them worthip towards the North, clapping their hands together, and proftrating themselves on their knees voon the earth, holding allo their foreheads in their hands. Whereupon the Nefferians of 30 those parts will in no case joyne their hands together in time of prayer : but they pray displaying their hands before their breafts. They extend their Temples in length Eaft and West; and you the North fide they build a Chamber, in manner of a Vestrie, for them selues to goe forth into. Or sometimes it is otherwise. If it be a foure square Temple, in the midft of the Temple towards the North fide thereof, they take in one Chamber in that place where the Quire should stand. And within the faid Chamber, they place a Chest long and broade like vnto a Table and behind the faid Cheft towards the South, it ands their principal Idoll : which I faw at Caratarum, and it was as big as the Idoll of Saint Christopher. Alfo a certaine Nestorium Priest, which Friet William had beene in Catay, laid that in that Countrey there is an Idoll of fo huge a bigneffe, that it may was at Catata be feenetwo daies journey before a man come at it. And fo they place other Idols round about ****. 40 the foresaid principall Idoll, being all of them finely gilt ouer with pure gold : and vpon the faid Cheft, which is in manner of a Table, they fee Candles and Oblations. The doores of their Temples are alwaies open , wards the South, contrary to the customes of the Saracens. They have also great Bels like vinto vs. And that is the cause (as I thinke) why the Christians of the East will in no case viegreat Bells. Notwithstanding, they are common among the Russians, and Greei-

A Li their Priefts had their heads and beards shauen quite ouer: and they are clad in Sasfron Chap. 27.
Coloured garments: and being once shauen, they leade an unmarried life from that time Of their Rem-A Scoloured garments; and being once toauen, they read any miniative into them together in one Cloifter or Couent, ples and Idols, forward; and they line an hundred or two hundred of them together in one Cloifter or Couent, and how they 50 Vpon those daies when they enter into their Temples, they place two long Formes therein: behaue themand fo fitting upon the faid Formes like Singing men in a Quire, namely, the one halfe of them felues in wordirectly ouer against the other, they have certaine bookes in their hands, which sometimes they shipping their lay downe by them upon the Formes : and their heads are bare follong as they remaine in the talk gods, Temple. And there they reade loftly vnto themselues, not vttering any voice at all. Whereupon comming in amongst them, at the time of their superstitious deuotions, and finding them all fitting mute, in manner aforesaid, Lattempted divers waies to prouoke them vnto speech, and yet could not by any meanes possible. They have with them also whithersoeuer they goe, a certaine ftring, with an hundred or two hundred Nut-fiels thereupon, much like to our bead-roll which wee carrie about with vs. And they doe alwaies vtter thele words: On mam Hall ani; 60 God thou knowest : as one of them expounded it voto me, And so often doe they expect a reward at Gods hands, as they pronounce these words in remembrance of God. Round about their Temple they doe alwaies make a faire Court, like vnto a Church-yard, which they enuiron with a good wall: and upon the South part thereof, they build a great Portall, wherein they fit and conferre together. And vpon the top of the faid Portall, they pitch a long Pole right vp, exal-

ans of Gafaria.

ting it, if they can, about all the whole Towns befides. And by the fame Pole all men may know that there stands the Temple of their Idols. These rites and ceremonies aforesaid, be common vnto all Idolaters in those parts. Going vpon a time towards the foresaid Idoll-temple, I found certaine Priests fitting in the outward Portall. And those which I saw, seemed vato mee, by their shauen beards, as if they had beene French men. They wore certaine ornaments upon their heads, made of Paper: The Priests of the foresaid Ingures doe vie such attire whithersoener they goe. They are alwaies in their Saffron coloured lackets, which bee very flraight, being laced or buttened from the bosome right downe, after the French fashion, and they have a Cloake your their left shoulder, descending before and behind under their right arme, like unto a Deacon carrying the houssel-box in time of Lent. Their letters or kind of writing the Tatters did receive: 10 So doe the . They begin to write at the top of their paper, drawing their lines right downe and so they people of this reade and multiply their lines from the left hand to the right. They doe vie certaine papers and navicto write, characters in their Magicall practices. Whereupon their Temples arefull of such short scrolls drawing their hanged round about them. Also Mangu-Can hath sent letters vnto your Maiestie, written in the ularly downe language of the Moals or Tartars, and in the forefaid hand or letter of the Ingures. They burne ward, and not their dead according to the ancient custome, and lay up the ashes in the top of a Pyramis. Now, as we doe, from after I had fate a while by the forelaid Priests, and entred into their Temple, and seene many of the right hand their Images, both great and small, I demanded of them what they believed concerning God? And they answered : Wee beleeve that the e is onely one God. And I demanded farther : Whether doe you beleeue that he is a Spirit, or some bodily subflance ? They faid : Wee beleeue that bee is a 20 Spirit. Then faid 1 : Doe you beleeve that God ever tooke mans nature vpon him : Then they answered; No. And againe I said : Sithence yee beleeue that hee is a Spirit, to what end doe you make fo many bodily Images to represent him : Sithence also you beleeve not that hee was made man : why doe you refemble him rather vnto the Image of a man then of any other creature! Then they answered, saying : we frame not those Images whereby to represent God. But when any rich man amongst vs, or his sonne, or his wife, or any of his friends deceaseth, he caufeth the Image of the dead partie to be made, and to be placed here : and we in remembrance of him doe reverence thereunto. Then I replyed . You doe thefe things onely for the friendfline and flatterie of men. No (faid they) but for their memorie. Then they demanded of mee, as it were in fcotting wife : Where is God? To whom I answered : Where is your foule ? they faid, In 30 our bodies. Then faid I, Is it not in every part of your bodie, ruling and guiding the whole bodie, and yet notwithstanding is not seene or perceived ! Even so God is every where, and ruleth all things, and yet is he inuitible, being understanding and wisedome it selfe. Then being desirous to fiane had some more conference with them, by reason that mine Interpreter was wearie. and notable to expresse my meaning, I was constrained to keepe silence. The Moals or Tartars are in this segard of their feet : namely, they believe that there is but one God : howbeit, they make Images of felt, in remembrance of their deceased friends, covering them with five most rich and costly garments, and putting them into one or two Carts, which Carts no man dare once touch and they are in the custodie of their Sooth fayers, who are their Priests, concerning whom, I will give your Highnesse more at large to understand hereafter. These Sooth-favers or 40 Diumers, doe alwaies attend vpon the Court of Mangu, and of other great personages. As for the poortr or meaner fort, they have them not, but fuch onely as are of the stocke and kindred of Chingis. And when they are to remoue or to take any journey, the faid Dininers goe before them , euen as the cloudie Pillar went before the Children of Ifrael. And they appoint ground where the Tents must be pitched, and first of all they take downe their owne houses: and after them the whole Court doth the like. Also vpon their festivall daies or Kalends, they take forth the foresaid Images, and place them in order, round or circle wife within the house. Then come the Moals or Tastars, and enter into the same house, bowing themselves before the said Images and worthin them. Moreouer, it is not lawfull for any stranger to enter into that house. For vpon a certaine time I my felfe would have gone in, but I was chidden full well for my labour. 50

Chap. 28. fundry Nations: and of certaine peoi ple which The Countrey of Presbyter Tangut-

To Vt the forefaid Ingures (who live among the Christians and Saracens) by their fundry diffor-Btations, as I suppose, have beene brought wnto this, to beleeue that there is but one onely God. And they dwelt in certaine Cities , which afterward were brought in subiection vnto Chingis Can : whereupon hee gaue his daughter in marriage vnto their King. Also the Citie of Garagarum it felfe, is in a manner within their Territorie, and the whole Country of King or Presbyter Iohn, and of his brother Vat, lyeth neere vato their Dominions : faung that they inhabit in certaine Pathures Northward, and the faid Ingures betweene the Mountaynes towards owne parents, the South, Whereupon it came to paffe, that the Moals received letters from them. And they are the Tastars principall Scribes; and all the Neftorians almost can skill of their Letters. Next 60 vnto them; betweene the foresaid Mountaynes Eastward, inhabiteth the Nation of Tanget, who are a most valiant people, and tooke Chingu in battell. But after the conclusion of a league, he was let at libertie by them, and afterward libblued them. Thele people of Tangut have Ox-StrangeOxen, en of great strength, with tailes like vnto Horses, and with long shag haire vpon their backs

CHAP, I. and belies. They have legs greater then other Oxen have, and they are exceeding fieres. There Oxen draw the great houses of the Moals: and their homes are slender, long, streight, and most sharpe pointed i infomuch that their owners are faine to cut off the ends of them. A Cow will not fuffer her selfe to be coupled vinto one of them, vinlesse they whalle or sing vinto her. They have allothe qualities of a Buffe : for if they fee a man cloathed in red, they runne vpon him immediately to killhim. Next vnto them are the people of Tebes, men which were wont to eate the carkailes of their deceated parents : that for pities take, they might make no other Sepulchre for them, then their owne bowels. Howbeit of late they have left off this cuffome, becaule that thereby they became abominable and odious vnto all other Nations. Notwithflan-Io ding, vnto this day they make fine Cups of the Skulls of their parents, to the end, that when they drinke out of them, they may amiditall their iollities and delights, call their dead parents to remembrance. This was told mee by one that faw it. The faid people of Teber have great Abundance of plentie of gold in their Land, Whofoeuer therefore wanteth gold, diggeth til he hath found fome Sold. quantitie, and then taking fo much thereof as will ferue his turne, hee layeth vp the refidue within the earth : because, it ise should put it into his Chest or Store-house, he is of opinion that Within the earth. I faw some of those people, The autre of being very deformed creatures. In Tanger Haw lufty tall men, but browne and fware in colour interpreted the prople of The lugures are of a middle stature, like vinto our French men. Among the lugures is the original Tappas, and of and roote of the Turkib, and Comanian Languages. Next vnto Tebet are the people of Langa the tugura. 20 and Solangs, whole mellengers I faw in the Tarters Court. And they had brought more then Languages and solving the sucry one of which was drawne with fix Oxen. They bee little The propie of browne men like vnto Spaniards. Alfo they have lackets, like vnto the vpper Verintent of a Scharger clem-

Deacon, faning that the fleenes are fomewhat streighter, And they have Miters vpon their heads ble Spagietts like Bishops. But the fore-part of their Miter is not to hollow within as the hinder part neither is it sharpe pointed or cornered at the top : but there hang downe certaine square staps compa-Sted of a kind of Straw, which is made rough and ragged with extreame heate, and is so trimmed, that it glittereth in the Sunne-beames, like vnto a Glasse, or an Helmet well burnished. And about their Temples they have long bands of the foresaid matter, fastened vnto their Miters, which houer in the winde, as if two long hornes grew out of their heads. And when the 30 wind toffed them vp and downe too much, they tie them ouer the middest of their Miter, from one Temple to another: and so they lie circle wife ouerthwart their heads. Moreouer, their principall meflenger comming vnto the Tartars Court, had a table of Elephants tooth about him, of a cubit in length, and a handfull in breadth, being very smoothe. And when sever he spake vnto A table of Elethe Emperor himselte, or vnto any other great personage, he alwaies beheld that table, as if hee phanes tooth, had found therein those things which hee spake : neither did hee cast his eyes to the right hand, nor to the lett, nor voon his face with whom he talked. Yea, going too and fro before his Lord, hee looketh no where but onely vpon his table. Beyond them (as I vnderstand of a certaintie) there are other people called Muc, having Villages, but no one particular man of them appro- The people priating any Cattell vnto himselfe. Notwithstanding, there are many slocks and droues of Cat-called Australia

40 tell in their Countrey, and no man appointed to keepe them. But when any one of the standeth in neede of any beart, hee ascendeth up vnto a hall, and there maketh a shoute, and all the Cattell which are within hearing of the noyle, come flocking about him, and fuffer themselues to be handled and taken, as if they were tame. And when any messenger or stranger commeth into their Countrey, they shut him vp into an house, ministring there things necessary vnto him, vntill his businesse be dispatched. For if any stranger should trauell through that Countrey, the Catttell would flie away at the very tent of him, and fo would become wilde. Beyond Mue is Great Cataga. great Cataga, the Inhabitants whereof (as I suppose) were of old time, called Seres. For from them are brought most excellent stuffes of silke. And this people is called Seres, of a certaine Towne in the fame Countrey. I was credibly informed, that in the faid Countrey, there is one

Towne having Walls of filter, and Bulwarkes or Towers of gold. There bee many Provinces * From hence in that Land, the greater part whereof are not as yet fubdued vinto the Tartars. And the " Sea is topplyed by lyeth betweene them and India. These Catagans are men of a little flature, speaking mu-h Mader Hacialyeth betweene them and India. These Catayans are men or a little frature, speaking much irindustric(as through the nose. And this is generall, that all they of the East haue small eyes. They are exhibit through the nose. cellent workemen in every Art : and their Physicians are well skilled in the Vertues of Herbs, of a Manuand judge exactly of the Pulle; But vie no Vrinals, nor know any thing concerning Vrine. Icrips in Beanet This I faw, for there are many of them at Caracarum. And they are alwaies wont to bring vp Colledge in This I faw, for there are many of them at Caracterism. And they are alwais work to bruch tri-all their children in the fame trade whereof the father is. And therefore they pay fo much tri-the other part bute; for they give the Moalisans every day one thousand and five hundred Ceilines or Iascots: hechadour (Ialcot is a piece of filuer weighing ten Markes) that is to fay, every day fifteene thousand of an inter-60 Markes, befide filkes and certaine victuals, which they receive from thence, and other feet Cope of Markes, befide filkes and certaine victuals, which they receive from changes, and certaine victuals, which they doe them. All these Nations are betweene the Mountaynes of Cancasius, here. The Chapterine which they doe them.

ters disagree, as being (I thinke) rather some Transcribers duisson then the Authors. Yet baue I followed the numbers I found, euen where they are obscureft. The Friers Latin for some barbarous words and phrases, hath beene troublesome to translite. The worke I hold a lewell of Ansiquitie, now first entirely publike.

Idolury.

on the North fide of those Mountaines to the East Sea, on the South part of Scythia, which the Shepheards of Moal doe inhabit : All which are tributarie vnto them, and all given to Idolatry, and report many fables of a multitude of gods, and certaine Deified men, and make a pedigree of the gods as our Poets doe.

Neftarians. Carbay.

this day.

Nestorians.

ruption of

All Priefts.

lities of the

The Neftorians are mingled among them as Strangers; fo are the Saracens as farre as Cathar, The Nestorians inhabit fifteene Cities of Cathay, and have a Bishopricke there, in a Citie called Segin. But further, they are meere Idolaters. The Priests of the Idols of the faid Nations, have Segni a Citic of all broad yellow hoods. There are also among them (as I vnderstood) certaine Hermits living in the Woods and Mountaines, of an auftere and strange life. The Nestorians there know nothing, They are fo at for they say their Seruice, and haue holy Bookes in the Syrian tongue, which they know not. To The cuil qua-So that they fing as our Monkes doe, who are ignorant of Grammar; and hence it commeth. that they are wholly corrupted. They are great Viurers and Drunkards, and some of them al-Hence by corso who line among the Tartars, have many Wines, as the Tartars have. When they enter into the Church, they wash their lower parts, as the Saracens doe. They eate flesh on Friday of manners and the weeke, and hold their Feafts that day, after the manner of the Saracens. The Bishop comes ignorance of feldome into those Countries, perchance, scarfe once in fiftie yeares. Then they cause all their faith, seemeth little Children (which are Males ) to be made Priests, euen in the Cradell; so that all their men the Apoftacy of the greateft almost are Priests : and after this they marrie Wiues, which is directly against the decrees of part of Affato the Fathers : they are also Bigami, for the Priefts themselves, their first Wife being dead, marrie have happe-the Patiets, they are all Simonifts, for they give no holy thing freely. They are very carefull for their Wines and Children, whereby they apply themselves to gaine, and not to the sprea- 20 by Tartarian dine of the Faith. Whence it commeth to paste, while some of them bring vp some of the Noinuations and SaracenicalL bilities chil iren of Moal (although they teach them the Gospell, and the Articles of the * Consider our Faith) yet by their euill life and couetousnesse, they drive them further from Christianitie; Author a Frier, Because the life of the Moallians, and Tuinians (who are Idolaters) is more harmelesse whose trauels then theirs.

we rather embrace, then (in such passages) his distinctie. They were later Fathers which made such Decrees, contrary to the Father of truth which ordained marriage in Lexies Priest-hood, and chose married men to the Apostleship: and forewarned of another Father. who with Doctrines of Deuils should prohibite meate and marriage, under colour of Priests chastitie, making the Temple stewes to carnall and spirituall whoredome, Chap. 26. Of fuch things Nouemb. 30.

WE departed from the forefaid Citie of Cailae on Saint Andrewes day. And there wee found almost within three leagues, a whole Castle or Village of Nestrians. Entring as befell them, into their Church, we fang, Salne Regina, &c. with ioy, as lond as we could, because it was long departing from fince we had feene a Church. Departing thence, in three daies we came to the entrance of that Country of the Province, in the head of the foresaid Sea, which seemed to vs as tempethous as the Ocean, and we saw a great Hand therein. My Companions drew neere the shoare, and wet a Linnen cloath therein, to taste the Water, which was somewhat falt, but might bee drunke. There went a certaine Valley ouer against it, from betweene the great Mountaines, betweene South and East: and betweene the hils, was another certaine great Sea; and there ranne a River through that 40 Valley, from the other Sea into this. Where came fuch a continuall winde through the Valley. that men passe with great danger, least the wind carrie them into the Sea. Therefore wee left the Valley and went towards the North, to the great hilly Countries, couered with deepe Snow, which then lay vpon the Earth : fo that vpon Saint Nicholas day we beganne now to haften our journy much, and (because we found no people, but the land themselves (to wit) men appointed from daies journey to daies journey together, the Messengers together. Because in many places in the hilly Countries) the way is narrow, and there are but few fields, so that betweene day and night we met with two lani, whereupon of two daies journeys we made one. Extreme cold, and travelled more by night then by day. It was extreame cold there, so that they lent vs their Goats skins, turning the haire outward.

Decemb.6.

Decemb. 7.

A dangerous

The second Sunday of Aduent in the evening, we passed by a certaine place betweene very terrible Rockes : and our Guide sent vnto me, intreating me to speake some good words, wherewith the Deuils might be driven away; because in that passage, the Deuils themselves were wont fuddenly to carrie men away, so that it was not knowne what became of them. Sometimes they violently fnatched a Horse and left the man : sometimes they drew out a mans bowels, and left the emptie carkaffe vpon the Horse. And many such things did often fall out there. Then we lang with a loud voyce, (redo in Denn, &c. And by the Grace of God, wee passed through (with all our company) vnhurt. After that, they beganne to intreat me, that I would write them Papers to carrie on their heads : and I told them, I would teach them a word which they should carrie in their hearts, whereby their soules and bodies should be saued ener- 60 laitingly. But alwaies when I would teach them, I wanted an Interpreter : Yet I wrote them the Creede and the Lords Prayer; faying, Heere it is written whatloeuer a man ought to beleeue concerning God. Here also is that prayer, wherein we begge of God what soeuer is needfull for a man. Whereupon beleeue firmely that which is written here, although you cannot understand it, and aske of God that he do that for you which is contained in this written Prayer : because with his owne mouth he taught it his friends, and I hope he will saue you. I could not doe any thing elfe, because it was very dangerous to speake the words of doctrine by such an Interpreter, nay almost impossible, because he was ignorant.

A Free this, wee entred into that plaine where the Court of Ken-Cham was, which was Chap. 27.

Wont to be the Countrey of the Naymans, who were the peculiar Subjects of Preferer Of the Country. Ishn: but at that time I faw not that Court , but in my returne. Yet heere I declare vnto you try of the Nagwhat befell his Ancestry, his Soone and Wives. Ken-Chambeing dead, Baatu defired that Man-befell the stock IO go should be Chan. But I could understand in certaintie of the death of Ken. Frier Andrew of Ken-chan his faid, that he dyed by a certaine medicine given him : and it was suspected that Bantu caused it some & wives. tobe made. Yet I heard otherwise, for he summoned Baats, to come and doe him homage. And B. ats. Basts tooke his journey speedily with great preparation; but he and his Seruants were much afraid, and fent one of his Brothers before, called Stiebin : who when he came to Ken, and should Stiebin and Ken waite upon his Cup, contention arifing betweene them, they flue one another. The Widow kill one anoof Suchin kept vs a whole day, to goe into her house and bleffe her, that is, pray for her. There-ther. fore Ken being dead, Mangu was chosen by the consent of Baatu. And was then chosen when Frier Andrew was there. Ken had a certaine Brother, called Siremon, who by the counfell of Kens Wife and her Vailals, went with great preparation towards Mangu, as if he meant to doe 20 him homage, and yet in truth he purposed to kill him, and destroy his whole Court. And when he was neere Mangu, within one or two daies journey, one of his Wagons remained broken in the way. While the Wagoner laboured to mend it, in the meane space came one of the Seruants of Mange, who helped him : he was so inquisitine of their journey, that the Wagoner reuealed vnto him what Siremon purposed to doe. Then turning out of the way, as if hee little regarding it, went vnto the herd of Horses, and tooke the best Horse hee could choose, and pofting night and day, came speedily to the Court of Manga, reporting vnto him what he had heard. Then Mangu quickly affembling all his subjects, caused foure rings of Armed men to him, ( not suspecting his purpose had beene discourred ) and brought him to the Court with 30 all his followers. Who when Mangu lay the matter to his charge, strait-way confessed it. Then he and his eldeft Sonne Ken Chan were flaine, and three hundred of the Nobilitie of the Tarters with them. The Noble Women also were fent for, who were all beaten with burning fire-brands to make them confesse: and having confessed, were put to death. His youngest sonne Ken, who could not be capable or guiltie of the conspiracy, was left aliue : And his Fathers Palace was left vnto him, with all belonging vnto it, as well Men as Chattels: and we paffed by it in our returne. Nor durft my Guides turne in vnto it, neither going nor comming. For the Lady of the Nations fate there in heauinesse, and there was none to comfort her.

compasse his Court, that none might goe in or out : the rest he sent against Siremon, who tooke

Hen went wee vp agains into the high Countries, going alwaies towards the North. At Chap. 28. 40 I length on Saint Stephens day we entred into a great Plaine like the Sea, where there was not Of their comfo much as a Mole-hill. And the next day, on the feast of S. John the Euangelist, we came vito ming to the the Palace of that great Lord. But when we were neere it, within fine daies journey, our Hoft Courses Manwhere we lay, would have directed vs a way farre about, fo that wee should yet travaile more 2" chan. then fifteene daies. And this was the reason (as I vinderstood) that wee might goe by Okah Kerule Onam Kerule their proper Countrey, where the Court of Chingis-Chan is. Others faid, that he the proper did it for this purpose, that he might make the way longer, and might shew his power the more. Country of For so they are wont to deale with men comming from Countries not subject to them. And our the Tarion. Guide obtained with great difficultie, that we might go the right way. For they held vs vpon this from the morning till three of the clocke. In that way also, the Secretarie (whom we expe-

50 cted at Cailar) told me, that it was contained in the Letters which Bautn fent to Mangu-Chan, that wee required an Army and ayde of Sarrach against the Saracens. Then I began to wonder much, and to be greatly troubled: for I knew the Tenor of the Letters, and that no mention therof was made therein : faue that yee aduited him to be a friend to all Christians, and should exalt the Crosse, and be an enemy to all the enemies of the Crosse and because also the Interpreters were Armenians, of the greater Armenia, who greatly hated the Saracens; left perhaps they had interpreted any thing in eaill part to make the Saracens more odious and hatefull at their pleafure, I therefore held my peace, not speaking a word with them, or against them; for I feared to gainfay the words of Bastu, least I should incurre some false accusation without reasonable cause. We came therefore the foreland day vnto the faid Court. Our Guide had a great house appointed

60 him, and we three a little Cottage, wherein wee could scarfe lay our stuffe, make our beds, and haue a little fire. Many came to visit our Guide, and brought him drinke made of Rice, in long strait mouthed bottles, in the which I could difference no difference from the best Antifiedorensis an Wine, faue that it had not the fent of Wine. We were called, and straightly examined upon what businesse we came. I answered, that we heard of Sartach that he was a Christian : we came therefore vnto him; the French King fent him a Packet by vs, he fent vs to Baate his Father: & his Father hath fent vs hither, hee should have written the cause, wherevpon they demanded whether we would make peace with them? I answered, he hath sent Letters vnto Sartach as a Christian : and if he had knowne, he were not a Christian, hee would neuer haue fent him Letters, to treate of peace: I say, he hath done you no wrong : if he had done any, why should you warte vpon him, or his people! he, willingly (as a suft man) would reforme himselfe, and defire peace. If yee without cause will make warre with him, or his Nation, we hope that God (who is iu(t) will helpe them. And they wondred, alwayes repeating, why came yee, seeing yee came not to make peace. For they are now so puffed vp with pride, that they thinke the whole World should delire to make peace with them. And truly, if I might bee suffered, I would preach to Warre against them to the vttermost of my power) throughout the whole World. But I would not plainly deliuer the cause of my comming, lest I should speake any thing against that which Bastu commanded. I told them therefore the whole cause of my comming thither, was

Decemb, 28.

The day following we were brought vnto the Court, and I thought I could goe bare-foot, as I did in our Countrey : whereupon, I layd afide my shooes. But such as come to the Court, alight farre from the house where the Great Chan is, as it were a Bow-shot off: where the Horses abide, and a Boy to keepe them. Whereupon, when wee alighted there, and our Guide went with vs to the house of the Great Chan, a Hungarian Boy was present there, who knew vs (to wit) our Order. And when the men came about vs, and beheld vs as Monsters, especially be- 20 caule we were bare-footed, and demanded whether we did not lacke our feet, because they supposed we should strait-way have lost them, that Hungarian told them the reason, shewing them the condition of our Order. Then the chiefe Secretary (who was a Neftorian and a Christian, by whose counsell and aduice almost all is done) came vnto vs, to see vs , and looked earneftly vpon vs. and called the Hungarian vnto him, of whom he demanded many Questions. Then we were willed to returne vnto our Lodging.

Chap. 29. Of a Christian chappell, and and continuance of the Winter. An Armenian

Their conference with the Armenian Monke.

Monkish Re-(ue)lation.

Nd when we returned, at the end of the Court towards the East, farre from the Court, as A much as a Croffe-bow could shoot at twice, I saw a house, vpon the which there was a little Croffe, then I reloyced much, supposing there was some Christianitie there. I went in boldly ot the conte-rence with 50- and found an Altar very well furnished, for there in a Golden cloth were the Images of Christ gias the coun- and the bleffed Virgin, and Saint Iohn Baptiff, and two Angels, the lineaments of their bodies and terfeit Armeni- garments diltinguished with Pearle, and a great filter Croffe having precious stones in the corners, and the middle thereof, and many other Embroyderings and a Candle burning with Oyle before the Altar, hauing eight Lights. And there fare an Armenian Monke, forme-what blacke and leane, clad with a rough hairen Coate to the middle legge, having vpon it a blacke Cloke of briftles, furred with spotted Skinnes, girt with Iron under his haire-cloth. Presently after wee entred in, before we faluted the Monke, falling flat vpon the ground, we fang, Aue Regina Calorum, co. and he rising, prayed with vs. Then faluting him, we fate by him having a little fire before him in a Pan. Therefore we told him the caute of our comming. And he began to comfort 40 vs much, faying, that we should boldly speake, because we were the Messengers of God, who is greater then all men. Afterwards he told vs of his comming, faying, he came thither a moneth before vs, and that he was a Heremite of the Territorie of Hiernfalem, and that the Lord appeared to him three times, commanding him to goe to the Prince of the Tartars : And when he deferred to goe, the third time God threatned him, and ouerthrew him vpon the ground, faying, he should dye, vnleffe he went; and that he told Mangu Chan, that if he would become a Chriftian, the whole World should be obedient vnto him; and the French and the Great Pope should obay him : and he aduised me to say the like vnto him. Then I answered, brother, I will willingly perswade him to become a Christian: (For I came for this purpose, to preach thus vnto all) I will promife him alfo, that the French, and the Pope will much rejoyce thereat, and account 50 him for a brother and a friend : but I will never promife, that they shall become his Servants, and pay him Tribute, as these other Nations; because in so doing I should speake against my conscience, then he held his peace. We went therefore together to our Lodging, which I found a cold Harbour ; and we had eaten nothing that day, fo we boyled a little fielh and Millet in the broth of flesh to sup. Our Guide and his companions were drunken at the Court: and little care was had of vs. At that time the Meffengers of Vafiace were there hard by vs, which weeknew not: And the men of the Court made vs rife in great hafte, at the dawning of the day. And I went bare-foot with them a little way, vnto the house of the faid Messengers. And they demanded of them, whether they knew vs. Then that Grecian Souldier calling our Order and my companion to remembrance, because he had feene him in the Court of Vastace, with Frier Thomas, our Mi- 60 S. Francis Dr. nitter, and all his fellowes, gaue great teltimony of vs. Then they demanded whether wee had peace or war with Vaftace? we have (faid I) nor war nor peace. And they demanded, how that might be. Because ((aid I) their Countries are far removed one from the others, and meddle net together. Then the Messenger of Vastace said wee had peace, giving mee a causar : so I held my tongue. That morning, my toes ends werefrozen, to that I could no longer goe bare-foot : for

der not Catholike; Uni. uerfally fit ing

CH AP. I. Tuinians Idolsters, Respect of Priests, Description of Mangu Chan. 27

in those Countreyes the cold is extreame sharpe: and from the time when it beginneth to freeze it neuer ceaseth vntill May: nay, in the moneth of May it freezed eurry morning; Front vntill the but in the day time it thawed through the heate of the Sunne : but in the Winter it monethof neuer thawes, but the Ice continues with enery winde. And if there were any winde May. there in the Winter, as it is with vs, nothing could live there, but it is alwaies milde weather vntill Aprill, and then the winds arife, and at that time when wee were there (about Eafter) the cold arifing with the winde killed infinite creatures. In the Winter little fnow Eafter in the fell there; but about Eafter, which was in the latter end of Aprill , there fell fo great a linow; end of the end that all the streets of Caracarum were full; that they were fayne to carrie it out with their of Aprill, And that all the streets of Laracarum were sun; such that all the streets of the same, great Snew in Carts. Then they first brought vs (from the Court) Ramskin Coats, and Breeches of the same, the end of and Shooes, which my Companion and Interpreter received. But I thought I had no need of Aprill. them, because I supposed my Pelt-garment (which I brought from Basin) was sufficient for me.

Then the fift of Januarie we were brought vnto the Court : and there came Neftorian Priefts voto me, (I not knowing they were Christians) demanding which way we worthipped ? I faid, ento the East. And this they demanded because wee had shauen our beards by the aduice Shauing. of our Guide, that wee might appears before Chan according to the falhion of our Countrey : whereupon, they thought wee had beene Tuinians (to wit) Idolaters. They made vsalio expound out of the Bible. Then they demanded what reuerence wee would doe to Chan, whether after our owne fashion, or theirs! To whom I made answere. Wer age Priests, given to the Respect of 20 ferrice of God; Noblemen in our Countrey will not fuffer Priefts to bow their knees before Priefts them, for the honour of God; neuerthelesse, wee will humble our selues to all men, for the Lords take. Wee came from a farre Countrey, If yee pleafe, wee will first fing prayles vnto God, who hath brought vs safe hither from afarre; and after, wee will doe what seuer pleaseth the Lord; with this exception, that he command vs nothing which may bee against the worthip and honour of God. Then they entring into the house, deliuered what wee had faid. So their Lord was contented. And they fet vs before the gate of the house , lifting vp the Felt which hung before the gate. And because it was Christmas wee began to fing, From the first Easterne Land,

A Solis ortus cardine, To furtheft Westerne Strand, Et v que Terra limitem, Let vs Christ land and sing Christum canamus Principem, Bleit Virgins Sonne, our King. Nd when wee had tung this Hymne, they fearched our legs, and our botoms, and our armes, Chap. 20 Natum Maria Virgine. Awhether wee had Knines about vs. They made our Interpreter vngird himfelfe, and leaue Of the Admit-his Girdle and his Knife, without in the custodie of a Doore-keeper. Then we came in. And in the entrance there stood a Bench with Cosmos, by the which they ge Char, and his make our Interpreter stand; and caused vs to sit vpon a Forme before the Ladies. The whole description, house within was hanged with Cloth of Gold : and on a certaine Hearth in the middle of the and their con-house, there was a fire made of thornes and Wormewood roots (which grow there very bigge) ference with nouse, there was a nre made of thomes and with a spotted skin or Furre, bright, and this thim.

The description 40 ning like a Seales skin. Hee was a flat-noted man, of a middle flature, about the age of flue and tion of Mangu fortie yeeres: and a little pretie young woman (which was his wife) fate by him, and one of chan. his daughters, Crima by name, (a hard-fauoured woman) marriageable, with other little ones, fate next vnto them vpon a Bed. For that was the house of a certaine Christian Ladie, whom he dearely loued, by whom he had the forefaid daughter : and hee married that young wife befide : but yet the daughter was Mistresse of all that Court, which was her Mothers. Then he made them aske vs, what we would drinke, whether Wine, or Ceracina, that is, drinke made of Rice, or Caracolus, that is, cleere Cowes milke, or Ball, that is, Mede made of Honey : for they vie these foure kinds of Drinkes in the Winter. Then I answered, Sir, wee are not men who take pleasure in drinke. What pleaseth you shall contene vs. Then he commanded drinke Drinke of Rice of Rice to be given vs, cleere and lauoury, as white Wine: whereof I tafted a little for reue- ischere and of Rice to be guen vs, cleere and faudury, as write value. The Burlers: who gave him faudury, and rence of him. And our Interpreter (to our misfortune) stood by the Burlers: who gave him like to white much drinke, and hee was quickly drunke. Then Chan caused Falcons, and other birds to bee Wine. The brought vnto him, which he tooke vpon his fift, and lookes vpon them; and after a long time Indians call it he commanded vs to speake. Then we were to bow the knees. And hee had his Interpreter, a Racke. certaine Nestorian, whom I knew not to bee a Christian ; and wee had our Interpreter, such an one as he was, who now also was drunke. Then I faid, Wee first gine thankes and praise to God, The Oration who hath brought us from so remoued parts of the World, to see Mangu Chan to whom God hath gi- of Frier Willi. who hath brought us from jo removed parts of the restudy to fee whath the chain to be used and die, that he chain. would grant him a long and a prosperous life. (For this they defire, that men pray for their lines.) Then I told him: Sir, Wee base beard of Sartach that he was a Christian; and the Christians who The like Let-Then I told him: Sir, Wee have heard of Sartach tout he was a Complian; but him, and our Lord and tersyou have to heard it, but hectally the French King, reioyced: wherefore wee came unto him, and our Lord and tersyou have

King hath fent him Letters by vs wherein were words of peace: and amongst other things, hee testifieth before 1.8.47. of us, who fe feruants wee are, and intreated him to suffer us to abide in his Countrey. For it is our for another office to teach men to line according to the Law of God. And hee fent us to Baatu his father: and Priar, earth; We therefore intreat your Highnesse, to give us leave to continue in your Countrey to doe the seruice of God for you, your Wines and Children. Wee bane neither Gold nor Silner, nor precions stones to present unto you, but our selues, whom we present to serve, and pray unto God for you. At the leaft, give vs leave to continue while the cold be past. My Companion is so weake, that hee cannot by any meanes transile on Horse-backe without bazzard of his life. For my Companion willed The inswer of me, and advired me, to crave leave to stay. For we supposed we minst returne to Baatu, voiles of Manyu chan, bis speciall Grace be gaue vs leave to stay. Then he began to answer: Euen as the Sunne spreads Many chan, Ou percan Grace or game vs sense vs 1975, the the view of the percan bere: fo that wee base no movel vader his beamer sense, where, fo our power and Bastuse fixeds it effe enery where: fo that wee base no flood and deli needs of your Silver and Gold. Hitherto I vndetflood my Interpreter: but further, I could not 10 uered by a drunken Inter-drunken Inter-him selfe was drunke also, as I thought. Yet with this, (as it feemed to mee, hee ended his speach ) that he was displeased that we came first to Sartach, before wee came to him. Then feeing the defect of my Interpreter, I held my peace, this onely excepted, that I intreated his Highnesse hee would not be displeased, for that which I spoke of Gold and Silver; because I spoke it not that he had need of such things, or defired them, but because we would willingly honour him with temporall and spirituall things.

Then he made vs rife, and sit downe againe; and after some sew words, doing our dutie to him, we went out, and his Secretaries, and that Interpreter of his ( who had the bringing up of one of his Daughters ) went together with vs. And they began to bee very inquisitine of the 20 Kingdome of France, whether there were many Rams, Oxen and Horses there, as if presently they should enter and take all. And oftentimes I was faine to bridle my felfe much, in dissembling anger and indignation. And I answered, There are many good things there which yee shall see, if yee happen to come thither. Then they appointed vs one, who should have care of vs. And we went wnto the Monke : and when we came out againe, ready to goe to our lodging, the foresaid Interpreter came vnto vs; saying, Mangu Chan hath compassion on you, and gives you two moneths time to flay. Then the extreame cold will be past, and he fends to you : Here within ten daies iourney there is a good Citie, called Caracaram, if yee will go thither, he will cause necessarie things to be given you: but if yee will abide heere, yee may, and yee shall have necessaries : yet it will be a troublesome thing for you to follow the Court. And I answered : 30 The Lord preserve Mangu Chan, and grant him a good and long life. We have found this Monk heere, whom we thinke to be an holy man, and that by the good pleasure of God he came into peareth chi36. these parts, wherefore we would willingly stay with him, because wee are Monkes, and wee would pray together for the life of Chan. Then he held his peace and departed. And we went vnto our house, which we found very cold, and without any Fuell, as yet failing, and it was night. Then he, to whom we were recommended, prouided vs Fuell, and a little meate. Our Guide was now to returne to Baats, who defired a Carpet of vs , which (by his Commandement) we left in the Court of Bastu: which we gaue him, and he peaceably departed fo, kiffing our right hand, and confessing his fault, if he suffered vs to indure hunger and thirst vpon the way. We pardoned him, crauing pardon of him and his whole Family, if we had given them 40 any euill example.

Chap. 31. Of Pafcha of Ments in Lotharingia, and Building in requeft.

. ar scar am ten daies journey from the Court of

Mangu Chan,

toward the

Certaine Woman of Mentz in Lotharingia, called Pascha, found vs, who made vs great A cheere, according to her power, who belong to the Court of that Lady, which was a Chriflian, of whom I spoke before: who told vs of her strange pouertie which she indured before chier the Gold- them is an excellent Art. Moreover, she told vs, that at Caracarum, there was a certaine Goldfmith, a Parif- fmith, called William, borne at Paris; whose furname was Bouchier, and his Fathers name Lam-They also rec- And he wrote me answere, that he could not that Moone, but the next, his worke should bee

she came to the Court; but now she was well to live, for she had a young Husband, a Ruterian, (by whom she had three very faire Children) who was skilfull in building, which amongst rence Bouchier, and the thinketh he hath a Brother yet vpon the Great Bridge, called Roger Bon- 50 chier. And the told me, that he had a certaine young man which he brought vp, whom hee accounted as his Son, who was an excellent Interpreter. But Mangu Chan deliuered to the forefaid Gold-smith, three hundred Iascots, that is, three thousand Markes, and fiftie Worke-men to make a piece of worke, so that she feared he could not fend his Sonne vnto me. For she heard some say vnto her in the Court, The men which came from your Countrey are good men, and Mangu Chan would willingly fpeak vnto them, but their Interpreter is nothing worth : therefore the was carefull for an Interpreter. Then I writ vnto the foresaid Gold-smith, certifying him of my comming hither, and requesting him, that if he could, he would fend me his sonne. konby Moones perfected, and then he would fend him vnto me. We stayed therefore with other Messengers. 62 And it is otherwise with Messengers in Baatu's Court, then in the Court of Mangu Chan. For in the Court of Baats, there is one Iani on the East fide, who receive thall such as come from the West, and so of other Countries of the world : But in the Court of Mangu, they are all together under one Iani, and they may fee and visit one another. In Baain's Court they know not one another, and know not one of another, whether hee be a Messenger or no; because they know not one anothers lodging, nor fee one another but in the Court : and when one is called, Cracis aftrong perchance another is not called. For they goe not to the Court, valeffe they bee fent for. Wee fortreffe of the perchance another is not called, For they goe hat of the came in behalfe of the Soldan of Mons Templasian found there accitaine Christian of Damajon, who faid he came in behalfe of the Soldan of Mons the help Land. Regatis, and of Crac; who defired to become friend and tributarie to the Tartars.

HE yeare also before I came thither, there was a certaine Clerke of Acon, who called him- Chap. 22. telfe Ramund, but in truth his name was Theodolus; and he tooke his journey from Cyprus Of Theirdolus with Frier Andrew, and went with him into Perfia, and got him certaine Instruments of Amo. the Cleike of Ic ricus there in Perfia, who abode there after Frier Andrew. Frier Andrew returning, hee went des, how hee rows there in terms, who added there are the fauture. The fauture with being demanded wherefore is feward with his Inframenta, and came to Mangu Char ; who being demanded wherefore is feward with his Inframenta, and came to Mangu Char ; who being demanded wherefore is feward for the came, faid, That he was with a certaine holy Bishop, to whom the Lord feur Letters from hea and was imprison. pen, written in golden Characters, and commande him to fend them to the Emperour of the ned of V. Action Tarters, because he should bee Lord of the whole Earth, and that he should peri wade men to us. make peace with him. Then Mangu faid voto him; If thou hadd brought those Letters which Frier And con came from heaven, and the Letters of thy Lord, then hadily beene welcome. Then he answecame from neatien, and the Letters or tray Lord, then have been welcome. Then he aniwe prob by Perssa. red That he brough: Letters, but they were with other things of his, vpon a certaine wilde and Blashemous pampered Gelding, which escaping fled from him through the Woods and Mountaines, io flattery, that he had loft all. And it is very true, that many fuch chances often happen : wherefore a man

20 mult very warily hold his Horfe when he alighteth for necessitie. Then Mangu demanded the name of the Bishop. He said, he was called Odo. Whereupon he told him of Damascus, and Maiter William, who was Clerke of the Lord Legar. Then Chan demanded in whole Kingdome it was! To whom he made answer, That it was under a certaine King of the Frankes, called Moles : ( for he had heard of that which happened at Mallora; and he would have faid, that they were of your Servants) moreover, hee told Chan that the Saracens were betweene the Frankes and him, who hindred his way. But if the way had beene open, he would have fent Mellengers, and willingly have made peace with him. Then Mangu Chan asked him, If hee would bring his Meffengers to that King, and that Beftop ? He told him he would, and also to the Pope. Then Mangu caused an exceeding strong Bow to bee made, which two men could 3c scarle bend, and two Arrowes, whose heads were of Silver, full of holes, which sing when they are shot like a whittle. And he mioyned Moal whom hee should fend with the faid Theodolus; Thou shalt goe to that King of the Frankes, to whom this man shall bring thee, and thou shalt present him with these in my behalfe, And if he will have peace with vs, we will win ie the Countrey woon the Saracens, even home to him, and will grant him the rest of the Countrey vnto the West : If otherwise, bring backeth: Bow and Arrowes vnto vs, and tell him we shoot farre, and imite ftrongly with fuch Bowes. Then he caused Theodolus to goe forth, whose In-this man, marke well the Waies, the Countries, and their Cafiles, Men and Munition. Then the young man blamed Theodolise, faving, He had done ill, in conducting the Meffengers of the Tarturs with him, for they went for no other cause, but to fpy. Then hee answered, That he would fet them on the Sea, that they thould not know whence they came, or which way to returne. Mangu gaue also vnto Moal his golden Ball, or Tablet, to wit, a plate of Gold of an hand. The Golden breadth, and halfe a cubit long, wherein his commandement is ingraien: Who to carrieth that; Tablet of the may command what he will, and it is done without delay. So then Theodolus came to Vastacius, the Tortors. determining to pafe over to the Pope, that he might deceme the Pope, as he had deceived Mangu Villacia King Chan. Then Valtacius demanded of him, whether he had Letters to the Pope, because he was a or Ponius. Meffenger, and should conduct the Meffengers of the Tartars? But, not being able to shew the Letters, he tooke him and spoiled him of all that her ha gotten, and cast him in prison. And Moal fell licke and dyed there. But Vastucius fent backe the golden Tablet to Maneu Chan, by Or, Erferant.

terpreter Master Williams Sonne was, and in his hearing, he tail vnto Meal. Thou shalt go with 50 the feruants of Moal : whom I met at Affaron in the entrance into Turkie, who told mee what happened to Theodolus. Such Colners runne through the world, whom the Moallians kill when Sergius an Arthey can take them. Now the Epiphany was at hand, and that Armenian Monke, Sergins by menian Monke, name, told me, That he should baptize Mangu Can vpon the Holy-day. I intreated him to labour by all meanes that I might be prefen; that I might beare withele that I faw it : and hee promifed he would.

THE feastifuall day came, and the Monke called me not, but at fixe of the clocke I was fent Or Marge I for to the Court, and I faw the Monke with the Priests returning from the Court with his Chens holyday, Croffe, and the Priests with the Censer and the Gospell. For that day Mangu Chan made a principall wife 60 feast. And his cuttome is, that vpon such daies as his Sooth-sayers doe appoint vnto him fea- and his client fliuali, or with the Nestorian Priests sometimes make Holy-daies, that then he holds his Court: some came to And upon such dates the Christians come first with their furniture, and pray for him and bleffe the Diane cohis Cup. They then departing, the Saracen Priefts come and doe the like. Next after them, remones of the Nelwiger. come the Idolatrous Priors and doe the fame. And the Monke told me, that he onely believes and or their

the fithy bewings

the Christians, yet will have all to pray for him; but he lyed, for he beleeueth none, as you shall hereafter heare, yet all follow his Court, as flyes doe Honey. And he giveth vnto all, and all men thinke they are his Familiars; and all prophetie prosperitie vnto him. Then wee sate before the Court a long space, and they brought vs Hesh to eate. To whom I made answere, that we would not eate there, but if they would prouide vs meate, they should prouide it for vs at our house. Then they faid, get yee home to your house; because you were inuited for no other cause but to eate. Therefore we returned by the Monkes, who blushed at the Lye bee told me, wherefore I would not speake a word of that matter. Yet some of the Nefterious would affirme vnto mee. that he was baptized : to whom I faid, that I would never believe it, nor report it to others, fee-

We came to our cold and emptie house, they prouided vs bedding and Couerlets, they brought vs also fuell, and gaue vs three the carkasse of one little leane Ramme, meate for sixe dayes; and euery day a little Platter full of Millet , and lent vs a Caldron and a Triuet to boyle our flesh : which being fodden, we fod our Millet in the broath of the flesh. This was our meate, and it had well sufficed vs, if they had suffered vs to eate in peace. But there are so many hunger-starued, who are not prouided of meate : that, as foone as they faw vs dreffe meate, they thrust in voon vs, and must eate with vs. There I found by experience, how great a Martyrdome liberalitie is in pouertie. Then the cold began much to prevaile; and Mangu Chan fent vs three Pek-coates of the Skinnes of Papions (Papionum) whole haire they turne outward; which we thankfully receiued. They demanded alio, how we were prouided of necessary food ? To whom I answered. 20 that little meate sufficed vs, but we have not an house wherein to pray for Manga Chan. For our Cottage was so little, that we could scarce stand vpright in it, nor open our Bookes, as soone as wee made fire. Then they brought him word: and hee fent vnto the Monke to know, if hee would have our company : who gladly answered, that hee would. From that time wee were prouided of a better house : and we went downe with the Monke before the Court, where none lodged but we, and their Sooth-fayers : but they lodged neever, before the Palace of the greatest Lady : and wee in the furthest end towards the East, before the Palace of the last Lady. And The 13. of Ian. that was done the day before Ottabis Epiphania. On the morrow (to wit) in Ottanis Epiphania, all the Neilorian Priests came together before day at the Chappell, and smote voon a board, and lang Matines folemnely, and put on their Ornaments, preparing the Censer and the 30 Incense.

preuzyleth.

Cotota Caten Wife of Mangu

CALL CHANGE OF THE PARTY OF

And while they flayed wayting thus, behold, in the morning, the principall Wife Cotota Caten by name, (Caten is as much as Ladie, and Cotota her proper name) came into the Chappell with many other Ladies, and with her eldeft Sonne, called Baltn, and other little ones of hers: And they cast themselves downe upon the Earth, ducking after the manner of the Nesterians. of Mangu Chas. and after this, they touched all the Images with their right hands, alwayes kiffing their hands after they had touched, and after that, they gave their right hands to all that flood about them in the Church. For this is the custome of the Nestorians when they come into the Church. Then the Priests sang many things, giving the Lady Incense in her hand, and she put it vpon the fire: then they perfumed her. After this, when the day was cleere, shee began to put off the Orna- 40 ment of her head, which is called Baccha : and I faw her bare iculi, then fhee commanded vs to goe forth, and as I went out, I faw a filuer Baion brought : whether they baptized her or no. I know not : but I know, they celebrate not Maffe in a Tent, but in a standing Church. And in the Easter I saw them baptize, and hallow Fount with great Solemnitie, which now they

And while we went into our house, Mangu Chan himselfe came, and went into the Church. or Oratory, and a Golden Bed was brought, on which hee fate by his Queene, ouer against the Altar, Then were we fent for, not knowing that Mangu was come, And the Doore-keepers fearched vs, left we should have Knines about vs. But comming into the Oratory, having a Bible, and a Breuiary in my bosome, I first bowed downe vnto the Altar, and after to Mangu Chan: 50 and fo passing by, we stood betweene the Monke and the Altar. Then they made vs sing a Psalme after our manner, and chaunt it. But we fang of that profe, Veni Santte Spiritus, Gre. And Cham caufed our Bookes to be brought vnto him, the Bible, and the Breuiarie : and diligently inquired concerning the Images, what they fignified. The Nestorians answered him at their pleasure, becaule our Interpreter came not in with vs. And when I was first before him, I had the Bible in my bosome, which he commanded to be brought vnto him, who looked earnestly vpon it. Then he departed, and his Ladie remayned there, and distributed gifts to all the Christians there, shee gaue the Monke a lafeet, and to the Archdeacon of the Priests another : she caused a Nasje to be spread before vs (to wit) a piece of Cloth, as broad as a Couerlet of a Bed, very large, and a *Buckeram, which when I would not receive, they fent them to my Interpreter, who had them 60 to himselfe. He brought the Nassu to Cyprus, which he sold for eightie Sultanines of Cyprus; but it was much the worle for the carriage. Then drinke was brought (to wit) drinke made of Rice and red Wine, like Wine of Rochell, and Cosmos. " Then the Ladie holding the cup full in her hand, defired bleifing upon her knees, and all the Priefts fing with a loud voyce, and fhee drunke

Mares Milke,

CHAP.I. Nestorians drinking, fast, friday. Tartar-duining. Threshold.

it vp: and I and my companion must fing. Another time, when all of them were almost drunke, then meate was brought (to wit) the carkaffe of one Ramme which was prefently denoured: and after that, great files, which are called Carpes, without Salt; or Bread : whereof I eate a little, so they passed the day, vntill the Euening. And when the Lady her selfe was drunke, she tooke her Chariot (the Priefts finging) and went her way. The next Sunday, when (There was lanuary 20, a Mariage in Cana of Galily) is read for the Goipell; Chans Some came (whole Mother was a Christian) and did the like, but not with so great Solemnitie. For he gaue no gifts, but made the Priests drinke, till they were drinke, and gaue them parched Millet to eate.

Before the hill Sunday in Lent, the Nestorians fast three dayes, which they call the Fast of Io- Of the Fast of 10 nas, which he preached to the Niniuites. And the Armenians fail fine dayes , which they call the the Neserian, and of their The Nesterians beginne their Fast upon Tuesday, and end it upon Thursday; so that upon Processions Friday they eate flesh. And all that time I faw the Chancelor (to wit, the great Secretarie of vito the Court State called Bulgas) make them a pittance of flesh voon the Friday; and they blessed the flesh of Mangu chan with great Solemnitie, as the Pakhall Lambe is bleffed : but he eate none with them, and this his elden Son, 1 learned of Willielmus Taristensis, who was his very familiar friend. The Monke lent to Man- Saint Saits. guto fait that weeke, which (as I heard) hee did : fo that on the Sabbath of Septuagefima (at Leut, which time it is as it were Eafter to the Armenians ) wee went on Procession to the house of Manga Chins Mangu: and the Monke, and we two (being first searched whether wee had Knines) went in Courtvisted with the Priefts, before him. And while we went in, one of the Senants went forth, carrying out the shoulder bones of Rammes, burne to the blacknesse of Coales. Whereupon 1 manuelled ons. greatly, what it should meane, whereof after I had inquired, I vnderstood, that hee neuer doth any thing, before he have confulted with thole bones. Whereupon hee doth not fo much as fuffer a man to enter his house, but first consulteth with that bone, which kind of Dimination, is When he purposeth to doe any thing, he causeth three of those bones to be brought vnto him Howthey di-vnburnt; and holding them he thinketh of the thing, whereof he will confult, whether he may une by the vincernt; and noting them he trained to the traing, whereas he will confide the may does too not; and then deliverest the bones to bee burnt, and there are alwayes two little of Rammes Roomes, hard by the houle where he lyes, where those bones are burnt; which are diligently butntblacke. 30 fought for every day thorow all the Leskar or Tent-dwelling. When they are burnt blacke, they In M. Issimbring them vnto him, then hee lookes vpon them, whether the bones (by the heate of the fire) four Voyage a be cleft right length-wayes : then the way is open, that he may do it. But if the bones be crac- mong the Tarbe cleft right length-wayes; then the way is open, that he may do to be all the lowest cleft in reade of fuch ked athwart, or round pieces flye out of them, then he doth it not a for the bone is alwayes cleft in reade of fuch the fire, or the thinne skin which over-spreadeth it. And if one of the three be cleft forth right, a Dimination. yet he doth it. When therefore wee went in before him (aduised before, that wee should not touch the threshold) the Nestorian Priests brought him Incenses, and he put it vpon the Censor, Threshold-Sur and they cenfed him. Then they fung, blefing his cup, and after them the Monke pronounced perflicion. his bleffing, and we must bleffe last. And when he saw vs holding the Bible before our breft, he Theydoc the caused it to be brought vnto him, that he might fee it, which hee diligently looked vpon. Then like in Florida. 40 after he had drunke, and the chiefe Priest had wayted on his Cup, they gaue the Priests drinke: After that, we went forth, and my companion stayed last. And when wee were without, my companion (when hee should have gone out after vs) turned his face to Chan, bowing himselfe vnto him : and then, haitily following vs, he stumbled at the threshold of the house. And when we went in hafte toward the house of Baltu his eldest Sonne, they that observed the threshold, layd hands on my companion, and made him stay, that hee should not follow vs, calling one, and commanding him to carrie him to Bulgai, who is the great Secretary of the Court, and judgeth those that are arraigned of life and death. But I knew it not, yet when I looked backe, and faw him not comming, I thought they detayned him, to give him some lighter garments: For he was weake, and so laden with Pelt-garments that he could scarce goe. Then 50 they called our Interpreter, and made him fit with him : but wee went to Chans eldeft Sonnes Baltus Court house, who had two Wives, and was lodged at the right fide of his Fathers Court: who as who was eldest foone as he law vs comming, leaping from his bed whereon he fate, calt himselfe vpon the earth, chan. fmiting his fore-head against the ground, worshipping the Crosse, and arising, caused it to be set vpon a new cloth, in an high place by him, very honourably. He hath a Schoolemafter, a Nestorian Priest called Danid, a very Drunkard, who teacheth him. Then he made vs sit, and give the Priests drinke, and hee also dranke, receiving the blething from them. Then wee went voto the Court of the second Lady, which was called Cota, who followed Idolaters : whom wee found lying ficke a bed. Then the Monke made her rife out of her bed , and worthip the Croffe, bowing her knees thrice, and ducking toward the ground : he standing with the Crosse at the West-60 fide of the house, and she on the East: this being done, they changed places, and the Monke went with the Crosse vnto the East, and shee vnto the West. And hee boldly commanded her

Fast of Saint Sorkis, which is the greatest Saint amongst them.

(although the were to weake, that the could scarce stand upon her feet) that shee should cast hertelfe downe thrice againe, and worship the Crosse, toward the East after the manner of the Christians : which she did, and he taught her to make the figne of the Crosse vpon her forehead.

After the lay downe upon her bed, and praying for her, we went unto the third house, where a Christian Lady vied to be : who being dead, a young woman succeeded her, who together with the Daughter of her Lord, joyfully received vs : and all that whole house reverently worshipped the Croile. And the fet it *pon a Velnet cloth in an hig.: place, and thee cauted meate to bee brought (to wit) the carkaffe of one Ramme, which being fet before the Ladie, flee cauled it to be distributed to the Priests, But I and the Monke were very warie of the meate and drinke, for the meate being eaten, and much drinke drunke, wee were to goe to the Damofell Cerina, who lodged behind that great house, which was her Mothers : who at the comming in of the Croffe, cast her felte upon the Earth, and worshipped it very deuoutly, because shee had beene well taught to to doe, and fines let it in a high place, vpon a piece of filke. And all those clothes 10 whereon the Croffe was fet, were the Monkes.

faftned to the Croffe. Manga built a Church, The Court of the fourth Lidy.

... A certaine Armenian brought this Croffe who came with the Monk (as he faid) from Hiernfalon; and it was of filter, weighing about some foure markes; and it had soure Precious Stones in the corners, and one in the middle. It had not the Image of our Sauiour (because the Armeni-The Gourt of ans and the Nestorians are assamed, that Christ should appeare nayled to the Crosse) and hee had the third Lady, presented it (by the Monke) to Mangu Chan, And Mangu demanded of him what hee defired? The Armenians to whom he answered, That he was the Sonne of an Armenian Prieft, whose Church the Saracens had destroyed, and craued his helpe for the building agains of that Church. Then hee afked him, for how much it might be built againe : he answered, for two hundred lascots (that is) for two thousand markes : and he commanded Letters to be given him, to him who received the 20 Tribute in Perfia, and Armenia the greater, that they should pay him the faid summe of filter. This Croile the Monke carried with him enery where. And the Priefts feeing the gaine thereof. began to enuie him. Wee were therefore in the house of the faid Damosell, and shee gave the Priests much drinke. From hence wee went vnto the fourth house, which was the last in number and honour. For he vied not to come often to that Ladie, and her house was very old, and her felfe nothing gracious. But after Easter Char made her a new house, and new Chariots. She likewise as the second knew little or nothing of Christianitie, but followed Soothsayers, and Idolaters. Yet at our comming in , thee worthipped the Croffe , as the Monke and the Priefts taught her. There also the Priests dranke againe. And from that place wee returned to our Oratorie, which was necre thereabouts: the Priests accompanying vs with great howling 30 and out-cryes in their drunkennesse, which there is reprehensible neither in man nor woman. Then my fellow was brought home, and the Monke sharply rebuked him because he touched not reproneat the threshold. On the morrow Bulgai came (who was a Justice) and diligently inquired, when ble among the ther any had warned vs to take heed of touching the threshold. And I answered, Sir, wee had not our Interpreter with vs : how could we understand? Then hee pardoned him. But would neuer after fuffer him to come into any of the houses of Mangu Chan.

w:scured of Sergus the counterfeit Monke. Li ence is granted him to carrie the Croffe aloft.

AND THE PROPERTY OF THE PARTY O

Rubarbe and Superftmon. Holy water notknowns in the Eaft.

T happened afterwards, that the fame Ladie Cota, which was ficke about Septuagefima, was How Lady Cota I ficke almost vinto death : and distination by Lots of the Idolaters could profit her nothing, Then Mangu fent vnto the Monke, demanding of him, what might bee done for her. And the 40 Monke indifferently answered, that it shee were not cured, hee should cut off his head, having made that ani were, the Monke called vs, declaring the matter vinto vs with teares, intreating to watch with him that night in Prayer: which we did. And he had a certayne Roote which is called Rubarbe; and hie cut it almost to powder, and put it in water, with a little Crucifixe which he had, wherein the Image of our Saujour was advanced : whereof he reported, that by it he knew, when the ficke should recour or dye. For it they should escape, it stucke to the brest of the ficke, as if it were sheed, it otherwise it stucke not at all. And I still thought that Rubarbe had beene some holy Relike, which he had brought from the Holy Land of Hierusalem. And he gaue all ficke persons of that water o drinke : to that it could not bee, but their bowels with credulous should be griped with so bitter a Potion: which alteration in their bodies they accounted a Miraile. Then I told him (when he was about to make fuch a water) that hee should prepare some of that Holy water, which is made in the Church of Rome, which hath great vertue to expell Deuils : because I vuderstood thee was vexed of a Deuill. And at his intreatie, wee made him some Holy water, and he mingled Rubarbe, and put his Crucifixe all the whole night in the water to temper it. I said moreouer, that if hee were a Priest, that the Order of Priest-hood hath great power to expell Deuils. And he faid it was very true, and yet hee lyed, because hee had no order, nor knew any one Letter : but was a Weauer, as I vnderstood after, in his Countrey, when I returned. On the morrow therefore I, and the Monke, and two Nefforian Pricils went vnto the forelaid Ladie. And thee was in a little house, behind her greater house. When wee came in, thee face in her bed, and worthipped the Croffe, and fet it honourably by her young 60 cloth of Silke, and drunke of the blefled water with Rubaibe, and washed her breft. And the Monke requested me to reade a Gospell over her, so I read the P. shon of our Lord according vnto Ioba. At length the was cheered, and felt her felfe better : and thee caused foure lascots to bee brought, which the firli layd at the feet of the Croffe, and after gaue me to the Monke, and reached me one, which I would not receive. Then the Monke Aretching forth his hand, tooke it, and gaue either of the Prietts one : fo that, at that time fhee gaue fortie Markes. Then fhee cauted Wine to be brought, and gaue it the Priests to drinke; and I must drinke thrice from her hand, in honour of the Trinitie. Shee began also to teach mee the Language, jesting with mee, because I was dumbe, not having any Interpreter. On the morrow we returned to her againe. And Mangu Chan hearing that we came that way, made vs come in vnto him, because hee vnderstood that the Lady was somewhat better, and we found him with a few feruants, fupping liquid Tam, to wit, meat made of paste, for comforting the head : and the burnt shoulder-blades of a Ram lay before him : and he tooke the Crosse Io in his hand, but that hee kiffed or worshipped it, I saw not : but looked vpon it, and asked some questions, Iknow not what. Then the Monke craued leave to carry the Crosse alost vpona Lance: because I had spoken to the Monke before concerning this. And Mangu answered, Carry it as you thinke best to doe it. Then doing our duty to him, wee went to the foresaid Ladie, and we found her luftie and cheerfull; and the full drunke of the bleffed Water, and wee read the Paffion ouer her. And those milerable Priests neuer taught her the Faith, nor aduised her to bee baptifed. But I fate there mute, not able to speake any thing, but shee still taught me the Language and the Priests neuer find fault with any kind of Sorcerie. For there I faw foure swords Sorcerie of halfe drawne out of the sheath, one at the head of the Ladies bed, another at the feet, and two foure words. other, on either fide of the doore one. I faw also there one filuer Chalice, of our Chalices, which 20 peraduenture was taken or stolne out of some Church of Hangary; and it hung against the walls full of ashes, and upon those ashes there was a blacke stone. And concerning such things, the Priests neuer teach them that they are euill : Nay , they themselves doe, and teach such things. We visited her three daies, so that shee was restored to perfect health. After that, the Monke made a Banner full of Croffes, and got a Cane as long as a Lance, and we carried the Croffe aloft. I honored him as my Bishop, because hee could speake the Language; yet hee did many things The Crosse which pleafed me not : for he caufed a Chaire which may be folded to bee made for him, fuch as carried aloft. Bishops vie to haue, and Gloues, and a Cap of Peacocks feathers, and vpon it a little Crosse of gold : I was well pleased with the Croffe. Hee had scabbed feete, which hee laboured to grace with ointments, and was very prefumptuous in speech. The Neftorians also repeated certaine 30 Verses of the Platter (as they said) vpon two rods , which were soyned together , being held of two men. The Monke was present at such things. And many other vanities appeared in him, which displeased me. Yet wee ioyned our selues to his societie for the honor of the Crosse. For we carried the Croffe advanced through all the Tents finging : Vexilla Regis prodeunt, &c. Wherevpon the Saracens were much dismaied.

Since we came to the Court of Mangu Chan, he rode but twice towards the South : and from Chan, 36.

Sthat time he beganne to returne towards the North, which was toward Caracarum. Where- A description vpon Inotedall the way, a thing of which Matter Baldwin of Hannonia had spoken to mee at of the Coun-Constantinople (who was there) that he had seene this onely wonderfull, that he alwaies ascen- ties about the 4 o ded in going, and neuer descended. For all Rivers came from the East into the West, either dis Courtef Manded in going, and neuer descended. For all Rulers came from the East fine die wett, ettlief die ge Chan, and of reelly or indirectly (that is to fay) bending towards the South or North. And I enquired of the their manner Priests which came from Cataga, who testified this same. From that place where I found Mangu of writing, and Chan, unto Cataya, were twentie daies iourney, going towards the South and East. To Onan Kerule, their money. which is the proper Country of Moall, where the Court of Chingis is, were ten daies iourney right East. Chap 3. And in those parts of the East there was no Citie : yet there were people which are called Su-Moall, that Al Rivers benis to fay, Moall of the Waters : for Su is as much to fay as Water. These people line upon Fish, and hunding towards ting, having neither Flocks nor Heards. Towards the North likewife, there is no (tite, but a poore people the South and feeding Cattell, who are called Kerkis. The Orangei are also there, who binde smoothe filed bones un- North sunce der their feete, and thrust themselves forward upon the congeated Snow and Ice, with Such Swifinesse, west. so that they take Birds and Beafts. And many other poore people there are on the North side, so farre as they may spread themselnes for the cold. And they in me on the West, with the Countrey of Palatit, Chap. 150 which is Hungaria the Greater, whereof I have Spoken before. The bound or limit of the North corner Su-Moal, the is not knowne, for the extremitie of the cold: for in that place there are continual fires or heapes of Water Tattars is not knowne, for the extremitie of the cold: for in that place there are continual pires or mapes of to the Eaft, is.

Snow. I was inquilitize of the Moniters or monitrous men, whereof Islanus and Solinus make using voon tile. report. They told me they neuer faw any fuch, whereof we much wonder, whether it bee true Kerke. or no. All the Nations aforesaid (although but poore) yet they must ferue in some trade : for it Orangai. was the commandement of Chingis, that none should bee free from service, till hee were so old, Pascair on the that he could labour no longer, by any meanes. Vpon a time a certaine Priest of Cataga fate with West. mee, clothed with a red coloured cloth; and I demanded of him whence hee had fuch a colour. Chap.19.

60 And he told me, that in the East parts of Cataya there were high craggie Rock, wherein certaine Muteruma Creatures dwell, having mall parts the shape of men, but that they bow not the knees, but commanded walke (I know not how) leaping: which are not about one cubit long, and their whole body is the like in No. walke (I know not how) leaping: which are not about one cutil tong, and their whole body is a Biffania.

couered with haire; who have their abode in Caues which no man can come vnto. And they A description of Apes, or elfe an embleme or Apifts fable, and perhaps by the Shinois intented, to fell their wares the dearer.

that hunt them goe voto them, and carry firong drinke with them, as ftrong as they can make. and make pits in the Rocks like Cups, filling them with that firong drinke. For Cataia as yet hathno Wine (but now they beginne to plant Vineyards) for they make drinke of Rice. The Hunters therefore hide themielues, then the forefaid Creatures come out of their holes, and tafte the faid drinke, and crie Chin-chin. Then they come together in great multitudes and drinke the faid drinke, and are made drunke, fo that they fleepe there. Then the Hunterscome, and bind them hand and feete while they are fleeping; and after, they open the Veine in their necke, and draw forth three or foure drops of bloud from every one, and let them goe free. And Most precious that bloud (as he told me) is most precious to die purple.

Purple. Cataia vpon the Occan. Taute and Man & who dwell whole Sea freezeth in the Winter. Cataia paper writing in Cataia like that of writing in Tangut and Inthe Rutenians.

multitude of those that

He told it also for truth (which neverthelesse I doe not beleeve) that there is a Province beyond to Cataia, into the which, at whatfoeuer age a man enters, he continueth in the fame age wherein he entred, Cataia is voon the Ocean. And Mafter Willelmin Parifienfis told me, that the fame Meffengers of certaine people which are called Tante and Manfe, who inhabit Ilands, whose Sea is frozen in the winter, to that the Tartare may inuade them; who offered two thousand Tumen or lascots yeerely, so they would let them live in peace. Tumen is a piece of money contayning ten Markes. The common money of Cataia is Paper made of Bombaste, the breadth and length of an hand, upon the which they imprint lines, like the Seale of Mangu. They write with a Penfill wherewith Painters paint; and in one figure they make many letters comprehen-The manner of ding one word. The people of Thebet write as wee doe, and they have Characters very like ours. They of Tangut write from the right hand vnto the left, as the Arabians, and multiply the lines ascending vpward. Ingur, as aforesaid, from about downeward. The common mony of 20 The people of the Rutenians are little ipotted and grifel'd skins. When we came with the Monke, hee charitably admonished vs to abstaine from fiesh, and that our feruants should eate fiesh with his fer-Their manner mants; but he would promife vs Meale, and Oyle or Butter. Which wee did, though it much grieued my Companion, by reason of his weakenesse: wherefore our foode was Millet and Butter, or Palte fodden in water with Butter, or fowre Milke, and vnleauened bread baked in Oxe-The money of dung, or Horse-dung.

Chap. 37.

Of the second

Of the second greatest Ladie Cotota with all her company, fasted that weeke, who came every day to our 30 full of the peo-Oratorie, and gaue meate vnto the Priests, and other Christians, whereof a great multitude flocked thither the first weeke, to heare their dutie. And she gaue to me and my Companion, to in Lent. The each a Coate and Breeches of gray Samit (Samito) furred with course haire (Stuppa setz) beproued for the cause my companion complained much of the weight of his Skinnes, which I received for my fellowes comfort, excusing my felfe neuerthelesse, that I would not weare such clothes. I gaue to my Interpreter what belonged to me. Then the Porters of the Court feeing that fo great a multitude came daily to the Church, which was within the bounds of the keepers of the Court. they fent one of their fellowes vnto the Monke, declaring vnto him , that they would not have fo great a multitude come together within the precincts of the Court. then the Monke roughly answered, that he would know whether they commanded this from Mangu Chan? hee added 40 moreouer certaine threatning speeches, as if he would accuse them to Mangu Chan. Then they preventing him, accused him before Mangu; That he was too full of words, and that he gathered together too great a multitude to heare him speake. Afterward, the first Sunday in Lent, being called to the Court (and the Monke being shamefully demanded whether hee had a Knife. infomuch that he put off his shooes) wee came in before Chan himselfe, who having the burnt shoulder-blade of a Ramme in his hand, looked upon it, and (as it were) reading in it, began to reproue the Monke, demanding, that feeing he was a man that should pray vnto God, why hee Spoke so much with men s but I stood behind with my head bare : and Chan saying vinto him, Why dost thou not put off thy Cap, when thou commest before me, as that Francke doth and commanded me to be called neerer. Then the Monke being much abashed, put off his Cap, con- 52 trary to the custome of the Greekes and Armenians. And when Chan himfelfe had spoken many things sharply vnto him, wee went out. Then the Monke deliuered me the Crosse to beare to the Oratorie, because he could not carry it for shame.

After a few daies he was reconciled vnto him, promifing that he would goe to the Pope, and that he would bring all the Nations of the West to his obedience. Whereupon, he returning to the Oratorie after that conference had with Chan, began to enquire of mee touching the Pope, if I beleeved he would see him if he came vnto him in the behalfe of Mangu, and it hee would furnish him with Horses vnto Saint lames? He demanded also of you, if I thought you would fend your sonne vnto Mangu? Then I countailed him, that he should take heede that hee did not promife lyes to Mangu, because the last errour should bee worse then the first; and that God 60 needeth not our lyes, that we should speake deceitfully for him.

At that time there arose a certaine question betweene the Monke and a Priest called Ionas , a Learned man, whole father was an Archdeacon, and the other Priests accounted him for a Mafter and an Archdeacon. For the Monke faid, That man was created before Paradife, and that the Scripture faid fo. Then was I called to bee an arbitrator of that question. But I being 19100rent that they contended about this, answered, that Paradise was made upon Tuesday, when the other Trees were made, and that Man was made the fixt day. Then the Monke began to lay, Monkes, Ma-Did not the Deuill bring earth the first day from the foure parts of the world; and making clay sichasablif. Did not the Deuni Dring cartii the interest of God infpired his fould! Then hearing this Harefie of phemie of the the Monke, and that he so publikely and shamelessy recited it, I reproued him sharply, faying, he should put his finger upon his mouth, because he knew not the Scriptures, and that he should take heed, that he faid it not, whereby he might be faulty: And he began to mocke me, because I was ignorant of the Language. I departed therefore from him, going to our house. It fell out te effectively, that he and the Pricks went on Procession to the Court, without calling mee; because the Monke spake not to me for the foresaid reproofe, nor would be carrie me with him, as he was wont. When therefore they came before Mangu, (I being not feene among them) hee earnestly demanded where I was, and why I came not with them ? The Priests fearing, excufed themselves. But returning, they told me the words of Mangu, and murmured at the Monke. After this, the Monke was reconciled to me, and I to him, intreating him, that he would helpe me with his Language, and I would helpe him in the holy Scripture. For a brother that is bolper of a brother, is as a strong Cuie. After the first weeke of fasting, the Ladie ceased to come vnto the Oratorie, and to give meat, and drinke, which were were wont to have, for the Monke fuffered it not to be brought, flying, that Mutton fat or Suet was put in the confection thereof: 20 and thee gaue no Oyle, but very feldome: to that we had nothing but browne Bread, and paft boyling in water, that we might suppe broath; because we had no water, but of dissolved Snow, Snow water, or of Ice, which was exceeding nought. Then my Companion began to be much grieued: fo or water of Ice, I acquainted Danid (the Schoole-mafter of Chant eldeft fonne) with our necessities, who made exceeding 1 acquainted Dama (the School-mailt) and to give vs Wine, Flowre, and Oyle. Neither the naught, No his earch Neftorians, nor the Armenians, eate fish, by any meanes, in the Lent. Then they game vs a bottle in Lent. of Wine. The Monketaid he would not eate but on the Sunday: and then the Ladie her felte fent meat of boyled patte with vinegar to suppe. But he had a Chift by him under the Altar, Hypocritical with Almonds and Rahins, and dried Prunes, and many other fruits, which hee ate all theday, feath faft, whenfoeuer hee was alone. Wee are once a day, and that in great affliction: for as foone as they knew, that Mangu Chan had given vs Wine, most impudently they came in vpon vs like 30 Dogs, both the Nefforian Priefts, who were drunke all the day in the Court , and the Moallians allo, and the feruants of the Monke. The Monke alfo, when any came vnto him, to whom he would give drinke; he sent to vs for Wine. So that, the Wine caused our greater affliction Bout mid-lent Master Williams sonne came, bringing with him a faire filuer Crosse, made Chap. 38. A after the French falhion, having the Image of Christ all of filter fastened vpon it at the & Description top: which the Monkes and Prietts feeing, put it away: this Croffe hee was to precent in the of the worke behalfe of his Mafter to Bulgat, who was the chiefe Secretarie of the Contr; which when I of William Bulgari, who was offended. The fame yours man alfordedered to Manua Chan sharehouse the same of t heard, I was offended. The same young man also declared to Mangu Chan, that the worke the Palace of which he commanded to be made, was finished, which worke I described vnto you. Mangu Mangu Chan at hath at Caracarum a great Court, hard by the walls of the Citie, enclosed with a bricke-wall: Caracarum, into as the Priories of Monkes are enclosed with vs. In that place, there is a great Palace, wherein which Cire he holdeth his drinkings twice a yeere: once in Easter, when hee passeth that way, and once in palm sunday. Summer, when he returneth. And this latter is the greater : because then all the Nobles (who dwell farre some two moneths journey off in any place) meet together at his Court. And then Two moneths hee gives vnto them gifts and garments, and shewes his great glorie. There are many other journey. houses there, as large as Granges, wherein his victuals, and treasures are stored. In the entrance 50 of that great Palace (because it was vulcemely to bring in bottles of Milke, and other drinkes) Master William Parifiensis made him a great filuer Tree, at the root whereot were foure filuet Tae Descrip-Lions, having one Pipe lending forth pire Cowes milke, and the foure Pipes were conseased tion of a most within the Tree, vn:o the top thereof : whose tops spread backe againe downward : and ypon artificiall sucr euery one of them was a golden Serpent, whose tayles twine about the bodie of the Tree. And one of those Pipes runs with Wine, another with Caracosmos, that is, clarified Whay; another with Ball, that is, drinke made of Honey, another with drinke made of Rice, called Teracina.

CHAP. I. Manichæan blassbemie, Hypocriticall feast-fast, Artisticall silver Tree. 35

then comfort; because wee could not denie it without offence. If wee gane, wee wanted our felues, nor durst we, that being spent, defire any more from the Court.

And enery drinke hath his vessell prepared of filuer, at the foot of the Tree , to receive it. Betweene those foure Pipes in the top, he made an Angell holding a Trumpet; and under the Tree, he made an hollow vault, wherein a man might be hid; and a Pipe afcendeth through the heart 60 of the Tree vnto the Angell. Hee first made Bellowes, but they gave not wind enough. Without the Palace there is a Chamber, wherein the drinkes are layd, and there are fernants readie there to powre it out, when they heare the Angell founding the Trumpet. And the boughes of the Tree are of filuer, and the leaves and Peares. When therefore they want drinke, the Ma-fter Butler cryeth to the Angell, that he found the Trumpet. Then he hearing (who is hid in the Vault) blowes the Pipe strongly, which goeth to the Angell. And the Angell fets his Trumpet to his mouth, and the Trumpet foundeth very shrill. Then the Seruants hearing, which are in the chamber, every of them powre forth their drink into their proper Pipe, and the Pipes powre it forth from aboue, and they are received below in Veffels prepared for that purpose : Then the Butlers draw them, and carry them through the Palace, to men and women.

The descrip is on of the Pa-

And the Palace is like a Church, having the middle Ile, and the two fides beyond the two rewes of Pillars, and three gates on the South. And within before the middle gate flands the tree. And Char himselfe sitteth in the North front, in an high place, that hee may bee seene of all. And there are two degrees of steps afcending vnto him, by the one, he that carryeth his cup commeth vp vnto him, and by the other he descendeth. That space which is in the middle, be- to tweene the tree and the steps whereby they ascend vnto him, is voyde. For there standeth hee that wayteth on his Gup, and the Messengers, which bring Presents. And hee sitteth there aboue like a God. On the right fide (to wit) toward the West are the mention the left women. For the Palace stretcheth it selfe out in length from North to South by the Pillars. On the right fide are places full of feates lifted up, like the Sellar of an house, whereon his Sonnes and Brethren in. On the left fide is the like, where his Wives and Daughters fit. One only woman fitteth there aboue by him, but not so high as hee. When therefore hee had heard, that the Worke was finished, hee commanded the chiefe Workeman to set it in his place, and make it fit. And about Passion Sunday, hee went before with small houses, leaving his greater houses be-the Position he hind : And the Monke and we followed him; and he tent vs another Bottle of Wine. And hee 20 goeth towards passed betweene the hilly Countries, where there was great wind, and an extreame cold, and there fell a great Snow. Whereupon hee fent about mid-night to the Monke and vs. intreating vs to pray vnto God, that hee would mitigate that wind and cold, because all the beath which were in the trayne were in icopardie, especially because all that time they were with young and readie to bring forth. Then the Monke fent him Incense, requiring him to put it on the coales and offer it to God : which, whether he did, I know not. But the Temperal They enter Car ceased, which had now continued two dayes, and now the third day drew neere. On Palme Sunday we were neere Caracaram: In the dawning of the day we bleffed the Willow boughes. whereon as yet there appeared no bud, and about nine of the clocke we entred the Citie, carrying the Crossealost with the Banner, passing through the middle of the street of the Saracens, 30 where the Market and Faires are vnto the Church : and the Nestorians met vs on Procession. And entring into the Church, we found them prepared to celebrate the Maffe : which beeing celebrated, they all communicated, and they asked mee, whether I would communicate: I anfwered that I had drunke before, and the Sacrament should not be received but falting. Maffe being faid, it was now Euening. Mafter William brought vs with great ioy to his Inne to fup with him : who had a Wife, the Daughter of a Lotharingian, borne in Hungarie, who could speake the French and the Language of Comania. We found also there a certayne other man called Basiling, the Sonne of an Englishman, borne in Hangarie, who also was skilfull in the foresaid Languages. Supper being ended, they brought vs to our Cottage, which the Tartars had appointed vs, in a certayne plat of ground neere the Church, with the Oratory of the Monke, On the morrow Chan himselfe entred into his Palace. And the Monke and L, and the Priests went vnto him. They suffered not my companion to goe, because he stumbled at the threshold. I much deliberated with my selfe what I should doe, whether I should goe or no. And fearing offence, if I should depart from other Christians, and because it pleased him : and fearing lest that good might be hindred, which I hoped to obtaine, I chose rather to go, although I saw their actions ful of Sorcery and Idolatrie : nor did I any other thing there, but pray for the whole Church with a loud voyce, and also for Char himfelfe, that God would direct him to the way of eternall faluation. We therefore went into that Court which was sufficiently ordered. And in the Summer Rivers are conveyed into every place, whereby it is watered. After this we entred into the Palace, tull of men and women, and stood before Chan, having the foresaid Tree at our backs, which so with the Vessels thereof tooke vp a great part of the Palace. The Priests brought two little Loanes, and fruit in a Platter, which they prefented vnto him , bleffing them. And the Butler brought them wato him fitting aloft in a very high place, much raised. And hee presently began to eate one of the Loaues, and fent another to his Sonne, and to a certayne yonger Brother of his, who was brought vp by a certayne Nesterian, and knew the Gospell, who also sent for my Bible, that he might fee it. After the Priefts the Monke fard his Prayer, and I after the Monke. Then he promised, that the next day he would come vnto the Church, which is great enough, and faire, and all the feeling about was courred with filke wrought with Gold. The next day he went his way, willing the Priests to excuse him, that he durit not come to the Church, because he understood the dead were carried thither. But we, and the Monke remayned at Cara- 60 sarum, and other Priests of the Court, that they might celebrate Easter there.

Manga Chan

CHAP.I. Celebration. Receiving the Sacrament, Confession, Theft excused, Maundie Thursday drew neere, and Easter, and I had not our Vestments, and I considered Chap. 39.

The manner how the Nesson made the Sacramentall Bread, and I was much troubled. The manner what I should doe; whether I should receive the Sacrament of them, or should celebrate it in their how the Nisson what I mount docymeters I mount rectain you have a state of the state Armeniams; all which had not feene the Sacrament innce they were taken: because the Nesto- Christians rians would not admit them to their Church, vnlesse they were baptized of them, as they said, consesse themyet they made no mention of this to vs. And they offered their Sacrament freely to vs, and made feines, and reyet they made no mencion of this to say that I might fee their manner of Confecration. And also on crament of the Vigill or Reuen before Easter, by the Font, that I might see their manner of baptizing. They Frier william fay, they have of that Oyntment, wherewith Mary Magdalene anoynted the feet of our in the dayes of Lord, and they power in as much of that Oyle, with that which they lay alide, and kneade their the Lords Sup bread therewith. For all those people of the East put fat in their bread, in stead of Leuen or per, and Easter Butter, or Suet of a sheepes tayle, or Oyle. They fay also that they have of the flowre, whereof the bread was made, which the Lord con-

fecrated: and alwayes powre out so much Oyle with it, as the flowre they lay aside. And they haue a Chamber hard by their Quire, and an Ouen, where they bake the bread, which they must confecrate with great reuerence. They therefore make one Loafe of an hand breadth, with the forefaid Oyle, which they first breake into twelve pieces, according to the number of the Apo-20 files : and after divide those pieces, according to the multitude of the people : and the Priest gives the bodie of Christ to every one in his hand. And then every man taketh it out of the Palme of his hand with reuerence, and stretcheth his hand to the top of his head.

The forefaid Christians, and the Monke himselfe were very earnest, intreating vs for Gods TheChristians fake, that wee would celebrate. Then I made them bee confessed, by an Interpreter, as I desire the Sacould, reckoning up the tenne Commandements, and the feuen deadly Sinnes, and other Confession. things, for the which a man ought to bee grieued, and confessed. All of them publikely ex- These exclusion cused themselves concerning Theft, saying, that without Theft they could not line, because ded the ten their Masters prouided them neither food nor rayment. Then considering , that they had Commande. taken away the persons and their substance without just cause, I said voto them, that they ments per-30 might lawfully take necessaries, of the goods of their Masters, and I was readie to main- lowes were of tayne it to the face of Mangu Chan.

Some of them also were Souldiers, who excused themselves, that they must needs goe rersminde, to the Warres, or else they should bee slaine; I firmely forbad them to goe against the Chris which thought flians, and that they should not burt them, they should rather suffer themselves to bee K-Henry had flaine, for so they should become Martyrs. And I said, that if any would accuse mee of Decalogue. this Doctrine before Mangu Chan, I would bee readie to preach the same in his hearing. For the Neftorians themselves of the Court were present, when I taught this; of whom I was fulpitions, least they should report ill of vs. Then Master William caused an Iron to bee made 40 for vs,, to make Hofts, and hee had certayne Veitments which hee had made for himselfe : for he had some knowledge in Learning, and behaued himselfe as a Clerke. Hee caused the Image of the bleffed Virgin Marie to bee graven after the French fashion, and ingraved the vp the bodie of Christ therein, and the Relikes, in certayne little holes cunningly made in the fides of the Boxe.

Hee made alto a certayne Oratorie vpon a Chariot, very fairely painted with holy Histories. I therefore tooke his Vestments and blessed them , and wee made Hosts , after our manner, very faire; and the Nestorians affigned mee their Font for Baptisme, wherein The Partiarch there was an Altar. And their Patriarch fent them from Baldach, a square Hide like a portable Altar, made with Chrisme, which they vie in stead of confecrated Stone. There- ans remayneth 50 fore I celebrated on the Day of the Lords Supper, in their filter Chalice and Diff. which at Ealdach. were very great Veffels; I did the like also on Easter day. And wee communicated the people with the blefling of God, as I hope. But they baptized in the Vigill of Eafter more then threefcore persons very orderly. There was great toy generally among all Christians.

Hiftory of the Gospell (in the Casements) very faire, and made a certayne filter Boxe, to lay

"Hen it hapned that Master William was grieuously sicke, and when hee was your reco- Chap. 40. I uerie, the Monke viliting him, gaue him Rubarbe to drinke, so that hee had almost william Boukilled him. Then vifiting him, when I found him foill at eafe, I asked him, what hee had chirris ficke, the Monke gieaten or drunke? And hee told mee, the Monke had given him the forefaid Potion, and hee weth him Rudrunke two little Difnes full, thinking it had beene Holy Water. Then I went to the Monke, barbe; the and find voto him, Either goe as an Apostle doing Miracles indeed, by vertue of Prayer, and Priest tonas is and and visio in m, either goe as an Aposte using aniactes model, by the Holy Ghoft, or doe as a Physician according to the arte of Medicine. You give a strong sicke: Friet without adul-miftre: hthe Lords Supper vote him, and anionteth him beeing readie to dye. Hee reprouerb the Monke for his Sorecries.

Potton of Phylicke to drinke, to men not prepared, as if it were a certayne hollow thing, for the which you will incurre a foule feandall, if it come to the knowledge of men. From that time he began to feare and to beware of him.

It hapneth at that time, that that Priest was sicke, who was, as it were, the Archdeacon of nasisficke and the rest: and his frien is sent for a cerrayne Saracen, which was a Sooth-fayer. Who fiid vnto them, A certaine leane man, who neyther easeth, nor drinketh, nor fleepes in a Bed, is angry with him: of bee can obtayne his bleffing bee may recover. Then they understood it was the Monke. And about mid-night, the Priests Wife, his Sister, and his Sonne came, intreating that hee would come, and bleffe him. They also raised vs vp, to intreate the Monke. Then he said vnto vs , intreating him : Let him alone, because hee with three others, who likewise tooke emill courses, 10 consulted to goe vnto the Court, to procure Mangu Chan, that I and you should bee expelled from these parts.

For there arose a contention among them, because Manon and his Wives sent source Iascots and certayne Silkes upon Easter Eenen to the Monke and Priests, to distribute among them. And the Monke had kept vnto himselte one Iaicot for his part, and of the other three, one was counterfeit, for it was Copper. Where pon it seemed to the Priests, that the Monke had kept too great a portion to himfelfe, Whence (it might bee) that they had some words among themselves, which were reported to the Monke. When day came I went vnto the Prieit, hauing an extreme griefe in his fide, and spitting bloud : whereupon I thought it was an Impostume. Then I countelled him (if he had any thing that was an others) to restore 20 The Nelwins 1t. He laid, hee had nothing. I spoke vnto him also of the Sacrament of Extreme Vnction. knownes Ex- Who answered, we have no such custome, neither doe our Priests know how to doe it: I intrest tremeVaction, you, that you would doe it for mee, as you know best to bee done. I aduised him also concerning Confession, which they frequent not, hee spake shortly in the Eare of a certayne

Priest, one of his fellowes.

After this hee beganne to bee better, and hee intreated mee to goe for the Monke. So I went, but the Monke would not come at the first : yet when hee heard hee was some-what better, hee went with his Ctoffe. And I also went, and carryed (in a Boxe of Master Williams) the bodie of Chrift, which I had referued vpon Easter Day, at the intreatie of Maiter Williams. Then the Monke beganne to kicke him with his feet , and hee most humbly im-

Then I faid vnto him; It is the custome of the Church of Rome, that the ficke should receive the Bodie of Christ, as it were prouision for their journey, and a defence against all the Deceits of the Enemie. Behold, the Bodie of Christ, which I confecrated on Easter Day. You must be confessed, and desire it. Then said hee with a great Faith, I desire it with all my heart. Which, when I had discouered, hee, with great affection said, I beleeue, that this is my Creatour and my Sauiour, who gaue mee life, and will reftore it againe vnto mee after death in the generall Refurrection: and so tooke the Bodie of Christ (from my hand) made after the manner of the Church of Rome. Then the Monke abode with him, and gaue him (in my absence) I know not what Potions. On the morrow hee beganne to have the pangs of 40 death upon him. Then taking their Oyle, which they said, was holy, I anointed him according to the manner of the Church of Rome, as they intreated mee. I had none of our Oyle, becaule the Priests of Sartach kept all,

And when wee should fing a Dirge, and I would have beene present at his end, the Monke fent vnto mee, willing me to depart, because if I should bee present, I could not come into the He threispres houle of Mangu Chan, for one whole yeare. Which, when I had told his friends, they faid, it was true : and requested me to depart, left I might be lundered in that good, which I might promote. Affoone as hee was dead, the Monke fail vnto mee, care not : I haue killed him with my Prayers. This fellow only was Learned, and opposed himselfe against vs: the rest know nothing. Henceforth Mangu Chan himselfe, and they all will crouch at our feete. Then hee de- 50 clared vnto me the forefaid Answere of the Sooth-fayer. Which (not beleeuing it) I inquired of the Priests who were friends of the dead, whether it were true or no. Who said it was, But whether he were pre-instructed or not, that they knew not. Afterwards I found, that the The Monkey. Monke called the forelaid Sooth-layer and his Wife into his Chappell, and caused dust to bee feth Duinais fifted, and to diume vnto him. For hee had a certayne Rutenian Deacon, who diumed to him. Which, when I understood, I was astonied at his foolishnosse, and said vinto him, Brother, a man full of the Holy Ghost which teacheth all things, should not demand Answeres or Counsell from Sooth-sayers; seeing all such things are forbidden, and they excommunicated, who follow such things. Then hee beganne to excuse himselfe that it was not true, that hee fought after such things. But I could not depart from him, because I was placed there by 60 the commandement of Chan himselte, nor could I remocue my selfe without his speciall command.

fen with one that dyeth, carno: come into the pretence of the Prince, for the mis is tenne times more worth then that Palace, and more too. There are two fireets there : on of the Cione of the Saracens, where the Faires are kept : and many Merchants have recourse thither, tie of caracaby reason of the Court, which is alwayes neere, and for the multitude of Messengers. There rum, they are is another street of the Cataians, who are all Artificers. Without those streets there are great examined: Palices, which are the Courts of the Secretaries. There are there twelve kindes of Idolatries fenden h.s. of divers Nations. Two Churches of Mahomet, where the Law of Mahomet is proclaimed : brethren aone Church of the Christians at the end of the Towne. The Towne is inclosed with a mudde gainst divers

Oncerning the Citie of Caracarum, know this, that excluding the Palace of Chan him-Celte, it is not to good, as the Cattle of Saint Denis: and the Monasterie of Saint De-Chap. 41.

Io Wall, and hath foure Gates. On the East part Millet and other Graine is fold, which yet is Kingdomes, fildome brought thither. On the West, Sheepe and Goates. On the South, Oxen and Wag- the Monke gons are fold. At the North, Hories are fold. Following the Court, before the Ascension, wee Saracensfarecame thither the Sunday before the Ascension. The next day after, we were called before Bul. well. The Wife gai, who is a Iuftice, and chiefe Secretarie, both the Monke and all his Family, and wee, and of Mangu Chan all the Meffengers and Strangers, which frequented the house of the Monke. And wee were dyeth called before Bulgar fenerally, first the Monke, and after wee, and they beganne diligently to inquire whence wee were, and for what purpose wee came, and what our errand was? And this inquirie was made, because it was told Mangu Chan, that foure hundred Hassasines, or fecret Murtherers were gone forth in divers Habits to kill him. About that time the forefaid 20 Ladie was restored to health, and shee sent for the Monke; and hee not willing to goe, answered : shee hath fent for Idolaters about her, let them cure her, if they can. I will goe no more. Vpon Ascension Eeuen, wee were in all the houses of Mangu Chan : and I saw when hee should drinke, how they cast Cosmos to their Idols of Felt. Then I said to the Monke, What fellowshippe hath Christ with Beliall. What part hath our Crosse with Moreouer, Manga Chan hath eight Brethren, three by the Mother, and fine by the Father. One of them of his Mothers fide, hee fent into the Countrey of the Halfafines, who are called by them Mulibet: and hee commanded to kill them all. Another went towards The Countrey Perfia, and is now entred therein, to goe (as is thought) into Turkie, from thence to fend of the Haffa. 30 Armies against Baldach , and Vastacius. One of the other he sent into Cataia, against some that since, or Mulirebelled. His youngest Brother of the same venter, hee kept nigh himselse, whose name was bet.

Arabucha, who holdeth his Mothers Court which was a Christian, whose Servant Master Some of Ge-William is : for one of his Brothers, on the Fathers fide, tooke him in Hungarie in a certayne Ci- tais rebell, tie, called Belgrade, where there was a Norman Bishoppe, of Belle-Ville neere Roan, with a certayne Nephew of the Bishoppes, whom I saw there at Caracarum. And hee gave Master William to Mangues Mother, because shee was very earnest to have him. When she was dead. Master William came backe againe to Arabucha, with all things else pertayning to the Court of his Mother : and from him hee came to the knowledge of Mangu Chan. Who after the finishing of the foresaid Worke, gaue vnto Master William an hundred Iascots, that is, a thou-

40 fand Markes.

On the Ecuen therefore of the Ascension, Mangu Chan said, hee would goe to his Mothers Court, and visit her, for it was neere. And the Monke said, hee would goe with him, and giue his bleffing to his Mothers foule. Chan was well contented. In the Evening, the day of Accesson day. the Ascension, the foresaid Ladie was very much pained. And the chiefe of the Sooth sayers fent to the Monke , commanding him that the Table thould not be smitten. On the morrow, when the whole Court remooued, the Court of the foresaid Ladie remayned still. And when wee came to the place where the Court should stay, the Monke was commanded to depart further from the Court, then hee was wont : which hee did. Then Arabucha met his brother Arabucha the Chan. So the Monke, and wee, feeing that hee was to paffe by vs, met him with the Crofle, yongerbro 30 And hee calling vs to minde, because sometimes he had beene at our Oratorie, firetching forth ther of Manga his hand, made a Croffe vnto vs, like a Bishop. Then the Monke taking Horle, followed chan. him, bearing certayne Fruits. But hee alighted, before his brothers Gourt, wayting, while hee came from hunting. Then the Monke alighted there, and offered him the Fruit, which hee received. And hard by him fate two Saracens, of the Nobilitie of the Court of Chan. But Arabucha vinderstanding of the contention betweene the Christians and the Saracens, enquired of Ignorant zeale the Monke if hee knew the faid Saraceus; and hee answered, I know they are Dogges: aberrayer of why haue you them so neere you! but they replyed ; why, say they, doe you wrong vs, the Faith, a when wee doe none to you! To whom the Monke faid, I speake the truth: and yee, and cause perhaps your Mahomet are vile Dogges. Then they beganne to answere blasphemously against Christ; of Taitorina

60 and Arabucha forbad them, faying, speake not so blasphemously, for weeknow, that the Stratemine. Messia is God. That very houre there arose so great a winde over all the street, that the Wises of the Deuils feemed to runne through them. And after awhile, there came Rumours, that the La- dyeth. die was dead.

The next morning, Chan returning towards his Court another way. For this is their Sorcerie, that they neuer returne the same way they came. Moreouer, while the Court abode heere, after the remooue thereof, none dare passe that way (neither Horseman nor Footman) -where the Court stayed, so long as any shew of the fire made there, remayneth. That day certayne Saracens kept company with the Monke vpon the way, prouoking him, and disputing with him. And when hee could not defend himfelfe with Argument, and they mocked him, hee would have lashed them with the Whip which hee held in his hand; and hee went so farre, that the forefaid words were reported at the Court. And wee were commanded to depart with other Mellengers, and not abide before the Court, where wee were wont. And I alwayes hoped, the King of Armenia would come. There came fome about Eafter from Bo- 10 lac, where those Dutchmen are, for whose fake chiefly I went thither, who told mee, that the Dutch Priest should come to the Court. Therefore I mooued no Question to Mangu, concerning our flay, or departure. And in the beginning hee gaue vs leaue to flay but two monethes: and now fue monethes are past. This was done about the end of May. And wee had continued there all Ianuary, February, March, Aprill, and May. But hearing no newes of the King, or the said Priest, and fearing leit wee should returne in the Winter, whose sharpnesse wee lad prooud, I caused to bee demanded of Mangu Chan, what his pleasure was concerning vs, because willingly were would euer stay there, if so hee pleased. But if wee must returne, it were easier for vs to returne in Summer, then in the Winter. Hee presently fent vnto mee, commanding, that I should not goe farre off, because his pleasure was to speake 20 with mee the next day. But I told him, that if hee would speake with mee, hee should fend for Master Williams Sonne , for my Interpreter was not sufficient. And hee . that spake with mee, was a Saracen, who had beene a Messenger to Vastacim: and (blinded with Rewards ) counselled Vastacius to send Ambassadours to Mangu Chan, and the meane while the time palled: for Vastacius thought , hee would presently enter his Countrey. So hee fent, and after hee knew them, hee little regarded them, nor made peace with them , neither did they yet enter his Countrey : nor shall they bee able , so long The Tartan do as they dare defend themselues, nor did they ever take any Countrey by Force, but by more by deceit Deceit. And because men make peace with them , vnder colour of that peace they o-

Then hee beganne to bee very Inquisitive of the Pope, and of the King of the Franckes, and of the way to goe to them. But the Monke hearing this , adulfed mee fecretly not to answere him, because he would procure, that an Ambassadour should be sent. Whereupon I held my peace, not willing to answere him. And hee spake vnto mee I know not what injurious words; for the which the Neftorian Priefts would have accused him : so that hee had either beene flaine, or beaten all to clouts, but I would not.

examined

Chap. 42. ON the morrow, (to wit) the Sunday before Pentecoft, they brought mee to the Court:
They are often On the morrow of Model, who wayteth upon Chans cup, and the reft, Saracens, inquiring on the behalfe of Chan, wherefore I came? Then I 40 wherfore they told them the foresaid words, how I came to Sartach, and from Sartach to Baatu, and how Baatu fent me thither. Whereupon, I faid vnto him, I have nothing to speake on the behalfe of any to make com- man, vnlesse I should speake the words of God vnto him, if he would heare them; for he should parison of Di- best know what Basts hath written to him. They stucke vpon this word, demanding, what words of God I would speake vnto him? thinking I would prophese vnto him some prosperous The most lear- thing, as many vse to doe. To whom I answered: if yee will that I speake the words of God Friet William vnto him, get me an Interpreter. Who faid, we have fent for him, yet speake by this Interprewith the Idolater, as you may: wee shall vnderstand you well. And they vrged mee much to speake. Then I ters. The Sa- faid: This is the word of God: To whom more is committed, more is required at his hands, anovaccons acconon- the ralfo : to whom more is forginen, hee ought to lone more out of these true words of God, I sud, to 50 ledge the ruth Mangu bimfelfe, that God bath ginen him much. For the power and riches which hee hath, the Idols of the Tuinians have not given him, but the Omnipotent God, who hath made Heanen and Earth, in whose conference of bands all Kingdomes are, and hee translates them from Nation to Nation for the sinnes of men. Friet William, Wherefore if he love him, it shall goe well with him: if otherwise, let him know, that God will require all with the Ser, these things at his bands, even to the vitermost farthing. Then faid one of the Saracens, Is there any man that loueth not God? I answered, God faith, if any man loue me, he will keepe my Commandements: and be that loueth me not, keepeth not my Commandements. Therefore, hee that keepeth not the Commandements of God, loneth not God. Then faid hee, have yee hin in Heaven, that yee might know the Commandements of God! No faid I, but he hash given them from Heaven to boly men : and at the last himselfe descended from Heauen, teaching vs : and wee have those things in the 60 Scriptures, and we fee by the workes of men, whether they keepe them or no. Whereto hee replyed, will yee then fay that Mangu Chan keepes not the Commandements of God ? To whom I faid, Your Interpreter wil come, as yee lay, then before Mangu (ban(i' it please him) I wil recite the

CHAP. I. The Can waters betwixt Ethnikes, Saracens and Christians.

Commandements of God, and he shall be his owne Iudge, whether hee keepe them or not. So they departed, and told him, that I faid, hee was an Idolater or a Trune, and kept not the Commandements of God. The next day, he fent his Secretaries vinto mee, faying : Our Lord fends vs vnto you, faying. Yee are heere Christians, Saracens, and Tienes: and every of you faith, his Magu Chan Law is better, and his Letters (to wit) Bookes, are truer. Wherefore hee would, that yee all defieth to come together, and make comparison, that every one write his words, that he might know the have a compacome together, and make comparison, that energy one writer his words, that he might know the ridon mide truth. Then I laid, Bleffedbe God, who hash put this in the heart of Chan, but our Scriptures faid, the concerning discovery the concerning discovery that the concerning discovery that the concerning discovery that the concerning discovery th Servant of God must not bee contentious, but meeke unto all: wherefore I am readie without strife and uine things, contention, to render an account of the faith and hope of Christians, to every one that shall require it. between the 10 Then they wrote my words, and brought them to him. Then the Nestorians were comman. Christians, Sadded, to prouide themselues, and write what they would speake, and the Saracons likewise, and trois ter: the Tumians also.

On the morrow hee fent the Secretaries againe, faying: Mangu Chan would know, wherefore yee came to thele parts, to whom I faid : That hee shall know by the Letters of Bastn. Then faid they, Bastness Letters are left, and hee hath forgotten, what Bastn wrote vnto him, wherefore he would know of you. Then tomew at imboldned, I faid vnto them. The His Anface dutie or office of our Religion is to preach the Gospell to all: whereupon, when I heard of the same of the people of Moal, I had a defire to come unto them: and while I was thus purposed, we heard of Sartach, that he was a Christian. Then I directed my Journey wnto him : And my Souer eigne Lord the King of 20 the Frankes fent him Letters, contaying good words: and other words besides, testifie of vs vnto him, what men wee are when bee made request, that hee would suffer us to continue with the people of Moal. Then be fent us to Baatu, and Baatu to Mangu Chan. In bereupon we intreated, and yet intreat him to fuffer visto flay. But they wrote all, and made relation thereof vnto him. On the morrow, he fent to me againe, laying: Chank no wes well en argh that yee have no meffage vnto him, but yee came to pray for him as many other Priefts doe : But hee deman leth, whether euer any of your Embaffadours were with him, or ours with you! Then I declared all vinto them concerning David and Frier Andrew, to they putting all in writing, reported the fame vnto him. Then he fent againe vntome, faying : Our Lord Chan fair h, yee haue stayed long here, his pleasure is, Mauea Châu that yee returne vinto your Country; withall, hee demandeth whether yee would conduct his will have them 30 Emballadours with you. To whom I made antiwere, that I durit not carrie his Emballadours returne, beyond his owne Countrey : because there is a Warlike Nation betweene vs and you , and the Sea and Mountaynes, and I am a prore Monke : and therefore dare not take vpon mee to bee his Guide. So they having fet downe all in writing, returned. Whitfon Eeuen came; The Neftorians writ Chronicles from the Creation of the World to Whitfunday the Passion of Christ; and passing over the Passion, they spake of the Resurrection of the dead, Ecuca. and of the Ascention, and of the comming to Judgement. Wherein somewhat was to be reprehended which I told them, and wee likewile wrote the Symbole of the Masse, Credo in vnum Deum. Then I demanded of them, how they would proceed. They faid, they would first dispute with the Saracens. I shewed them, this was no good course: for the Saracens in this agree with vs, 40 who affirme, there is but one God. Wherefore, yee shall have them to helpe you against the Tuines: to they were contented. Then I asked tem, if they knew how Idolatry had his first How Idolatry originall in the World, and they could not tell. Then I told them and they faid; yee shall de- begin first in clare thefe things vnto them : and then let vs speake; for it is hard to speake by an Interpreter, the World. To whom I said: make tryall, how yee will behaue your selues against them : I will take the Tuinians part, and yee the Christians. Suppose I am of that Sect, that say, there is no God. Proue yee there is a God. For there is a certayne Sect there, which faith, That every foule, and every vertue in what thing foeuer, is the God thereor, and that otherwise there is no God. Then the Nestorians knew not how to produc any thing, but only that which their Writing declareth. I faid, they believe not the Scriptures : if yee thew one, they will thew another. Then I 50 counfelled them, to let me first talke with them : because if I should be ouercome, they might yet have libertie of speech: if they should be ouerthrowne, I should have no hearing. They agreed

Wee were therefore gathered together on Whidfon Euen at our Oratorie, and Mangu Chan fent three Writers, who should be Judges : one (briftian, one Saracen, and one Tuine: And it was proclaimed before. This is the Commandement of Mangu Chan : And none dare fay that the The Proclaims-Commandement of God is otherwise: He commandet b that none freshe contentious or inturious words tion of Manga to other, nor make any tumnit, whereby this businesse might be hindered, opon pline of his head. Then chan. all were ident : And there was a great affembly there : for every partie inuited the wifest of their Nation, and many others came flocking thither. Then the Christians for me in the midthen transit, and many in Tuineas to speake with mee. Then they (who are many in number) The murmu-

60 began to murmure against Mangu Chan, because never any Chan attempted thus much, to search ring of the Iinto their feerets. Then they opposed one vnto mee, who came from Catata, having his Inter- dol tors apreter : and I had Mafter Williams Sonne. And he first faid vinto me : Friend, if you bee brought to wind Mangu leeues better. Then the Arbitrators judged this to bee reasonable. They would have begunne be compelled to labour after death for confirmation also thereof (as Master William told mee) a three yeeres old, yet not withflanding was capable of any reason; who affirmed of himselfe, that he had beene three times incorporated, and knew letters, and how to write. I faid to the toresaid Tuinian, Wee firmely beleene with the heart, and confesse with the mouth, that there is a God, potent, God knowes Godperfectly

but one God, but Wife men fay there are many. Are there not great Lords in your Country, and Stere is a greater Lord, Manga Chan? So is it of the gods : because in divers Countries there are divers. To whom I faid : You make an ill example or comparison of men with God; for so every migh- 20 tie man in his countrey may be called a god. And when I would have dissolved the similitude, hee preuented me, inquiring; What manner of God is yours, whereof you speake, that hee is but Gadis Omni. one? I answered : Our God, beside whom there is no other, is Omnipotent, and therefore needeth not the helpe of another : nay, all we have neede of his helpe, it is not so with men. No man can doe all things. And therefore there must be many Lords in the earth, because no one can support all. Againe, be knowes all things, therefore be needes not a Counfeller : nay, all wifedome is from him. Moreoner, be ss perfettly good, and needeth not our good : nay, in him we line, mone, and have our being. Such is our God, and therefore you must not hold there is any other. It is not so, faith he. Nay, there is one highest in the Heauens, whote Generation we know not yet, and ten are vnder him, and vnder them there is one Inferiour. And in the Earth there are infinite. Then hee would have added other fables. 30 So I asked him of that highest God, whether he thought he were Omnipotent ! or of any other God ? and fearing to answer, hee demanded, if your God bee such as you say, Why made bee the balfe of things cuill? It is false said I. Whoso maketh any enill is no God, and all things what sener are good. At this word all the Tuinians maruelled, and let it downe in writing, as falle, or impossible. Then he began to aske, Whence therefore commeth euill You aske amille, faid I; For first you foodld demand, what euil is, before you aske whence it is. But returne unto the firft question, whether you beleeve that any God is Omnipotent, and after I will answer you to all what soener you will demand. Then hee fate along time and would not answer; Infomuch, as the Writers on the behalfe of Chan, were faine to command him to answer. At length hee answered : That no God was Omnipotent. Then all the Saracens brake out into great laughter : Silence being made, I laid, There- 40 fore none of your gods can since you is all dangers, because such a chance may happen, wherein he bath no power. Againe, no man can serue two Masters. How then can you ferue so many Lords in Heauen and in earth. The Auditorie willed him to answer. But he held his peace. Then when I was about to alleadge reasons to proue the truth of the divine Essence, and the Trinitie, in every mans hearing, the Nestorians of the Countrey faid vnto me, that it was enough, because they meane to Speake. So I gaue them place : And when they would have disputed with the Saracens : they answered : We grant that your Law is true, and what soener is in the Gospell is true : Wherefore wee will not dispute with you in any thing : and they confessed, that they beg at the hands of God in their prayers, that they may die the death of the Christians. There was there a certaine old Priest of the Sect of Ingurs, who confesse one God, yet they make Idols, with whom they talked much, so shewing all till the comming of Christ to judgement, declaring the Trinitie to him and the Saracens by similitudes. All of them harkened without any contradiction; yet none of them faid. I beleeve, and will become a Christian. The conference ended, the Nestorians and the Saracens fang together with a loud voice, the Tuinians holding their peace : and after that, they all

The Sarasens aniwer , that the Gospell is The Sect of the lugars.

Chap 43.

The day of Pentecoft he is called be-

tore Mangu

drunke abundantly.

VPon Whitfonday Mangu Chan called mee before him, and the Twinan with whom I di-funted, and before I went in, Master Williams sonne my Interpreter, said unto me, that we must returne vnto our Countrey; and that I should speake nothing against it, because he vnderstood it for a certaine. When I came before him, I must kneele, and the Tunnian by mee, with 60 his Interpreter. Then he faid vnto me: Tell me the truth , whether you faid (when I fent my chin, who com- Writers vnto you) that I was a Tuinian? Then I answered. My Lord, I said not so, but (if it feffeth the faith pleated your Highnesse) I will tell you the words I spake. Then I recited what I had spoken : and he answered; I thought well, you faid not to, for it was a word which you should not speake, his returne by Baats, he craneth leave to flay there, which is not graunted but your Interpreter hath ill interpreted it; fo hee reacheth foorth his staffe towards mee, whereon he leaned, laying : Feare not. I fmiling faid tofely, If I feared, I had not come hither. A token of fa-Then he demanded of the Interpreter what I had faid? So he repeated my words with him. Af- uour. terwardhe beganne to confesse his Faith unto me. Wee Moallians (faith he ) beleene, that there Thefaith of is but one God, through whom we like and dye; and we have an vpright heart towards hims. Then (laid the Teriars. 1) God grant youthis, for without this gift it cannot be. And he demanded what I faid : fo the Interpreter told him; then he added turther. That as God hath gimen unto the hand diners fingers, so be hath given many waves to men. God hath given the Scriptures to you, and ye Christians keep them not. Te finde it not in the Scriptures, that one of you shall dispraise another? Doe you finde it, said he? 10 No, faid I, but I fignified vnto you from the beginning, that I would not contend with any. I freake is not, faith he, touching you. In like manner, yee finde it not, that for Money a man ought to decline from Inflice. No Sir, laid I, and truly, neither came I into thele parts to get Money; nay, Irefused that which was given me. And there was a Writer present there, who gave teltimony that I had refused a Iakot, and certaine pieces of Silke : I speake it not (faid he) for that. God hash given you the Scriptures, and yee keepe them not : But be bath given us South-fayers, and we doe that which they bid vs, and we live in peace. He dranke foure times as I thinke, before hee dif-

closed their things. And while I hearkned attentiuely whether hee would confesse any thing effe concerning this Faith, he beganne to speake of my returne, saying : You have stayed a long He speaketh of time heere, my pleasure is therefore, that you returne. You faid, you durft not carrie my Em- the Fryerere 20 baffadours with you. Will you carrie my meffage or my Letters ? And from that time I could turnes neither have place nor time to shew him the Catholike Faith. For a man cannot speake before him, faue what he pleaseth, vinlesse he were an Embassadour. But an Embassadour may speake what he will : And they alwaies demand, whether he have any thing elfe to fay. But he fuffered me to speake no more: but I must heare him, and answere Interrogatories. Then I answered red, That if he could make me understand his words, and that they were fet downe in writing. I would willingly carrie them to my power. Then he asked me, if I would have Gold or Siluer, or costly garments! I said, we receive no such things; but we have not expenses, and without your helpe, we cannot get out of your Countrey. Then faid he, I will prouide you all neceffaries throughout my Countrey, will you any more? I answered, it sufficeth me : Then he de-30 manded, how farre will you be brought ? I faid, Let our Palle bring vs into the King of Armemines Countrey : if I were there, it were enough. He answered : I will cause you to be conueyed thither, and after looke to your selfe. And hee added : there are two eyes in one head; and though they bee two, yet there is one aspect of both, and whither the one directeth the fight the other doth. You came from Baatu, and therefore you must returne by him: when hee had Baatus greatthus faid, I craued licence to speake. Speake on, faith hee. Then faid I; Sir, wee are not men of nesses. warre: wee defire that they have dominion of the world, who would more initly gonerne it, according to the will of God. Our office is to teach men to line according to the will of God: for this Hee craueth ding to the will of God. Our effect is to teacomen to use according to the will of God. Our effect is to teach the purple came we into the fe parts, and would willingly home remained here; if it had placeful one leuvergine purple came we into the feat that we returne, it may be 6, I will returne and carrie your Letters that we returne, it may be 6, I will returne and carrie your Letters that we returne, it may be 6.

40 according to my power, as yee have commanded. I would request your magnificence, that when I but it is not base carried your Letters, it might bee lawfull for me to returne unto you with your good liking, granted. chiefely, because yee have poore Servants of yours at Bolac, who are of our language; and they want a Priest, to teach them and their children their Law, and I would willingly flay with them. Then answered he : Know you whether your Lords would fend you backe to me ? Then faid I ; Sir, I know not the purpose of my Lords: but I have luence from them to goe whether I will, where it were needfull to preach the word of God: and it seemeth to mee, that it were very necessarie in these parts: whereupon, whether they fend Embassadours backe or no, if it pleased you, I would returne. Then hee held his peace, and fate a long space as it were in a Muse. And my Interpreter willed me, to Hedeparteth speake no more, and I carefully expected what he would answere. At length he said : You have from the pre-50 a long way to goe, make your felfe strong with food, that you may come lusty into your Countrey. And he caused them to give me drinke. Then I departed from his presence and returned not againe. If I had had power to doe wonders as Mofes did, peraduenture hee had humbled himfelfe.

Ooth-sayers therefore, as hee confessed, are their Priests: and what soeuer they command to A description Soch-sayers therefore, as hee confessed, are their Priests: and whattoeuer they command to of the Teriaribeedone, is performed without delay. Whose office I describe vnto you, as I could learne of an Sorcerers, Malter William, and others, who reported vnto me things likely to be true. They are many; and and or their they have alwaies one Captaine or chiefe Prieft : who alwaies placeth his house before the great divers ard vm house of Mangu (ban, neere, within a stones cast. Vnder his custodie (as I said before) are the lawfull behause 60 Chariots which beare their Idols, The others are behind the Court, in places appointed for them. Chiefe Price And they who have any confidence in that Art, come vnto them from divers parts of the of the Tartari. World. Some of them are skilfull in Aftronomie, specially the chiefe of them. And they fore- Some of them tell to them the Eclipse of the Sunne and the Moone, and when it shall come to passe. All the know Astrono. people prepare them food, to that they need not goe forth of the doore of their house. And Eckiples,

when

nery yeare.

They are caldiffinies, and derfull thing. are alto tent for when any

The falle ac-

the Sorcerers.

the Neft mans in Catala.

when there is an Eclipfe, they play upon their Timbrels and Organs, and make a great noise, and a loude crye, when the Eclipse is pail, they give themselves to feathing, and drinking, and make They fore-rell greation. They foretell fortunate and valueky dayes for all businesse or affaires. Whereupon luck/ and vn- they never levie an Armie, nor vndertake Warre without their direction. And they had long for unat data fine returned into Hungarie; but their Sooth-layers doe not fuffer them. They make all thines mance of all which are fent to the Court palle betweene fires, and they have a due portion thereof. They bulled what alto purge all the houshold-ituffe of the Dead, drawing them betweene the fires. For when focuerany one dieth, all things what focuer appertagne to him, are feparated, and not mingled with
They confeall other things of the Court, till all be purged by the Fire. So did I fee it done to the Court of the Compaffe that Ladie, which died, while wee were there. Whereupon, there was a double reason why to betweene frees. Friar Andrew, and his fellowes should goe betweene the fires, both because he brought presents. Friar Anders, as alfo for that they belonged to him, who was dead, (to wit) Ken Chan. No such thing was and his cllows required of me, because I brought nothing. If any living creature, or any thing else, fall to the ground, while they thus make them paffe betweene the fires , that is theirs. They also the The night day minth day of the Moone of May, gather together all the white Mares of the Herd, and confeof the Moone crate them. The Christian Priests also must come together thither with their Censers. Then o May to lonnly kept e- they cast new Cosmos upon the ground, and make a great Feast that day; because then they thinke they drinke Cosmos first, as it is the fashion tomewhere with vs, touching Wine, in the Feath of Saint Bartholmen, or Sixtue, and of fruits, in the Feath of Saint James and Christopher. They also are inuited, when any child is borne, to foretell his destinie. They are sent for also when any is ficke, to vie their Charmes : and they tell whether it bee a naturall infirmitie . or 20 by Sorcetic. Whereupon that woman of Mentz, whereof I fpake before, told mee a won-of her Ladie, who was a Christian, as I faid before. And the Sooth-favers drew them through betweene the fires, and tooke more of them then was their due. And a certaine woman, under whole custodie the treasure of her Ladie was , accused them thereof vnto her Ladie : whereyoun the Ladie her felfe reproued them. It fell out after this, that the Ladie her felfe bean to be ficke, and to fuder certaine fudden passions in diucr parts of her bodie. The Sooth-favers were called : and they fitting farre off, commanded one of those Maidens, to put her hand vpon 30 the place where the griefe was, and it thee found any thing, thee flould fnatch it away. Then thee arifing did fo. And the found a piece of Felt in her hand, or of some other thing. Then they commanded her to put it upon the ground; which being layd downe, it began to creepe, as if it had beene some living Creature. Then they put it into the water, and it was turned, as it were, into a Horse-leach: and he said, some Witch hath hurt you thus with her Sorceries: and they accused her that had accused them of the Furres, who was brought without the Tents into the fields, and received the baltinado feuen dayes together there, and was thus tormented with other punishments, to make her confesse; and in the meane space her Ladie died. Which shee vinderstanding, faid vinto them, I know my Ladie is dead, kill mer, that I may goe after her, for I neuer did her hurt. And when thee confelled nothing . Manon Chan 40 commanded to faffer her to line. Then the Sorcerers accused the Ladies daughters Nurse, of whom I spake before: who was a Christian, and her husband was the chiefe among all the Neforian Priests, to shee was brought to punishment, with a certaine Maide of hers, to make her confesse. And the Maide confessed, that her Mistresse sent her to speake with a certaine Horse, to demand answeres. The woman also her felfe, confessed some things which shee did to bee beloued of her Ladie, that the might doe her good, but thee did nothing that might hurt her. Shee was demanded alfo, whether her husband were privile to it: thee excufed him, for that he had burnt the Characters and Letters which she had made. Then shee was put to death, and Manon The Bishop of Chan sene the Priest her husband to the Bishop which was in Cataia, to be judged, although he were not found culpable.

On a certaine time, very coffly Furres were prefented, which were layd downe at the Court

In the meane time it fell out, that the principall wife of Mangu Chan, brought forth a sonne, and the Sooth-fayers were called, to fore-tell the Destinie of the child, who all prophecied prosperitie, and faid, he should live long, and be a great Lord : after a few dayes, it happened, the child died. Then, the mother enraged, called the Sooth-layers, faying, you faid my fonne should line, and loe hee is dead. Then they faid, Madam, behold wee fee that Sorcereffe, the Nurle of Chrina, who the other day was put to death, shee hath killed your sonne; and behold wee see. fnee carries him away. Now there remayned one fonne and a daughter of that woman growne to full age in the Tents: and the Ladie fent prefently for them in a tage, and caused the young man to be flayne of a man, and the maide of a woman, in revenge of her fonne, whom the Soothfayers affirmed to be killed of their mother not long after, Mangu Chan dreamed of those chil- 60 dren, and demanded in the morning, what was become of them. His feruants were afraid to tell him : and he being troubled the more, demanded where they were, because they had anpeared vinto him in a Vition by night. Then they told him. So hee prefently fending for his wife, demanded whence shee learned, that a woman should give sentence of death, without the prinitie of her Husband . And he caufed her to be flut up feauen dayes, commanding to give her The Revenge no meat. But the man who (who flew the young man) he caused to be beheaded; and the head of Manguether, no mean. Due the man merke, who had kild the Mayde; and made her to be culgelled to be hung about the womans necke, who had kild the Mayde; and made her to be culgelled to be with burning Fire-brands through all the Tents, and after to be put to Death. Hee had all o not with burning Fire-brands through all the Tents, and after to be put to Death. Hee had allo put theren. his Wife to death, but for the Children he had by her : And he went out of his Court, and returned not till after one Moone.

The Sorcerers also trouble the Ayre with their charmes : and when the Cold is so great na- The Sorcerers turally, that they cannot apply any remedy, then they fearch out some in the Campe, whom touble the

they accuse, that the cold comes through their meanes, so they are put to Death without any Ayre with their 10 delay. A little before I departed thence, one of the Concabines was ficke, and languified long, Charmes. and they mumbled their Charmes ouer a certaine Dutch Slaue of hers, who slept three dayes. Who, when she came to her selfe, they demanded, what she had seene ? And she had seene many persons, of all which, shee judged they should all shortly dye : And because she saw not her Miftres there, they judged the should not dye of that ficknes. I faw the Maydes head yet aking by reason of that sleepe. Some of them asso call upon Deuils, and gather them together (who will The Sorecres haur answers from the Deuill) in the night vnto their house, and they pur solden fiesh in the raite vo deuils, middelt of the house, and that Chan who innoketh, beginneth to say his Charmes, and hauing a Tymbrell, imites it ftrongly against the ground; at length he begins to raue, and causeth himselfe to be bound. Then the Deuill comes in the darke, and gives him flesh to eate, and makes him an-20 fwer. On a certaine time, (as Malter William told me) a certaine Hungarian hid himfelfe with them, and the Deuill being vpon the house, cryed, that hee could not come in, because a certaine Christian was with them. He hearing this, fled with haste, because they began to search for him. These things and many other doe they, which were too long to report.

Feer the Feast of Penticost they began to make ready their Letters, which they meant to Chap. 45. A fend vnto you. In the meane while, he returned to Caracarum, and held a great Solemnity, nity. Manu 1 Liend vito you. In the meane write, in termine to the state all the Embassadours should be present. chans Letters The last day also he sent for vs, but I went to the Church to Baptise three Children of a cetto Lodowike taine poore Dusch-man, whom we found there. Mafter William was chiefe Butler at that Feaft, King of France 30 because he made the Tree which powred foorthdrinke. And all the Poore and Rich fung and the Fitter because ne made the liter which power char. Then he began to make an Oration vnto them, companion danneed, and clapped their hands before Char. Then he began to make an Oration vnto them, flareshwith faying; I have fent my Brethren farre off, and have fent them into danger, into forraigne Nations: the Tarias: the larios:
Now it shall appeare what yee will doe, when I shall send you, that our Common-wealth may be inlarged. they returne Euery day in those foure dayes, hee changed garments, which hee gaue them all of one colour, e- to Caracarum. uery day, from the shooes even to the tyre of the head. At that time I saw the Embassadour of This is also the the Cairpha of Baldach, who caused himselfe to bee carried vpon a Horse-litter, betweene two manner of the Mules, to the Court : of whom fome faid, that he made peace with them : fo that they should Flerida. giue him ten thousand Horse for his Army. Others said, that Mange said, hee would not make The Embassi-Peace, vnleffe they would deftroy all their Munition. And the Embaffadour answered; when dout of the Ca-40 you will placke off your Horse hooses, we will destroy our Munition: I saw also there, the Em. light of Ballach balladours of a certaine Soldan of India, who brought with him eight Leopards, and ten Hare- The Emballahounds taught to fit vpon the Horle buttockes, as Leopards doe. When I inquired of India, which dours of a cerway it lay from that place, they shewed me towards the West. And those Embassadours retur- taine Soldan of ned with me, almost for three Weekes together, alwayes west ward! I saw also the Embassadors India. of the Solden of Timbes, who brought him rich prefents: And hee antwered (as I heard) he needed the following the solden of the Well ded neither Gold nor Silver, but men: wherefore he required them to provide him an Army. In the fall of Salve I have be held a great Divinion and Louded on hundred and to Gray. In the Canadana. the feast of Saint John he held a great Drinking, and I caused one hundred and fine Carts, and by three weeks ninety Horses to be numbred, all laden with Cowes milke : And in the feast of the Apostles S.Pe- iourney. ninety Horses to be numbred, all laden with Cowes milke: And in the teat of the Apottes S. Feet and S. Paul, in like manner. At length the Letters being dispatched, which he fendeth to you. Saint 16611, 50 they called me, and interpreted them, the tenor whereof I writ, as I could winderstand them by June 24. my Interpreter, which is this. The commandement of the eternal God is this : There is but one The Letters of Eternall God in Heauen : upon Earth let there be but one Lord Chingis Chan, Temingu Tingij, That Manga Chan, to is to fay the found of Yron : (They call Chingis, the found of Yron, because hee was a Smith : and Lodewicke the puffed up with pride, they call him now the Sonne of God.) This is the word which is spoken to French King. you. Whatfoeuer Moals wee are, whatfoeuer Naymans, whatfoeuer Merkets, whatfoeuer Multilman, where soeuer eares may heare, whether soeuer Horse may goe, there, cause st to bee heard, and un- Moall. derstood, since they have beard my commandement, and would not beleeve it, and would leny an Army Nayman against vs, yee shall heare and see, that they shall be as bassing Eyes, and not seeing, and when they would storket.

hold any thing they shall be without hands, and when they would walke, they shall be without feet. This is the 60 commandement of the Eternall God, by the vertue of the Eternall God : by the great world of the Mcal. The comandement of Mangu Chan is given to the French King, King Lodouck, and all other Lords, and Priests and to the great world of the Frankes, that they understand my wordes, and the commaundement of the Eternall God, made to Chingis Chan. Nor from Chingis Chan, nor others after hom, came this commandement unto you. A certaine man called David came unto you, as an Embasadour chen-chan, is cilled (unecan, of leha de Plano Carpini.

of the Moalls, but he was a lyar, and with him you (ent your Embassadours to Chen-chan. After Chen-chan was dead, your Embaffadour's came to bis Court. Charmis bis wife fent you Cloth, called Nasic. But to know matters appertaying to Warre and Peace, and to settle the great World in quiet and to fee to doe good, That wicked woman, more vile then a Dog, how could free know how to doe it? Thole two Monkes which came from you unto Sartach, Sartach fent them to Baatu: but Baatu, because Mangu Chan is the greatest over the World of the Moalls, sent them unto us. But now, that the great World and the Priests, and the Monkes might line in peace, and entry their goods, that the commandement of God might be heard among you, wee would have fent our En baffadours of Moall. with your Priests: but they answered, that betweene vs and you there was a warlike Nation, and many badmen, and troublesome wayes; so as they feared they could not bring our Embassadours safe with 10 you, but if we would deliver them our Letters, contayning our commandement to King Lodowick, they would carrie them. For this cause wee sent not our Embassadours with them. But wee have fent the commandement of the eternall God by your faid Priests. It is the commandement of the eternall God. which wee have given you to understand. And when you shall heare and beleeve it, if yee will obey us. Send your Embassadours unto us, so shall wee be certified, whether yee will have peace with us, or warre, When by the power of the eternall God, the whole World shall be in unitie, ioy, and peace, from the rising of the Sunne, to the going downe of the same, then shall it oppeare what wee will doe. When yee shall heare and understand the commandement of the eternall God, and will not bearken to it, nor believe it, saying, our Countrey is farre off, our Hills are frong, our Sea is great, and in this confidence, shall levie an Armie against us, to know what wee can doe, Hee which made that which was hard, easie; and that which 20 was farre off, neere; the eternall God himselfe knowes it.

And they called vs your Embaffadors in the Letters. Then I faid vnto them, call vs not Embuffadors, for I faid well to Chan, that wee are not the Embaffadors of King Lodomicke. Then they went vnto him and told him. But when they returned, they faid vnto me: that he held it much for our good, and that he commanded them to write as I should direct them. Then I told them, they should leave out the name of Embassadour, and call vs Monkes and Priests. In the meane time, while these things were doing, my Companion hearing that wee must returne by the Wilderneffe to Basts, and that a man of Mould hould be our Guide, he ranne (without my privitie) to Bulgai the chiefe Scribe, fignifying to him by fignes that he should die, if he went that way. And when the day came, wherein we should have our Passe (to wit) a fortnight af- 30

He departeth ter the Feaft of Saint Iohn; when we were called to the Court, the Scribes faid vnto my Comthe 9. of July. panion, Behold Mangus pleafure is, that your Companion returne by Baats, and you fay, you are ficke, and it appeareth fo: Mangu fayth thus, It you will goe with your Companion, goe: but let it be your owne fault; because peraduenture you may remayne with some Iani, that will not prouide for you, and it will bee an hinderance to your Companion. But if you will flav heere, he shall prouide necessaries for you, till some Embassadours come, with whom you may returne more eafily, and by a way where there are Villages. The Friar answered . God grant

Chan a prosperous life; I will flay. Then I said vnto the Friar; Brother, bee aduited what you doe. I will not leave you. You leave not me (fayth he) but I leave you : because, if I goe with you. I fee the death of my bodie and foule, because I have not patience in intolerable labour. 40 Then they held three Garments or Coats, and faid vnto vs, Yee will not receive Gold, or Siluer, and yee haue stayed long here, and prayed for Chan: hee entreats you, that at the least euethere from the ry one of you would receive a fingle Garment; that yee depart not emptie from him. Then 27.0f Decem-berto the 9.0f we must receive them, for reverence of him : for they account it a very eurll thing, when their gifts are contemned. First, he caused vs to bee often asked, what we would have ! And wee alwaies answered the same thing: so that the Christians insulted over the Idolaters, who seeke nothing but gifts. And they answered, that wee were fooles: because if hee would give them his whole Court, they would willingly take it and should doe wifely to. Receiving therefore the Garments, they be fought vs to make our prayers for Chan; which we did. So, taking our leave, we went to Caracarum. But it happened vpon a certaine day, while wee were with the 50 Monke, farre from the Court, with other Embassadours; that the Monke caused the Table to be ftrucken in hard, that Mangu Chan heard it, and demanded what it was. Then they told him. So he asked, why he was remoued fo farre from the Court. They told him, because it was trou-blefome to bring him Horfes and Oxen every day vnto the Court; and faid further, that it were better, that he should stay at Caracarum. Then Chan fent vnto him, saying, if hee would goe to Caracarum, and flay there, neere about the Church, he would give him all things necessarie. But the Monke antiwered, I came from the holy Land of Ierufalem hither, by the commandement of God, and left that Citie, wherein there are a thouland better Churches then that cf Caracarum. If he please that I flay here and pray for him, as God commanded me, I will stay: if not , I will returne to the place from whence I came. So that every evening Oxen were 60 brought him voaked to the Carts, and in the morning he was brought vnto the place wherehee vied to be before the Court. And a little before wee departed thence, a certaine Nellorien came, who feemed to bee a wife man : Bulgai the chiefe Secretarie placed him before his Court; to whom Chan fent his children, that he should blesse them.

VV Ee came therefore to Caracarum. And while were were in Malter Williams house, my Chap. 46.

Chiefe came therefore to Caracarum. And while were were in Malter Williams house, my Chap. 46.

Chap. 46. hams hand, willing him to spend them in the behalfe of Chan, for the Friars necessities, which C. racarum, Refams hand, writing him to them the the shand of the Man of God, my Interpreter, comman turning he accompanied there; other fine he left in the shand of the Man of God, my Interpreter, comman companiesh ding to thend them upon the way, for my necessities. For Master williams had given them such Bantu a whole infructions, without our knowledge. I prefently changed one into money, and diffributed it moneth; deantitucions, without our anomicuge, specificity changes one time money, and untituded it moneth; design to the poore Cariffians, which were there: for all their eyes were fixed upon vs. Wee fpen parting, tegor another in buying necessaries things for vs. as garments, and other things, which were wanted, chroward the

which the third, the Man of God himfelt's bought fome things, wherein hee gayned fomewhat out to the which they notifiable with him: we finant the refl. and that no: because since week came into IC Which was profitable vato him : we spent the rest, and that to; because since wee came into Perfia, lufficient necessaries were no where given vs: nor yet any where among the Tarrars; He returned but we feldome found any thing to be fold there. Master Williams, sometimes your Citizen, sends by Pasa. you a certaine Girdle fet with a certaine precious-stone, which they vie to weare against thund A precious der and lightning, and infinitely falures you, alwaies commending you to God in his prayers: flone good afor whom, I shall neuer bee able to render sufficient thankes to God and you. Wee taptized sinfit thouser there in all fixe foules. Wee therefore departed one from the other with teares: my Comparate of the contract of the nion remayning with Mafter William; and I returning alone, with my Interpreter, my Guide. and one feruant; who had commandement to take one Mutton in foure dayes, for vs foure. Wee came therefore in two moneths and ten dayes from Caracaram to Bantu, and neuer law Towner, page 100 to 100 came therefore in two moneths and ten dayes from Caracarams to Basis, and neoc taw 1 owner, 700 to the Ri20 nor token of any house, bus Graues, except one Yillage, where in Wetate no Bread. Nor did we were 17 logs, is euer reit, in those two moneths, and ten dayes; saue one day, because wee could not get Horses, two moneths.

Wee returned for the most part by the same kind of people, and yet through other Countries and tendayes altogether: for we went in the Winter, and returned in the Summer, and by the higher parts in the summer. of the North by farre; except, that fifteene dayes journey wee mult goe and returne alwaies hard by a certaine River, betweene the Mountaines, where there is no lodging , but by the Ri A River beuer lide. We went two dayes, and sometimes three dayes, taking no food but Cosmos. Once Mountaines wee were in great danger, not being able to finde any people, our provision fayling vs, and our of biteene Horles tyred. When I had trauelled twentie dayes, I heard newes of the King of Armenia, that dayes journey, he had pailed by.

In the end of August I met with Sartach himselfe, who went to Mangu Chan with Flockes Theend of 30 and Herds, and with his Wiues and Children: yet his great Families remayned betweene Ta- August he met nais and Etilia: And I did my dutie to him, faying, I would willingly stay in his Countrey; but Sartach in his Mangu Chan would not have mee returne, and carrie his Letters. Hee answered, that I might returne going eMangu Chan would not have mee returne, and carrie his betters. Hee answered, that I must to Mangu. performe the will of Mangu Chan. Then I asked Coinc for your children. Hee answered, they coinc the Priest were in the Court of Basts carefully recommended. I also required to have our Clothes, and of Sartach. Bookes againe: who answered, Did yee not bring them to Sarrach? I said, I brought them to Sartach, but I gaue them not vnto him, as yee know: and I replied to him, what answere I made, when he demanded whether I would give them to Sartach. Then hee answered, you say true, and none can refift the truth. Heft your goods with my father, who remayneth neere Sa-74; which is a new Towne Basts hath made you Essis, on the East shoare; but our Priests Saraisa new have some of the vestments. If any thing like you (faid I) keepe it, so my Bookes be restored. Town, built Then he told me, he would report my words to Sartach. I must have Letters (faid I) to your Volga. Father, to restore mee all. But he was readie to bee gone, and said vnto mee, The traine of the Ladies followeth vs neere at hand. Yee shall alight there, and I will fend you Sarrachs answere by this man. I was very carefull he should not deceine me; yet I could not contend with him. Late in the euening the man came vnto me, whom he shewed me, and brought two Coats with him, which I thought had beene all of Silke, vncut: and he faid vnto me, Behold two garments : the one, Sartach hath fent to you; and the other, if it feeme good to you, you shall prefent to the King, on his behalfe. To whom I answered, I weare no such garments, I will preso fent them both vnto my King, in honour of your Lord. Then faid hee , doe wi h them what you please; but it pleased me to fend them both vnto you, and I fend them to you by the bearer of these presents. He delivered him Letters also to the Father of Coiac, to restore mee all which appertayined vinto me, because he had no need of any thing which was mine. So wee came to They come to appertayined vinto me, because he had no need of any thing which was mine. So we came to the Court of Bastu the same day I departed thence, the yeere past; the second day after the Bastu, September 2011. Exaltation of the bleffed Croffe. And I found our young men in health, yet much afflicted with tem. 16.1254. penurie, as Goffet told me. And if the King of Armenia had not comforted them, and recom- cap. 18. mended them to Sartach, they had perished: for they thought I had beene dead. The Tartars The King of also demanded of them, if they could keepe Oxen, or milke Mares. For, if I had not returned, Armenia com-

they had beene brought into their feruitude. After this, Basin caused me to come vnto him, and made the Letters (which Manga Chan fends vnto you) to be interpreted vnto me. For io Manon wrote vnto him , that if it pleased him to adde any thing, or leaue out, or change, hee should doest. Then said hee, yee shall carrie these Letters, and cause them to bee understood. Hee demanded also what way I would goe, These inzen whether by Sea, or Land ! I said, the Sea was shut, because it was Winter, and I must goe by in the Winter.

Court to Ca-

Hungarie. * Bigauimus wane-trauclling with Baatu a whole mo-His Guide was a lugur. They depart from Battu. The feuen mouthes of the River of The Village Sumerkent, or Alracan is in the latitude of 45. degrees. They goe no further downe, then Sumerkent The River of Velga frozen oner. He commeth to Sarai. Sarai is vpon Etilia. This from Afracan 60.Verfta. Chap. 47.

From Sarai of the Alam, and by the Lefgi, and by by Alexanders Inclosuresor Walls, by the Citie Shamaghi, by the gre... Plaine

A thort way by Land. For I thought you had beene yet in Spria, fo I directed my journey towards Perlia. For if I had thought you had passed into France, I would have gone into Hungarie: io I should son Her have come into France, and by a more case way then into Syria. Then wee travelled . moueth with him, before wee could have a Guide. At length, they appointed mee a certaine lugar, who vnderstanding I would give him nothing, and that I would goe forth-right into Armenia, caused Letters to be made, to conduct me to the Soldan of Turkie, hoping he should receive gifts of the Soldar, and that he should gayne more that way. Then we tooke our journey specdily (fifteene dayes before the Feast of Al-Saints) towards Sarai, going forth right Southward, descending neere to Etilia, which is divided into three Armes there below : every one where-17.0fOctober, of is almost twice as big as the River of Damiata. It maketh foure other leffer Armes; so that 10 we pasted that River in seven places by Boat. Vpon the middle Arme is the Village, called Sumerkent, without a wall: but when the River overflowes, it is compaffed with water. The Tartars were eight yeeres about it before they could take it : and the Alans, and the Saracens were in it. There we found one Duco-man, with his wife, a very good man, with whom Oolles flay ed in the Winter: for Sartaeb fent him thither to eafe his Court. About those parts was Bastu on the one fide of the River, and Sartach on the other, about Christmas, and they goe no further downe. And it falleth out, that all the River is frozen, fo they paffe ouer. Here is great flore of graffe, and there among the Caues theeues hid themselves, till the Ice melt. Coiacks father, receiving Sartachs Letters, reftored my veltments vnto mee, except three Albes and an Amice trimmed with fine Silke, and a Stole, and a Girdle, and a Tualia adorned with golden embroyderie, and a Surplice. He restored also vnto me the filuer Plate, except the Cenfer, and 20 the little Boxe where the Chrisme was. All which, the Priests which were with Sarrach had. Hee restored my Bookes, except our Ladies Psalter, which hee kept with my leaue, because ! could not denie it him : for he faid, Sartach tooke much delight in it. Hee also requested me, that if it happened, that I returned vnto those parts againe, I would bring them a man that knew how to make Parchment : for he made a great Church (by the Commandement of Sare tach) vpon the West side of the River, as he said, and a new Towne. Yet I know that Sartach the East fide of meaneth no fuch matter. Sarai and the Palace of Baars, are vpon the Easterne fide of the River. And the Valley through which the Armes of the River are spread abroad, contayneth more then feuen leagues in bredth. And there is great store of fish there. A Bible also in verse, and a cer- 30 called Uchoog, taine Booke in the Arabian, worth thirtie Sultanies, and many other things I neuer recoursed.

SO departing from him on the Feast of All-Saints, alwaies going toward the South, in the Feast of Saint Martin, we came to the Mountaines of the Alani. Betweene Basin and Sarai in fifteene dayes we found no people , but one of his fonnes , who went before him , with Falcons, and his Falconers, who were many, and one little Village. From the Feaft of All-Saints, for fine dayes, we found not a man : and wee were almost in great danger by reason of thirst, Swaces called one whole day and a night finding no water, till about three of the Clocke the next day, the Alani in thole Mountaines yet hold out, fo that, of ten of the Subjects of Sartach, two must Debent, by the come, to guard the straight and narrow passages of the Hills, left they come forth of the Moun- 40 Citie Samaron. taines, and fteale their Cattell in the Playne. Betweene the Alani, and Porta Ferrea, which is two dayes journey thence, where the Playne of Arcacci beginneth, betweene the Capian Sea and the Mountaines, there are certaine Saracens called, Lefgi, betweene the Mountaines, who likewise resist : so that those Tartars, who dwell at the foot of the Mountaines of the Alani, were faine to give vs twentie men, to bring vs beyond the Iron gate, or Porta Ferres. And I was glad, because I hoped to see them armed. For I could never see their Armour, though I had beene very delirous. And when we came to the dangerous Passage, of twentie there were two of thiss, where which had Habergions. And I demanded, whence they had them? They faid, they had gotten our and Arases them of the Alam aforefaid, who are good Worke-men for fuch things, and excellent Smiths. meet together. Whereupon, I thinke, they have small store of Armour, but Quiuers, and Bowes, and Leather 50 lackes. I faw them presented with Iron Plates, and Iron Sculls (capillos) out of Persia. And faw two also, who presented themselves to Mangu, armed with Coats made of Hogs skins bent inward, of rough Leather, which were very vnfit, and vnwildy. Before we came to Porta fer-A Castle of the rea, wee found one Castle of the Alani, which was Mangu Chans: for hee had subdued that Countrey. There we first found Vineyards, and drunke Wine. The day following, wee came A description to Porta ferrea, which Alexander the Macedonian King made. And it is a Citie whose East end of Porta ferres, is vpon the Sea illoare, and there is a little Plaine betweene the Sea and the Monntaines, through which the Citie is stretched forth in length vnto the top of the Mountaine which bordereth vpon it on the West: so that there is no way aboue, for the roughnesse of the Mountaines, nor below for the Sea, but forth-right through the middest of the Citie ouerthwart, where there is 60 an Iron gate, from whence the Citie hath the name. And the Citie is more then a mile long, and in the top of the Hill a strong Castle; and it is as much in bredth, as a great stones cast: it hath very strong walls without Trenches, and Turrets of great polished stones. But the Tartare have delitroyed the tops of the Turrets, and the Bulwarkes of the Walls, laying the Turrets euen with the Wall. Beneath that Citie, the Countrey was wont to bee like a Paradife. Two dayes journey hence, we found another Citie called Samuron, wherein there were many Samaten a Cilener. And when we past it, we saw walles descending from the Mountaines to the Sea. And the of lewer. leauing the way by the Sea by those walles, because it bent towards the East, wee went up into the high Countries towards the South. On the morrow, wee paffed through a certaine Valley, The inclosures the high Countries towards the Journal of the monthly the panel and there was no or walks of A-wherein the foundations of walks appeared, from one mountaine to another, and there was no known that the countries of the known to t way through the tops of the Mountaines. These were sometimes the Inclosures or walles of Other inclo Alexander, restraining the fierce Nations, (to wit) the Shepheards of the Wildernes, that they sures where the could not inuade the inhabited Countries and Cities. There are other walles or Inclosures where lever are. to lewes are. The next day we came vnto a certaine great Citic, called Samag. And after this, we Or Samagi. temerare. The next day we called Moon, through which the River Cor floweth, of the which Plaine. the Curgi have their name, whom we call Georgians. And it runneth through the middle of Ti- cur, or the Rifis, which is the Metropolis of the Curgines, and in comes directly from the West running to the uer cpus. Eaft, to the foresaid Capian Sea, and it hath excellent Salmons. In that plaine wee found Tar. The Gargions. terragaine. Also by that plaine comes the River Arexes, which commeth from the greater Ar- The Gine Timenia from betwixt the South and West: of which it is called the Land Araxat, which is Ar - REC. 19.45. 27. menia it felfe. Whereupon in the booke of the Kings it is faid of the Sonnes of Sennacherib', that Note that the having flaine their Father they fled into the Land of the Armenians. And in Efay it is faid, that Hebrew text they fled into the Land of Ararat. To the West then of that most beautifull Plaine is Cargia, In bath Ararat they fled into the Land of Ararat. To the West thin to the art and the entrance of the into the places, that Plaine the Crofmin were wont to be. And there is a great Citie in the entrance of the Gangia, a great that Plaine the Crofmin were wont to be. Mountaines, called Ganges, which was their Metropolis, stopping the Georgians that they could Citie not come downe into the Plaine. Then wee came to the Bridge of Ships, which were faftened A bridge of together with a great Yron chaine, stretched forth crossethe River, where Cur, and Araves meet Ships. together. But Car lofeth his name there.

Frer that, wee went alwayes voward by Araxes, whereof it is faid ; Pontem dedignatur A- Chap. 48. Araxis, Araxes distaines a Bridge; Leauing Persia, and the Caspian mountaines on the left They alwaies hand, towards the South: on the right hand, (we sa, and the great Sea toward the Well: going goe vp the Ri.
Southwest betweene the South and the Well. We passed through the meadowers of Bareba, who by the Gine
General Wellshard Amin which is these within draws. And the bath mode the Care and 30 is Genetall of that Armie, which is there within Araxis : And hee hath made the Cargi, and Paxnon by the Turkes, and Persians subject to him. There is another Gouernour ( in Persia at Tanvinum, over the Country of Tribute) called Argon. Both which, Manga Chan hath called home to give place to his Brother Sabraja, by the comming into thole Countries. That Countrey which I have described to you, is not properly Calle Marjeucomming into those Countries. That Countries which I had advised to you, is not properly gen, by Aini, a Per state, but was sometimes called Hyreania. I was in Bacchues house, and hee gaue vs Wine to Gitte of Sabes drinke, and he himfelfe dranke Cofmos, which I would willingly have drunke, if he had given it fa; they came me : yet it was the best new Wine : but Cofmos is more wholsome for an hunger-staruen man, to the Head of Wee went up therefore by the River Araxes, from the Fealt of Saint Clement, vnto the fecond Araxis. Sunday in Lent, till we came to the head of the River. And beyond that Mountaine where itrifeth, there is a goodly Citie, called Arferum, which belongeth to the Soldan of Turkie. And Bacebua Prince 40 neare thereabout Euphrates arileth towards the North, at the foot of the Mountaines of Cargia: of the Tartans to whose Spring I had gone, but the Snow was so great, that no man could goe out of the trodden haps the Ciris path : on the other fide of the Mountaines of Caucafus, towards the South arifeth Tigris.

When we departed from Bacebu, my Guide went to Taurinum to speake with Argon, carry- capian Sca(of ing my Interpreter with him. But Bacehs caused me to bee brought to a certaine Citie, called which it is now Naznan, which sometimes was the head of a certaine great Kingdome, and the greatest and fai- called the Sea reit Citie; but the Tartars have made it a Wildernes. And there were sometimes Eight hundred Churches of the Armenians there : now there are but two little ones : for the Saracens name have deftroyed them : In one of the which, I held the feast of Christmas as I could with our The head of Clerke. And the next day following, the Priest of that Church dyed : to whose buriall came a Tigris. certaine Bishop, with twelue Monkes of the high Countries. For all the Bishops of the Arme-of Tuessas of the Greeke likewise, for the greater part. That Bishop told me, that joint in the commitment of the Greeke likewise for the greatest Cine there was a Church neere that, where Saint Bartholmen, and like wife Saint Indas Thaddam were of Armenia. martyred: but there was no way open for Snow. He told me alfo, that they have two Pro- Barthelmen and phets: The first or chiefe is Methodism the Martyr, who was of their Country, and plainely Pro- Thaddem Mar-Phefied of the Ismaelites. Which Prophetie is fulfilled in the Saracens. The other Prophet is called tyrs. phefied of the Ifmaelites: Which Prophesie is stillslied in the Gracum. The other Prophet is called Yr.
Acaron, who when hee dyed, Prophesied of a Nation of Arebor, that thould come from the Methodium.
North, saying; That they should Conquer all the Countries of the East: and should spare the Ordense. Kingdome of the East, that he might give them the Kingdome of the West. But he faith, our Prophesie. Friers the Frankes being Catholikes, beleeve them not : And they shall possesse the Countries from North to South : and shall come vnto Constantinople, and shall take the Port of Constanti-60 mople. And one of them, who shall be called a Wife man, shall enter the Citie : and seeing the Churches and rites of the Frankes, shall cause himselfe to be Baptized, and shall counsell the Frankes, how they may kill the Emperour of the Tartars; and there they shall be confounded. Hearing this, the Frankes which shall be in the middle of the Land, (to wit) Hierufalem, shall set Mountaines on the which fied. Or Cemanium aTowne or a Armenian fa-

Armenians, shall pursue them : so that the French King shall place his Roy Il Throne at Taurinum in Perfia. And then all East Countries, and all the unbeleeuing Nations shall be concerted to the Faith of Christ. And there shall be so great Peace in the world, that the Living shall say to the Dead, Woe be vnto you wretches, that lived not vntill these times. I read this Prophesie brought to Constantinople by the Armenians, which remaine there, but I made light of it. Yet, when I spake with the said Bishop, calling it to minde, I regarded it the more. And throughout all that Armenia, they as firmely believe this Prophetie as the Gofpell. Hee faid vinto vs alfo : Euen as the Soules in Limbo expected the comming of Christ for their delivery ; so doe we looke for your comming that we might be freed from this flauery, wherein wee hane fo long lived. Neere the 10 City (Vaxn m) aforefaid, there are Mountaines, on the which (they fay) the Arke of Noab refted. North Arke re- And there are two, one greater then the other, and Araxes runneth at the foote of them. And there is a little Towne there, called Cemainum, which is by Interpretation, Eight: for (they fay) it was to called of the Eight persons, which came foorth of the Arke, and built it. Many have affayed to climbe the greater Hill, and could nor. And that Bishop told me, that a certaine Monke was very much troubled, and an Angell appeared vnto him, and brought him a piece of the wood of the Arke, willing him to trouble himselfe no more. That piece of Wood they had in their Church, as he told me. Neither is the Hill to high in appearance, but that men might well get vp vnto it. A certaine Old man shewed me a fufficient reason, why none should climbe it. They The Mountain call that Mountaine Massis: and it is of the Feminine gender in their Tongue. No man (faith 29 he) must climbe up Massis, because it is the Mother of the world.

In that Citie (of Varnan) Frier Bernard Cathalane, of the Order of the Preaching Friers found me; who abode in Georgie, with a certaine Prior of the Sepulcher, who possessed lands

Tephelis.

Snow.

Ianuary 14.

Lanuary 18.

there. And he had learned somewhat of the Tarters language. Who went with a certaine Hungarian Frier to Taurinum, to defire Argons Paffe to Sartach. When they came there, they could not have accesses and the Hungarian Frier returned by me to Tophelis with one Servant : but Frier Bernard remained at Taurinum with a certaine Lay Frier, whose language he understood not. We went out of the Citie of Vaxnan in offanie of the Epiphanie : for we had flayd long there by reason of the Snow. We came therefore in toure dayes to the Countrey of Sabenfa, a certain (ingine, sometimes mighty, but now tributary to the Tartars, who destroyed all his Munition : 30 The Countrey whose Father Zacharias got that Countrey of the Armenians, having delivered them from the hands of the Saracens. And there are many faire Villages of true Christians, having Churches right like the Frankes. And every Armenian hath in his house, in an honourable place, a wooden hand holding a Croffe, and he fets a burning Lampe before it : And that which we doe with holy Water, formkling it to drive away wicked Spirits, they doe the same with Frankinsence. For epery evening they burn Frankinsence, carrying it through all the corners of the house, to rid them of all kinde of Enemies. I ate with the forefaid Sabenfa, and he did me great reverence, both he and his Wife, and his fonne Zachary was a very-faire and wife young man. Who demanded of me, that if he should come vnto you, whether yee would entertaine him ! for he so hardly brooketh the Dominion of the Tartars, that, though he have plenty of all things, he had rather tra- 40 uaile into a strange Country, then indure their Lord-like Dominion. They said further, that they were sonnes of the Church of Rome: and if the Lord Pope would fend them any ayde, they would bring all the bordering Nations vnto the fubiection of the Church.

A Towns of Sabenfa. The Countrey of the Soldans of Turkie. day in Lene.

From that Towne of his, in fifteene dayes, we entred the Countrey of the Soldan of Turkie, vpon the first Sunday in Lent. And the first Castle we found, is called Mar fengen. All in the Cafile were Christians, Armenians, Curgines, and Greekes: The Saracens onely have the Dominion. There, the Captaine of the Castle said, he had received commandement, that no victuals should be given to any Franke, or to the Ambassadours of the King of Armenia, or of Vastacius. So that from the place where wee were the first Sunday in Lent, vnto Cyprus, (whether I came eight dayes before the Feath of Saint John Baptift) we must buy our promision. He, who was my guide 50 procured me Horses, and tooke money for the victuals, and put it in his purse. When he came into the Fields, seeing a slocke any where, hee violently tooke one Sheepe, and gaue it to his family to eate, and maruailed I would not eate of his robbery. In the Purification I was in a certaine Ci-February the s. tie called Ains, which was Sahenfas, whose situation is most strong: and there are there a thou-The Citie Ami, fand Armenian Churches, and two Synagogues of the Saracens. The Tarrars place a Baily there. belonged to There five Preaching Friers met me, whereof foure came from Pronince in France, and the fift ioyned himselfe to them in Syria, and they had but one ficke Boy, who could speake Turkish, and a little French : And they had the Popes letters to Sarrach, and to Mangu Chan, and to Buri; letters to Sar. fuch as your Highnes gaue me, Letters of request, that they would fuffer them to continue in their Country, and Preach the Word of God, &c. But when I told them what I had seene, and how 60 they fent me backe againe, they directed their journey to Tephelis, where there are Friers of their Order, to confult what they should doe. I faid vnto them they might well passe, by those Letters, if they would : but they should bee well affured to indure much labour, and render an account of their comming: for feeing they had no other meffage, but the office of Preaching, they would care but a little for them, and chiefly, because they had no Interpreter. What they did after,I know not.

He second Sunday in Lent, we came to the head of Araris, and passing beyond the top of Chap.ag. the Mountaine, we came to Emphrates ; by the which wee descended eight dayes, alwayes They come to going to the Welt, vntoa certaine Caltle, called Camuth. There Euphrates bendeth to the South Eughrates, to towards Halapia, But we pailing the River went through very high hilly Countries, and through the Caffle catowards Halapia. But we pating the Killer went through very high himy Countries and through math, they palle the deepe Snow to the West. There was so great an Earthquake there that yeare, that in one into Cyprus, as-Citie called Arlengan, tenne thousand persons noted by name, persshed, beside poore men of terward to Are Io whom there was no notice taken. Riding three dayes together, we faw the gaping of the Earth, tiochia, and as it was cleft by the Earthquake, and the heapes of Earth which came from the Mountaines, thenceto Trias it was tiert on the tailinguage and filled the valleyes; to that if but a little more of the Earth had beene moued, that which Efay 1the Citie Are freaketh had beene literally fulfilled. Enery valley shall be filled, and enery Mountaine, and little bill forgomishing shall be bumbled. We passed through the Valley where the Soldan of Turkie was vanquished of the shaken with an Tartars. It were too long to write how he was ouercome. But a certaine feruant of my guides Earthquike, who was with the Tartars, faid; That the Tartars were not about tenne thousand in the whole, The gaing of the earth close and a certaine Curgine, a feruant of the Soldans, faid ; That there were two hundred thousand uen. with the Soldan, all Horsemen, In that plaine where the Battaile was, nay that flight, there brake The Vall , out a great Lake, at the time of the Earthquake. And my heart told me; that all that Earth ope- where the Solac ned her mouth to receiue yet more blood of the Saracens. We were in Sebaste of the lester Ar- dan of Turkie menia in Easter weeke. There we visited the Tombes of forty Martyrs. There the Church of ed of the Tar-Saint Blace flandeth : but I could not goe thither, because it was aboue in the Castle. On Low-Sunday we came to Cefaria of Cappadocia; where there is a Church of Saint Bafill the great. A. Sibafle of the bout fifteene dayes after we came to Iconium, making small journies, and resting in many places : lesser Aomenia. because we could not so readily procure Horses. And my guide did this of purpose; taking vpon made. him to follicite his owne busines three dayes, in every Towne: whereupon, I was much grieved, but durst not speake, because he might have fold, or slaine me and our feruants, and there was padois. none to gaine-lay it. I found many Frankes at Iconium, and a certaine Ianuenfian Marchant, cal- Iconium, led Nicholas de Santto Syrio. Who with a certaine companion of his a Venetian, called Boniface de 30 Molendino, carried all the Allum out of Tarkie, so that the Soldan could not fell any, but to those two: and they made it so deare, that what was wont to be sold for fifteene Bizantians, is now The Selden of fold for fifty. My guide prefented me to the Soldan; The Soldan faid, he would willingly cause Iconium. me to be convayed to the Sea to Armenia, or Cilicia. Then the forefaid Marchant knowing that the Saracens made little accompt of me, and that I was much burthened with the company of my guide (who troubled me euery day to give him gifts) caused me to be conveyed to Curcum a ha a Hauen of the King of Armenia. I came the three the day before the Ascension, and stayed till the our against day after Penticolt. Then I heard, that Ambassadours came from the King to his Father. Then I the East part of went freedily to the Kings father, to demand, whether hee had heard any newes of his Sonne : the Hand of Cy. And I found him fet with all his Sonnes one excepted, called Barum Ufin: Who made a certaine priss. 40 Caftle. And he received newes from his Sonne, that hee was returned : And that Mangu Chan Barum Vim.

had much eafed his Tribute, and had given him a Priviledge, that no Ambaffadour should come Ayax or Giazzo into his Countrey. Whereupon the old man him felfe, with all his Sonnes made a great Banquet. June the 16, he And he canfed me to be conveyed to the Sea, to the Hauen called Ayax : and thence I paffed on came to cyprus. uer into Cyprus. And at Nucofia I found our Prouinciall, who the fame day carried me with him Inne 29. to Antiochia, which is in very weake state. Wee were there on the Feast of Saint Peter and Tripolis Paul. From thence we came to Tripolis, where our Chapter was, in the Affumption of the Blef- August 15.

Nd our Provinciall determined that I should leave Acon not suffering me to come ynto you: Chap. 50. Commanding, to write vnto you, what I would by the bearer of these Presents. And not He writeth daring to relift contrarie to my chedience, I did according to my power, and understanding : craKing Lodowick uing pardon of your inuincible Clemencie for my superfluities, or wants, or for any thing that and give the his shall be undiscreetly, nay foolishly spoken, as from a man of little understanding, not accusto- adulte, tor senmed to indite long Histories. The Peace of God which passeth all under standing presence your ding of a fee heart and understanding.

I would willingly fee your Highnesse, and certayne spiritual friends, which I have in your the Tartars. Kingdome. Wherefore, if it should not bee contrarie to your Maiesties liking, I would befeech you to write to our Provinciall, that he would let me come vnto you, and returne flortly againe into the Holy Land.

Concerning Turkie, your Maiestie shall understand, that the tenth man there, is not a Sarar The weake ecen: nay, they are all Armenians, and Greekes, and Children rule over them. For the Soldan who flat o. Talke. was conquered of the Tarrars, had a lawfull Wife of Hiberia, by whom he had one feel le Sonne, concerning whom he charged, that he should be the Soldan. He had another of a Greeke Concubine, whom he gaue to a certayne great Admirall. The third, hee had of a Turke. To whom

The Baffard

The weake estage of Va-Ru us and Af-

The flare of the King of Hung ria. Godfrey of Bul-I'm and many in food and rayment.

What Meffage

many Turks and Turcomans being gathered together, the y purposed to have slame the Sonnes of the Christians. They ordayned aifo (as I understood) to at after they had gotten the Victorie. they would destroy all the Churches, and kill as many as would not become Saracens. But hee was ouercome, and many of his men flaine. Hee renued his Armie the fecond time, and then was taken, and is yet in Prifon, Pacafter the Sonne of the Greeke Concubine procured of Filia-Pacaffer geneth fler, that he might be Soldan, because the other was weake, whom they fent to the Tartars. the Kingdome. Whereupon, his Kindred on the Mothers fide (to wit) the Hiberi, and the Curgi were angry. So that a child ruleth in Turkee, having no Treature, few Warriours, and many Enemies. The Son of Vastacine is weake, and hath warre with the Sonne of Affan, who likewife is a child, and worne out with the feruitude of the Tartars. Wherefore, if an Armie of the Church should to come to the Holy Land, it were a very easie thing to subdue all these Countries, or to passe

The King of Hungarie hath not about thirtie thousand Souldiers. From Cullin to Constantinople are not about threefcore dayes journey by Waggons. From Constantinople are not so many dayes journey to the Countrey of the King of Armenia. In old time, valiant men paffed through these Countries, and prospered, yet they had most valiant Relisters; whom God hath now deother Princes, stroyed out of the Earth. And we need not be in danger of the Sea, nor in the mercie of Savlers. And the price which wee should give for traight, were sufficient for expenses by Land. I Tartars thriftie speake it confidently, if your Countrimen (I say not Kings and Souldiers) would goe, as the Kings of the Tartars goe, and bee contented with tuch victuals, they might winne the whole 20 World. It feemeth not expedient (as I thinke) that any Frier goe vinto the Tartars any more, as I did, or as the Preaching Friers doe. But if our Souereigne Lord the Pope would honourably fend a Bilhop, and answere their tollies: which they have thrife written to the Frankes: once flould be tent to Pope Innecent the Fourth of Sacred Memorie, and twice to your Maiestie, once by David, who to the Tartars. deceived you, and now by me, he might speake vnto them what he would, and also cause them to put those things in writing. For they heare whatsoeuer an Ambassadour will speake, and alwayes demand, if he will lay any more. But he must have a good Interpreter; nay, many Interpreters, and large Expenses.

> COr the Readers better satisfastion touching the former Authour, and knowledge of the North 30 F parts of Asia and Europe and for His owne sake also, I have added this Transcript of our famous Countriman Frier Bacon, which I have not Englished, both to prevent tedion fielle in this Worke, otherwife more then enough voluminous; and because he was an Historian, no Traneller; and the vie thereof is principally to such as can reade his owne motome; a good part also being the same with that which our former Frier hash delinered.

CHAP. II.

Ex quarta parte Maioris operis fratris Rogeri Bacon, Angli excerpta quædam de Aquilonaribus mundi partibus.

Mare Scythi.

Porta ferrea vel

Derbent Vid.

Phu. 1-6, c.11.

videfis etiam

O tel. Thef.

Geog. Mare Caspium

fit ex concursu

P!in. 1.6.6.13.

Ruminum.

lid.Erm.

D Aquilonarem vero partem Indix, vt dictum est, funt Mare Scythicum , & montes illi magni, qui Caucalus & Taurus, & multis alijs nominibus vocantur, secundum dinersitatem locorum & Gentum. Et ab Occidente eft Perfida sen Parthia & Media. Deinde sub eis ad Occidentem est Melopotamia & tota Syria, vt dichumest. Sedin confinio Media & Parthia eft Porta ferrea Alexandri; que est Cinitas denommata à Portis. Et ille porte dicuntur Caspix, non Caucana, ve dicit Plinius. Nam alie sunt porta Caucasia, ve postea dicetur. Quia in littore Maris Calpia sunt ha Porta. Est enim Mare quoddam quod fit ex concur su maximorum suminum vententium ab Aquilone, & Caspium vecatur, 50 atque Hircanicum secundum Plinium. Nam Catpij & Hircani super lutora illius Maris inhabitant. Non igitur est hoc Mare veniens ab Oceano, ve Indores & Plinius, & omnes Authores Occidentales seribunt. In hoc enim casu non habuerunt experientiam certam, nec per se, nec per alios, sed ex rumore

In libris autem de moribus Tartarorum, & per fide dignos, qui in illis Regionibus fuerunt, patet, quod hoc Mare sit ex concur su fluminum. Et est Mare satis magnum, Nam circuitus est quatuor mensium. Et Hircania prope, est super littue Meridionale illius Maris in termino Parthix. Et vbi Par-Mare Caspium this consungitur Medic in Portu illis, extenditur à Portis Caspis versus Orientem, vt dicit Plinius. terra undiquiq, Deinde contra residuum Media ad eius Septentrionem, o ad Occidentem Hitcanix est maior Armenia: & eam dividit Euphrates à Capadocia, ve dieu Plinius. Propter quod Capadocia est ad Occiden- 60 tem Armenia maiorie. Deinde ver su Syriam & Mare nostrum eft Cilicia, qua dicitur Armenia muor. Unde iacet partim Medio, partim in Occidente Capadocia; & eine principium non distat ab Antiochia per duas dietas. Sub Cilicia ad Septentrionem super Mare comprehenduur Pamphilia, ve dicit Plinius, negleita gente Haurica, vel non computata per se propter prasutatem, sed sub eu compre benfa, In Cilicia est Taifus Metropolis eius ; in quo natus fuit Beatus Apostolus Paulus, Et durat Cilicia a meridie in Septentrionem per Tarlum in latitudine circiter quatuor diciau versus Turkiam. Turkia. Chicia a meriaie in septentrionem per l'attoine, vbi est lconium celeberrima Cinitat; à qua Lycaonia lycaonia, Nam ad Septentrionem Cilicia est Lycaonia, vbi est lconium celeberrima Cinitat; à qua Lycaonia lconium. dictur quest Iconia. Unde Princeps eorum vocatur Soldanus Iconij & Turkie. Et à finiem Arme-Soldanus nix of que l'conium sunt octo diete. Nomina Prouinciarum in his Regionibus suot multum mutata prop- koni ter querras. Nam Turkia multas terras occupat que apud Authores babent nomina antiqua. Vi est pars Alix minoris, & Phrygia & Lydia. Alia ver o maior continet plus medietate Mundi, & totums prater Europam & Africam : unde continet hanc Aliam minorem. Et hac nunc vocatur apud Gracos Anatoli, id est, Orientalis Græcia : in qua est Galatia; unde Galatæ, quibus scribit Apostolus: 10 & Trois dientur illa formofissima Cinitas: & sunt alia mute, vi Epheius, & 7. Ecclesia Apocalyp.

lis; & Nicea: unde Synodus Nicena, & multa alia. Et ab Icomo vique Niceam funt 20. dieta in astate: cr abeaufque ad Brachium Santli Georgij (quod apud antiquos vocatur Hellespontus) Mare mier Italiam & Antiochiam. Et ibs terminatur Alia minor, Et habet a parte Occidentis Thraciam, Macedoniam, & Achaiam. Aparte vero meridici babet Mare illud, quod est inter Italiam & Graciam, & Antiochiam, & Egyptum. Ab Oriente habet Phrygiam. Nam vt dieit Plinius curialite, Phrygia Troadi superetetta Septentrionali sua parte Galatis continua est, meridiana Lycaonia ab Occidente Capadocia babet. Et dicit quod Lydia, Phrygia ex ortu selis vicina est, unde fuit Croslus dirifimu Rex Lydoru, Brachium vero Sancte Georgij eff frietum multum, o habes Coitantinopolim ab Occidente in Europa, Et extenditur à Mari magno quod est inter Asiam & Egyptum, Syriam, & Iria, Et sunt trecenta miliaria inter Sinopolim & Soldaiam. Et bac est latitudo maris inter illos an- Soldaia. pulos. Et ista castra sunt duo portus famost, à quibus transcunt bomines à meridanis Regionibus ad Aquulonares & è contrario. Et ab istis caftris versus Occidentem seu Constantinopolim extenditur Mare per septingenta milliaria in longum & latum, simulter ad Orientem per septingenta. Et ista Prouincia Caffaria circundatur Mari a tribus lateribus. Nam in Occidente habet partem Maris Pontici, vbi Caffaria sim Cattaru circunasiur iviais a tribus inicious. Tous tribus comentario and the propension of Infula, in qua est Tem-fut appellata est ciuntas Kersona, in qua sut sanctus Cher-Taurica Cherplum, quod dicitur Angelicus manibus praparatum, in quo corpus Sancti sepultum fuit. Et a Kersoua soncius. 21g, ad Soliaiam sunt quadringinta castra, quorum quodlibet fere habet proprium Idioma. Et sunt ibi Kersoua ciuitea multi Goti, qui omnes loquuntur Teutonicum. Et à parte meridiei Cassaria extendiur Mare Ponti- Goti. 4 Ccum : Et in Oriente eins cadit flumen Tanais in Mare, vbi habet latitudinem duodecim miliariorum.

20 talia, circuter centum leucas versus Aquilonem, vsq. ad aliud Mare, quod vocatur Ponticum, & Mare Maus Et ifind Mare habet formamarcue Scytlici; o multas Regiones disterminat. Vinde bic incipiunt Regiones Aquilonares: de quibus Philosophi meridiani parum sciuerunt, secundum quad Ethicus Astronomus refert in suo libro. Sed hic perambulauit omnes has Regiones, & Mare Oceanum Septentrionale cum Insulis suis nauigauit. Volo sequi spsum : & mhilominus libros de moribus Tartaronim : & Regiones Aquiprecipue fratrem Willielmum, quem Dominus Rex Francia, Lodouicus in Syria existens misis ad ter- lonares. ram Tattarorum anno Domini 1253. Qui frater scripsit Domino Regi situm Regionum & Marium, Oceanus Sepram i artarotum anno Domini 1935. Extenditur autem hoc Mare maius ab Occidente, scilicet à Constantinopoli in Oriens, per mille qua-Quibus auto dringenta milliaria in longum: O in medio eius coarctatur ex otrad, parte in angulos: O in angulo ribus ofus eft meridiano est castrum & portus Tutkix, quod vocatur Sinopolis : A parte vero Aquilonic babet aliud maxime. 30 castrum in anoulo, quod vocatur Soldaia; & est in Pronincia que nune Castaria dectur, id est, Caisa- Sinopolis.

whi est Civitas Matrica. Et flumen illud versus Aquilonem facit Mare quoddam, habens septuaginta Matrica civitas miliaria in longitudine & latitudine, nufquam habens profunduatem vitra 6. pedes. Et hoc Mare est Palus Mæoiis. Palus Maotis famosifima, de qua Philosophi & Historia & Pocta loquuntur.

Et slimen Tanais extenditur vitra illam paludem versus Aquilonem vsg, ad montes Riphæos; qui Montes Riphæi. funt in Vitimo Aquilonis : a quibus montibus oritur hoc flumen, o descendit per longum terratracium in Paludem supradictam, saciens eam: & ultra eam disgraditur, & fluit in Mare Ponticum, ut predixi. Et bec flumen fam (um dividit Europam ab Afia in locis illis , & Palus illa & plures paludes funt contigua: fed quasi pro una computantur, & vocantur paludes Maotis: vel Maotida in adiectino, Paludes igitur illa que vocantur Mare illud vadosum sunt in Oriente Costatia; & pars fluminio 50 Tanais, que est inter paludes & Mare Ponticum. Et bac Pronincia Callaria habet ab Aquilone vaflam folitudinem, qua extenditir a flumme Tanai in Oriente vig, ad Danubium in Occidente itinere villa solitude. duorum mensium velociter equitando, sicut equitant Tartari. Et hoc est una die quantum est ab Aure-Tartaricum lianis Paritis. Vnde durat hec terra circuler 4, menfes, secundum quod alig homines communiter equi- iterergo eft e4. tant. Et hac terra fuit tota Cumanorum, qui dicebantur Captac. Sed Tartari destruverum eans to- milarierum vetant. Et bac terra juit tota Cumanorum, qui cuceranim Capiac. Sea lattati acifimitation taluer. G interfecerunt Cumanos, prater partem que fugit ad Regnum Hungaria, qui funt es tributaCuniani. rii : Et a Teuronicis dicitur Valana: A Plinio & Hodoro & ceteris Alania Occidentalis. Et bac Capiac. Prouncia babet Daneburn, & Poloniam, & Hungariam, ab Occidente. Et ab Aguilone iftius Alania Occi-Provincia est Russia magna : que similiter a Polonia in una parte sua extenditur ad Tanaim; sed in dentalu. magna sui parte habet Leucoma: a in Occidente (que est terra ita magna sient Alemannia:) Ad cuius Russia magna

6c Partem Occidentalem unt multa terra in circuitu Maris cuinflam : quod Mare sit per multa Brechia Maris Ocean que vervoit per medium Dacia, & vivra versus Orientem delatat se magnum Mare, guare Swecium-qued ab Occidente babr: Daciam & Sweciam : Sed Swecia est ad Aquisonem Dacia: declivans all-lucia. quantulum in Orientem vitra Daviam: vitra quas ad Aquilonem est Norquegia. Deinde Mars mag- Swica. no interiecto funt Scotia & Anglia : & Marsparuo interposito Hibernia. Nota sunt he Regiones : fed Norquegia

Circundatum. Capadocia. Cilicia vel Ar-

Prolem zus primus prodidit

1.0 ma hore fierers H. fterlings. Liuonia. Pruffia. Semigailia, versus Orientem, primo est Hibernia, secundo Britannia maior, qua continet Angliam & Scotiam : Deinde Norguegia, Swecia, Dacia, & post in Orientem versus est mugnum mare pradiction, qued Marc Orientale, vocatur mare Orientale; quia Oceanus non se extendit vitra aliud mare: Sed super latus Aquilonare istus maris immediate post angulum Swecia: est Estonia: deinde Liuonia versus Orientem illins mavocane na inco. ru: deinde Curonia seu Curlandia declinando ad Meridianum latus : postea Prussia magna terra in le in nofini bi- Meridiano latere : deinde Pomerania : postea Lubec portus magnus & famosus in consinte Dacia & Saxonia. In medio istius maris est Insula quadam, qua vocatur Gotlandia. Et super Liuoniam ad Orientem est Semigallia. Curoniam circundat Leucon: a praditta, & etiam circundat Ruffia macua ex viraque parte maris dicti, & terminatur Meridiana ad Prustiam & Poloniam. Polonia vero sacet 10 ad Meridiem Pruffix : & ad Meridiem eius est Bohemia : deinde Austria. Et ad Occidentem terrarum istarum Alemannia ; & postea Francia & Hispania. Sed ha nota sunt : facio tamen mentionem. propter alias. Ad Orientem Austriz & Bohemiz est Hungaria, ad quam Occidentalis pars Albaniz Danubii ducde. descendit. Nam cadit super Danubium, qui fluit per medium Hungaria, & vitra cam in mare Ponticum per duodecim oftia magna. In termino vero Hungaria Orientalis a parte Aquilonis occurrit Vel Valachi. Moldana, comra quam ad Meridiem Danubij funt " Balchi & Bulgari & Constantinopolis, and terre antiquitus vocabantur Thracia. Albama igitur Occidentalis extenditur à Danubio post finem Hungarie versus Orientem vsque ad flumen Tanaim ; habens Cassariam à Meridie, & Balchiam.

Albania.

tango eas propter notstiam alsorum. Si ergo à finibus Occidentalibus ex parte Aquilonis afcendamus

Albania Occi-

Et ultra Russam ad Aguilonem est Gens Hyperborea, que sie nominatur a montibus magnis, qui 20 vocantur Hyperborei. Es hac Gens propter aeris salubritatem viuit in syluis. Gens longana vique quo quorum fabulis, fustidant mortem, optimarum consuctudinum. Gens quieta & pacifica, null nocens, nec ab alia Gente molestatur : sed confugiunt ad eam sicus ad assum. Qualiter aucem potest Regio ibi esse temperatissima. tetios prius in complexionibus locorum Mundi. Et sic habemus regiones Aquilonares in Europa notabiles. Ritus vero istarum Gentium sunt dinersi. Nam Pruteni, Curlandi, Liuonij, Estonij, Semigalli, Leuconij funt Pagani. Alani vero non funt, quia Tartari ceperunt terram illam, & fuganerunt omnes, vique in Hungariam. Et Cumani funt Pagani : & Alani fuerant similuer, sed deleti funt. Ruteni funt Christiani, & funt scismatici, babentes ritum Gracorum, sed non viuntur lingua Graca: immo lingua Sclauonica : qua est una de linguis, que plures occupat regiones. Nam Rustiam, Polo- 30 niam & Bohemiam, & multas alsas Nationes tenet. Tartari vero à Danabio in ho Bulgariam & Constantinopolim. Ab Occasu vero Hungariam & Poloniam, & extremitatem.

Ruix: ab Aquilone habet totam longitudinem Ruffix.

Alani deleti. Decft linea.

Pigani.

Tartari.

in terram Alanorum seu Cunamorum, & viterius, vique fere ad partes vitimas Orientis, & alias Nationes eis vicinas ad Aquilonem & Meridiem subinganerunt pro maxima parte. Nam alique Gentes sunt in montanis & locis tuissimis, quas non possunt debellare, licet sint eis vicini, quia funt inexturnabiles.

Montes Riphæi. Albania fu-

Etilia florion, wane Edel, &

Volga, crescit

non ex eadem

caufa, quia Ni-

lus, nec eodem

Tanais quidem fluuius descendit à montibus Riphæis altissimis, qui sunt in vero Aquilone: necest ultro illos ad Aquilonem habitatio. Et in termino Orientali Ruffia & Alania, ubi mercatores & alu Hot Cafale bodie conuentunt de Hungaria & Cailaria, & Polonia & Ruffia est quoddam Cafale, vbi nauigio pertranfivocaur Asou, tur flumen Tanais, Et est Tanais ibi ad latitudmem Sequanæ Parilijs. Et vlira flumen illudest Albania superior vique ad alind flumen magnum, quod vocatur Etilia, que maior est in quadruplo quam. 40 Sequana : & est de maioribus fluminibus Mundi ; & crescit in astate sicut Nilus : & à parte Aquilonis distat boc slumen à Tanai per decem dietas : sed versus meridiem multum seperantur. Nam Tanais cadit in mare Ponticum, & Etilia in mare Caspium : & facit illnd mare, cum alijs stuminibus multis, que veniunt de Perside & aligs locis. Nam à Pontico mari secundum Plinium sunt tricenta olloginta milliaria vique ad mare Caspium. Et in hac terra habitabant Cumani. Sed Tartari deleue. runt omnes, sicut ex altera parte fecerunt ofque ad D mubium, or dictum est. Et Tartari habent pecomodo : fed Hyem congelatur; ra infinita, & habitant in tentorijs, non habentes villu nec castra nistrarissime. Et unsu Princeps cum eflute l'quefiunt exercitu, & cum suis armentis gregum vagatur inter duo flumina. Ui vinus inter Borithenem & Tanaim : alius inter Tanaim & Etiliam ; & fic vitra versus Orientem, quia semper dinist sunt per de ex fabulu & pascua & aquam. Et à l'annario incipiunt adirepartes Aquilonarei inxta flumina osque ad Augustum: 50 antiquandis an. C tune redeunt ver sus meridianas propter frigus Aquilonis in byeme. Et ver sus Aquilonema stat Etiquitatis rugis. tilia à Prouincia Cassaria per unum mensem o tres dietas, sicus equitant Tartati. Hec vero terra Dolle tamen au- Tartarorum inter Tanaim & Etiliam habet ab Aquilone quasdam Gentes : & primo est Gens Athor iste, cuius rimplica propemontes Riphicos, qua est similus Hyperboreus in * omnibus. Et ha dua Gentes surt prope polum in Aquilone. Sed remotius ab Aquilone vitra Tanaim est primo Gens que vocatur Moi la detecta, nec Subiecta Tartaris. Et sunt adhuc sine lege pure Pagani : ciuitatem non habent, sed casulas in sil-Etilia, velVol. nis. Dominus corum & magna pars corum fuerunt interfecta in Polonia per Polonios & Alemanga. Etil. Tar- nos & Boemos. Nam Tartari duxerunt eos ad bellum cum Polonis : & multum approbant Polonos toricum nomen, & Alemannos de firenuitate; sperantes adbuc liberare à seruitute Tattarorum per eos. Se mercator Volga Me seus ventat inter eos, oportet quod ille in cuius domo primo hospitatur, det es expensas quantum vult ibi mo- 60 ticum. Nota rari, Hac enim est consuctudo illius Regionis. Post hos ad Orientem est Cens quadam que vocatur quad maior Bul. Mercluini, subietti Tarcaris. Sed sunt Saraceni, babentes legem Machemett. Post eos est Etilia garit, hodie Ruffia destur. flumen pradistum quod descendit à maiori Bulgaria, de qua postea dicetur. Meridie vero issue Re-Muscouia, gionis Tartererum super more Ponticum funt Hiberi & Georgiani. Et in Georgia est metropolis cuntus, qua vocatur Tephelis, in qua Fratres Pradicatores habent domum. Es viterius versus Orien- Tephelis. sem est serra Coralminorum: sed delets sunt à Tartaris. Et in his locis solebant antiquitus esse Ama. Comminideles zones, fecundum Plinium & Ethicum Aftronomum. Amazones enim , vi refert Ethicus , fuerunt Amazones. nutieres ducentes exercitum magnum ex mulieribiu fine viris colleitum: qua aduocantes viros cortis Palea. temporibus anni conceperunt: sed masculos genitos interfecerunt, saminas reservando, quarum in iunentuic mamillas dextras per artificium chirurgia abstulerunt ne in sagutando reciperent impedimentum. per mamillas; & Minotauros as Centauros, monstra ferocussima nutriuerunt à iunentute mamillijuu: unde antecedebant eas sicut matres suas : & omnem exercitum premebant magis per baiusmods monstra, quam per arma : & similiter Elephantes à inuentute nutriebant & assuccebant ad bella : & 10 Seper centum annos vastabant meridianas partes Afix & Gracia, donec ab Hercule fuerunt seduita & distructa. Hac vero loca Georgianorum & Corasminorum bibent terram Soldani Turkiæ & Capidociam à Meridie. Nam in latere Meridiano maris Pontics est terra Soldani usque ad Sinopolun, de qua prius dictum est : & post eam in codem latere maris versus Occidentem est terra Valtacij, scilicet Terra V. stacij Gracia Orientalis. Nam Occidentalis vocatur vbi Constantinopolis est, o Regiones es annexe ci- fius. Regnun tra Brachium Santti Georgij in Europa. Sed Armenia maior est super Capadociam ad Orientem. 110pezonda; Et ideo illa Armenia etsi Meridiana sit respectu Georgia, tamen in Orientem tendit, & extenditur ofque Mediam & Melopotamiam. Et bac terra tota astimatur à multus effe terra Ataiat; propter boc Terra Ataiat.

quod in Itaia dicitur, quod filis Sennacherio interfetto patre fugerunt in Ararat: In libro Reguin. 20 dicitur, quod fugerunt in Arm. nam. Sed Ieronimu, undecimo libro super Isaiam foliut hoc dicens: Ararat regio in Armenia campestris per quam Araxis sluit incredibilis obertatis ad radices montis Tauri, qui ofque illuc extenditur. Quapropter Ararat non est tota Armema, sed regio determinata; magna tamen est. Nam Araxes fluuius, a quo Ararat regio nominatur, extenditur à capite suo per iter trium mensium & amplius. Caput autem eius est Fons in monte Armenia vbs proprie oritur Eu- De hot dubito. pirrates ex parte Aquilonis, & Tigris ad aliud latius montis versus Meridiem. In montibus autem Atmeniæ testante Scriptura requieuit Arca Noe: Sed non in quibuscunque montibiu: quoniam non est in istis, vois orium ur ista tria flumina magna, sed in altisimo Tauri montis cacumine, vois Ararat Tria sumina ex regio est, secundum quod dien Ieronimus vodecimo super liaiam; Arca in qua liberatus est Noe ces- escum montibus fante diluuo non ad montes generaliter Armenia. sed ad montes Tauri ait ssimos, qui Atarat mminent

30 campis. Et prope illos montes est ciuitas qua maxima fuit, antequam eum destruxerunt Tartari. Nam fuerunt in ea oblingenta Ecclefia Hermonorum. Et in tempore Fratris Willelmi, cum transfinit per Friter Willeleam, non fuerunt mist dua paruula: Et ibs prope fuerunt Martyrizati Beatus Bar holomzus & Bea- mus. tus Iulas Thaddaus. Et ibi funt due Prophetie. Una est Beati Methodij Martyris, qui fuit de Vid. fun in Rue Gente illa. Et plane prophetaut de Ismachtis que prophetia impleta est in Saracenis. Alius Prophe- brug. ta corum vocatur Abaton, qui prophetauit de Tarcaris & destructione corum. Dient enim, quod ab Bartholo-Aquilone veniet Gens Sagittaria, qua omnes Nationes Orientis subingabit: Et veniunt in Regnum. Iudas Tha-Occidentis, scilicet ad Constantin polim, & ibs per Principes Occidentis destruentur. Et sunc connertentur omnes Gentes Christi: Ferit tanta pax vbique, quod vini dicent morinis: Va vobis, quod non vixistis vique nune. Et Imperator Chr stianus p net soitum suum in Taurino in Periide, Et Her-

40 meni habent istam prophetiam sicut Euangelium. Et ciuitas memorata vocatur nunc Naxuan; que Nune Nacho Colebat effe caput Regni: & est versus partes Aquilonares Armen 2. Nam à festo Santts Clemen-chuan. tis ascendit Frater Willelmus inxta Araxem vbi terminatur versus Aquilonem; & in festo Natalis venit ad illam civitatem ; & in Octanis Epiphania recessit ab ea : & per A axem init vsque ad caput eius in sicunda Dominica qui dragesima : & non longe plus est à ciuitate illa ad vitimum Armeniæ aparte Meridici, quam ad Aquilonem. Deinde superius ad Orientem sunt montes Alanorum, & Aas, Alani. Aas, qui funt Christiani, & recipiunt vidifferenter omnes Christianos tam Latinos quam Gracos: unde non funt scismutici, & pugnant cum Tartaris; & similiter Alani. Post eos ad Orientem sunt Saraceni, que vocantur Lelgi, qui similiter propter terra fortitudirem pugnant cum Tattatis.

Post illos ad Orientem funt Porte Calpix Super Mare Calpium, gass Alexander magnus conftru- cent xit in concur su Montsum. Nam cum volus expugnare Gen em Aquilonarem no potuit propter illus 50 Gentis ferocitatem C' multitudinem. Et, vt dicit Ethicus, fletit per annum vuum & mensestres, ut defenderet fe ab cis, & ingenus quod talis peffima Gens fuiset in partibus Aquilonis; & exclamauit ad Deum, ut apponeret remedium, ne mundus desti neretur per eos. Sed licet non fuit dignus ausdiri, tamen Deus su bonitate, & propier salutem generu humani, iussu siere terra motum maximum, C' montes distantes per stadium conjunits sunt vique ad latitudinem unius Porta. E: Alexander tunc fecit fundi columnas ereas mira magnitudinis. & erexit portas & liniuit eas bitumine, quod nec igne, giumex infulis nec aqua,nec forro diffolui poffet, quod acquifinit ex Infulis maris. Nec potuerunt dinini aliquo modo nifi maris. per terra motum: & tam dirut a funt, Nam Frater Willelmus transsust per medium earum cum Tetta- Porta ferrea ris. Et eft ibi ciuitas qua vocatur Porta ferrea Alexandrità qua versus orientem incipit Hircania super Alexandri, Hircanum mare, quod est Calpium, ve superius dell'umest. Nam Hircania saces super littus meridionale

60 illius maris, co extenditur vso ad terminos India: à cuius Hircania latere meridionals sunt Media & Parchia, ficut prins fuit annotatum. Ha vero Porta non funt Caucatia, sed Calpia, ve dien Plinius: nec Caucatia funt Calpia. Nam Caucatia diffant a Calpijs per ducenta milliaria versus mare Ponticum: Et a mari Pontico distant per centum milliaria circa partes Hiberia & Georgia.

56

inc'uß. Antichriftus. Christian evpettine was the GILLIN STREETSCOR

Rogerus Bacon vinittempare Lodouici 9 Occanns Aquilonaris. Antiqui antimenlium. bide Turcometica : que iam pridem ad Titus Grecomodo Christianos tranfüt, hodica Finis Aquilo-Pascatur terra.

Magna Hanga-Blaci, Valachia

Gond Magog Et ifta loca cum montibies interiacentibus vocantur clauftra Alexandri, per qua cobibuit Gentes Aquiinhabien mili- Ionares ne irruerent in terras Meridianas deuastando eas. Nam Alexander multa bella gessit cum ess. ve refert Ethicus, & aliquando infra tres dies ceciderunt ex veragno parte multa milita hominum. Alexand r tamen migis arte & ingenio vicu, quam armorum potestate. Et cum fuerunt excitati ficut Vth de caucrais suis, non potuerat eos reprimere per violentiam : Sed Deus invit per terre motum & clausuras montium: Nunc autem rupte funt; & din est quod fracta sunt, sine terra motu, seu vetust ute. Et considerandum est duligenter de locis istis. Nam Gog & Magog de quibus Ezcchiel Pro-Harles, the ita- phetat, & Apocalyphis, in hijs locis suntanciass. Secundum quod dicit letonimus undecimo libro super refignites pre- Ezechielem; Gog Scythica gens trans Caucelum & Maotim & Caspium mare ad Indiam vique forting of alian tenduntur. Et aprincipe Gog, omnes qui subditi sunt Magog appellantur. Et Iudici similiter, quot to therait: he artis Orofius & alie fancli referunt exituros. Atque, ficut Ethicus feribit, Alexander inclusit viginti duo Eines Alem Sa. Resna de storpe Gog & M. gog, exitura in diebus Antichristi : Qui mundum primo vastabunt, & Ponutici fe. deinde obuiabunt Antichrifto, & vocabunt eum Deum deorum ; ficut & Beatus Ieronimus confiret nies & Con- mat. O quam' necessarum est Ecclesia Dei, vi Prelati & viri Catholici hac loca considerent : non prientes, espe- folum propter conversionem Gentium in illis lieis, & consolationem Christianorum captinorum ibiit int tamen An- dem, sed propter persecutionem Antichristi, ve sciatur unde venturus sit, & quando, per hanc considerente venturum rationem & alias multas. Aportis vero Caspijs incipit Mare Caspium extendi in longum ad Orientem & in latum ad Aquivontant nique Ionem. Et est non minus quam Ponticum Mare, vt dicit Plinius : Et habet spacium quatuor men-Ine Magnoini firm in circuitu. Frater vero Willielmus in redeundo ab imperatore Tartarcrum circuinit latus Occi- 30 acitaiu myserio dental, & in cundo ad cum perambulauit latus Aquilonare; ve ipse resulte Domino Rege Francia, qui nunc est, Anno Domini, 1253. Et a parte Aquilonis babet vaftam Solitudinem, in qua funt Tartari : Christic Da. Et vitra eo: sunt multa Regiones Aquilonares antequam permenitur ad Oceanum. Et ideo non potest Frater Williel- istud Marcesse sinus maris Oceani: quod tamen fere omnes authores scribunt. Sed experientia buius tempores facta per fratrem Willielmum & bomines alios fideles docet quod non venit a Mari, fed fit per flumina magna & multa, quorum congregatione fit hoc mare Calpium & Hircanum.

Tota vero hac terr Tartarorum a l'anai vique ad Etiliam fuit Cumanorum, qui vocabantur Canregis Francia. gle : quiomnes sunt deleti per Tartaros. Et tota ista terra vocabatur Albania antiquitus. Et hic sint Canes maxims, ita ut Leones, & tauros perimant: Et homines ponunt eos in bigis & aratris. Deinde vltra Eriliam eft tertius principatus Tartarorum : Et destructe funt gentes indigene ab eis : Et fuerunt 20 Cumani Cangle, sicut prius. Et durat principatus ille à flumine Etilia in Orientem per iter quatuor Cumani idem mensum ex parte meridionali, vsque veniatur ad terram principalem imperatoris : Sed ex parte Aquiqui Cangle, & lonari durat per iter duorum mensium & decem dierum. Ex quo patet, qued Cumania suit terrarum maxima. Nam a Danubio v que ad terram banc in qua Imperator residet , habitabant Cumani. Out omnes funt destructi à Tartaris, prater eos qui fugerunt ad regnum Hungaria. Et hic principatus habet Tetraprincipalis ab Aquilone primo Maiorem Bulgariam; à qua venerunt Bulgari, qui sunt inter Constantinopolin & Hungariam & Sclauoniam. Nam bac que in Europa est minor Bulgaria, habet linguam illo-Cumania max- rum B. Igarorum qui sunt in maiori Bulgaria, qua est in Alia. Et iste Bulgari sunt pessimi Saraceni. imaterrarum; Et boc est mirabile: quoniam illa terra distat a porta ferrea sen a Portis Caspijs triginta diebus & plus per transuersum Solitudinis: Et est in fine Aquilonis. Unde mirum est valde, quod ad eos tam distan- 40 Bulgaria milor tes a Saracenis peruenit felta Machome i. Et de hac Bulgaria venit Etilia, de qua dictum est. Post (que bodie Ruf cam ad orientem est terra Pascatur, qua est magna Hungaria, a qua exinerunt Huni : Qui postea Hungri; modo dicuntur Hungari. Qui colligentes secum Bulgaros, & alias Nationes Aquilonares, sicut dicit Isidorus, Claustra Alexandri ruperunt : Et foluebatur eis tribusum vique in Egygtum. Et detem wis Maho- struxerunt terras omnes v sque in Franciam. Vnde maioris potentia fuerunt, quam adbuc sust Tartari. Et magna pars eorum residet in terra que nunc vocatur Hungaria vitra Bohemiam & Auftriam, que est modo apud latinos regnum Hungariae. Et suxta terram Pascatur sunt Blaci de Blacia maiori : a qua venerant Blaci in terra Affani inter Conflantinopolim & Bulgariam, & Hungariam, & Hungariam minorem. Nam populus ille dicitur nunc a Tartaris Ilac; quod idem est quod Blac. Sed Tartari nesciunt sonare B. literam. A parte vere meridiei Istins Solandinis Tartarcrum est mare Caspium: 50 Et deinde montes Caucali v que in Orientem. Et extenditur hie principatus ab Etilia v que in Carayam Nigram : unde vocatur Cara Cataja. Et Cara idem est, quod Nigra : Et dicitur Cataja Nigia, ad differentiam alterius Cataix, qua est longe vitra hanc ad Orientem multis regionibus distantem ab ısta Cataia Nigra : de qua postea dicitur. Et hac terra cum sibi ad: acentibus est terra imperatoris Tat-* Sc licet in ro. tarorum pracipui, in quibus vagatur semper cum curia sua, ascendendo in astate ad frigidae regiones; t oribus illin Or. O m byeme ad calidas. Et bas Catara Nigra fuit terra Presbyteri loannis, sen Reges Ioannis; de quo tanta fama folebat effe : & multa falfa dicta funt & (cripta.

Hie vero oportet exprimi originem Tartarorum : .. on solum propter enidentiam distinctionis regionum Mare Caspium maiorem. sed propter ip sam Gentem, que nunc famos fima est, & subdit mundum pedibus. Sciendum iqu-Montes Caucali tur, quod cum bellum fuit Antiochia, tune regnoutt in Terra ifia Coir Can. Nam in historia Antio- 60 Carait Nigra, chena legitur. Quod Turci miserunt pro succursu contra Francos ad regnum Coir Can, qui tenebat Monarchiam in regionibus Aquilonis, tempore illo, quo capta fuit Antiochia qui fuit de Cara Catala. Coir ver est nomen proprium: Can est nomen dignitatis; & sonat idem qued Dininator. Nam principes ibi requot populum per dininationes & fecentin que instruuet homines in futuris, sine sint partes Physica, et Aftronomia of scient: a experimentalis, sue artes Magica, quibus totum Oriens est deditu of imbutum. Omnes igitur imperatores Taitarorum vocantur Can : ficut apud nos vocantur imperatores & Reges. Mortus vero fo Coir, fuit quidur pafter Neitorinus in terra illa potens & Dominus super populum, qui populus vocatur Niiman; qui erant Coristiani, Neitorini. Qui sunt mali Christiani: Et tamen Niiman forduennt fe effe subsector Romanx Ecclesia. Et ift: Neitorini non folum funt ibi in Terra Naiman, fed lui. per omnes regiones vique in Orientem sunt dispersi. Iste vero pastor erexit se in Regem; & vocatus est Prelbyter & Rex Ionannes. Huic Iohanni erst frater quidam paster potent Vnc nomine : babens fina 10 pascua ultra fratrem sum per iter trium Septimanarum: Et erat Dominus cuinsdam Villa, qua dici- Giracotum tur Caracarum : que est nunc ciu tas Imperialis, & masor in terra Imperatoris : Et tamen non est ita Diki.

Caraia Nigra fuit Terra Presbytteri Ichannis, de que multa falfa , nes falfitate mineri transfet fabula ad Abossinos novama dedit nobit Presbjierum Toannem Africanum. Turci. Regnum Cole Can.

bona ficmt Santins Dionyius inxta Parifics in Francia; ficut feripfit frater Willelmus Domino Regi. Et vitra pascua istino circiter duodecino dietas erant pascua Moal, qui erant pauperes homines, & stutti Pascua Moal. ac simplices sine lege : iuxta quos sucrunt ally pauperes qui vocabantur Tartari, similes ess. Mortuo Tartari. igitur Iohanne Rege eleuaut se in Regens Vnc frater eius, & vocanit se Can : vnde Vnc-Can dicebatur : qui missic armenta sua versus terminos Moal. Inter quos Moal erat saber quidam nomine Cingis, Cingis saber. furans & rapiens animalia Vinc-can. Quo congregante exercitum Cingis fugit ad Tattaros : Qui dixa ad cos & ad Moal : Quia sumus sine duce ideo Vicini nostri opprimunt nos. Et factus est Dux corum, o congregato exercitu irruit super V nc-can, o vicit cum, o fattus est princeps in terra, o vo-20 caust fe Cingis-can : Et accepit filiam Vic, & dedit eam filto fuo in vxorem , ex quanatus est Mangu Can, qui regnum dinisti istis principibus Tartarorum, qui nune regnant & discordant ab invicem. Ad hunc enim Mangu Can fuit frater Willelmus. Et ipfe Cingis Can vbig, pramittebat Tattaros in pugna. Unde exinit fame Tartatorum : qui fere deleti sunt per crebra bella. Et licet propier banc caufam nos istam Gentem vocemus Tartaros, apud quos est imperium & Dominium : tamen semper

(unt Imperatores of principes de gente Moal. Nec volunt vocari Tattati sed Moal : quia primus eorum imperator sciliset Cingis-can, suit Natione Moal. Unde non hibnerunt ad huc ante istos qui nunc requant nift tres seilicet Cingis-can, & Ken-can, & Mangu-can. Qui Ken-can fuit filius Cingis, & Cingis can. Mangu stilius eins. Hac initur gens Moal est stulisssma ab origine prima, & pauperrima : Que tamen Hocita-can. permissione Dinina paulatime omnes Nationes vicinais subingaunt & totam mundi latitudinem in paruo Mangu-can. 30 tempore prostrauit. Que si effet concors primo congressu Egyptum & Aifricam vastaret, vi sic ex compore prostrauit. Zue se esse concert production of the Poloniam. Quia Tota Russia parte Lacinos circundarent. Nam nunc a parte Aquilonis regnant vsq, in Poloniam. Quia Tota Russia omni parte Lacinus erremount and Ariente vfg, ad Dinubium, o vitra Danubium, scilicet Tarreris (ubdi-Bulgaria & Blachia funt eis tributaria : Ita quod v fa ad terram Conffantinopolitanam tenet eorum ta. Imperium. Et Soldanus Turkix, & Rex Armenix, & princeps Antiochix, & omnes principes Orientis v[q, in Indiam sunt eis subietti, prater pancos, qui aut nimis distant, aut habent loca in Montanis tutiffima, que expugnare non poffunt. Primo igitur in terra vbi imperator moratur est, Cataia Nigra, vbi fuit Presbyter Iohannes. Post Caraia Nigra. eam est terra fratris sui ultra per iter trium Septimanarum, Deinde terra Moal ; & Tartarorum ultra vbi suit Presbreos per iter quasi due decem ductarum. Sed tota bac terra est in qua moratur Imperator vagans per di ter lobannes. eos per ster quasi aus accens accarum. Dea cota vac terra est in qua musican amprimo organo per un Terra Moal.

40 nersa loca. Terra tamen in qua suerust Moal, vocatur Ornan Kerule: Et ibi est adhuc Curia Cingis Terra Tattaro-

Cin, Sed quia Ciracarum, cum Regione eius fuit prima adquisitio eorum; ideo Ciuit tem illam ha-rum. bent pro imperiale : Et prope illam eligunt sunm Can, id est Imperatorem. Deinde post Moal & Tarta- Ornan Kerule. ros ad Orientem funt fortes homines, qui vocantur Tangut; quiceperunt primo Cingis-can in beller Caracarum, Sed pace facta sterum subius auit cos. Ist homines habent Boues fortissimos, habentes Candas plenas pilis Ciutas Imperiaficut Equi: Quorum vacca non permittunt fe Mingi, nifi cautetures. Et fi ifti Boues vident bominem Tangut. indutum rubeis, in fliunt in eum volentes interficere. Post istos ad Orientem sunt bomines qui vocantur Vac. x malen-Tebeth: qui solebant comedere parentes suos cansa pietatis, vit non faccrent ess alia Sepulchra nisi cacantu ad unscera sus. De quibus scribum Philosophi, ve Plinius, Solinus & alig : Et frater Willelmus testatur Mulgendum. in libro suo: ac frater lohannes de Plano Carpini similiter in libro, quem composuit de Tartaris, inter Tebech 50 quos fut Anno Domini, 1246. mifus a Domino Papa in legationem ad Imperatorem Tartarorim. Vidab Hak. to.

Sed quia suerunt ex boc facto abominabiles omni Nationi, ideo iam mutaverunt bunc ritum & ta- 1.0 4) Vincen. men adons de offins capitum faciunt ciphos, in quibus bibunt propter memoriam parentum fuorum. Pest (pechific 32, iftes ad Orientem funt parui bomines & fusci sient Hilpani, & dieuntur Solangi. Quorum nuncij Solangi. cum veniunt ad curiam al cuius, habent in manu tabulam de Ebore, in qua inspiciunt cum narrant ca que volunt, acsi omnia essent ibi scripta. Et ultra eos est quid un Populue, quorum animalia non appropriant alicui, nec habent cust dem. Sed si aliquis indigena vult habere aliquod animal, stat super collem & vociferat sicu: vult, & veniunt ad vocem sum, & accipit quod vult. Quod si extrancus veniret, odore suo sugaret omnia, & saceret ea Stluestria. Et ideo cum homo venit extraneus, claudunt eum in domo, & dant et necessaria vita, donec bibeat responsum de cus pro quibus venit, nec permutent eum va-

50 gari ber regionem. Vitra bos est Catala (qua Seres dicitur apud Philosophos.) Et est in extremitate O- tremitaic Ostrientis , a parte Aquilonati refectu Indix, dinifa ab ea per sinum Maris & Montes. Et bic fiunt pan - equ. nı serici optimi, & in magna copia. Vode ab hac terra deferuntur ad alias regiones. Et hic populus alpir.st multum per nares: Et sunt optimi Artisices in omni arte. Et sunt boni Medici apud cos in omnibus pratergram de Vina, cuius inducio non utuntur, sed per Pulsun 🕏 alta signa optime diinducant : Et bene cognescent vires ber barum, & toties medicine potestasem. Multi ex eis sunt apud Tartaros. Et istorum Cataiorum moneta vulgaris est charta de hambasio in qua imprimunt quasdam lineas, Nec muun; Cum Ruteni, qui prope nos funt, habent pro moneta faciem . Helperolorum. Et ifta Catala non distat per 120. dietas à terra in qua moratur Imperator. Et in illa terra sunt rupes excelsa, in quibus habitant quadam creatura habentes per omnia formam humanam; non tamen genna fleciunt, fed ambulant saltando : sed non sunt longitudinis maioris, quam cubiti; & vestitur totum co pus crinibus. Et venatores portant cerustiam, & saciunt soueas in rupibus ad modum cyphorum: Et illa animalia veniunt & bibunt ceruisiam, & inebriantur, & dormiunt, & sic capiuntur: Et venatores ligant eis manus & pedes, & aperiunt venam in collo, & extrabunt tres vel quatuor guitas sanguinis, & dissoluunt ea, ac permittunt abtre. Et ille sanguis est preciosissimus pro purpura.

Tel Afpreole-Descriptio Simix.

Patriarcha Ne-

Sciendum vero, quod à principio Cataix magne nigre vique ad finem Orientis sunt principaliter I. dolatra : fedmixti funt inter eos Saraceni & Tartari, & Nestoriani, qui funt Christiani imperfecti babentes Patriarcham suam in Oriente; qui visuat Regiones, & ordinat infantes in cunabulis ad sacros ordines: quia ip se solut ordinat; & non potest venire ad vnum locum nisi quasi in quinquaginta annis .Et bun in Athlo- ille diest se habere amthoritatem à Romana Ecclesia ab antique; & paratus est obedire, si via esset aperta, Et ist docent silios Nobilium Tartarorum Euangelium & sidem, & alios quando possunt. Sed quia parum sciunt, & sunt malorum morium, ideo Tartari despiciunt eos. Et consecrant in milla unum panem latum ad modum palma, & dividunt primo in duodecem partes, secundum numerum Apostolorum; & postea illus partes dissidunt secundum numerum populi. Et Sacerdos dat uniquique corpus Christi in manu sua; & tunc quilibet assumt de palma sua cum renerentia. Sed I dolatra pranalent in multitudi-20 ne in omnibus hijs Regionsbus. Et omnes conuensunt in hoc quod habem Templa sicut nos , & campanas magnas. Et ideo Ecclesia Grzecorum & rotins Orientis nolunt babere campanas. Ruteni ramen habent &

Idolatre.

Omnes Sacerdotes eorum radunt caput & barbam, & seruant castitatem ex quo radunt caput : Rafias. Callitas. Et vinunt centum vel ducentum in una congregatione. Diebus quibus intrant Templum ponunt Collegia Sacer-

Cords nucleo-Ingres.

Tebeth. Tangut. Catal Orienta. Chinzivtunmodi penscillis, & characteribus

Caracteres Phi-

duo scamna, & sedent e Regione, ehorus contra chorum m terra, habentes libros in manibus, quos aliquan. do deponunt super illa scamna : & babent capita di scooperta quamdin sunt in Templo legentes in siknoio; & nullo modo loquerentur in Templo nisi verba officiy suis. Habent etiam in manibus quocunque vadunt quandam cordam centum vel ducentum nucleorum sicut nos Pater noster: ducunt super hac verba. On. Maio, Baccan, id est, Deus tu nosti. Hac sunt communia omnibus Idelatris. Sed tamen Iugres, qui 30 habitant in terra vbi Imperator moratur, differunt ab alijs. Nam alij non ponunt vnum Deum, sed plures, & creaturam adorant. Isti vero propter Viciniam Christianorum & Satacenorum ponunt unum. Deum, Et sunt optimi scriptores: unde Tattati acceperunt litteras corum: & illi sunt magni scriptores Tartarorum. Et isti scribunt à sur sum in deor sum, & à sinistru in dextram multiplicant lineas & legunt. Tebeth scribunt sicut nos, & babent siguras similes nostris. Tangut scribunt à dextra in sinifram sicut Arabes, sed multiplicant lineas ascendendo. Catai Orientales scribunt cum punctorio, que pinqunt pictores: & facium in una figura plures literas comprehendentes unam dictionem. Et ex boc venium Caracteres, qui habent multas literas simul. Vnde veri Caracteres & Philosophici sun Rompositi ex literis, & babent sensum dictionum. Et tota terra à Danubio vsq. in Orientem vocatur apud Antiquos Scythia, à quo Scythæ. Et omnes Regiones Tartarotum funt de Scythia : & etiam Russia, 40 o totum víq, ad Alamaniam.

And thus much ex quarta parte Compendiy Studiy Theologia F.R. Baconi.

V.B. Spec. hift. lib.32. 1.2.6.5.faith two of them went to the Cham: but they Relations of VINCENTIVS BELVACENSIS, the most of which hecrecised from Frier S I M ON de Sancto Quintino, one of the foure Friers fent by Pope INNOCENT the Fourth to the Tartars: feruing to the illustration of the former.

Nno, 1246. Curne, who is also called Gog Cham, was advanced to the Imperial Throne of 50 the Tartars. All their Barons being affembied, placed a golden feat in the midft, whereon ther way, loby they caused him to sit; and set a Sword before him, saying, Wee will, and defire, and commind ther way, 10000 thee to rule ouer vs. He demanded if they were contented, to doe, come, goe, flay as he should and his fellow, command. They answered yea. Then said he, The word of my mouth shall henceforth bee my whose story is Sword: and they all consented. After this they spread a Felt on the ground, and set him thereon, faying, Looke upwards and acknowledge God, and looke downe on the Felt whereon thou fitteff. If thou shalt gouerne well, wilt be liberall, inst, and horour thy Princes according to their dignitie, thou shalt reigne magnificent, and the whole World shall be subject to thy Dominion, and God will give thee all thy hearts desire; if otherwise thou shalt bee miserable and so poore, that the Fels shall not bee left thee whereon thou fittest. This done, they let his Wife with him on the Felt : and lifted them up 69 both fo fitting, and proclaimed them Emperour and Empresse of the Tartari. After which they hum Ocodai Cast brought before him infinite flore of Gold, and Silver, and Gemmes, with all which remayined to Chagadan, who distributed what he pleased, and referred the rest. Then began they to drinke untill night after their manner; and afterward solden flesh came in Carts without Salt, and a mongit foure or fine they distributed a joynt thereof. They call him Can, concealing his proper name, and he boafts himselte the Sonne-of God. He hath a Prince in the Confines of Persia, called Baioth Noy ( Noy, fignifieth his dignitie, Baioth is his name) which hath subdued the Countries of Christians and Saracens to the Mediterranean Sea. Anothercalled Corenzam remayneth in the Welt Frontiers with threefcore thousand vader him. The greatest Prince is Bathath, who Batha. hath under him one hundred and threefcore thousand Tarters, and four hundred and fiftie thoufand Christians and others. The Chams forces are inhumerable.

Vincent, 1.32.

Anno Dom. 1247. Frier Afeelinns fent by the Popt, came into the Campe of the Tariats with other Friers Preachers : where the Captayne Baioth-noy, by Meffengers demanded, whose Mefto fengers they were. Frier Afeeline answered for them all, I am the Messenger of the Lord Pope, who among it Christians is greater then any man, reputed a Father and Lord. They replyed, how proudly doe yee lay your Pope is greater then any ! Knowes he not that the Cham is Son of God and Baiesh-ney and Batho are his Princes! Aferlines answered, the Pope knowes nos them, but heares that the Tartars have comne out of the East, and have destroyed infinite multitudes. And had he knowne the names of Cham or his Princes, he would not have omitted their names in the Letters which we bring. But beeing grieued for the flaughters of fo many, especially Christians, with the aduice of his Brethren the Cardinals, he hath sent vs to the next Tartarian Armie we could find, to exhort the Generall thereof to cease fuch attempts, and to repent of that which they have done. The Messengers went and came divers times betwixt, e-20 uery time in change of Garments, and were very follicitous for Gifts and Prefents which the Friers had none to giue. And besides they denyed to performe the Ceremonies of kneeling to Baioth-noy, left they should thereby intimate a subjection of the Pope to the Tartars: whereupon The foure hee consulted to put them all foure to death, to which a Messenger sent from the Great Cham were Assessment would not confent. The Frien only would put vp their hoods and bow the head : whereata Alberite, Alex Tartar asked whereas you Christians adore stockes and stones, that is Crosses imprinted on them; men. why doe you refuse to doe so to Baioth-noy, whom Cham the Sonne of God hath commanded to be adored. Ascelmus answered, Christians adore not stockes and stones, but the signe of the Croffe theron, for his fake which dyed on a Croffe, adorning it with his mebers as precious lew- See a kke diels and confecrating it with his bloud, purchafing thereby our faluation. So cannot wee doe to flinction of 30 your Lord, Baieth ney fent them word, that hee would fend them with their Letters to the Ethnikes, Ang. Cham, which they refused. Then he sent for the Letters which were translated first into Persian, in Pfd. 113. and thence into the Tartar Language, Hee held them there with many Trickes and Illusions. many weeks with hard fare and ill viage. And after much adoe he returned with Bauth-noys an-

B Aioth nost Letter was this to the Pope, The word of Baioth-noy. Pope, know this ; thy Mef-General came and brought thy Letters to us. Thy Messengers spake great words; we know not whether thom gauest them so in charge, or whether they spake it of themselves. In thy Letters thou hadl written; yee kill, slay, and destroy many men. The precept of God stable and sirme, who contained the face 40 of the whole world, unto us is this. Whofoener shall beare the Statute on their owne Land, let them reeld Water and Patrimonie, and let them deliner power to bim which contagneth the face of the whole World. But who foener will not heare the Precept and Statute, but shall doe otherwise, let them be rooted out and Out we open error of the water was to chief that Sainte and Precept. If yes will yeeld Water and Pairs, mone on our Lund, it is meet that thou Pope thy felfs in thine perfor come to vir, and to bein which companies the conference of the whole Earth's and if thou will not heart to felfale Precept of God and of the which containeth the face of the whole Earth , wee know not, God knowes. It is meet that before thou commest, thou fendeft Meffengers, and that thou signifiest to us whether thou commest or no; whether thou will compound with Us, or be Enemie. And fend an Answere of the Procept quickly to Us. This Precent by the hands of Aybeg and Sargis, we have fent in the moneth of Iuly, the twentieth day of the Moone. In the Territorie of the Castle Sitiens.

fwer, having first had a Messenger with Letters from the Cham.

He Copie of the Chams Letters to Baioth-noy. By the Precept of the lining God Cingil-cham the Sonne of God, sweete and venerable faith, that God is high oner all, bee is God immortall, and upon Earth Cingis-cham, is Lord alone. Wee well that this come into every place to the hearing of all, to the Provinces obeying us, and to the Provinces, obeying against vs. It is therefore meete that thou O Baioth-noy excite them and make it knowne so them , that this is the commandement of the living and immortall God: that thou also incellantly make knowne thy desire touching this, and notifie my commandement in all places, where a Messenger may come. And who were final gamfay thee shall be hunted, and his Land shall be wasted. And I affure thee, that who-60 foener shall not heare this my Mandate, shall bee deafe; and who foener shall doe according to this my sudgement, knowing peace and not doing it, shall be lame. Let this my Ordinance come to the knowledge of all. Whosener thall beare and neglect to observe it shall be destroyed and slaine. Manifest this O Baioth-noy. And who seener desireth the profit of his House, and will serne vs , shall bee saued and bonoured. And whofoener finall contradict, studie thouse correct them at thine owne pleasure.

U.Bel.1 2: c.99.

* Hee was Author of a great part of that hi-

marke.

the ancients

See Brierwood

Vnto Lewis the French King were fent certayne Messengers from a great man, called Ercal-U.Bell. 23 1690. thay; and there was present Frier Andrew of Lontumes a Dominican, who knew Danid the to be that Sar. chiefe of them, hauing feene him in the Armie of the Tartart. Thefe brought Letters in Page tachin Ruhung. fan and Arabike Letters. They reported also that a great King of the Tartari called Chamwas Erealthur pre- become a Christian, with most of his followers. And now the faid Erealthur had received Baptisme and was come forth from Cham with a great Armie to aduance the Christian Faith, and to destroy the Aduersaries thereof; and much desired the French Kings loue. They thought also that the faid Erealthay would the next Eafter besiege Baldach. These told the King also of the Tartarian Affaires. Whereupon he fent Messengers with Letters and Iewels to Ercalibar, with a Tent or Chappell of Scarlet fairely embroydered, with the Storie of the Passion, with Orna-10 ments thereto and things fitting for Dinine Service, with a piece of the wood of the Holy Croffe, exhorting him to proceed in the Faith. The Messenger were the foresaid Frier Andrew with two other Friers and two Clerkes. Transcripts of all were fent into France.

CHAP. III.

Relations touching the Tartars, taken out of the Historie of R. Wen-DOVER, * and MAT. PARIS: with certayne Epiftles of the same subject.

ftory, which is wholly afcribed to Paris by the moft. Dacia is here. as often by later Authours corruptly ra-ken for Den-

Nno 1239. the Tartars, inhumane Nations, which had made great flaughters, and had with hostile forces inuaded the borders of Christendome, in the greater Hancarie were vanquished and most of them slaine, beeing encountred by fine Kings, Christians and Saracens, herein confederate. After which the King of Dacia and the King of Hungarie caused the Confines (before by the Tartars brought in manner to a Wilderneffe) to bee inhabited by Christians, which they fent thither. Of which out of Dacia, alone went more then fortie ships.

Anno 1240, the deteltable people of Satan, to wit, an infinite number of Tartars brake The Dacia of forth from their Mountayne-compassed, and Rocke-defended Region, like Deuth loosed out of comprehen-ded Transilus-Hell (that they may well be called Tartarians, as Tartareans) and like Grashoppers courring the face of the Earth, spoyling the Easterne Confines with fire and Sword, ruining Cities, cutting vp Woods, rooting vp Vineyards, killing the people both of Citie and Countrey. And if they spared any, they yied them in the fore-front of their battels to fight against their Allies, that if they were therein faint or fayned, themselves at their backes might kill them: if otherwise it was without reward. They are rather Monsters then men, thirsting and drinking bloud, tearing and deuouring the fielh of Dogges and Men; clothed with Oxe-hides, armed with Iron A Caluiff con- Plates; in stature thicke and short, well fet, strong in bodie; in Warre inuincible, in labour in- 40 fatigable, behind waarmed; drinking the bloud of their beafts for Dainties, &c. Thefe Tartare of detestable memory, are thought to be descended of the ten Tribes which went away (for sking the Law of Moles) after the golden Calues; whom Alexander the Macedon fought to inclofe in the Capitan hils : to which labour, exceeding humane power, hee introked the affiltance of the God of Ifrael, and the tops of the hils joyned together, and the place became inacceffible and impaffible. And though it be doubtfull, because they vie not the Hebrew Tongue, nor Law of Mofes, nor are gouerned by any Lawes; yet is it credible, that as their hearts then in Mofes gouernment were rebellious, Reprobately-fenfuall and Idolatrous, so now more prodigiously their heart and Language is confounded, and their life immane and beaftly inhumane. They are called Tartars of a certayne River called Tartar, running along ft their hils.

Anno 1241. that inhumame and brutish, lawlesse, barbarous and sauage Nation of Tartars, horribly spoyling the North and North-east parts of the Christians, cauled great feare and horrour ouer all Christendome. For they had now brought in manner to a Willernesse, Frista, Gothia, Pelonia, Bobenia, and both Hungarias, the most part of the Princes, Prelates and people beeing fled or flaine : as by this Letter appeareth.

O the Beloued and alway worthy to be beloued Lord, our Father in Law, the Illustrious Privice the Dake of Brabant, H. by the grace of God Earle of Loraine, Palatine of the Saxons, bis bumbleft service. The perills foretold in holy Scripture, now breake forth becamse of our sinnes. For a certaine outs service. I copperms solven and solves and lawlesse, invadeth and possesses the Constines next bordering to 60 es, and are now come to Poland, many other Lands being passed and peoples destroyed. Whereof aswellby our owne Messengers, as by our belowed Consin the King of Bohemia, we are fully certified and are inwited speedily to succour and defend the faithfull. For we know for certaine that about the Octives of Easter, the Tartatian Nation will inuade cruelly and foreibly the Lands of the Bohemians, and if not presented, will there perpetrate unheard-of flaughter. And because our next neighbours house is now on fire, and the next (ountrey iteth open to waste, and some are alreadie masted, we earnestly and pitifully entreat the ayde and counsell of God and of our neighbour-brethren for the universall Church. And because delay is full of danger, with all our hearts we beseech you, that you make all possible speed to arme as well for your as our delinerance, making strong preparations of store of Sculdiers; diligently exciting the noble, mightie and couragious, with the people subject to them, that yee may have them in readinesse, when we shall next direct our Messengers to you. And we, by the ministerie of our Prelates, Preachers, and Minors, cause the Crosse (because the businesse belongs to him which was crucified) to be generally prea Crifales ached, fast: and prayers to be appointed, and our Lands in common to be called to the marre of lesses Christ. Sainst the 10 Hereto wee adde that a great part of that detestable Nation, with an other Armie adioqued to them, wa_ tars.

fleth Hungaria with unheard-of tyrannie, insomuch that the King is said to have retayned but a small part to himselfe. And to Speake much in few words, the Church and People of the North is so oppressed and brought to such Straits, as it neuer was so scourged since the World began. Dated the yeere of grace

1241. on the day on which is fung Lætare Ierusalem: And this was the Letters fent to the Bishop of Paris by the Duke of Brabant. The like was written by the Arch-bishop of Cullen to the King of England. Therefore for this grieuous tribulation, and for the discord betwixt the Pope and the Emperour, so hurtfull to the Church, there are appointed fatts and prayers, with larger Almes in divers Regions, that our Lord being pacified with his people, who as a magnificent triumpher is as firong in a few as in many, may 20 destroy the pride of the Tartars. The French Kings mother, Queene Blanch, with deepe fighs and A desour plentifull teares spake hereof to her sonne. What shall we doe my dearest sonne about this lamentable event, the terrible rumour whereof is comne to our Confines : generall destruction of vs all and of holy Church hangs ouer our times by the impetuous inuation of the Tartars. The King with mournfull voice, not without the Spirit of God, answered: The heavenly comfort, Mother, exalt vs ; and if they come on vs, either we shall fend againe those Tartarians to their thegme, Tartarean places whence they came; or they shall exalt vs to Heauen.

THe Emperourcertified hereof, wrote to the Princes, and especially to the King of England Emperous 1 in this forme. Frederike Emperour &c. to the King of England greeting. Wee cannot conceale, Fr.z. this I 30 though it sommhat lately came to our eares, but give you notice of a thing which concerneth the Roman Herr3. Empire (as prepared to the preaching of the Gospell) & all zealous Christian Kingdoms in the World, threatning generall destruction to all Christendom. A barbarow Nation hath lately come from the Southerne * Region, which had long layne hid under the torrid Zone, and after towards the North by force possessing Regions long remajning is multiplied as the Canker worme, called Tarcars wee know not of studiowes what place or originall; not with sut the fore-seene indgement of God is reserved to these last times, to tend fam. the correction and chastisement of his people, God grant not losse of all Christendom. A publike destruction like the for bath therefore followed, the common defolation of Kungdomes, and spoile of the fertile Land, which that of inclosed wickedpeople bath passed thorow, not sparing sexe, age, or dignistic & hoping to extinguish the rest of sexes. An mankind, whiles it alone goath about to domineers and reigne enery where by their immense and incom-tains were tains were 40 parable power and number. Now all things which they have beene able to fet eye on being put to death ball and it and floyle, leaving univerfall desolation behind them, these Tartarians (yea Tartareans) when they mote, that had come to the well peopled Colonie of the Cumani (prodigall of their lines, having Bowes their most they like had come to the well peopled (otome of the Cumain (promption of the times, with Darts and Arrowes which they continually ofe and are stronger in the armes then the linth, other men) they veterly ouerthrew them, and with bloudy sword killed all which escaped not by slight. were vis-Whose neighbourhood scarcely warned the Rutheni not farre distant to take heed to themselnes. For knowney, they suddenly flie thither, to prey and spoile as the wrath of God and lightning hurles it selfe, and by their thin also; Sudden affault and barbarous innafion take Cleua the chiefe Citie of the Kingdome; and all that noble tudden flat Kingdome was wasted to desolation, the Inhabitants being slayne. Which yet the neighbouring Kingdome original of the Hungatians who fould have taken warning, neglected: whole fluggeth King too secure, being dings in required by the Tattats messengers and letters, that if he desired that he and his should lue, he should have 50 sten their fauour by yeelding himselfe and his Kingdom; yet was not bereby servised and taught to fortify which they against their irruptions: but they ignorant or insolent contemners of their enemies, secure in their enemies and without approach, trusting in the native fortification of the place, vnexpectedly compassed and oppressed at vn- of ichecht awares by them entring like a mbirlemind, opposed their Tents against them. And when the Tartars Tents Word as: were fine miles from the Hungarian, the Tartarian fore-runners in the dawning of the morning, rushed Letters will Suddenly and compassed the Hungarians, and first flaying the Prelates and chiefe men, killed an infinite number, with such unbeard-of slaughter as scarcely is recorded ever to have happed in one bastell. The King hardly escaped by flight on a swift Horse, which fled with a small companie to the brotherly portion of the Hyllitian Kingdome, there to be protected; the Enemie possessing the Tents and spoyless and now wasting the nobler and greater part of Hungarie beyond Danubius, consuming all with fire and 60 found, they threaten to confound the rest, as by the venerable Bishop Vacientis the Anhastadour of the Said Hungarian King, not ce is given to our Court first as he paffed, being destined to the Roman Court. Wee are also bereof fully certified by the Letters of our deare sonne Conrade, elect King of Romans alway Augustus, and heire of the Kingdome of Ierusalem; and of the King of Bohemia, the Dules of Austria and Bauaria; by the Messengers words also instructed experimentally of the Enemies neerenesse. Nor could wee learne these things without great griefe. Truly, as the report goeth, their under termined damnable Armie, by our Lords sufferance, bath proceeded divided purposely in three parts. For one being fent by the Pructeni, and entring Poland, the Prince and Duke of that Land were flapme by them, and after that all the Region spoyled. The second hath entred the bounds of Bohemia, and being entred hath made stay, the King manly opposing himselfe. The third hath runne thorow Hungara, bounded by Austria. Whence the seare and trembling hasing beginning from surie, dee excite and insite all: necessitie vergeth to withstand them, the danger being neere; the generall destruction of the world, and as, one-spirite of general ways and the first peeds before and succour. For this People is brusish, and without law, ignorant of humanitie: yet followers, and bath a Lord whom it obediently observeth and worships, and [6] calls. The God of the earth. The men are of short stature, but square and well fet, rough and comracious. at the becke of their Leader rushing on any difficulties: have broad faces, from using lookes, borrible cries agreeing to their hearts. They weare raw Hides of Oxes, Asses, or Horses, with Iron plates sewed on for defensive Armes hitherto: but now, with griefe we freake it, out of the froiles of conquered Christians , they are more decently armed, that in Gods anger wee may be the more dishonourably slayne by our owne weapons. They are also furnished with better Horses, sed with daintier fare, adorned with sairer rayment. The Taxtass are incomparable Archers; carrie sewed then artificially made, by which they passe Riners and waters without loffe. When food fayles, their Horses are sayd to be content with barkes and leanes of Trees, and roots of Herbs : whom yet they finde fuift and hardy. And we fore-feeing all those shings. often by Letters and Meffengers are mindfull to request your excellence, as also other Christian Princes, 20 earnestly folliciting and warning, that peace and lone may flours the amongst kulers, and discord being appealed (which often endamage Christendome) agreeing together to fet flay to them which have lately thewed themselves ; for smuch as fore-warned are fore-armed, and that the common enemies may not reiorce, that to prepare their wayes, fo great diffentions breake forth amongst Christian Princes. Ob

God, how much and how often would wee have humbled our selues, doing the utmost that the Roman

Bishop might have surceased from the scandall of diffention against us which is gone thorow the World;

The Emperours Letter for ande to the King of England, LIB. I.

The Pope to gainft the Emfeth Christian and would more temperately have revoked his passions from impersons rashnesse, that wee might bee able Princes to mu- to quiet our subielts by right, and rule them more peaceably ; nor that be would protelt those Rebels, the tuall quarrels which he shold haue opposed neuer ccaling till be had ruined that Familic and the Empire. Tariar Spies.

greatest part of which is by him fostered: that things being setled, and the Rebels awed against whom wee have masted much treasure and labour, our power might bee advanced against the common Ene- 30 mies. But Will being to him for a Law, not ruling the supperserunning of his tongue, and disdayning to abstayne from manifold dissention which be hath attempted; by his Legats and Messengers hee hath commanded the Croffe to be published against mee the Arme and Admocate of the Church, which hee queht to have exercised against the tyrannie of the Tartars or Saracens, inuading and possessing the Holy Land, whiles our Rebels infult and confult grieuonfly against our honour and fame. And now that our greatest care is to free our selves from domestike and familiar Enemies, how shall wee also repell Barbarians. Geing that they by their fries which every where they have fent before, they (how foener directed without Dinine Law, yet well trayned in Martial fratagems ) know the publike difford, and the unfortified and weaker parts of the Lands : and hearing of the heart-burning of Kings, and the strife of King. domes, are more encouraged and animated, O how much doth triumphing courage adds to firength? Wee 40 will therefore by Gods providence converted, apply our strength and industrie to both, that wee may drive away the foundall domesticall and barbarous on this side and on that, from the Church. And we have expressely sent our deare some Conrade, and other Princes of our Empire, that they may powerfully withstand the assaults of our barbarous Enemies, and represse their entrie. And heartily wee adjure your Maiestie in behalfe of the Common necessite, by our Lord lesu Christ, that taking heed to your seife, and to your Kingdome (which God keepe in prosperitie) with instant care and produdent deliberation, you disti-gently prepare speedy ayds of strong Knights, and other armed then and Armes: this we require in the This Emperor Prinkling of the bloud of Christ, and the league of affinitie in which wee are in ned And foles them be Fred, a matri- ready with us manfully and providently to fight for the deliverance of Ci ristendome, that against the Eneed Habel Sifter mies now proposing to enter the confines of Germanie, as the Gue of Christendome, by waited forces vi- 50 Chorie to the praise of the Lord of Hosts may be obtayned. Neither let it like you to passe oner these things with diffimulation, or to suspend them by deferring. For if (which God forbid) they invade the Ger nane confines without obstacle, let others looke for the lightnings of a sudden tempest at the doores; which we beleene to have hapned by Dinine Indgement, the world being dinerly infelted, the lone of many waxing cold (by whom faith ought to be preached and conserved) and their pernicious example stayning the world with V (uries, and diners other kinds of Simoine and Ambition. Let your Excellency therefore provide : and whiles the common enemies are outragious in the neighbour Regions, wifely confult to relist them: because they have comme out of their Lands with this intent, not regarding the perils of life, that they mught subdue to them (which God auert) all the West, and may permert and subuert the Faith and Name of Christ. And in respect of unexpected victorie, which hitherto by Gods permission bath fol- 60 lowed them, they are growne to that exceeding madneffe that now they thinke they have gotten the King. doms of the World, and to tame and subject Kings and Princes to their vile services. But nec hope in our Lord lefus Christ, under whole Standard wee base hitherto triumphed, being delisered from our Enemies, that thefe also which have broke forth of their Tattarcan feats, their pride being abased by opposed forces of the West, these Tartars shall be thrust downe to their Tattara (or Hell) Nor shall they hoult to have passed so many Lands, overcome so many peoples, perpetrated so many mischiefes unavenged, when their unwarie Destinie, yea Sathan, shall have drawne them to the conquering Eagles of puil-Cant Imperial Europe to their deaths. Where Germanie voluntarily raging and prone to Armes, France the mother and nurse of Soulderie, warlike and daring Spaine, fertile England potent in men and a furnished Nanie, Almaine full of impetuous Warriours, Strip-strong Denmarke, untamed 1:1lie, Burgundie ignorant of Peace, unquiet Apulia; with the Pyraticall and muincible Iles of the Greeke, Adriaticke and Tyrrhene Seas, Creet, Cyprus, Sicil, with the Sea neighbouring Ilands and Regions, blondie Ireland, with numble Wales, marifine Scotland, Icie Norway, and enery Noble and In famous Region in the West, will cheerfully fend their choise Soulderie under the Colours of the quickning Crosse, which and not onely rebellious men but adnerse Denils dread. Dated in our returne after the geelding and depopulation of Fauentia, the third of Iuly.

Some ( Papalmes ) ful pected that the Emperour had hatched this Tartar-peftilence like Ln- Malicema eifer or Antichrist, to get the Monarchie of the world and to Subnert Christiany, and that the fecret Counfels and wayleffe wayes of the Tartars were fraught with Imperiall Counfels. For they conceale their Language, varie their Armes, and if one be taken, knowledge of them or their purpole can by no torcures be extorted from him. And where (fay they) should they lurke, in which of the Climats till this time ! whence their to fecret and fraudulent Confpiracie! They are Hireans and Soythians, lauage bloud-fuckers, who with the confederate Cumani, through the 26 Emperours deuile, have overthrowne the King of Hungarie, to make him feeke shelter under the Imperiall wings and doehim homage, &c. Needs must they goe whom the Deuill drives : or how elfe but by mad malice, and furious Solid Sec. faction, or an Antichrittian mift, could fuch impossibilities have been conceived ? Of their driuing the Turkes and the Choerofmines out of Perfia is elfe-where Ipoken. Of the Popes entertainment of the Tartahan Messengers, Anno 1248. close Conferences with them and gifts to them, with divers other discourses in the faid author or Authors, I omit. Onely this Epifile following, as containing both the strange adventures of an Englishman, and his relations of the Tartars from better experience, I could not but adde heere, making fo much to the Readers purpole and ours. It was written by one Two of Narbone a Clergie man, which being accused of 30 Herefie to Robert de Curzun the Popes Legat, fled, and lived one while with the Pararines, andther with the Becames, and at last writ this Letter containing a discourse of his travels, amongst them in Italie and G.rmanie. He begins Giraldo Dei gratia Burdegalensi Archiepiscopo, Tuo dictus Narbonensis suorum olimnouissimus Clericorum, Salutem, Jrc. and after some premisses of the Patarines, and Beguines (too long for this place) hee proceeds; Hoc igitur & multis aligs peccatis inter nos Christianos emergentibu sra:us Dominus, &c. In English, Our Lord therefore being angry with this and other sinnes falling out among I vs Christians, is become as st were a destroying enemie.

Part of an Epiftle written by one Y v o of Narbona vnto the Archbishop of Burdeaux, containing the confession of an Englishman, as touching the barbarous demeanour of the Tartars, which had lived long among them, and was drawne along perforce with them in their expedition against Hungarie: Recorded by Matthew Paris in the yeare our Lord 1243.

THe Lord therefore being prouohed to indignation, by reason of this and other sinnes committed among vs Christians, is become, asst were, a destroying enemy, and a dreadfull avenger. This I may instly affirme to bee true, because an huge Nation, and a barbarous and inhumane people, whose Law is lawleffe, whose wrath is firious, even the rod of Gods anger, overrunneth, and veterly wasteth infinite 50 Countries, cruelly abolifting all things where they come, with fire and fword. And this prefent Summer, the forefaid Nation, being called Tartars, departing out of Hungarie, which they had surprised by trea-Son, layd flege unto the very same Towne, wherein I my felfe abode, with many thousands of Souldiers : neither were there in the faid Towne on our part aboue Fifty men of warre, whom, together with twenty Corsse-bowes, the Captaine had left in Garrison. All these, out of certaine high places, beholding the enemies vafie Armie, and abhorring the beaftly cruelty of Antichrift his complices, signified forthwith unto their Gouernour; the hideous lamentations of his Christian Subietts, who Suddenly being surprised in all the Province adiopning, without any difference or refeelt of condition, Fortune, fexe, or age, were by manifold cructies, all of them destroyed: with whose carbesses, the Tartarian chieftaines, and their brutish co and Sauage followers, glutting themselves, as with delicious cates, left nothing for auliures but the bare bones. And a strange thing it is to consider that the greedy and rauenous vultures disdained to pray upon any of the reliques, which remained. Old and deformed Women they gaue, as it were for dayle instenance, unto their Canibals : the beautifull denoured they not, but smothered them, lamenting and Scrisching with forced and unnaturally rasustiments. Like barbarous miscreants, they quelled Virgins unto death, and cutting off their tender paps to present for dainties unto their Magistrates, they encorged them felues with their Bodies.

Howbeit, their spials in the meane time discrying from the top of an high mountaine the Duke of Authria, the King of Bohemia, the Patriarch of Aquileia, the Dake of Carinthia, and (as some report ) the Earle of Baden, with a mighty power, and in battell aray, approching towards them, that accur fed crew im. mediatly vanished, and all those Tartarian Vagabonds retired themselnes into the distressed and vanguish. ed land of Hungarie; who as they came suddenly, so they departed also on the sudden: which their coloritie cansed all men to stand in borrour and astonishment of them. But of the said fugitimes, the Prince of Dalmatia tooke eight : one of which number the Duke of Austria knew to bee an Englishman, who was perpetually banished out of the Realme of England, in regard of certaine notorious crimes by him comm t- 10 ted. This fellow on the behalfe of the most tyrannicall King of the Tartars, had beene twife, as a messentea. Ant seame on the occasie of the most of the seame and planet for settling the feminibe se which afterward happened, unless be would submit himselfe and his Kingdome unto the Tartary whe, Wellbeing allured by our Princes to confesse the truth, he made such outbes, and protestations as (I thinke) the Demill bimfelfe would have beene trusted for. First therefore hee reported of himfelfe, that prefently after the time of his banishment, namely, about the thirtieth yeare of his age, having lost all that he had in the Citie of Acon at Dice, even in the midft of Winter, being compelled by ignominious hunger, wearing nothing about him but a shirt of facke, a paire of shooes, and a haire cap onely, being thauen like a foole, and vttering an vncoth noyfe as if hee had beene dumbe, he tooke his iourney, and so trauelling many Countries, and finding in divers places friendly entertain- 20 ment, he prolonged his life in this manner for a feafon, albeit every day by rashnes of speech, and inconstancy of heart, hee endangered himselfe to the Devill. At length, by reason of extreame travaile, and continuall change of ayre and of meates in Caldea, hee fell into a grievous sicknesse. infomuch that he was weary of his life. Not being able therefore to goe forward or backward. and staying therea while to refresh himselfe, hee began (being somewhat learned) to commend to writing those wordes which he heard spoken, and within a short space, so aptly to pronounce and to veter them himselfe, that he was reputed for a native member of that Countrie : and by the same dexteritie he attained to manie Languages. This man, the Tarrars having intelligence of by their spies, drew him perforce into their societie: and being admonished by an oracle or vision, to challenge dominion over the whole earth, they allured him by many rewards to their faithfull service, by reason that they wanted Interpreters. But concerning their manners and fuperstitions, of the disposition and stature of their bodies, of their Countrie and manner of fighting, &c.he protested the particulars following tobe true:namely, that they were aboue all men. couetous, hastie, deceitfull, and mercileste: notwithstanding, by reason of the rigour and extremitie of punishments to be inflicted upon them by their superiours, they are restrained from brawlings, and from mutuall strife and contention. The ancient founders and fathers of their tribes, they call by the name of Gods, and at certaine fet times they doe celebrate folemne Feafts vnto them, many of them being particular, and but foure onely generall. They thinke that all things are created for themselves alone. They esteeme it none offence to exercise cruelty against rebels. They be hardy and strong in the breast, leane and pale-faced, rough and huste-shouldred, having 40 flat and short noses, long and sharpe chinnes, their vpper jawes are low and declining, their teeth long and thin, their eye-browes extending from their fore-heads downe to their nofes. their eyes inconftant and blacke, their countenances writhen and terrible, their extreame joynts strong with bones and sinewes, having thicke and great thighes, and short legs, and yet being equall vnto vs in stature : for that length which is wanting in their legs, is supplyed in the vpper partes of their bodies. Their Countrey in old time was a land veterly defert and wafte, fituated farre beyond Chaldea, from whence they have expelled Lyons, Beares, and fuch like vntamed beafts, with their bowes, and other engines. Of the hides of beaftes being tanned, they yfe to shape for themselues light, but yet impenetrable armour. They ride fast bound vnto their Horses, which are not very great in stature, but exceedingly strong, and maintained with little 50 prouender. They vie to fight constantly and valiantly with Iauclins, maces, battle-axes, and fwords. But especially they are excellent Archers, and cunning warriers with their bowes. Their backs are fleightly armed, that they may not flee. They withdraw not themselves from the combate, till they see the chiefe Standerd of their Generall give backe. Vanquished, they aske no fauour, and vanquilhing, they shew no compassion. They all persist in their purpose of fubduing the whole world vnder their owne fubiection, as if they were but one man, and yet they are moe then millions in number. They have 60000. Courriers, who being fent before vpon light Horses to prepare a place for the Armie to incampe in, will in the space of one night gallop three dayes journey. And fuddenly diffusing themselves over an whole Province, and surpriling all the people thereof vnarmed, vnprouided, difperfed, they make such horrible slaugh. 60 ters, that the King or Prince of the land inuaded, cannot finde people sufficient to wage battell against them, and to withstand them. They delude all people and Princes of regions in time of peace, pretending that for a cause, which indeed is no cause. Sometimes they say that they will make a voyage to Collen, to fetch home the three wife Kings into their owne Countrey; fometimes to punish the avarice and pride of the Romans, who oppressed them in times past ; sometimes to conquer barbarous and Northern nations; fometimes to moderate the furie of the German; with their owne meeke mildneffe; fometimes to learne warlike feates and stratagems of the French; fometimes for the finding out of fertile ground to fuffice their huge multitudes: fometimes againe in derision they fay, that they intend to goe on Pilgrimage to Saint lames of Galicia. In regard of which fleights and collusions certaine undiscreet Gouernours concluding a league with them, have granted them free passage thorow their Territories, which leagues notwithflanding being violated, were an occasion of suyne and deltruction vnto the forefaid Gouernours,&c.

To the Reader.

Tround this Booke translated by Master Hakluyt out of the Latine. But where the blind leade the I blind both fall: as bere the corrupt Latine could not but yeeld a corruption of truth in English. Ramulio, Secretarise to the Decemvin in Venice, found a better Copie and published the same, whence you have the worke in manner new : so renewed, that I have found the Pronerbe true, that it is better to pull downe an old bouse and to build it anew, then to repaire it; as I also should have done, had I knowne that which in the enent I found. The Latine is Latten , compared to Ramusios Gold. And bee which 20 bath the Latine bath but Marco Polos Carkaffe, or not fo much, but a few bones, yea, sometime stones rather then hones; thunes divers, averse, adverse, perversed in manner, distornted in manner, beyond beliefe. I have seen some Aushors maymed, but never any so mangled and so mingled, so present and so absent, as this vulgar Latine of Marco Polo; not so like himselfe, as the three Polos were at their returne to Venice, where none knew them, as in the Discourse yee shall find. Much are wee beholden to Ramusio, for restoring this Pole and Load-starre of Asia, out of that mirie poole or puddle in which be lay drowned. And, O that it were possible to doe as much for our Countriman Mandeuill, who next this (if next ) was the greatest Asian Traveller that ever the World had & having falne among it theeves, neither Prieft, nor Lenite can know him, neither have we hope of a Samaritan to releeve him. In this I have indenoured to give (in what I give) the truth; but have abridged some things to present prolixitie 1 omes macrowress year (in worse, green) is a surely as a consistency of field fracts, but when defined it is a first order of field fracts, but when defined it is befored, in this is volked: and facking rather the finite from a firster verball following one Authorses word and forence. After the Chapters I finite the during by distance scripted, and therefore base word and forence. After the Chapters I finite them during by distance scripted, and therefore base word and forence. followed our owne method.

CHAP. IIII.

The first Booke of MARCUS PAVLUS VENETUS, or of Master MAR CO POLO, a Gentleman of Venice, bis Voyages.

ð. Í.

The Voyages of Master M. NICOLO and M. MAFFIO from Constantinople to the Great C . N , and their comming home to Venice: their second Voyage with the Authour and

N the time of Baldwin Emperour of Conflaminople, * where vitally remayned a * Of Bald Magiltrate of Vonice, called Anolfier la Dofe, in the yeare of our Lord 1250, conqui in Malter Nicolo Polo, Eather of Matter Marco, and M. Maffio his Brother, No. Conflation ble, Honorable and Wiemen of Venice, beeing as Constantople with flore of pire of the Merchandize, kept many Accounts together. At last they determined to goe time the into the Great (or Euxine) Sea, to see if they could increase their stocke, and musichach buying many faire and rich Iewels. They departed from Constantinople and fayled by the faid uen a long buying many faire and rich Iewels. They departed from Lonstantinopte and 124 Court of a courie: le Sea to a Port called Soldadia: * from whence they travelled after by Land to the Court of a Courie: le Knowley. great Lord of the Tartars, called Barcha, who refided in the Cities of Bolgara and Affara, and before the fine was reputed one of the most liberal and courteous Princes that ever had beene amongst the Tar- [up.tom.; 1.] was reputed one of the moft liberal and courteous Princes that euter man very surface and programs in fars. He was very well pleaded with their comming, and did them great honour. They having "Called made flew of their Iewels, and feeing they pleafed him, freely befrowed them on lim, He, lots biffed 1/h. Speaks, 25.

placed in Chirmia (not Armenia) on the North-fide of the Eurine Sca. Frier Basen before cals it Soldaia in Caffaria.

G 3 to

to be acceeded in liberalitie, caused twice the value to bee given them, and besides great and rich gifts. Hauing flayed one yeare in the Countrey of the faid Prince, whiles they thought to returne to Venice, there inddenly arose Warre betwixt the faid Barcha and another named Alan, Lord of the Easterne Turtars. These Armies fighting together, Alan had the Victorie, and the Armie of Barcha received a great overthrow. By reason whereof, the wayes beeing not secure. they were not able to returne that way which they came. And having confulted how to returne to Confiantizople, they were aduised to goe fo farre to the East, that they might compasse

Bresta, or Bogor which fee M. Ieniginfon.

the Realme of Barcha, by viiknowne wayes : and fo they came to a Citie called Ouchacha, which is in the Confines of the Kingdome of this Lord of the Tartars on the Welt, and paffing further. they went over Tigris (one of the foure Rivers of Paradile) and after that a Defart of feven- to teene dayes Journey, without Citie, Castle, or Fort, finding only Tartars, which line in the fields in certayne Tents, with their bealts. Beeing past the Defart they came to agood Citie called Bocara, (the name alto of the Prouince) in the Region of Persia, which was subject to a King called Barach: in which place they flayed three yeares before they could goe forward or backward, by realon of great warres betwixt the Tartars.

At that time a certayne Wileman was fent Ambassador from the said Prince Alex to the Great Can, who is the greatest King of all the Tartars, residing in the Confines of the Earth, betwixt the North-east and the East, called Cublai Can: who being comne to Bocara; and finding there the faid two brethren which had now well learned the Tartarian Language, he rejoyced about measure, and perswadeth these Westerne men or Latines to goe with him , to the pre- 26 fence of the Great Emperour of the Tartars; knowing that hee thould gratifie him in this, and the men notwithstanding should be entertayned with great honour, and rewarded with large gifts; especially, seeing through the manifold conference had with them, he now perceived their pleating behaviour. Those men therefore considering, that they could not easily returne home without danger, confulting together, joyne with the faid Ambassadour, and journey with him to the Emperous of the Tartars, having certayne other Christians in their Company, whom they brought with them from Venice, and departing towards the North-east and the North, werea whole yeare in going to the Court of the faid chiefe King of the Tarrars. The cause of their long time in this Iourney, was the Snowes and River Waters much increased, so that they were forced in their trauell to flay the waiting of the Snow, and decreasing of the flouds.

Being therefore brought before the prefence of the Great Can, they were most courteously the Great Can, received of him. He questioned them concerning many things, as of the Countries of the Welt, the Romane Emperour, and other Kings and Princes, how they carried themselues in Gouernment, and in Warlike affaires, how Peace, Iustice, and Concord continued among them; also what manner of life, and customes were observed with the Latines; and especially of the Pope of the Christians, of the things of the Church and the Religion of the Christian Faith. And M. Nicolo and M. Maffeo, as Wifemen told him the truth, alway speaking well to him, and orderly in the Tartarian Tongue. Infomuch that hee often commanded they should bee brought to his prefence, and they were very acceptable in his fight.

Having well understood the Affaires of the Latines, and resting satisfied with their answers, 40 the Great Can intending to fend them his Ambassadours to the Pope, first, consulted with his Barons, and then calling to him the two Brethren, defired them for his love to goe to the Pope of the Romans, with one of his Barons called Chogatall, to gray him to fend an hundred Wife-They are fent men, and learned in the Christian Religion vnto him, who might shew his Wisemen, that the Ambastadours Faith of the Christians, was to bee preferred before all other Sects, and was the only way of faluation; and that the Gods of the Tartars were Deuils, and that they and others the people of the East were deceived in the worship of their Gods. Hee gave them also in charge to bring in their returne from Ierufalem, of the Oyle of the Lampe which burneth before the Sepulchre of our Lord Iefus Chrift, to whom hee had great deuotion, and held him to bee true God. They therefore yeelding due reuerence to the Great Can, promife that they will faithfully execute so the charge committed vnto them, and prefent the Letters which they received from him, written in the Tartarian, to be delivered to the Billiop of Rome. He (according to the custome of his Kingdome) commanded a Golden Tablet to bee given the broad

Golden tablet them ingrauen and figned with the Kings marke; carrying the which with them throughout his whole Empire, in flead of a Paffe-port, they might bee euery-where fafely conueyed through dangerous places, by the Gouernours of Prouinces and Cities, and receive expenses from them; and laftly, how long foeuer they would flay in any place, whatfoeuer they needed to them or theirs, should be ministred vnto them. Taking their leave therefore of the Emperour, they take their Journey, carrying the Letters and Golden Tablet with them. And when they had rid twentie dayes Iourney, the Baron aforelaid affociated vinto them began to fall grieuoufly ticke. 60 Whereupon confulting and leaving him there, they profecute their intended Icurney, beeing euery-where courteoufly received by reason of the Emperours Tablet. Yet in very many places they were compelled to flay, by occasion of the ouer-flowing of Rivers, to that they ipent three yeares, before they came vnto the Port of the Citie of the Armenians, named Giazza. From

Giazza they goe to Acre, to wie, in the yeere of our Lord 1269, in the moneth of Aprill. Acreo: Acre. But having enered into the Citie of Acre, they heard, that Pope Clement the fourth was late- then in post ly dead, and that no other was substituted in his place: for the which they were not a little grie- lion of the

ly dead, and that no other was monitured in in space to the Apoltolicall Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I und. At that time, there was a certaine Legate of the Apoltolicall Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to wit, Matter Christians, I will be a committed to the Apoltolical Sea at Acre, to with Tibalio de Vesconti di Piscenza, to whom they declared all they had in commission, from the Pope Clones Great Can: and he aduried them, to expect the Creation of a new Pope. In the meanie space the fourth. therefore departing to Venice to wifit their Friends, (purposing to remayne there; witill ano. " Another c ther Pope were created.) Mafter Nuolo found that his wife was dead, whom (at his departure) pie hath 254

hee had left great with child, but had left a fonne, named Marco, who was now * mineteene Booke was Ic yeeres of age. This is that Marco which erdayned * this Booke, who will manifelt thesein writtinby s all those things which he hath feene. Moreouer, the Election of the Pope of Rome was defer- Gendeman

They (fearing the discontentment, and disquieting of the Emperour of the Tartars, who mouth and They (rearing the discontentiment, and indirecting of the Linguist of the Legate, carrying with therefore fill they knew) expected their returne) goe backe agains to Acre to the Legate, carrying with in Rescale them Marco aforefaid, and (having gone to lerufalem, and fetched of the Oyle) with the Legats Letters, tellifying their fidelitie to the Great Chan, and that a Pope was not yet cholen, tioned in the they went againe towards Giazza. In the meane time whiles they were going, Meffengers third per or came from the Cardinals to the Legate, declaring vato.him, that he was chosen Repe, and he and act into called himselfie 4 Gregorie. Hearing this prefently tending Meffengers, he calleth backe the most of himselfies a declared himselfie and hope of the hope not read the second of t Wenetians, and admonitheth them not to depart, preparing other Letters for them, which they fo written thould prefent voto the Great Chan of the Tartars; with whom he also inyned two Preaching the whole p Friars, men famous for their honest convertation and learning, whereof the one was called Friar Micolo Danicenza; the other, Friar Guielmo da Tripoli. To these hee gave Letters, and Printaname, the same, ledges, and authoritie to order Priefts and Bithops, and of all absolution as it himselfe were pre- Letters, and . fent, with Prefents also of great value, and Crystall vessels to prefent the great Chan, together Preaching with his Benediction. They came to Giazza, a Port of the Sea in Armenia. And because Ben- ars fent vn tiochdare the Sultan of Babylon leuying a great Armie had then invaded the Armenians, the two the Taviar. Friars mentioned, began to bee afraid of themselves, and delivering the Letters and Presents to warres, remay ned with the Matter of the Temple, and returned with him. But the three Venetians exposing themselves to all danger, with many labours, and much difficultie trauelled many dayes, alwaies towards the North-east and North, till they after three yeeres and a halfe came vnto the Emperour of the Tartars, vnto the Citie called Clemenfu: for The Citie in the Winter time their journey had often and long hinderantes, by reason of the snow and menju. excreme cold, and mundations of waters. Moreover, King Cublai hearing that they were comming, who were yet very farre off, fent Meffengers fortie dayes journey to meet them, who should conduct them, and minister all necessaries for the journey.

Mafter Nicolo, and Maffio, and Marco, defiring to avoide the danger of the wayes, and perill of Going therefore to the Kings Court, and being brought to his prefence, they fell downe be- The adora fore him on their faces, yeelding the accustomed reverence. Of whom being curteoutly recei- of the Tar ued, they are willed to arife, and he commandeth them to declare, how they passed the divers dangers of the wayes, and what they had treated with the Bishop of Rome. Then they orderly declare all things, and give the Emperour the Popes Letters and Prefents which they brought. Whereat the Chan wonderfull rejoycing, commended their faithfull cares. The Oyle alfo Marcus ? brought from the Lampe of the Lords Sepulcher, and offered vnto him, hee reuerently received the Christ of them, and commanded it should bee honourably preserved. And asking of Marco, who hee Clerkes, was, Mafter Nicolo answered, that he was his Majetties fernant and his fonne. Hee enterrayned a Courter him with a friendly countenance, and caufed him to write amongst other his honourable Cour- Marter Le tiers: Whereupon he was much esteemed of all the Court, and in a little spacelearned the cuflomes of the Tartars, and foure divers Languages, being able to write and reade them all.

The great Chan to make his wifedome more apparent, committed an Embaffage vinto him to a force to be performed in a Citie called Caraban, who the which he could scarcely attayne in fixe moneths space. But he, carrying himselfe wifely in all things, discharged what hee had in comitation between the countries of the countr fion, not without the commendation and fauour of the Prince. And knowing the Emperour boned to was delighted with nouelties in the Countries which he passed thorow, he diligently fearched time in w the cultomes and manners of men, and the con litions of the Countries; making a memoriall this booke of all which he knew and faw, to pleafure the Great Chan. And in fixe and twentie * yeeres written, for which he continued one of his Court, he was to acceptable to him, that he was continually fent 1272 to 13 thorowall his Realmes and Signiories, for the affaires of the Great Chan, and sometimes for lation app his owne, but by the Chans order. And this is the true reason that the faid Matier Marco lear- rethe The 60 ned and faw fo many no selties of the East, which follow in order diligently writters.

But these Venetians having stayd in that Court many yeeres, and growne very rich in Iewels 27 ye is he begant of great value, were inflamed with defire to wifit their Countries, fearing that if the Chan (new a Countries old) should die, they should not bee able to returne. One day Master Nicolo feeing the Chan They del merrie, craued licence to depart in the name of all three. Whereat hee was moved, and asked retelled

And this King gouerned the íame. The will of Queene Belgana. Cogatin.

why they would put themselves on so dangerous a journey; and if they wanted riches, he would give them twice as much as they had : and in great love would not permit their departure, Yet Argon, a King in the meane space it happened, that a King of the Indians, named Argon, sent three wise men vnto the Court of Great Cublai, whole names were Vlatai, Apufca, Coza, to treat with him. Argon is a Na- that he wold deliver him a wife; for his wife named Bolgana, being lately dead, begged this grace of the King at the point of death, and left in her Wil, that he should not marrie a wife of another Familie then her owne, which was of Catay. King Cablas therefore yeelding to his request, caufed to be fought out for them a faire young Mayden of feuenteene yeeres of age, named Cegatin, descended of the said Queenes stocke, and to be the wife of Argon.

King Argon. Nicolo, Maffio, Marco, and others, Embassadors. LIB. I.

These Embassadors departing, rode eight moneths the same way they came, but found so hot 10 warres betwixt the Tartars, that they were conftrayned to returne: and acquainted the Chan with their proceedings. Meane-whiles, Mafter Marco had returned from the parts of India. where he had beene employed with certaine ships, and declared to the Chan the nouelties of the places, and the fecuritie of those Seas: which words having passed him, the Embassadours conferred with the Venetians, and agreed that they with the Queene should goe to the Great Chan, and defire leave to returne by Sea, and to have the three Latines, men skilfull in Sea affaires, with them to the Countrey of King Argon. The Great Chan was much displeased with their request, ver vpon their petition granted it: and caused Nicolo, Maffio and Marco to come to his presence, and after much demonstration of his love, would have them promise to returne to him, after they had spent some time in Christendome, and at their owne house. And he cau- 20 fed to give them a Tablet of Gold, in which was written his commandement, for their libertie and securitie thorow all his Dominions, and that expenses should bee given them and theirs, and a Guide or conuoy for fafe passage; ordayning also that they should be his Embassadours to the Pope, the Kings of France, of Spayne, and to other Christian Kings. Hee caused fourteene thips to be prepared, each having foure Masts and able to beare nine Sayles in fayling, the forme of which is too long here to relate. Foure of them, or fine, had from two hundred and fiftue to two hundred and fixtie Mariners each of them. In these ships the Embassadours, the Queene, and Nicolo, Maffio, and Marco, fet fayle, having first taken leave of the Great Chan, who save them many Rubies and other precious gems, and expenses for two yeeres.

After three moneths they came vnto a certaine Iland, named land, and from thence fayling 30 through the Indian Sea ; after eighteene moneths, they come vnto the Countrey of King Argon, fixe hundred men of the Mariners and others, and but one of the Women and Damfels died in the journey, and onely Coza of the three Embassadours was living. When they came to the Countrey of King Argon, they found that hee was dead, and that one Chiacato gouerned the Kingdome, for his fonne being young. They fent to acquaint him with their businesse; who anfwered, that they should give her to Cafan the Kings sonne, then in the parts of Arbor faceo, in the Confines of Persia with fixtie thousand persons for the guard of certaine passages against the enemie. Hauing done to , Nicolo, Moffio , and Marco returned to Chiacato, and flayed there nine moneths. After this, taking leaue, Chiacato gaue them foure Tables of Gold, each a cupit long, fire fingers broad, of the weight of three or foure Markes: in which was written, that in 40 the power of the eternall God, the name of the Great Chan should bee honoured and praised many yeeres; and every one which should not obey, should be put to death, and his goods confiscate. It was further contayned, that these three Embassadours should be honoured, and service done them in all Lands and Countries, as to his owne person : and that Horses, Connoves . expenses and necessaries should be given them. All which was duly put in execution, that sometimes they had two hundred Horses for their lateguard. In this their travell they heard that the Great Chan was dead, which tooke from them all hope of returning thither. They rode till they came to Trabesonde, and from thence to Conflantinople, and after to Negroponte, and at last came with great riches fafe to Venice, Anno 1295. And thus much may ferue for a Preface to the following worke, whereby might appeare, how Marco Polo could come to the knowledge of the 50 things therein contayned.

To supply a little more, delinered by Tradition and recorded by Ramusio: he sayth that these three being comme to Venice, like Vlysses in Ithaca, none knew them; all esteeming them long since dead. Befides, sheir voyage bad fo altered them, that they seemed rather Tartarians then Venetians, having in manner for gotten their natine Language; their babite also was of thicke Cloth, like Tartars. They went to their house in Saint Iohn Chrylostomes Street, and is there still to be seene, then a faire Palace, and now called, The Court of millions: which name it had by reason of Marcos relations of so many millions in this worke, and in his d scourses of the Great Chans incredible wealth. They found there inhabiting some of their kindred, nor knew how to make themselnes knowne. Therefore, as I have often heard of Magnifico Meffer Gasparo Malipiero, a very old Gentleman of fingular integritie, from 60 the report of his Father and Grandfather, &c. they agreed to insite many of their kindred to a feast, prepared in honourable manner with much Magnificence: in which at first all three came forth in Crim-Son Sattin Sutes , and after the Guests were set, stropped themselues, and gaue them to the Sernitors. comming forth in Crimson Damaske; and at the next service in Crimson Veluct, and after in the common babit, gining still the former to the servitors. Dinner ended and the Servitors put foorth, Marco brought forth then three habits of thicke (losth in which they had comne home, and thence tooks and set on the Table an incredible quantitie of lewels artificially sewed therein, which was no lesse maruell to the beholders, then enidence of their being of the Polo family as they pretended. Masto was made a Magifrate in Venice, Marco was daily frequented with the youth; and all wanne great reputation. In few moneths after, Lampa Doria Generall of a fleet of Genois beingcome to the Ile Curzola with seauentie Gilletes, Andrea Dandolo was sent against them, and in that Fleet Marcowas made Captaine of a Galler, which by disaduenture of Warre was taken, and he carryed prisoner to Genoa. Where his strange travels being made knowne, a certaine Gentleman daily reforting to bim (as did the whole Citie in admiration) caused and belped him to write this storie, baning sent to Venice for his Notes. The booke was first written in Latine, and thence translated into Italian. One of which Latine Copies very ancient and haply copied out of Marcos originall, I have seene and compared with this which I heere Publish, lent me by a Gentleman of this Citie of the bonfe of the Chistimy special friend, which bolds it in specialleseeme. No price might ransome him, insomuch that his Father wanting an heyre to his wealth married againe, and had by his wife three Children. Marcos worthinesse obtained that which no moneys worth could doe, and being at libertie bee returned and marryed, and had two Danghters (but no some ) Moretta and Fautina, Oc.

That Gentleman of Genoa made a Preface to the Booke, and Francisco Pipino a Frier Preacher which translated the same, Anno 1320. out of the Vulgar (the Latine being rare, as well it might before 20 Printing and perhaps neuer seene of bim) into Latine. Both those Profaces are in Ramusio : the latter commends M. Polo for a denout and bonest man, and faith his Father confirmed the truth of this Booke, and his wacle Maffo on his Death-bed to his Confesor. Pipino abbremated the Booke and perhaps gane occasion to that corruption which was after increased by others.

ð. II.

Olfernations of M. Poto, of Armenia, Turkie, Zorzania, Baldach, Persia, Chirmain, Cobniam, Ormus, Knaue-fooles Paradife, and other Easterne parts in Asia, and Armenia the leffe.

Here are two Armenia's, the greater and the leffe. In the leffe the King abides in a Citie called Sebaffoz, which in all his Countrey observeth Inflice and good Government, The Kingdome it selfe hath many Cities, Fortresses and Castles : the soyle also is fertile, and the Countrey lacketh no necessary thing, nor doth it want game of Beasts and fowle : the ayre is not very good. The Gentlemen of Armenia in times past were stout The mana warriours, but become now effeminate and nice, give themselves to drunkennes and ryot. There of the Inha is a certaine Citie in this Kingdome feated neere the Sea, named Giazza, having an excellent tants. Hauen whither many Merchants refort from divers Countries, even from Venice and Genna, by Giagge. reason of the divers marchandises brought thither, especially Spices of fundry forts and certaine other precious riches brought thither out of the East Countries for trading : for this place is as it were a certaine part of all the East Countries.

In Turchomania are three forts of Nations; to wit, the Turchomans or Turke-men, which ob- Turchoman ferue the law of Mahamet. They are men vulearned, rude, and wilde, inhabiting the Moun. Turkis. taines and inacceifible places, where they know are pastures; for they line onely of their beasts. There are good Horses, called Turke-men, (or Turke horses) Mules, of great estimation. The other Nations are Grecians and Armenians, who polleffe the Cities and Townes, and bestow their labour on Marchandule and Artes. They make the best Carpets in the world. And they have many Cities, the chiefe whereof are Cogno, or Iconium, Cafarea, and Sebafte, where Saint Bafil fuffered Martyrdome for Christ, and they acknowledge one of the Kings of the Tartars for their Lord.

Armenia the greater, being a very large Province, tributary to the Tartars, hath many Cities and Townes. The chiefe Citie thereof is called Arzuigg, and the best Bukram is made there. Most wholsome hot waters also spring there, for the washing and curing of mens bodies. And the other more famous Cities next to the Metropolis, are Argiron and Darziz. In the Summer time, very many Tartars refort thither with their Flockes and heards, allured through the fatnes of the pasture : and againe in the Winter depart for a certaine time by reason of the abuffidance of Snow. The Arke of Noah remained in the Mountaines of this Armenia. This Countrey Of the Ge hath the Pronince of Mofull and Meridin, bordering on the East. But on the North is Zorza. we nia*, in the confines of which a Fountaine is found, from which liquor-like oyle floweth, yet is it 60 vnprofitable for the seasoning of meat, but very fit for the making and maintaining of Lampes, and to anoint other things enough to lade Camels.

In Zorzania is a King called alway Danid Melicz, or King Danid : One part of the Pro- Georgia uince is subject to him, the other payeth tribute to the King of the Tartars. The Woods there are of Boxe-tree. The Countrey abutteth on the two Seas, Mar-maggiore, and that of Abaccu.

(or the Capian) which containeth in Circuit twentie eight hundred Miles, and is like a Lake, not mingled with other Seas. In it are many Ilands, Cities and Cattles, fome of which are inhabited by those which fled from the Tartars out of Persia. The people of Zorzania ate Christia. ans, observing the rites of the Christians. They keepe their hayre short, like the Westerne Clergie. The Inhabitants haue many Cities and Castles, and abound with Silke, of the which they make very faire Cloathes.

Moxul.

Moxal is a Province in which dwell reople of many forces, one called Arabi which are Mabumetans, other are Christians, some Nestorians, others Incobites, and others Armenians: and they haue a Patriarch called Iacolit, which ordaineth Archbishops, Bishops, and Abbots, and sends them thorow all ports of India, and to Cairo and Baldach, and all parts where Christians dwell, as doth to the Pope of Rome. And all the cloathes of Gold and of Silke called Moffulnes are wrought in Moxul. But in the Mountaines of this Kingdome dwell the people called Cords, whereof fome are Nestorians, other Incobines, and some tollowers of Mahamet. They are wicked men and rob Merchants. Neare to them is another Prouince, called Mus and Meridin, wherein growes infinite flore of Cotton or Bombast, whereof they make Buckrams and other workes. They are all under the Tartars.

Baldach is a great Citie, in which was the Chalifa that is the Pope of all the Sarcens. A River

Baldasb. Balfara,

runnes thorow it, from whence to the Sea is ordinarily feauenteene dayes journey. They fayle by a Citie called Chift: but before they come thither is Balfara, about which grow the best Dates in the world. In Baldach are many cloathes of Gold and Silke : there are wrought Da- 20 maskes and Voluets with divers figures of creatures. All the pearles (in manner) in Curiftendome come thence. In that Citie is studyed the law of Mahomet, Negromancie, Phylicke, Altronomie, Geomancie, and Phisnomie : It is the chiefe Citie in those parts. When the Tartars began to raigne, there were foure Brethren, the eldest of which, Mongura gned in Sedia. These purpofing to subdue the world, went one to the East, another to the North, to the South a third, which was Vlan, and the other to the West. In the years from the Incarnation of our Lord 1250. Vlas having a great Army of one hundred thousand Horse, besides Foot, yet vsed policie, and hauing hid a great part of his men brought by fained flight, the Calipha into his ambush, and tooke

V'a4 A!47.0r

him, and the Citie : in which he found infinite store of treasure, infomuch that he wond; red. He sent for the Califa, and reproued him that in that warre hee had not therewith prouided 20 himselfe of Souldiers for defence : and commanded that hee should be inclosed in that Tower, where his Treasure was, without other sustenance. This seemed a sust sudgement from our Lord Iefus Christ on him. For he in the yeare 1225, feeking to conuert the Christians to Mahumet: And taking advantage on that place of the Golpell, that bee which bath Faith afmuch as a graine of Mustard-seed should be able to remove mountaines, he Converted all the Christians, Nestorians, and Tacobites, and propounded to them in ten dayes to remoue certaine Mountaines, or turne Mabumerant, or be flaine, as not having one man amongst them which had the least faith. They therefore continued eight dayes in Prayer : after which a certaine Shoomaker by reuelation to a Bulh p, was deligned to performe it. This Shoomaker once tempted to luft by fight of a young Wo nan in putting on her Shooe, zealoully had fulfilled that of the Gospell, and literally had put 40 out his right eye : He now on the day appointed with other Christians following the Croffe and lifting his hands to Heauen, prayed to God to have mercy on his people, and then with a loude voyce commanded the Mountaine in the name of the Father, Sonne, and holy Ghoft to remove, which presently with great terrour to the Califa and all his people was effected. And that day is fince kept holy, with fasting also on the even. Tauris is a great Citie in the Province of Hirace. It is a most populous Citie. They live of Arts and Merchandife. They make Cloathes of gold and filke. For anne Merchants make there great gaine, but the Inhabitants are generally poore : a mixed people of Nestorians, Armemans, Lacobites, Georgians, and Persians, and Mahametans. These last are persidious and treacherous. thinking all well gotten which they steale from men of other Religions. And this wickednesse so of the Saracens hath converted many Tartars thereto. If the Christians kill them in their tobbe-Deuils Marryrs rie, they are reputed Martyrs. From Tauris to Persia are twelve dayes sourney. In the confines of Tauris is the Monafterie of Saint Barfam, the Monkes whereof are like Carmelites; they alway make girdles which they lay on the Altar, and give to their friends, which devoutly e-

The eight Kingdome of Perfis. Hories. Afles.

The Inhabi-

Persacontaineth eight Kingdomes: whereof the first is called Casibin, the second Curdiflan, the third Lor, the fourth Suoliftan, the fift Spaan, the fixt Siras, the leaventh Soncara, the eight Timochaim, which is necre Arboresecco towards the North. Faire and great Horses are there, whence they are fold into India. There are also very goodly and excellent Affes fold dearer then the Hories, for that they eat little, carrie much and farre. They have Camels but not fo fwift. 60 These are necessary in those Countries, which sometime in a long way yeeld no grasse. The people in those Countries are very wicked, contentious, Theeues, and Murtherers, profetting the faith of Mahamet. Merchants are enery where flaine by those Theenes, voleffe they travell in croupes. Yet are there excellent Artificers in the Cities, who make wonderfull things in gold, filke, and Embroyderie. They abound with Silke-wormes, Wheat, Barley, Milium; and other kindes of Corne: and have also plenty of Wine and fruits. And though their Law forbid wine, Fine distincti kindes or Corne; and have an extra of the text, that if they boyle it, then it changeth the on, as in a Popith falts, taile, and therefore the name also of Wine.

Infds is a great Citie in the confines of Persia, where much Trading is exercised. It hath also cunning Artificers who labour in Silke. Chierman is a Kingdome in the confines of Perfis to the East, subject to the Tartars. In the veines of the Mountaines the stones are found, commonly called Turchiffes; veines also of Aza aio and Andanico. There are also made all Armes and munition for warre, and by the Women IO excellent needle-workes in Silkes, with the portraitures of all forts of Creatures verie admirable. There are the best Falcons in the world, verie swift of flight, red brested, and under the trayne, leffe then those of other Countries, Proceeding further, you goe through a great Plaine, and hauing ended eight dayes iourney, you come vnto a certaine descent. In the Plaine many Partridges are found, and also Castles and Townes. But in that steepe descent are many trees and those fruitfull, but no habitation is there but of Shepheards. This Countrey in the winter time

After this you come vnto a certaine great Plaine, where a certaine Citie is feated, named Ca- Camandu. mandu, which in times past was great, but is now destroyed by the Tartars, and the Countrey is called Reobarle. There grow Pomgranats, Quinces, Adams-apples, and divers others fruits, 20 which grow not in our cold Countries. It hath also very great Oxen, and all white, thin havred with thicke blunt short hornes, with a Camels bunch on the backe, accustomed to beare great Oxen with a with thicke blunt thort hornes, with a Camels built of the back, accurate the burch on the burthens. And when the packe-faddles are fet vpon the bunch, they bow the knee like Camels, backe. and having received the burthen rife againe, being fo taught by men. The Sheepe of that Coun-Sheepe of the trey are no leffer then Affes, bearing to long and broad a tayle, that they weigh thirty pound bignes of Affe weight. They are very faire and fat, and good meat. Moreouer, in the plaine of this Countrey are many Cities and Townes, with high walls of Mud to defend them from the Caranna, that is Mefizes, or mingled people of Indian women and Tarrars, ten thouland of which bee conducted by one Nugodar, the nephew of Zagathai who ruled in the greater Turkie. This Nugodar hearing of the Malabars subject to Soldan Asidim, without his Vncles knowledge went and 30 tooke Dely with other Cities, and erected a new Seignorie, and mixing with the Indian women procreated these Carasmas, which goe vp and downe to rob and spoyle in Reobarte and other Countries. There they learned magicall and diabolicall Arts, by which the ayre is fo darkned in Their Inchange

Countries. I nere they tealine in agreed and in the day time for a long space, that none may see them or preuent them. CM. Marco one time thousand they work that they work they are they work they work they are they work they are they are they work they are the are they are the they are the are they are the are the are the are they are the are the are the are the are the Consalmi : but many of his company were taken or flaine. That Plaine whereof I now speake is fine daies journey extended towards the South But at the end therot, the way beginneth by litle and litle to descend for twenty miles together, & the way it felfe is very bad, and not without danger by reason of Theeues. At length you come to very goodly Plaines, which extend themselues two dayes journey in length, and the place it selfe is 40 called Ormus. That Countrey aboundeth with Rivers of water and Palme trees. There is also plenty of diuers Fowles, especially of Poppin-jayes, which are not like to ours. From hence you come vnto the Ocean, where on an Iland is leated, a Citic called Ormus, whereto many Mer. Parrets. chants refort, bringing Spices, Pearles, precious Stones, cleath of Gold and Silkes, and Elephants teeth, and all other precious things from India. That Citie is a great Mart, having Cities and Castles under it, and is head of the Kingdome Chermain: the King is called Ruchmedin Achomach, who yeelds obedience to the King of Chermain. He makes himselfe heyre, if any Merchant dyes there. In Summer they by reason of the heat betake themselves to their Garden houfes built on waters. And from nine till noone there blowes a winde with fuch extreame hear from the fands, that it I wallowes up a mans breath and stifleth him, which makes them lye in 50 the water. The King of Chermain lent an Armie of fixteene hundred Horle, and five thousand Foot, against the Lord of Ormus for not paying his tribute, which were all surprised and shifted with that winde. The Inhabitants of the place eate no Bread made of Corne and flesh, but feed vpon Dates, falt Fish, and Onions. They have not very found Ships : for they fasten them not Their Ships with yron nayles (by reason that the wood is brittle and would cleaue) but with woodden pins, with certaine threds made of the thels of Indian Nuts. These shels are dressed after the manner of An outward Leather, out of the which, threds are cut, and of the thrids exceeding flrong cordes are made, fhell which which are able to indure the force and violence of the water, and are not easily corrupted there- growes spon by. Those Ships have one Mast, one sayle, one beame, and are covered but with one decke.

They are not chalked with Pitch, but with the Trane of Fishes. And when they croffe the Sea th ready sub-60 to India, carrying Horses and other fraight with them , they lose many Ships, because that Sca ffance. is very tempestuous, and the Ships are not strengthened with yron. The Inhabitants of that Countrey are blacke, and addicted to the Law of Mahumet. It is the custome of this Countrey, when any Master of a family dyeth, that the wife left behind him should mourne for him foure weekes, once a day. They have women which professe the practile of mourning and are thereto hired to mourne daily for their dead. Returnin:

Returning from Ormus to Chermain is a fertile Plaine, but the bread made there, cannot bee eaten of them, who are not accustomed thereunto, it is so bitter by region of the bitter water put therein, whereof are flore of hot Bathes good against diseases.

which is Salt. bitter, laxatiue, greene

Going from Chermain in three dayes riding you come to a Defart, which continued till you come to Cobinam, seuen dayes Iourney, which is extended. In the first three dayes you shall have no water, saue a very sew, and those salt and bitter, of a greene co lour in shew, as if it were the iuyce of Herbs : and whoso tasteth but a little thereof, cannot escape loolenesse of thebelly. The like also hapneth, if any taste the Salt made of that water. It is therefore needfull, that Trauellers carrie some water with them, if they will not be indangered through thirst. The beasts also which are compelled to drink that water, escape not without scouring. In the fourth day they to find a fresh River under ground: the three last dayes are as the first,

Cobinam. Tutia and Siedio.

Cobinam 1s agreat Mahumetan Citie; goodly, and great Locking Glasses of Steele, are made there. Tutia allo which cureth the eyes; and Spodio and that, after this manner. That Country hath Mines, out of which they digge Earth, which they boyle casting it into a fierie Fornace. an Iron grate receiving the afcending vapour from aboue, in the which, the conglutinated and clammic vapour becommeth Tutia. But the groffer matter remayning in the fire, is called Spodie. The Inhabitants of this Countrey, are followers of Mahumet.

A Defart of eight dayes lourney.

Leaving the Citie Cobinam, you meet with another Defart eight dayes Iourney in length, and in it there is great drynesse: it wanteth trees, and fruits, and waters which it hath are very bit-In the title 18 grant at very beafs refuse to drinke them except they mixe meale therewish, and Tra-uellers carrie water with them. But having passed ouer this Defart, you came to the Kingdome 10

Timochaim. Tree of Sun, a Ricci.

there carrie went with the state of the stat The dry Tree. This tree is very great and thicke, and hath leaves, which on the one fide are white. and on the other fide greene. It produceth o prickly shales like those of a Chesnut, but nothing in them. The wood is folide and strong, yellow like Boxe. There is no tree within one hundred miles, except on one fide, on which are trees within ten miles. In this place the Inhabitants fav. that Alexander the Great fought with Darius. The Cities are plentiful of good things, but Mahametan, and of temperate Aire. It hath also goodly men, but specially women, the most beautifull in my judgement in the World.

Mu'chet.

Mulchet is in Saracen Language, as much to say as a place of Heretikes, and of this place they call the men Mulehetici, that is, Heretikes in their Law, as with vs Patarines. Hauing spoken of the Countrey, the old man of the Mountayne shall bee spoken of, of whom Marco heard much from many. His name was Aloadine, and was a Mahumetan. Hee had in a goodly old manof the Valley betwixt two Mountaynes very high, made a goodly Garden, furnished with the best trees and fruits he could find, adorned with divers Palaces and houses of pleasure, beautified with gold Workes, Pictures, and Furnitures of filke. Thereby divers Pipes answering divers parts of those Palaces were seene to runne Wine, Milke, Honey and cleere Water. In them hee had placed goodly Damofels skilfull in Songs and Instruments of Musicke and Dancing, and to make Sports and Delights vnto men what societ they could imagine. They were also fairely at- 40 tyred in Gold and Silke, and were seene to goe continually sporting in the Garden and Palaces, He made this Palace, because Mahomet had promised such a sensuall Paradite to his deuont followers. No man might enter: for at the mouth of the Valley was a strong Castle, and the entrance was by a fecret passage.

Alaodine had certaine Youthes from twelue to twentie yeares of age, such as seemed of a bold and vindoubted disposition, whom hee instructed daily touching Mahomets Paradile, and how hee could bring men thither. And when he thought good, he caused a certaine Drinke to bee giuen vnto ten or twelue of them, which caft them in a dead fleepe : and then hee caused them to be carryed into divers Chambers of the faid Palaces, where they faw the things aforefaid as soone as they awaked; each of them having those Damosels to minister Meates and excellent 50 Drinkes, and all varieties of pleasures to them; infomuch that the Fooles thought themselves in Paradiferindeed. When they had enioyed those pleasures foure or fine dayes, they were againe cast in a sleepe, and carryed forth againe. After which, hee caused them to be brought into his presence, and questioned where they had beene, which answered, by your Grace, in Paradise, and recounted before all, all before mentioned. Then the old man answered, This is the commandement of our Prophet, that who foeuer defends his Lord, he make him enter Paradife : and if thou wile bee obedient to mee, thou shalt have this grace. And having thus animated them, hee was thought happie whom the old man would command, though it cost him his life: fo that other Lords and his Enemies were flaine by these his Assaires, * which exposed themselves to all dangers, and contemned their lines. Hereupon hee was effeemed a Tyrant, feared in all those 60 parts; and had two Vicars one in the parts of Damafeo, and another in Cur diffan: which obserthis flock Dis ned the same order with young men. Hee vied also to rob all which passed that way. Visus in spian Vicarior the yeare 1262 fent and befieged his Caille, which after three yeares nege they tooke, the hon and ruined his Paradife, not being able for want of victuall to hold out longer.

* It is likely that the Affa fines mentioned in the

¿. III.

of Sapurgan, Balac, Thaican, Scaffem, Balaxiam, Bafcia, Chefmur, Vochan, Samarchan, Carchan, Peym, the dreadfull De-(art of Lop and Tanguth.

Eparting from the forelaid place, you come vnto a certayne Country plealant enough, Large pleala which hath Hils, Plaines, and excellent Pafture, and laftly, fruits in great plentie: Country, for the foyle thereof is very fruitfull. This continues fixe dayes, and then you enter a Defart of fortie or fiftie miles, without water. After this you come to the Citie ADefart.

Sapargan, where plentie of all victuall is found; especially, Pompions the best in the World, Sapargan. fweet like Honey.

Paffing from thence, we came vnto a certayne Citie, named Batach, which in times past was great and famous, having fumptuous Marble Palaces: but now overthrowne by the Taxtars. In this Citie they report, that Alexander tooke the Daughter of King Darins to wife. To this Citie (on the East and North-cast) continue the Confines of Persia. But it you goe from hence, and Balach, perha proceed between the East, and the North-east, you cannot finde any Habitation for two dayes in Sales Journey : because the Inhabitans of the place having endured so many grievances by Theeses 20 and Robbers, are compelled to flye vnto the Mountaynes, to wit, places of more lafetie. Many waters are found there, and very much game of wild beafts: Lyons also are there. And because Transllers find no food in that lourney, they carrie victuals with them, which may fuffice them for two dayes. That two dayes Iourney ended, which we mentioned, we met with a certaine Castle, called Thracian-* Thaican; where is great plentie of Corne, and very goodly fields. The Mountaynes also on Salt-mounts the South are high, some of which are of white and hard Salt, and the Inhabitants thirtie dayes taynes, Iourney about fetch it from thence, being the best World, so hard that they must breake it with Iron Instruments, so much that the whole World may have sufficient Salt from thence. The other Mountaynes have store of Almonds and Pistaches. Going betweene the East and North-30 east from hence the Countrey is fruitfull, the Inhabitants Murtherers, Perfidious, Mahumetans, Drunkards: Their Wine is boyled and excellent. They goe bare-headed, faue that the men bind vo their heads with a certainestring of ten hanfuls long. But they make them clothing of the skinnes of the wilde beafts which they take, as Breeches and Shooes, and vie no other

After three dayes Iourney is the Citie Scaffem feated in a Plaine, and hath many Castle, in the Scaffem Mountaines round about it. A certaine great River a To floweth through the middle thereof. There are many Porcupines in that Countrey, which they hunt with Dogges by the Hunters : Porcupines. and they contracting themselves with great furie, cast their prickly Quils against the men and Porci pinos the Dogges, and wound them. That Nation bath a particular language: the sheepherds there-40 of abide in the Mountaynes, having made Caues for their Habitation. You goe hence three daies

Journey without any Habitation at all, to the Prouince Balaxiam. Balaxiam is a Mahametan Province, and hath a peculiar Language. Their Kings who fuc- Balaxiam ceed one another by hereditarie right, are reported to have derived their discent from Alexander the Great, and from the Daughter of Darius, and are called Zulcarnen, which is to fay, Alexander. There are found the Ballaffer, faire precious stones, and of great value. No man without danger of life, dare either digge fuch stones, or carrie them out of the Countrey, but with the licence and confent of the King: for all those stones are the Kings, and he sendeth them to whom he pleaseth, either for a Present, or payment of Tribute : he exchangeth also many for Gold and Silver. And this hee doth left the stone whereof there is such plentie should become viler and 50 cheaper. Other Mountaynes also in this Province yeeld stones, whereof the best Azure is made, the like whereof is not found in the World. The Mines also yeeld Siluer great store, and Brasse and Lead. The Countrey it felfe is very cold. It hath many Horles, and those excellent, great, Couragious and fwift, which have so hard and strong hooses on their feet, that they need no Iron Shooses, although they runne through Rockes. It is faid that not long fince there were Horses of the Race Bucchalusof Alexanders Bucephalsus, all with his forehead-marke, in the possession only of the Kings Vn- breed, cle, who was flaine for denying the King to have of them : whereupon his Widow in angry spite destroyed the whole Race. There are also excellent Falcons. The soyle thereof beareth notable Wheate, and Barley without huskes, and Oyle made of Nuts and Sulimane, which is like to flaxe feed, more sauourie then other Oyle. There are strait passages and many stormie 60 places. The men are good Archers and Huntimen, clothed with beafts skinnes. The hils are steepe and high, large plaines, Rivers alongst the ruptures; and if any have an Ague with abiding two or three dayes on the hils he recouereth , which Maco procued in himselfe after a yeares ficknesse. The women in the skirts of their Garments put sixtie or eightie yards of Cotton, the greatest Bumsie Boncer seeming the goodlieft Lasfe.

ð. III.

Bascia.

The Province Bascia is tendayes Journey toward the South, distant from the Countrey Balaxiam. And the Countrie it felte is very hot : whereby it commeth to passe, that the people are browne: they are expert Magicians, and continually attend thereto. They have a peculiar Language : and weare Golden and Siluer Eare-rings with Pearles and Rones artificially wrought in them. They eate fiesh and Rice, and are Idolaters, craftie and cruell. The Province (before is feven dayes Journey distant from Bascia. The Inhabitants thereof haue a peculiar Language, and are Idolaters; beyond all others cunning Inchanters, forcing their Idols to speake, and darkning the day. They are the chiefest Idolaters, and Idols are descended from them. From thence you may goe to the Indian Sea. The men and women are browne, not wholly blacke, the heate some-what tempered : their food is flesh and Rice, yet are they excee- 10 ding leane. There are many Cities and Townes there. Their King is tributarie to none. There are certaine Heremites in this Prouince, who in Monasteries and Cels worthip Idols, honouring their Gods with great abstinence of meate and drinke, and observe great Chastitie, are very cautelous not to offend their Idols, and line long. Of these are many Abbeyes, and the people gine them great reuerence. The men of this Prouince kill no quicke creatures, and shed no bloud: and if they will eate flesh, it is necessary that the Saracens which live amongst them, kill the creature. Corall is here fold dearer then any where. Wee will leave the way to India now and returne to Balaxiam and direct our way towards Caray, betwixt the East and North-east. Beyond Balaxiam is a certaine River, whereon stand many Castles and Villages belonging to the King of Balaxiams Brother : and after three dayes Iourney is the Prouince Vockan, having in 20 length and breadth three dayes Iourney. The Inhabitants thereof haue a peculiar Language, and worship Mahumet. They are good Livers, stout Warriours, and good Hunters: for that Countrey aboundeth with wild beafts. If you depart hence betwixt the North-east and the East, you must ascend for three whole dayes together, vntill you come vnto an exceeding high Mountayne, then the which, there is taid to bee none higher in the World. There also betweene two Mountaynes, a great Lake if found, whence by a Plaine runneth a very goodly River, neere vnto which are excellent Pastures, so that in them a leane Horse, or an Oxe, may bee fatted inten dayes. There is also plentie of wild beafts: especially, exceeding great wild sheepe, having hornes some of them fixe palmes or spans long, of the which they make divers kinds of vessels. That Plaine contayeth twelve dayes lourney in length, and is called Pamer; nor is there any reth there, by reason of the cold, and (it is reported for a Miracle) if fire be kindled there, it is not so bright nor so effectuall to boyle any thing, as in other places. From hence the way leadeth fortie daye, further, betweene the East and the North-east through the Mountaynes, Hils, and Valleyes, in the which many Rivers are found, but no humane habitation, nor any herbe: and the Countrey it selfe is called Beloro. Habitations of men are seene in the top of those high Mountaynes, but fuch as are fauage, wicked, Idolatrous; who line by hunting, and are clothed humane Habitation there, and Trauellers must carry victuals with them. No Bird also appea-

Vochan.

After this you come to the Prouince Casehar, which is tributarie to the great Cham and a Mahumetan. In it are Vines greene Gardens, fruitfuil trees, Cotton, Flaxe, and Hempe, and a fertile 40 foyle. The Inhabitants have a peculiar Language, and are Merchants, and Artificers, who are so couetous that they eate that which is bad, and drinke worse. Some Nestorian Christians are found there, who also have their Churches. The Countrey inlargeth it selfe fine dayes Iourney.

Samarchan is a great and famous Citie in that Gountrey, where are goodly Gardens and a fertile Plaine. It is fubre & to the Nephew of the Great Cham. In it the Christians dwell with the Saracens, whence little agreement is betwixt them. It is reported, that in this manner a Miracle hapned, the brother of Great Cham, named Zagatai, gouerned that Countrey, about one hundred yeares agoe, being perswaded to become a Christian, the Christians through his fauour built a Church, in honour of Saint Iohn Rapist, with fuch cunning that the whole Roofe thereof, was supported by one Pillar in the midit, under which was fet a square stone, which by fa- 50 your of their Lord was taken from a building of the Saracens. Zagathais Sonne succeeded after his death in the Kingdome, but not in the faith : from whom the Saracens obtayned that the Christians should be compelled to restore that stone. And when they offered a sufficient valuable price, the Saracens refused to receive any other composition then the stone. But the Pillar listed Vp it felfe, that the Saracens might take away their stone, and so continueth.

Carchan.

Departing againe from this Citie, you come into the Prouince Charchan, about fine dayes Iourney in length. This Prouince hath plentie of all victuals, beeing subject to the Dominion of the Nephew of Great Cham. The Inhabitants worthip Mahumet, yet among them certaint Nestorian Christians dwell. They are great Artificers, and have most of them great legges, and a happen also in great Wenne or Bunch in the throat, by reason of the waters which they drinke.

Wennes by the Alpes. Cotam the

The Prouince Cotam tolloweth betweene the East and the North-east. It is subject to the Dominion of the Nephew of Great Cham, and hath many Cities and Townes. The chiefe Citie thereof is called Cotam. The Province is extended eight dayes lourney in length. There is no want therein of any thing, appertaying to the maintenance of life. It hath plencie of Cotton, Flaxe, Hempe, Corne, and Wine. But the people are not warlike, yet good Artificers and Merchants. They acknowledge Mahumet.

Proceeding further through the same Countrey, you meet with the Prouince Peim, extended Piim, nue dayes lourney in length. It is subject to Great Can, and hath many Cities and Caliles. The chiefe Citie thereof is called Peim, neere which runneth a River, wherem precious stones are found, to wit, lasper stones and Chalcedonie. The Inhabitants of the Countrey worship Mahumet, and are Artificers and Merchants. There is a custome in this Prouince, that when any marryed man goeth into another place and returneth not home within twentie dayes, it shall Adulterous be lawfull for the Wife to marrie another Husband, and the men also where some they goe doe custome. 10 the like. All those Prouinces aforefaid, to wit, Caschar, Cotam, Poim, to the Citie of Lop, are in Great Tarlies, the bounds of Great Turkie.

Ciarcian is subject to the Tartars, the name of the Province and chiefe Citie, it hath many ciarcian Cities and Castles. Many precious stones are found there in the Ruers, especially Iaspers and Chalcedonies, which Merchants carrie even to Ouchach to fel, and make great gain, From Peim to this Province, and quite thorow it also, it is al Sand with many bad waters and few good. When any Armie passeth through this Prouince, all the Inhabitants thereof with their Wines, Childien, Cattel, and all their houshold fuffe, flie two dayes lourny into the fands, where they know good waters are, and flay there : and carrie their Corne thither also to hide it in the fands after Harnest for like seares. The wind doth so deface their steps in the sand, that their Enemies can-20 not find out their way. Departing from this Prouince, you are to trauell fine dayes Iourney thorow the fand, where no other water almost then that which is bitter is to be found, vntill youcome vnto the Citie named Lop.

Lop is a great Citie, from whence is the entrance of a great Defart, called also Lop, seated be- Lop. tweene the East and the North-east. The Inhabitants are Mahumetans, subiect to the Great Delartof Len Can. In it Merchants who defire to paffe ouer the Defart, cause all necessaries to be prouided for them. And when victuals beginne to faile in the Defart, they kill the Affes and Camels and eate them. They most willingly vie Camels, because they are sustayined with little meate, and beare great burthens. They must prouide victuals for a moneth to crosse it ouer-thwart; for to goe thorow the length, would aske a yeares time. They goe thorow the fands and barren Mountaines.

caused some to miscarrie. Conforts of Musicall Instruments are sometimes heard in the Ayre, latertimes

30 and daily find water, yet is it sometimes to little, that it can scarsly suffice fiftie or one hundred men with their beafts: and in three or foure places the water is falt and bitter : the rest (which are eight and twentie) good. In it are neither beafts nor birds. They fay that there dwell many Illusions of spirits which cause great and meruailous Illusions to Trauellers to make them perish. For if any Deuilaltiae flay behind that he cannot fee his company, he shall be called by name, and logoing out of the methdath way is loft. In the night they heare the noyfe as it were of a company, which taking to bee not then four theirs they perish likewise. Other apparances as of their companions, or of enemies have out, which likewise Drummes, and noyses of Armes. They goe therefore neere together, hang Bels on their farts as ind beafts neckes, and let markes if any flav.

40 Hauing passed over the Defart, you come vnto the Citie Sachion, betwixt the East and North- Sachion east, subject to the Great Can, in the Province of Tanguth , where among the Worshippers of Tanguth. Mahumet, a few Nestorias Christians are found. Many Idelaters are allothere, who have their proper Language. The Inhabitants of this Citie, line not of Merchandize, but the fruits of the Earth. This Citie hath many Monasteries, consecrated to divers Idols, in the which many Sacrifices are offered, and great reuerence. And when a Sonne is borne vnto a man, hee prefently commendeth him to some Idoll, and in honour thereof, nourisheth a sheepe that yeere in his house, which he presenteth before it together with his Sonne, the next Festivall Day of that The Sacrific Idoll, with many Ceremonies and great reuerence. Afterward the flesh of the sheepe is boyled, or the Birth and left to long before the Idell, while their Prayers are finished, which they make for the con-day. 50 feruation of their Sonne, and the Idoll hath fucked out the fauour of the meate, after which their fancie all his kindred being gathered together, eate that fielh at home with great deuotion and joy : but orderly keepe the bones in certayne veffels. The Prietts haue the feete, head, inwards, skinne, and some part of the fiesh for their spare. In celebrating the Funerals of suchas Funerall. were of effeeme, the dead bodies are burned after this manner. The kindred fend for the Aftro- Aftroiger logers, and tell them what yeare, moneth, day, and houre, hee who dyed was borne: who perceining the confellation, declare the day when hee is to be burned : fo that when the Planet fits not, they referue the dead bodie fometimes feuen dayes, and fometimes like monethes, preparing a Cheft for it at home, and joyning the fides together with fuch cunning Art, that no linke can issue forth. They also imbalme the bodie it selte with Spices, and couer the Chest fairely pain-

60 ted with a costly cloth : and enery day that the dead corps is kept at home, at the houre of Dinner, a Table is prepared neere the Cheft, fetting wine and meate thereon for the space while one might well eate a mealef-meat, supposing that the soule of the dead, feedeth of the sauour thereof. The Aftrologers tometime forbid to carrie it forth at the chiefe gate, pretending fome ditafrom flarres thereto, and cause them to carrie it out another way, and sometimes breake the wall which is opposite to that place which the Planet makes more luckie; for otherwise the foirits departed would bee offended and hurt those of the house. And if any such enill happen, they afribe it to the dead thus wronged. When the bodie is carryed through the Citie to be burned without, woodden Cottages are erected in the way, with a porch couered with Silkes. in which they fet the bodie, and fet before it Bread, Wine, and Flesh, and Delicate Cates, suppoling the spirit to be refreshed therewith, which must bee presently present at the burning of

And when they come vnto the place of burning, they write and paint vpon Papers made of the barkes of Trees, the Images of Men and Women, Hories, Camels, Money, and Garments, (All the Instruments of the Citic meane-while refounding) all which are burned together with 10 the dead bodie. For they fay, that that dead man shall have io many Men-servants, and Mayd-seruants, Cattell, and Money, in another life, as refemblances, and Pictures were burned together many Cities and Townes: the chiefe Citie is called Chamul. The Land butteth vpon two Defarts, to wit, the great Defart, whereof wee haue spoken before, and a certaine other, thatis with him, and shall perpetually line in that honour and riches. The Province Chamul lyeth in the great Province Tanguth, fubiect to the Great Can, having leffe, of three dayes Iourney. It aboundeth with fuch things, which a man needeth for the fuftentation of life. The Inhabitants are Idolaters, haue a peculiar Language, and feeme to bee borne for none other purpose, but to apply themselves to sporting, singing, dancing, writing and reading after their fashion, playing on Instruments, and to give themselves delight. When any Traueller palling by, turneth into any mans house for entertaynment, the Master of the Family 20 receiveth him with great ioy, and commanderh his Wife and all the Family, that they as long as he will abide with them, obey him in all things. In the meane space, he departeth not to returne fo long as the Gueft remayneth in his house. And meane-while hee lyeth with the Wife, Daughter, and the rest, as with his owne Wines. The women of that Countrey are beautifull, and readie to obey all those Commandements of their Husbands, who are so beforted with this folly, that they thinke it a glorious thing for them, and acceptable to their Idols, for which they prosper with plentie of all things. Mangu Can having heard of this folly, commanded them to oblerue this detestable custome no longer; which they did about three yeares, and then seeing not their wonted fertilitie, and troubled with some Domesticall crosses, sent Ambassadours to 30 the Can, and instantly entreated, that he would renoke so grienous an Ediot, and not abolish that Tradition which they had received from theif Elders. The Can answered, seeing you defire your reproch and shame, let it be granted you. Goe and doe herein after your wont. The Messengers returning with this Aniwer, brought great toy to all the people: this cultome is observed by that

After the Prouince of Camul, followeth the Prouince of Chinchintalas, which on the North boundeth vpon the Defart, and is fixteene dayes Journey in length, subject to the Dominion of is not in Ramu. Great Cham, It hath Cities and many Caffles. The people thereof are divided into three Sects. is not in name.

for Italian Co- Some few acknowledge Christ, and these are Nestwians others worthip Mahumet, the third, adore Idols. In this Province there is a Mountaine where are Mines of Steele and Andanicum, 40 and also Salamanders, of the which cloth is made, which, if it bee cast into the fire, cannot bee 1559) yet is it burned. But that cloth is made of the Earth in this manner (as one of my companions, a Tracket named Curcifur, a man indued with fingular industrie, informed me) who had the charge of the the Prouinces Minerals in that Prouince, A certaine Minerall of Earth is found in that Mountayne, which yeeldeth threeds, not valike to Wooll, which being dryed in the Sunne, are bruifed in a brazen And I have not Morter, and afterward washed, and whatsoever earthy substance cleaneth vnto them, is taken a little trauel. away: laftly, those threeds so purged and made small, are spunne like other Wooll, and woven led in Trauel into cloth. And when they will whiten those clothes, they cast them into the fire for an houre, and then they are taken out of the flaming fire valuet, whiter then Snow. After the like manner they clenie them, when they have taken any spots: for no other washing is added to them, 52 belides the fire. But touching the Salamander, the Serpent, which is reported to line in the fire, I could fearch out nothing in the East Countries. They say, there is a certay ne Napkinat Rome, wouen of the Salamander, wherein the Handkerchiefe of the Lord is kept wrapped vp, which a certayne King of the Tartars sent unto the Bishop of Rome. After you are past this Prouince, you go betwirt the East and North-east ten dayes Iourney, in which few Habitations or things remarkable are found; and then you come to the Prouince Succuir, which hath many Habitations and Townes. The chiefe Citie thereof is called Succuir. Rhubarbe. Of In this Prouince, among many Idolaters, a few Christians are found they are subject to the Great Can. They apply not themselves to Merchandize, but live of the fruits of the Earth. hath guen a large di course. The best Raubarbe is found in great quantitie in this Prouince, which is carryed thence by Mer- 60 trom the Rela- chants, to divers parts of the World Strangers dare not go to the Mountaynes where it growes, tion of Chaggi by reason of venemous herbs, which if their beasts should eate them would lose their hootes; but Meerit, which those of that Country know and anoyd them. The generall name of this Province, and of the two following is Tanguth.

Campion is a great Citie, the principall in the Countrey of Tanguth. In it are Christians Comition (which have there three great and faire Churches, Mahametans, and Idolaters. The Idolaters Christian haue many Monasteries, where they worship their Idols. Moreouer, those Idols are made eie Countries. ther of stone, wood, or clay, some ouer-layed with gold, and very artificially wrought, Among Idoi trons ther of flone, wood, or clay, some outer-layer with gold and they attend to the earth, as if they Monaticres, thele, some are so great, that they contayne ten paces in length, fastned to the earth, as if they idols of due is lay upright, neere vinto the which, little Idols are placed, which feeme to give reverence to the kinds. greater, and both are much reuerenced. The Religious men feeme to line more honeftly then other Idolaters, abstayning from certaine things, as Lecherie, and other things; although Lecherie feemes no grieuous finne : for they fay, if a woman feekes for loue to a man, he may vie her 10 without finne, but not, if he feekes first to her. They reckon the whole circuit of the yeere by Theyeere of Moones, In these Moones, they observe five, or foure, or three dayes, wherein they kill no Beast, the Moone, or Bird, nor eat Flesh (as is the vie with vs on Friday, Saturday, and Vigils.) The Lay-men Their many marrie twentie or thirtie wives, as they are able to maintayne : yet the first is accounted the wives, more worthie, and more legitimate. The husband receiueth no downe from the wife, but hee himselfe assigneth conuenient dowrie, in Cattell, seruants, or money, according to his abilitie. If the wife become hatefull to the husband, it is lawfull for him to divorce her from him, as he pleafeth. They take for wines their Kinf-women or Mothers in law. Marco, together with his Rather, and Vincle, remayined a yeeres space in this Citie, for the dispatch of certaine affaires.

From the Citie Campion, you goe twelue dayes journey to the Citie Ezina, bordering woon a zina 20 fandy Defart towards the North, contayned in the Prouince of Tanguth. Many Camels are there, and many other beafts; and Hawkes of divers kinds. The Inhabitants are Idolaters, living of the fruits of the Earth, forbearing merchandife.

ò. IIII.

of Carchoran, the Originall, proceedings and exploits of the Tartars; of Priest IOHN and his discendants. Customes of the Tartars. Of Bargu, Erginul, Xandu the Cans Citie and Palace; of Muske: of ftrange Sorcerers, and austere Monkes.

LI the Protinces and Cities aforefaid, Sachion, Chemul, Chinchitalia, Succeir, Campion, and Ezina, pertayne to Tanguth. Having palled over the forelaid Defart, you come vnto the Citie Carchoram, which is in circuit three miles, strongly rampierd with Carchoran, vide vnto the Citie Carcheram, which is in circuit three miles, irroughly rampiera Wiei Rubr, of caracarth, for they want stone. Neere it is a great Castle, and in it the Gouernors faire corum. Palace. This was the first place neere which in old times the Tartars affembled themselves. And The original now we will declare how they began to raigne. They dwelt in the North parts, to wit, in Gior- of the Domi-24 and Bargu, where are many and great Playnes without Cities and Townes, but goodly Pa- nion of the flures, Rivers and waters. They had not a Prince of their Nation, but payed tribute to a certayne Totals. great King, named as I have heard, in their language Vmcan, which in some mens opinion in our 40 tongue fignifieth, Preflyter (or Prieft) Iohn. To him the Tartars gaue yeerely the tenths of all their bealts. In processe of time, the Tarrars fo encreased in multitudes, that Vmcan was afraid of them, and thought to disperse them into severall parts of the world. And therefore when any rebelled he fent three or foure of an hundred of the Tarrars into those parts, fo diminishing their power; and the like he did in his other occasions, deputing some of their principals to that purpose. They seeing their ruine intended and loth to be separated one from another, went from the places where they dwelt to the Defart towards the North, where by remotenesse they might be fafe and denyed to Vmcan their wonted Tribute.

It hapned that about An. 1162. the Tartars having continued some time in those parts, chose a King among themselues, a wise and valiant man, named Cingis Can. He began to reigne with 50 fuch iustice, that he was beloued and feared of all as a God rather then a Prince, infomuch that his fame brought all the Tartars in all parts to his subjection. And hee seeing himselse Lord of so valiant men would needs leave those Defarts, and commanding them to prouide Bowes and other weapons, began to subdue Cities and Prouinces, in which Conquetts hee placed such init Gouernours, that the people were not offended. The chiefe of them hee carried alongst with him with great prouifions and gifts. Seeing therefore that he was advanced to fo great glorie, and The fruit of a power, he lent Embaffadors politikly to Umean to intreate, that he would bestow his daughter wilde gouern. vpon him to be his wife, Which he taking, in very euill part, answered with indignation, and re- ment. iecting the Embaffadors of Cingis, laid, doth my fervant demand my daughter? Get ye out of my fight and tell your Master, if he ever make such demand againe, I will make him die a miserable cingis goeth 60 derth. But King Cingis, leuving a great Armie, went forth with an hottile minde, and incamped forth against in a certaine great Plaine, named Tanduc, fending vnto the King, and fignifying vnto him, that he Umcan. should defend himselfe. But he, comming with a mightie Armie, deteended to the Playnes, and pitched his Tents within ten miles of the Campe of the Tartars. Then Cingis commanded his with the Ma-Aftrologers to shew him, what event and successe the battell should have. They cutting a Reed gicians.

haue (printed

Biwdes to

theirowae

Kind Cuck-

Wates,

this Salamander, but haue little;no Midmakes mee that conceit.

m:e by warre.

He dieth with the flor of an Aircw. Consis an. CVA CAI. Batina Can-E'a Con. Show " Cin. Cabla: Can. All webe Se-Kings of the Their cruell cultome of The marriages of the

Their ub-

The Tartars religion.

lengthwife in two parts, fet the pieces themselves into the ground, and wrote vpon the one, Cings ; and on the other, Vmc.w; and faid vnto the King : In the meane space, while we reade the Conjurations, it shall come to passe by the Idols power, that these two parts of the Reed thall fight together: And whole part itall afcered upon the other, that King shall obtain victorie in the battell. The multitude therefore running together to behold that incctacle, the Altrologers beganne to mumble their prayers, and reade their inchantments, when prefently the parts of the Reed being moued, fought together, vntill at length the part of Cingis alcended vpon the part of Umcan. Which being feene, the Tartars affured of the fixure victorie, were encouraged to the battell, and Umcan being flayne, the Victorie, and Kingdome, and Umcans daughter remayned to Cingis. Cingis raigned fixe yeeres after this, in the which hee got many Ia Provinces : and lattly, when he endeuoured to winne a certaine Cattle, called Thaigin, and came fomewhat neere, being that in the knee with an Arrow, he died, and was buried in the Mountaine Altai.

The first King of the Tartars, was called Cingis ; the fecond, Cyn (an; the third, Bathyn Can; the fourth, Efu Can; the fifth, Mangu Can; the fixth Cublas Can, whose power is greater then all his Predecessors, having inherited theirs, and adding by Conquest in manner the rest of the World, For he lived neere fixtie yeeres in his Government. The name Con fignifieth Emperor. All the great Cans, and Princes of that bloud of Cingis, are carried to the Mountaine of Aliai to be buried, wherefoeuer they die, although one hundred dayes journey from it. And they which pulcher of the carrie the Corole to the buriall, kill all those that they meet in the way, faying : goe, and ferue 20 our Lord the King in another life. They kill also the better Horses. When the bodie of great Cham Mongu, the Predecessor of Cham Cublai, was brought vinto the Mountaine Altai to bee buried, the Souldiers accompanying the funerall, are reported to have flayne about ten thousand men, upon the forelaid occation,

The Tartareas women are most faithfull to their husbands. Adulterie is a great shame with them : yet it is accounted lawfull, and honest, that every one may marrie as many wives as he is able to maintayne, although the first be judged to be more principall and honorable then the rest. Womens con- Thefe live together in the same house without one ill word, in admirable concord, make their merchandifes, buy, and fell, and chaffer all things necessarie to their husbands and housholds, the men medling with nothing but their hunting, hawking, and things pertayning to Armes. They haue the best Falcons in the World, and so they have of Dogs. They live onely of Plefh and Milke, and what they take in hunting. They eat Horses, Camels, Dogs, if fat; and drinke Mares milke, called Chemors, fo vied, that it is like white " Wine. If the father dies, the forme may have all his wives except his owne mother and fifters. So, the brother being dead, it is lawfull for the brother who remayneth aline, to marrie the widdow of the brother. The husbands receive no dowrie from the wives, but they themselves affigne dowry to the wives, and their mothers. Through the multitude of wines the Tartars have many children. Nor is the multitude of Wives very burdenfome vnto the Tartars, feeing they game much through their labours. Befides, they are very carefull for the government of the familie, and preparation of food : and with no leffe care, execute the other duties of the house. But the men apply them- 40 felies wholly to hunting, fowling, and exercise of Armes. The Tartars nourish many herds of Oxen, flocks of Sheepe, and other Beafts, and Cattell, and abide with them in places of Pafture, in the Summer time, in the Mountaines, and colder places, where they finde Patture and Wood; but in the Winter, they remoue vnto the hotter Countreyes, where they finde Paffure for their Cattell: and goe forth-on two or three moneths together. Their houses are coursed with flickes and felts, ordinarily round, which they carrie with them on Carts or Waggons of foure wheeles, whitherfocuer they goe. For they can fold and extend them, fet them vp, and take them downe : and they turne the doore of them alwaies to the South. They have also neat Carts of two wheeles (couered with Felt fo well that rayne cannot pierce them) drawne by Oxen, and Camels, wherein they carrie their wives, children, and necessarie houshold-stuffe 50 with them, and defend them from the injurie of foule weather, and rayne.

The Tartars, if they be rich, are clothed with Sables, Ermins, and Cloth of gold, and all their furniture is costly. Their Armes are Bowes, Swords, Polaxes, and some Lances, but they can best vie their Bowes, whereto they are vied from their childhood. They are hardie, valorous. cruell, will continue two dayes and nights on horse-backe armed; exceeding patient of difficulties, and exceeding obedient to their Lords. Their Cattell also are hardie.

The Law and Faith of the Tartars is this. They fay, that there is a great God, high and heauenly, of whom with daily incense they defire good understanding and health. They have another, which they call Natigay, which is like an Image conered with Felt, or some other thing, which every one hath in his house. To this God they make a wife and children, placing the 60 wises Image at the left hand, and the representations of children before his face. This they call, The God of earthly things, which keepeth their Children, and their Bealts, and Corne : and give it great reverence. Before they eat themselves, they anoint the mouthes of the Images with the fat of the fodden Flesh, and they cast the broth out of doores, in honour of other

Spirits, faying, that their God with his familie have had their part; and after they eate and drinke at pleafure.

If the ionne of any Tartar die, who hath not yet beene married, and also the daughter of another die varmarried, the parents of both the deceated parties meet together, and make a mar- Painted Marriage betweene the dead : and making a draughter in writing, of that contract, they paint men riages. and women for feruants, Horfes and other creatures, with clothes of all forts and moneyes, in paper, and burne them together with the writing of contract; by the fumes whereof, they fay that all these things are carried to their children in another world, where they are married, and the fathers and mothers thinke they are loyned together through such a bond of affinitie, as if those marriages had beene celebrated, while the married couple yet lived.

When the Tartars goe to warre, their Prince conducteth about one hundred thousand Horse, Their war-fare appointing Heads over tens, hundreds, thoulands, ten thoulands, by which orderly subordination, commands are easily effected. Every hundred is ealled a Tuc; ten, a Toman. When they fet fort! they fend out men every way, as Scouts that no Enemie may affault them vinpromitted. Or Horse and Mares, there are for every man about eightcene. They carrie also their like Felt houses, under the which they shelter themselves in the time of raym. When there falls out 20 fome important employment, they will ride ten dayes together without victuals hoyled, and line of the bloud of their Horfes, curting a veyne and fucking it. They have Milke dryed like Patte, which they make , boyling the Milke, and taking the Creame which fwims on the top, put it in another vessell, and thereof make Butter : After, they let the Milke in the Sunne, and drie it; and when they goe in the Armie carrie ten pounds thereof, and every morning take halfe a pound, and put it into a little Flaske or Bottle of Leather, with as much water as he pleafeth : which while he rides, beats together : and this is his dinner. When they encounter with their Enemies, they ride here and there shooting, and sometimes make shew of slight, shooting as they flee, and finding the Enemies broken, redintegrate their forces, and purfue the victorie; haning their Horfes at command, with a figne to turne any way. But now the Tartars are mixed 30 in divers parts, and fo are their fashions.

They punish malefacters after this manner. If any steale a thing of small value, and hath not The mulet or deserved to be deprived of life, he is seaven times beaten with a Cudgell, or seaventeene, or sea- Penaltic of uen and twenty, or thirty feauen, or forty and feauen, guing the strokes according to the meafure and qualitie of the offence, and that wato an hundred; fome doe often times dye, through the heards of these strokes. But if any have stollen an Horse, or another thing, for the which hee deserueth to Castell dye, he is cut afunder with a Sword in the middle : but if hee will redeeme his life, he shall reftore the theft nine fold. Such as have Horses, Oxesfor Camels, brand them with their markes, and fend them to the pattures without a keeper.

Leaning the Citie of Carachoran, and the Mountaine Altai, you come vnto the champaine Bargu. 40 Countrey of Baren, which extendeth it felfe Northwards about fixtie dayes journey in length, The Inhabitants of those places are Meriti, and they are fubiect to great Chan, whing the man- Medite ners of the Tartars. They are wilde men, and eate the flesh of Beafts which they take by hunting, especially of Stagges, whereof they have great plentie, and they make them so tame, that Strange Falthey may ride them. They want Corne and Wine. In the Summer they exercise great hun-cons. ting and taking of wilde Beafts and Fowle, with the Hefh whereof they may line in the winter: This is either a For in Winter, as well fowle as other living creatures flie from thence, by reason of the exceeding and vntolerable cold of that Countrey. After the end of fortie dayes journey, you come hardly credivnto the Ocean, neere which is a Mountaine where After, and strange Falcons breed, which are ble. carryed thence vnto the Court of great Chan.

50 Heere we must returne vnto the Citie Campion. If therefore you proceed further fine dayes Nicht walking iourney from the Citie Campion towards the East, (in the places lying in the middle, horrible E-grad. voyces of Deuts are heard in the night time) you come to the Kingdome Erginal, in the Prouince of Tangut, fubicet to the great Cham. In this Kingdome are many other Kingdomes which are Idolators. There are some Nestorian Christians, and Turkes. There are many Cities and Caflies, of which Erginal is chiefe. From hence, if you proceed further to the Southeast, you may Cathai. goe to the parts of Carbai, going Southeast towards Carbai, there is a certaine famous Citie vamed Cinguy, (the name also of the Province) tributarie vnto great Chan : contained in Tangut : the people are fome Christians, fome Mahametans, others Idolators. Their are also found wilde Oxen, neere as great as Elephants, very faire, having white and blacke havre, thort in

60 other parts, and on the shoulders three palmes long, fine and white beyond filke : of which Marco brought some to Venice as a rare thing. Many also of these Oxen are tamed, and made to writer biguiste engender with tame Kine, and the breed of them are fitter for bufineffe then any other creatures, other ham. beare great burthens are yoaked to the plow, and doe twife as much as others. The belt Muske in the world is found in this Prouince, and is of a goodly beaft of the bigneffe of a Goat, having Miske groffe hayre like a Stagge, feet and tayle like a Gazella but without hornes; it hath toure teetin, two aboue, and two beneath, of the length of three fingers, fubtle, and white as Iuorie, and is a faire beaft to fee to, when the Moone is at full, neare the naull under the belly there growes might be carefull preferners of all those things which he possesses. There are two forts of Idolaters, Sorcerers called Thebeth and Chefmir, which in the midft of The Kings fromes askend the Palace and furfer no rayne to fall thereon; which they make the people be- Magicians-leene comes to palle by their fanctitie; and therefore they goe flouenly and regardlelle of their persons, neuer washing nor combing the michies. They also have a horrible custome to dresse and eate such as are comdemned to death, but not those which dye naturally. They are called also Bachfi, which is the name of their Order, as Friers Predicants or Minors with vs. They feeme by Magicke to doe what they lift, when the great Can in his Hall fits at his Table, which is To eight yards high : and in the midft of the hall a good distance from the table is a great Cupboard of plate furnished: They cause that the peeces full of Wine or Milke or other viands of themfelues, fill the goblets without any hand touching them, and goe ten paces in the ayre into the great Cans hand; and when he hath drunke, returne to their place. This they doe in the prefence of any man, when their Lord commands. These Bachfealso when they will make feaths to their Idols, goe to the Can and fay; Sir, know that if our Idols be not honoured with Sacrifices, they will bring plagues to Corne and Bealts. And therefore wee pray you to give the fielh of fo many Sheepe with blacke heads, and fo many pounds of Incense and Lignum aloes, that we may make them due facrifice and honour. This they spake not to him themselves, but by certaine Lords deputed to that Office, who speake to the Can and obtaine it. On the feast day they and facrifice the faid beafts, and fprinkle the broath before the Idels.

They have great Monasteries some of the bignesse of a Citie, in some of which are about two thouland Monkes which ferue Idols, sequestred from the Laitie in their shauing and garments. Shauinge. For they thaue their heads and beards, and were a religious garment. These in the solemnities of their Idols fing with folemne fongs and lights, fome of them may marry. There are fome of great abitinence called Sensim, leading an auftere life, for they eate nothing but Meale mingled with water till all the Flower be gone, and eate the branne without any fauour. These worthip the Fire , and the men of other rules fay that these which are so austere, are Heretikes against Austerice, their Law, because they worthip not Idols as they doe; and there are great differences betwixt them : and these marry not in any case. They shaue their Head and Beard : they weare blacke 30 hempen garments, and bright yellow. They fleepe in thicke Mats, and line the feuerest life

ò. V.

Of CVBLAICAN, his Raigne and Acts, Magnificent feasts and Huntines. Court and Counfell. His Cttie Cambalu and clerious

Nchis Booke I purpofe to write of all the great and maruellous Acts, of the prefent Heercheging Concalled Cons, which is in our Tongue Land of Lands, the greatest Prince the fectord of the consequence of in peoples, Cities and Treatures, that ever was in the world. Hee being discended Booke of Marfrom the Progenie of Chingis, the first Prince of the Tarrars, is the fixth Emperour which I thought of that Countrey, beginning to raigne in the yeare of our Lord 1256, being twentie feauen good to adueryeares old, and ruling the people with great wifedome and grautie. He is a valiant man, exer- use the Reayeares old, and ruling the people with great witeoune and grautice. The inavailable for the performance of matters, before der rassor the cifed in Armes, ftrong of bodie, and of a prompt minde for the performance of matters, before Chapters, the he attained to the dignitie of the Empire (which by his wisdome he did against the will of his Laises and Re-Brethren) he often thewed himfelte a valiant Souldier in the warres, and carryed himfelfe like mule to differ, a wifer and bolder Captaine, then ever the Tartars had. But fince he fwayed the Kingdome, he that I have let

In the yeare of our Lord 1286, his Vnclenamed Naiam, being thirtie yeares of age, and ha-owne digitions uing the command of many people, and Countries, so that hee was able easily to bring together comes or chinfourehundred thousand Horse. Being puffed vp through youthfull vanitie, would now no lon- gu can. ger be fubre ct, but would needs take away the Kingdome from his Lord Cubas, and fent to ano- Natame tobelther great Lord named Cards, Lord of the parts towards great Turkie, who was nephew of the lion. Emperour Cublai, yet hated him, who yeelding confent to Rebellion, promifed to come in proper person with an hundred thouland Horse.

Both of them began to gather Forces, which could not bee done fo fecretly but Cublai heard of it, and presently tooke order to set guard to the wayes that no intelligence might passe that way: and then affembled all the Forces within ten dayes journey of Cambala with great speed, 60 to that in twentie dayes, were gathered together three hundred & fixtie thousand Horse, and one hundred thousand Foot, a great part of them Falconiers and men of his Houshold. With their hee made all hafte day and night towards Naiams Countrey, where at the end of twentie fine lives he arrived, altogether villooked for ; and refted his men two dayes. Then hee called his fielh alio is good to eate. Mafter Marco brought to Venice the head and feet of this beaft dryed. The men hue of Merchandise and Arts, and have aboundance of Corne : they are Idolaters. of a fat body and a little Nofe, blacke hayred, having no beard but foure hayres on their chin. Beautie prefer. The women are faire and white. And when the men defire to marry wives, they rather feeke redbe ore No. the beautifull, then the noble or rich. Whereby it commeth often to paffe, that a great and Noble man marryeth a poore wife, but beautifull, affigning dowrie to her mother there. This Prouince extendeth it felfe fine and twentie dayes journey in length, and is very fertile. In it are exceeding great Feafants, having traynes eight or ten handfuls long. Many other kindes of Io Birds are also found there, which have very goodly feathers, distinguished with divers and ex-

Feafants.

to this beaft an impostume or bladder full of blood, and at the full then they goe to hunt the faid beafts and take away that fwelling, which is dryed in the Sunne, and is the best Muske : the Egrezaia.

Proceeding further towards the East, after eight dayes journey, you meet with the Prouince Egrigaia, in the which are many Cities and Castles, all still in Tanguth. The principall Citie is called Calacia. The Inhabitants thereof are Idolaters, there are three Churches of Neftorian Christians, and are subject to the great Chan, In the Citie Calacia, Chamlets are made, wouen of white wooll and the hayre of Camels, then the which , there are scarce any fairer found

Going to the East from the Province Egrigaia, the way leadeth vnto the Province Tenduch. in the which are many Cities and Cafiles : where also Presbyter lobannes vieth to abide, who 20 now payeth tribute to great Chan. This King of that progenie of Priest Iohn is named George. and is a Priest and a Christian, and most of the people are Christians. All the Great Chans, after his death who was slaine in battell by Cingu, gaue their Daughters to those Kings to wife. This King George holds not all that Priest John before held, and is the fourth of that progenie. There is a Nation there called Argon, more goodly men and fitter for Merchandife then the rest, descended of Idolaters and Mahumetans. There are also two Regions where they raigne. Gog and Magog which in those parts are called Og and Magog, but they which dwell there call them Vng and Mongul: in Ung are Gog and in Mongul the Tartars. Riding East seauen dayes towards Catar, are many Cities peopled with Idolaters, Mahumetans, and Nestorians. There is one Citie cal-The Citie Sin- led Sindicin, where very faire and excellent Armes are made of divers forts, fie for Armies. In the 30 blew colours; the fifth, of a grizell or gray colour, having red and blacke heads, and thefe are very great. And neere unto this Citie lyeth a certaine valley where many Cottages are, in the which 40 an exceeding number of Partridges is maintained, which are kept for the King, comming to

This Citie is three dayes iourney Northeastward to the Citie Xandu, which the great Chan

Idifa. Cianganor. Fiue forts of mountaines of this Prouince are great Mines of filuer, and manifold game of wilde beafts, and the Countrey of the mountaines is called Idfa. Three dayes journey diffant from the forefaid Citie, flandeth another Citie langamur, that is White Lake, wherein is a Palace, in which the great Chan most willingly remainerh, because there are many Lakes and rivers, many Swannes, and in the plaines, Cranes, Feafants, and Partridges, and store of other fowle. There are fine forts of Cranes there : some haue blacke wings like Crowes, others are white and bright, hauing their feathers full of eyes like Peacocks, but of a golden colour, the necke blacke and white very beautifull: a third fort of bigneffe not valike ours; a fourth, little and very faire, intermingled with red and lodge there for a time.

Xanda.

Hunting with A goodly house of plea-

A folemne Sa-

Cublay now raigning built; erecting thereing a maruellous and artificiall Palace of Marble and other stones, which abutteth on the wall on one side, and the midst of the Citie on the other. He included fixteene miles within the circuit of the wall on that fide where the Palace abutteth on the Citie wall, into which none can enter but by the Palace. In this inclosure or Parke are goodly meadowes, fprings, rivers, red and fallow Deere, Fawnes carryed thither for the Hawkes, (of which are there me wed aboue two hundred Gerfalcons which he goeth once a weeke to fee) and he often vieth one Leopard or more, litting on Horses, which hee letteth vpon the Stagges 50 and Deere, & having taken the beaft, giveth it to the Gerfalcons, and in beholding this spectacle he taketh wonderfull delight. In the middest in a faire Wood hee hath built a royall House on pillars gilded and vernished, on every of which is a Dragon all gilt, which windeth his tayle about the pillar, with his head bearing up the loft, as also with his wings displayed on both sides : the couer also is of Reeds gilt and varnished, so that the rayne can doe it no injurie, the reeds being three handfuls thicke and ten yards long, split from knot to knot. The house it selfe also may be fundred, and taken downe like a Tent and erected againe. For it is fullained, when it is fet vp, with two hundred filken cords. Great Chan vieth to dwell there three moneths in the yeare, to wit, in Iune, Iuly, and August. On the eight and twentieth day of August, he departeth to make a solemne sacrifice. He hath an herd of white Horses, and white Mares, about ten thou- 60 fand of the milke whereof none may drinke except hee be of the progenie of Cingis Can, except one family, called Boriat, priviledged hereto by Cingis for their valour. And thele beaits as they goe vp and downe feeding are much renerenced, nor dare any goe before them or hinder their way. The Aftrologers or Sorcerers tell Chan that on the twentie eight of the Moone of August, 50 Went but once into the Field, but fends his Sonnes, and other Captaines in expeditions.

Aftrologers, and caufed them before all the Armie to divine who should have victorie ( a thing they alway vie to incourage their men ) and they promifed it to (ublai. One morning whiles Nations was fleeping negligently in his Tent, having not to much as fent out any fcouts to efpie, Cublas made the v of his Armie voon a hill to Naiams. Hee himfelte fate in a certaine Cattle of wood, full of Archers and Croffe-bow men, borne by foure Elephants; on the top whereof was the Royall Standard with the Images of the Sunne and Moone. Hee deuided his Armie into three wings, of which he lent that on the right hand and the other on the left against Naiams Armie: To every ten thousand Horse were assigned fine hundred Foot with Lances, taught to leape vp behind the horse-men if any occasion of flight happened, and suddenly on advantage to light and flay the enemies horses with their lances. Caids was not yet come. The battels ioy- 10 ned and made a cruell fight, which continued from morning till noone; and then was Naiam taken and brought before Cublai, who commanded that he should be sewed betwixt two Carpets, which should be tossed up and downe till the breath were out of his bodie, that so the ImperialI blood might not be exposed to the Sunne and the ayre. The remainder of his people tware O. bedience to Cublai, which were foure Nations, Ciorza, Carli, Barfool, and Stringui.

Nature was fecretly baptifed, and by profession a Christian, but 110 follower of the workes of Faith, and figned his principall Enfigne with the figne of the Croffe, having with him infinite ftore of Christians which were all flaine.

The Iewes and Saracens, that were in the Armie of Cublai, began to vpbraid the Christians with this difafter of the Croffe, who thereupon complained to Cubiai. Hee then sharply repro- 29 uing the Iewes and Saracens, turning to the Christians faith; Surely, your God and his Croffe, would not give any ayde to Naiam, but be not you therefore ashamed, because God beeing good and just, oughtonot at all to defend injustice and Injustice. Naiam was a Traytour to his Lord, and contrary to all equitie raised rebellion, and sought the helpe of your God in his mischieucus purpose. But he as a good and vpright God, would not favour his Defignes. He returned after this with great triumph to Cambalu, and stayed there till Easter. On that day he called the Christians before him, and kiffed their Gospels, and made his Barons doe the same. The like hee doth in the great Feailts of Saracens, lewes , and Ethnikes, that Sogomamber Can the God of the Idols, Mahamet, Moles, or wholoeuer is greatest in heaven might helpe him. Yet he made best shew of liking to the Christian Faith but pretended the ignorance of the Professors, and the mightie acts 30 of the Sorcerers, to his not professing it. Now for rewarding his Souldiers, he hath twelve Barons or wife Counfellours, which give him notice of each Captaynes merit, who raifeth them command of one hundred to a thousand, and from one thousand to ten thousand, and so forward, giving them Vessels of Plate and Tablets. The Captayne of one hundred bath a Tablet of filter, and the Captayne of one thouland of Gold, or filter gilded; the Captayne of ten thouland hath a Tablet of Gold with a Lions head on it: the weight of the Tablets differ also according to the worth and weight of the dignitie. On the laid Tablet is written a command in this manner, By the frenoth and power of the great God, and by the Grace which he hath given to our Empire, the name of Can be bleffed, and let them all dye and be destroyed which will not obey him. All they which have these Tablets have 40 printledges in writing, of all things which they are to doe or demand. And the Generals when they ride in publike, they have a cloth borne over their heads; and when they fit, fit on a Chaire of filuer. Their Tablet is of three hundred Saggi (fittie ounces of Gold) with the Images of the Sunne and Moone. They whose Tablet haue a Gerfalcon, may take with them for their guard the whole Armie of a great Commander.

Cublai is a comeley and faire man of a meane stature, of a red and white face, blacke and good-that Princely in a proper Palace, having about three hundred chosen Hand-mayds, and Mayd- 10

feruant, and many Eunuch feruants, and at least ten thouland persons in their Family. The King ly eyes, well fashioned note, and all the lineaments of his bodie consisting of a due proportion.

He hath foure wives which he accounted hawfull, and the first-borne of them succeedeth him

Eublais person described.

Pagut.

His Wives and in the Kingdome. And every one of these is called Empresse, and holdeth a peculiar Court, and hath also many Concubines.

There is a certaine Nation of faire people, Tartars, called Ungut, whether every fecond years he tendeth Ambassadors to puruey the fairest Lasses for him of greatest esteeme for beautie, which bring him foure or fine hundred more or leffe, as they fee cause. There are Praylers or Examiners appointed, which take view of all their beauties, examining Eyes, Note, Mouth, &c. apart; and set price on them at fixteene, feuentcene, eighteene, ninetcene, twentie or more Carrats. And they bring those of that rate which their Commission appoints. These hee causeth to bee reviewed by better Examiners, and of so many chuseth perhaps thirtie for his Chamber of the chiefe; which he puts to some of his Barons Wines, to see if they snore not in their sleepe, if in 60 fmell or behaviour they be not offensive. Those which are appropried are by fives divided, each fifth part wayting three dayes and nights in his Chamber by course, the other in the next Lodgings preparing whatfocuer these command them. The lesse prized are put to Cookerie, and other noble Officers. And fometimes the Can bestowes them on Gentlemen with great portions.

The men of that Countrey effecme it a grace and credit to have Daughters worthy his liking : and thinke themselves borne under an ill Planet, if they have not for his turne.

Cublas hash two and twentie Sonnes by his foure legitimate Wines, and the first-borne of his His children first Wife was called Cingis, who should have succeeded him in the Empire, if hee had not dyed before his Father. He lett a Sonne named Temur, a valiant man, wife, and exercifed in Armes, Temur who is to fucceed his Grand-father in the Empire, in stead of his deceased Father. But by his Hand-mayds and Mayd-fernants, he hath fine and twentie Sonnes, all which are daily exercifed in feats of Armes, and are great Lords. Seven of his Sonnes by his Wives are Kings of great Provinces, and maintayne their states with great reputation.

Three moneths of the yeere, to wit, December, Ianuarie, and Februarie, Cublai remayneth ordinarily in Cambala which is at the North-east border of Cataio, and there on the South part by the new Citie is seated a great Palace. First, there is a square Wall, each square being eight miles, with a deep Ditch enuironing, and a Gate in the middle of each : after which is the space of a mile in circuit where Souldiers stand. After this is another circuit of fixe mile square, with three Gates on the South square, and three on the North: that which is in the midtl being in both the greater, and kept thut, except when the Can paffeth that way; the other alway open to others. In each corner of this Wall and in the midst is a faire Palace, eight in all, very large, in which are kept the Cans munitions and furnitures of all forts, for Horles in one, in another Bowes and shooting Artillerie, in a third Cosses, Curasses and leather Armours, and so in the 20 reft. Within this circuit is another wall-circuit, very thicke, and ten paces high, all the battlements white; the wall square, each square a mile in length, with fixe gates as the former, and eight Palaces also very great, wherein are the Cans prouision. Betwixt these two last walls are many faire trees and medowes, in which are Deere, Muske beatts, with other game, and store of graffe, the paths being heightned two cubits to spare it, no durt, nor plashes of water being therein. Within this last wall is the Palace of the great Can, the greatest that hath beene feene, abutting with the wall on the North and South and open spaced where the Barons and Souldiers palle. It hath no feeling, but a very high roofe: the foundation of the pauement ten palms high, with a wall of marble round about 1t, two paces wide, as it were a walke. In the end of the wall without, is a faire Turret with Pillars. In the walls of the Halls and Chambers are carued Dragons, Souldiers, Birds, Beafts, of diuers kinds, histories of Warres, gilded. The 30 roofe is so made, that nothing is seene but Gold and Imagery. In every square of the Palace is a great Hall of marble, capable of great multitudes. The Chambers are disposed the best that may be deuised: the roofe is red, greene, azure, and of all coloures. Behind the Palace are great Roomes, and private store-houses for his treasures and Iewels, for his women , and other secret employments. Ouer against the faid Palace of the Can, is another for Cingis his sonne, whole Court, was in all things like his Fathers. Neere this Palace towards the North is a Mount made by hand, a mile in compasse, one hundred paces high; beset with trees that are alwaies greene. Vnto this mountaine, the king commandeth all the best trees, to be brought from remote parts, lading Elephants with them, for they are taken up with the roots, and are transplanted in this Mountaine. And because this Mountaine is alwaies greene it is called, The greene Mountaine. The greens And where the earth of that Mount was taken away, are two Lakes antivering each other, with Mountaine. a pretie Riuer filling them, stored with fish, and so grated that the fish cannot get forth.

The Citie of Cambala in the Prouince of Cathai, feated on a great River, was famous, and combala. regall, from antiquitie. And this name Cambalu lignifie:h, The Citie of the Lord, or Prince. This Citie the great Camremoued vnto the other fide of the Riner where the Palaces are: for This Gitte the great Cast remound winto the other fule of the Kiner where the Palaces are: for "The long flow he widerflood by the Altrologers, that it should rebell against the Empire". This new built "The long flow is the contract of the following the contract of the which contayneth in compasse foure and twentie miles, every side of the square contayning fixe mixed. miles. It hath walls of earth ten paces thicke at the bottome, and at the top but three, by little Taidu. and little afcending thinner: the batlements are white. Every fquare of the wall hath three principall Gates, which are twelve in all, having sumptuous Palaces built over each of them.

There are also excellent Palaces in the angles of the walls, where the Armes of the Carrifon Palaces, (which are one thousand at each Gate) are kept. The buildings are squared out, & the streets laid The equalitie very straight by line, throughout this Citie, so that from one Gate a free prospect openeth tho- of the streets; row the Citie, to the opposite Gate, having very goodly houses built on both sides, like Palaces with Gardens and Courts, divided to the Heads of Families. In the middle of the Citie, a certaine sumptuous house is built, wherein hangeth a very great Bell, after the third knolling whereof in the night no man may goe out of his house, vntill the beginning of the day following, except it be for speciall cause, as for a woman in travell, &c. And they are compelled to 60 carrie a light with them.

Without the Cirie of Cambalu are twelve great Suburbs, three or foure miles long, loyning Suburbs large vpon each of the twelue Gates, more inhabiting the Suburbs then the Citie : heere Marchants and Strangers keepe, each Nation having a feuerall Store-house or Burfe in which they lodge. No dead corps of any man is buryed within this Citie, but the bodies of Idelaters are burned without the Suburbs, where the dead bodies of other feets are buryed. And because an Burial without huge multitude of Sorcerers converse alwayes there, they have about twentie fine thousand Harlots in the Suburbs and in the Citie, and these haue a Captaine appointed ouer euery hundreth, and thousand; and one Generall; whose office is, that when Embaliadours come, or such as haue bufineffe with the Can whose charges he findeth, this Captaine giueth euery Embaffadour and every man of his family, change of women nightly at free cost : for this is the Queanes tri-Harlors of the bute. The Guards every night cast those in prison which they finde walking late : and if they Suburbs. be found guiltie they are beaten with Cudgels : for the Bachfi tell them that it is not good to flied mans blood. But many dye of those beatings.

Buriall place, Harloss, Horse-men Courtiers, Feasts, New-yeares gifts. LIB. I.

The number of The Guard.

The great Can hath in his Court twelve thouland Horse-men, which they call Castran, faith- 10 the horse-men full Souldiers of their Lord, who guard his person more for state then seare. And source Captaines haue the charge of thefe, whereof every one commandeth three thouland. When one Captaine with three thousand Souldiers within the Palace, hath guarded the King for three dayes and nights, another Captaine with his Souldiers againe succeedeth : and so throughout the whole yerare, this course of watching by course is observed.

Solemn feafts.

The order of

Threshold threshing. The Nobles men that carry their mouthes,

The birth day of Cublai.

New Moone teaft. The prefents of the men of Dignitie, fub-The like Cu-New-yeares

The rwelue

New-yeres day The white colour accounted eminous. New-yeares gifts.

See Sir T. Ree

When through occasion of any feastinall day hee keepeth a folemne Court, his Table being higher then the rest of the Tables, is set at the North part of the Hall, and his face is to the South, having the greatest Queene on his left hand, to wit, his principall wife, and his Sonnes, and nephews, and they of the blood royall on his right. Yet their table is in a lower place, fo that they scarce touch the Kings feet with their heads; the seat of the eldest being higher then the 20 rest. The Barons and Princes, sit in a lower place then that. Their wines also keepe the like orders first the Cans sonnes wives and his kinsmens, fits lower on the left hand, and after, those of the Lords and of every Captaine, and Noble-man, each in her degree and order. And the Emperour himselse, while he sitteth at his table, may cast his eyes vpon all that feast with him in that Hall. There are not Tables for all to fit, but the greatest part of the Souldiers and Barons eate on Carpers. At all the doores fland two giantly fellowes with Cudgels, to fee that none touch the Thresholl, which if hee doe they take his garments away ; which he must redeeme with so many blowes as shall be appointed, or else lose them. They which serue the King sitting at the table, all of them couer their mouthes with Silke, least their breathing should by any meanes nies while the touch the Kings meat or drinke. And when he hath minde to drinke, the Damofell which gives 30 King danketh. it, goeth back three paces and kneeles downe, and then the Barons and all the people kneele, and the Musicians found their Instruments. There is no cause why I should write any thing concerning the meats which are brought to the Table, how daintie and delicate they are, and with what magnificence and pompe they are ferued in. All the Totars obleme this custome, to celebrate the Birth day of their Lord most honourably. The Festivall birth day of Cublai, is kept the twentie eight of September, and this day hee accounteth more folemne, then any of the whole yeare, except the first of February, wherein they begin their yeare. The King therefore in his Birth day is cloathed with a most precious garment of Gold, and about two thousand Barons and Souldiers, are cloathed of the same colour of gold (though of Silke stuffe) and a girdle wrought with gold and filter, which is given them with a payre of shooes: fome weare Pearles 40 and Gemmes of great price, namely, the Quiecitarie, which are next to the Can : and these garflome is ftilly- ments are not worne but on their thir eene folemne Feafts according to the thirreene Moones fedby the Mo- of the yeare; all then cloathed like Kings. This custome is also observed with the Tartars, that on the birth day of great Cham, all the Kings, Princes, and Nobles, which are Subject to his Dominion, should fend presents vnto him, as to their Emperour. And they who defire to obtaine any place of Dignitie or office of him, offer their requests vnto twelue Barons appointed for this purpole, and what they decree, is all one, as if the Emperour himselfe had answered them. The prayers of All people also, of what Faith or seet source, whether Christians, or leves, Saracens, or Tartars, and other Pagans are bound, selemnly to call upon their Gods, for the life, safetie, and prosperitie of Great Can.

On the day of the Kalends of February , which is the beginning of the Tartars yeare, great Can and all the Tartars, wherefocuer they are, celebrate a very great and folemne Feath, and all aswell men as women, desire to bee cloathed in white Garmenes. For they beleeue, that the white garment is a token of good lucke: Therefore that fortune might fauour them all the yeare, they weare white in the beginning of the yeare. Moreouer the Rulers of Cities, and Gouernours of Prouinces, mindfull of their dutie, fend vnto their Emperour on this day prefents of Gold and Siluer, Pearles and Precious stones, many white Cloathes, and other white things, and many Horses of a white colour : the rest of the Tarters at the beginning of the yeare, fend white prefents one to another. It is the custome of those which bring presents, if they can, of each to prefent nine times nine; as if they fend Horfes, to prefent nine nines, that is e ghtie one, and fo of 60 Gold, of Cloaths, & other things, that fomtimes he hath by this reckoning one hundred thousand Horses. Also at this good lucke, all the Elephants which the Emperour hath (fine thousand in number) are brought vnto the Court, couered with Tapistrie, wherein the similitudes of divers Bestls and Fowles are portrayed, carrying upon their shoulders two Chests full of golden and Silver veffell. Many Camels also are brought, covered with state Silken clothes, which bring other things, necessarie for the Court. And this day in the morning, all the Kings, Captaines, Barons, Souldiers, Physicians, Attrologers, Falconers, and the Gouernours of Proninces. and Armies, and other Officers of the Emperour, affemble in the great Hall before the King, and they who happen to have no place there, for the multitude of men, fland in another place where he may fee them. All being placed in their order, and degree, one arifeth as it were fome Prelate, and crieth out with a loude voyce, Bow downe, and adore. And prefently all doe reuerence, bending downe their foreheads to the earth. Then he fayth, God preferue our Lord wah long life and ing and all answere, God grant. Then he layth, God encrease and aduance bis Empire, 10 and preserve his Subjects in peace, good will, and prosperitie: and all answere, God grant. And this they doe foure times. The adoration finished, the faid Prelate goeth to an Altar richly adorned. on which is a red Table, wherein is written the name of the Can, and taking a Cenfer, and putting odoriferous Spices therein, they pertume the Table and the Altar with great reuerence, in honour of great Can, and to returne to their places. After which, are offered the gifts whereof we have spoken; and then the Tables are prepared, and a most tolemne Dinner held, cating and The Feast. drinking with great iny with their wines, in manner before described. And lattly, a domesti- A rame Lion, call Lion is brought vinto the King, which I jing at his feet, like a gentle Whelpe, acknowledgeth his Lord.

In those three moneths, in which as we faid before, the Emperous remayneth in the Citie of The office of 20 Cambala, to wit, in December, Ismuarie, and Februarie, all the Hantersawhich the Emperour the Provincial hath in all Proninces, round about the Pronince of Cathai, apply themfelues to hunting, and offer Hunters, all the greater wilde-beafts, to wit, Stags, Beares, Roe-buckes, wilde Boares, Deere, and fuch like, voto their Gouernours : who (if they be diffant from the Emperours Court, kelle then thirtie dayes Iourney) fend fuch beaffs taken, by Waynes, and Ships voto the Emperour, hauing first bowelled them. But such as are fortie dayes iourney distant from his Court, fend one. ly the skinnes, which are necedarie for the making of Armour. Hee hath many Leoparts, and Tame Leo-Wolves for hunting, and many Lions alfo, greater then those which are in Babylon, in the haire, pards, and whereof certaine little beames appeare of divers colours, to wir, white, black; and red, and they are accommodated to catch Boares, Beares, Stags, Roe-buckes, wilde Ailes, and wikie Oxens

30 and it is maruellons to fee the Lions herceneffe and dexteritie in the act. Two Lions vie to-bee carried in one Wagon, when they goe to hunt, and with them a Dog, with which they are ramed; and they carrie them on this fashion, because of their furie and varuhinede; and they must carrie them coptrary to the wind; for elfe the beaits would fent them, and thee. Hee hath many, Eagles tame Eagles, which are fo fierce, that they take Hares, Roe-buckes, Decre, and Foxes, among which some of them feare not with great violence to telze upon Wolles, and vexe them to loge, that without labour and danger, they may be taken by men.

The great Can hath in his Court two which are brethren, one called Bayan, the other, Ming an, The Mafters called in the Tartar language, Civici, that is, Malters of the Game, where of either hath the charge of the Game. of ten thousand men; they which are under one or them, are clothed in red; the other in skie-

40 colour, alway when they hunt. There keepe divers forts of Dogs, to the number of five thous fand Mattiues and other. In hunting they goe with their people, one on the right, and the other on the left hand of the King : and they take up to great a length of the Playne, that from one end to the other is a dayes journey, to that no beatt can escape them ; and it is great pleasure when the Can goes in the mill, to fee the Dogs follow Harts, Beares, and other kinds. And thefe Brethren are bound by cone ant, from the beginning of October to the and of March, to bring to the Court one thousand heads of peatts and birds befides Quarles, and fifteer heibeit they can, in great proportion.

The moneth of March comming in great Can departed b from the Citie of Cambala, and pro- Hawking. ceedeth North-eastward towards the Ocean distant thence two dayes inurneyes, bringing with;

50 him about ten thouland Falconers, who leave Falcons, Hawkes, Gerfalcons, and other sands of 1000, Falcon Fowles of prey fit for hawking. These Falconers disperie themselves by an hundred or two ners. hundred in a Companie; and the birds that are taken, for the molt part, are brought vinto the King, who by reation of lus Gour, fitteth in a woodden house, which two Elephanes carrie, co- The Kings uered with the skins of Lions, and within hanged with cloth of Gold, having with him, for-hit, Horfe luter, recreation, twelve choice Hawkes, and twel to favoured Courtiers : many Noblemen and Souldiers ride by, who guard the Kings person. Who, when they see Phelants, or Cranes, or other birds flying in the aire, declare it to the Falconers which are neere unto the King: and they, fignifying the same vnto the King vncouer the Kings House, and let their Falcons and Hawkes flie, and the King fitting on his Bed, beholdeth the pastime of the birds. Other ten thousand

6c men'alfogoe with the King, who in that hawking, tunne bother and thirther, by two and two. and marPe whither the Falcons and Hawkes file, that are call from the nit, that (if need bee) they may helpe them. And thefe, in the Tartar: Language, are called Tofcaol, that is to fay, Tofcaol, Watch-men or Markes-men, being skilfull in a certaine kind of whittle, wherewith they call in the Hawkes that are flowers. Nor is it needfull, that the Falconer who let the Hawkes flie,

1:05 : 3

V*(-9-1

Till . Bir illia

ou to this

should follow her, seeing they, of whom I now speake, are busily imployed in taking up the Hawkes, and are carefull that by no meanes they bee hurt or loft. And every flying Hawke car-The markes of rieth a little table of filter on her foot, figned with the marke of her Matter or Falconer, that if thee bee loft, thee may bee reftored to her owner. But if the marke cannot be knowne, the Hawke is deliuered to a certaine Baron, who for this cause is called Bulangazi, to whom are brought all loft things (otherwise the Finder would be counted a Thiefe) and to him Losers refort to inquire of things loft. He hath a most eminent place, noted by his Ensigne, that in so great an affembly of people he may be knowne.

Whiles they are thus bufied in sporting and hawking, they come vnto a certaine great Plaine.

The number and order of the Pauilions.

The huge lines, and Sables.

called Cacarmodin, where the Tents of the King and all the Courtiers are prepared, about to ten thousand in number. The first and chiefe is the Cans Paulion, under which ten thousand Souldiers stand, besides Barons and Noble-men, with the doore to the South; sustained with three P.llars, wrought with divers curious and excellent carved workes, and covered with the skinnes of Lions (and strakes of divers colours) which keepe out rayne. But price of Arme- within, the walls of the Paulions are covered with most costly skinnes of Armelines and Sables. although in those Countries these skinnes are accounted most precious, that sometimes skinnes worth two thousand Sultanines of gold are scarce f. fficient for one paire of Vests. The Tartare call the Sable, the Queene of Furres. The Cordes, wherewith their Paulions are supported, are of filke. There are also other Paulions erected, wherein the Wives, Sonnes, and Hand-maides of the King remaine. Further alfo, the Falcons, Hawkes, Owles, Garfalcons, and other Birds, 20 which ferue for Hawking, have their Tents wherein they are contayined. For, there is fo great a multitude of Tents, that to them that come thither, a farre off it feemeth that a famous Citie is built there. The King remayneth all March in that Plaine, and taketh innumerable Beafts and infinite multitudes of Fowle. For no man may elfe hunt in all the Provinces of that Kingdome, at the least within fine dayes iourney one way, ten another , and fifteene a third way of the Cans Court : nor keepe an hunting Dogge, or an Hawke : and specially, from the beginning of March vntill the mone; h of October, no man is permitted to vie any denice or engine whatfoeuer, to take Stagges, Deere, Roe-bucks, Hares, left he should hinder their breede ; and hereypon it is that there are such ftore.

Hunting for-hidden.

Barke or Pain Cambala. The Money of the Great Can is not made of gold or filter, or other metall . "but they take the middle barke from the Mulberrie Tree, and this they make firme, and cut it into divers and round pieces, great and little, and imprint the Kings marke thereon. Of this matter therefore, the Emperour causeth an huge masse of money to bee made in the Citie of Cambala, which sufficeth for the whole Empire : and no man vnder paine of death may law fully coine any other, or foend any other money, or refuse it in all his Kingdomes and Countries. Nor any comming from another Kingdome, dare found any other money in the Empire of Great Can, Whereby it commeth to passe, that Merchants often comming from farre remote Countries and Regions vnto the Citie of Cambala, bring with them gold, filuer, pearle, and precious stones, and receine the Kings money for them. And because this money is not received in their Countries, 40 they change it agains in the Empire of Great Can for merchandife, which they carried away with them. He also payeth stipends to his Officers and Armies of the mentioned money : and lastly, whatsoever thing he needeth in his Court he buyeth with this money. Wherefore, there is not a King to be found in the World, who exceedeth him in Treasure, not expended on the

It is incredible what multitudes of People, Merchants, and merchandifes of all forts are feene to

The Great Can hath twelue Barons, as is faid before, which are his Counfell of Warre, and dispose of martiall affaires, and the exalting or disgracing of Captaines and Souldiers. Their office is called Thai, that is, The bigh Court, because they have none about them but the Can. Other twelue Barons are appointed Counsellors for the foure and thirtie Provinces, which have a faire Palace in Cambalu, in which is for every Province a Judge & many Notaries. These have power 40 to choose Governours of the faid Provinces, and present their names to the Can which confirmes them. There also have the charge of the Treature to exact and diffeense the same. Their office is called Singh, that is, The fecond Cours, Subject to none but the Can, yet reputed leffe noble then the former, that being a martiall State.

0. VI. 60

VI.

The Cans provisions for Embassadors and for Posts; against Dearth; for High-wayes; for the Poore in Cambalu, for Aftrologers ; Tartars Wine, Fuell, Religion, Opinions , Behausour , Court-neatneffe : Polos proceeding from Cambalu Westward. of Pulisangan, Gouza, Tainfu, Pianfu, Thaigin, Cacianfu, Quenzanfu, Sindinfu, Thebeth, Caindu, Caraian, Carachan, Cardandan and Vociam.

Ithout the Citie of Cambain, many publike wayes conduct to the neighbouring Pro-uinces, and in eucry one of them alway at the end of fine and twentie or thirtie miles, are Lodgings or Innes built, called Lanb, that is, Post borfes, with great and Posts and fuire Palaces, Chambers furnished with Beds and other Prouisions, meete to enter- Innes. taine great Men , yea to lodge a King; the provisions laid in from the next adjoyning places : The Romans taine great Men, yea to lodge a King; the promining iail in from the next autoyining places.

al o had publisher about four hundred Horles are in readinesse for Messengers and Embassadors, which there like Stables as leaue their ridden Horses and take fresh. And in mountaynous places, where are no Villages, he heresbys fends People to inhabite, ten thousand at a place where these Lamb are built, which till the constanting ground for their prouisions; and this continueth vnto the furthed limits of the Empire : fo that Zof. 1.2, and 20 in the publique wayes, throughout the whole Empire, about ten thousand of the Kings Innes Palladius who are to bee found. And the number of the Horles, appointed for the feruice of the Meffengers in would ride those Innes, are more then two hundreth thousand, a thing almost incredible to tell : to that in a from the Conlittle while with change of Men and Horie, intelligence might flie to the Court. And if any fines of the wonder how fo many men and beafts should be provided for, hee must consider that the Moores Empire to Conand Genteles have many women, and ftore of children, fome having thirtie fonnes which follow flantmople, Son them armed; and for victuall they fow three feeds, Rice, Panike and Mill, which yeeld an hun- 47.6.19. dred fold : they make not bread, but boile thefe with Milke or Fleih. Wheat will not fo encreate with them : nor fuffer they any ground, which will beare, to lye untilled. And their Cattell alway increase, that each of them carries with him fix, eight, or more Horses into the field for his owne person. These Horses also take turnes, that of the foure hundred aforesaid two hundred are in the stables readie, the other two hundred at grasse by monethly courses. Their Civies adjoyning to Rivers or Lakes, are appointed also to have ferry Boats in readinesse for the Posts. And Cities adioyning to Defarts, are felled at Hories and prouisions thorow those Defarts, but have contribution from the Can. In cases of great import, the Poste rides with a Gerfalcon Table, and is truffed fo that he will ride two hundred miles in a day, or two hundred and fiftie, fometimes bellies and heads girded runne as fast as the horse can and those which are able to endure this exceffine riding are of great reputation. There are also betweene the said Innes other habitations, three or foure miles distant one from another, where there are a few houses wherein Foot-posts dwell, having all girdels full of shrill founding bells. Thefe are alwayes readic, and as often as the Kings Letters are fent vnto them, Foote-poftes, convey them speedily to the next habitation : who hearing the found of the Foot-post comming Die Fost baden, afarre off, expect him, and receiving his Letters, presently carrie them to the next watch: and so the Letters passing through divers hands, are conveyed without any delay, vinto that place whither they ought to come. And it commeth often to pafe, that the King understandeth newes, or receiueth new fruits from a place, ten dayes journey diffant, in two dayes : as fruits growing at Cambalu in the morning, the next day at night at Xandu. But all the mentioned Poltes are Their Printfree from all exaction of Tribute, and receive a good recompence of their labours from the Kings ledges.

also they ride the night, Foot-posts running by with lights, if the Moone shine not. They winde a

Horne that the fresh Horses may be brought forth for them to mount presently, and having their

50 Rent gatherers besides. Some also are appointed to examine these Posts monethly, and to punish their faults. He fends yeerly vnto divers Provinces, subject to his Empire, to inquire whether any harme Provisions 2be done to the Corne, by Tempests, Locusts, Wormes, or any other pligue. And when he hath gainst dearth. notice given him, that any Province or Citie, hath fuffained any damage, he remitteth Tributes to that people for that yeere, and fendeth Grine for victuill and for Seede, ont of his owne Garners. For, in the time of great plentie, the King buyeth abundant flore of Corne, and keepeth Fuherly Royit with great care of Officers, three or foure yeeres in Garners, that when there shall be scarcitie alice. of Corne in one Countrey, that detect may bee supplied out of the Kings Store-houses. Hee felleth his graine for the fourth part of other mens price, and alway proudeth that his flore-houles 60 bestored. Likewise, when any murren lighteth among Cattell, heesends them other Cattell which he hath for Tenths in other Prouinces. And if a thunder-holt hath stricken any beast of any Herd or Flock, he will have no Tribute thereof for three yeeres, be the Herd never to great : nor custome of a Thunder-stricken ship, thinking God is afigrie with them which are so stricken. Likewife, that Trauellers may find the way in all places capable to beare Trees, He hath caused

Hence perhaps the walk trom Laborto Agra was occalioned. Their Ricc-

Trees to be planted, a little distance one from another, neare vnto the principall wayes; and in Sandre and defart places, he hath caufed to fet Stones and Pillars for that purpose : and Officers are appointed to looke to these things. Hee plants Trees the rather because his Astrologers tell him, that planting Trees lengthens the life.

They make excellent drinke, in the Province of Cathai, of Rice and divers Spices, which in the tafte thereof excelleth the fweetnetic even of Wine. And they who drinke more greedily therof then reason in geth to be fit or the nature of the drinker requireth, sooner become drunke then if they had drunke Wine.

Throughout the whole Prouince of Caibai, certaine blacke stones are digged out of the Mountaines, which put into the fire burne like wood, and being kindled preferue fire a long time, as if 100 a thing ftrange they be kindled in the Euening, they keepe quicke fire all the night. And many vie those ftones, to Pols an Ita- because that though they have store of wood, yet is there such frequent vie of Stoues and Bathes (thrife every weeke) that the wood would not ferue.

It is not amiffe also, having spoken of his Provisions abroad, to mention his care for the poore of Cambain. When he heares of any honourable Familie decayed by difaduentures, or of any which cannot worke, and have no meanes : he causeth to give to such Families the whole yeares expenses; each of such Families going to the Officers for that purpose, and shewing their Bill of allowance, receive provisions accordingly. There is a Palace deputed for those Officers. They are provided alto of garments for Winter, and for Summer; the Can having the Tenths of all Wool, and Silke, and Hempe, which he causeth to bee made into Clothes in a house thereto appointed : 20 for all Trades are bound one day in the weeke to worke for him. He prouides also apparell for his Armies, and in enery Citie causeth Cloth to be made of his tithe wooll. You must vaderstand derfull divine that the Tartars ancient customes knew no almes, but rather vpbraided such as were in necessitie. bounty indeed as hated of God. But the Idolaters, especially these Bachsi, have propounded it as a good worke acceptable to God, and have taught him to be thus bountifull, fo that in his Court bread is never denyed to any which aske : and there is no day in which is not given away twentie thousand Crownes in Rice, Millet and Panike, whereby he is esteemed as a God.

There are also in Cambalu of Christians, Saracens, and Catayans, about five thousand Astrologers and Diumers, which the Great Can prouideth yeerly of foode and rayment, as those poore aboutefaid. These have an Astrolabe in which are marked the signes of the Planets, the houres and 30 points of all the yeere. Herein all these Astrologers, each Religion apart, view the course of the veere, according to enery Moone, obseruing the disposition of the weather, referring alway to The Denill an God to doe more or leffe after his owne pleasure. They write also vpon certaine squares (they call them Tacuini ) the things which are to come that yeere, which they fell to those that will buy them, and fuch as speake most truth are most honored. If any intend any great worke, or to goe a farre journey, and will know the event before-hand, he makes recourse to these Astrologers, to fee it with their eyes in the Heauens, which they doe, comparing the present Constellation with that of his Birth (which they demand of him) to foretelling him the good or euill.

The Tartars reckon the computation of their yeeres by twelves, the first figuified by a Lion. the second by an Oxe, the third by a Dragon, the fourth by a Dogge, and so thorow the whole 40 twelve: fo that if a man be demanded when he was borne; he will answer, such a point of such an houre, of fuch a day in the yeere Lion (this their fathers exactly fet downe in a booke) and when the twelae is complete, they goe ouer the same againe.

Of their Religion we have faid that they are Idolaters, and for their Gods have a Table fet aloft in the wall of their Chamber , on which is written, a Name reprefenting the High God of Heanen; and there every day, with a Cenfer of incenfe, they adore it in this manner. They lift up their hands aloft, and firike their teeth thrice, praying it to give them a good understanding and health; and defire thereof nothing elfe. Befides, on the ground they have another flatue called Natigai, The God of earthly things, with his Wife and Children (as before is faid) whom likewite they worthip with incense, striking or gnashing the teeth, and lifting up the hands; 50 and defire thereof temperature of the aire, fruits of the earth, children, and the like. They hold the Soule to be immortal, and that when a man dies, it enters into another bodie better or worle, according to the merits in the former life, as of a poore man to become a Gentleman, and after of a Prince or Lord, and so higher till it be assumpted in God: or if it hath ill deserved to be a poorer man, after a Dogge, alway descending to the lowest ranke of basenesse. They have a comely speech, salute cheerfully and honestly, hauea gracefull carriage, and feed cleanly. They beare great reuerence to their Parents, and if any be vindutifull, or helplesse to their necessitie, there is a publike Office designed to this particular, to punish vngratefull or disobedient children. Pritoners are released at three yeeres end, and marked in the cheeke, to be knowne Malefactors.

The Barons and People which goe to the Grand Can, observe these Rites. First, within halfe 60 a mile of the place where the Can is , all is husht and quiet without noyse or cryes , or any loud speech; and every Baron carries continually a little faire vessell to spit in, after which hee covers it, none daring to fair on the Hall. They have Furre buskins of white leather, which they put on when they enter the Hall , putting off the former and giving them to the fervants , left they frould for le the faire artificiall Carpets.

CHAP.4. S. 6. Faire bridge. Dor with his Damfels and penance. Mangalus palace. 89

En miles off Cambalu, is a certayne great River, named Palisangan, emptying it selfe into the Ocean, by which many thips with much merchandile alcend. And in that place, there is a very faire Bridge, all of Serpentine itone curiously wrought, contaying three hundred pa- An admirable ces in length, and eight in breadth, that ten men may ride abreft. On each tide it is fairely moun- Bridge. ted with a wall of marble, and Pillars fet on a rew : and in the height of the afcent is a great and Ramufie hath high Pillar, at the foote whereof is a great Lion, and on the top another. And is quite thorow given a pithe Bridge one pace and halfe ditant are Pillars with Lions on the top, and a faire well-wrought more. marble worke betwixt, to keepe men from falling.

Hauing passed ouer the River and Bridge, proceeding thirtie miles westward (in which Pala-To ces are continually seene with Vineyards and fertile Fields) you come to the Citie Gonza, both The Citie faire and great, having many Monasteries of Idols. Cloth of gold and filkes are made there, and Gonza. the pureft and finest Cambricks or Launes; and many common Innes for Strangers and Trauailers are found in that Citie: The Citizens are Artificers and Merchants. A mile without this Citie the way parteth, one leading West, the other South-east ; that to the West leadeth through the Parting of the Prounce of Cathar, but the other towards the Countrey of Mangi. From the Citie of Gouza way. to the Kingdome of Tainfu, you ride ten dayer thorow Cataso, alway finding many faire Cities and Castles, well traded with Vineyards and tilled Fields, from whence Wine is carried to Cataio, where it wants. There are many Mulberrie trees for Silke-workes : the People civill and Cities very frequent.

20 Tainfu is the name of the Kingdome, and of the chiefe Citie which is great and faire, hath Tainfu. much trading with flore of munition, fit for the Cans Armies. The Wine about this Citie fer- Armes, ueth the whole Prounce. Seven dayes further westward is a goodly Countrey, beautified with many Castles and Cities, in which also great trade of merchandile is vied. After which . you come to a Citie very great, named Pianfis, in which there is great abundance of Silke and Trading.

Westwar, from Pianfu standeth a very goodly Castle, named Thaigin, anciently built by a King called Dor. In it is a spacious Palace, wherein is a faire Hall, in which are painted all the famous Kings which have reigned there; a faire spectacle. Of this King Dor they say that he Dor and his was potent, and was attended onely by young Damfels, whereof his Court had great store, Damfel court, 30 They also when hee lifted to take his pleasure, carried him in a small light Chariot thorow the The King of Caitle, which is to fortified by Are and Nature, that the Gouernour thereof feared none, no not Mezel doe Vmcan his Lord, against whom hee rebelled. But feuen men professing fidelitie and service to likewise in Dor, tooke him at advantage in hunting, and brought him captive to Presbyter John or Vincan, part. who put him in vile clothes, an : appointed him to keepe his Cattell, and fet on him a ftrong guard till two yeeres were ended : after which , hee commanded him to bee brought before him.

About twentie miles beyond the Castle Thaigin, is the River Caramoran, which by reason of Caramoran, the exceeding bredth and depth thereof, hath no Bridge : and floweth to the Ocean. On the 40 shoare thereof are many Cities and Castles built; wherein much trading is exercised. This Countrey abounder with Ginger, Silke, and Fowle, especially Feafants, that three of them are bought for a groat of Venice. There grow Reeds infinite flore, so great that some are a foot, some are a foot and halfe in compasse, profitable to many vies. Passing this River, after two dayes journey is the famous Citie called Carranfu, where many clothes of Gold and Silke are made: heere carianfu, growes Ginger, Galingale, Spike, and many Spices. The people are Idolaters. Proceeding feuen dayes journey Weitward, many Cities, and Townes, goodly Fields and Gardens are found; and every where Mulberies for Silke-wormes. And they are Idolaters but there are also Chriflians, Turkes, Neflorians, and fome Saracens. There is much both of wilde Beatls and Fowle. If you proceed feuen dayes journey further, you shall come to a certaine great Citie, named 50 Quenzanfu, which is the chiefe Citie of the Kingdome, in which have raigned many famous Quenzanfu. Kings: and at this day, the fonne of great Can, called Mangalu, hath the command thereof. That Countrey yeeldeth great plentie of Silke, Cloth of Gold, and all other things necessarie for furnishing of an Armie, and for preservation of the life of Man. The Inhabitants worship Idols, and there are some Christians, and Turkes, and Saracens. Fine miles without the Circe Handeth the Palace of Mangalu, teated in a Playne, where are many Springs , Riverets, and places of King Mongalue Game. There is a high wall encompassing fine miles, where are all wilde Beaus and Fowles, in the midft is an excellent Palace, having many Halls and Chambers great and faire, all painted with Gold and Az ire, and infinite Marbles adorning. The King with his Courtiers applieth himselfe to hunting of wilde Beasts, and taking of Fowle, and followeth histathers steps in 60 Inflice and Equitie, much beloued of his people.

Going three dayes Iourney Westward from the faid Palace, through a certaine goodly Plaine, where many Cities and Cattles are (and abundance of Silke, Merchandite, and Arts) is a mountainous Countrie, where, in the Mountaines and Valleyes are frequent Habitations, and flore of Lodgings, of the Prounce of Cunchin. The Inhabitants are Idolaters, and Husbandmen. Alfo. Combin.

and artyred him in Princely apparell, and giving him his pardon after sharpe admonition. Sent him so well accended to the repostession of his Kingdome.

Coales taken out of mines, lun, but comcalled Sea-cole, because they are brought by Sca from Newsaftle.&c-Eut-Ans suisies and the China Ica fuires bauc sold wonders of thefe black flones, a wonto this Land, and specially to this Citie. Cans charitie to the Poore. The Tenths paid to the Weekly labour Angell of light, Aftrologers, putation of

Their Religi-

Shattendo i Opinions of the foule

Their Cu-

Court reue.

Achbaluch

in that Countrie they hunt Lions, Beares, Stags, Roe-buckes, Deere, Wolues. That Plaine is two dayes journey, and the Countrey is twentie dayes Westward all inhabited, having Mountaines, and Valleyes, and many Woods.

After that, twentie da, es towards the West, is a Prouince, named Achbaluch Mangi, that is, The white Crie of the borders of Mangi, which is wel peopled. This Province for two dates journy hath a Plaine, with infinite habitations. After which follow Mountaines, Valleyes, and Woods. all inhabited twencie dayes sourney Weltward. It hath store of wild beafts, and of those creatures which yeeld Muske. In this Prouince Ginger groweth in great plentie, as also Corne and Rice,

After twentie dayes sourney thorow those Hills, is a Playne, and a Province in the Confines of Mangi, named Sindinfu. The chiefe Citie hath the same name, great and exceeding rich, be- to ing twentie miles circuit about. It hath had many rich and mightie Kings, but the old King dying, left three sonnes Successors of the Kingdome, which divided the Citie into three parts. compating enery part with their proper walls, all which notwithflanding were contayned within the former wall. But great Can fibitected that Citie and Kingdome to his Dominion. Thorow this Citie runne many Rivers, in many places, and round about, some halfe a mile over, some two hundred paces, very deepe, and on them are many Bridges of stone, very faire, eight paces broad, fet on both lides with marble Pillars, which beare vp a timber Frame that couers the Bridge, each Bridge having streets and shops all along st. When these Rivers are past the Citie, they becom one great riner, called Quian, which runneth one hundred dayes journey hence to the Ocean. Neere thefe Rusers are many Cities and Caftles, and ships for Merchandile. Proceeding fine dayes journey archer, through a certaine Playne, many Cities, Castles, and Villages are 10 found, in which fine Lawnes are in great aboundance. Many wilde Beafts alto are there.

After the Playne whereof wee now speake, is the Prouince of Tebeth, which great Can van-unce of Teberb quished, and wasted: for in it are many Cities destroyed, and Castles overthrowne by the space of twentie dayes journey. And because it is become a Wildernesse, wanting Inhabitants, wilde Beafts , and Lions are there encreased abundantly: and it is needfull that Traueliers carrie victuals with them. Very great Canes grow in this Countrey ten paces in length, The subtill de- and three palmes in this knesse, and as much from knot to knot. When Travellers therefore nic of Trauel- will reft by night fecure from Beafts, they take great bundles of the greener Reeds, and putting fire vnder, kindle them. Which make fich a cracking, and fo great a noyfe, that it may bee 30 heard two miles off. Which terrible found the wilde Beafts hearing, flee away. Moreouer, Horses, and other Beasts which Merchants vie for their journey, hearing this noyse and cracking, are very much afraid, and many betaking themselves to slight, have escaped from their Mafters: but the wifer Trauellers binding their feet together with Fetters, detayne them Twentie dayes lourney ended, having passed over the Province of Tebeth, wee meet with

Cities, and very many Villages, in which, through the blindnesse of Idolatrie, a wicked custome 18-bookemen- is vied : for, no man there marrieth a wife that is a Virgin. Whereupon , when Trauellers and Eight King-Tebetb.

Strangers comming from other parts, passe through this Countrey, and pitch their Paulions, the like of the Cy- Women of that place having marriageable daughters, bring them vnto Strangers, desiring 49 them to take them, and enjoy their companie as long as they remayne there. Thus the pretier the 4- booke, are choien, and the rest returne home forrowfull. And when they will depart, they are not suffered to carrie any away with them, but faithfully restore them to their Parents. The Mayden also requireth some toy or small Present of him who hath defloured her, which shee may shew as an argument and proofe of her deflouring. And shee that hath beene loued, and abused of most men, and shall have many such favours and toyes to shew to her Wooers, is accounted more noble, and may more easily and honourably be married. And when shee will goe honourably attired, shee hangeth all her Louers fauours about her necke, and the more acceptable shee was to many, of so much the more honour is thee adjudged worthie. But when they are once married to husbands, they are now no more fuffered to be coupled with Prange men. And the 10 men of this Countrie are very wary, that they offend not one another in this matter. They are Idolaters, and cruell men, thinking it no finne if they rob, and exercise theft. They live by hunting, and the fruits of the earth. Many beafts also are found with them, yeelding Muske called by them, Gudderi. They have a proper Language, and have no money, not the Paper Coralimoney, money of Can, but ipend Corals for money, and are clothed with the skins of beafts, or courle Hempe. This Countrey appertaymeth to the Prouince of Tebeth: for Tebeth is a very large Prouince, and hath beene fometime divided into eight Kingdomes, having many Cities, and Townes, with many Mountaynes, Lakes, and Rivers, where Gold is found. The women weare Corall about their neckes, and hang it about the neckes of their Idols, as a precious thing. In this Countrey there are very great Dogs, as big as Ailes, which take wilde Beafts, specially wilde 60 Oxen, called Beyamini. They are exceeding Necromancers, causing tempefts, lightnings, thunderbolts, and many other wonders. There are many forts of Spices never brought into thele parts. This Thebeth is (as all the former Provinces) fubicct to the Can.

On the Well of the Prouince of Tebeth, bordereth the Prouince of Cainda, formetimes governed by her owne Kings, now by the Gouernours of the Can. By the West you must not under z fland that the Countries are in the West, but that wee departing from those parts which are betwixt the East and North-east come hither Westward: and herefore reckon them Westward. The people are Idolaters, have many Cities, the chiefe called by the name of the Province. Cainds built in the entry of the Prouince. There is a great falt Lake, in which is store of Pearles, white, not round, to abundant, that the price of them would become little worth, if they were fuffered to be carried away at mens pleatures. Whereupon, it is prouided upon payne of death, that none should presume to his for Pearle in this Lake, without the licence of great Can. There is alio a Mountaine in which is found a Minerall of Turkefle Rones, confined to the like To licence. Many Gadderi are also in this Prouince, which yeeld Muske. That Lake also which Gadders. ingendreth Pearle in such plentie, aboundeth with Fishes: and the whole Countrey is full of wilde Beaits, that is to lay, of Lions , Beares , Stags . Deere, Ounces, Roe-buckes ; and divers kinds of Birds. Cloues are found there in great plentie, which are gathered from small Trees, Cloues. which have boughs and leaves like the Bay-tree, but fomewhat longer and straighter, white flowers and little, as are the Cloues, and when they are ripe they are blacke and duskie. Gin- Ginger, Cinager, Cinamon, and divers other Spices grow there in great plentie, which are not brought vnto mon, our Countries. Wine groweth not in it , but in flead thereof they make excellent Drinke of Corne, Rice, and diares other Spices. The Inhabitants of this Countrey worthip Idols, by which The Inhabithey are so besotted, that they thinke they deserue their fauour, if they profittute their wines, tants are ldo-20 fifters, and daughters to be abused by Trauellers. For, when any Stranger commeth amongst laters and them, every houtholder feeketh to give him entertainment, and goe their way, leaving the femals and house to the Strangers will, and returne not vntill they depart. And the women presently hang up some signe till he be gone, that when the Master of the familie returneth, he may know he is there still, and goe away againe, staying without till he be departed: which hee doth for the glorie of his Iuols, hoping they will be more gracious vito him. Certaine twigs of Gold are their money, ving weights, and according to the weight of the twig is the value of the money. And this money is the greater money without stampe. They have also a lester, which they make after this manner. They boyle Salt in a Caldron an houres space, of which being congea- Money of Salt led, they make little lumps like two-pennie loaues, which being made folid, is figned with the 30 Princes Stampe, and make great profit thereof in lauage places, remote from Cities which haue ftore of Muske and Gold, and want Chapmen. These bartar their Gold for Salt to vie in their meats. Leaving this Province, they proceed fifteene dayes journey further, and in the meane space meet with Castles, and many Villages, whose Inhabitants have the same customes, that the Prouince of Cainda hath, and at length they come vnto a River, called Briss, where the Pro- The River nince of Cainda is bounded. In this River Gold is found in great plentie, which they call, Di Briss yeelding Paiola (Wathed in veilels to feuer it from the fands and earth.) On the bankes thereof Cinamon Gold.

groweth in great abundance. This River runneth to the Ocean. Hauing palled ouer the River Briss, they come westward to the Province Caraian, which The seven contayneth feuen Kingdomes. It is subject to the Great Con, whole sonne, named Sentemer, Kingdomes of ontayneth recent anisassing of that Kingdome, who is rich, wife and inft. The Inhabitants thereof are Idola-King Sentember. ters. You ride fine dayes and finde it all well peopled. They line of their Beatts and Fruits. The Countrey bre deth excellent Horses: and it hath a peculiar and difficult language. At the end of those fine dayes is the chiefe Citie, called Iaci, and it is great and famous, hath in it many Mer. The Citie Iaci chants and Artificers, and many forts of People, Idolarers, Christians, Nestorians, and Saracens; but the most Idolaters. It hath Corne, and much Rice, although they eate no bread of Corne, because it is not whol ome, but they make bread of Rice. They make drinke also of it, and divers Spices very pleafant. They vie white Porcelanes in Read of money, and for ornaments which Money of are found at the Sea. Much Salt is made in this Citie of the water of falt Wells, whereof the Stones. King hath great profit. The men of this Countrey care not if any man come to their Wiues, fo they give their confent. There is also a Lake there very full of Fish, contayning an hundreth 50 miles in compaffe. Those men eater aw fiesh of Hennes, Beefe, Mutton and Buffals, but prepa- Raw fiesh. red after this manner. They first breake it into small pieces, and after season it with excellent Spices: but the poorer fort fired it and lay it in Garlicke fawce, and eate it as wee doe boy-

Departing from the Citie of Iaci, having travailed ten dayes journey westward, yee come to the Prounce named, as is the chiefe Citie, Carazan, which Cogasin, fonne of Cublas, governeth. Carazan, The Rivers there yeeld very much gold de paiola, and also that which is more folid, and the Rivers yeel-Mountaines gold of the veine and they give one fone of gold for fix of filter. They frend Porce. dung gold at lanes for money, brought thither from India. The Inhabitants are Idolaters: very great Serpents, with din yelare bred in this Countrey, whereof fome contayne ten paces in length, and in thickneffe ten iels from the 60 spannes. They have two little feet before nigh the head, with three talons or clawes like Lions, fand & earth. and the eyes bigger then a Groat loafe, very finning. They have their mouthes and jawes to Great Drawide, that they are able to swallow a man; great and sharpe teeth; nor is there any man, or o- gons. ther huing Creature, which may behold those Serpents without terror : there are found lesse, of eight, fixe, or fine paces long, which are taken after this manner. In the day time they vie to lie hid, by reason of the heat, in holes, out of the which they goe by night to seeke their prey, and denoure what foeuer they get, Lions, Wolves, or others : and then goe to feeke water, leauing such a tract with their weight in the fands, as if some piece of timber had beene drawne there. Whereupon the Hunters fasten under the sands sharpe Iron prickes in their vsuall tracts. whereon they are wounded and flayne. The Crowes prefen ly ring his knell, and by their craing cries innite the Hunters, which come and flay him, taking forth his gall, profitable for diuers Medecines (amongst other things, for the biting of mad Dogs , a penie weight ginen in Wine; and far women in trauell for carbuncles and puthes) and they fell the fl. th deare as being wine; and tar women in clause. There are bred great Horles in this Pronince, which by Merchants are carried into India. They vie to take one bone out of the tayle, left le should bend his tayle hither and thither, and effeeme it more comely that it hang downe right. They vie long Stirrups as the Frenchmen; which the Tartars and other Nations on their shooting vie short, because when they shoot, they rile up. They vie Targets and Armour in the Warres, made of the hides of Buffals: they have Lances and Croffe-bowes, and poyton all their Arrowes. Some of them Poy'on and which are ill minded, are faid to carrie ' poyton about them continually, that if they be taken, they may suddenly swallow it and death together, to preuent to rure. For which cause the great Lords have Dogs dung ready, which they force them to iwallow, and that forceth them to vomit the poylon. Before the great Can subjected them, they yield, that when any Stranger which feemed of good prefence and parts lodged with them, they flue him by night, supposing that those good parts of that man might abide afterwards in that house; and this was the death

Caiuda.

Cardandon.

Scamards in fome places. porteth the with the Tiba-

Going from the Prouince Carazan, after fine dayes journey Westward, is the Prouince Caradandan, which also is subject to great Can. The chiefe Citic thereof is called Vocion. The Inhabitants thereof vie Porcelanes and weighed pieces of Gold in itead of money: for in that Countrey, and many other lying round about, Silver mines are not found, and they give one ounce of Gold for five ounces of Silver, and great gayne is made by the change. The men and women of that Countrey couer their teeth with thinne plates or Gold , which they fo fit vnto Golden coue- them, that the teeth themselues seeme (as it were) to be let in the plates. The men about their armes and legs make lifts, pricking the places with Needles, and putting thereon a blacke indelible tincture. And thele lifts or markes are eftermed with them a great galantrie. They give their minds to nothing but riding, hunting, hawking, and exercises of Armes, leaving the houfhold cares to the women, who are helped therein by flaues which they buy or take in Warre. When a woman is brought to bed flee or fakes the bed, washeth the shild and dreffeth it, and * Strate in his then the husband * lieth downe and keepes the child with him fortie dayes, not fuffering it to third booke depart : is visited meane while of friends an neighbours, to cheare and comfort him. The woman lookes to the house, carrie the husband his broths to his bed, and gues sucke to the child by done with the him. Their Wine is made of Rice and Spice, their meat Rice, and raw fielh dreffed, as is before mentioned. In this Province there are no other Idols, taux that every familie adoreth the oldeft man in the honfe, of whom they fay come themselves and all they have. They dwell for the most part, in wilde and mountainous places. But Forrainers come not to those Mountaines, because the ayre would kill them, being in Summer very corrupt. They are no letters, but make their Contracts and Obligations by tallies of wood, the helfe whereof the one keepeth, and the oreni. Le us if ther, the other; which being afterward payd, the tallie is rendred. There are no Phylicians in the Brasilians. this Province, nor in Candu, Vociam and Carasan : but when any is ficke, they call the Magi-Tallies of con- cians, or Idoll Priefts together, and he ficke partie declareth his direafe vinto them : then the The decentual Magicians dance, and found certaine instruments, and bellow forth fongs in honour of their Gods, while at length the Deuill entreth into one of them skipping and playing in the dance. the Magicians. Then leaving the dance, they confult with him that is poll for, for what cause that disease hapned vnto him, and what is to be done for his reconerie. The Deuill answereth by him, because so he hath done this or that, or because he hath offended this or that God : therefore, he fell into this disease. Then the Magicians intreat that God to pardon him that offence, promising, that if the ficke partie recouer, he shall offer a Sacrifice of his owne bloud. But if the Deuill thinke the weake partie to be ficke of fuch a difease that he caunot be freed from the same, he wheth to answere: This man hath so grieuously offended that God, that he cannot by any sacrifices bee appealed. But if he thinke he shall recouer, he commandeth to offer to many Rammes having blacke heads, and to prepare so many Magicians with their wives, by them to offer Sacrifices, and that God may then bee appealed towards him. Which being hear I, his kinfmen quickly cause those things to be done which the Denill commanded: they kill Rammes, and sprinckle their bloud in the ayre, and the Magicians affembled with their Witches, light great Candles, 60 and perfume the whole house with incense, making fume of Lignum Aloes, and sprinckle the broth of the field in the ayre, together with the potion made of spices: all which being duely performed, they skip about againe in a dance in honour of that Idoll, which is supposed to have beene fauourable to the ficke, finging, and making an horrible noyte with their voyces. These things being done, they aske the possessed agains, whether by these things the Idol be appeared. If he answer, No, they presently prepare themselues to fulfill another command of his. But if he answer, that he is satisfied, they fit downe at the Table, and eate the fielh offered to the Idoli with great ioy, and drinke the confections. And dinner being ended, and the Magicians payed, every one returneth to his owne home. And when the ficke hath thus escaped the disease, through the providence of God, and hath beene restored to health, they attribute it to the Idol whom they facrificed. But if he die, then they fay, the Idoll was defrauded, and that forme of the Sacrificers taited thereof first. This is not done to all but to the Richer, the Deuill deluding their blindnesse.

CHAP.4.S.7. Deuill-cures. Tartars firatagem against Elephants.

ø. VII.

of the Province of Mich and Bengala, how they were conquered to the Can: Of Cangigu, Amu, Tholoman, Cintigui, and some other pares of Caraio. And of the Conquest of Mangi.

Nno Dom. 1272: the Great Can fent an Armie into the Kingdome of Vociam, and Carazan to guard it, to the number of twelve thouland expert warriors, vnder the conduct of Neffardin a wife Captaine. As foone as the King of Mien, and the King of Bengala heard of their comming, affembling their forces, they in ned Horse and Foot together, about three core thousand, and about a thousand Elephants beating Castles, and in every Castle twelve or fixteene "armed men were placed. With this Armie the King of Mien " This by rolespeedily marched towards the Citie Vociam, where the Armie of the Tarsars refted. Nestardin tion; for they comming forth with a manly courage to fight against the Enemie, encamped against a certaine vie not to cagreat Wood , knowing that the Elephants with those Towres were not able to enter into the ry about three Wood, Then the King of Mien marcheth forth to meete them. But the Tartarian Horses per- His stratagem. ceiuing the Elephants to be present, which were placed in the first front of the battaile, were terrified with fo great feare, that they could not by any violence or policy be prouoked against 30 the Elephants. The Tartars therefore were compelled to alight from their Horses, and tying Fight & flight them to the Trees of the Wood, they come to fight on foot against the Elephants. In the front of Elephants. of the battaile, all the Tartars purposely shot a multitude of Arrowes against the Elephants, which not able to indure the ftrokes of the Arrowes, speedily betooke themselues to flight, and with swift course went all vnto the next Wood , and brake their Castles, and ouer-threw the armed men fitting in them, which the Tartars feeing , runne vnto their Horfes , and getting vp vpon them, furiously fall vpon the Kings Armie with great violence : and many of either Armie fell, at length the King of Mien being put to flight, left the victorie to the Tartars, who haften to the Wood, and taking many Captines, vied their helpe to take two hundred of thefe Elephants. And euer fince Great Can hath vfed Elephants in his Armies which before hee had 40 not accustomed. Hereupon also he vanquished the Countries of the King of Mien and Bengala, and tubiected them to his Empire.

Departing from the Prouince of Cardandan, is a great descent, which continueth two dayes and a halfe, nor is there any habitation there, but a very large Playne, in the which, three dayes Market in a In the weeke many men meete together for Trading. Many descend from the great Mountaines dishabited of that Countrey, bringing gold with them to change for filter, to wit, giving one ounce of gold Playme. for fine ounces of filter: whereupon, many Merchants from forraine Nations come thither, who gold and file bringing filuer carrie away gold, and bring thither merchandiles to fell to those people. For to uer. those high Mountaines, in which, they who gather gold in that Countrey, dwell, no stranger can come, feeing the way is vnpaffable and intricate. When you are past that Playne, going to-50 ward the South, Mien bordereth vpon India, and the way lyeth fifteene dayes journey in places not inhabited and wooddy, in which innumerable Elephants, Vnicornes, and other wild Vnicornes or beafts wander. After that fifteene dayes is found Mien, a great and noble Citie, the head of the Kingdome, Mien. and subject to Great Can. The Inhabitants thereof haue a peculiar language, and are Idolaters. In this Citie there was a King, who being readie to die, commanded that neere to his Sepulchre, there should be made two Towres in Pyramide fashion, one at the head, the other at the seete, both of Marble, of the heigth of ten farhom. On the top was a round Ball. He caused one to bee couered all ouer with gold a finger thicke, and the other with filter. And vpon the top round about the Balls, many little golden and filuer Bells were hanged, which at the blowing of the 60 winde gaue a certaine found. The Moniment or Sepulchre was also couered with Plates, partly of gold, partly of filter. He commanded this to be made in honor of his Soule, and that his memorie should never decay among men. And when Great (an minded to subdue this Citie , hee fent a valiant Captaine, and the greatest part of his Armie were lesters, of which his Court is alway furnished. Thele winning the Citie, would not violate that Moniment without the Cans knowledge, who hearing that the decessed had made it for the honor of his Soule, would not ful-The pierie of fer it to be firred : for the manner of the Tartar; is , not so violate those things which belong to the Tarters to the dead. In this Province are many Elephants, wild Oxen, great and faire Stagges and Detre. wardsthe dead and other wild Beatls of divers kindes.

The Province Bengala bord-reth vpon India toward the South, which Great Can fubdued when Marco Polo lived in his Court. The Countrey hath a proper King, and peculiar language, The Inhabitants thereof are all Idolaters : they have Mailers which keepe Schooles and teach Idolatries and Inchantments; a thing common to all the great Men of that Countrey. They eate Fiesh, Rice and Milke : they have Cotton in great plentie, and by reason thereof, much and great trading is exercised there: they abound also with Spike, Galang I, Ginger, Sugar, and diverso- 10

Ozen as bigge ther Spices. Huge Oxen alio are there, comparable with Elephants in height but not in thickas Elephants. neffe. Many Eunuches are made in this Prouince, which are afterwards fold vnto Merchants. This Province continueth thirtie dayes journey, in the end whereof going Eastward is the Pro-Cangign hath his proper King and peculiar language. The Inhabitants thereof worthin Idols.

Cangiga. Cangiga hath his proper King and pecur ar ranguage. The King hath about three hundreth Wines. Much gold is The Kingsum: and are Tributaries to Great Can. Their King hath about three hundreth Wines. Much gold is found in this Prouince, and many Spices, but they cannot eafily be transported, seeing that countrey is farre distant from the Sea. There are also many Elephants in it, and much game of many wild Beafts. The Inhabitants thereof line with Flesh, Milke and Rice. They want Wine, but they make good drinke of Rice and Spices. Aswell the Men as the Women vie to embroider their 20 Faces, Necks, Hands, Bellies and Legs, making the Images of Lions, Dragons and Birds, and fo firmely imprint them that they cannot easily bee put out : and the more such Images any one hath, by so much is hee esteemed themore gallant. And there be Professors of this foolish Art of flesh embroiderie, which vie no other Trade but this Needle-worke, and dying of Fooles-skinnes. Amu is an Eafterly Prouince subject to Great Can, whose Inhabitants worship Idols, and haue a peculiar language. They abound with Herds of Cattell, and haue plentie of Victuals, and many Horses and those excellent, which Merchants bring into India. They have also many Buffes and Oxen, because there are delicate Pastures there. As well Men as Women, weare bracelets of gold and filter of great value on their armes, also the like on their legs: but those of the Women are of most value. From Amu to Cangiguare fine and twentie dayes sourney.

The sman.

The Prouince Tholoman is eight dayes iourney diffant to the East from Amu, subject vnto 30 Great Can, having a peculiar language, and worthipping Idols. The Men and Women thereof are tall and goodly, of a browne colour. The Countrey is very well inhabited, having many and ftrong Caftles and Cities. The men are exercited in Armes and accustomed to warre, They burne the bodies of their dead, and inclosing the Reliques of their bones in a Cheft, hide them in the Caues of the Mountaines, that they cannot bee touched either of man or beaft. Gold is in great plentie there, and in stead of money they vie Porcelanes brought from India, as also in Cangigu are now vied in Congo. Great and #hardie Dogs.

Cintlgui.

From the Prouince Tholoman, the way leadeth towards the East on a River, by which are many Cities and Caitles, and at the end of twelve dayes you come to the great Citie Cinigni. The 40 Countrey is subject to Great Can, and the Inhabitants thereof are addicted to Idolatrie, Excel-Cloth made of lent Clothes are made in this Countrey of the barkes of Trees, wherewith they are clothed in the Summer. Very many Lions are there, fo that for feare of them, none dare fleepe without doores by night. The ships which goe vp and downe the River, for feare of the Lions, are not fastned to the banke. There are great Dogs in the same Countrey, so hardie and strong, that they seare not to adventure on the Lion: And it often hapneth, that two Dogs and one Archer kill a Lion; for the Dogs fet on by the man give the onfet, and the Lions nature is prefently to feeke shelter from some Tree, that the Dogs may not come behind him : neither yet will his great heart suffer him to runne from the Dogs, left he should seeme afraid; but he holds his stately pace, the man meanwhile shooting, and the Dogs fastning on his hinder parts, but with such quicknesse, that when jo the Lion turnes on them they are gone. And then doth this magnanimous Beaft hold on his way againe to feeke fuch Tree fuccour, that with Bitings and Arrowes he fometimes comes short, and with expense of bloud dyeth by the way. This Countrey aboundeth with Silke, which by Merchants is carried to divers Provinces by the River. They live on Merchandife, their money is Paper. They are valiant in Armes. At the end of ten dayes is the Citie Sidinfu, and twentie dayes from thence is Gingui, and foure dayes thence is Pazanfu towards the South, and is in Cataio returning by the other fide of the Prouince. The people are Idolaters and burne their dead. There are also certaine Christians which have a Church : all vnder the Can and vie Paper money. They make Clothes of Gold, and Silke, and Launes very fine. By this Citie (which hath many Cities vnder it) goes a great River which carries store of merchandise to Cambalu, made by many Chan-60 nels to paffe thither. But wee will paffe hence, and proceeding three dayes journey, speake of Sidinfu Cinqui. Par pefu.

> Ciangle is a great Citie toward the South of the Province of Cataio, Libie to the Can, the Inhabitants are Idolaters, and burne their dead. Their money is the (Mulberie) Paper coine of the

CHAP.4. S.7. Salt made of earth. Nauie Royall. Fanfur K. of Mangi. Argus. 95

Can. In this Citie and the Territories they make store of Salt, for that Earth is very falt, and The Salt of out of it they get Salt, after this manner. They heape up Earth in manner of an Hill, and powre Canglu, water vpon it, which drawes the falenesse of the Earth vnto it, and then runnes into certaine Conduits, and is boyled in Pannes till it be congealed to Salt faire and white, to the Cans and their great gaine, being carried into other Countries to fell. There are great Peaches very good. which weigh two pounds a piece. Fine dayes journey beyond the Citie Ciangle, in Cataio South- Great Peaches ward flandeth another Citie, named Cangli (in which way are many Cities and Caftles, all fub- ciangli, ied to the Can) through the middest whereof runneth a great River, very convenient for shipping laden with merchandiles.

Six dayes journey thence to the South (all which way hath great Cities and Caffles of Idolaters) is the noble Kingdome and great Citie Tudinfu, which had his proper King, before it was Tudinfu, fubdued to Great Can, Anno 1272. and hath elenen Royall Cities, famous for traffick, subject to the jurifdiction thereof. It is very delectable for Gardens and Fruits, rich in Silkes. The Can fent to the government hereof one of his Barons, named Lucanfor, with eightie thousand Horse: who rebelled against his Lord, but was skine by a power of one hundred thousand under two other Barons fent against him, and the Countrey reduced to obedience. Seven dayes off (riding by many Cities and Castles of Idolaters, plentifull of all things) towards the South is the famous Citie, named Singuimatu, vinto the which on the South, a certaine great River runneth, which be- Singui math. ing disided by the Inhabitants of the place into two Rivers, floweth partly to the East to-20 wards Caraio, and partly to the West towards Mangi. By these Rivers, innumerable Vessels for multitude, and incredible for their greatnesse and wealth, bring necessaries to both Prouinces. If you goe fixteene dayes iourney towards the South from Singuimatu, you still meet with Cities and Townes where much trading is exercifed. The Inhabitants of these Countries are Idolaters,

After that fixteene dayes, you come vnto a great Riner, named Carameran, which is faid to carameran. flow out of the Kingdome of Vmean or Presbyter lobn, of the North. It is very deepe, and carrieth Ships of great burthen : it is also flored with Fish. Within one dayes journey of the Sea there are in this Riner fifteene thouland Saile, each of which carrieth fifteene Horfes and twentie Men, befides Victualls and the Mariners. This is the Cons Fleet kept there in readineffe, to 20 carrie an Armie to any of the Hands in the Sea, if they should rebell; or to any remote Region

Neere the banke of the River where these Ships are kept, is Conganan, and over against it Quanzw. one a great Citie, the other small. After you are past that River, you enter into the noble Kingdome of Mangs. And doe not thinke that wee have handled in order the whole Province of Cataio : yea, I have not spoken of the twentieth part. For, M. Polo passing by the said Pro. nince, hath onely described the Cities in his way, leaving those on both hands, and those betwixt thele, to present tediousnesse.

The Province of Manos is the most rich and famous that is found in the East; and An. 1260. had a certaine King, named Forfur, richer and mightier then any which had reigned there in an Fantur King of hundred yeeres, but a man peaceable and full of almefdeeds, to beloued of his fubicets, that there- Mangi, which 40 by, and by the ftrength of the Countrie, he feemed inuincible. Whereby it came to passe, that is now called the King as well as the People, loft the vie and exercise of Warre and Armes. All the Cities were compassed with Ditches, a Bow shoot broad, full of Water. Hee held in pay no Horses, because he feared none. And hence it came to passe, that the King giving himselfe to pleasure more then was meete, enjoyed continuall delights. He maintayned about a thousand goodly Lasses, with which he passed his time in pleasure. He nourished Justice, and preserved Peace. No man durst offend his Neighbour, and diffurbe the Peace, for feare of feuere vnpartiall punishment. So that Artificers would often leave their Shops full of Wares open by night, and yet none would prefume to enter into them. Tranailers and ftrangers most fately walked day and night, throughout that whole Kingdom, fearing no man. The King himselfe also was pitifull and mercifull towards the Poore, and for looke not them that were oppreffed with necessitie, or pinched with penurie. 50 Besides, every yeere hee tooke vp twentie thousand young Infants, cast off by their Mothers, which through pourrie were not able to keepe them, which he brought vp, and fet them when they were growne to some Trade, or married the young Men with the Maids which hee had in like fort educated

Cublai Can was of a differing disposition to Fanfur, and delighted onely in Warres and Conquests, and to make himselfe Great; he sent a great Armie levied of Horse and Foot, and made one, named Chinfan Baian (that is, one hundred eyes) Generall thereof. Hee, therefore comming Chinfan Baian with his Armie and a Fleet to the Prouince of Mangi, first summoned the citie Coiganzan to yeeld another Argun obedience to his Emperour .: Who refusing the same, hee departed without any assault given to in the signifithe Citie and required the fame of the fecond Citie; which like wife setuting, he marched forward name, 60 to the third, and fourth, and received the like answere of them all. But he attaulted the next with great courage, and vanquished the same by force, and slue every mothers child therein; which so affrighted and terrified the reft, that they all prefently yeelded. Moreouer, Great Can fent another great Armie after the former, with both which Armies hee marched against the chiefe Citie

Ciangl<sub>K</sub>

Quinfai, the Kings Court,

Mangi and

China is a

Quinfai, where the King of Mangi relided: who mightily terrified, as never having feene any battell, fled with his wealth and treasures in ships which he had prepared to certaine impregnable llands in the Ocean (where he after died ) committing the cuttodie of the Citie of Quinfai to his wife, bidding her to defend it as well as shee could; for being a woman shee need not feare death, it thee were taken. It is to be observed, that King Fanfar had beene told by his Di-The flight of uiners, that his Kingdome should neuer be taken from him, but by one which had att hundred King Fanfur. * This name eyes: which the Queene knew, and therefore was still in hope not to lose the Citie, how focuer fireightned; thinking it impossible for one man to have an hundred eyes. But one day she heard, Co:na are fo that the Commander of the Tartars was called Baian Chinfan, that is to fav, An hundred eves. different that differentinat they may feem and was much terrified : wherefore, calling for the Commander of the Tariars Armie, thindiuers Regiking him to bee the man which the Aftrologers spake of, shee delivereth the Citie vnto him, Which being heard, the Citizens, and Inhabitants of the whole Province, revolted to the obe-Reader is to dience of great Can. The Queene was fent vnto the Court of great Can, and was most honouobterue, that rably received by him, and maintayned like a Queene. And now wee will speake of the Ciries name to the Chinois vn knowne, and that Kingdome hath appellations diverfly diverfixed a either from the Familie reigning (which now is called Cin and the Kingdome Min, and Min Cin, are not farre from Mangi) and by the Tartas, when they reigned, it was called Han and before, Chen, which both put together make Han Chen, without any great diffonance from Mangi: Or elfe by generall appellations common to all ages, &c. See our following relations of Ricci and Trigonium.

J. VIII.

Of the Cities of Mangi (now called China) and the rarities thereof: the many wonders of Quinfai, the Palaces, Pleasures, Rites and Gouernment. observed by the Natives, and the Tartars.

Coignagu.

Oiganzu is a faire and rich Citie, lituate towards the South-east, and East in the end trance of the Province of Mangi, (from Cataio, whence the Ambour paffed) where are alway great flore of thips, being leated on the River Caramoran. Great flore of 20 Merchandise is carried thicher. Salt is also made there in great abundance.

The Sale of Coniganzui. * Terraglio,

Going from Coiganzu, you ride towards the South-east one dayes journey on a stone * Caufie; on both fides whereof are great Fennes with deepe waters, whereon they may palle with fhips : neither is there any entrance into Mangi but by fhipping (as the Captaine of the Can did ) but by this Caufie. At the end of that dayes iourney is a Citie calle. Pungbin great and Paughin. faire. The people make clothes of Gold and of Silke, are Merchants and Idolaters. The Paper money of great Can is received throughout that whole Countrey. It is plentifull of all neceffaries of life.

Phofants.

To the Citie Caim, is from Panghin one dayes journey South-east, and this is also a famous Citie, abounding with hih, and game, of beafts, and fowle: especially Phelants are found 40 there, in exceeding great plentie, as great as Peacocks, of which you may have three for one Venetian groat.

Tingui,

Proceeding further hence one dayes journey, you come thorow a well manured and peopled Countrey to the Citie Tingui, which although it be not great, yet hath it exceeding great plentie of victuals. They are Merchants, and very many ships are also there: plentie of beafts and fowles : It is feated to the South-east, and on the left hand towards the East three dayes journey off is the Ocean: and in the space betweene, are very many Salt pits; and they make great store of Salt. After this, is Cinqui a great Citie, whence the Countrey is furnished with Salt, whereof the Can makes great profit, beyond beliefe. They are Idolaters, and have Paper mo-Iangui, Head ney. From Cingui riding towards the South-east, you meet with the noble Citie langui, vinder so the government whereof are other Cities, seven and twentie in number. And in that Citie refideth one of the twelue Barons which are Governours of Provinces choien by the great Can. They are Idoliters, and live of Merchandise. They make Armes and Harnasse for warre. And Malter Marco had the fole government thereof by commission of the great Can, three yeeres together in flead of one of those Barons. Nanghin is a Picuince to the West, one of the greatest and noblest of Mangi, a place of great Merchandife. They are idolaters, ipend Paper money, haue store of beasts and fowle, wilde and tame. They make clothes of Gold and Silke, and are rich Merchants, and the Countrey is very commodious to the Can, specially by Customes of Merchandite. There is great plentie of Cor. e. Sianfu is a noble and great Citie in the Province of Manoi, and hath twelve rich and 60 great Cuties subject vinto her jurisdiction. They make great stere of Silkes and cloth of Gold, have plentie of game and fowle, and of all things pertayning to a Citie of note : lo frong, that it was three yeeres befieged, and could not be vanquified by the Armie of the Tursars, when the Province of Mangi was fubdued. For it is compassed on every fide with Lakes, that there was no way vinto it, but on the North: fo that thips came and went continually, bringing plentre of victuals: which not a little afflicted great Can. The two brethren Mafter Nicolo, and Madler Maffio, then in his Court, hearing hereof, went to him, and offered their feruice to deuife certaine Engines after the manner of the West, able to shoot a stone of three hundred weight, thereby to kill men, and ruine houses. The Can appointed them the best Carpenters which were Nefforita Christians, who made three (Mangans) of those Engines in a frost space, king of Enwhich were proued and approued before him, and by thips tent vito his Armie, Planting them gines. It heretherefore against the Citie Sianfu; they began to cast great stones into the Citie; and the hirst by appeares falling upon a certaine house, brake it for the most part, with the violence thereof. Which the sharthey had To belieged Inhabitants feeing, were very much aftonished, and yeelded themselves, and became not the vicos fullicet to the obedience of great Can, on the fame conditions with the rest of Mangi; to the the Cannon, great repute of the two Venetian brethren.

of 27. Cities.

M. Pole Go-Nanghin.

From the Citie Stanfu, to a certaine Citie, named Singui, are numbred fifteene miles South- Singui. eaftward, which although it be not great, yet hath it an exceeding multitude of Ships , being trated youn the greatest River in the world, called Quian, the bredth of which in certaine pla- Quin. ces, con:ayneth ten miles, in other eight, and in some fixe. But the length thereof extendeth it illfe aboue an hundred dayes journey from the head to the Sea. Innumerable other Rivers flow into it, which tunne therow divers Regions, and are navigable, and make it fo great; incredible store of Merchandise is brought by this River. There are also very many other Cities, in 20 number about two hundred, which participate of this River: it floweth through the bounds of fixteene Provinces. The greatest commoditie is Salt, wherewith all the Cities which communicate in thele waters are flored. Mafter Marco faw at one time at Singui fine thousand ships, and yet other Civies on that River have more. All those ships are covered, and have but one mait, and one fayle, and viually carrie foure thousand, and so vpwards, some of them twelve thouland Venetian Cantari. Neither vie cordage of Hempe, except for the mait and fayle, but have Canes fifteence paces long, which they rive into thinne parts from one end to the other, and binding the cut pieces together, and wreathing them, make very long ropes, fo that fome of them contayne three hundred fathom in length. And those lines are as strong as Hempen, and ferue for halfes and cables to draw their ships vp and downe the River, each ship having ten 20 or twelve Hories for that purpole. On that River in many places are rockie hillockes, on which are built Monalteries to their Idols: and all the way are Villages and places inhabited.

Canqui is a little Citie, vpon the forefaid River South-eastward, where every yeere is brought cangui. store of Corne and Rife, carried the most part to Cambalu. For they may passe thither by Lakes Hand-made and Rivers, and by one deepe large hand-made River, which the Can caused to be made for pal- River, fage from one River to another, and from Mangi to Cambalu without going to Sea. Which worke is goodly and wonderfull for the fite and length, and more for the profit thereby to the Cities. Hee hath made also great Causies to goe on land by those waters commodiously. In the mids of the faid River is an Iland of a Rocke, on which is erected a great Temple and Monafterie, in which are two hundred Idolatrous Monkes. This is the Mother-temple and Monaste-40 rie of many others.

Cinghianfu is a Citie of Mangi, rich in Merchandise, plentifull of game, of wilde beasts cingbiansu, and fowle, and of victuall. In it are two Churches of Neftorian Christians, built Anno 1274. when the great Can fent Gouernour thither, Marfachis a Nestorian, which built them-From the Citie Cingbianfu, in three dayes journey South-eastward, you find many Cities and Castles all Idolaters, and at last come to the Citie Tingnigui, a great and faire Citie, abounding Tingnigui. with all kinde of victuals. When Chinfam Baian, Generall of the Armie of the Tartars conquered the Province of Mangi, he fent many Christians (called Alani) against this Citie, which was double walled; into the inner they retired; into the other the Alans entred, and found there abundance of Wine, whereof after a bad journey, they began to drinke fo largely, that they were all drunke: and the Citizens in their sleepe suddenly falling upon them, slue them all, 50 none escaping. But Baian hearing this, sent another great Armie against those Citizens, which shortly vanquishing the Citie, in reuenge, put them all to the sword, leaving none aliue,

The great and excellent Citie Singui, contay neth in circuit twentie miles. Great multitudes Singui. of people are in it: it hath many rich Merchants, and cunning Artificers, and it hath also very many Phylicians, and Magicians, and Wifemen or Philosophers. In the Mountaines of this Citie, Phylicians and Rhubarb and Ginger grow in great plenty. This Citie buth fixteen Cities under the inriffiction Khubarbe. thereof, where much trading is vied, and very many carious Arts are exercited. Very many Silkes are made there. The word Singui, in their language, fignifieth, The Citie of the Earth, as also they have another Citie, which they call Quinfar, that is to fay, The Citie of Heaven. From Singui one dayes iourney is Vagin, where is also abundance of Silke, and coming Artificers with 60 many Merchants. Oing from Vagin three dayes, continually you find Cities, Catiles, and Villages, well peo-Apled and rich. The People are Idolaters, under the Can: at the end of those dayes you come to Quinfai, which for the excellency hath that name (interpreted Citie of Heauen) for in the World there is not the like, in which are found to many pleasures, that a man would thinke he were in Paradife. In this Citie Matter Marco Polo hath often beene, and confidered the same with great diligence, observing the whole state thereof, setting downe the same in his memorials, as here shall be declared briefly. This Citie by common opinion, is an hundred miles in cirtieon Earth in cuit; for the fireets and channels thereof are very wide. There are Market places exceeding grice, & more large. On the one fide a cleere Lake of fresh water, on the other a great River which enters in then most in- many places, and carries away all the filth of the Citie, and forunneth into that Lake, thence continuing his course to the Ocean : which causeth a good ayre, and commodious passage that beauenly both by land, and by these channels. There may goe both Carts and Barkes to carrie necessa- 10 uen in glorie? ries : and the report is , that there are twelve thousand Bridges great and small , and those anal, of ale. on the chiefe channels are to high that a ship without her Mast may passe wider, and about The fituation. Chariots and Horles.

Dainfa the Earthly Citie of Heatten, O how much better is the heauenly Ci-12000.bridges.

98

The Ditch, Ten Market

On the other fide the Cirie is a Ditch, about fortie miles long, which encloseth it on that fide: large and full of water from the River, made by the antient Kings of that Province, both to receiue the ouerflowings of the water, and to fortifie the Citie: the earth which was taken out being layd within as a banke or hill encompassing. There are ten chiefe Market-places (besides infinite others along the streets) which are square, halfe a mile in each square. And from the forepart of them is a principall threet fortie paces wide, running right from one end of the Citie to the other, with many Bridges trauering it. And every foure miles is found fuch a Market- 20 place, two miles, as is faid, in compaffe. There is also one large channell, which runnes against the faid ffreet, behind the Market-places, on the next banke whereof are erected great Storehouses of stone, where the Merchants from India, and other parts lay up their Merchandise, The Markets. at hand, and commodious to the Market-places. In each of these Market-places is a concourse three dayes in the weeke of perfons betwixt force and fiftie thouland, which bring thither all things that can be defired for mans life, of all beafts of game, and fowles; that Lake yeelding fuch commediousnesse to bring them vp, that for a Venetian groat you may have two Geese, and places.

The high street

The mayne

four Duckes for as much. Then follow the Butcher-rowes of Veale, Beefe, Kid, and Lambe, which the great and rich men eat; for the poore eat vicleane meats without respect. There are all forts of herbs and fruits continually, and amongst the rest buge Peares, weighing ten pounds a piece, white within like paste, and very fragrant: Peaches yellow and white very delicate: Grapes grow not there, but are brought from other places dried very good, and Wine alfo, but not lo esteemed in those parts, that of Rice and Spices contenting them. Every day from the Ocean is brought up the Riner (which is the space of fine and twentie miles) great quantitie of fish, befides that of the Lake, so much as a man would thinke would never be bought, and yet in a few houres is gone. All those Market-places are encompassed with high houses, and vnderneath are shops of Artificers, and all fort of Merchandises, Spiceries, Iewels, Pearles, and in some onely Rice-wine. Many streets answere one another in the faid Market-places. In some of them are many Baths of cold waters accommodated with attendants of both fexes, a thing which from children they vie themlelues vnto. There are chambers also in the faid Baths with 40 hot waters for strangers which are not accustomed to the cold waters. They wash enery day; neither doe they eat before they have washed.

Trades of di-

In other streets are mercenarie Profitutes in such number, that I dare not report it : and not onely neure the Market-places, where they have their places appointed, but thorow all the Citie they fland very pompoutly with great odours, many feruants, and their houses adorned. There are very practike in making sports, and daliances, and sweetest pleasures rauishing (fooles) forth of themselves. In other streets are the Physicians, the Astrologers, they which teach to reade and write, and infinite other Trades. At each end of euery Market-place is a Palace, where Lords and Governours are appointed by the King to determine difficulties which happen betwixt Merchants or others, as also to looke to the Guards on the Budges, punishing the negli- 50 gent. Along ft the principall Street (whereof wee spake) on both tides are great Palaces with Gardens; and neere them houses of Artificers, and such multitudes of people continually going to and fro, that a man would wonder whence such multitudes should bee prouided of victuals. A Guery Citie. And Mafter Marco learned of an officer of the Cuftome-house in Quinfai, that by reckonings a ppeared the daily expence of Pepper in Quinfai, to be three and fortie Some, and every Soma is two hundred twentie three pounds. Hence may be gheffed the quantitie of Victuals, Fleil, Wine, Spiceries, were there ipent.

The Inhabitants are Idolaters, fpend Paper money, are white and faire complexion, apparelled for the most part in Silke, which growes in all that Territorie abundantly, besides that which is brought from other places. There are twelue principall mysteries, each of which have 60 one thousand shops; and in each shop or standing, are ten men, fifteene, or twentie at worke, and in some fortie under one Master. The rich Masters doe no worke with their hands, but fland civilly adorned, or rather pompoully, especially their wives, with lewels invaluable. And although the antient Kings ordayned, that the child should bee of the fathers Trade; yet the rich are permitted not to worke, but to keepe shop, and men working in the same Trade. Their Houses are well ordered, and wrought richly, adorned with P. Gures and other stupendious costs. The Nations are peaceable, know not to manage Armes, nor keepe them in their Houses : nor is there strife and debate among st them. They make their workes with great finceritie. They loue in such amitie, that one Street seemes as one House, without jealousies of their Wives, which they hold in great respect, and it would be reputed great disgrace to speake a dishonest word to a married Woman. They entertayne Merchant-strangers kindly, both in their houses, and with best Great neighadvice for their affaires. But they are loth to fee Souldiers and the Guards of the Grand Can, as bourbood by whom they are bereft of their naturall Lords and Kings.

About the Lake are built faire Buildings and great Palaces of the chiefe men : and Temples of their Idols with Monasteries of many Monkes. In the midst of the Lake are two Ilands, vpon each of which is a Palace with incredible numbers of Roomes; whither they refort vpon occasions of Marriages or other Featis; where Prouisions of Vessels, Naperie, and other things are maintayned in common for such purposes, one hundred sometime accommodated at once in seusrall Roomes. In the Lake alloare Boates and Barges for pleafure, adorned with faire Seates and Pleafure. Tables, and other provisions for Bankets, covered above and plaine, vpon which men itand with Poles to make the Boat goe, the Lake being but shallow. Within they are painted; without, are windowes to open and thut at pleature. Nor can any thing in the World feeme more pleafant then in this Lake to have fuch an object, the Citie fo fully prefenting it felfe to the eye, 20 with so many Temples, Monasteries, Palaces, Gardens with high Trees on the Waters, Barges,

People: for their custome is to worke one part of the day, and to dispense some part to this solace with their Friends, or with Women in the Lake; or elfe by Chariots riding thorow the Citie, which is also another of the Quinfay pleasures. For all the streets are paued with stone; Stone wayes, as alto are all the high Wayes in the Prounce of Margi, onely for the Postes is left on the side. a space vnpaued. The principall street of Quinfay is paued ten paces on each hand, and in the midft it is full of Gravell with passages for the Water, which keepe it alway cleane. On this ftreet are alway innumerable long close Chariots, accommodated with Clothes and Cushions of filke, for fix persons; which solace themselves in the street, or goe to Gardens, and there passe the time in places made by the Gardeners for that purpose, and returne at night in the said

When one is borne, the Father fets downe the print of Time, and with that note goes to the Aftrologer to confult of his future fortunes. Of these Aftrologers are a great number in every Aftrologers. Market place. They will not celebrate a marriage without such consultation. When one dies that is of nove, his Kindred clothe themselues in Canualle, and so both Men and Women accom- Funerals. nanie him to the burning place, playing on Instruments, and finging all the way prayers to their Idols : and being comme to the place, cast into the fire many Papers of Cotton, whereon are painted Slaues, Horses, Camels, Clothes of gold and filke, Monies, which they thinke hee shall really possesse in another World; and make such minstrelsie, in conceit of the ioy wherewith the Idols there receive his Soule, where hee beginneth (they fay) to live anew. In every fireet are 40 Towres of stone, whither in danger of fire they vie to carrie their goods, their timber houses being much subject to such casualtie.

The Can hath ordayned that on the most part of the Bridges, day and night, there stand under Warders, a couert ten Guardians, fine by day and fine by night: and in enery Guard is a Tabernacle of Wood with a great Balon, whereby they know the houres of the day and night, which at every Clocks. houres end the Warders frike to notifie what houre, one, two, &c. beginning at the Sunne rifing, and then againe at the beginning of the night. They walke vp and downe, and if any haue a light or fire after the deputed time, they cause him to answer it before the Justices or Governors aforefaid; or if any walke later. If any be not able to worke, they carrie him to Hospitals, of Hospitals. which are exceeding many founded by the Kings of old, with great revenues, thorow the Citie. When they are well againe, they are compelled to worke. If a fire happen; these from divers 50 places come to quench it, and to carrie the goods into Boats, or the llands, or those Towres : for in the night the Citizens dare not come our, but those who are in danger. The Can alway keepeth here store of his best and faithfullest Souldierie, as being the best and richest place in the World. Within a mile of each other are builded Rampiers of wood, where a found is made to be Larums.

heard further off, for like purpofes. When the Can had reduced all Mangi to his obedience, hee divided it (being before but one Nine Vice-Kingdome) into nine parts, and fet a King ouer each, which there administers inflice. Every roves in Men. yeare they give account to the Cans Officers of the revenues, and other accidents: and every third gi yeere are charged, as all other Officers are. One of these Deputie-Kings is resident at Quinfay, who is Gouernour of aboue one hundred and fortie Cities, all rich and great. Nor may this be a 60 wonder, seeing in Mangi there are twelve thousand Cities, all inhabited with rich and indu- 12000. Cities, strious people. In every of which the Can maintayneth a Garriton, proportionable to the great- and their gerneffe and occasions, one thousand, ten or twentie thousand; not all Tartars, but Catayans; for risons. the Tarrars are Horie-men, and keepe where they may exercise their Horses. Into Cathar he sends

To speake now of the Palace of King Fanfur; his Predecessors caused to enclose a place of ten miles circuit with high walls, and divided it into three parts. That in the midft was entred by one Gate; on the one fide and the other were great and large Galleries, the Roofe full ayned by 10 Pillars painted, and wrought with gold and fine azure : there were smaller at the entrie, and the further the greater; the fairest at the end, the Roofe fairely adorned with gold, and on all the Walls were painted the stories of the former Kings artificially. There every yeere on certaine Idoll holy-dayes, Fanfur kept his Court and feasted his principall Lords, the great Masters, and rich Arrificers of Quinfai, ten thousand at a time vader those Terraces. This dured ten or twelve dayes with incredible magnificence, every guest indevoting to present himselfe in greatest pompe. Behinde this middle-most building was a wall, and going out which divided the Palace: in which was, as it were, a Cloyster with Pillars, fustayning the Porch or Terrace round about the Cloytter: wherein were Chambers for the King and Queene curiously wrought. From this Cloyfler was entrance into a Gallerie fix paces wide, in length extending to the Lake, all course red. On each fide of this Gallerie were ten Courts, answering one another fashioned like Cloy-1000, Women fters, each Court having fiftie Chambers with their Gardens, and in them one thousand Laffes m 1000.cham- abode, which the King kept for his feruice, who fometimes with the Queene, fometimes with them, went in his Barge on the Lake for folace, or to visit his Idoll Temples.

Feift.

The other two parts of the Serraile were divided into Groves, Lakes, Gardens planted with Great Parks. Trees; in which were inclosed all forts of beafts, Roes, Bucks, Stags, Hares, Conies: and there the King folaced himselfe with his Damfels in Charets or on Horse-backe, no man entring there. There did he cause These to hunt with his Dogs, wearie whereof they went into those Groues, which answered one another ouer the Lakes, and there leaving their garments came forth naked. and fet themselues a swimming in the Kings presence. Sometimes hee would take his repast in 30 those Groues being serued by those Damsels, without once thinking of Armes, which finees meat cost him the soure sauce yee have heard. All this was told mee by a rich old Merchant of Ouinlas, whiles I was there, one which had beene an inward familiar of King Fanfar, and knew all his life, and had feene that Palace flourithing, into which he would needs bring me. The Viceroy now resides there; and the first Galleries remayne as they were wont, but the Damsells Chambers are ruined; the wall also which encompassed the Woods and Gardens is fallen to the ground, the Beafts and Trees being gone.

Twentie fine miles from Quinfai is the Ocean betwixt the East and North-east, neere to The Sea Gam- which is a Citie, called Gampu, a goodly Port, where arrive the Indian thips of merchandife. Whiles M. Marco was in Quinfai, account being given to the Grand Can of the Revenues, and 40 the number of the Inhabitants, he hath feene that there have beene enrolled one hundred and fixtie Toman of fires, reckoning for a fire, the Familie dwelling in one house: every Toman con-1600000 houl- tayneth ten thousand, which makes sixteene hundred thousand Families : of all which there is holds in Quin- but one Church of Christians, and those Nestorians. Every house-holder is bound to have written ouer his doore, the names of the whole house-hold, Males and Females; also the number of Horfes; the names added or blotted out as the Familie increafeth or decreafeth. And this is obferued in Mangi and Catay.

Those also that keepe Innes, write in a Booke the names of their Guests, and the day and houre of their departure, which Booke they fend daily to the Lords or Magistrates, which relide at the Market-places. In Mangi the poore which are not able to bring vp their children, fell them 50

Reuenucs of Millions of Duckats, and

The Reuenues which accrew to the Can from Quinfai, and the others pertayning thereto, be-Quinfai, & the ing the ninth part of the Kingdome of Mangi, are first, of Salt every yeers eightie Toman of appurtenances gold (euery Toman is eightie thousand Sazzi of gold, and euery Sazzo is more then one Florin of gold) which will amount to fix Millions and foure hundred thousand Duckats. The cause is, that that Province being night he Sea, there are many Lakes where the water in Summer is coagulated into Salt, where with five other Kingdomes of that Province are ferued. There is flore of Sugar growing, which payeth as all other Spices doe, three parts and a third in the hundred. The like of Rice-wine. Also those twelue mysteries (which we said had twelue thousand shops) and the Merchants which bring goods hither, or carrie any hence by Sea, pay the fame price. They 60 which come from farre Countries and Regions, as from the Indies , pay ten per cento. Likewife, all things there breeding, as Beasts, and growing out of the Earth, and Silke, pay tithe to the King. And the computation being made in the prefence of M. Marco, betides Salt before mentioned, yeerely amounts to two hundred and ten Toman, which will bee fixteene millions of gold and eight hun Ired thousand.

CHAP.4. $8. Concha & Kingdom, Zaitum & famous Port of Mart of Mangi. 101

Rom Quinfui one dayes iourney to the South-east are all the way Houses, Villages, faire Gar-dens, plentitull of Victuals, at the end whereof is Tapinzu, a faire and great Citie, in the iurifdiction of Quintal. Three dayes thence South-east is Vgain, and two dayes further may your de Ve a that way, all the way finding Caitles, Cities, and cultivated Places, in such Neighbour-hood, that they feeme to Trauellers all one Citie; all in the fame jurifdiction of Quinfai. There are great Canes fifteene paces long and foure palmes thicke. Two dayes journey turther is the Civie Genoui, faire and great, and travelling further South-east are inhabited places, full of People and Gingui, Trades. And in this part of Mangi are no Muttons, but Beenes, Buffals, Goates, and Swine in great plentie. At the end of foure dayes journey is found the Citie Zengtan, built on a Hill in Zengien the midit of a River, which with her parted Armes embraceth and encompatieth it, and then runne one to the South-east, the other to the North-west. They are in the articliction of Quinfai, are Merchants, Idolaters, have store of Game. Three dayes sourney thence, thorow a goodly Countrey exceedingly inhabited, flands Gieza, a great Cirie, the last of Quinfar Kingdome, Gieza. after which you enter into another Kingdome of Mangi, called Concha. (The principall Citie Concha. thereof is Fugin) by the which you travell, fix dayes journey South-cast, thorow Hills and Turis. Dales, alway finding places inhabited and ftore of Game of Bearls and Fowle. They are Idolaters, Merchants, fubiect to the Can. There are fout Lions; there growes Ginger and Galingale plentie, with other forts of Spices, eightie pounds of Ginger for a Venetian groat. There is an herbe, whose truic hath the effect and gives the colour and smell of Saffron, but is not Saltron, v-20 fed in their meates. They voluntarily eate mans flesh, if they die not of sicknesse, as daintier then others. When they goe to Warres, they shaue to the eares and paint their faces with azure; they are all Foot face the Captaine which rideth, and vie Swords and Launces: are very cruell, and when they kill an Enemie, prefently drinke his bloud, and after eate his fleth.

After those fix dayes travell is Quelinfu, a great Citie with three Bridges, each eight paces Quelinfu. broad and aboue one hundred long; the Women faire, delicate; and they have flore of Silke and Cotton, are great Merchants, have store of Ginger and Galingale. I was told, but faw them not. that they have Hennes without feathers, hayrie like Cats, which yet lay Egges and are good to Hayrie Hense eate. Store of Lions make the way dangerous. After three dayes, in a populous Countrey which are Idolaters, and haue flore of Silke, is the Citie Ungnem, where is great plentie of Sugar, ient Primem, thence to Cambalu, which they knew not to make good till they became subject to the Can; in Sugar, 30 whose Court were Babylonians, which taught them to refine it with alles of certayne Trees; they before onely boyling it into a blacke patte. Fifteene miles further is Cangiu, still in the Realme Cantin. of Concha: and here the Can keepeth an Armie in readinesse for guard of the Country. Thorow this Civie paffeth a River a mile broad, fairely built on both fides, and ftored with Ships of Sugar and other lading. This River difembokes from hence five dayes journey South-east, at Zanum. a Sea Port, from whence the rich Ships of India come to this plealant and fertile Citic, as is the way betwixt, in which are Trees or Shrubs of Camfire.

Zaitum is a famous Port, where many Ships arrive with merchandife, thence differfed tho- Zaitum. row all India. There is fuch store of Pepper, that the quantitie which comes to Alexandria to the West, is little to it, and as it were one of a hundreth : the concourse of Merchants is incredible, it being one of the most commodious Ports of the World, exceeding profitable to the Can, which Custometh ten of the hundreth of all merchandise. They pay so much for hire of ships also that there is not about one halfe of their merchandise remayning entire to themselves, and yet is that moitie very gainfull to them. The Citie is Idolatrous, gruen to pleafire; in it is much embroiderie and Arras worke. The River is great, very wide and fwift, and one arme of it goeth to Quinfai, at the parting of which is Tingui lituate, where Porcelane dishes are made (as I was Tingui, whate told) of a certaine Earth which they cast vp in great Hills, and so let he to all weathers for thir- Portaine is tie or fortie yeeres without flirring : after which refining by time, they make Dishes, paint them made. and then put them in the Furnace. You may there have eight Dithes for one Venetian Groat. In this Kingdome of Concha the Can hath as great Revenue almost as of the Kingdome of Quint fai. In thele two M. Marco was, and in none of the other nine Kingdomes of Mange ( in ail which is one speech vied, with varietie of Dialect, and one fort of writing) and therefore will speake no more of them; but in the next Booke discourse of India the Greater, the Middle, and the Lesse, in which hee was both in the service of the Can, and also in his rejurne with the Queene to Argon, 200800. Cuftomes, The Ships of India described, the 1le of Zipangu, the Sea Chin, and World of Ilands, the two lauas, Zeilan and other Ilands, with the

Here begins the third book Ships of India,

E will now enter into India and begin with their Ships, which are made of Firre, and the Zapino Tree, with one deck, on which are twentie Cabbins (or leife, as the Ships are in quantitie) each for one Merchant. They have a good Roother, and foure Masts with foure Sailes, and some two Masts, which they erect or take downe at 10 pleature. Some greater Ships have thirteene Colts, or distitions, on the infide made with boards inchased, that it by blow of a Whale or touch on a Rocke water gets in , it can goe no further then that division; which being found is soone mended. They are all double, that is, have two course of boards one within the other, and are well calked with Ocam, and navled with Iron, but not pitched (for they have no Pitch) but anointed with the Oile of a certayne Tree mixed with Lime and Hemp beaten small, faster then Pitch or Lime. The greater ships have three hundred Mariners, others two hundred, one hundred and fittle, as they are in bigneffe, and from five to fix thousand bags of Pepper. And they were wont to be greater then now they are; the Sea having broken into Ports and Ilands, that the defect of water, in tome places, caufeth them to build leffe. They vie also Oares in thefe Ships , foure men to an Oare ; and the greater Ships 20 haue with them two or three ships lese, able to carry a thousand bags of Pepper, having fixtie or more Mariners, which leffe thips ferue fometimes to tow the greater. They have also with them ten finall Boats for fishing and other feruices, fastned to the fides of the greater ships, and let downe when they please to vie them. Also they fleath their ships after a yeares viage, so that then they have three course of boards; yea proceed on in this manner sometimes till there bee fix courses, after which they breake them vp. Hauing speken of the ships, we will speake of India, and first of certayne Ilands.

Zipangm is an lland in the East, one thousand and five hundred miles distant from the shoares inta: golden fibles; and make diffe. rence betwist his owne Relations and tho e which he had at the froms Cap. gaines: and in man things you finall fee Sir T.Ree and lations igree with shele of of Mangi, very great, the people white and faire, of gentle behaulour, in Religion Idolaters, and haue a King of their owne. They have gold in great store, for f. w Merchants come thither, and 30 De marnis mas, the King permits no exportation of it. And they which have had commerce there tell of the Kings house coursed with Gold, as Churches here with Lead, gilded Windowes, Floores of gold: there are many Pearles. Once; the fame of these riches made Cublai Can to send to conquer it, two Barons, with a great fleet of ships, one named Abbaccatan, the other Vonfancin, which going from Zaitum and Quinfai arrived there; but falling out betwixt themselves, could take but one Citie, and there beheaded all they tooke faue eight persons, which by an inchanted precious stone inclosed in the right arme betwixt the skinne and flesh, could not bee wounded with Iron; whereupon, with woodden Clubs, at the command of the two Barons they were although it be flaine. It hapned one day that a Northerne winde made great danger to the flains there riding, true of much fo that some were lost, some returned further into Sea, and others with the two Leaders and 0- 40 gilding in Edos ther Principals returned home. Out of many broken thips fome escaped by boards, and swimfuil.4.6.1.63. ming on an Iland not inhabited foure miles off Zipangu, and were about thirtie thousand, without provisions of victuals or Armes, against whom the Zip neuanders, after the Tempes was calmed, fet out a fleet of thips and an Armie. There comming on Land to feeke the wracked Tartars without order, gaue occasion to the Tartars to wheele about, the Hand (being high in the midft) and to get vnfeene to their ships, which were left vnmanned with the Streamers displaid: and with them they went to the chiefe Citie of Zipanes, where they were admitted without fulpicion, and found few others but Women. The King of Zipangu belieged them tix moneths, and they having no reliefe yeelded themselves, their lives saved : this happened An. 1264. The Can for this dilorder of his two Commanders, cut off the head of one, and fene the other to a 50 gol vied to Cor. faluage Hand, called Zorza, where hee caufeth Offenders to die, by fewing them, their hands bound, in a new-flayed hide of a B.:ffall, which drying fhrinketh fo as it puts them in a little-ease to a miferable death. The Idols in this and the adiopning Ilands are made with heads of Kine, Swine, Dogs, and other failions more monitrous, as with faces on their shoulders, with foure, ten, or an hundred hands (some, and to these they ascribe most power and doe most reverence) our M gol Re- and fay, that fo they learned of their Progenitors. They fometimes eate the Enemies which they take, with great ioy, and for great dainties.

Zijangu.

The Sea in which this Iland standeth, is called the Sea of Con or Chin, that is the Sea against being of Taita Mangi: and in the language of that Iland, Mangi is called Chin: which Sea is fo large, that the Mariners and expert Pilots which frequent it, fay, that there are feuen thouland foure hundred 60 Note for China and fortie Ilands therein, the most part inhabited, and that there growes no Tree which yeelds not a good smell, and that there growes many Spices of divers kindes, especially Lignum Aloes, and Popper blacke and white. The ships of Zatum are a yeere in their voyage, for they goe in The Monfous, Winter and returne in Summer, having Windes of two forts, which keepe their featons. And this Countrey is farre from India. But I will leave them (for I never was there, nor are they jubicet to the Can) and returne to Zaitum. From hence fayling South-westward one thousand five hundred miles, patting a Gulfe, called Cheinan (which continues two moneths fayling to the Northward, full confining on the South-east of Mangi, and eliewhere with Ama, and Toloman, and other Provinces before named ) within it are infinite Ilands, all in manner inhabited. In them is found flore of Gold, and they trade one with the other. This Gulie feemes ano-

After one thousand and fine hundred miles sayling ouerthwart this Gulfe, is the Countrey Zi-Ziamba. amba, rich and great, hauing a King and Language proper, Idolaters, and paying tribute to the 10 Grand Can, of twentie Elephants, and Lionum Aloes in great quantitie yeerely. Anno 1268. the Can hearing of the riches of this Iland ient this her Sagarn with an Armie, to inuade it. Accombale the King thereof was old, and made this composition of tribute. There are many Woods of blacke Ebonie. Sayling thence betwirt the South and South-east one thousand & fine hundred miles, is Jana, lana maior, I fuppoted by Mariners, the greatest Hand in the World, about three thousand miles in circuit, Bonno, and which payeth tribute to none, the Can not offering to subject it for the length and laws minor that danger of the voyage. The Merchants of Zaitum and Mangi fetch thence flore of Gold and Spi- which fell is ces. South and South-westward fixe hundred miles from Lana are two Hands, one Sondur, which called lana. is the greater; the other Condur, leffe, both dejolate. Fifty miles South-east from them is a Pro-20 unce of firme land, very rich and great, named Lochae, the prople Idolaters, having a Language and King peculiar. There growes Brafill-wood in great quantitie, flore of Gold, Elephants, wilde beaits, and fowle, a fruit called Berci, as great as Limons, very good. The place is mountainous and fauage, and the King permits not many to come thether, Lift they should know his fecrets. There is store of Porcelane shells for money transp r.e. : o other place ..

Fine hundred miles Southward from Lochae is the lie Pentan, a fainge place, which produ- Lochae, ceth in all the Woods fweet Trees: fixtie miles of the way the Sea is in many places but foure A South Conceth in all the Woods tweet i rees: fixed miles of the way one deal of in many placed and King. tinent, if true, fathoms: after which being layled to the South-eart, thirtie miles further is the Iland and King. P. ntan. dome of Maluar, which hath a peculiar King and Lang rage to it felfe; and here is much Mer- Maluar. chandise of Spices. From Pentan one hundred miles South-east is lana the lefte, encompassing laniminor, in 30 about two thousand miles, and hath in it eight Kingdomes, and as many Languages. They are which are Idolaters, have store of Treature, Spices, Enon. Bratill, and are so farre to the South, that the eight King. Idolaters, have store of Frequere, Spices, Edon: Brain, and are to faire come south, that the domes. The North Starre cannot there be seens. Ma'er Marco was in fixe of those Kingdomes, of which Mahometans by shall here be spoken, leaving the other two, which he faw : ot. One of tholeeight King lomes is, Felech: here the Id laters by frequent Trade of Saracens first, and after are converted to the Law of Mabinet, in the Cities, the Mountainers being beaffly, eating by conquestion mans flesh and all impure food; and wor hip all day what they first fee in the morning. Next religion have mans fielh and all impure 100d; and with plant day what they drive the individual to that is Bafma, which hash a Language by it felfe; they have without Law, like brafts, and all things, both fometimes lend Hawkes to the Can (w to challengeth all the Iland) for Presents. They have Names, Peowilde Elephants, 2 13 Vnicornes much leffe then Elephants, like the Buffals in haire. Their feet plas, and Ruces; 40 are like Elephants feet. They have one horne in the midit of the fore-head and hurt no bodie that hardly they can now there with the tongue and knee. For on their tongue are certaine long prickles and be defigued, tharpe, and when they burt any, they trample on him, and presse him downe with their knee, and reco ciled and then wound him with their tongue. The head is like to a wilde Boares, which hee carries tol ternames, downwards to the ground; an they have to fland in the mire, and are filthie beafts, and not Voicornes, fuch as they (Vnicornes) are faid to be in our parts, which fuffer themfelues to be taken of Mai- or rather forme dens, but quite contrarie. They have many Apes and of divers falhions. They have Gof- kind of Rhahawkes all blacke as Rivens, great, and good for prey. There are certaine small Apes faced like Piemen now rie them thorow the World for Pigmers, or little men. 50 Samaca is the next King tome where Matter Marco ftayed fine moneths against his will, for- Some as ced by ill weather. There none of the Starres of Chirles mane are seene. Hee descended once on land with two thouland people, and there for the for that flue moneths, for feare of those brutish man-enters, and traded meane while with them for victuals. They have excellent 11th, Wine of the Date-tree , very medicinall for Pitnicke, Dropie, difrafes of the Spleene; fone See of this white, some red; and Indian Nuts as big as a mans head, the middle whereof is full of a pleasant Wine (12db) liquor, better then Wine: they eat all fi-fh w thout any difference.

Dragonan 3 another of those Kingdomes, claymed by the Can, having a proper King and Lan-Coco nuts. guage. I was told of an abominable cutto re, that when one is ticke, they fend to enquire of Dragoian. the Sorcerers whether hee shall scape ; if the Deu Is answere, No; the kindred fend for some men, which they put in Boxes, and preferue with Spices, and fell them to Merchants, who car- made.

60 whose office it is, to firingle the first partie, after which they cut him in pieces, and the kindred eathim with great follow, even to the marrow of the bones, For (lay they) if any lubflance of him should remove, wermes would breed thereof, which would want food, and to die, to the great torture of the foule of the deceased. The bones they after take and carrie into fome Caue in the hils, that no beait may touch them. If they take any flranger they also eat him,

101 Tayled men. Meale of trees, Zeilan-Rubie, Malabar Pearle-fishing, LIB, L

Fanfur.

fones.

Nocueran.

Antaman.

A glorious

Zeilen,

Lino i.

Lambri is a fifth Kingdome of Iana in which is store of Brasill, of the feeds whereof Master Mirco brought to Venice, and fowed them, but in vayne, the foyle being too cold. Some men (the most) in this Kingdome have tayles more then a palme long, like Dogs, but not hairy; and theie dwell in the Mountaines out of Cities. They have Vnicornes in great plentie, and chafe of beatts and fowles. Fasfur, the fixth Kingdome hath the best Cambre, which is fold weight for weight with Saga, (see in Sir Gold. In that Province they take meale out of great and long trees, as great as two men can fathome, whence taking the thinne barke and wood about three fingers thicke, the pith within is meale, which they put in water, and furre well, the lightest drosse swimming, and the purest fetling to the bottome; and then the water being cast away, they make thereof paste, of which to He-nic Wood, Mafter Marco brought to Venice, tafting like Barley bread, The wood of this tiee throwne into the water linkes like Iron, whereof they make Lances, but there, for the long would be too heavie to beare : these they sharpen , and burne at the tops, which so prepared will pierce an Armour fooner then if they were made of Iron. About one hundred and fiftie miles from Lambri, fayling Northwards, are two Hands, one called Nocueran, in which they live like beafts, goe all naked, men and women, and worthip Idols, haue excellent Trees, Cloues, Sanders white and red, Indian Nuts, Brafill, and other Spices; the other, Angaman, stuage as the former, and I was told, they had Dogsheads and teeth.

Sayling hence one thoutand miles to the West, and a little to the North-west, is Zeilan, two thousand and foure hundred miles in circuit, and of old encompassed three thousand and fixe 28 hundred miles, as is seene in the Maps of the Mariners of those parts, but the North winds have made a great part of it Sea. It is the best lland of the World. The King is named Sendern.z. The men and women are Idolaters, goe naked (faue that they couer their prinities with a cloth) haue no Corne, but Rice, and Oyle of Setamino, Milke, Flesh, Wine of trees, abundance of Brasill, the best Rubies in the World , Saphires, Topazes, Amathists, and other Gems. The King is faid to have the best R bie in the World, one palme long, and as big as a mansarme, without !pot, ihining like a fire, not to be bought for money. Cublai Can fent and offered the value of a Citie for it, but the King answered, he would not give it for the treasure of the world, nor part with it, having beene his Ancestours. The men are vnsit for warres, and hire others when they have occation.

ð. X. Of the firme Land of the Greater India.

Malabar.

Rom Zeilan fayling fixtie miles to the West is the great Province of Malabar, which is not an Iland, but firme Continent, called India the greater, the richest Province in the World. There are in it foure Kings, the chiefe of which is Senderbands, in whose Kingdome they fish for Pearles, to wit, betwixt Malabar and Zeilan, in a Bay 40 where the Sea is not about ten or twelue fathome, in which divers descend, and in bags or nets

See my Pilg.

Bread-dcus-

tyed to their bodies bring up the Oysters in which they are. And because there are great fishes which kill the Fishermen, they hire certaine Bramines to charme them (being skilfull to charme all forts of beafts also and birds) and these have the twentieth, the King the tenth. These Oysters are found all Aprill, and till the midst of May, and not else: in September they finde them in a place about three hundred miles off, and till the midft of October. The King goeth as naked as the rest, saue that he weareth some honorable Ensignes, as a Coller of precious siones about his necke, and a threed of Silke to his breatt with one hundred and four taire Pearles (as Beads) to number his Prayers, of which he must daily say so many to his Idols: like Bracelets he weareth on three places of his armes, and likewise on his legs; and on his fingers also and toes. The prayers which he fayth are Pacauca, pacauca, pacauca, one hundred and foure times. This King hath one thousand women, and if any please his sense he takes her; as one he did from his brother, whence warres had followed, but the mother threatning to cut off her breafts which had nourshed them, if they proceeded, flayed the broyle. He hath many Horiemen for his Guard which alway accompanie him, who when the King dies, throw themselues voluntarily into Most of these the fire wherein he is burned to doe him feruice in the next World. This and his brethren the following cu. Kings of Malabar buy their Horfes from Ormsu, and other parts. The Countrey breeds none, and if it happens fometimes, yet are they there bred ill-fauoured and naught. Condemned per-Linfeboten, and fons will offer themselves to die in honour of such an Idoll, which is performed with twelve in my Pilg.15. Kniues, and twelue wounds in divers parts of the bodie, at every blow, taying, I kill my feife in 60 honour of that Idol, and the last he thrusts in his heart; and then is burned by his kindred. The wines also cast themselves into the fire with their husbands; they being difreputed which re-

They worthing Idols, and most of them Beeues, and would not eat of so holy flesh as Beete,

CHAP.4. S. 10. Gaui. Dettors Circle, Superstitions of Malabars and Bramines. 105

for all the World. There are some called Gasi, which eate those Beeues which dye alone, may not kill them, and dawbe ouer their houles with Oxe dung. Thefe Gami are of the Posteritie of thole which flue Saint Thomas, and cannot enter the place where his bodie is, if ten men should carrie them. They fit on Carpets on the ground in this Kingdome, they have no Corne but Rice. are no Warriours, kill no beafts, but when they will eat any get the Saracens to doe it, or other people; wash twice a day, morning and evening both men and women, and will not otherwise eate; which they which observe not, are accounted Heretikes. They touch not their meat with the left hand, but wie that hand only to wice, and other vncleane offices. They drinke each in his owne por, and will not touch another mans pot, nor fuffer their owne to touch their mouth. to but hold it ouer and powre it in. To ftrangers which have no pot they powre drinke into his Detreircle. hands to drinke with them. Iuflice is feuerely executed for Crimes, and Creditors may encom-paffe their Debtors with a Circle, which he dares not paffe till hee hath paid or given fecuritie : if he doth, he is to be put to death : and M. Marco once faw the King himselfe on Horse-backe thus encircled by a Merchant whom he had long delayed and frustrated, neither would the King age out of the Circle which the Merchant had drawne till he had fatisfied him, the people applauding the Kings Inflice. They are very icrupulous in drinking Wine of the Grape, and they which doe it are not admitted to be Witnesse; a thing denyed also to him which layles by Sea, for they say such men are desperate. They thinke Leachery no sinne. It is very hote, and they have no raine but in 20 June, July, and August, without which refreshing of the Ayre they could not line. They have many Phyliognomers and Sooth-fayers, which observe beafts and Birds, and have an valuckie Bayes put to houre enery day of the weeke, called Choiach, as on Munday betwixt two and three, on Tuef- times, in "s. day, the third houre, on Wednesday the ninth, &c. thorow all the yeare fet downe in their Bookes. They curiously observe Natinities : at thirteene yeares old they put the Boyes to get their owne liuings, which runne vp and down to buy and fell, having a little flocke given them to begin : and in Pearle-feafon they buy a few Pearles, and fell them agains to the Merchants, which cannot well endure the Sunne for little gaine. What they get they bring to their Mothers to dreffe for them, but may not eate at their Fathers coft.

They have Idols Males and Females, to which they offer their Daughters, which when the Their Idols & 30 Monkes (or Priefts) appoint, fing and dance to cheere the Idols; and diuers times fet victuals be- Votaties. fore them faving, that they eat, leaving it the space of a meale, singing the while, and then they fall to eating in deed, after which they returne home. The cause of these solaces is the household quarrels betwixt the God and his Goddeffe, which if they should not thus appeale, they should lose their blessing.

The great men haue Litters of large Canes, which they can fasten artificially to some vpper place, to preuent Tarantulas byting and Fleas, and other Vermine; and for tresh Aire. The place of Saint Thomas his Sepulchre, is a small Citie, smally frequented by Merchants, infinitely by Malabaris by Christians and Saracens for denotion. The Saracens hold him a great Prophet, and call him Ang. this Author mias, that is a holy man. The Christians take of the Earth where he was slaine, which is red, and extended to 40 carry it with them with great reverence, and give it mixed with water to the ficke. Anno 1288. A great Prince having more Rice then roome to lay it in, made bold with Saint Thomas his Church in the roome where Pilgrimes were received, but by a Vision of Saint Thomas in the night was fo terrified that he quickly freed the place. The Inhabitants are black, not fo horne, but often anount themselves with Sessamine Oyle to obtain that beautie; they paint the Deuill white, and their Idols blacke. The Beeue-worshippers carry with them to battell some of the haire of a wild Oxe as a prefernative against dangers : and therefore such haires are deare-

Murphili or Monful is Northward from Malabar fine hundred miles, they are Idolaters. Murkit. They have Diamonds in their hils, which they fearch for after great raines. Well-wards from 50 Saint Thomas is Lac, whence the Bramines have originall, which are the true! Merchants in Lac. the World, and will not lye for any thing, and truftly keepe any thing committed to their cu- Bramines. stodie, or fell, or barter Merchandice for others. They are knowne by a Cotton threed which they weare over the sholder tyed under the arms croiling the brest. They have but one Wite, are great Dinners, of great abstinence and long life: observe their owne shadow in the Sunne when they are to buy, and thence coniecture according to their Discipline. They wie to chew a cer- Betragor Below tayne Herbe which makes their teeth good and helpes digeflion. There are fome Religious of offer called them called Tingui, which goe altogether naked, line aufterely, worthippe the Beene, whereof Temini and wherewith they anount their bodies in diners places with great reverence. They nor kill nor 60 eate any quicke creature, nor herbe greene, or Root before it is dryed, effeeming all things to have a foule. They vie no Diffes but lay their Viands on dry leaves of Ap; les of Paradize. They doe their Excrements in the Sands, and then differfe it hither and thither, left it should breed Wormes which must prefently dye for want of food. Some of them line to one hundred and firtie yeares, and their bodies after death are burned.

they have a little braffe Image on their forehead, and of the Oxe bones affees make an Ointment. Areva.

Cae'.

Cumari or Cape Comere.

Pirates, ftill

* Hereby appeares the Vnicorne hee mentions, is no other.

These Relation of others, weight: yea, therefore I haue omitted the greatest pare, I had trouble efor fuch as loue fuch beare-&c. let them feeke elfewhere.

In Zeilan I had forgot to tell of a high Mountayne, which none can afcend but by Iron chaines, as I was told, in the top whereof the Saracens fay is Adams Sepulchre, the Idolater fay it is the body of Sogomonbarchan the first Idol-founder, fonne to a King of that Iland, which gaue himfelfe to a folitarie life on the top of this hill, whence no pleafures nor perswasions could draw him. His Father made an Image after his death to represent him, all of Gold adorned with Gemmes, and commanded all the Handers to worthip it, and hence began Idolatry. Hither they come from farre places in Pilgrimage; and there his haire, teeth, and a dish of his are referred. and folemnly shewed. The Saracens say they are of Adam, which report caused the Can, Anno 1 281. to fend Ambassadors thither, who obtayned two teeth, and a dish, and some of his haires by grant of the King of Zeilan; which he caused to be received by the whole people of Cam- to baln, without the Citie, and brought to his presence with great honour,

Cael is a great Citie gouerned by Astar, one of the foure Brethren, very rich and a good yfer of Merchants : he hath three hundred women. All the people have a cuffome to carrie in their mouthes chawing, a leafe called Tembul, with Spices and Lime. Conlam is fine hundred miles North-west from Malabar, they are Idolaters: there are also Christians and lewes which have speech by themselues. They have Pepper, Brasill, Indico, Lions all blacke, Parrets of divers forts, all white as Snow, others Azure, others Red, and fome very little: Peacockes and Peac hens much differing from ours, and greater, as are their fruits. They are leacherous, and marrie their fifters and kindred. There are many Aftrologers and Physicians. In Cumari are Apes so great that they seeme men : and here we had sight of the North starre. Dely hath a proper King 20 and Language : the people Idolatrous and have flore of Spices. The shippes of Manes come

Malabar is a Kingdome in the West, in which and in Guzzeras are many Pirats, which come to Sea with aboue one hundred Sails, and rob Merchants. They bring with them their wives and children, and there abide all Summer. In Gazzeras is store of Cotton, the Trees fix fathoms (or paces) high, and dure twentie yeeres; the Cotton of the old Trees is not good to fpin, after they are past twelue yeeres old, but for Quiles. There are many " Vnicornes: they have artificiall embroideries. In Canam is store of Frankincense; it is a great Citie, where is great trade for Horles. In Cambaia is much Indico, Buckram, and Cotton. Seruenath is a Kingdome of a pecumontons, 18 the Riseasers: liar language, Idolaters, Merchants, a good people. Chefmacoran is a great Kingdome of Idola-10 for India hith ters and Saracens, the last Province of the greater India towards the Northwest (understand the Author according to his sourney, from China or Mangi by Sea) five hundred miles from which, are faid to be two llands, one of Men, the other of Women, those comming to these, and there staying March, Aprill, and May. The Women keepe their Sonnes till twelue yeeres, and then fend ons which fol- them to their Fathers. It feemes the Ayre admits no other course. They are Christians and have low by relati- their Bishop, subiect to the Bishop of Soccotera; they are good Fishers and haue store of Ambar. Soccotera hath an Archbishop, not subject to the Pope, but to one Zatolia which resides in Bala dach, who chooseth him. The Soccoterans are Inchanters and great Witches, as any in the world (howfoeuer excommunicated therefore by their Prelate) and raile Windes to bring backe fuch thips as have wronged them, in despite of all contrarie working.

A thousand miles thence Southward is Magastar, one of the greatest and richest Iles of the World, three thousand miles in circuit, inhabited by Saracens, gouerned by foure old men. The nough to finde People liue of merchandife, and fell great store of Elephants teeth. The Currents in these parts and translate are of exceeding force. They tell of Fowles, called Ruch, like an Eagle, but of incomparable greatnesse, able to carrie an Elephant (but I am not able to carrie it.) Zenzibar also is said to bee of great length, &c. there are Elephants, Giraffas, sheepe vulike to ours: the Men and Women fay fables, as are very deformed. I have heard Mariners and great Pilots of those parts report, and have seene that of Ruch, in their writings, which have compassed the Sea of India, that there are in it twelve thousand and seuen hundred Hands, inhabited or desart. In Indiamaior, which is from Malabar to Chefmacoran are thirteene Kingdomes. India minor is from Ziambi to Murfili, in which are eight 50 12700, Ilands, Kingdomes, besides Ilands many. The second or middle India, is called Abascia. The chiese King is a Christian; there are fix other Kings, three Christians, and three Saracens, subject to media and mi- him : there are also lewes. Saint Thomas having preached in Nubia, came to Abascia, and there did the like, and after to Malabar. They are great Warriors, alway in Armes against the Sol-Abafria, or In dan of Adem, and the people of Nubia. I heard that An. 1288. the great Abiffine would have visited Ierusalem, but being distinaded by reason of Saracen Kingdomes in the way, he sent a Bishop of holy life to doe his devotions, who in his returne was taken by the Soldan of Adem , and circumcifed by force : whereupon the Abiffine rayled a power, discomfitted the Soldan with two other Mahumetan Kings, tooke and spoyled Adem. Abascia is rich in gold. Escret is subject to Frankincense. Adem fortie miles diffant South-east; where is store of white Frankincense very good, which 60 drops from small Trees by incision of the barke; a rich merchandise, &c. Some in that Countrey for want of Corne make Bisket of Fish, whereof they have great plentie. They also feede their bealts with fifthes. They take them in March, April, and May, &c.

Having spoken of the Provinces on the Coast, I will now returne to some Provinces more to the North, where many Tartars dwell, which have a King called Candu, of the Race of Cingis Caidu and his Can, but subject to none. These observe the customes of their old Progenitors, dwell not in Ci- Northerne ties, Castles, or Fortreffes, but abide with their King in the Fields, Playnes, Valleyes, and Fo- Tartars. reits, and are eltermed true Tartars. They have no fort of Corne, but live of Flesh and Milke in great peace. They have store of Horses, Kine, Sheepe, and other beasts. There are found great white Beares, twentie palmes long, black Foxes very great, wilde Affes, and little beafts called Rondes which beare the Sable Furres, and Vari arcolini, and those which are called Pharaos rats. which the Tarrars are cunning to take, The great Lakes which are frozen except in a few moneths of the yeare, cause that the Summer is scarse to bee trauelled for myre. And therefore the 10 Merchants to buy their Furres, for fourteene dayes journey thorow the Defart, haue let vp for each day a house of Wood, where they abide and barter : and in Winter they vie Sleds without Tragele. wheeles, and plaine in the bottome, riling with a femi-circle at the top or end, drawne eafily on the Ice by bealts like great Dogs * fix yoked by couples, the Sledman only with his Merchant * Perhaps and Furres fitting therein.

CHAP.4. $.10. Northern Tartars, Furs. Region of Darkneffe, Polo and Haiton, 107

In the end of the Region of these Tartars, is a Countrey reaching to the furthest North, called Region of Darknesse, because the most part of the Winter moneths the Sunne appeares not, and the Ayre is Darknesse. thicke and darkish, as betimes in the morning with vs. The men there are pale and great, haue no Prince; and line like beafts. The Tartars oft rob them of their Cattell in those darke moneths, and left they should lofe their way, they ride on Mares which have Colts sucking, which they 20 leave with a Guard at the entrance of that Countrey, where the Light beginneth to faile, and when they have taken their prey give reynes to the Mares, which haften to their Colts. In their lone continued day of Summer they take many the fineit Furres (one occasion of the Tartars going to rob them) of which I have heard some are brought into Russia. Russia is a great Countrey Russia. in that Northerne Darkneffe : the people are Greeke Christians, the Men and Women faire . and pay Tribute to the King of the Tartars of the West, on whom they border on the East. There is itore of Furres, Waxe, and Minerals of filuer. It reacheth, as I was told, to the Ocean Sea; in which are flore of Gerialcons and Falcons.

To the Reader. N this admirable Voyage of Polo, I confesse, Inopem me copia fecit; the Translation which I had Lof Mafter Hakluyes from the corrupted Latine, being leffe then nothing (nimirum damno auctus fui) did me no steed but lose, whiles I would compere it with the Latine, and thought to amend it by the Italian; and was forced at last to reiest both Latine and English, and after much vexation to present thee this , as it is , out of Ramulio. I have not given thee word for word as an exast

Translator, but the sonse in all things substantiall, with longer Relations then I have admitted in others. because many which have read M. Paulus, nener saw M. Polo, nor know the worth of the worthiest Voyage, that perhaps any one man hath written; a man credible in that which hee faw himselfe, in some things received by Relation, rather telling what he heard, then that which I dare believe, and hecially toward the end of his third Bocke, which I have therefore more abridged. Pitie it is that time bath fo gnawne and eaten some-where, and some-where denoured otterly many his names and Trasts, which new Lords and new ( Lawes, the Saracenicall Conquests, especially ener since his time ) in those parts have caused. And farre caster by the Cans greatnesse then, and his employments under him, might bee know the World in those times; then in the combustions long since begunne and still continued in diner sisted and quarrelling States is possible : the Saracens quarrelling with Ethnikes, Christians, and other Saracens; the lartars disided and sub-dissided into so many quarressome Serpentine heads, whereby that busenesse is broken in pieces; the Chinois and others prohibiting ingresse of strangers, egresse of their owns, that I mention not Ethnike and Moorilh Dinisions amongst themselves. In the same time with Polo, 50 lined this following Armenian, of whom Ramuico relateth, and this Difcourfe intimateth that the Ho- See Ton. 1.18. ly Land being quite loft, Pope Clement the Fift mending to reconer it, was given to understand of c.4.5.3. belpes which might be gotten from the Tartars, and withall of this Haiton or Antonie a Kinsman of the King of Armenia, then living a Monke or Frier of the Order Premonstratentis in Episcopia in Cyprus; who in his young time had beene exercised in the Warres betwirt the Tartars and Egyptian Soldans, by whom he might reseive the best Intelligence of Tartarian Assares. He therefore (as hee first remoued the Court from Rome to France, where it abode senentie yeares) cansed the said Hayton to be brought from Cyprus to France with all his Memorials and Writings of that Subject, and being comme to Poitiers, caused one Nicolo di Falcon a Frenchman to write in French, which the other dectated in Armenian, which was done Anno 1307. A Copie of this Storie written aboue two bundred yeares since 60 came to Ramusines hand (whereto I here, that I say not you, are beholden) whence hee tooke that which concerned the Tarcars, omitting the rest, or remitting rather his Reader to M. Polo. Betwixt which two some difference may seeme, but so little, that Wisemen need no advertisement thereof.

One thing is remarkable, that the Author and the next, who in many Geographicall Notes agrees with bim, divide Asia into two parts, one called profound or deepe, the other the greater, and divided in the eum Nat. Cafaub.

Haiten and Mandquils agree in many

105

* Diony, Alex. repreyers, vid. & Euflach. com.

midft by the Caspian Sea, and Caucasus, which our Armenian cals Cocas, which Alexander nation not, nor was ener well knowne to the Ancients, who called all beyond that Hill Scythia, as wee now call the most of it by a generall name Tartaria. Strabo * bath made like dissistant of Asia into the inner and The reason of veter, Taurus being the Vmpire; which Hill (with diners Appellations) beginning at Pamphylia runnes out methodia Eastwards thorow the midst of Asia to the Indies , that part to the North beeing called Asia within thus ordering (Tautus) and that to the South Alia without. Some ancient Geographers as Dionyfius mentions. our Prigrimes, extended Europe to the Cafpian Sea, which most of the Ancients thought to concurre with the Ocean as the Mediterranean, Arabian, and Perfian doe. Dionyfius bie Verfes are worth observation.

> Miara " pulli miene Arine apoe munelifanar. A'pfaueror jains Haupunides axperai Is day, &C.

They called it Taurss, as there followes of the Bull-forme, &c.

Ourexa Taurocares rexu cunarlus alden

Hereof we are the more curious, to give to the more curious a reason of our method in this Worke. who in our former Tome have first encompassed the sheares of Asia from the West to the East: and then in the In-land parts have in the eight and ninth Bookes principally (as Voyages game leane) viewed Alia without Taurus, and to the South of the Caspian: but this Profound or inner, more unknowne part we Gurnay here, where we handle the Voyages and Discourries of those parts of the World, which the Ancients 20 bnew very little or not at all. And indeed, how little was Mangi, Cataio, or Tartaria knowne, till the Tartars obtruded upon the World, a terrible knowledge of themselues, in manner as Rubruquius and the former Friers, with the fe Gentlemen, Polo and Haiton describe? Yea, how were they by ignorance of following times buried againe, till Portugall, English, and other moderne Voyages bane renined them. as it were in a resurrection? and that often in new names, as if they had suffered that party ixems, so often here rehear sed, and so much credited in many Religions of those Easterne Asians, whence st comes that ther are bardly knowne to be the fame. The Reader must pardon me (or go to the Author himselfe if I have here omitted some pieces of Haiton, which you have had in Polo and others before, shecially not fo pertinent to our present Tartarian subject. The figures note the Chapters, after the Latine, from which Ramusios Dinision is much divided, and we therefore from both.

CHAP. V.

The Historie of AYTON, or ANTHONIE the Armenian. of Asia, and specially touching the

ð. I.

of the Kingdome of Cathay, and discrepther Provinces of Asia, and of the first habitation of the Tartars: and of Canglys, or Cingls his beginnings.

The largenesse He Kingdome of Cathan, is the greatest that is to be found in the World, and is reof the Kingdome of Cathay.

Their arro-

plenished with people and infinite riches; beeing situated on the shoare of the Ocean Sea; In the which there are so many Illands, that their number on a situation of the Ocean Sea; In the which there are so many Illands, that their number on the ocean Sea; In the which there are so many Illands, that their number of the Ocean Sea; In the which there are so many Illands, that their number of the Ocean Sea; In the which there are so many Illands, that their number of the Ocean Sea; In the which there are so many Illands, that their number of the Ocean Sea; In the World, and is re-Ocean Sea ; In the which there are fo many Ilands, that their number can no to wayes be knowne. For neuer was there any man that could fay he had feene all those Ilands; But those of them which have beene frequented, are found to abound with innumerable wealth and treasures; and that which is there most e-

Oile of oliues, freemed, and deerest fould, is Oyle of Oliues, which the Kings and Commanders there cause to be kept with great diligence, as a Souereigne Medicinable thing; And moreouer, in the Kingdome of Carbay, are many maruellous and monstrous things, which I forbeare to mention. The Inhabitants of those parts are exceeding wife and subtill, replenished with all kind of skill and cunning, infomuch, that they disdaine the endeauours of all other Nations, in all kind of Arts, and Sciences : faving, that they only fee with two Eyes, the Latines but with one eye, and that all other Nations are blind. And albeit they are exceeding fharpe-lighted in the exercise of all 60 bodily workes and labours; yet is there not among it them any knowledge of ipirituali things; the men of that Countrey are not bold, or couragious, but more fearefull of death then befitteth fuch as beare Armes; yet are they very ingenious, and have oftner had victorie of their enemies by Sea, then by Land: the money vied in those parts, is of square precess of Paper, signed with the Kings figne, according to which figne or marke; the pieces are of greater or smaller value; and if they begin by age to be wasted, or worne out, hee that bringeth them to the Kings Court shall have new for them; of Gold and other Metals, they make Vessels, and other ornaments. Of this Kingdome of Cathay it is faid, that it is in the beginning of the World, because the head See Sir Isha thereof is in the East, and there is not knowne any other Nation to inhabit more Easterly there. Mandeuils traabouts: on the West it confineth on the Kingdome of Tarfa, on the North with the Desert of wels. Belgian. And on the South-fide are the Hands of the Ocean, afore mentioned.

CHAP.S. S. I. Tarfa, Sym, Turquestan, Corasmians; Cumania extremes, 100

2. In the Kingdom of Tarfa are three Prounces, whose Rulers are also called Kings, the men of Of the Kingthat Countrie are called logour, they have alwayes worshipped Idols, and yet doe except the dome of Tala. Io ten Kindreds of those Kings, who by the guiding of a Starre came to worthin the Natiuitie in Bethleem Inda. And there are yet found many great and noble among the Tartarians of that Race, which hold firmely the Faith of Christ. But the rest which are Liolaters in those parts, are of no estimation in matter of Armes, yet are they of a piercing wit for the learning of all Arrs. Wit and incliand Sciences. They have peculiar Letters or Characters of their owne. And almost all the Inhabitants of those parts abitayne from eating of flesh and drinking of Wine, neither would they by any meanes bee brought to kill ought that hath life. Their Cities are very pleasant and they Rive. haue great Temples in which they worship their Idols. Corne groweth there abundantly, and all good kind of Graine. But they are without Wine, and hold it a finne to drinke it, as doe alto the Agarens. This Kingdome of Tarfa on the East-fide confineth with the Kingdome of Ca-20 shar, as atoreiaid; on the West it bordereth on the Kingdome of Turquestan, on the North on 2 certayne Delert, and on the South-fide it adjoyneth to a very rich Prounce called Sym, which is Sym. fituate betweene the Kingdome of India and Cathaia, and it that Province are found Diamonds. 3. The Kingdome of Turquestan on the East fide is confined with the Kingdome of Tarfa, on the West side with the Kingdome of the Persians, on the North side with the Kingdome of the Of the King-

Corasmians, and on the South it reacheth out to the Defart of India. In this Kingdome are but dome of Tare few good Cities, but there are large Plaines and good feeding for their flockes, therefore the In- The Inhabi. habitants for the most part are Shepherds, dwelling in Tents, and houses that may easily beer emoued from place to place. The greatest Citie of that Kingdome is called Ocerra, there grow. herds, eth but little Barley or Wheate : no Wine at all. Their Drinke is Curfin, and other made Drinks, Ocera. 30 and Milke, they eate Rice and Millet, and flesh, and are called Twrtes. And almost all of them Curfie. are of the Sect of wicked Mahomet, yet there are some amongst them of no Faith nor Religion, Timbers They have no peculiar Characters of their owne, but doe vie the Arabike Letters in their Cities or Campes.

4. The Kingdome of the Corasmians, is well stored with good Cities and Townes, and there are many Inhabitants, because the Land is fruitfull and pleasant, and wheate, and other graine, Of the Kingare many Inhabitants, becaule the Land is fruitfull and pleasant, and where, and other grains, is there in great quantitie; but they have little Wine. This Kingdome is confined with a dome of the is there in great quantitie; but they have length on the West-ties it reachest our Confinent. Wildernesse of one hundred dayes Journey, in length on the West-side, it reacheth out to the Caspian Sea. On the North it bordereth on the Kingdome of Camania, and on the South it hath the Kingdome of Turquestan. The chiefe Citie of that Kingdome is called 40 Corasme, and the people are called Corasmians, being Pagans, which have neither Learning, nor Religion. But those wich are called Soldini, are very fierce in Armes, and have their Language Coraline. and Letters, and Ceremonies of the Greekes, and make the bodie of Christ after the Greeke Soldini. manner, and are obedient to the Patriarkes of Antioch.

c. The Kingdome of Cumunia is very great : yet by reason of the diftemperature of the Ayre, Of the Kingit is ill inhabited : for in the Winter feafon, the cold is fo great in fome places, that neither dome of Caman nor beaft can any way live therein. And againe in some places, the heate of Summer manie.

This extramiis fo great, that none can endure the fame, nor the flyes which abound there. This King- tie comes by dome of Cumania, is in a manner all plaine, and there are no Trees, nor any Wood to bee found the long pretherein, vnleffe it be about some Cities, which have certayne Orchards. The people inhabit in sence in Sum-50 Fields, and in Tents burning the dung of beafts in fleed of Wood: This Kingdome of Compania mer, and about on the East-side, hath the Kingdome of Corasmia, and a certayne Desert or Wildernesse; on the West-side is the great Sea called Parisat Furnisms, and the Sea of Targin and the West-fide is the great Sea called Pontus Euxinus, and the Sea of Tanais: on the North-fide it Winter, confineth on the Kingdome of Cassia, and on the South-fide, it reacheth out to a certayne great River called Esil, which every yeare is frozen, and sometimes remayneth all the yeare so hardly frozen, that men and beafts goe thereon as on Land, on the bankes of that River, are found certayne imall Trees. But beyond and on the other fide of that River, are divers and fundry Nations inhabiting, which are not accounted of the Kingdome of Camania, and yet are obedient to the King thereof : And fome there are which inhabit about the Mountayne Cocas, Cocas or Cauwhich is exceeding great and high. The Afteres and other ravenous Birds , breeding safes.

60 in that Mountayne, are all white, and that Mountayne is feated betweene two Seas; for on the Welt is the great Enxino Sea, and the Caspian Sea on the East, which Caspian Sea hath no entrance into the Ocean, but is as a Lake which only for his greatnesse hath the name of a Sea, for it is the greateit Lake that is to bee found in the World , reaching from the faid See after Mountayne Caucajus, euen to the head of the Kingdome of Perfis, and divideth all Affainto Chapter 47.

great, the Saracens and Pa-Fables, neuer heard of in here of Orlando, Artbur, 0gerus, and others. See in Po'o. Pérsia and Media are o. mitted.

two parts, whereof that which is towards the East is called Asia profunda, and that which is on the West is called Asia maior, or the greater Asia, and many good tishes are in that Lake. 6. The Kingdome of India is very long, and fituated on the Ocean Sea, which in those parts is called the Indian Sea. This Kingdome beginneth from the Confines of Persia, and extendeth Note that of by East vinto a Prouince called Balaris, in which are found the precious stones which wee call Alexander the Balayes. On the North-fide is that long and great Defart of India, where the Emperour Alexander the ander is faid to have found so many Serpents, and such diversitie of Bealts inhabiting. In that Kingdome it is that Saint Thomas preached the Faith of Christ, and converted many people and gass naue many people and ny and strange Prouinces. But because they are so farre distant and remote from other places and parts of Christendome, the Christian Religion is there much diminished, for there as but one Citie that is in- to habited with Christians, the rest having wholy forfaken the profession of Christianitie. On these parts; as the South-fide of this Kingdome is a very long reach of the Ocean, in the which are many Hands, but their Inhabitans be all blacke, going altogether naked for heat, and worthip Idols like fooles. In those Hands are found precious itones, Pearles, and Gold, and fundry Spices, and medicinable drugs helpfull vnto men. There is also a certayne Iland called Celan or Zeilan, knowne in ancient time by the name of Taprobana, in which are found Rubies and Saphires, and the King of that Iland hath the greatest and best Rubie that is any where to be found, which when hee is to be crowned King, he holdeth in his hand riding round about the Citie, and is afterwards obeyed 9. In the Land of Armenia there are foure Kingdomes: yet have they alwayes beene fub- 20 iect to one King only. The length of the Kingdome of Armenia beginneth at the Confines of Persia, and reacheth out West-ward even to the Kingdome of Turkie. The breadth of Armenia Miralis, or the begins at the Citie Miralis, called the Iron Gate, and extendeth even to the Kingdome of Me-Iron gate, now dia. In Armenia there are many great and very rich Cities, of which Tauris is the chiefe: they haue both Characters of their owne, called the Armenian Letters , and others also which they call Haloen. In Armenia is the highest Hill or Mountayne that is in the World, which is commonly called Arath, or Ararat, and on the top of that Mountayne, the Arke of Noab rested first after the Deluge. And albeit for the abundance of Snow which is alwayes on that Mountayne, both Winter and Summer none is able to goe vp the fame, yet is there alwayes feene in the top thereof a certaine blacke thing, which men affirme to be the Arke.

Armenia.

Georgia.

10. The Kingdome of Georgia on the East-fide, beginneth from a certayne great Mountayne, called Albaris, or Albsor. There doe inhabit many Nations, and thereof that Province is called Alania, or Albania, from whence the Kingdome of Georgia reacheth West-ward on the Northfide to some Lands of the Kingdome of Turkee; the whole length of this Kingdome of Georgia lying voon the great Sea, and on the South-fide it is confined with Armenia the Great. This Kingdome of Georgie is divided into two Kingdomes, one of which is called by the name of Georgia, and the other knowne by the name of Albean, or Albeafe : and they have beene alwaies gouerned by two feuerall Kings. The one of which is subject to the Emperour of Afia; namely, the King of Georgia, But the Kingdome of Albem being mightie in people, and ftrongly fituated and fortified, could never yet either by the Emperours of Afia, or by the Tartarians bet 40 fubdued. In this Kingdome of Georgia is a maruellous strange Wonder or Miracle, which I durst not have reported or beleeved, if I had not feene it with my eyes. But because I have personally beene there, and beene made the eye witnesse thereof, I say, that in those parts there is a Province or Countrey called Hamsem, being in circuit about three dayes iourney, whose whole extent is all couered ouer with such thicke and palpable darknesse, that none can see any thing therein, neither doe any dare to goe into that Land, because they know not the way out agains. Those that inhabit neere about it, affirme, that they have often heard the found of mens voices crying, of Cockes crowing, and the neighing of Horses in the Wood, and by the course of a Riuer that runneth out from that place, there appeare certaine fignes that there are people inhabiting therein.

11. The Kingdome of the Chaldeans beginneth on the East-fide from the Mountaynes of Media, and reacheth out vnto Ninine. The Inhabitants of Chaldea are called Nestorians, because they are followers of the Errour of Nestorius, and they have their peculiar Chaldess Characters, others there are amongst them that vie the Arabian Letters, and are of the Sectof the feducer Mahomet. 12. The Kingdome of Mesopotamia on the East-side, beginneth at the great Citie Mosel, (called of the Ancients Seleucia) which is feated neere the River Tigris, and firetcheth out vnto the River Emphrates, and the Citie of Robais (or Edessa.) 13. When the Turkes had inuaded the Kingdome of Turkie, and possessed themselves thereof, they could not preuayle against the Citie of Trapezond, nor the Territorie thereof, because 60 of their firong Castles and other Fortifications, by reason whereof it remayned full under the government of the Emperour of Constantinople, who vied yearely to fend thither a Ruler or Gouernour as his Deputie there, vntill at length one of them rebelling against him, made himself:

King in such fort that he which now holdeth that Land, is called Emperour of Trapezond. The

CH AP.5. S. I. Tartarians: beginnings of Changius their Romulus & Numa, 111

Inhabitants are Greekes. In the Kingdome of Turkie are foure Nations inhabiting; namely, the Nations of Greekes, Armenians, and Iacobines, (or Iacobines, which are Christians, litting on merchandise Turkic, and manuring the Earth:) and the Turker, which are Suracens, that have invaded that Land, and gotten the Government from the Greeks. Some of them live on merchandife, and labouring of the ground inhabiting in Cities and Towness others keeping in the Woods and Fields, both

Winter and Summer being Shepherds, and very good Bow-men. 14. Cilicia at this day is called Armenia, by reason that after the enemies of the Christian faith cilicia, how is had gotten that Countrey, and held it a long time from the Greekes, the Armenians endeauoured came to bee themselves so well that they wome it agains from the Pagans. In so much that the King of Ar alled Armenia In the Kingdome of Syria are divers Cap. 15. Of the Nations inhabiting, namely, Greekes, Armenians, lacobites, Nestorians, and Saracens. There are Saracen Em-

also other Christian Nations, namely the Sprians and Maronines (or Maronites.) 16. The Country in which the Tartarians first inhabited, lieth beyond the great Mountaine Of the Coun-Beizian, mentioned in the Histories of & Alexander, And therethey lived like brutish People rey where the without learning or Religion, feeding herds of Beatts, and going from place to place to feeke pa- Tartariani for-

to al. Of their in ancient time there were many Nations which by a common name were called, ted * Mools, who vpon their encrease were after divided into seven principall forts esteemed more as the Sersions noble then the reft. The first of these Nations was called Tatar, from the name of that Pro- and Alins and Alians unnce wherein they first inhabited: The second, was named Tangar: The third, Canat: The fourth, have of Alexan-Talair: The firth, Sonich: The fixth, Monghi: And the feuenth, Tebeth. And whiles thefe fe- der whom they uen Nations lived under the subjection of their Neighbours, as is above faid, it happened that a cil Biornis &cc. poore old man, being a Smith, faw a Vision in his fleepe; namely, a man armed all in white Armour, and mounted on a white Horse, which calling him by his name, laid votto him, Changins, charging or It is the will and pleasure of the immertall God , that then be Lord and Ruler over these Nations of the Cingis. Mogli, and that by thee they bee delinered from the Dominion of their Neighbours; under which they have long remayned: and they shall rule oner their Neighbours, and receive Tribute of them to whom. they formerly paid Tribute. Changing hearing this Word of God, was replenished with exceeding 10y, and made publikely knowne the Vition which he had feene. But the Rulers and Comman-

30 ders would not give credite to the Vision , but rather despised and mocked the old man. But the night following, they themselves saw the same Vision of the Horse-man armed in white, who commanded them from the Immortall God, that they should be obedient to Changing, and cause all to obey his command. Whereupon, all the said Chieftaines and Gouernours of the seuen Mations of the Tartarians, calling the people together made them to yeeld obedience and reuerence to Changins. Then atterwards placing a Chaire for him in the midft of them, and spreading a blacke Felt Carpet on the ground, they fet him thereon, and then the feuen chiefe Rulers lifting him vp, did place him in the Throne, or Chaire of State, with great triumph and acclamation, calling him Can their first Emperour, and doing him foleinne reuerence, with bowing their knees as to their Lord and Gouernour. Now, at this folemnitie of the Tartarians, and at the simplicitie of their blacke Cloth, vied in the creating of their first Emperour, none ought much to wonder, either because haply they were not then furnished with any fairer ( loth of S ate, or elle were so rude and ignorant at that time, that they knew no better or fairer fashion of State. But at this men might rather maruell, See fane as that the Tartarians having fince that, co. quered many Kingdomes, and gotten infinite riches, (and namely, commanding over the Dominions and wealth of Ales, even to the wonfines of Hungaria) they will not yet leave their ancient and accultomed manner; but at the confirmation of every Emperour observe the like order in every point, whereof I can well be a witnesse, having beene personally profent at the cremonic vied at the Confirmation of one of their Em- Hailon, an eyeperours. But to returne to our purpole, Changin Can being thus made Emperour by common wineeffe of the 50 confent of all the Tartarius, determined ere he attempted any thing, to make triall, whether thus, they would all performe faithfull obedience to him, to which end he made certaine Ordinances changing ordal-

to be obterued of all.

The first was, That all the Tartarians hould beleene and obey the Immortail God, by whose will hee was promoted to the Imper all Dignitie: which Commandement they observed and from thenceforth vitill this day have ever continued to call on the Immortall God in all their occasions. Secondly, Hee willed that all the men that were able to beare Armes should be numbred, and that ouer every ten should be one appointed, and over every ten thousand a great Commander, and that also ouer every thousand should bee a Colonell, or Conducter of a Regiment, and he called an Armie of ten thousand Souldiers, a Regiment He commanded also the seuen Rulers over the Nations of the Tartarians, that they thould forthwith difinish themselves of their 50 former diginties: which they relinquished immediativ. But another of his Ordinances was very firange and admirable, in which he commanded those seuen chiefe Rulers to bring every of them his eldelt fonne, and each with his owne hand to cut off his head. Which Commandement appearing to bee most crueil and unjust, yet was there none that would any way gainly flure. And being not exercised in armes they were despised of other Nations, and payed tribute merly inhabi-

Changius bie Owle; bis fecond Vision; and worshipping-miracle. LIB. I. 112

He e capeth

The Allocoo

benoured.

it, because they knew him to be set ouer them by Gods providence, and therefore they present. ly fulfilled it. When Changin Can had feene that they were readie to obey him, euen wnto death, he appointed them all a certaine day in which they should be readie to fight. And then they rode Prenaylethin against them which bordered next vnto them, and fabdued them. Whereby, they which had hight iga mit beene Lords ouer them, were brought into fubication under them. After, hee inuaded divers his borderers. other Nations, which hee conquered with great celeritie: For hee did all his exploits with a imall troupe of men, and was successefull in his enterprises.

Yet, one day it tell out, that being accompanied with a small number he was encountred with a great troupe of his Enemies, in fuch fort, that the fight being begun betweene them, whiles he valuantly defended himselfe, his Horse was flaine under him. And the Tartarians feeing their to Lord ouerthrowne, betooke themselves to flight; so that the Enemies being all busied in purfaing of those that fled, and having no knowledge of the Emperour, whom they had vnhorfed and ouerthrowne; he runne and hid himselfe among certaine shrubs for safety of his life. Whither when the Enemies were returned, with purpose to spoile the dead Carkasses, and to seeke out such as were hidden, it happened that an Owle o came and fate vpon those little trees or fhrubs which he had chosen for his couert, which when they perceived, they sought no further in that place, supposing that the faid Bird would not have fate there, if any man had beene hidden Booke chap. 8, vnderneath. By which meanes in the dead time of the night he found meanes to efcape thence. reciter a like and came by discress vofted ented wayer with his owne people, and diffeourfed who them what mistered 4. had befallen him. For which the Tarrarians rendred thanker with the Immortall God. And 28 that Bird which under God was held to be the meanes of his escape, hath euer since beene held in fuch reuerence among them, that happie is he that can get but a Feather of an Owle, which un corto recello they weare in their heads with great reverence, Which I thought fit to fet downe in this Booke. chimaso Alac- that the cause might be knowne for which the Tartarians vie commonly to weare Feathers on their heads.

But their Emperour Changius Can having given great thankes to God: for his deliverance out of fo great a danger gathered his Armie together, and fiercely affaulted his former Enemies a-A new Victory. gaine and brought them all under subjection, and so became Emperor of all the Countries lying on that fide of the Mountaine Belgian, and poss-fied them quietly without disturbance, vntill it The Authour happened him to have another Vision as shall after be declared. Neither is it any marvell that exceleth him- in these Histories I have not set downe the certaine time, because albeit I have sought of many to know the certaintie thereof, yet could I neuer finde any to instruct me fully therein: the reafon thereof-I take to be, because the Tantarians at the first were ignorant of all Learning, and knew no letters, and so passed ouer the times and memorable accidents without any Record or Register thereof kept, whereby they came afterwards to be forgotten.

ð. I I.

of CHANGIVS Can his fecond Vision and Conquests. Of HOCCOTA and his three Sonnes expeditions; of GINO Can; of MANGY Can, who was visited by the King of Armenia, and baptised , of the expedition of his Brother HALOON.

The fecond Iofe, bus mentions a vision Ot Alexander one like the Icw: lb high Priest impoli gorhin his Expedition. The Sea alfo The fatallex-pedicien.

Fter that Changiss Can had Libdued all the Kingdomes and Countries on that fide of the Mountaine Belgian, he faw another Vition in the night. For the felfe-fame Horfman armed in white Armour appeared vnto him againe, faying, Changius Can, # is the pleasure of the Immortall God, that them passe over the Mountaine Beigian, and direct thy com fe Westwards, where thou shalt possesse Kingdomes and Countries, and subdue many Nations. And that thou mayeit be affured that the words which I feake unto thee are from the Immortall God: 50 Arise and goe with thy people to the Mountaine Belgian, to that part thereof which syneth to the Sea, there thou stalt alight from thy Horse, and kneeling downe nine times towards the East; thou shalt worship nine times the immortall God, and be which is Almightic will show thee the way by which thou majest easily passe over the Mountaine. At this Vision Changing reloyced exceedingly, and arose . without farther doubt or delay : because the trueth which he had found in the first Vision gaue gaue him way, him affurance of the other: in such fort that he forthwith speedily affembled his people, and commanded them to follow him with their wives and children, and all that they had. And fo they went forwards untill they came to the place where the great and deepe Sea did beate against the Mountaine, so that there appeared no way nor passage for them.

There presently Changing Can as had beene commanded him by God, alighted from his Horse, 60 and all his followers in like manner, worthipping nine times on their bended knees towards the East, they befreeched the Almightie and everliving God, that of his infinite mercy and grace he would vouchfafe to thew them the way and passage thence where they continued in prayer all that night. And in the morning arifing, they faw that the Sea wes departed from the Moun-

CHAP.S. S.2. Embleme of Concord. Tartarian Nine, Hoccotas three fons acts. 112

taine, and had left them a way of nine feet in bredth to passe. Wherear they being all astonithed exceedingly, and rendring thankes to the Immortall God most denoutly, they passed on lous way. the way which they faw before them, and directed their steps towards the West. But as the Histories of the Tartarians doe mention, after they had passed ouer those Mountaines, the The dured some hunger and thirst for certaine dayes, because the land was Defart, and the waters were bitter and falt, which they could not by any meanes drinke, vittill at length they came where they had all necessaries aboundantly. In which place they abode many dayes, And there it happened by the will of God, that Changing Can grew dangeroully ficke, in their fort that The ficknesses the Phyticians despaired of his recouerie.

10 By reason whereof he called before him his twelve sonnes, and perswaded them to unitie and concord by an Example. For, he commanded each of them to bring with him an Arrow, His allegarless which when he had received, and bound them altogether he willed the eldeft to breake them if exhoring of he could, which when he had tried, but could not performe, he delivered them to the fecond, and his fonnes to then to the chird, and then to all the reft, but none of them could breake them as they were. Then The like Hihe commanded his youngest sonne to take the Arrowes severally and breake them, which hee florie hath Stoeatily accomplished. Then faid Changing Can to his tonnes: In like manner will it be with you; bein ferm 82. of for, as long as you remayne in concord and vnitie, your Empire shall continue; but as foone as situate see Inthere commeth diulion amongst you, your power is easily overthrowne. Many other good the sonnes of examples were ginen by him, and gathered by the Tartarians, which in their Language they Aprile dila-20 call, lafach, or infractions of Changin Can. And atterwards hee caused the wifest and best of greeing.

his fonnes, called Haccota Can, to be received as his Succeffour in his Empire, before he died; and then refted in peace. And his fonne, called Hoccorn Can, was placed in his Seat. But before wee end this Historie we must show how the number of Nine came to be of reue- His death.

rence and facred estimation among the Tartarians: for of a memoriall of the nine kneelings which they made in the Mountaine Belgian, when they worthipped the immortall God, according to the direction of him that appeared in white Armour, and their way of the bredth of nine feet, through which they passed, they hold that number Nine in very high estimation. The number Infomuch, that if any will offer a Preient to the Tartarian Emperour, it must bee prefented in of Nine, efterforme of nine feuerall things, if hee will have it graciously accepted; and so that the number med among 30 of Nine be offered the gift is reputed happie, which Cuftome is yet observed at this day among so they re

18. Hoccota Can, who succeeded in the Empire, was a man of much valour and wisedome, guilfup.pp.556 which made him very well beloued of the Tartarians, who were alwaies faithfull and obedient Of House Can wnto him. Hee therefore bethought himselfe in what manner he might best subdue all Afie, and the second thought good to make triall first of the mightiest Prince therein before he attemped it himselfe in person. On that enterprise therefore he sent forth ten thousand Horse-men under the conduct of a wife and valiant Leader, called Gebefabada, and commanded him to feeke out divers Kingdomes and States, and when hee met with an Aduersarie too mightie for him, to returne. Hee marched on, and tooke divers Caftles and Townes, and cruelly vied those which hee vanquished

40 in battell, for terrour to others, putting out their eyes, and taking away their Horfes and Vi-Stuals; dealing kindly with the weaker. Thus hee proceeded to the Iron Gate which Alexander built at the foot of Cochas, and razed it, left it might hinder his returne. Transmos the Prince of Georgia came out against him, and in a Plaine, called Mogram, they fought, but the Tierters ouercame; and proceeded to Arfeor a Citie of the Solden of Turke, who was fo well prouided to entertayne him, that Gebesabada feeing his forces decayed, returned to Hoccota Can, then in Gebesabade. Cambals. Hee defiring to subdue all Asia, called three of his sonnes, giving to each a great Armie, lochi the eldeft he fent Westward to Tigris ; Baydo, to the North ; Chagoday, to the South: and io divided Afia among his three fonnes. Hoccota Can made choise of another skilfull and valiant Captaine, called Baydo, to whom he gave thirtie thousand Tartarian Souldiers, termed

50 Tamachs, or Conquerours, and commanded them to fet forward the very fame way that the ether ten thousand went before, and not to make flay in any place till they came to the Kingdome of Turkie, and to trie whether they could withftand the Soldan of Turkie, which was held the mightieft of all the Princes in Asia. And if haply they found him so strong that they were not able to encounter him, they should then forbeare to fight with him, and make choise of fome place where they might reft themselves till they had received supplie of further aide from some of his sonnes which should bee neerest voto them, and that afterwards they might with more fafety fet voon him. Baydo accordingly with his thirtie thouland Tartarions came to the Kingdome of Turkie; and there hee vinderflood that the Solder which had discomfitted the first Tartarians was dead, and that his fonne Guiatadin succeeded him. And this man hearing of the

60 Tartarians comming, was very much afraid, and got all the Mercenaries that he could to his fuccour both Barbarians and Latines, and among it others hee had to his aide two thousand Latines vnder his two Captaines, the one called, Iohn de Limmado, who came from the lle of Cyprus, and the other Bonifacius de Molin, who was borne at Genua. The Soldan allo ient to his Neighbours, promiting many fauours and benefits to fuch as would affift him , by which meaner having

19. And after a little time Hoccora Can dyed , and a fonne of his facceeded in the Empire. called Gine Can, whose life was but short, and after him succeeded a Kinsman of his, called Mango Con, who was of very great power and hibdeed many Prouinces, and at length with a great Living he went into the Cathanan Sea to take a certaine Iland, which whiles he held befreged, the thesewo, 1. de Inhabitants of those parts being very subtile and ingenious, sent certaine Diners secretly under water, who continued fo long water the Ship, in which bee was, vntill they had made many to holes therein, fo chatche water came into it (no man obseruing nor stopping the leake) vitill the Ship fanke, and Maneo Can was drowned therein. Whereupon the refidue of the Tarrari-Rubruq. with ans returned home and chose his brother, called Cobila Can , for their Emperour , who raigned ouer them two and fortie yeeres, became a Christian, and founded a certaine Citie, called Ions, in the Kingdome of Cashay, which is reported to be greater then Rome; and in that Citie he dwel-Cable, or Cables led vntill his dying day. But leaving him, let vs speake of the three somes of Hocesta Can, and of Haoloon, and of his Heires. 20. Iochi, the eldest sonne of Hoccota Can, rade toward the West with all that people which his Father had given him, and there finding fruitfull and pleafant Countries, abounding in all kinde of riches, he fixed his Tents, and ruled ouer the Kingdome of Twoquesten, and the lefter 20 Perfis, even to the River Philos, where his people inhabiting ever fince, are exceedingly multiplied in persons and riches, and the Heires of Jachs have succeeded one the other in those Dominions to this prefent, and those Countries are at this day ruled by two Brothers, the one called See 47. Chapt. Chapar, the other Doar, who have divided those Countries betweene them, and doe possesse them peaceably.

The fuceeffe of 21. Bayde, the second some of Hoccata Can, with the Tartarians which his Father gaue him, rode towards the North, vntill he came to the Kingdome of Cumania, where the Cumansans having many armed men , opposed themselves, and defended their Land against them. But His victorie o- being at length ouer-come, they fied to the Kingdome of Hangaria, where are yet many Cumaminus fo called minus inhabiting. Baydo having beaten the Camanians out of their Countrie, went to the King- 20 dome of Ruffia and conquered it, and possessed the Land of Gazaria (which is in the Northerne part of Taurica) and the Kingdome of Bulgaria, and by the way which the Cumanians had fled, he came to the Kingdome of Hangaria. Afterwards the Tartarians went towards the parts of Germanie, till they came to a certaine River that runneth through the Dukedome of Auftria: La, all now Defent, where they thought to have passed over a Bridge which they found there. But Frederick the Now Minicania. Duke of Ansfria, and others, that bordered neere it, had fortified the Bridge so that the Tararia. ans were denyed passage. Bayde thereupon, incensed with furie, commanded that all should passe through the water, and himselfe was the first that entred, exposing thereby himselfe and His drowning all his followers to apparant danger of death: for fuch was the breadth of the River and the violence of the streame, that their Horses were wearied before they could come to the farther banke 40 of the River. Which the refidue feeing which were not yet entred into the water, they were confounded with griefe, and returned to Ruffia, and Cumania which they formerly had conquered, as hath beene declared; and never fince that have the Tanarans attempted against Germa-His posteritie. nie. But the posteritie of Boyde hath ever fince successuely held those Lands which he subdued. a Othimafter And he which now raigneth there, is called a Toches, and ruleth peaceably and quietly.

23. Cangaday (or Chagoday) with those Tarzars which his Father gaue him, rode towards the South, even to the parts of India the leffer. There he found many Defarts, Mountaines, and drie Lands not inhabited, fo that hee could not passe that way ; but having lost many of his People, Horses, and other Beasts, he turned him towards the West, and after much labour came to his brother lochs, to whom he related what had befalse him : who taking compassion on his so b Orrather of brother, gaue him and his people a good part of those Countries which hee had : and ever after. Basels for the those two brethren dwelled together and their Progenie, vntill this day inhabite in those parts, Successors of yet in such fort, that those which descended of the younger brother, doe beare a kinde of revelathi, were na- rence to the posteritie of the Elder , and so being content with their Portions , they live peacemed in the 10 ably and quietly together: and that Succeffor of b locks that now liveth, is called Barach.

22. In the yeere of our Lord 1253. Haython, the King of Armenia, seeing that the Tartarians had in a manner subdued all the Kingdomes, Countries, and Lands, even to the Kingdome of Turke, taking Counfell of the wife, he refolued to goe in person to the Emperour of the Tartariens, the better to infinuate himfelfe into his fauour, and to make league with him. But firll he fent his brother, Lord Smibaldy, Constable of the Kingdome of Armenia, to obtayne fafe con- 69 duct for him : who carrying with him many Presents , and going attended with a goodly companie, dispatched in good order the businesse for which he was fent, yet stayed hee by the space of foure dayes before he came backe to Armenia: but at his returne, he related to the King what he had seene and done : who without delay departed in secret manner disguised, because it might be dangerous for him to be knowne in the Kingdome of Timbis, through which hee must needes make his journey : and as God would, at his comming thither, he found that the Solden of Turkie was ouerthrowne by a Tartarian Captaine, whom hee met with there and made himselfe iourney, knowne vnto him, who when he vnderstood him to be the King of Armenia, and that hee was going toward the Emperour, entertayned him very honorably, and caused him to bee conducted to the Kingdome of Camania, and beyond the Iron gate;

CHAP, S.S. 2, The Armenian King Difficelb the Can. His Demands & answer. 115

And afterwards, other Tartarian Captaines caused him to bee conducted over all other Countries and Places, vntill he came to . Almalech (or Cambala) where Mango Can their Empe- c It feemes roug refided: who rejoyced much at the comming of the King of Armenia, and the rather for Caracanan that from the comming of Changens Can ouer the Mountaine Belgian; no other great Prince had which then come to meet him, and therefore hee received and entertayned him with much honour and love, the Kings Giand game write him fome of the greatest persons about him to attend, and associate him at his pleatie, or Cambain fure, and did him many other favours; But the King of Armenia having refled certaine dayes, as Ramufio increated the Emperour to vouchfafe him Audience in those affaires, for which hee was come, hath it. and to give him licence to returne. The Emperour very graciously answered him, that he would most willingly accomplish all his defires, and that it was very acceptable voto him that he came of his owne accord.

The King with good deliberation made feuen Petitions. First, He defired that the Empe- The King of rour and all his people would be baptized in the Christian Faith, leaving all other Seas. Se. Amenia his condly, That there might be a perpetuall peace and friendship established betweene the Christi- Demands. ans and the Tartarians. Thirdly, That in all Countries which the Tartarians either had conquered or should conquer, the Churches and Churchmen, whether secular or religious, might be free and exempted from all fernitude and payments. Fourthly, That he would deliver and free the holy Land, and the holy Sepulcher of our Lord, out of the hands of the Saracons, and restore them to the Christians. Fiftly, That he would endeuour the destruction of the Calipb of Bala dach, who was the head and chiefe Doctor of the Sect of Mahametifme. Sixtly, Hee required that a speciall Charter might be granted him, that of whatsoener Tarrarians especially such as should be nearest to the Kingdome of Armenia hee should bee occasioned to demand aide, they thould forthwith be readie to affifthim. Seventhly, He craved that all the Lands of the jurif-30 diction of the Kingdome of Armenia, which the Saracons had insuaded, and were or should happen to be recourred by the Tartarians, might be reftored to the King of Armenia, and that fuch as he should get from the Saracens, hee quight peaceably and quietly eniony. Mange Can having The answere considered the Petitions of the King of Armenia, calling before him all his chiefe Captaines and of the Tata. Counfellers in their prefence, made him answere after this manner. Because that the King of vian. Armenia of his owne accord, and not of compulsion, is come vitto vs from remote parts; it befeemeth the Imperiall Maiestie to yeeld him all his demands that are lawfull and honest; Therefore to you, O King of Armenia, Wee returns this answere, That wee will accept of all your Requests made, and will cause them all (God-willing) to bee duely accomplished : first . I my selte being Emperour and Lord of the Tartarians, will bee baptised in that Faith which the 40 Christians hold at this day; withing and admining all my Subjects to doe the like : yet not entending to force any thereunto. To your second, We will and agree that there be a perpetuall peace betweene the Tatarian and Christians, yet with this caution, that your felie bee a chiefe Pledge and Surerie that the Christians observe on their behalfe the like peace and amitie towards vs , as wee for our part intend inviolably to keepe towards them. Wee grant alfo, That all the Churches of Christians and their Clergie-men what soener, either Secular or Religious, shall enioy their Priuledge and Immunitie of Libertie and Exemption throughout the Dominions of our Empire, and that none shall molest them any kinde of wayes. Touching the matter of the holy Land, we say, That if we could conveniently we would willingly goe thicher in person, for the reuerence we beare to our Lord Iefus Chrift. But because we have many occasions of imporso tance to flay vs in these parts, wee will take order with our Brother Halon for the due accomplishment of that service in all points as it behooveth, for the freeing of the Citie of Hierasalom and all the holy Land, out of the hands of the Pagans, and restoring it to the Christians.

Concerning the Caliph of Baldach, We will give order to Baydo, our Captaine of the Tartarians, which are in the Kingdome of Tarkie, and the rest thereabouts, that they bee all obedient See the 18. to our Brother, whom wee will have to deftroy the Calipb as our capitall and deadly Enemie. and a4 Chap-The Charter which the King of Armenia delireth for affiliance from the Tartarians, Wee wish it tirs. to bee drawne according to his defire, and wee are readie in all things to confirme it. Laftly whereas the King Armenia requireth , That the Lands of his Kingdome, which the Saraceals had taken from, and haue fince beene recoursed by the Tartarians, may be reflored write him, we Pole calls this 60 freely and frankly accord it, willing our Brother Haloon to fee fuch restitution made without Haloon, Vian.

24. After that Mango Can had thus liberally accorded the Requests of the King of Arme- Mann Can mia and confirmed them by Charters, he would forthwith receive the Sacrament of Baptiline, and with his people was accordingly baptifed by the hands of a certaine Bishop, who was Chancellor of the King of is baptifed.

3.

Of Gino Can the third Em-Derour The former Friars mencion P!-no C-veini was with the : former, and Mangu. Mango Can drowned. los the great

Bajde Northof the Caffle tioned by Plus L. GIL. DOW

Cangadays enterprtie.

Haloons conquest of Persia and Bagdet. Chaliphs rieb-poore diet. LIB. I.

Armenia, and all that were of his houshold with many other great Personages of both Sexes, And then he made choice of such as were to accompany his Brother Haloon, about the enterprize of the Holy Land. After Halom and the King of Armenia departed, and rode both together vntill

The verage of Haloon with they palled ouer the great River Philos, then Haloon with his mightie Armie invaded the Coun-King Haption. treyes and Lands every where, and in less then fix moneths hee subdued easily the whole King-Profapossessed dome of Persia, because it was without a Ruler, or Governour, and tooke in all the Countreyes withous refiftance, even till he came to the Land of certayne Infidels, which are called Affaffint, hauing neither Law nor Religion, but liuing as their Prince and Lord, commonly called " Sexmonte, see Pa's montio, instructeth them at whose pleasure and commandement they willingly and readily expose themselves to death. These had a certayne impregnable Castle, called Tigado, which was so to well furnished with all kind of necessary prouision, and so strongly built and seated, that they feared no affault. Halom therefore commanded one of his Captaynes to take with him tenne thousand of those Tartarians, which hee had left in Persia, and in no wife to depart from the fiege of that Caftle vntill hee had taken it, fo that they remayned at the fiege thereof, by the In the Latine space of seven yeares both Winner and Summer, which at last was yeelded up by the Affassia. it is 17. Remuf only for want of clothes, but not for any penury of victuals, or fearfitie of any other thing, whites Polo hach but 3. Haloon employed himselfe in ordering of the Kingdome of Persia, and besieging the Castle of the Assassia, the King of Armenia tooke leave of him to returne, because hee had beene long out of his Kingdome : Haloon therefore licenced him to depart, and giving him many great gifts, direceted his Precept to Baydo, residing in the Kingdome of Fackie, which he had subdued, that he 20 should conduct him safely to the entrance of his owne Kingdome, which in all things he fulfilled, so that after three yeares and a halfe of absence, the King of Armenia, through the mercie of Iesus Christ, came joyfully home into his owne Countrey.

Stner de Tigade befic-

Ha'osa foiour-Calipb taken.

25. Halson having ordered the Kingdome of Persia in convenient manner, went into a cerneth in Sorloch, tayine Prouince neere to Armenia, called Sorlock, where he repoied and recreated himselfe all the Sommer, and at the beginning of Winter he befieged Baldach, in which the Calipb relided, who was the chiefe Master and Doctor of the Irreligious Sect of Mahometifme, for which Enterprize Haoloon re-enforced his Army with thirtie thousand Tarrarians, that were in the Kingdome of Turkie, and assaulting the Citie by the shoare, hee tooke the same without any great difficultie, or delay. The Calipb was brought aline into the presence of Halom, and there was found in 30 Baldach, so much Treasure and Riches as would scarcely bee beleeved to bee in all the World befides; This Citie of Baldach was taken in the yeere 1258.

The Parlimo-

26. When Haoloon had disposed of the Citie of Baldach, he caused the Calipb to be brought vnto him, and all his Treasure to be laid before him, Then he demanded of him whether he had beene Lord of all that Treasure, who affirming, it was asked againe why hee had not made vie thereof in procuring the ayde of his Neighbours, and leayed mercenarie Souldiers to defend him and his Countrey from the power of the Tartarians, who fe answere was that hee thought his owne people had been sufficient. Then said Haloon to the Calipb, thou art said to be the chiefe Doctor & Teacher of all that beleeue the deceining Doctrine of Mahomer, & received rewards and Gifts of them all; therefore such and so precious a Master must be fed with no other meate 40 but with these precious things, which thou hast loued and kept so carefully, all which wee give thee for thy fuffenance : and fo commanded that the Calipb should bee shut into a Chamber, and that his Pearle and Gold should bee set before him, that hee might eate as much as hee would thereof, but that no other meate nor drinke should be given him; by which meanes the miserable wretch ended his life after a milerable manner. And there was no other Calipb in Baldach after flians. Mis Wife.

His death a. mongst his Treasures

27. After that Hadoon had subdued Baldach and all the Countrey round about, hee distributed the Prouinces amongst his Captaines and Rulers as he thought good, giuing charge that the The fauour o Christians should e uerie where he louingly vied, and be preferred to the government of Castles and Cities, and the Saracens held under ffreight subiection. Haloen had also a Wife called Don- 50 wards Chricofcaro discended of those Kings that came from the East being guided by the Starre of the Natiuitie of our Lord, which Ladie being a most denout Christian, was a great meanes of destroying the Temples of the Saracens, and prohibiting the Solemnities and Ceremonies of Mahomer, and finally rased their Temples to the ground, and brought the Saracens in such subsection that they durft not shew their heads.

King Naythen

28. After that Haeloon had rested a yeare, he sent to the King of Armenia, to meete him at the Citie Robays, in the Kingdome of Mesopotamia, because he entended to goe towards the Holy Land, that hee might reftore it to the Christians, whereupon, the King Haython of famous memorie tooke his Journey, accompanied with a great Armie both of Horsemen and Footmen, for at that time the Kingdome of Armenia, was in fo good effate, that it could ra fe a power of 60 t welue thouland Horse, and threescore thousand Footmen, whereof beeing an Eye witnesse my felfe, I can will gine testimonie thereof, when the King of Armenia was come according to this appointment of Haplan, and had conference with him touching the Enterprize of the Holy Land, he adusted him that because the Soldan of Halappi, ruled ouer all the Kingdome of SyCH AP.S.S.3. Halappi won by the Tartars, Civil wars, Scandall from Christians. 117

ria, in which the Citie of Ierufalem was feated, the way to get the Holy Land, was first to befiege the Citie of Halappi, being the chiefe Citie of Syria, which when he had wonne, it would not be difficult for him to subdue all the rest of that Countrey : which adulfe Haloon liked well, and besieged the Citie of Halappi (or Aleppa) which he found to be of great strength being well Balestri. walled and inhabited : therefore with Mines valer ground, with Slings and other Engines, hee begitt it fo ftraightly, and affaulted it fo manfully on every fide that albeit it feemed impresnable, yet in the space of nine dayes he obtayned it. In this Citie they found such incredible store Hallo taken of wealth as would hardly be beleeved, yet there was a Caitle in the midft of the Citie, that held out eleuen dayes after the Citie was taken, which at length was wonne by vidermining. So the 10 Citie Halapoi, and afterwards the King lome of Syria, was taken by Haclore in the yeare of our

29. But when the Soldan of Halappi name ! Melechnafer being then in the Citie of Damafens, both Latine & understood that the Citie of Halappi, with his Wife and Children in it, was taken, being utterly Itabas have destitute of Countell hee came and cast himselfe at the feet of Haloen, hoping thereby that his 1240 Wife and Children with some part of his Dominions would bee restored him. But the Soldan found himselte therein deceiued, for Halom fent him with his Wife and Children into Perfia, that thereby he might enion the Kingdome of Syria, the more fecurely. These things thus disposed, Haloon ga ne to the King of Armenia a great part of the spoile of Halappi, and of the Lands which he had inuaded, whereby the King of Armenia was strengthened with many Ca-20 files bordering on his Kingdome, which he fortified as he thought good; and after that Haoloon had fetled the affaires of those Cities and Countries which he had wonne, intending to goe to Ierusalem to free the Holy Land from Pagans, and to restore it to the Christians. There came to him a Mellenger the third day, who brought newes that the Tartarian Empire was vacant by the death of his Brother Mango Can, and that his comming was earneftly expected to bee his Successor therein, which report made him very forrowfull : In regard whereof hee could now proceed no further in person, but left ten thousand Tartars to keepe the Kingdome of Spria, vnder the command of a Captayne called Guiboga, to whom he gaue order that hee should conquer the Holy Land, and reftore it to the Christians. And so leaving his Sonne at Tauris, hee hastened Eastward himselfe by great lourneyes.

d. III.

of Cobil A CAN the fift Emperour, of the Tartarians: Of the Warre with BARCHA, and Tartarian quarrell with the Christians , HAO-EAUN'S death. Atts of the Soldan of Egypt. Of ABAY A and other Sonnes and Succeffors of HALDON.

Ve before he could come to the Kingdom of Perssa, he heard that the Nobles & Princes had placed his Brother Cobial Cos in the Imperial Seat of the Teresr, which he heard was beene
with the was at Teresr's where he waterflood that Bereast (vs. Bereast) was marked by had placed his Brother Cobila Car in the Imperial Seat of the Tartars, which he heard war between whilft he was at Tamis : where he vnderstood that Barcat (or Barcha) was marching Haston and whilst new start a series a result of the series of the se beganne a very great Battaile. But the Ice being broken by the great multitude of Horfes and Guisegaoithe Men, there was drowned on the one fide and on the other thirtie thousand Tartar; Infomuch, Kindted of the that the Armies on each fide returned. But Guiboga whom Haoloon had left in the Kingdome of three Kings Syria, and the Province of Palestina held those Countreyes peaceably, and loued the Christians that came to well, for he was of the Progenie of the three Kings which went to worship the Natiutite of our Nationie of 50 Lord. But when he had laboured earneftly to reduce the Holy Land againe under the power of Chinft. the Christians, the Deuill sowed the seed of scandall, and discord betwixt him and the Christians of those parts, which hapned on this manner. In the Land of Belforte, which is of the Ter- Belfortes ritory of the Citie of Sidon, there were fundry Townes and Villages inhabited by Saracens, which paid certayne Tribute to the Tartars, on whom some of Sidon and Belforte made divers rodes and spoyles killing fundry of the Saracens, and carrying others away Captine with a great drone of Cattle. A Nephew of Cuiboga remayning neere thereabouts, followed speedily after those Christians that had committed those out-rages to tell them on the behalfe of his Vncle, that they should dismisse their bootie. But some of them vnwilling to large their prey they had 60 taken, ranne vpon him, and flue him, with diners other Tartarians that accompanyed him. Gui. He destroyeth boga hearing that the Christians had slaine his Nephew, rode presently and tooke the Citie of the Citie of Sidon, difmanteled the walls thereof, and flue fome few Christians, the rest fauing themselves Sidon. in an Iland, And neuer after would the Tartars trust the Christians of Syria, neither durst they put confidence in the Tartari, who were afterwards driven out of the Kingdome of Spia by the Saracens, as shall be declared.

21. Whiles

Tine Soldans enterprize a-

21. Whiles Haoloon was bufie in the warre with Barcat, as hath beene faid, the Soldan of Egypt affembling his Armie came to the Province of Palestina, and in a place called Hamalech. grinft Guiboga, he royned battaile with Guiboga and his Tartars, where Guiboga was flaine, and his Armie defeated. The Tarrare which escaped went into Armenia , and by this meanes the Kingdome of Saria was wholly tobdoed by the Saracens, fauing certayne Cities of the Christians, which were feated neere the Sea. When Halson vnderitood how the Soldan of Egypt had inuaded Stria. Hastons prepa-Hand driven thence his people, he gathered his Armie and fent to the King of Armenia, and to the ring to cenew King of Georgia, and the other Christians of the East to prepare themsclues against the Soldan of thewirs, dich. Egypt and the Saracens, and when his Armie was in readinefie a fickneffe feized him, of which he languished the space of a fortnight, and then dyed, by whose death the enterprize of the Ho- 10 ly Land had an end. Abaga his Sonne held the Dominion of his Father, who intreated the Em-Abaga his Son perour Cobila Can being his Vnele, to confirme him therein, to which he willingly accorded. So he was called Abaga Can, and began to reigne in the yeare of our Lord 1264.

22. Abaga was wife and gouerned prosperously in all things, two only excepted, one that he would not be a Christian, as his Father had beene, but worshipped Idols, beleeuing the Idolatrous Priests. The other, that he was alwayes in warres with his Neighbours, by reason wherof the Soldan was long in quiet, and the power of the Saracens much increased. Those Tartars (or rather Tarks) which could escape from out the Dominion of the Tartars, fled vnto the Soldan, leeking to avoid the heavie burthens which the Tartars imposed on them. And the Soldan dealt politikely, for he sent Messengers by Sea to the Tartars, in the Kingdomes of Camania, and 20 Ruffia, and made composition and agreement with them, that when some Abaga should moone warre against the Land of Egypt, then they should inuade his Countrey, for which he promised them great gifts, by meanes whereof Abaga could not well inuade the Land of Egypt, but the Soldan could early without relitance inuade the Christians in the parts of Syria, infomuch, that the Christians lost the Citie of Antioch, and divers other places of strength, which they held in

Bendecar Solmenia Ramusio

33. Moreover, Bendecar the Soldan of Egypt was so fortunate that he much abased the Kingdome of Armenia. For it hapned that the King of Armenia with many of his men was gone to the Tartars, which the Soldan hearing, fent a Coptayne of his to invade the Kingdome of Arcals him Ban- menia. The Sonnes of the King of Armenia, gathering together all that could beare Armes, en- 10 countred the Egyptians in the Confines of their Kingdome, and relifted them couragiously; but the Armie of the Armenians being ouerthrowne, one of the Kings Sonnes was taken, and the other was slaine in battaile. So that the Saracens thereby wasted and spoyled all the Kingdome or Armenia, and carryed infinite riches thence to the great damage of the Christians, whereby the Enemies power was much encreased, and the Kingdome of Armenia wondroully weakned, The King whose endeauour was wholly bent about the destruction of the Infidels, having heard this most vanappie newes of his owne Countrey, busied his thoughts night and day how to afflict the Saracens, and oft-times very earneftly dealt with Abaga, and his Tartars to attempt He conclude in the ouerthrow of faithlesse Mahomet, and the reliefe of the Christians. But Abaga excused himselfe by reason of the warres, in which he was daily entangled with his Neighbours. The 40 King of Armenia feeing that hee could not have any prefent ayde of the Tartarians, fent and made truce by his Messengers with the Soldan of Egypt, that he might redeeme his Sonne which was Prifoner. The Soldan also promised him that if he restored him a friend of his called Angoldscar whom the Tarrars held captine, and yeelded up the Cattle Tempfach , and some holds of the Citie of Halappi, which he had gotten in the time of Haeloon, hee would fet his Sonne at libertie. Whereupon the Soldan, having received his friend, and the Cattle of Tempfacke beeing Greete Monkes yeelded, and two other Cassles throwne downe at his appointment, delivered his Sonne out of changed their Prison, and restored him accordingly. Then afterwards King Haython of famous memorie. hanames, appea- using reigned fortie fine yeares, and done much good to the Christians, yeelded up his Kingdome rethby theex- and Dominion to his Sonne Linen, whom he had delivered out of captivitie, and renouncing this 50 ample of Alex- Kingdom of the World became protested in Religion, and was called Macharius, changing his in Nices, p.48.6. name (according to the custome of the Armenians) when they enter into Religion, and in and of Andre. Thort time after dyed in peace in the yeare of our Lord 1270.

nicus the Emperour in Greand of Carta-

34. This King of Armenia Liuone was wife, and gouerned his Kingdom prouidently, and being much beloued by his owne People, and by the Tartars, he laboured earnestly to destroy the gon lib, 9 p.47 Saracens, to that in his time Abaga made peace with al his neighbors, who of long time had been his enemies. Then the Soldan of Egypt entred the Kingdome of Turkie, and flue many of the Tartars, and draue them out of many Townes. For a Saracen, called Parmana, being Captaine Calcondilas lib.r. ouer the Tartars that were in Turkie, rebelled against Abaga, and fought the destruction of the Abaga entred Tartarians. Abaga hearing thereof, posted thither so speedily, that in fifteene dayes hee rode 60 the Kingdome fortie dayes iourney. The Soldan hearing of his comming departed fuddenly, not daring to make any longer abode. Yet could not fo speedily withdraw himselfe, but that the Tartars toilowing fwiftly, ouertooke the rereward of his Armie in the entrie of the Kingdome of Egypt, in a place called Pafolanke. There the Tartarians tushing on them, tooke two thouland Hotteman of the Saracens, befide much riches, and fine thousand of the Cordines which lived in that Countrie. Abaga being come to the Confines of Egypt, was perswaded to goe no farther for heat : for that Land is very hote, and his Tartars, and their beafts having come speedily from farre, could hardly haue indured it, by reason whereof hee returned into Turkee, and spoiled and wasted all the Countries that had rebelled, and yeelded to the Soldan. But he caused the Traytor Parnana with assunder and his partakers to be cut afunder in the midit, after the Tartarian manner, and part of his flesh to eaten. he ferued in all his meats, whereof he and his Captaines did eat. Such was the reuenge of King Abasa on the Traitor Paruana.

CHAP.5. $.3. Paruana twife executed. Turkie refused. Mangodaniors folly. 110

Abaga having effected his defires in Turkie, and enriched his Tartars with the spoyles To of the rebellious Saracens, he called to him the King of Armenia, and offered him the kingdome King Liuonoreof the rebellious surveys, the content and hee had been ever faithfull to the Tartarians. But the fulcth the offer of the King-King of Armenia being discreet and wife, rendred great thankes to Abaga for so great a Present, dome of The but excused himselfe from the accepting thereof, as vnable to governe two Kingdomes. For the &. Soldan of Egypt was in his full strength, and earnestly bent against the Kingdome of Armenia: to that hee had enough to doe to prouide for the defence thereof. Yet aduited him to fettle and difpose the Kingdome of Turke in such fort ere his departure, that there might bee no feare of Rebellion afterwards: and in any case to permit no Saracen to command there. Which aduice Abaga accepted of, and neuer after suffered any Saracen to beare rule in that Country. The Heavingth the Abaga accepted of, and neuer area inferience any swares to test full in the Country of delivering of king of Armenia then delived him to thinke of delivering the Holy Land out of the hands of levislating inom the Pagans: wherein he promifed all his best endeauour: and wished the King to fend mellen- Pagans.

gers to the Pope, and to other Princes of Christendome for their assistance, So Abaga having ordered the affaires of Turkie, returned to the Kingdome of Corazen, where hee had left his familie. Corazen. Bendecar the Soldan of Egypt, after he had received fuch damage by the Tartars, was poisoned, died in Damafens: whereof the Christians of those parts were very glad. And the Saracens The death of very forrowfull : for they had not his like after, as they themselves commonly reported. For his the Soldan, fonne, called Melechabic, succeeded him, who was bone driven out of his Dominion by one Melechabic his called Elfi, who violently viurping, made himfelfe Soldan.

dome of Syria, and were spoyling and forraging, tilb they came to the Citie Aman, now called Camella, which is feated in the midft of Syria. Betore this Citie lieth a faire great Playne, where led Turara. When they thought the Soldans Power vtterly overthrowne, Mangodanier who never had feene the conflicts of warre before, being afraid without any reasonable cause of certaine Saracens, called Beduins, withdrew himfelfe out of the field , having the better, forfaking the King of Armenia, and his Captaine which had preuayled against his enemies. When the Soldan, which thought he had loft all, faw the field cleere, and all abandoned, he got vpon a little hill, with four armed men, and flood there. The King of Armenia returning from the pursuit,

36. The time appointed being come, when Abaga was to begin his warre against the Sol- ceffor.

dan of Egyps, hee appointed his brother Mangodanior to goe to the Kingdome of Syria with Elfs the Soldan, 30 thirtie thousand men, being Tartars, and couragiously to overcome the Soldan, if he came in battell against him: or otherwise to take in the Castles and Holds of the Countrey, and deliver them to the Christians, if the Soldan should shun the fight. When Mangodanior with his Armie Mangodanior fetting forward, was come neere the Confines of Armenia, het sent for the King of Armenia, nerall by his who came presently voto him with a goodly companie of Horse: so that they entred the King-Brother.

the Soldan of Egypt had affembled his Power, intending to fight with the Tartarians. And there He comment the Saracen on the one fide, with the Christians and Tartars on the other fide, fought a great to battell abattell. The King of Armenia with the Christians ruled and commanded the right wing of the Soldan.

40 Armie which inuaded the Soldans left wing manfully, and put them to flight, and purfued them three dayes journey, even to the Citie Aman. Another part of the Soldans Armie was also rou- Turara. ted by Amalech a Tartarian Captaine, who purfued them also three dayes journey, to a Citie cal-and miffing Mangodanior in the field, was much altonied, and imagining which way hee should 50 be gone, followed after him. But Amalech returning from the enemies whom he had purfued, abode two dayes expecting Almach his Lord, supposing that he had followed after him, as he ought, for the further subduing of his enemies, and the Countrey which they had ouercome: till at last, having heard of his retrait, leaving his victorie, hee made speed after him; whom hee found on the banke of the River Enphrates staying for him. And then the Tartars returned to their owne Pronince. But the King of The King of Armenia fultained much loffe, and hard adventure in his returne : for the Herles of the Christians dimona, his of the Kingdome of Armenia, were to wearied and ipent with the length of the way, and want his returne. of Fodder, that they were not able to travell, so that the Christiani going scatteringly by vnvfuall wayes, were often found out, and flayne without mercy by the Saracens inhabiting those

And this miladuenture of Mangodanior happened in the yeere of our Lord 1282. When Abaga understood the successe hereof, he assembled all his people, and when hee was Abaga prepareadie to fet forward with all his power against the Saracens, 2 certaine Saracen, the fonne of rethareuenge the Deuill, came to the Kingdome of Perfia, and prevayled by gitting great gifts to f me that

60 parts: Infomuch that the greatest part of the Armie was lott, and in a manner all the Nobility.

euzenus the deftroyed

served neere about Abaga, in such fort, that both he and his brother Mangadanior were poylowards disclosed by the mischieuous Malefactors themselues. And so died Abaga Can in the them a brother of his, called Tangodor, who had overgone the rest of his brethren. In his youth he had received the Sacrament of Baptisme, and was baptised by the name of Nicholus. But being come to riper yeeres, and keeping companie with Saracens, whom hee loued, hee became a wicked Saracen, and renouncing Christian Religion, would be called Mahomet Can, and labouof Iniquitie; in such fort, that those that hee could not compell by violence, hee a lured by preferments and rewards: infomuch that in his time many of the Tariarians became proteffed Saracens, as at this day appeareth. This Child of perdition commanded the Churches of the Christians to be destroyed, and forbade them to vie any of their religious Rites or Ceremonies.

Hee caused the doctrine of Mahomet to bee publikely preached, the Christians to bee banished, and their Churches in the Citie of Tauris veterly to bee destroyed. Hee fent Messengers also to the Solden of Egypt, and concluded a Peace and a League with him, promiting that all the Chris Hee fest more recover to the King of Armente in Georgie, and to the other Christian Princes of 10 those parts to come vnto him without delay. But they refolued rather to die in battell then to obey his commandement, for other remedie they could finde none. And the Christians being now in such anguish and bitternesse of heart, that they rather desired to die then to line, even God (which neuer refuseth them that put their truft in him) sent consolation to them all. For a Brother of this Mahomet, with a Nephew of his also, called Argon, opposing themselves,

37. After the death of Abaga Can the Tartars affembled themselves, and ordayned over

He is poisoned ned both in one day: and died both within eight dayes after. The trueth whereof was after-Tanzodor the yeere of our Lord 1283.

brother and Suce for of Abaga.

Of a Christian

red by all meanes to turne all the Tartarians to that irreligious Sect of Mahomet the some In rurne: h Sarafians within his Dominion (hould become Saracens, or elfe lofe their heads, which gave the Sa-

Hee feeketh to betray the Kings of Armenia and Georgia.

Hee is accused and schelling against him for his euill deeds did signific to Cobila Can the great Emperour of the

Argon of a

made King.

Hisrenenge

to Civile Can. Tartarians, how he had forfaken the steps of his Ancestors, and was become a wicked Saracen: labouring with all his might to bring the relt of Tartars to be Saracem also. Which when Cobila Can vnderstood he was much displeased thereat : insomuch that he sent and required Mahomes to reforme his euill wayes, for otherwise he would proceed against him. Which message 30 replenished him with wrath and indignation, infomuch that he being perswaded there was none He flayethhis that durst gainfay his proceedings but his Brother and his Nephew Argon, he caused his Brother to be flayne: and intending the like to his Nephew, he went against him with a mightie Armie. Argon being not of strength to withstand his forces, betooke himselfe to a strong Hold among the Mountaines; which that Sonne of Iniquitie belieged with his deuillish Armie, racens cause of much reioycing, and made the Christians very sad.

Argon finally yeelded hirafelfe, with condition that he might ftill entoy his Dignitie and Dominion. But Mahomet deliuered him to the Constable and others of the Nobilitie, to bee kept in Prifon. And departing towards the Citie of Tauris, where he left his wives and children, he gaue direction that his Armie should come softly after him : but appointed the Constable, and such as he trusted most, to put his Nephew to death fecretly, and to bring him his head. These 40 things thus hastily ordered and directed, there was amongst those that had received the command of that bloudy execution, a man of some Place and Authoritie, brought vp vnder Abaga the Father of Argon, who having compassion of his distresse, tooke Armes, and in the night time slue the Constable of Mahomet and all his followers, and delivering Argon, made him Lord and Ruler of all: fome for feare, and others for love being obediene to his will and commandement. Argon being thus established, accompanied with his faithfull followers, pursued presently after Mahomes, whom he ouertooke and feized on before he came to Tatoris, and caufed him after their manner, to be cut afunder in the midit. And such was the end of that curfed Caitiffe Mahomet, before he had fate two yeeres in his feat.

Of Argon the Sonne of Araga, and Recatto his Brother; of Baido, and of the exploits of Casan against the Soldan of Egypt, and others.

N the yeere of our Lord 1285. after the death of Mahumet, Argon the sonne of Abaga Can, would not take on him the title of Can, vntill he had received commandement from the great Can Soueraigne Lord and Emperour, to whom he dispatched Messen- 60

drige is can ced much of his faceeffe against Mahomet and fent fome of his great Officers, to confirme dried have gon in his Dominion, who was thenceforth called Can, and much respected of all. For he was of a goodly aspect and presence, couragious and wife in his proceedings, much regarding and honouring the Christians. The Churches over-throwne by Mahomet he repayred. The Kings of Armenia and Georgia, with the other Christian Princes of the East, came vnto him, defiring his best countaile, and helpe that the holy Land might be freed from the Pagans. Are or very gracroully answered, That he would gladly doe any thing that might tend to the honour of God, and the aduancement of Christian Religion, and that he intended to make peace with his Neighbours, that hee might the more freely and fecurely follow that enterprise. But Argon, before the execution of these good designments, dyed in the fourth yeere of his raigne, And a Brother He dyeth. of his, called Regatto, succeeded him, who was a man of small valour, as shall be after declared.

39. In the yeere of our Lord 1289. after the death of Argon Can , his brother Regains was To his Succeffor, being a man of no Religion : in Armes he was of no valour, but was altogether giuen ouer to beaffly Lixurie, and fatiating his infatiable appetite with superfluous meates and drinkes : and did nothing elfe by the space of fix yeeres which he raigned, infomuch that being hated of his fubirects and contemned of strangers, he was finally strangled by his Peeres. After whole death ando, a Kiniman of his fucceeded him, who was vpright and constant in Religi- Bando fuccee. on, and did many favours to the Christians, but he foone ended his dayes, as shall be declared. deth him.

40. In the yeere of our Lord 1295, after the death of Regaits, his Kinfman Bayde ruled over the Tartars. He being a good Christian builded the Christian Churches, and commanded that none hould Preach or publish the Doctrine of Mahomet amongst the Tartarians. But because those of the Sect of Mahomet were many, they could hardly be induced to bee obedient to that 20 commandement of Baydo, and therefore fent Messengers secretly to Cafan the sonne of Argono, promifing to give him the Dominion which Baydo held, and to make him their Lord and Ruler. if he would renounce the Christian Religion. Casan caring little for Religion, but greatly affecting Dominion, promifed to doe whatfocuer they would, and fo began an open rebellion, wherevpon Baydo affembled his people, thinking to have taken Cafan, not knowing of the Treaton which his people had wrought against him. But when they came to the Field, all the Mahometiffs leaving Baydo, fled voto Cafan, to that Baydo being forfaken, thought to have escaped by The death of flight, yet was purfued and flaine by his Enemies.

41. After the death of Baydo; Cafan being made Ruler over the Tartars, at the beginning Cafan fuccess of his raigne, durst not gainfay what hee had promised the Mahometists that had promoted him deth. 30 thereto, and therefore shewed himselfe for a while very austere to the Christians. But when hee found himfelfe well and firmely fettled in his Dominion , hee began to honour and cherish the Christians, doing them many favours as shall be declared. First, therefore hee destroyed many great Ones, who had beene perf waders with him to become a Saracen, and to perfecute the Chrifians. Then hee commanded all the Tartars within his Dominion, to bee readie with their Armour and all necessarie furniture, to attend him for a Conquest of the Kingdome of Egypt, and ouer-throw of the Soldan, and fent to the King of Armenia, and the King of Georgia, and other Christian Princes of the East in that behalfe. At the beginning of the Spring Cafan gathered his forces, and first fet forward towards Baldach: and at length turned towards the Land of Egppt. The Soldan, called Melechnafer, who had long before some intelligence of the comming Melechnaser 40 of the Tartars, affembled all his power, and came before the Citie of Aman, which is feated in the soldans

the middest of the Kingdome of Syria. Cases understanding that the Soldan meant to give him battaile, forbore to befrege any Citie or Cattle, but hafted speedily to the place where the Soldan was, and pitched his Tents but one dayes journey from him in certaine Meadowes, where was plentie of forrage and feeding, where he refted his Followers and their Horfes which were wearied with their trancil. Amongst whom was a Saracen, called Calpback (or Capchick) who had calchack douferued the Soldan, and was fled from him to Cafan, for feare of imprisonment and punishments ble dealing. for his miffe-demerits. This Calphack had received fundrie favours and rewards of Casan, who reposed great confidence in him: yet, like a wicked Traytor, he disclosed the counsale and purpose of Casan to the Soldan and Saracens, acquainting them by Letters how Casan meant to 50 abide in those Meadowes, vntill they had sufficiently rested their Horses which were wondrously wearied, and therefore counfailed the Soldan to fet upon him before his Horfes were refreshed, whereby he might eafily ouer-come the Tartarians. The Soldan who thought to have expected the Tartars at the Citie of Aman, did hereupon The Soldans change his resolution, and with a chosen companie hasted with all speede to assaile Casan at vn- sudden on-set, awares. But his Espials and Scouts giving him notice of their approach. Cofan commanded his men presently to be set in order and manfully to relift them. He himselfe more bold then a Lion with fuch companie as hee had about him, rode to meete the Saracens, who had approached fo neere that they could not avoid the battaile. Cafan feeing that the refidue of his companie were fored to farre abroad in the Countrie for the feeding of their Horles, that they could not fudden. He dealeth po-60 ly come to him, he commanded those that were with him to diffmount from their Horses, and linkely. placing them in a Circle, made as it were a Wall of them, and with their Bowes and Arrowes caused his men to expect their Enemies, and not to shoote vittill they were sure to reach them, by which meanes the Tartars shooting altogether, wherein they are very skilfull and readie, wounded the foremost Hories of their Enemies in such fort that they fell before the rest, where-

CH AP. 5. S.4. Calfachs treason. Casans impediments to recover the Holy Land. 123

that Molay remayned Lieutenant in Syria for Cafan, who eft-soones by perswalion of the callada res-

to him the King of Armenia, and acquainting him with his purpose, hee told him that hee would willingly have delivered the Lands which hee had conquered into the Christians hands, if they had come to him, and that if they came hee would give order to Corolnfa to reftore them the Lands which they had formerly helden : and to yeeld them convenient supply for the repayring of their Castles and Fortresles. These things thus ordered, Casan tooke his iourney towards Melopotamia, but when hee came to the River Euphrates, hee fent word to Corolusa, that leaving twentie thousand Tartars under the command of Molay, hee should come speedily to him with the rest of the Armie. Cotolufa did as was commanded him , fo

10 Traytor Calfach, remooued towards the parts about lerufalem, to a place called Ganr, to finde fon.

by the rest following on with great furie, and finding the former overthrowne, fell themselves head-long over them: infomuch, that of all the Saracens there escaped few, which were not either overthrowne or elfe wounded to death, with the Arrowes of the Tartars.

The Soldan himselfe being in the Armie, fled as fast as hee could, which Cafin perceiuing, made his men get vp on their Horfes, and manfully to fet on their Enemies, being himselfe the forem of among ft them that entred the Armie of the Soldan, who with some small companie remayning fo long, fuffayned the brunt, vntill the Tartars came in Troupes well ordered to fight, and the 1 came the whole Armie on both fides to battaile, which endured from the Sunne riling

He outr-com- till the Ninth houre. But in the end, the Soldan with his Saracens fled, being not able to withstand the courage of Cafan, who did wonders with his owne hand, and pursued them with his 10 people, killing on every fide vntill it was darke night, and made fo great flaughter of the Saracons, that the Earth was coursed every where with their dead carkaffes. That night Cafes refled at a place, called Caneto, rejoycing exceedingly at that great victorie which God had given him Cantto. against the Saracens. This fell out in the yeere of our Lord 1301, on the Wednesday before the Feast of the Nativitie. 42. Then Cafan fent the King of Armenia, and a Leader of the Tartars, called Molay, with fortie thouland Horse, to pursue the Soldan as farreas the Delart of Egypt, being twelve dayes iourney diffant from the place where the battaile was fought, and willed them to expect him or fome Messenger from him at the Citie Gazara. And they departed speedily before the Sunne rifing, to follow after the S Idan. But fome three dayes after, Cafan fent for the King of Arme- 20 nia to returne, because he purposed to besiege the Citie of Damason, and willed Molay with the fortie thousand Tartars to pursue with speede after the Saracens, and to put what hee could take to the fivord. Yet the Soldan himfelfe flying very fwittly, and riding on Dromedaries both night and day, in the conduct and companie of certaine Bedains, escaped into the Citie of Babylon very strangely. But others of the Saracens fled severall wayes, as they thought they could best save themielues, and a great number of them going by the way of Tripolis , were flaine by the Chrifirans, which inhabited the Mountayne of Libanus. The King of Armenia returning to Cafan, found that the Citie of Aman had yeelded vnto him, fo that the whole treasure of the Soldan, and his Armie was brought into his presence: which was so great that every one maruailed, why the Soldan carried fo much treasure with him when he went to fight. Cafan, when he had gathered together all the riches and spoiles which they had gotten, bestowed them bountifully a- 30 mongit the Tartars, and the Christians his followers, whereby they were all made rich. And I Friar Haython, the Compiler of this Hiftorie, who was present in all Expeditions and Battailes, which the Tartars had with the Soldan, from the time of Haloon to this day, yet did I neuer see nor heare that any of the Tartarian Lords accomplished more in two dayes then did Cafan. For the first day, with a small companie of his owne, he ouer-came a great Armie of his Enemies, and did fuch exploits in his Perfon, that he wanne fame and commendations about all the rest. On the second day, such was his largeste, and so great this liberalitie of his heart, that of all the infinite wealth and treasure which hee got, hee kept nothing for himselfe, but a Sword and a Purse, in which was contayned certaine writings concerning the Land of Egypt, and the number of the Soldons Armie. And this was most maruailous about all the rest, how in so little Cafans dwarfish a body, and of so bad presence (for he seemed like a Monster) there could be so much vertue and flature and ill- rigour contayned: for among neere two hundred thousand Souldiers, there could hardly one of fauoured iea- leffe flature, or of worfe aspect be found. Therefore, because this Cafar lived in our time, it is fitting wee made the more ample narration of his Acts. And in regard that the Soldan who was ouerthrowne by Casan, is yet living at the writing of this Historie, they which intend to destroy, or any wayes to endamage the Saracens, may receive many advertisements out of these

> After some few dayes rest, Casan directed his course towards the Citie of Damascus : where the Citizens hearing of his approch, and fearing left if hee tooke them by force, they should die without mercy, by the aduice of the wifelt amongst them, fent with one consent their Messengers vnto him with offer of their Citie, which hee willingly accepted, and after a while rode towards the River of Damascus, on whose Bankes hee pitched his Tents, forbidding any damage to bee done to the Citie. Then the Citizens fent him divers gifts, and plentie of victuals for his Armie. There Cafan made his abode fine and fortie dayes with all his Followers, except those fortie thousand Tartars which were fent with Molay, who stayed his comming at the Citie of Gaccara.

> 43 While Cafan reposed himselfe neere Damasco, there came newes vnto him, how a Kinsman of his called Baydo, had entred into the Kingdome of Persia, and committed great spoile there in his absence : and thereupon hee resolued to returne to his owne. Leauing therefore his 60 chiefe Captaine Cotolufa, with part of his Armie for the cultodie of the Kingdome of Syras (whom hee willed Molay and the rest of the Tartars to be obedient vnto as to his Lieutenant) he fet Rulers and Gouernours over all the Cities, and committed the government of Damaleus to the Traytor Calfach, being not yet acquainted with his trayterous difpolition. Then calling

But in the Sommer time , Calfach ( who had formerly hatched Treason in his heart against Cafan, fent word fecretly to the Soldan, that hee would reftore him Damafens with the other Townes which Cafar had taken. The Soldan liked hereof, and couenanted to give him Danusco in perpetuall keeping, and part of his treasure with his sitter to wite. Insomuch, that shortly after, Calfach became Rebell, and caused all the strong places to rebell against the Tartars, bearing themselves bold on the heate of Sommer, in which they knew the Tartars could not ride nor yeeld any aide vnto their frie ds. When Molay perceined that they rebelled energy where, hee durft not flay any longer with fo small a companie, but tooke the shorter way good feeding and prouision for his Horses.

20 towards the Kingdome of Mesopotamia, and fignified thence to Casan all that had hapned in the Kingdome of Syria. Who feeing hee could not any way redresse it at that season, by reafon of heate, yet when the Winter approached, hee made very great preparation on the bankes of the River Euphrates, and fent over Cotolufa before with thirtie thousand Tartarian Horse-men, directing him that when hee came to the parts of Antiochia, hee should call voto him the King of Armenia, and the other Christians of the East, and of Cyprus, and with that ftrength should enter into the Kingdome of Syria, whiles hee prepared to come after with the strength of his Armie. Cotolufa did as hee was commanded, and with his thirtie thoufand Tartars went forwards till hee came to Antioch, and then fent to the King of Armenia, who came vnto him with his Armie. The Christians also in the Kingdome of Cyprus having 30 heard of the comming of Costafa, came feedly with their Gallies and other Veffels to the Ile called Anteroda, among whom was the Lord Tyron brother to the King of Cyrus, Malter Tyron. of the Holpitall of the Temple, with their Brethren of their Societie. And these being all readie to vnder-goe the service of Christ, there came a rumour that Cafan was dangerously sicke, that men dispayred of his recourrie. Whereupon Cosolusa with his Tartars returning towards Casan; the King of Armenia returned also into his Countrey; and the Christians at the Ile of Anterada to the Kingdome of Cyprus, by which meanes the businesse of the Holy Land was veterly abandoned, which happened in the yeere of our Lord 1301.

Againe, in the yeare of our Lord 1303. Cafan affembling a mightie Armie, came with great Cafan teness. preparation to the River Emphrates, intending to enter into the Kingdome of Syrie, and there either ware to deftroy the whole Sector (Mahomet, and to reftore the Holy Land to the Christians. But of Syrie. the Saracens fearing the comming of Casan, and doubting that they should not be able to withstand him when they had reaped and gathered their Corne and other fruits of the Earth, and had housed their cattell in strong holds, they set fire on the rest, that the Tartars when they came The Saucen might not find victuals for themselues, nor for forrage for their beasts. When Casan understood burne and what the Agarens had done, and how they had waited all the Land, confidering that his hor- waste their fes could not there be fed nor fuftayned, he refolued to remayne that Winter vpon the bankes of trey. the River Empirates, and to beginne his Journey at the beginning of the Spring, when the graffe began to sproute. For the Tatas are euer more earefull of their Horses then of themselves, being contented with the smallest pittance of any kind of nourshment for themselves,

Then Cafan sent for the King of Armenia, who came to him without delay, and lodged 50 limitele on the Riuer. Cafan extended three dayes loarney in length euen from a certayne Cafile called Cacabe, to another Caffle called Bir, which Caffles appertayined to the Saracens, yet Coccabe, yeelded without any affault vnto Cafan. But while Cafan abode there, expecting the conue- 50. nient feafon for effecting his defire on the Saracens, and to deliver the Holy Landout of their hands, the Deuil cart a new Obstacle in his way, for he had newes againe that Baydo ha lentred, Baydoreb: and made more poyles on his Land then before; so that it was necessary for him to returne to again. his owne, whereat being much grieued, in respect that he was constrayed so long to delay the businesse of the Holy Land, he commanded his Captayne Cotolusa with fortie thousand Tartars Control to to enter into the Kingdome of Syria, and to take Damafeo, and kill all the Saracens; and that the soul the King of Armenia should in one his people with Cotolifa. Cafen then returned into Perfet, Lemenia

60 Corolifa and the King besieged the Citie Amar: and huning certaine Intelligence that the 9 7% Cooping and the daily control with the commercial and individual they tooke it by affect proting all the Saraceus one with another to the tword. There they found great store of wealth ar thefe and the other Expuditions, till this time.

Wilde Arabs.

Demascus be-

Thence they went to the Citie of Damafens to befiege it, but the Citizens fent their Meffengers, defiring a Truce for three dayes which was granted them. The Scouts of the Tartars being almost a dayes Journey beyond Damafeus, tooke certayne Saracens whom they fent to Cotuloff a that he might examine them. Cotuloff being advertized by their that there were about twelue thouland Saracens Horlemen, with in two dayes Iourney from thence, which expected daily the comming of the Soldan. He rode presently with all speed, hoping to take them at vnawares : But it was almost night before Cotuloffa and the King of Armenia could reach thither. and they had Intelligence that the Soldan was come newly before them. Therefore being deceiued of their expectation to assaile those twelve thousand alone, some adulted them for the best to repose themselves that night being now somewhat late, and to set vponthe Enemie in the The obstinatie morning. But Cotulossa despiting the Soldan, and his people would not hearken to any aduice, but commanded his Armie to bee forthwith put in order : which the Saracens perceiuing, kept their standing, being on the one side fenced with a Lake, and with a Mountayne on another side.

and knowing that the Tarters could not come to affault them without danger, they would not goe forth to fight, but remayned in the place where they were, and when the Tartars thought wary Warrior, without any impediment to have affailed their Enemies; they found a small River betweene them, which in some places had no passage ouer: by meanes whereof much time was spent before they could passe ouer the River; but after they had passed the greatest part over the River, they fet manfully on their Enemies. Yet the Soldan flood still and would not remove from the Catalo Tah's place he was in, betwirt the Lake and the Mountayne; which Cotuloffa perceiuing, because the 20 darke night approched, he withdrew his company for that night and lodged them neere the Mountayne; only about a thousand Tartars, which could not passe the River, were not with him that night. The day comming, the Tartars againe couragiously fet vpon the Soldan; but as before, he would by no meanes come forth to fight, but defended himselse in that place of aduantage. So the Tartars continuing their affault from the morning vntill the ninth houre, beeing thirffie and ouer-wearie for lacke of water they retyred themselves in good order, leaving the Soldan and came to the Plaine of Damascus, where they had plentie of pasture and water at will. where they determined to abide vntill they had fufficiently reposed themselves and their

But the Inhabitants knowing, that the Armie of the Tariars was spread abroad in that Plaine, opened the Sluces of the River in the night time, whereby the waters rose so high in 10 eight houres ouer all the Plaine, that the Tartars were constrayned on the sudden to arise and depart, so that the night being darke, and the Ditches all filled with water, and no wayes nor pathes to be frene, they were all amazed in fuch fort that many Hories perifhed, and much Armour was loft, infomuch, that the King of Armenia endured much loffe, yet the day comming The Tattersing through the goodnesse of God, they elcaped the waters , but the Bowes and Arrowes of the Tartars being their chiefe weapons which they vie, and the rest of their Armour being all wet and veterly vnferuiceable, they were so assonied therewith, that if their Enemies had then purfue d them, they might have beene taken or flaine. Afterwards, the Tartars by reason that many had loft their Horses, returned fortly by small sournies to the bankes of the River Euphrates, 40 yet none of their Enemies durst follow or pursue them, but the River beeing risen and swolne through the abundance of raine that fell, many of the Armenians, as also of Georgians, perished therein, more then of the Tartars, whole Horses knew better to swimme: fo returned they into Perfia ruined and difgraced, not by the power of the Enemie, but by accident partly, partly by suill aduice. A great cause whereof was the obitinacie of Cotolusa, who would not regard any aduice that was given, for if he would have harkened to the countell of the wife, he might early have prevented those dangers.

And I Frier Hapthon the Compiler of this Historie, was present at all these proceedings : and He aydeth him if happily I treate more largely thereof then shall be thought convenient. I crave pardon in regard that I doe it to this end, that on like occasions happening these courses may bee called to minde. For these actions that are ordered by counsell, have commonly good and commendable events, but the rash and improvident Enterprizes, doe vsually faile of their wished successes. After that the King of Armenia had passed the River Euphrates with some losse, he resolved to goe to Cafan before he returned to his Kigdome of Armenia, and therefore hee went fire ght to the Citie of Ninine in which Cafan then refided. He entertayned the King with much honour, kindneffe, and magnificence, and being compassionate of his losses to make him some recompence of especiall fauour vnto him, he granted him a thousand Tartarians, continually in pay at his charge for the defence of his Kingdome, and also granted him out of the Kingdome of Turkie, a yeerely pension, for the maintenance of another thousand Armenian Horsemen yeerely at his pleasure, the King thus recompenced, having taken his leave, returned to the Kingdome of Ar. 60 menia, which Cafan had enjoyned him to watch warily ouer, vntill God pleafed to enable him personally to goe to the reliefe of the Holy Land.

CASAN dyeth, CARBAND & Succeedeth; his Apostasie. The Authors entranceinto a Religious Habit. Of TAMOR Can the fixth Emperour, and of CHAPAR, HOCHTAI, and CAR. BANDA, three other Tartarian

He King of Armenia returned fafely to his Kingdome, but after hee came thither hee found little rest there, for after it to pleased God, that Casan was surprized with a grieuous infirmitie, and haumg gouerneu wies; him the refere hee made his laft that his wisdome should bee commended in his death. Therefore hee made his laft that his wisdome should be commended in the should so Carhaamda his Heire and Successor grieuous infirmitie, and haumg gouerned wifely in his life, hee was no leffe willing Will and Testament, appointing his Brother Carbanda (or Carbaganda) his Heire and Successor Successor and having ordered all things concerning the Affaires of his Kingdome and his House in prudent manner, he made many good Ordinances and Lawes which for a memoriall heleft behind him. being at this day inuiolably observed by the Tartarians. Then dyed Casan, and his Brother Corbanda tucceeded in his Kingdome.

20 This Carbanda was the Sonne of a Ladie of famous memorie, called Erockcaton, who was very deuout and religious in Christianitie, while she lived, and had every day Divine Service celebrated before her, keeping a Priest and Chappell of her owne, so that this Carbanda was baptized and named Nicholas in his Baptisme, and continued a professed Christian as long as his Mother lived. But after his Mothers death, delighting in the focietie of Saracens, he forlooke the Chriitian Religion to become a Mahometist. The King of Armenia vnderstanding of the death of Cafan, was much troubled therewith, and his Enemies began to life vp their Crests very high. For the Soldan of Babylon thereupon fought by all meanes to endamage him and his people. fending all the yeare almost every moneth great troupes of armed Souldiers, which foraged and waited the Kingdome of Armenia, and did more damage and ipoyle on the plaine Countrey 30 then they had euer fultayned before in any mans memorie. But the Almightie and most merci- The Sellan full God who neuer for laketh altogether those that put their trust in him, had compassion on materirondes the poore afflicted Christians: for it fell out that in the moneth of July, feuen thouland Saracon, into Armenica of the best Families under the Soldan, made a reade into the Kingdome of Armenia, wasting and Spoyling all as farre as the Citie of Tharfus, in which the bleffed Apostle Saint Paul was borne. and when they had committed many spoyles in that Prouince, and were voon their returne, the King of Armenia, hauing gathered his people together, encountred and fet vpon them neere the Citie of Giazza, where more by Gods goodnesie then our worth, they were veterly over- The King of throwne in fuch fort, that of feuen thouland Saracens there escaped not three hundred, but samena outer were either taken or flaine, albeit they thought in their Pride, they could have ouer-runne the throweth his 40 whole Kingdome of Armenia, and denoure all the Christians thereat a moriell. This was performed on the Lords Day, being the eighteenth of July, after which conflict, the Saracens durit The Victorie no more enter into the Kingdome of Armenia. But the Soldan fent to the King of Armenia to bringspeace. make truce with him, which was agreed betweene them. 46. I Frier Haython, having beene prefent at all the faid proceedings, had purposed long be- The Author of fore to haue taken a Regular Habit vpon me, and to haue entred into Religion. But by reason himselic.

with my honour forfake my friends and kindred in fuch extremities. But feeing that Gods goodnesse had beene so gracious vinto me, as to lease the King dome of Armenia, and the Chriflian people there after my manitold labours and trauels in quiet, and peaceable effate, I then so tooke the time to performe that Vow which before I had vowed. Therefore having taken my leaue of my Lord the King, and of the reit or my kindred and friends, euen in that field where God gaue the Christians Victorie over their Enemies, I beganne my Journey, and comming to Cyprus in the Mona derie of Episcopia, tooke a Regular Habit of the Order Premonstratechis, to the end that having served the World as a Souldier in my youth , I might spend the rest or my He taketh the Infein the Service of God, forfaking the pompe of this World, which was in the yeere of cur Habrofa Pre-Lord 1305. Therefore I render thankes vnto God, that the Kingdome of Armenta, is at this da. Dea. 1305. day in a good and peacerble effate, and well reformed by the Moderne King Linero, Sonne to King Haython, who is a Looking-glade or patterne to all other Kings in all kinde of eminent of many impediments and difficulties in the Affaires of the Kingdome of Armenia, I could not 60 Moreouer, the Compiler of this Worke affirmeth, that he hath come three menner of wayes Theoreth of to the knowledge of those things which hee diclareth and writeth in this Booke. For from the this Historie beginning of Changisu Can, who was the first Emperour of the Tartas vintil Mango Can, who was their fourth Emperour, I faithfully deliner what I gathered out of the Hiftories of the Tartarians. But from Manno Canto the death of Haloon, I write, that which I received of an

ø. V.

Vertue.

Vincle of mine, who writ the same by the commandement of Haiton King of Armenia, and was present then at all the foresaid occurrences, and with great diligence did often discourse & male rehearfall of them to his Sonnes and Nephewes, that they might remayne the better to Ponteritie, and from the beginning of Abaga Can to the end of this third part of this Booke, the Author relateth those things which hee knew of himselfe, as having beene present at them all, whereby he is enabled to give testimonie of the truth. Now albeit we have hitherto treated of the Hift ries and Deeds or the Tartarians, there remayneth yet somewhat to be faid concerning their Power and Dominion, especially of those that are now living, that it may the better bee

Tamar Con.

47. The great Emperor of the Tartars which now holdeth the Empire, is called Tamor Can, 10 being their fixt Emperour, who keepeth his Residence in the Kingdome of Cathay, in a very great City called Iong, which his Father caufed to be built, as is about declared, his power is velong, or lons, ry great. For this Emperour alone is able to doe more then all the Tartarian Princes together, and fee [49.19.5.1. the Nations under his government are reputed more noble and rich, and better stored of all necessaries, because that in the Kingdome of Cathay, in which they now live, there is great abundance of riches.

Three in erior Kings of the Tartars.

Chapar.

Mollai.

Chapar.

Carbanda.

Besides this great Emperour, there are three other great Kings or Princes of the Totars. which rule each of them ouer many Nations, yet are they all subject to the Emperour, and acknowledge him their naturall and Leige Lord. And the differences which happen between them are decided in the Emperours Court, and determined by his Judgement. The first of these 20 Kings is called Chapar, another Hochtay, and the third Carbanda. This Chapar hath his Dominion in the Kingdome of Turquestan, being the necrest to the Emperour. It is thought that he is able to bring into the field foure hundred thousand Horsemen, and these are bold and good Warriours, but not fo well furnished of Horse and Armour as were expedient. The Emperours subiects doe many times make warre vpon them , and they on the other fide doe often invade the people of Carbanda. The Dominion of this Chapar was in ancient time subject for the greatest Hoffer of who came the Zagatay Tartars, and Tameriane.

That is the Hum of whom the Hungarians had originall. Cartanda.

Hochtay keepeth his Seat of Residence in the Kingdome of Cumania, in a Citie called Asaro, (or Sara) and it is faid, that he is able to bring fix hundred thousand Horsemen to the fight, yet are they not fo much commended in Feats of Armes, as the men of Chapar, albeit they have bet- 30 ter Horses. These make warre sometimes on the Subiects of Carbanda, sometimes against the Hungarians, and sometimes amongst themselues. But Hochtay who ruleth at this present holdeth his Dominion peaceably and quietly.

Carbanda hath his Dominion in the Kingdome of Afia the Great, and maketh his chiefe abode in the Citie of Tauris, beeing able to bring three hundred thousand Horsemen to the field. But these are gathered out of divers parts being rich and well furnished with necessaries, Chapar and Hochtay doe sometimes make warre vpon Carbanda, but hee neuer medleth first with them: neither moueth warres against any but that he sometimes invadeth the Soldan of Egypt: against whom his Predecessors have fought many Battailes. Chapar and Hochtay would willingly take from Carbanda his Dominion, if they were able to effect it. The reason whereof is this, Asia is divided into two parts, the one part whereof being called

The division of the Lower or Deepe Asia, is inhabited by the Emperour, and those two Kings called Chapar and led the fron

Hosbitay. The other part being the higher, is called Afathe Greater, in which Carbanda inhabiteth and hath Dominion. Now there are only three wayes by which men may passe out of the Deeper or Lower Afia, vnto the high Countrey called Afia Maior, The one is out of the Kingdome of Turqueffan, to the Kingdome of the Persians; another way there is called Derbent, which lyeth neere the Sea where Alexander built the Citie called the Iron Gate, as in the Histo-The Catie calries of Cumania appeares; the other way is to goe over the Sea, called Mare maius, which way lyeth through the Kingdome of Barca,. By the first way the subjects of Chapar cannot passe to the Territories of Carbanda, without great danger and difficultie, because they should find no so feeding for their Horses in many dayes trauailes, the Land being so dry and barren, that before they could come to any fruitfull inhabited Countrey, their Horses would be flarued, or at least so faint and wearied that they might be easily ourcome, and therefore that way they will not take. By the way of Derbent the people of Hochtay may palle into the Countrey of Carbanda, only fixe moneths in the yeare, which is in the Winter time. But that way Abaga hath caufed great Trenches and Fortifications to bee made in a place called Ciba: and is alwayes kept and especially in the Winter with a Garrison of armed men to defend the passage. The people of Hochtay have assayed many times to passe that way by stealth and secretly : but they never could, neither can by any meanes doe: for in a Plaine called Monga, there are Alwayes in the Winter time certaine Birds about the bignesse of Phelants having very faire feathers to behold, 60 The Birds cal- and these Birds (which are called Seysorach) when any people come into that Plaine, straight

flye away ouer those Watchmen and their Trenches, whereby the Souldiers there are eft-soones

affored of the comming of their Enemies, and prevent the furprize; and by the way of the Sea called Mare mains, they neuer attempted, because that way goeth through the Kingdome of Huskes poore Christian Prodigals (prodigall to beleene fuch lyes) were fed with in stead of Bread; not onely in the Church by Legends, but in their private studies, by Arthurs, Orlandos, Beuiles, Guyes, 60 Robin Hoods, Palmerins, and I know not what monstrous changeling-births of Historie. Such was this Ogerus: and in great part such was Odericus a Friar and Traueller, in whom perhaps some Friar Odericus on M. buth travelled, with him at least in this Author (whose age was before him, and therefore could not cite Helpublich.d. ought out of him.) Neither is it for nothing (though for worse then nothing, a lye is both) that Priars are in this storie so often mentioned and prayfed: I smell a Friars (Lyars) hand in this businesse. Our Barca, which is so mightie in people and so strongly situated, that they are without hope to Barca in the prenayle there, and by meanes hereof hath Carbanda and his Predecesfors beene secured from Latine Copie the power of fo potent Neighbours. Now we will briefly fay fomewhat of the manners and is called Abeat. fashions of the Tartars.

48. The Caraians do so much differ from other Nations in their fashions and manner of living, The Religion that it were tedious to treat of the manifold diversitie and strange varietie found among it them; of the Catalans They acknowledge and confesse one Immortall God, and they call upon his Name: yet they nei- or Tariarians ther fait nor pray, nor any wayes afflict nor humble themselves, for feare or reverence of him, of those peris, nor doe any good workes. The killing of men they hold to bee no finne: but if they happen to Impunitie of 10 leave their Bridle in their horse-mouth when hee should feed , they thinke therein they offend God mortally. Fornication and Lecherie is held by them as no finne. They marrie many wines, Polygamie. and the custome is, that the Sonne must marrie his Step-mother after the death of his Father : and the Brother is married to his Brothers Wife after his deceale. In matter of Armes they are very good, and more obedient to their Superiour then other Nations are : and doe easily know by certaine fignes in Battaile the will of their Commander : whereby the Armie of Tartarians Warfare, is easily ruled and commanded. Their Lord bestoweth not any stipend on them, but they live on hunting and fuch prey as they can get : and their Lord may take from them when hee lift whattoeuer they have.

When the Tarrars ride upon any enterprize, they take with them great store of Horse, drin-20 king their Milke, and feeding on their fielh which they reckon very good food. The Tartars are Enting of very readie and excellent Archers on horse-backe, but on foot they are but slow, they are dex- Horse fieth. terous and ingenious in taking of Cities and Caltles, and are for the most part victorious over their Enemies; yet will they not forbeare to turne their backes in the skirmish if it be for their advantage. And this advantage they have in the field that they will fight with the Enemies when they lift themselves, and yet they cannot be compelled to fight but at their pleasure. Their manner of fight is very dangerous, to that in one conflict or skirmish of the Tartars there are more flaine and wounded then in any great Battaile of other Nations, which hapneth by reason of their Arrowes, which they shoot strongly, and surely out of their Bowes; beeing indeed so skilfull in the arte of shooting, that they commonly pierce all kind of Armour, and if they 30 happen to be routed, yet they flye in troupes and bands fo well ordered, that it is very dangerous to follow or purtice them, because they shoot their Arrowes backwards in their flight,

The Armie of the Tarrars maketh no great shew, because they goe trooping close together, so that an Armie of one thousand Tartars will scarse feeme fine hundred. The Tartarians doe cour- Their Hospiteously entertayne strangers, giving them part of their Viands, and expect the like offers to bee taking. made them, for otherwise they will take it by violence. They are much more skilfull in conquering of Countries then in keeping of them. When they are weake they are humble and gentle; flout and proud when they are growne the stronger. They cannot endure lying in other men, yet themselues are much given to lying, valesse it be in two especiall things. The one Delight in 40 being in matter of Armes, in which none dareth affirme, that he did any exploit which was not lying. done by him, or denie any faire Act which hee hath committed : The other is , That who foeuer hath done any offence, though it descrueth death, he confessesh it presently to his Lord if he be wounding and killing oft-times both men and horses that pursue them.

examined thereon. This may fuffice at this time , concerning the manners of the Tartars , because it were long to rehearse all the different customes and kinds of behaviour. The other Chapters which follow, pertayning rather to aduice fitting those Times, and the boly Land . affaires, then the Tattatian Historie, I have omitted. And in the next place will present some Extracts of our Countriman, that famous Traueller Sir Iohn Mandevile, whose Geographie Ortelius commendeth, how soener be acknowledgeth his Worke stuffed with Fables. For my part, I cannot but deplore the loffe of Such a Treasure, but know not how to recour or repayre it (as Ramusio bath done for Polo) and 50 here have beene forced to deale with him, as Historians doe with our famous Arthur, daring to say little, because others have dared so much and such increashilities. For his merit, and for his Nation I have given a touch of him, these few Latine Extracts; referring him that hath a mende to reade him, to Master Hakluits sirst Edition of his Voyages, where bis storie in Latine is to be scene at large. I suspect that Some later Fabler ont of the Tales of Ogerus the Dane hath Stuffed this Storie; Some of which, for Ogerus Done, a taste, I have here left remayning; not that I take pleasure in lyes, but that thou mailt see, from what of whom they Fountaine I suppose this corruption flowed : and in that mislie Age (when humaner learning was in- write that hee hum.inely imprisoned, and Dusine Scripture was vulgarly buried, and Printing net at all borne) what dia occ.

Mandevile transled from Ierulalem beyond lerico, from Christendome to remotest Ethnikes, and bath fallen among Theeues : The Friarly Priest and Leuite not onely neglected him, but I am afraid placed the Theenes thus to rob and wound him; mayming the two former parts, and inggling in the third, which I have therefore chopped off; not daving in the former but with the Nilus Dogge to taffe and away, for feare of a false Crocodile. Here you may finde lyes by retaile effecta, afficta, afficta, afficta, to, this Mandevile; who there, is made a maunde vile full of fuch pedlerie, unworthy thy light.

CHAP. VI.

Briefe Collections of the Trauels and Observations of Sir Ionn Man-Devile; written by Master Bale, Cent. 6.

Ohn Mandevile, Knight, borne in the Towne of Saint Albons, was so well given to the studie of Learning from his childhood, that he seemed to plant a good part to the fludie of Learning from his childhood, that he feemed to plant a good part of his felicitie in the fame; for he supposed that the honor of his birth would not thing auaile him, except hee could render the fame more honorable by his knowledge in good Letters. Hauing therefore well grounded himfelfe in Religion by reading the Scriptures, he applyed his studies to the Art of Physick, a Profession worthy a noble wit : but among it other things, hee was rauished with a mightie desire to see the greater parts of the World, as Asia and Africa. Having therefore provided all things necessaries for his journey, hee departed from his Countrey in the yeere of Christ 1332, and as another Visites returned home, after the space of source and thirtie yeeres, and was then knowne to a very tew. In the time of his travaile he was in Scythia, the greater and leffe Armenia, Egypt, both Lybias, Arabia, Syria Media, Mesopotamia, Persia, Chaldra, Greece, Illyrium, Tartarie, and diuers other Kingdomes of the World; and having gotten by this meanes the knowledge of the Languages, let fo many and great varieties, and things miraculous, whereof himfelfe had beene an eye wit celle, should perish in oblinion, hee committed his whole Trauell of three and thirtie an eye wit. ene, income permit of the state England, and having feene the wickednesse of that Age , hee gave out this speech : In our time (fard hee) it may bee spoken more truly then of old, that Vertue is gone, the Church is vnder foot, the Clergie is in error, the Deull raigneth, and Simonie beareth the fway, &c. Hee wed at Leege, in the yeere 1372. the 17. day of November, being there buried in the Abbey of the Order of the Guilselmites.

The Tombe and Epitaph of Sir Iohn Mandevile, in the Citie of Leege, spoken of by Ortelius, in his Booke called Itinerarium Belgia,

M Agna & populofa Leodii fubirbia, ad collimn radices, in quorum ingis multa furt, & pulcher-ruma Monufersa, inter que magnificum illud, ae nobile D. Laurentio dicasum, ab Raginardo Episcopo. Est in hac quoq, Regione, vel suburbijs Leodij, Guilielmitarum Canobium, in quo Epitaphum boc Icannis à Mandeville, excepimus.

Epitaphium.

Hic jacet vir nobilis, D. Ioannes de Mandeville, aliter dictus ad Barbam, Miles, Dominus de Campdi, natus de Anglia, Medicinæ Professor, deuotissimus, orator, & bonorum largissimus pa peribus erogator, qui toto quafi orbe lustrato, Leody diem vitæ fine clusit extremum. Anno Dom. 1371. Menfis Nouembris, die 17.

Hac m lapide: in quo calata viri armati imago, Leonem calcantis, ba ba bifurcata, ad caput manus 50 benedicens, & vernacula bac verba: Vos qui pateis for mi, pour l'amour deix preles por mi. Cliреш erat vacuu, in quo olim fuisse dicebant laminam aream, & cius in ea stidem calata ir signia . Leonem videlicet argenteum, cui ad pectus lunula rubea in campo caruleo, quem Limbus ambiret denticulatiu ex auro. Eins nobis oftendebant, & cultros, ephipiag, , & calcaria quibus osum fuisse asserbant, in peragrando toto fere terrarum orbe, ot clavius testatur esus Itinerarium, quod typus etiam excusum passim babetur.

DRincipi Excellentissimo, præ cunctis mortalibus præcipue venerando, Domino Edmardo Pejus nominis Tertio, diuina providentia, Francorum & Anglorum Regi Serenificno, Hibernie Domino, Aquitarie Duci, mari ac eius Infulis Occidentalibus dominanti, Christianorum 69 encomio & ornatui, vniueriorumq; arma gerentium Tutori, ac Probitatis & strenuisatis exemplo Principi quoq inuicto, mirabilis Alexa dri Sequaci, ac vinuerlo Orbi tremendo, cum reuerentia non qua decet, cum ad talem, & tantam reuerentiam minus sufficientes extiterint, sed qua paruitas, & possibilitas mittentis ac offerentis se extendunt, contenta tradantur.

Cum

"Vm terra Hierosolymitana, terra promissionis filiorum Dei, dignior cunctis mundi terris sit ha- Pats prima bends multis ex causis, & pracipue illa quod Deus conditor coli & mundi ipsam tanti dienatus fuit continens caobenda muitis ex canjis, or pracipie ina, quou Done verine un conserve generi humano per incar-estimare, ot in eo proprium filium Saluatorem mandi Cariftum exhibneris generi humano per incar-Cap. 1, nationem ex sutemer at a Virgine, & per eisu conversationem humillimam in eadem, ac per dolorosam Commendatio mortis sua consummationem widem, at q, inde per eins admirandam Resurrectionem, ac Ascensionem in breuis terra calum, & postremb quia creditur illic in fine saculi renersurus, & omnia indicaturus : certum est, quod Hierosolymiab omnibus qui Christiano nomine à Christo dicuntur, sit tanquam à suis propris baredibus diligenda, & pro chius q, potestate ac modulo honoranda. Verum quia iam nostres temperibus verius quam olim dici potest, Virtus, Ecclesia, Clerus, Demon, Simonia, Cessat, calcatur, errat, regnat, dominatur. ne ecce sufto Dei sudicio, credita est terra tam inclyta, & Sacrofantta impiorum manibus Saracenorum, quod non est ab [q, dolore pijs mentibus audiendum, & recolendum. Ego Ioannes Mandeuil militaris ordinis saltem gerens nomen, natus & educatus in terra Anglia, in Villa Sancti Albani, ducebar in Adolescentiamea tali inspiratione, ut quamuis non per potentiam, nec per vires proprias possem prafatam terram fius heredibus recuperare, orem tamen per aliquod temporis spacium percerimari ibidem, & fa-lutarem aliquantulum de propinquo. Unde in Anno ab Incarnatione Domini 1322. impossi me nauje lezniu Manda. eations Martilientis maris & via, in boe temporis, Anni 1355. Silicet , per 33. annos in transmarinis villi peccerigations mathienus maris & vigs, in occ semper to a same 1533 former of 150 maris in configuration particles partibus manss, perceptinatus sirm, ambulani, & circuini multas, ac dinersus Patrias, Regiones, Pronin&trigina ancias, & Insulas, Turciam, Armeniam maiorem & minorem, Ægyptum, Lybiam bassam & alsam, nos continus. Syriam, Arabiam, Perliam, Chaldwam, Ethiopiz partem magnam, Tartariam, Amazoniam, In- tz. 20 diam minorem, & mediam, ac partem magnam de maiore, & in ifis, & circum effas Regiones, multas

Insulas, Constates, Vrbes, Castra, Villas, & loca, vbi habitant varia gentes, aspectuum, morum, legum

acrituum diuersorum : Attamen quia summo desiderio in terra promissionis eram , ipsam deligentius, per loca vestigiorum filij Dei perlustrare curaui , & diutius in illa steis. Quapropter & m hac prima parte buins operu iter tam peregrinandi, quam nauigandi, à partibus Angliz ad spfam deferibo, & loca notabiliter fanita, qua intra candem (unt breuiter commemoro & diligenter, quaienus peregrinis tam in itinere quamin pronentione valeat hac descriptio in aliquo deserune. Qui de Hibernia, Anglia, Scotia, Noruegia, aus Gallia iter arripit ad partes Hierofolymitanas Cap. 2. potest saltem vsg, ad Imperialem Greciz Cinitatem Constantinopolim eligere sibi modum proficis- tim per terras cends, sine per Terras, sine per Aquas. Et si peregrinando eligit transsigere viam, tendst per Coloniam quim per s-30 Agrippman, & sie per Almaniam in Hungariam ad Montlusant Cinitatem, sedem Regni Hungariæ, quas vique in Et est Rew Hungariæ multum potens issis temporibus. Namtenst & Sclauoniam, & magnam partems Constantino Regni Comannorum, & Hungariam, & pariem Regni Ruffiæ. Oportet vet peregrinus in finibus polini. Hintopriz transeat manum Danuhii flumen. & madat in Reloration. Hee flumen with the Regis Hunga-Hungariz transest magnum Danubij sumen, & vadat in Belgradum; Hoc sumen oritur inter Mon-itz olm potana Almania, & currens versus Orientem, recipit in se 40. flumina antequam siniatur in mare. De tentia, Belgrade intratur terra Bulgaria, & transitur per Pontem petrinum finnis Marroy, & per terram Pyncenars, & tune intratur Græcia, in Cinitates Sternes, Almopape, & Andrinopolis, & sie in Constantinopolim, voi communiter est sedes Imperatoris Grecia. Qui autem viam eligit per aquas verlus Constantinopolim nanigare, accipiat fibi portum, pront voluerit, propinguum fine remotum, Marfilia, Pifi, Ianua, Vene: ijs, Roma, Neapoli, vel alibi: fica tranfeat Tufciam, Campaniam, taliam, Corticam, Sarcinam, of gene in Stellam, que distinte a Italiam per frachium maris non magnum. In Sicilia of Mons Arm inguer ardens, qui ibidem appellatur Mons Gibelle, & preter Mons Etca.

magnam. In Sicilia que como sacita seguer a massa, y que magnam especial prometer: focusadam descrip-cialme babestur se loca Coltan tou fos fun fepera luca quasf fempe i quem frirantes: focusadam descrip-tatem colorum barum flammarum essimases lucala annum fertilem fore, vel fierilem, ficema vel humi-Eolides Indum, calidum, vel frieidum : hac loca vocant caminos Infernales, & a finibus Italiz víg, ad ista loca sulz. funt 25. miliaria. Sunt autem in Sicilia aliqua Pomeria in quibus inveniuntur frondes, flores, & fru- Temperies Eus per totorm annum, etiam in profunda hyeme. Regnum Siciliz est bona, & grandis Insula babens in Siciliz Insula. circuitu fere lencas 300. Et ne quis erret, vel de facili reprehendat quoties scribo lencam, intelligendum est de leuca Lombardica, que aliquanto maior est Geometrica; & quoties pono numerum, sub intelli- Louis Lomgatur fere, vel circiter, fine citra , & duetam intendo ponere , de 10. Lombardicis leucis : Geometrica bardica

50 autem leuca describitur, ve notum est, per hos versus.

Quinque pedes passum faciunt, passus quoque centum Viginti quinque stadium, si millia des que Octo facis stadia, duplicatum dat tibi leuca.

Constantinopolis pulchra est Cinitae, & nobilis, triangularis in forma, firmiterá, murata, caius Cap. z. dna partes includuntur mari Hellesponte, quod plurimi modo appellant brachium Sanctis Georgij, & ali- De vroe Cinqui Buke, Troia vetus. Versus locum vbi boc brachium exet de mari est lata verra planties, in que an- stantinopoli, tequitus stetit Troia Civitas de qua apud Poetas mira leguntur, sed nunc valde modeca apparent vesti. gia Civitatis. In Constantinonoli habentur musta merchalia. gia Civitatis. In Constantinopoli habentur multa mirabilia, ac insuper multa Santi orum vener unda reliquia, ac super omnia, preciosissima Crux Christi, seu maior pars illius, & tunica viconsutilis, cum 60 spongis & arundane, & rono clauorum, & dimidia parte Corone spinee, cuius altera medictas seruatur in Capella Regis Franciz, Partifijs. Nam & ego indignus diligenter pluribus vicibus respexi partem vtramą, : dabatur quoq, mibi de illa Parilijs vnica spina, quam vsq, nunc preciose conscruo, & est ipsa spina non lignea sed velut de iuncis marinis rigida, & pungitiua. Ecclesia Constantinopolitana in benorem Sancta Sophia, id est, ineffabilis Dei sapientia dedicata dictiur, & nobilissima vniuer serum Ecclesa Son munds E-clefarum, tam in schemate artificiosi operis, quam in seruatsi ibi Sacrosanclis Relliquiss : nam Regina Helena & continet corpus Santa Anna Matris nostra Domine translatum illuc per Keginam Helenam ab Hierofolymis : & corpus Santta Luca Enangelista translatum de Bethania Iudea; Et corpus Beati Ioannis Chrysoftomi ipfius Cimitatis Episcopi, cum multis aligs Reliquis preciosis; quoniam est ibi vas grande cum huiusmodi reliquis velut marmoreum de Petra Enhydros; quod ingiter de seipso desudans aquano, semel in anno innenium suo sudore repletum. Ante banc Ecclessam, super columnam marmoream habetur de are assiato opere susorio, maena Imago Iustiniani quondam Imperatoris super Equain sedemis. De pradicta terra Thracia fun Philosophus Arittoteles oriundus in Cinitate Stage-Adjustin tum. 125, O est ibi in loco rumba erus velut altare, vbi O singulis annis certo die celebratur a populo sestum illus, ac si fuisset Sanctus. Temporibus ergo magnorum consiliorum conneniunt illuc supientes terre, 10 reputantes sibs per inspirationem immutti consilium optimum de agendis. Item ad divisionem Thracia & Miccoloniz funt due merabiliter alti Montes, vinus Olympus, alter Athos, cuius vliimi umbra O. riente sole apparet ad 76. miliaria, es a in Insulam Lemnon. In borum cacumine montium ventus non currit, nec aer monetur, &c.

Quid fit d.eta.

Cap. to. De conductu

Prin; diclum est de renerentia Soldani, quando ad ipsum intratur exhibenda. Sciendum ereo, cum De conductu ab eo petitur securus conductus, nemini denegare consumit, sed datur petentibus communiter sigillum v que in Sinzi. eius, in appenditione absque literis : hec sigillum, pro vexillo in virga aut hasta dum peregrini ferum, ownes Stracent videntes illud flexis genibus in terram se renerenter inclinant, & portantibus omnem exhibent humanitatem. Verumtamen satis maior sit renerensia literis Soldani seillatis, quod & Admirabiles, & quicung, aly Domini, quando eis monstrantur, antequam recipiant, se multum inclinant: 20 Deinde ambabus manibus ess capientes ponunt super propria capita, postea osculantur, & tandem legunt inclinaticum magna veneratione, quibus semel aut bis perlettis, offerunt se promptos ad explendum quicquid ibi iubetur, ac insuper exhibent deserenti, quicquid possint commodi, vel bonoris : sed talem conductum per literas Soldani vix quifquam perierinorum accipit, qui non in Curta illius stetit, vel notitiam apud illum habuerit. Ego autem habui in recessiu mec , in quibus etiam continebatur ad omnes fibi fubiccos speciale mandatum, vt me permitterent intrare, & respicere fingula loca, pro mea placito voluntatis, & mihi exponerent quorumcunq; locorum mysteria distincte & absque vllo velamine veritatis, ac me cum omni fodalitate mea benigne reciperent, & in cun etis rationalibus audirent , requifiti autem fi necesse foret de ciuirate conducerent in ciuitatem. Habito nad, peregrinis conductu, ad Montem Sinay, &c. Mons Sinay appellatur ibi desertum Syn : quasi in radice Montis istius habetur Comobium Mo-

Literæ Solda. ni in gratiam Mandevilli concessa.

Cap. 11. De Monaftenachorum pergrande, cuius clausura in circuitu est sirmata muris altis, & portis fetreis, prometubestiarum deserti. Hi Monachi sunt Arabes, & Graci, & in magno conuentu, multum Deo deuoti. O-Sendere solent & caput ipsius Cathering cum involumento sanguinolento, & multas perterea santtas, & venerabiles reliquias, que omnia minitus sum diligenter & sepe, oculis indignis, &c. Icrusalem cum tota terra Promissionis, est quasi una de quing, Pronincijs vel pluribus, quibus Regnum Syria distinguitur. lungitur amem ludaa ad Orientem Regno Arabia, ad meridiem Ægypto, rio Sinay, & reliquija bea-22 Catherina Omittuntur feqq.vid.fury. 1.8. 6.13. Cap, 14, De Ecclelia

gloriofi S:pul- fis possessa fuit Nationibus, Cananzorum, Indzorum, Aflyriorum, Perlarum, Medorum, Macedonum, Græcerum, Romanorum, Christianorum, Saracenorum, Barbarerum, Turcorum, & Tar- 40 in vrbe Icrutarorum. Cuius rei causa mersto potest astimari, quad non sustinuit Deus magnos peccatores longo tempore permanere in terra sibi tam placita, & tam sancta. It aque peregrunus veniens in Ierusalem primo expleat suam peregrinationem, ad renerendum & Sa-Templum Se. crofanctum Domini nostri lesu Christi Sepulchrum: cuius Ecclesia est in vitima cinitatis extremitate, ad partem Aquilonarem, cum proprio sui ambitus muro ipsi cinitats aduncto. Ipsa vero Ecclesia est pnichra & rotunda forma cooperta de super cum tegulis plumbeis, habens in Occidente turrim altam & firmam, in pauimenti Ecclesia medio ad siguram dinidiy compassi habetur nobili opere Latonico adisicatum paruum Tabernaculum quasi 15. pedum tam longitudinis quam latitudinis, & altitudinis miro artificio intus extrag, compositum, ac multum diligenter diuersis coloribus ornatum. Hoc itag, in Tabernaculo seu Capella, ad latus dextrum, continetur incomparabilis thesaurus gloriosissimi Sepulchri, baben- 59 tss olio pedes longitudinis, & quinque latitudinis. Et quoniame in toto habitaculo nulla est apertura pre-ter paruum ostum, illustratur accedentibus peregrinis pluribus lampadebus, (quarum ad impia pra coram sepulchro sugiter ardere solet) ingressius.

ad Occidentem mari magno, & ad Aquilonem Regno Syria. Iudea terraper diner fa tempora a diner-

Sciendum, quod ante breue tempus solebat sepulchrum esse ingressis peregrinis accessibile, ad tangendum & osculandum: sed quia multi vei effringebant, vel conabantur sibi effringere aliquid de petra se-Meles Mandy pulchri, ifte Soldanus Melech Mandybron fecit illud confabricari, ve nec ofculari valeat, nec adiri. bres Soldanus, sed tantummodo intueri. Et ob illam cansam in sinistro pariete in alitudine quinque pedum immurari estralturam petra sepulchri ad quantitatem capitis humani, quod tanquam pro sepulchro ibi ab omnibus veneratur, tangitur, & ofculatur.

Dicitur ibi quoq, communiter prafatam lampadem coram sepulchro singulis annis in die Sancta Pa- 60 Mandevillus de raschemes, hora nona extungui, & in media nolle Pascha sine humano studio reaccendis. Quod (si ita est) hoc dubitat, euidens dinini benefici, miraculum est. Et quamuis id plurimi Christians simpliciter in maeno pietatis vid, sup. 1.3.4.2. merito credant, pleriss, tamen est in suspicione. Forte talia Saraceni custodes sepulchri singentes divulgauerunt, pro angendo emolumenta tributi, quod inde resultaret, seu oblationum.

Singulis autem annis in die Coma Domini in Parascheue, & in vigilia Pasche, tribus his diebus. Tumba Gode-Tumba Gede-manet l'abernaculum hoc apertum continue, & patet omnibus Christianis gentibus accessus, alias vero fridi de bollion. non per annum sine redditione tributi. Intra Ecclesiam, prope parietem dextrum, est Caluaria locus, voi crucifixus pependit Christus Dominus. Per gradus ascenditur in bunc locum, & est rupis velut albi coloris, cim aliqua rubedine per loca commixta, babens sciffuram, quam dicunt Golgotha, in qua maior pars preciosi (anguinis Christi dicutur influxisse : voi & habetur Altare construitum, ante aund consistunt tumbe Godefridi de Bullion, erc.

Ultrà duo stadia ab Ecclesia ad Meridiem sancti Sepulchri habetur magnum hospitale sancti Ioan- Capas. nis Hierofolymitani, qui caput & fundamentum effe dignoscitur ordinis Hospitaliorum modo tenen. De tribus alijs to tium Rhodum Insulam : in quo recipi possunt omnes Christiani peregrini cuiuscunque sint conditionis, Eccleijs, & seu status, vel dignitatis. Nam Saraceni pro leui cura anxis rumoris, prohibent ne apud quenquain. Specialites de (worum Christianus pernottet. Ad sustentationem adisicis huiss bospitalis, habentur in eo 124.co-mini, lumna marmorea, & un parietibus distincti 54. pilary. Satis prope hunc locum in Oruntem, est Ecclesia que destur, de Domina nostra magna: & inde non remote alia, que dicitur nostra Domina Latinorum, adificata super locum, vbi Maria Megdalene, & Maria Cleopha cum alijs planibus, dum Christus cruci affigebatur, flebant & dolores lamentabiles exercebant.

Item ab Ecclesia sancts Sepulchri in Orsentem ad stadium cum dimidio habetur adisscium mirabile, ac pulcbrum valde, quod Templum Domini nominatur, quod constructum est in forma rotunda, cuiss circumferentie Diameter habet 64. cubitos, & altitudo eius 126. & intrinsecus pro sustentatione edificit, 20 multi pilarij. În medio autem Templi est locus altior 14. gradibus, qui & ipse columnis undig, est stipatius : & secundum qualuor mundi plagas habet Templum quatuor introitus per portas Cypressinas artificiose compositas, nobilitera, sculptas, & excisas. Et ante portam Aquilonarem intra Templum sons est aque munda, qui quamuis olim exundabat, tamen nune minime finis. In soso circuitu adifici extrinsceus est valde pro atrio latumspacium loci, stratum per totum pauimentum marmoribus. Hoc Templum non ducitur stare in codem loco vbi Ten plum Dei stetit in tempore Christi, quo post Resurrectionem a Romanis destructo, istud longo post tempore Adrianus Imperator extruxit, sed non ad formam Templi prioris : pradictum tamen excelsum in medio Templi locum vocant Iudzi Santtum Santtorum, Sciatis itag, quod Saraceni magnam exhibent buic Temple reuerentiam, & bonorem, sapiw illud dis-calceati intrantes, & positis genibus deuote Deum Omnipotentem exorantes, nulla enim ibidem habetur 30 imago, sed multa lampades relucentes. Neminem Christianorum seu Iudzorum ingredi suum hoc mago, jeu musa sampuna. Templum, reputantes eos indiguos ad hoc, & nimium immundos, unde nifi virtute luterarum quas habui tradite Mondi à Soldano, nec ego fuissem ingressiu. Ingrediens autem cum meis sodalibus deposimus calciamenta, uillo. recogitantes cum multa cordis denotione, nos magis id facere debere, quam incredulos Saracenos.

Porrò in eo loco ubs statuerat idem Rex ante Templum Altare holocausti, videlicet extra portam Templi Occidentalem, babetur & nunc Altare, sed non ad instar, nec ad vsum primi : Nam Saraceni, quasi nibil curantes, traverunt in eo lineas tanquam in Astrolabio sigentes in linearum centro batellum, ad cuius umbram per lineas discernuntur diei bora.

Viaturo ad dextram satis de propinquo habetur & alia Ecclesia,qua nunc appllatur schola Salomonis: rursusq, ad Meridiem est & alind Templum sue Ecclesia, que vocatur Templum Salomonis, quod Depuntuso-40 elim fuit caput, & fundamentum tetius ordinis Templariorum, &c.

Dominus Soldanus quodam die in Castro, expussis omnibus de camera sua, me solum retinuit secum vibem. tanquam pro secreto habendo colloquio. Consuetum enim est ys eycere omnes tempore secretorum: qui diligenter a me interroganit qualis esset gubernatio vita in terra nostra, breuster respondebam, bona, per Colloquium Dei gratiam, qui recepto boc verbo dixit ita non effe. Sacerdores (inquit) vestri, qui seipsos exhi. Soldani cum bere deberent alijs in exemplum, in malis iacent actibus, parum curant de Templi feruitio : ha- Mandevillo. bitu & studijs se conformant mundo: se inebriant vino, continentiam instringentes, cum fraude Sacredoum. negotiances, ac praua principibus consilia ingerentes. Communis quoque populus, dum festis diebus intendere deberent deuotioni in Templo, currit in hortis, in spectaculis, in Tabernis vique Repichenso ad crapulam, & ebrietatem, & pinguia manducans & bibens, ac in bestiarum morem, luxuriam vulgi iust sima 50 prauam exercens. In viura, dolo, rapina, furto, detractione, mendatio & periurio viuunt plures eorum euidenter, ac si qui talia non agant, vt fatui reputantur, & pro nimia cordis superbia nesciunt ad libitum excogitare, qualiter se velint habere, mutando sibi indumenta, nunc longa, nunc curta Vestimentonimis, quandoque ampla, quandoque structa vitra modum, vt in his singulis appareane derisi po- 1 um varietas tius quam vestiti : pyleos quoque, calceos, calligis, corrigias sibi fabricant exquisitas, cum etiam reprehensa. è contra deberent secundum Christi sui doctrinam simplices, Deo deuoti, humiles, veraces, inuicem diligentes, inuicem concordantes, & insuriam de facili remittentes. Scimus etiam eos prop-

quamuis ab Instalis ore prolate, & vultu pre rubore demisso percunctatus sum, Domine, Salua rene-

rentia, qualiter potestis ita plene hoc noscere? De hominibus (ait) meis interdum mitto ad medim

Mercatorum per terras & Regiones Christianorum, cum Balfano, Gemmis, Sericis, ac Aromatibus, iationem merebuntur de nostris eam manibus recuperare.

ter peccata fua perdidiffe hanc terram optimam quam tenemus, nec timemus eam amittere, quamdiu se taliter gubernant. Attamen non dubitamus, quin in suturum per meliorem vitæ conuer-Ad hoc ego vitra confusus & simpefactas, nequiui muenire responsum; verebar enim obloqui veritati, ac per illos singula exploro, tam de statu Imperatoris, ac Pontificum Principum, ac Sacerdotum, quam. Prelatorum, nec non Equora, Prouincias, ac distinctiones carum.

CHAP. 6.

Igitur peraita collocutione nostra satis producta, egressos Principes in cameram renocanit ex quibus quatuor de maioribus iuxta nos aduocans, fecit eos expresse ac debite, per singulas dinissiones in lingua Gal. licana destinguere per partes, & singularum nomina partium, omnem Regionem terra Anglia, ac alias Christianorum terrrai multas, acst inter nostros fuissent nati, vel multo tempore conuersati. Nam co ipsum Soldanum audiui cum is bene & directe loquentem idioma Francorum. Itaque in omnibus bis mente consternatus obmutui, cogitans, & dolens de peccatis singulis, rem talster se habere. Oc.

Secunda pars. Cap. 26. De Æthiopia, & Diamantibus, & de infima lodia. India triplex. Cap. 28.

De Ecclefia &

corpore lanctæ

Thomas Apo-

Calami vel

Apottoli erc.

Calumè.

Idolum in

132

Ethiopia confistit à terra Chaldworum in Austrum, qua distinguitur in Orientalem Æthiopiam, 10 A Ethiopia conjujiti a terra Chaldworum in Autrum, qua ujungmuur in Oruniaem Atinopiam, G Meridionalem, quarum prima in illis partibus vocatur Culh, propter hominum nigredinems,

De Ethiopia intratur in Indiam mediam, nam triplex eft, videlicet Infima, que in quibusdam, luis partibus est nimie frigida ad inhabitandum: Media qua satis temperata est, & Superior, qua nimie

Hinin Meridiem pluribus exactis Insulis per viam decem dietarum venitur in Regnum Mahron. Illic in ciuitate Calamix, servatur in magno Templo corpus beatissime Thoma Apostoli Domini noster Iefu Christi in capsa bonorisicata. In quo loco & martirizatus fuit, licet dicunt quidam, quod in E. dilla ciuitate. Iste populus non est multum tempus transactum, quin fuit totus in sidei religione, sed nune Regio Mabron eft ad peffimes Gentilium ritus perner fus.

Per certas historias habetur Ducem Danorum Ogerum conquistuisse has terras, & in exaltatione sanctarum Apostoli rell'quiarum fecisse fieri prefatam spectactilem Ecclesiam, &c.

In hac ipfa beats Thomx Ecclesia statuerunt multamira magnitudinis simulachra, ax quibus mum quod maius est multo alius, apparet sedens homo in alto solio adoperto aureis sericis, & lapidibus pratiosis, Templo fancti haben[q. ad collum suspensa pro ornatu multa cinctoria pretiose genomis, & auro contexta. Ad bocautem Idolum adorandum confluunt peregrini à remotis partibus, & propinqui, in satie maiori copia, & valde feruentiori denotione quam Christiani, ad fanctium Iacobum in Galizia, quia multi corum. per totum peregrinationis iter, non audent erigere palpebras oculorum, ne forte propter hoc deuotio in-

Ali, de propè venientes superaddunt labori itinerandi, ve ad tertium vel ad quartum passum semper ¾ cadant in genibus. Nonnulls quoque Demoniaca inspiratione semetipsos per viam peregrinationis lasceolis, & culiellis nunc minoribus, nunc maioribus (auciant vulneribus per fingula corporis loca, & dum ante Idolum peruenium, excisum frustum de carne propria projeiunt ad Idolum pro ossernda, ac plașis durioribus se castigant, & quando que spontanee penstus se occidunt : in solemnitatibus verò , ficut in dedicatione, & ficut in thronizatione simulachrorum fit conventus populi, quasi totius Regni. Et ducitur cum processione maisis Idolum per circuitnm cinitatis, in curru preciosissimo, modis omnibus perornate, & pracedunt in numero magno puella cantantes bina, & bina ordinatissimè; succedit q, pluralitas Musicorum cum instrmentis varys simphonizantes, quos continue subsequitur currus cuius lateribus coniuna git se peregrinorum exercitus, qui & venerunt de remotis.

Ibique cernitur miserabilis actius vitrà modum. Nam aliqui victi vitrà modum diabolica denotione 40 projetiunt se sub rotis currus pracedentis, ve françantur sibi crura, brachia, latera, dorsa, nec non & colla in reuerentiam Dei sui (ve dicunt) à quo remunerationem sperant, venire ad Paradisum.

Et post processionem postquam statuerunt Idolum in Templo suo loco, multiplicatur coram simula-Occidentie in chris numerus sape plangentium, & Occidentium vitrà quam credi sit facile. Ita quod quandog in illa honorem Idoli unica solemnitate innensiantur ducenta corpora vel plura occisorum. Etassistentes propinqui amici talism Diabols martyrum, cum magna musicorum melodia decantantes in sua lingua offerun Idolis corpora, ac demum accenso rozo omnia corpera comburunt in benorem I dolorum , assumentes sibi singuli aliquid de ossibas aut cineribus pro reliquiys, quas putant sibi valituras contra que libet infortunia, & sempestates. Et habetur ante Templum, aqua lacus, velut seruatorium piscium, in quo projeit populus largissimi 50 Suas oblationes, Argentum, Aurum, Gemmas, Cyphos, & similia, quibus ministri certis temperibus exhibentes prouident Ecclesia, ac simulachro, ac sibi ipsis abundanter.

Cap. 29. De Ima, & quibuldam alijs meridiona. hous Infulis.

Inde viterius procedendo in Austrum per multas & mirabiles terras quinquaginta duarum diatarum spacio, habetur magna Insula Lamori. Illic omnes nudi incedunt, & ferè omnia sunt singulis communia; nec vituntur privatis clauibus fine feris, imo & omnes mulieres funt communes omnibus & fingulis viru, dummodo violentia non inferatur : fed & peior est ijs consuetudo, quod libenter comedunt teneras carnes humanas; unde & negotiatores adferunt eis crassos infantes venales : quod si non satis pingues afferuntur cos (aginaut sicut nos Vitulum, fine Porcum.

Mandeuilius v-Iaua Iniula,

Hic apparet in bona altitudine Polus Antarcticus & ineipit modo apperere in alta Lybia, ita quod in alta E: hiopa, elenatur octodecem gradibus, pront ipfe probani Aftrolabio.

grandic. Et est valde grandis Regio Iaux, babens in circuntu ambusum ieucarum autarum munum. estama in Atoma-eft valde potentico imperans septem Inflatum vicinarum Regions. Terra situa sipopulosa valde, crescunt in ea Species, & abundantia Gingiberia, Canella, Gariofols, Nuces Muscata, & Mastix, cum Aromatibus multie. Sed & quadibi nafcatur vinum, non habent : Aurum & Argentum eft ibi in copia immensa, quod patet in Regis laux palatio, cuius palaty nobilitas non est facile scribenda.

Cuniti gradus ascendentes ad palaty aulas, & aularum cameras, & ad thalamos camerarum sunt Colids de argento vel auro, sed & omnu statura pauimentorum in alis babetur ad similitudinem seacaru. omam quadratam argenti, alteram auri, laminis valde crassis, & in ipsis pauimentis, sunt ex sculpta gefla, & biftorie dinerfe. In principali verò anla, est plenarie expressa Dani Ducu Ogeri bistoria, à nainitate ifins, quousque in Franciam fantassice dicatur renersus, cum tempore Caroli Magni Regui Francia, infe Ogerus armata manu conquisius Christianitati sere omnes partes transmarinas à levofolymis vique ad arbores Solis & Lune, ac prope Paradifum terreftrem.

Pro bac Regione Jaua, (que tangit fines Imperij Tartariæ) sibi subinganda, Imperator Grand Can multories pugnanit, sed nunquam valuit expugnare. Hinc per mare ventur ad regnum * Thalamai- * VelTholo-lam, quatuor funt genera arborum, de quarum una accipitur farina ad panem, de secunda mel, de tertia vinum, & de quarta pessimum venenum. Extrabitur autem farina de suis arboribus isto modo. Certo tempore anni percutitur ftipes arboris undique prope terram cum secure, & cortex in locis plu- bote.

ribus vulneratur, de quibus recipitur liquor fpiffus, que deficeatus ad folis aftum & contritus reddit farinam albam, ac si de frumento esfet confectus, attamen his panis non est triticei saporis, sed alterius valde bons, Simils modo de suis arboribus mel elicitur, & vinum " liquitur: excepto quod illa non sicut era- "Tadeic, mina prima deficcantur. Fertur quoque ibidem extractionem buius farina, mellis, 🕁 vini, per Angelium 20 primitus fuisse ostensam pradicto Danorum Duci, ill c fame cum suo exercitu laboranti. Contra vene-

num quod de quarto arboris genere stillat, solum est intexicato remedium, ve de proprio simo per puram aquam distemperato bibat.

In littore maris Calanoch miraculose veniunt semel in anno, per tres continuos dies, quasi de omni ge. Calanoca, nere pissum marinorum, in maxima abuadantia: & prebent se omnibus liberè capiendos ad manum. Nam & ego ipse cepi quamplures. Unde not andum, quod codem tempore anni quo super dicta extrahitur farina, mel, & vinum, conneniunt in boc ists pisces: que ambo mirabilia fecit uno tempore Deus olumpro Duce suo Ogero, qua & in memoria illius, vsque nunc, sinculis annis innouantur.

Et sunt in boc territorio testudines terribilis quantitatis, sitás de maioribus Regi ac Nobilibus delica. Testivadines tus ac preciofus cibus : mentior, fi non quafdam ibidem viderim testudinum conchas, in quarum una grandishma, 30 fe tres homines occultarent, funt q, omnes multum albi coloris. Si bic ver vxoratus moritur, fepelitur &

vxor una cum eo, quatenus, sicut ibi credunt, habeant eam statim sociam in seculo altero. In iftis autem meridionalibus partibus apparebat mibi eleuasso poli Antarctici 33. graduum, cuiti Australis Intl-16. minutu. Et sciendum quod in Bohemia, similitér & in Anglia eleuatur polus Artitions 52. gra- tudo 33. grad. dibus vel citra: Et in partibus magie septentrionalibus, rebi sont Scoti 62. gradibus cum 4. minuttis. 16. minut Ex quo patet respiciendo ad latitudinem cult, que est de polo ad polum, simerario mea suit per quartum Horizoniis Chera terra, & vitraper 5. gradus, cum 20. minutis. Cum ergo secundum Aftrologos, totus terra circustus fit 31,000.milliarium, octo fladys pro milliario computatis, & fentinginta fladia Hac etat Era-respondeant ad unum gradum, quod patet ad latistudinem terra, perambulaui 66733. sladia cumo uno tosshenis come tertio, que faciunt 4170. loucas Geometricas cum dimidia vel prope. (um gitur tot or talta in sfite Infulte vidimus monstra (que si explicarem scribendo vix à legenti-bus omnia crederentur ) noncuranismus viterius procedere sub polo Anstrali, ne in maiora pericula inci-De bona Rederemus : sed propter anditam & insusam nobis samositatem potentia, nobilitatis, & gloria Imperatoris gione Manderemus: jea propier anditum com jocijs nanigare magis versus Orientem. Cuma per multas dietas Mangi.) Tartarorum, vertebam faciem cum socijs nanigare magis versus Orientem. Cuma per multas dietas Mangi.) Sustinuissemus multa pericula maris , peruenumus in Regnum Manchus, quod est in confinibus superioris Indix, & innertur ab una parte Tartaria. Hac Regio Manchus pro fua quantitate reputatur melior, delettabilior, & omnium bonorum abundantior de cunttis ibi prope Regionibus. Nam & homines, befica, & volucres maiores & corpulentiores sunt aligs, & pra obertate vix inuenirentur in una ciuitate decem mendici. Formosi funt viri, sea firmina formosiores. Sed viri loco barba, habent perpancos pilos, rigidos, & longos ab utraque oris parte, quemadmodum nostros videmus cattos babere.

50 Prima quam ingrediamur ciuitas est Lachori, distans una dieta à mari, & mirabamur, & gauss sumus nos muens se integram cinitatem Christiana sidei. Nam & maior pars Regni credit in Christian. Christiant, Ibi habetur ir, leus preçio copia rerum omnium, & pracipue victualium : vnum genus est ibi serpentum in abundantia quod manducant ad omne consistium, & nisi pro finali ferculo ministrarctur de illis serpentibus, conniuum quam modicum diceretur.

Suntá, per hoc regnum pleraque ciuitates & Ecclesia, & religiones quas instituit Dux Ocerus, quia boc est unum de quindecim regnis que quessur, sicut infra dicetur. Illic sunt elegantes alba galline, que non vestiuntur plumis ve nostra, sed optima lana. Canes aquatici, quos nos lutras nominamus, sunt ibi multi edomiti, quòd quoties mittuntur in flumen, exportant domino pifcem.

Ab hoc loco per aliquas dietas, ventur ad buius regionis maximam orbem Canfay, hoc est dicere, in India occi-6c Civicatem Coll, imo de universo orbe terrarum putatur hac maxima civitatum; nam eius circuitus dental, telle Ciuitatem Cerl, imo de vrinerijo orbe terrarum putatur oce maxima cumanum, imbatitur, He Penadumire, Colestici eli monful un cerl facile decret, quam compressi a quampsirium spositiri insbatitur, He Penadumire, fedet in lacumuri, quemadimodum, O Venetiz: O babontur in esplicita quam mille dacenti pom. in Decadibus.

Cantity vedi tes, & in quolibet turres mina magnitudinis, as fortitudinis, munita peruigili custodia & pro wrbe tuen- Quintay, & da contra Imperatorem Grand Can. Multi funt ibs Christiani , & multa Religiones Christianorum, entideletiptio sed & de ordenibus Minorum, & Predicatorum, qui tamen ibi non mendicant; est magna pluralitat ex duersis Nationibus Mercatorum. Per Regionem nascitur vinum valde bonum, quod appellatur Bigon. Et ad leutam extra Ciustatem , Abbassa magna est, non de Religione Christiana sed Pagana: 🕁 in ea forrestium, sue borsuu magnuu vudid, circu netusu, consuu arbortbuu. & arbustu iu cuiuu stiam medio mons altsu simul & tasue, habens horsum vhi solum inhahstans bestiela mirabilas, sicus Simie, marmota, Lanbon, papiones, foreti o buiusmodi ad varia o multa genera, o ad numerum infinitum.

Eidem narrat

Omni autem die post resettionem conuentus Abbatia, qui est valde Monachosus, deseruntur reliquia ciborum cum magno additamento, in vasis auro lucentibus ad bunc bortum : & ad sonitum Campana argentea, quam Éleemos narius manu gestat descendentes, & occurrentes de bestiolis duo millia aut plures ses component residere ad sirculum more pauperum mendicorum, & traditur singulis per seruos, als- 10 quid de his cibaris, ac denno audita campana segregando recurrunt : Cumque nos tanquam redarquen. tes, diceremus, cur bac non darentur egenis, responderuns, illic pauperes non babentur, quod si innenirentur, potius tamen dari deberent bestvolis. Habet enim corum persidia, & Paganismus, animae nobilium hominum post mortem ingredi corpora nobilium bestiarum, & animai ignobilium corpora bestiarum ignobilium & vilium ad luenda videlices crimina, donec peracta panitentia transcant in Paradisum: ideo. que nutriunt, prout dicunt, has nobiliores bestias, sine bestiolas, qued à quibusdam nobilibue fundabatur in principio hac Abbatia. Multa sunt alia mira in hac Ciuitate, de quibus sciatu, qued non om-

C2p. 33.

Insula Pygm.zorum non est protensa, sed forte 12. Ciuitatum. Quarum una est grandie, & bene mu. nita, & quam Grand Can facit cum fortibus armaturis curiose fernari, contra Regem Mangi.

Lameban. * Cumps.

Hinc proceduur per Imperium Grand Can, ad multas Cinitates, & Villas morum mir abiliter dinerforum, vfg, in Regnum Iamcham, quod est vnum de 12. Pronincis maximis, quibus distinguisur totum Imperium Tartarorum. Nobilior Cinitas buisse Regni sen Pronincia dicitur Iamchan, abundans meremionis, & duitis infinitis, & multa prassans proprio Registributa, queniam sieus ili de Ciuitate satentur, valet annue Regi quinquagista milia " Cuman Florenorum auri. Nota. In Iamehan Cinitate off Conuentus fratrum Minorum: in hac funt tres Ecclesia Monasteriorum: reditus simul afcendit ad 12. Cuman. Odericus. Vnus Cuman est decem millium. Summa tributi anuni, quinquaginta millia millium Florenorum. In illis nama, partibus magnas numerorum summas estimant per Cu-Ciuitas Meke, man, numerum 10 millium qui & in Flamingo dicitur laite. Ad quinque leucas ab bac Cinitate of maii, mme non a communi qui alsa ditta Meke, in qua fiunt de quodam albiffini genere ligni Naues maxime cum Aulis & Thalamis, ac multis adificies, tanquam Palatium tellure funditum.

ues, quales hodie oftentat b Vel Care

Inde per idem Regnum ad viamocto dietarum per aquam dulcem, multas per Civitates, & bonas a Siuc Lante- Villas, venimus . Laucherim, (Odericus appellat Leuyim) vrbem formofam opuma, magnarum,fitam super flumen magnum b Cacameran. Hoc flumen transit per medium Cathay, cui aqua infert damnum, quando nimis inundat, sicut Padus in Ferraria, Mogus in Herbipoli: & illud sequentes inmoron. autonom, quarum nimi souman, siem r autos in retraria, Mogus in Hetospoli: & illud sequentes in-Cathay Calay. transimus principalem Proninciam Imporis Tartaria, dictam Cathay Calay: & ista Pronincia est multum distenta, ac plena Cinitatibus, & Oppidis bonis, & magnis omnibus q', referta mercimonys, maxime Sericosis operibus, & Aromaticis fr iebus.

Vel Camba-

Nauizando per dictum flumen versus Orientem, & itinerando per banc Cathay Prominciam ad e Engarmago. multas dietas per plurimas Vrbes & Villas, ventur in Civitatem . Sugarmago, abundantiorem omnibus in mercemoni; s antedictis: quando sericum est bic vilissimum quadraginta libra babeniur ibi pro decem Florenis. Ab hac Cinitate, multis Cinitatibus peragratis versus Orientem, veni ad Cinitatem Cambalu, que est antiqua in Pronincia Cathay : Hanc postquam Tartari ceperunt, ad dimidium miliare fecerunt unam Cinitatem nomine Cay do, & habet duedecim portas, & a porta in portam duo funt groffa miliaria Lombardica, spacium inter medium istarum Ciuitatum habitatoribus plenum est & ciremitus cuiussbet istarum ambit 60. muliaria Lombardica, que faciunt ofto Teutonica. In bac Ciustate Cambaluresidet Imperator Magnus Can , Rex Regum terrestrium, & Dominus Dominorum terrestrium. At q, inde olterius in Orientem intratur vetus vrbs Caydo, vbi communiter tenet suam sedem Imperialem Grand Can in suo Pal cio. Ambitus autem vrbis Caydo, est viginti fere leucarum, duodecim habens portas à se distantes amplius quam stadia 24.

Imperatoria Grand Can.

Palatium Imperatoris Grand Can, quod est in Caydo Civitate, continet in circuitu propris muralis vltrà duas leucas 🕁 sunt in eo aula quàm plures, in forma nobiles, & in materia nobiliores. Aula autem sedis,qua est maxima caterarum, babet intrinsecus pro sui sustentatione 24. areas columnas factas opere fulorio, de auro puro, & omnes parietes ab intus opertas, pellibus quorundam animalium, qua vocantar Pantheres : ha sanguinei sunt coloris, & staremicantes, vt Sole desuper relucente, vix oculus valeat bumanus sufferre splendorem, tanta g fragrantia ve illi approximare non posset aer infeitus, unde & ista opertura parietum appreciatur super tegmen aurearum laminarum, &c. Istim autem ostia aula, dum in ea residet, aut deambulat Imperator mulis Barones ingressium sernant mtente & ne limen tangatur, quod boc haberent pro augurio: & bene verberaretur, quia imperatore prasente, nemo nist adductus in quacunque camera, vel babitatione intromittitur, donec interrogatus inserit 60 Mandeuillus Imperator. Latitudinem buius Basilica astimo ad spacium de meis pedibus centum & longitudinem vlfuis pedibus aulum Impe-

Praterea, inxta Palati, ambitum, habetur grandis parci spaciamentum, diuersi generis arboribiu repletum, fruitus ferensibus varios, & nobis inus os, & in parse media, aula fuper excelfum collem de tam mira & pulchrastructura, et eius nobilitas de facili ad prasens non possu describi. Et endia, , per collis gyrum aqua fossaum profundum, & latum, vitrà quod pons unicue ducit ad collem. At q, ex duobus montis lateribus, stagnum cum diuerforum copia Piscium, & volucrum indomitarum, vt aucarum, annatum, cignorum, ciccniarum, ardearum, & collectorum in magna pluraluate: nec non & per parcum, muita siluestres bestia, & bestiola quatenus per aula fenestras possis Dominus pro solatio respicere volucrum ancupationes, bestiarum venationes, & piscium captiones.

Prater palatium hoc in Caydo, habet Imperator similar tria: vnum in ciuitate Sadus, versus Sep. tentrionem, vbi competens off frigue, ibi moratur in aftate. Camivalu, vbi competens calor, ibi moratur breme. Tertium in cuutate longh, in quo o in isto Caydo, ot sepius fernat fedem, eo quod in istis est Haitoniu me-

10 aer maçis temperatus, quamuis semper calidus videtur Nostratibus.

Sciatis quod ego, meiq, sodales, pro sama magnificentie buius Imperatoris, tradidimus nos stipendiarios esse in guerrus, contra Regem Mangi pranominatum. Es suimus apud ipsum 15. mensibus, & De quatuos auarous esse no preservo partem partem bominum, in meduam partem nobis non fussife relatam : bimninum bus, quas blaze des inuentius multo maiorem partem bominum, in meduam partem nobis non fussife relatam : bimninum bus, quas blaze (exceptu custodibus bestiarum & volucrum) qui intra palatium certa gerunt ministeria est mumerus mucan celedecem cuman.

Nota. Traxi moram in Cambalu tribus annis : fratres nostri locum habent in Caria sua specialiter, & fest is diebie flatinis dans benedictionem. Odericus. Et quoniam Imperator bubet satis plures Vixit in Camquam decem mille Elephantes edomitos, & velut vittà numerum alsas bestias (quarum quadam tenen- balu tribus tur m caneis, stabulis mirabilibus, velcatenis) nec non & aues rapaces, & Accipitres, Falcones, Offro. annis.

20 nes, Gryfandos gentiles, Laueroys, & Satyros. fed & Auiculas loquentes, & Papingos, & similes, 4halg, cantantes : requiatur numerus hommum de situ curam & laborem gerentium, vlira sex cuman, Sex cumo fe. & pratereà ingiter ad Curiam equites cum plenarys armaturis, quing, cuman, & de peditibus cum pra-mulotum, handi armaturis, cuman decem. Sed & omnes de natione quacung, mundi venientes, que petunt de-Quaque Cuscribi pro Curia, recipiuntur. Sic enim inssit Imperator. Habet & medicos Paganos viginti, & totidem manequitum, Phylicos, atque fine bis Medicos Christianes ducentos, & tosidem l'hyficos, quonsan ifte Grand Can Decem Cumaiorem gerit confidentiam in Medicis (hristianis, quam in sua propria nationis medicis.

Hoc ergo sirmiter scias, qued de Curia Regis accipiunt necessaria sua inguer oltrà triginta cuman stiani, 220.18 hominum, preter expensac animalisms & volucrum, cum tamen in festic maioribus sint bemines propè in aula Grand Can. duplo tanti. Nec valet hic Dominus defectum vilum pati pecunia, co quod in terra sua non currit moneta Vinus Cuman 30 de argento, vel auro, alione metalle, sed tantom de corio vel papro: borum enun forma denariorum contince de-sono imprestaria impressorum preciatus munoria aus maioria natoria. Secundom diameter. com milia, ve figno Imperatoris impressorum preciatur mmoris aut maioris valoris , secundim discrittatem impresso- in cap. 33. ms, qui per visitationem, detriti vel rupti, cum ad Regis the saurarios deferuntur, protinus dantur pro Moncta de co.

Quaier in anno celebrat Imperator sestimitates solennes. Pri nam de die propria Natinitatis. Se- Quatuoc sesta, cundam, de die sua prima prasentationis in corum Templo, quod appellant Moleach, voi o sit ijs, nescio quod gensu circumcifionis. Tertiam, in throniz time fui l'dolt in Templo. Quartam, de die que Circumcifio Idolum capit dare responsum, seu facere diabolica mira. Plures enim in anno non tenes si leunitates, niss que dam. si quando nuptias filiy aut filia celebrat. Itag, in istis solomitatibus est populi multitudo absq. nu-

40 Celebrato post boc prandio satie morose, quia nunquam est vitrà semel edendum in die de quo & cina Capa 36. administratione nunc longum est scribere, adsunt gesticulatores, mira visu, suamag, auditu pedibus, ma. De ludis & attentification none consumers; captibus, or toto corpor, et al. fingulos gefius, correspondente debto roccia for prefittigi in no. Et semper success forms in minimum cantilena success forms must be successful to consumers. Ex bos consumers profit successful to consumers of the funt, & Magi, qui fais incant :tiombus prastant prastigia multa.

Certum est illu bomines esse subsiles ad quasdam huma: se arses, & ingenioses ad fraudes super om... comecunt. nes, quu noui munds partes, unde & inter se dicumt pronerbium, se soles videre duobus oculis, & Chri. Magi intignes. nes, qua nossi susmas pares, vinac G suier je sunimi promi vinimi, je juva vinim uževeni vinaci. O vorificans vine, cateros success bomines caces: led mentitur iniquitas soi, quantizan ipsi vident solo oculo territoria. O nes Christicos duobsu, quia cameterenis videnus spritualia, G marsara: percentencia, centencia videnus spritualia, G marsara: percentencia, steenim Naas, id est, humani generis bostis cum illu fodus, ve erueret omnibus oculos dextros, scili- 1.5am.11.2.

50 cet forisuales.

Post annos Christi 1100. prima Tartaria fuit nimis oppressa servitute sub Regibus circumiacentium Cap. 37. sibi nationum. Quando antem Deo placnit, maiores illus Tartariz elenanerum de semplis sibi Regem Qua de causa dutum Guis Can, cut & promsferunt subiettissimam obedientiam. Idem cum effet prudens & fremus dicitus Grand 12. viriles babens filios, debellamis cum iss & populo suo, & vieis, ae subjects cunitos in circuitu Reges, Vera ratio huquibus terra indebite diu subsacuerat. Quin etia n apparente sibi in visione Argelo Dei velut milite mi ius nominis albo eque, & candidis armis, & hortante se, ut transiret Alpes, per montem Beliam, & per brachium Can. maris, ad terram Cathay, & ad alias illic plurimas regiones transsitt, & capit cum first suit aliquas Guis can. maris, ad terram Cathay, & ad alias ilke plurimas regiones transputs, & capu com post que actiques Vel Belgiam.
ex illis debellare, & fologete, Deo in comibus admunante patenter. Et quomim ne equo albo es Angelus Vel Belgiam.
Gur albo equi, apparuit, qui etiam ante pallum pradelti maris nouem orationes Deo facere iussi, ideo successores osque & novenarius 60 boute deligunt equos albos, & nouenarium numerum babent pra cateris in gratia. Dung Guis Can numerus Iar-

morti pre senio appropriquaret, conuccatos ante se filios bortabatur, & monebat exemplo 12. telorum in tatis sint in simul colligatorum, que à nullo siliorum pariter françi posuerant, sed dissoluta unumquodá, per se facile pretio. frangebatur: fic filij (inquit) dilectiffini, fi per concordiam ves innicem dilexeritis, & enxeritis fenior; frairs obediences, confido in Deo iunta promissionem mihi ab Angelo fattara, quod omnem latissimam

Cap. 35.

Grand can.

istam terram. & optimam illius imperio subijetetis, quod & post patris discessium strensissime , ac sidelisfine (Deo fibi prosperante) perfecerunt. Et quia cum propris nominibus habebant cognomen Can, prinrogenitus pro differentia obisnuit nomen Grand Can, id est, Magnus Can, videlicet supra cateros fratres, qui fibi in omnibus obediebant.

Sir Iohn Mandeviles Trauels and Observations.

9 into Can. Con Can. Mang Can. Cobile Cas.

itaq, iste secundus Imperator vecabatur Ochoto Can. Post quem filius eius regnaunt dictus Gui Can. Quartus autem, qui Mango Can baptizabatur, permansitg, fidelis Christianus, qui etiam millo magno exercitis cum fratre fuo Hallaon in partes Arabix & Egypti mandanit destrui in toto Miho. me a superstitionem, & terram poni in manibus Christianorum. Et fratre tum procedente, accepit rumores de frairis sui Imperatoris morte inopinata quapropter & redist negotio imperfecto. Quintus Co. bila Can, qui etiam fuit Christianus, & regnautt 42. annis, & adificauit magnam ciun atem Iong, 10 maiorem (atts vrbe Roma, in qua & continetur valde nobile palatium Impersale. Hinc vfg, bodie omnes successores Paganismo fædantnr.

Ethiant Can. Imperator Tartarorum tempore Arau dewilli. Sero ben vxor Grand can.

I empore autem meo erat nomen Imperatoris Echiant Can, & primogenitus eius Cofue Can, prater quem o alios filies habus 12. de querum nominibus conscribendis non est cur a prasentis.

Prama vxorum suorum vocabatur Serochan, que & est filia Presbyteri Ioannis , scilices Imperatoris India. Secunda Verouchan, Tertia Caranth Can.

Istis duobus Imperatoribus non creditur innentri maior Dominus sub firmamento Cali. In literic que buins Imperatoris Tartaria feribantur nomine ponitur semper iste Titulus. Can filius Dei exceltt, omnum vuiuerlam terram colentium fummus Imperator, & Dominus dominantium omnium, Circumferentia magni fut sigille, continet boc scriptum. Deus in Colo, Can super terram, eius for- 20 titudo. Omnium hominum Imperatoris tigillum. Sciendum quoq, quod quamuis populi ibi dicuntur, & funt Pagani, tamen & Rex & omnes credunt in Deum immortalem, & Omnipotentem, & inrant per infum appellantes, Y 10g2, id est, Deum Natura. Sed nibilominus colunt & adorant Idola . 67 simulachra aurea, & argentea, lapidea, lignea, filtria, lanea, & linea.

Yroga, Deus Cap. 38.

Totum Imperium Imperatoris Grand Can distinttum est in 12. magnas Provincias juxta numerum De Territorio duodecim filiorum primi Genitoris Can. Harum Prouinciarum maior, & nobilior dicitur Cathay, Cathay & moque consistit in Asia profunda. Tres enim sunt Alia, scilicet que profunda dicitur, & Asia dicta maior que nobis est fatis propinquior & tertia minor intra quam est Ephelus beati Inannis Euangelista fenultura, de qua babes in pracedentibus.

ribus Fartaro-12. Prouinciæ Chinz. Cathay, Afia triplex, Veftitus Tar-

Omnes cam viri quam femina similibus in forma vestibus inducuntur, videlices valde latis, & breni- 30 bus víq, ad genua cum apertura in lateribus quam firmant (dum volunt) ansis quibus dam, nam vterá, fexus est brachijs seu semoralibus plene tectus. Nunquam viuntur toga aut collobio, sed nec caputio. unde nec per afpeltum indumentorum potest baberi differentia inter virum & mulierem innuotam. Sed nupta gestat per aliquod tegumentum in capite formam pedis viri. Nubit illic vir quotquot placet mulieribus, ve nomnulli babeant decem vel duodecem vivores aut plures. Nam quifg, maritus innestur licenter entlibet mulieri, exceptis matre, & amita, forore, & filia. Sicut viri equitant, tendunt, & current per Datriam pro negotis sic & mulieres, quoniam & ipse operantur omnia fere artificia mechanica sicut pannos & quicquid efficitur de panno, corio, sericog, minanty, carrucas, & vebicula, sed viri fabricant de ferro & de omni metallo lapidibus at q, ligno, nec vir nec mulier nobelis aut degener comedit vitra semel in die communiter. Mulia nutriunt pecora sed nullos porcos, parum comeditur ibi de pane exceptis ma- 40 anatibus & diutibus, (ed carnes edunt pecorum, bestiarum, & bestiolarum vipote Boum, Onium, Caprarum, Equorum, Asinorum, Canum, Cattorum, Murium, & Rattorum, sus carnium forbentes, & omnis generis lac bibentes.

Porcus & panis rariff.

Nobiles autem bibunt las Equarum, seu immentorum, pro nobil: simo potu & pauperes aquam bullitam cum modico mellis, qua nec vinum ibi hibetur, nec ceruifia conficitur : & multi ac pluvimi fontes Formædemo. consulunt in sua siti, per villas, & rura. Domes, & habitacula rotunda sunt forma, composita & contexte parnis lignis, & flexilibus virgulis, ad modum caucarum quas nos facimus pro aniculis, habentes rotundam in culmine aperturam prastantem duo benesicia babitationi, quoniam & ignis quem in medio domus constituant fumum emittit, & pro espicie do lumen immutet. Intrinsecus sunt parietes undig, de filtro, sed & tellum filtrum est : has domus, dum locum habi; and mutare volunt, vel dum in distina 50 expeditione procedunt, ducunt secum in plaush is quasi tentoria.

Tarrari Hamaxouij, r. in plauft:is viuentes. Noutlunium in precio.

Ceremonia

Tartaronum

& peccara.

Multas supernachas obsernant ceremonius, quia respicient in vanitates & infanias fals: solem & lunam pracipue adorant, ei fg, frequenter genua curuant, & ad nonilunium, quicquid est maoni estimant inchoandum. Nullus omnino vitur calcaribus in equitando, sed cogunt equim stacello scorrione. reputantes peccatum non leue, fi quis ad hoc flagellum appodiat, aut immensum percuteret suo frano: pleraque similia, qua parum aut nibil nocent, ponderant vi grania, sicut imponere cultellum in igne, os osse confringere, lac seu alind potabile in terram effundere, nec non & buinsmodi multa. Sed seper bas, tenent pro graniori admisso mingere intra domum qua inhabitatur, O qui de tanto crimine proclamaretur affuetus, misteretur ad mortem. Et de singulis necesse est vt consiteatur peccator Flamini sua legis, & Soluat summam pecumarum delicti. Et si peccatum deturpationis habitaculi venerit in publicum, o- 60 portebit reconciliars dominim per Sacerdotem, prinsquam villus andebit intrare. Insuper & peccatorem necesse erit pertransire ignem, semel, bis, aut ter inxta indicium Flaminis, quatenus per ignis acrimoniam ; ur getur à tanti inquinatione peccati.

Neminem hommum probibent inter se habit are, sed indifferenter receptant, Iudicos, Christianes, Saracenos, & homines cuiuscung, nationis, vel legis, dicentes se satis putare suum ritum non ita securim ad salutem, nist quandog, traberentur ad ritum magis salutarem, quem tamen determinate nunc ignorant, imo mulsi de nobilibiu funt iam in Christianitate baptizati.

Porro Tarcari in pracinito expedicionis habent finguli duos arcus, cum magna pluralitate telorum: Arma Tarca Nam omnes sunt sagutari, ad manum & cum rigida & longa lancea. Nobiles autem in equis preciose torum, phaleratis ferunt, gladios, vel spatas breues & latas, scindentes pro uno latere, & in capitibus galeas de corio cotto, non altas, sed ad capitis formam depressas. Quicuno, de suis sugerit de prelio, ipso facto conscriptus est, ut siquando inuentus fuerit occidatur. Si castrum vel ciuitas obsessa se illis reddere vo- Taresti retre lucrit, millam acceptant conditionem mis cum morte omnium inimicorum, vel si quis homo singularis se figittantes.

Io dederit victum nibilominus abs q, vila miseratione occidunt, detruncantes illi protinun aures, quas postea coquentes, o in aceto (dum habuerint) ponentes mittunt innicem ad convinta pro extremo ferculo: dumque ipsi in bellis arte fugam simulant, periculosum est eos insequi, quoniam iaciunt sagittas à tergo, quibus equos & homines occidere norunt. Et quando in prima acie comparant ad bellandum, mirabiliter fefe constringunt, ve media pars numeri corum vix credatur. Generaliser noueritis, omnes Tartaros habere parmos oculos, & modicam vel raram barbam : In pro- Tartari hibers priss locis varo inter se litigant, contendant, aut pugnant, timentes legum pergraues emendas. Et inne- parcos oculos nitur ibi rarius vispilio, latro, fur, homicida, iniurians, adulter, aut fornicarius, quia tales criminatores bam. innessigatione sollicita requiruntur, & sine redemptione aliqua perimuntur. Dum quie decumbit insir- Mos sepultumus figitur lancea iuxta illum in terra, & cum appropinquauerit morti, nullus remanet iuxta ipsum, rz. 20 cum verò mortuus effe scitur, confestim in campis, & cum lancea sepelitur.

Imperator Grand Can postquam eius cognita fuerit defunctio, defertur mox à paneis viris in parco Cap. 39. palati, ad preuisum locum voi debeat sepeiri. Et mudato prius toto illo loco à graminibus cum cespite De sepultara paiaty, au presujam ocum, un quo velut in solio regali de ligno corpus desuncti residens collocatur, paraturg, Imperatoris signiur ibi tentorium, in quo velut in solio regali de ligno corpus desuncti residens collocatur, paraturg, Grand Can, & mensa plena coram eo cibarijs preciosis, & potu de lacte iumentorum. Instabulatur ibi & equa cum suo creatione sucpullo, sed & ipse albus, nobiliter phaleratus, & onustrius certo pondare auri & argenti. Et est totum cessoric. Tentoriy patimentum de mundo stramine stratum.

Tunca, effodiunt in circuitu fossam latam valde, & profundam vt totum tentorium cum omnibus contentis descendat in illam. Eog, facto ita equaliter terram planificantes adoperiunt graminibus, ve in omni tempore locus sepultura non valeat apparere. Et quoniam ignorantia nubilo turpiter excacati pu-30 tant m alio (aculo homines delectationibus frui, dicunt quod tentorium erit es pro bospitio, cibi ad edendum, lac ad potandum, equus ad equitandum, aurum & argentum ad respiciendum, sed & equa lac semper prastabit, & pullos equinos successius generabit.

Post has itaq, Imperatoris defuncti miseras exequias, nullus omnino andebit de ipso loqui coram vxeribus & filips, & propinquis, sed nec nommare, quia per hoc putarent derogari paci, & quieti illius, qua ron dubitant eum dominari, in maiori satis gioria Paradisi quam hic stetit.

Breuiter & nunc intendo cursum describere aliquarum magnarum Regionum & Insularum Imperiy De multis re-Tarrarize. Et primo illas qua de Cendunt à provincia Cathay per septentrionalem plagam, v(q, ad fines gionibus Im-Christianitatis Prutiz, & Rutiz.

Ergo provincia Cathay descendens in sui Oriente à regno Tharsis iungitur ab Occidente regno Tur- subiection 40 queicen, in quo & sunt plurima ciuitates, quarum formostor dicitur Octopar. Ipsum autem Turquest Octopar. cen regnum jungitur ad Occidentem sui regno seu Imperio Persix, or ad Septentrionem regno Coratina, Corasine, quod spaciosum est valde, habens versus Orientem sui vitra centum diatas deserti : boc regnum est mul. Regnum Comtu bonu abundans, & appellatur eins melior ciuitae etiam Corafine.

Isti quod regno iungitur in Occidente versus partes nostras regnum Commanorum, quod & similiter longum est, & latum, sed in paucis sui locis inhabitatum : Nam in quibusdam est frigus nimium, in Samarkand, aliys nimius calor, & in nonnullis nimia mulcarum multitudo.

Sunt autem in Persia due regiones : una alta Persix, que à regno Turquescen descendens, jungitur & Spahan ad Occidentem sui fluuio Pysion. In ista habentur renominata siuitates, quarum meliores dua dicuntur Sarmasanc. Bocura & Sconargant, quam aliqui appellant Samarkand : Et altera Regio Baila Peria, descendens 50 à flumme Pylon, qui ad sui Occidentem iungitur regno Media, & terra minoris Armenia, & ad A. Demagnifi. quilonem mari Calpio, & ad Austrum terra minoris India. In hac bassa Persia tres principaliores centia impera. cinitates funt Æffaber, Saphaon, Sarmaiaule, &c.

A finibus regm Bacharix supradiste vbi contignatur Imperio Indix, eundo per multas diatas in-Palaisi. tratur in regnum Pentoxyrix quod est magna latitudinis, & abundantia in multis bonis: busus nomi- S u Pentoxonatior ciuitas, dicitur Nyle, & in ca hubet Imperator palatium Imperiale in quo residet dum sibs placet. 112. Imperator iste semper vocitatus est Presbyter loannes, cuius nominis causam audieram quandog, non Civitas Nyse veram : sed in illis partibus accep: rationem indubitatam , quam breniter bic enarro. Circa annum ab Fabula de re-Incarnatione Domini Octu gentessimum, Dux Ogerus de Danemarchia, cum quindeem cognationis ri Ducis Dasua Baronibus, & armatis viginti milibus transiuit mare Grecia, & fauente sibi Deo conquisiuit Chris niz, quale

60 fianitati per multa pralia pene omnes Terras, Regiones, & Insulas, quas esfe de potestate Grand Can de oriende, Guipradixi, nec non & omnes, que funt de potestate Imperij huius Imperatoris Indix. Eratginter Barones done Lini &c. unus denominatus Ioannes filius Goudebuch, Regis Frisonum : qui dictus Ioannes Des denorus fuit, Vode Preibite. & dam lieun Eccles tram limina iniuit, unde & Birones ei dabant quast per iocum Presbyter Ioannes eus. vocabulum. Dun ergo Ogerus dictas regiones expugnatas d underet in hes quindecum suis cognatis, & quemlibet corum in suo loco constitueret Regem, quaterus Christiana religio in illa Orbis superficie semper ficbilis permaneret, tradidit ist. Presbytero Ioanni superiorem Indiam, cum 4000. Insulis, Requonibus, & psum prafecit Imperatorem super reliquos cognatos, ve es certa tributa impenderent, & in omnibus obedirent, atá, ex nunc omnes successores Indiz sunt vocati Presbyter loannes, & vsa, in hodiernum tempus boni manserunt Christiani, & Religionis amulatores, &c.

CHAP. VII.

The Voyage of NICOLO di CONTI 4 Venetian, to the Indies, Mangi, Cambalu and Quinfai , with some Observations out of Ramufor discourse of this voyage.

Icolo di Conti a Venetian, baning tranelled quite thorow India, after fine and twentie yeeres returned home; and because to saue his life he had made denyall of his Faith, bee went to the Pope (then Eugenius the Fourth, An. 1444.) being at Florence to obtaine absolution; who ensoyned him in way of penance, truly to make Narration of his Voyage, and whole Peregrination to his Secretarie Poggius, who writ it in the Latine tongue. 20 Ramusio Sought for it in Venice and other Cities of Italie in vame, and at last beard that it was translated into Portugall by the care of King Emanuel, An. 1500. a Copy whereof he procured from Lisbon, but so corrupt, that he doubted to publish it, which jet for want of better he did; and we out of him thefe Observations,

Nicolo di Conti a Venetian being a young man, then at Damasco, and having learned the Arabike Language, went with his merchandise in a Carauan of fix hundred Merchants, with whom he travelled into Arabia Petraa, and thence into Chaldea, till he came to Eufrates. In the Defart-deuills. Defarts of Arabia, once about midnight they heard a great noyle, which they thought were the wilde Arabs comming to rob them, but faw a great multitude passe by neere their Tents without hurting them, which some of the Merchants said were Deuils which hanted these Desarts. 30

Baidac. Grmus.

From Baldae is eight dayes sourney to Balfera, and thence foure dayes to the Persian Gulfe, where the Sea ebbeth and flowerh. After fine dayes fayling therein, he came to Calcum, and after to Ormuz; thence to Calaisa a Port of Persia of great traffick, where he remay ned to learne the Persian tongue. Afterwards clothed in the habit of the Countrey (which hee vied to doe in all his journey) he went with certaine Moores and Persians, having sworne to be faithfull to each other, and fayled to Cambaia, and after to Pacamuria and Dely, where flore of Ginger growes. Thence they went farre into Sea, and came to Bifinagar fixtie miles about, at the foot of a high Mountayne; in which are one hundred thouland men fit for armes; they marry as many wives as they will, which are burned with them when they die. The King is the mightieft King in India, and hath twelue thousand Women, foure thousand of which attend him on foot whither 40 focuer he goeth, and are busied in the service of his Kitchin; foure thousand others ride on Horfes, or are carried in Litters; two thousand are to burne with him, which is holden a great honor. Pelagonga is subject to him, eight dayes journey thence and ten miles in circuit : from whence in twentie dayes by Land hee came to Pudiferania (leaving in the way Odeschiria, and Cenderghista, where red Sanders grow) and thence went to Malepur where Saint Thomas is buried in a great and faire Church. The Inhabitants are Neftorians, which are Christians dispersed forted thorow all India, as lenes among ft vs. And all this Province is called Malabar. At the end of that Country is Zeilam a famous Iland, two thouland miles about, where are Rubies, Saphires, Cats-eye flones; and flore of good Cinamon; the Tree like a Willow but thicker, the boughs growing more in breadth then height, the leaves like thole of the Bay Tree, 30 but greater: the Barke of the boughs is best, that of the Trunke is not good : the fruit like Bayberries of which they make good Oile to anoint them. There is a Lake in which is a Citie of three miles circuit, gouerned by Bramines, which frend their lives in the studies of Philosophie, and are much given to Aftrologie.

L. Shacar.

Nestorians di-Malabar. Cinamon.

After that is a great lland called Sumatra, which the Ancients called Taprobana, where her stayed a yeere. There growes the best Pepper, the Tree like to Liy. In a part of the lland, called Batech, they eate mans fielh. Thence he fayled to Ternasfari : and thence to the mouth of Ganges, and up the streame (which is very great) to Cernonem, and to Magrazia; whence croffing ouer Land he came to Racha, and thence in seventeene dayes to Ana fifteene miles about, men. There are certaine old women which get their living by telling Bels of gold, filter, braffe, of the bigneffe of Nuts, which they put in mens yards betwixt the skin and flesh, when they are of age to vie Women, and in thert time cure the place; and the men much please themselves where they are much given to spend the Time in drinking and fellowship both Men and Wo- 60 to heare the found of them as they goe. Here the Copy is defettine.

Mangi is fill of Elephants of which the King nourished ten thousand: they ferue him in the warre, and carrie Caffles in which standers like the warre, and carrie Caffles in which standers like the warre, and carrie Caffles in which standers like the warre, and carrie Caffles in which standers like the warre, and carrie Caffles in which standers like the warre, and carried the warre, and carried the warre warred to the warred the warred to the war Slings. They take them with a tame female Elephant, vied to feed in a place encompafied with or this Margi a wall with two gates to goe in and out; into which in the coupling leafon the male enters is not China at one gate, and thee flees out at the other, many men attending with deuices to take him, both but Polos Mice, gates being thut; and with fafting, and accustoming other tame Elephants to him, tame him or some other

The men of this Countrey have but one wife, and all both men and women paint or embreider their skinnes with Iron pennes, putting indelible tinctures thereunto. They worthin Idols. To yet when they rife in the morning, they turne to the East, and with hands joyned, fav. God in Trimitie keepe vs in his Law. This Countrey produceth Serpents as groffe as a man, fixe cubits long, without feet, which they eate for great dainties; as they doe also certaine red Ants. There is a beast headed like a Swine, tayled like an Oxe, with a horne in the forchead like an Vnicorne a cubit long, of the colour and stature of an Elephant; with whom hee continually fighteth. The horne is much efteemed against poylon. In the furthest parts of this Countrey towards Caraio, are white and blacke Kine, some haired and tayled like Horses, some with haires like feathers of which they make Fannes.

Beyond Mangi is the greatest Pronince in the World, called Cataio, the Lord whereof is cal- Cataio, led the great Can which fignifieth Emperour: and the chiefe Citie is called Cambalu, which is 20 foure square and hath eight and twenty miles in circuit. In the midst thereof is a Fortresse, and in it a Palace for the King; and at every of those foure corners is a Cattle, each foure miles about, in which are Armouries of divers forts, and Engines for battery. From the Palace is a way on the wall to all those Castles, that if the people rebell he might betake himselfe thither. Beyond Note, this Citie fifteene dayes journey is Quinfai another great Citie, which within this little while hath beene new made by this king. It hath thirty miles compasse, and is more peopled then the former. In these two Cities it was told him that the Houses and Palaces are after the manner of Italie, and the men richer and wifer then in other places.

After he was gone from Ana, alongft the River to the Sea in seventeene dayes he arrived at Zaiton, a great Port, where he tooke Sea, and in ten dayes came to a great and populous Citie, Zaiton. 30 called Pauconia, which is of twelue miles compasse where he stayed foure moneths. There are Pauconia per-

a few Vines, which runne vpon Trees, and they make no Wine of them. There grow Abre- haps P. anin.

cockes, white Sanders, and Camphire, &c. I am loth to returne into India with this Author, whose defects and corruptions have made him so little sermiccable, together with the changed names of places since his time. It is remarkable that hee No compasses fayth that the Indian Mariners fayled by the Starres Amarike, and not by the compaffe; ving certaine which yet in measures and rules in that Starre-observation. Hee also relates the buge greatuesse and treble sheat the next age thing of their Ships. But of India, whereof all his Relations are, wee have already given you better, was there in that is more numbruall markedicall and readily a durbon. Yet have a have lived by the washing of their supportant to the same and the sam that is more punitual, methodicall, and credible Authors. Yet before we leave him, let us observe what Aneas Sylvius, or Pope Pius Secundas harb, cited out of him. Hee fayth, that hee fayled the Indian Antylde 2. 40 Sea a monet beyond Ganges, and then came to the River Ratha, which being fayled in fixe dayes, bee Afin fatte cite.

found a Citie called by the same name. And thence after seventeene dayes passing desart Hills be came into champaine Countries; which having passed in a fortnight with great labour, hee found a River greater then Ganges, called Daua: and having sayled therein a mometh, came to a samous Citie sifteene miles in circuit, named Dua, where the women are exceedingly libidinous, the men contented with one wife, The Province is called Macin, full of Elephanis, ten thousand of which the King keepes for Macinum: hereto marres, and thought critical on a white Elephant, mearing a golden Chapme diffinguished with by appeares genmes, and honging to his feet. The men and women rafe themselves, occur, can be since the Kom, his Matein is be saith, that the same Kine have tayles long and bairy to the feet, the haires subside like Feathers, of Pegu, &c.

much esteeme, and vsed on the tops of Lances as Ensignes. These things hath this Nicholas ( saith Sil- "And yet how 50 uius) of Macin, noting without doubt, the Region Serica. For our age placeth the Easterne Scythians many things in Cathay. That of Dua greater then Ganges, and that of ten thousand Elephants nounified by a more incredit.

King not have me have nechard to be believed. have languaged to the control of the control King not knowne by fame, are hard to be beleesed: bus long inquitie cannot cafily be confused.

TO THE READER.

Reader, I here present thee a piece of a Historie, so much as abust on Tartaria, and China. Alhacen, a learned Mahumetan was the Authors'; whether an exast Historian, enery where intensity to be understood; or whether in some part he be parabolicall, and presents a Tamerlane like Xenophons 60 Cyrus, (in some things rather what be should have beene, and what the Author could say, then what be was) I undertake not to determine. The Abbat of Mortimer takes it for a sust Storie, and so doth Master Knolls in his Turkish Historie. If it be an Historie partly parabolicall, yet doth the decorum exact of the Authour a verssimiliande every where of actions and places (sufficient to procure our pardry, if not thankes, the veritie of a great part being enident in other Stories. It is true that four things

This Bell or

Margi

learne fulfe for want of truth in our intelligence, rather then in themselves. And so bath it fared with attibe (ubiett of this Booke) Tartarian and Chinesian affaires : of which we had as little knowledge as of Tamerlan, further then terrors of Taxtarian Armes and some mens speciall occasions and tranels have given us light. Even the Sunne rifeth in those parts whiles it is not day-breake with us, and but attayned almost his Noon-point before we see him: and worthy wee are still to abide in a blacke night of ignorance, if we welcome not what light we can get (if we cannot get what wee would) from 6 remote an East. Once; Tartarian affaires (as it happens in Conquests) were changeable, and their New Moone was quickly at the full; divers chances and changes succeeding after Poles dayes to these; such wealth whetting the Tartars to get and bold, and no leffe the Chinois to recouer, the China State being unquiet so long as the Tarta t greatnesse continued, and freed (for the most part) with their dimini- to Ihing, and division into divers Estates. As for these times of Tamellan (if this Story be exact) it is like the Can beld the North parts of China from Quinfay forward, with Cataio; and the King of China the rest : then Nanquin being the Seat Royall, as fince the expussion of the Tartars Paquin. Or perbaps the Quintay heere mentioned, is that which Conti hath in the former Page told vs. was lately built by the Can : and not that which Polo fleakes of; in Catay and not in China : which cleareth this doubt of the Cans residence and rule in China. To reconcile all counts is for mee too hard a taske. because Cataio and China are even still bewysted, and leave their surveyers perplexed, bounding the fearch of the most currons in fearching their sust bounds, bow farre they are the same or differing; wherein our lefuites will more amuse and amaze vs (where wee will cleare our selues as well as we can ) when wee come to them. I have premifed Conti, though Tamerlane be a little Elder for his Religions fake. & and to recreate with a little Relation, before this longer Storie.

CHAP. VIII.

Extracts of ALHACEN bis Arabike Historie of TAMERLAN, touching his Martiall Trauels, done into French by IEAN Dv BEC, Abbat of Mortimer.

TAMERLANS Birth and Perfon, his Expedition against the Muscouite; his Marriage with the Cans daughter; his overthrowing of CALIX.

The Hiftory of Tamerlan famous amongft the Turkes and A abiuns.

Alhacen.

The Franke Tongue a mongst the Vndry Histories doe attribute, as a great want vnto the happie fortune of Tamer lan, not to haue a Writer in his dayes, which might haue left in writing his Hi- 40 florie vnto posteritie. But without any cause did they moane him, insomuch as his Historie is very famous amongst the Turkes, and Arabians; his Conquests very largely discoursed, and many of his worthy and notable savings collected.

with an infinite number of Noble deeds left vnto the memoriall of posteritie. Very true it, is, that he had not an Homer, but a great and worthie person, learned as well in naturall Philosophie, as in Aftrologie, who was in the time of this Prince, a companion and familiar of his Conquests , named Albacen, an Arabian by birth , and of Mahomets Religion. This Authour then being fallen into my hands, in my Voyage into the East Country, I caused the same to be interpreted vnto mee by an Arabian, who did speake Prank (as they terme it) that is to fay, Italian, and some time I spent, in affociating my selfe so with this man, who com- 50 mended greatly vnto me the elequence and gravitie of this Authour, wondering at his digreffi-Yeoftenhaue ons, and entring againe into his matter fo well to the purpose. It grieved mee much that I had not the perfection of this Language, to be a helpe vnto the richer of this Historie, for to deliuer it vnto my Nation with some grace : but I tooke thereof as much as I could in his Language, the Franker ta- which was corrupted, as is the Franke Tongue ( fo they terme it) which is a kinde of Italian. king terufilm mingled with Slanon, Greeke, and Spanish Tongues very common at Constantinople, with the Afigures all the rabian and Trakilb Tongues: so as I could not gather but onely the trueth thereof, and not the W. ft of Europe. drifts and gravitie of the Declaration, wherein the Authour had collected it for posteritie (and as he faid) by the commandement of the Prince, who was a louer of learning, and excellent The Tartarium in the knowledge of Astrologie and Divinitie, as the custome of those Nations is to joyne them frange kinde ordinarily together, studying vpon the vertue of names, and of the turning of letters, even in 69 of Aftrologie, their placing, writing them underneath Starres, whereof they make fentences, by meanes whereof they wrought miraculously in the things of Nature. This is that Zoroastrien and Baltrien Science, that of Balaam, and fome others in my opinion, which hath fucceeded vinto fo many

CHAP. S.S. I. Fables of Tamerlan. His Birth, Perfon, disposition: first Warre. 141

Arabian Astrologians. Now then, this Prince was endued with such knowledge, as made him admired of the people where he commanded, who are for the most part great wonderers, infomuch as this cauled him to be accounted a Prince accompanied with the Divine vertue, confidering the inflice he vied in all his actions. This hath proceeded even fo farre that some Italians have written foolish things thereof, as of certaine kinds of Tents which he caused to be pitched when he befieged any Citie; one white, fignifying peace, it yeelding vnto his meicy; another red, fignifying cruelty to follow; and the third blacke, fignifying mourning to enfue. But I finde not this in our Author, and I beleeue them to be tables.

I will now declare vnto you with my Arabian, who this great Prince Tamerlan was. Hee The off fpring 10 was then of the bloud of the Tartarian Emperours, and his father Og had for his portion the and flocke of Countrey of Sachetay, whereof hee was Lord. This Countrey lying betweene the North and the East, is the antient Countrey of Parthia, vpon the Coast of the Zagdians, and the chiefest the East, is the antient Countrey of Parina, whom the Count of the Zogadan, and the Chiefert The flockes of Citie of his estate was Samercand lituated upon the River of Iffarle. Some of our Historiograthe Tarinian phers would need haue him to be the sonne of a shepheard; but this haue they faid, not know- kings are their ing at all the custome of their Countrey, where the principall reuenue of the Kings and No-stockes and bles confifteth in Cattell, despising Gold and Silver, but making great reckoning of such righes, the Tart is wherein they abound in all forts: this is the occasion wherefore some call them Shepheards, and beafts are fay also that this Prince deteended from them. So his Father Og was Prince of * Achetay, wealth, abounding in fuch kinde of wealth. And being come vnto the age of fifteene yeeres, his father * This name 20 being already old, delivered up vato him the government of his Kingdome, with the comman- feems derived dement over all his Men of warre. His father Og being given vinto peace, withdrew bimfelfe from Sothtai, dement ouer all his Men of warre. First tarner of being gracer who poece, while some being mentioned be-vinto a folitary life, for to ferue God, and end the reft of his dayes in quiet. Hee gaue winto his fore in Haiten fonne Tamerlan (which fignifieth Heanenly grace in their Tongue) two fufficient personages of whom these for to guide and affift him in the government of his Estate: the one was called Odmar, and the Tattars are full other Als, persons in great dignitie and credit with his father. Now this Prince was well in- called Zagerai, flructed in the Arabian learning, and exercised himselfe much therein, and at such time as they Tamerland thought him to be either in the Bathes, wherein they are very curious in that Countrey being make it to fig. their chiefest delicacies, he was in the contemplation and studie of heanenly things. This Prince nife Lame les had within his eyes fuch Diuine beautie, being full of fuch maieltie, that one could hardly in- by reason of 30 dure the light of them without cloting of their eyes, and they which talked with him , and did that accident, often behold him, became dumbe, infomuch as he abstrayed with a certaine modestie and comhis Hosse. lineffe, to looke vpon him that discoursed vnto him. All the rest of his visage was curteous and Michel well proportioned: he had but little naire on histchinne: hee did weare his haire long and cur- Tamerlan his led, contrary to the cultome of his Countrey, who are shaued on their heads, having the same studies and alwaies couered, but he contrariwife was alwaies in a manner bare-headed, and faid, his mother learning. came of the race of Samson, for a marke whereof thee aduited me to honour long haire. This was eyes. The like the cause that made him respected of his men of Armes, and the most part of them did beleeue is reported of there was fome vertue in those haires, or rather some fatall destinie, the which many did believe Augustus. to be fo; and verily they were of a disky colour drawing toward a violet, the most beautifull The custome

40 that any eye could behold. His flature was of the middle fort, somewhat narrow in his shoul- of the Tartaders, he had a faire leg and strong, the strength of hisbody was such as no body did surpasse, and Tanthas were often on the festivall dayes he made triall of his strength with the most strong: and this he did long haire, and with fuch grace and humanitie, that he whom he ouercame held himselfe therein most happie, why, although it bee a difgrace amongst the Tartarians to bee throwne to the ground in wrastling. The descrip-Now, as he was Martiall, and defirous of glorie: the first warre that hee attempted was against tion of Tamerthe Moscouite, who came and spoyled a Civie which had put it selfe into his protection, and Our Authors had entred also into his Countrey, and being retired, proclaymed open warre against him, gaue tell vs hewas him battell neere to the River Mafeha, although the Mufcouite had a great Armie, which hee lame, and that had gathered together long before On the other fide, the Prince determining to refift him, al- he was there-

50 fembled all his forces, and those of his allyes. Now the Muscomite had very great forces, and Tamelian his men well trayned up in the warres, having had alwaies warres with his neighbours, the King of first warre a Polonia, with whom hee had then friendship, and the ayde of ten thousand very good Horse. gainst the Mos-There were also with him many Hungarian Gentlemen, led by Vdecelaus a Hungarian Gentle- couite. man, who had brought with him more then eight thouland Horse; the opinion was, that hee The Amic of had in his Armie fourfcore thousand Horie, and a hundred thousand fout-men. Our Prince TaThe Armie of merlan had in his Armie about fix-score thousand Horse, and a hundred and fifty thousand men Tamerlan. on foot, but not fo skilfull in points of warre as those of the Mosconite: for our Estate had long enioyed peace, and our Souldiers were indeed trayned up in discipline of warres, but not in the practice thereof. The order of Tamerlan was this; that is, he caused all his Armie to bee divi- The order of

60 ded into fquadrons, each confifting of fixe thousand Horse, except his owne, which was of ten Tamerland thousand, to as he made eighteene squadrons, his owne being reckoned which made ninetrene. The Auant-guard was conducted by Odmar, who led nine fquadrons, flanked with fortie thoufand men on foot, divided both on the right and left fides, who should shoot an infinite number of Arrowes. The Battell was conducted by Tamerlan, who led ten fquadrons, his owne being therein closed, and fiftie thousand Foot-men, the best and choicest Souldiers of his whole Armie. Prince Thanau, a kinf man vnto the Prince, led the Arere-ward, with fortie thousand Foot-men, and fixe squadrons: hee had some three thousand Horse adventurers, whom they call Oliagues, in the ir longue, the same which wee tearme, The forlorne bope.

The Moscomire did not observe that order, but did fight by double Rankes with Lances, and there was a space to helpe themselves therein, and to breake them, notwithstanding those Nations doe not breake them at all, and they feemed to bee a greater number then wee, making a great noyle. At the length multitude and skill ouercame the force and valour of the Mosconita, the victory bending to the Parthians fide, the which they did pursue hotly. Tamerlan was but the victory benoing to the retreated into the fire ye, and had two Hories slaine vinder him in the fight to on the fore-head upon the fide of the left eye, and had two Hories slaine vinder him in the fight to Tamertan employed himselfe in giuing God thankes for this victory, after hee had pursued the enemy three leagues; the next day he reviewed his Armie, and found that he had loft of his fide for his part betweene feuen and eight thousand Horse-men, and betweene three and source thoufand Footmen. The Mosconute lost some seven and twenty thousand Foot-men, and betweene fifteene and fixteene thousand Horse-men. This same day was Odmar the safegard of his Prince; but he loft Hally, who was slaine by the blow of an Arrow. The Prince did slacke no time after fo great a victory : He fer forward, and came into the borders of the Mofemite, whom he enforced to capitulations, that they should become Tributaries of a hundred thousand Duckets, and should pay all the charges of the War, amounting vnto the summe of three hundred thousand Duckets, he then would send backe againe all the Prisoners, and withdraw his Armie; 30 that for recuritie hereof they should give him pledges, which should be changed every yeare; vn. to all which they agreed. So was this Warre ended to his contentment, returning with glorie Now Tamerlan was received into all his Countries with much honour and triumph. The great

Cham of Tartaria, Brother vnto his Father, fent Prefents to gratifie him, making offer vnto him of his Daughter in Marriage, and that in marrying of her, hee would cause him to bee acknowledged as Emperour throughout all his Kingdomes, as his next heire, himfelfe being now old, and out of all hope to haue any more Children. Hereupon hee presently tooke his Journey towards him, being in the City of Quanicay, where he was received with all kind of Triumph and Magnificence; there did he shew himselve brane in all manner of gallant Showes and Gom- 30 bats, as well in jeft as in earnest. And as these Nations are full of vanitie, and desirous to make frew of their strength and agilitie, Tamerlan carryed away the Prize therein, whether it were in shooting neere with his Bow, or in changing Hories in the middest of the courses, or in breaking an Iron in running at the Quintaine; he made every one wonder at his dexteritie, and was crowned the fixt day after his comming thither with the joyfull confent of all the Subiects of the Emperour his Vncle, and of all the Court, After that, he married the Emperours Daughter, de-Marriage with firing first to bee crowned before the Marriage, to the intent that none should thinke that the the great Char Crowne came vnto him by meanes of her, but by succession, the Daughters not at all succeeding into Empires. It was also to affure his estate, and having remayned in that place by the space of two moneths, hee returned from thence with his Wite to Samercand, in which Citie hee de-40 lighted greatly to remayne, because the situation thereof was very faire; and for that the Citie is accompanied with a faire River, which caufeth great Traffque, and maketh it richer then any Citie within that Countrey. Odmar alone was called by him, at fuch time as the great Cham his Vncle did impart vnto him his Affaires; and among ft other matters, he propounded vnto him the Enterprize of China, promifing him affiftance and ayde, and gitting him to understand how of the Cittle of

The Tartarian

Exercifes.

This may bee prayfed in a fideli, but not in a Chrift n Qui vb que eft necessarie it was to undertake this Warre for the better assuring of his estate, seeing the King of China had much gone beyond his ancient bounds. He hal in his Court a Christian whom he loued much, and every one greatly respected, named Axalla, a Genuoic by birth , brought vp from his youth about his person. This man principally did stirre him vp vnto great Enterprizes, and notwithstanding his Religion, hee trusted 50 him. Now he had all Religion in reuerence, to as it did worthip one onely God, Creator of all things. He often faid, that the greatnesse of Divinitie consisted in the fundry kindes of people which are under the Cope of Heauen, who ferued the fame diverily, nounthing it felfe with diverfitie, as the nature was divers where it had printed his Image, God remayning, notwithftan-Quivo que est ding, one in his Essence, not receiving therein any divertitie. This was the reason that mooned majorane of the Some to permit and grant the vie of all Religions within the Countreyes of his obedience, alwater not all wayes prouided (as I faid before) that they worthipped one onely God. He determined to make Warre with the King of China (who is called the Lord of the World, and Childe of the Sunne) warre with the anig or come with the anig or warrend with the same which was no small Enterprize. But before hee would begin the same, hee fent with the same which was no small Enterprize. moueable populations of King of China, for to demand right for some Countreyes (which they call Hordan) abiding places, which this Prince of China had viurped long before, and even the passages of a River 69 A will builded called Tachy, which is beyond his limits, which are Walls which are betweene the Kingdomes of brehe Kingol the great Cham, and of our Tamerlan, builded of purpole by this King of China, to defend him from the Rondes of the Tartarians, and forces of our Prince, to as this was begun with the aduice of the great Cham, and for his benefit as well as for the Princes. Therefore to accomplish his Enterprize, in the meane-time that he attended for the returne of his Embaffadors, he caused his forces to come forwards from all parts, appointing vnto them for the place of meeting his owneat port built be the Hords of Baschir, where all his Armie assembled : and other ayding troupes of the great fore, and per-Cham in the Delerts of Ergimul, at a certayne day, in which place he should joyne with all his haps now by Army. The Army of the great Cham confifted of two hundred thousand fighting men, wherein age ruined, which may were all the brave men of his Court, who were accustomed vnto the Wars, the Emperour which be a cuife Pole then raisened, and was old, having greatly increased his limits, and conquered a great Country, menuous fo as these men were well trayned up in the Wars, and accustomed unto travell and paines. Now them not) and To then the Embaffadors which were fent, returne and informe the Prince of the will of fible prond by this King King of the World) this King of China (who was named fo) who posted up with waine glorie, repayred 100, was afton thed how any durft denounce Warre against him, making this proud Answere, That Polestine In Tamerlan should content hims life that hee had left him that which hee might have taken from which space him, and that his Armes and Forces were of another fort, then those of whom he published the alle the chintage victorie, to bring thereby terrour vpon his Neighbours.

This Answere being heard, our Prince marched directly vnto the Army, and gaue order for used part of the conveyance of victuals from all parts, fent to haften forward his Confederates, emparted the their Empire Answere ynto the Emperour by Embassadours dispatched from him, caused the boldnesse of the conquired bo King of China to be published, to make manifest vinto all the World the just heffe of his cause: fore b. Cublai. 20 Before his departure he went to take leave of his Father, who endued with a lingular and Fa- betweene the therly affection, faid he should neuer fee him againe, and that he hastened vnto his last reft, and Father and having made folemne Prayers over the Prince his Sonne for his prosperitie, kiffing him a though the Sonne, fand times, drew off his Imperiall Ring, and gaue it vnto him, not asking whether his Journey tended : and calling Odmar, he bade him farewell, recommending his faithfuldeffe vinto his Sons Then he departed and drew towards Samarcand, where the Empresse his Wife remay ned; whom he carryed with him as is the custome of that Nation, and after he had (being Religious) wifited the Tombe of his Servant Hally, hee caused his soule three dayes to bee prayed for, according to the Rites of his Law : whereupon he prefently departed, having taken order for the well go- Samay made uerning of his Kingdome in his abience, committing the charge thereof vnto Samer, a man well Gouernour of 30 practited in Affaires, and he who had the charge of our Prince in his youth. So then he triarched Sachtay in Taforward in the middeft of his Army, which comfifted but of fiftie thousand Horse, and one hundred thousand men on foot, relying principally on the Forces of the great Cham his Vncle; who Tamerlan his about all defired this War : he did not forget to give in charge, that the reft of his Forces should Armie matbe readie vpon the first Commandement, as soone as he should be joyned with the forces of the thing against great Cham, and marching forwards he had stayed by the way by reason of some distemperature the Ku which had surprized him through changing of the Ayre, as the Physicians affirmed. But yet, notwithstanding the forces which Cariles, Captayne of the Army of the great Cham conducted went daily forwards. Now the newes was spred into an infinite number of places of his distemperature, yet did he not neglect to fend vnto the great Cham, and often aduertize him of 40 the estate of his health, to the end the same should not cause any alteration, the which hee did fore-fee by reason of his preferment vnto this Empire, by the great Chans his Vncle : and hee vet neither gratified nor acknowledged him as all the other fubiects had done. Now concerning his delay, it was by fundry diverfly interpreted; some saidthat hee had bin aduertized of some vproare to be attempted, when he should be farre seuered from thence, and had passed over the Mountaynes of Pasanfu, and that Calix stayed vpon nothing else, infomuch as the Companies of the great (ham were gone forwards, even beyond the Mountaynes, having parted the Runter of Mean, and were encamped at Beappea, the which Cafar vanderflanding, its confirmation of the final haute the memes to worke his enterprize. Thereupon hauing affembled great girld frame of the final haute the memes to worke his enterprize. Thereupon hauing affembled great girld frame for the final haute the memes to worke his enterprize. Thereupon hauing affembled great girld frame for the final haute the memes to worke his enterprize. Thereupon hauing affembled great girld frame for the final haute the memes to work the final haute the memes to work the final haute the final haut was in doubt of a certayne Lord named Calix, who was discontented therewith, and had not as 50 flore of his most faithfull followers, he tooke counsell with them, that this was the meanes to lorin his abouerthrow the purposes of Zachetas, who would reigne ouer, and bring them vnder his Empire: sence, & that feeing their Prince had bin fo badly minded as to do the fame of his own mind without calling of them which had interest in that election, that now was the time to affure their libertie, which was in doubt to be loft, & caused also a rumor to be spred of the sicknes of this Prince, that the great Cham was old, the greatest part of his forces, far separated from him , forthwith dispatching a Messenger vinto the great Cham their Prince, to affure him that they bent not their forces against him, but were his faithful and obedient s. biects: but they armed themselus, because they would not be gouerned by the Parthians, their ancient enemies. Thus Calix thought greatly to trouble him, when he rose in Armes against him, and did thinke that he had already affaulted 60 the Wall which the King of China had made against the Tartarians. As soone then as the Prince was aduertized of the pretences of Calar thus difcouered, hee marched one dayes Iourney forward, to the end he might approach vnto (alibes, and impart the same vnto him, what face soeuer Caliber fet on the matter, he harkened what would become of Calix, that hee might likewife make some commotion: there was left with him to command ouer the Parthians, the Prince of Thanas, without whom he could not doe any thing, for that hee led the Auantgard. Thus was the Army deuided in two parts; the King of China remayning long before he was aduertized of all this, and thought he had all the forces both of the Tartarians and Parthians vpon Good directi- his Armes, so as this was of no small importance to favour our Affaires: for Tamerlan had elpecially given commandement, that the passages which are easily gotten, might as diligently bee kept, to the end that the King of China should not be advertized of the tumult. Then Tamerlan fet forward his Auantgard vnder the leading of Odmar: hee promifed vnto himfelfe shortly a happie fuccesse in his Affaires, and aduertized the Emperour of all: but it came vnto him when he was ficke. And furely it was high time for Tamerlan to march forward, or elical! had beene revolted, so leaving his Footmen, he made great lournies. Now during the time that he had bin to aduertized, and made his abode to confult, which was the space of two monetle: Calin having presented himselse with a hundred thousand fighting men before Cambalu, a very great Citie. and chiefe of the Prouince of Catago, the Inhabitants thereof came out to meete him, and did also receive him with all the joy that might be.

Now whilst our Army marched towards Caindu, and from thence vnto Calatia, whether our Army went eafily, looking for the Forces of his Natine Countrey of Zachetay, to come and joyne with him : he did not yet forget to fend forward daily of our Souldiers towards Cambaia, to as they supposed all our Forces to be on the necke of them already, which gaue great terrour wnto the people. Calie perceiuing that the people did repent, hee thought best to withdraw himselfe out of Cambala, determining to oppose himselfe against Tamerlan, and sent for his 20 power from all places, putting all vpon the euent and hazard of a battell. He drew out of Com-bala full fiftie thouland men, as well Burgeffes, as Souldiers which were there in Garrison, hauing wonne all the Captaynes which the old Emperour had placed there in Garrison, amounting to the number of thirty thousand men, and him that commanded ouer them, who had consented vnto the revolt of this great Citie. To make it short, having affembled all his Forces, he had fourescore thousand Horse, and a hundred thousand Footmen, the which hee had gathered together from all parts. Our Army then marched with all diligence, in fuch fort as certaine Scouts which were two thousand Horse, had newes of the Armie of Calix, the which came forwards directly towards vs, whereof they caused the Emperour to be certified speedily, who sent this ther two thousand Horses more, to the end they should keepe the passage of a River called Brore, 30 by the which our victuals were conveyed vnto the Armie, and also for to winne alwayes time, the Prince knowing right well that the motions of Civill Warres bee furious at the beginning, and that it is the best to resist them slowly, drawing them alwayes out at length if it be possible. For the people in the end acknowledging their faults, their meanes and money fayling them, and oftentimes victuals alfo. On the contrary fide in a Royall Army none of all this doth happen. where all things are fauourable, and the Souldiers well disciplined, obedience and order beeing wisely observed. Then had the Emperour the guiding of his owne purposes, for he had received commandement from the Emperour his Vncle, to hazard therein all for all, delivering vp into his hands the lafegard of his life and estate, that he might thereby end his dayes in peace, willing him likewise to punish this arrogant fellow and his partakers. By this meanes came forces from 40 all parts vnto Tamerlas; but on the contrary part, the Enemies Army was then in his chiefeff force, and began to feele the want of victuals.

Calix was of the age of fortie, he was a Captayne renowmed with the great Cham, hee was one of the chiefest in dignitie and place, and they had alwayes respected him within Tartare as a perion most worthy of the Empire, if the glory of Tamerlan, and his reputation had not so far excelled. The Armies began to be viewed the one of the other about eight of the clock in the morning, where there were very many skirmishes before they came vnto the mayne Battayle (according to the fights of these Nations) it was a great Plaine wherein they met at that time, with like aduantage on eyther part; Odmar led the Auantgard, wherein there was fortie thoufand Horse, and threescore thousand Foot-men; he made three Squadrons, whereof hee set for- 50 ward one before him that began the Battayle. Tamerlan marched in the same order, but his Squadrons were much stronger, the Foot-men both of the Auantgard and of the Battayle were on the right and left wings. Tamerlan had drawne out fixe thousand Parthian Horse, and two thousand Tartarian for the Arier-ward, and had committed the charge thereof vnto a faithfull Semant of his called Axalla (a Genuois borne) a man of great judgement, his vnderstanding being good and quicke, and a Captayne in great estimation amongst the Souldiers, although hee worthipped God in another manner then weedid, and was a Christian. And hee had many of them with him, whom he caused to come from the Georgians, and from Pont Enzin, who fought with great agilitie; this day did heeshew his great sidelitie and courage vinto his Prince. Calix on the other-fide, who was a well spoken man, was encouraging his Souldiers to fauour his fortune, and the libertie of his Nation : he had divided his troupes into three mayne Battayles 69 onely, his Foot-men vpon the right hand, his owne person was in the middest of the mayne Battayle, with many Foot-men which compaffed him round about (according as wee vie to

Many Chri-

CHAP. 8.5.2. Calix taken prisoner and beheaded. Tamerlan welcommed.

In the end, valiantly fighting, he fell into Axallas hands, which with one voyce he proclaymed through all his Campe, which overthrew the courage of all his Souldiers. Hee was kept vintill cally taken the next day, and was judged by all the Counfell worthy of punishment; whereupon Tamerlan prisoner by cauled his head to bee smitten off, the which hee sent to bee presented who the Inhabitants of Cambalu: he caused the like to be done vnto all the chiefe Leaders, not for crueltie, but for ne- ded ceffitie, knowing very well, that the meanes to cut off the Foot of civil warres, is to punish the Heads of the same, for they be Hydras which grow vp too fast.

Cataio, Cambalu ; TAMERLANS expedition into China, entring the Wall, conquering the King, and disposing of the Countrey, and returne to Cataio.

Feer this the Armie marched into the Kingdome of Catain, a Countrey rich in graffe, and in all kinds of pastures, abounding with great quantitie of Beasts, and People which knew not what warre meant. The Prince gaue commandement that these people should not be accounted as Enemies, but his good Subjects, that hee would vie all the Cities well, as Cangi, Sochgi, Gonza, Tagni, Togara, Congu, which had revolted, and were come to sue for pardon at his hands, in humbling themselves before him; the which he granted 20 vnto them, enjoying them onely to prouide fufficient victuals for his Arnie: which was of no small importance for the appealing of others, who had put all their hope in extremitie, which is in lofing their owne lives to make others doe the like and efpecially the Inhabitants of (ambals had taken this relolution : but being informed of the Emperours clemency , changed their opinions. In the meane while our Armie daily approched, and at fuch time as we came neereft, the more did the feare of all the Citie increase, insomuch as the Prince was advertised daily from those which fauoured his fide, of all things within the Citie, and he was affured that every one determined to obey the Conqueror, and to doe what focuer he commanded. The which being knowne vnto the Prince, he left all his Armie at Gonfa, and himselfe went directly vnto the Citie of Cambalu, where all things were made quiet, by the meanes of thirtie thousand Soul- Theordinarie 30 diers, being the ordinarie Garrison, whom hee caused to enter thereinto before him, and two Garrison as houres after entred into the fame himfelfe, being received with great magnificence not yeelding Cambain of as yet to pronounce the word of pardon, referring all vnto the Emperour, and to the ordinarie course of Justice. He stayed for the returne of one of his Fauourites, whom he had sent vnto the Emperour, to carry him newes of the victorie, and of the death of Calix, and that the chiefe of this Faction remayned prisoners with him; also to know what Inflice the Emperour would appoint to bee inflicted on those Citizens, which were the first beginners of the revolt of this Citie: for the Prince being defirous to be effeemed mercifull, and to win love within this great Citie, would not execute justice of himselfe, nor in his owne name, but by the Emperour his

Vncle, whom hee did gratifie herein, leauing the authoritie wholly vnto himselfe, and by this 40 meanes hee was not effected cruell. Thus the Prince after hee had remayned here eight dayes, departed. He was not many dayes journey from the Citic before he received tydings, how the great Cham his Vncle, willed that justice should bee executed on them which were the first Moouers of this revolt; the which was executed accordingly in the name of the Emperous, and by his speciall ministers; in such fort, that as the people accused the crueltie of the Emperour, they commended the mercy of Tamerlan. Thus was this warre brought vnto an end, to the great honour and reputation of Tamerlan.

As soone as our Prince was returned vnto his Army where hee found Odmar, who there attended his comming, hee was received of his Souldiers, and with a loud voyce called by all his Captaines and Souldiers; Most great Emperour and most victorious, as they are accustomed to Tamerlan wel-50 doe amongst the Tartarians. The Prince after he had long discoursed with his Captaines both of commed vito the beautie and greatnesse of the Citie of Cambalu, hee arrived at his Tent, where after hee had his Armie, declared vnto Odmar in what fort all things had passed at Cambalu: he asked his aduice, whe-firange acclather nee should goe and visit the Emperour his Vicle. Odmar well perceived that the Prince de-mation, fired it, and called vnto his remembrance the honour which hee had received when hee was at Quinzai, and that hee would have beene very willing to spend the Winter with the Empresse staying for the Spring for to returne vnto the enterprise of China, with a long speech distinaded him. The Emperour answered him, that he had euer knowne his fidelitie and loue, and that the cause of his fadnesse was, for that hee did not find in himselse abilitie to recompence the same ; and that when he thought to give himselfe some ease, then was the time hee must instead of the 6: delicacies and pleasures of Quinzay, make the Desarts of Cipribit the resting place from the trauailes of his new victorie: that it was ended, and his purposes determined: I have also heard the Prince fay, that Odmar did not speake vnto him like an earthly but divine man, and that he verily believed that God by his meanes did call him back from fome miffe-hap which would have light vpon him, to make his glorie increase the more. Now, the rumour was alreadie spread out all, that the Princes determination was to goe and wifit the Emperour his Vncle. the which tickled enery man with defire to returne into his Countrey, hoping to mioy the (weetnesse of his natine soyle. When as commandement was given for a generall review of the whole Armie: where the Emperour spake vnto his Souldiers in this manner: Wee have beginne (my faithfull Souldiers ) an enterprise to goe and assault the King of China, who hath of late repulsed even beyond the Mountaynes the Tattatian name; but wee were hundered to our great griefe by reschington fulfa ener organize internationer in a same timen to turne the bridle for to painly him, wherem you have because it is to follow for foreign of a lix, and were driven to turne the bridle for to painly him, wherem you have lowered a all affifted mee. It grieves benee that I cannot as well bragge of the fresh spojes of a stranger, as I may angoichina. vannt (by the meanes of your weapons) of those our omfantifull Citizens; and in times pass with your owne selves making tryall of my first Armes against the boldnesse of the sierce blokcounce, al- 10 though for this last civil victorie I am further indebted unto you, for your greater endeuour, and the hazardi-g of your persons being much greater, so were they our owne people, who would not acknow. ledge vs , whereof I cannot speake without skedding of teares , destring rather to burie such a vistorie, what glorie and honour soener wee have gotten thereby. Neither doe I recomm these things water you, but for to manifest that I forget not your faithfulnesse, and the great travaile you have endured with mee. Wee must not therefore bee wearie, but must turne our weapons against those which thinke that wee are greatly troubled, whereas wee are victorious. Wee have left our Companions, who have temportzed to beare the event and successe of our affaires, all our munitions bee there; wee must in that place (my Souldiers and friendly Followers)" paffe oner the rest of Winter: our Companions looke for vs. The Evernic is secure and looketh not for vs at this season of the yeare : for bee perceineth 20 that our Armie which is there is not sufficient for offence, but onely for defence. Ton fall receive donble pay, the better to furnish you against the inturie of cold : and as wee shall bee clothed with double garments, I hope wee shall bee also apparelled was double alorie. Let us march on merrily, I my selfe will goe with you, and bee companion of your glorue. After hee had thus spoken vnto his The crieof the Souldiers, they all cryed; One God in Heaven, and one Emperour on the Earth : and bowing Souldiers up- downe all their heads in token of humilitie, they shewed how agreeable they were to obey that which he commanded.

Tamerian his Oration visco his Souldiers

rours Oration.

China fortie

lergues Ling.

Perhaps this was not the ancient wall of which the

but fome other betwirt

tho cparrs of Cathay and Chinois write.

Thus enery one returned into his Tent, where they abode yet eight dayes more. The Prince fent back againe Zamai vinto Sachetay with some fine and twenne thousand Horse, and fiftie thousand Foot-men, for the lafetie of his estate in those parts. Thus after prayers were said, 30 all the Armie being affembled together in the presence of the Prince (according to the cultome of our Emperours) cur Armie began to march forward. Hee forgat not likewife to dispatch one vnto the Emperour his Vncle, to give him understanding of all this resolution, the which hee very well liked ot. The Prince by the same Messenger did beseech him , to fend vnto him in the Spring of the yeare some fiftie thousand men to repayre his Armie, and certayne money isy the King of also for the payment of his men of Warre, which hee granted him. Moreover, the conduthing of good flore of warlike munition, and plentie of victuals for to renew ours : for this watre was principally enterprifed for the probt and greatnesse of the Tarianians, and for the importance which the loffe of the Lordships of Paguin and Quifu was vnto them, whereby the King of China had greatly strengthened and affured his estate, in so much as hee might at his 40 pleasure enter upon the Tartarians, and the Tartarians could not enterprife against him without great forces, for that hee had caused a wall to bee made betweene the spaces of the Mountaines, which was fortie leagues long, so as they were defended hereby from the ordinarie incursions. the which continually did greatly enrich them, because they brought much Cattell through the Mangi, which fame, wherein the Countrey of China doth greatly abound, by reason it is fituated in a tempethe Tastar has rate ayre, being neither too hot nor cold. This was the cause that made the Emperour his Vacle ming gotten to delire this warre; whom our Prince, according to his dutie, would to the vttermost of his in Polos dayes, power gratifie, as also his new Subiects.

So wee began to march, and in thirtie eight dayes wee arrived at Cipribit, the Armie having the Ch. new re- found great discommodities: there had wee newes of Calibes, who was very glad to understand 50 cour; the Tar- how the affaires had paffed : hee came to visit the Prince, who shewed vnto him a very good tarians fill hol- countenance, and gaue him particular understanding of his determination, and understood at large of Calibes, all that had passed within the Kingdome of China. The next day the Prince ex tours coner parts of Many; mounted on horse-back, and came vnto Pazanfon, where the forces commanded by Calibes were panest many at that prefent, the which had often fought with and tryed the forces of the Chinois : but found this florie (if shem much interiout vinto their owne. The Emperour caused a generall review to be made of all the forces which were wader Caliber, and after he beheld the countenances of these Souldiers throughout all their rankes, he caused them to muster, and to receive money, every one crying, The Prince of God fame the victorious and innincible Emperous, according to their custome.

The Prince of Thursis (who comma ided the Armie in Calibes absence, going to meet Tamernets a lot of law) with great diligence had marked the Wall, and the places by the which hee might enter by 69 the Mountains for even great diagence man marked one wan, and the places by the which nee might enter by to doe the Ems. peror feruice, in the Mountaynes, who aduertifed him of all. Hee had also gayned through his courtesse a Lord of the same Mountaynes (called the Lord of Vauchefu) who taled a great Countrey, with whom he had fo well profited, that he made him defirous of a new Mafter, and to fibmit himtelfe vnto the Emperour, reseiuing daily great discommodicie by the warres which the Tartarians and Chinois made : fo as he comming to visit the Prince of Thanais , hee assured him of his defire to doe the Prince fernice, and to helpe him in the warre against the Chinois, the which the Prince of Thanais had wifely concealed from Calibes. But as foone as the Prince was arrived. he imparted the same vnto him, the which made Tamerlan desirous to have some speech with him, to that as foone as the Prince had received commandement from the Emperour, hee fent vnto Vauchefu to advertite him of the Princes arrivall, and of the commandement which hee had received: whereof the other was very glad, and having appointed a day, the Prince tooke Ic his fourney ( without flirring of the Armie ) into the campe of the Prince of Thanais, which was neere vnto the River of Languenne, whither hee had caused this foresaid Lord to come,

Then the Prince after he had heaped upon him gifts of faire Horses, rich Furres, and other rare things, he willed him to vtter that which he had to fay vnto him. This Lord spake then in this manner : Know my Lord , that it is but leffe of time to thinke , that with your Armes you should The speech of bee able to force the Wall, which the Chinois have built against the incursions of your subjects, the De- the Mountaine fendants have too much advantage therein. I doubt not of your Souldiers stoutnesse and of their cou. Lord vato Terage, I know you have conquered many Nations with them, and that what seener you command merlon. them, they will die or doe the same. I know you have great and wife Captaines with you, that 20 your Person is onely of all the World worthy to command them : but all this will bee but in vaine against the Wall of the Chinois, where I assure you there are fiftie thousand men to keepe it, and you cannot stay there so short a time, but there will come thither siftie thousand more, led by the Xianxi who bath such a commandement. The King of China will himselfe march forward also, who will give youbattell with two hundred thousand Horse and as many Footmen. After you have fought, I believe that the fortune and valour of your men may obtaine the viltorie, the which will cost you deare : but for to shew unto you how much the reputation and mildnesse of your men hath bound mee unto them, I will shew you a meanes by the which you may cause siftie thousand mento enter into the Kingdome of China, whom I my seife will conduct; and they shall bee on them which keepe the Wall, in a manner as soone as they shall perceive it. In the meane time you shall cause your 30 men to goe unto a place that I will tell you, which will bee very discommodious unto the Chinois, by reason of a Mountaine oner against them, which you must cause them to winne : for I assure my selfe, that when they shall perceine your Souldiers to bee passed, they will lose their courage, and you may casily winne the passage for to fauour those men of yours which shall bee passed ouer with mee. And for to show onto you the affection and fidelitie of that I speaks, I will deliner into your hands an onely Sonne I have, and two little Daughters with my Wife: I have also one Brother, who I am affured will follow mee to doe you feruice. The Prince having heard this Lord speake, received great ioy thereof, hoping that his affaires thould happily fucceede, and this hee kept very fecret, for even the Prince of Thanais knew not the meanes that this Lord had, feeing there was onely present the Prince and an Interpreter, and the Prince after hee had thus spoken vnso to him, gratifying him with all hee could possibly, this Lord retyred himselfe, accompanyed with the Prince of Thomais, who conducted him backe againe with all the honour that might bee. So the Emperour returned from thence into his quarter, and the next day after hee had imparted the whole vnto Odmar, and heard Calibes concerning that which hee had learned of the departing of the King of China, and of his preparation, which was great. This enterprise seeming hard vnto him , after due reuerence yeelded vnto the Prince , hee spake vnto him in this manner : Know my Lord, that I am your Slaue for to obey you : but feeing calibes Orariyou require mee to giue you an account of all that I know of the effate of the Kingdome of on voto Prince China, for that I have remay ned these fix moneths upon the borders by your commandement, Tomerian, to hinder them from pailing the same, whereby they might hurt your enterprises, I can af-50 firme vnto you, that the King of China, who raigneth at this present, is of great reputation, and hath increased the limits of his Kingdome more then any of his Predecessors. His strength confifteth in this Wall opposed against vs, the which hee hath caused to bee made by reason of the ordinarie roades of our Nation. I am of opinion, that there bee betweene fiftie and threefcore thousand men at the guard of that Wall, men for the most part trayned up in the Garrifons of the King of China, and his best Souldiers, and I know no good meanes to force this Wall without great hazard and much losse of your men. I have vinderstood, that towards the Lake Hogeen you may finde more easie entrance into the Kingdome : after every one had decla- The Lake re i his opinion, hee faid; that hee hoped the great God (the Vnitie, of whom hee would Hoges. maintayne against such Idolaters) and his just right should answere the reasons which doe contradict his purpole, and the valiant arme of his Souldiers shall quite overthrow what sever opposeth it selte against the same; and concealed from his Souldiers that which hee held as affored to execute it, to the end, the honour of a happy conducting might be afcribed vnto him onely.

Now, our Prince having fat sfied every one of the Kings and Lords that did accompany him, bee appointed the meeting place for his Armie to bee at a certaine place, where hee meant to choose fittie thousand fighting men, and deliver them vnto the commandement of the Prince of Thanais, vnto whom he joyned the Lord Axalla a Genuois (for that hee knew him to bee difcreete ) for to accompanie him, commanding him to give credite vnto him, for his experience and fidelitie. The day appointed being come, the Lord with his brother came to the Emperor, having viewed the place againe, and found it to bee forceable and fit to passe, assuring the Prince once agains of the happy successe of their enterprise, and the Prince beeing assembled with them to conferre together, resolved in the end, that his person with all the army should approach vnto the walles directly ouer against Quaguifon, in which meane space the Axalla. The Emperour having not failed to deliver vnto them the best souldiers of his armie, and having fet downe the order by them to bee observed, hee willed that the Lord Axella should leadetwentie thousand of them, and should march the first, the rest led by the Prince arrived at the passage, the which was won, not finding any man there to resist them : and having taken a light repast, they beganne to march forward other ten leagues which yet remained.

where the Chinois were, who suspected no such thing, having onely an eye vnto them the Princes armie to approach vnto their wall, as foone did they difery Axella with twenty thousand men, who advanced forward being followed by the Prince of Thorais with thirtie thouland fouldiers chosen out of the whole army, who without any communication fet vpon the Chinois, which came prefently vnto them, having left a certaine number of their Campe for the guard of the wall : but they were presently won by the footmen led this day by Odmar, who paffed ouer so as the Chinois were cut off betweene our Armies. When Axalla began the battaile, he ouerthrew them in a manner all, the Prince of Thanais not hazarding himself therein: there was great riches gotten this day, the King of China his them, as well on their armes as on their horfe and furniture : they shewed no great stoutnesses. The newes heereof being come vnto the King of China, who at that present time was at Quanton, brought vnto him great aftonishment, for that hee judged it a thing that could not possibly come to passe, you might have seene every one filled with fright, teares and cries, bewailing the losse of their friends. The King gathering together foundiers from all parts (as the custome is of these people) caused all the Pricetes and such as had the charge of holy things to come vnto him, and after exhortations vied, he(as their head) commanded them to offer facrifice vnto their Gods, of whom the Sunne is the principall commanding in heaten ( whom they hold opinion to bee the chiefest cause of their being, accounting it immortall and im-

observed through out all his Cities; and the second thing was, that every one able to beare armes should mount on horsebacke, and come vnto the King at Pagninson, whither hee doubted men vnto the frontiers, at fuch time as they which were there had need thereof, was foone in a full in the wayes of the countrey, troubled much the Armie : for a great number of his men were on horsebacke. The Prince determined to beate downe all the wals, the better to affure his returne, as also all the fortresses which were there vpon all the passages, all of them having townes, Archy, Ymuly, Faliquien, Fuly, Cohensen, Qualiy, Puly Quianlu, who came and deliue-red vp their keyes vnto him, being neighbours vnto this Lord, and gaue him the gouernment of the frontier prouince of Xianxij, shewing himselfe to be a Prince of his word, and acknowledging the notable services the which this Lord had done him. He referred the honouring of his brother vntill he had meanes to doe the same : the Prince had received newes how that the King of China affembled his forces & marched forwards, and that he was there in his owne per-ion, & that he firengthened also his Cities which are fufficiently fortified, and vpon thele doub's hee thought good to haue the aduice of his Captaines, and after fundry opinions, his resolution of he may nourish his Armie, and secondarily call the enemie vnto battell. The which the conqueror should alwaies seeke, &the defender the latest he can hazard the same. For that it is a very doubtfull thing to commit themselves vnto a battell, his dutie being rather to delay, under mining the conqueror by lengt hand by wearinesse, and light skirmishes, then to fight in open field.

was, to leave nothing behind him, and to affault some famous Citie, and take it, by meanes where- 60

that we would go, because it was one of the neerest townes you the borders

The Emperous readincile, and came to oppose himselfe against the Princes Armie which entred, and being skilpassible, moung it selse onely for the benefit of lining creatures) this did hee command to bee 49

I have forgotten to declare that this Lord who had the charge to conduct fiftie thousand

Coulin (whom he called King) was taken pritoner: There was a great quantity of gold amongst 30

But it fell out much otherwise, for even at the very same time the Chinois did perceive affured to pale, conducted by the Chinos Lord, wnder the charge of the Prince of Thanais and Io

Then he dispatched Odmar with fourteene thousand Horse, to advance forward and summon the same, as for to hinder victuals from being conuaved thereinto out of the champaine Countrey: to the end that the Cattell remayning in the fields, should be a meanes to maintagne and nourish his Armie. I had forgotten to tell you, that for the acknowledging of the Lord Azalla Azalla made his feruices, the Prince had made him Captaine generall of all his Foot-men, which was one Captaine geof the principall honours of the Armie. Hee cauted the faid Lord Axalla to march after Odmar, nevall of all

10 with all the Foot-men, which was very neere a hundred and fifey thousand men, well trayned the foot-men; up in the warres, and good expert fighters. He marched himselfe immediatly after with all his Horsemen, Artilleries, Engines , and other munitions belonging vnto warre , directly vnto Pa. Pagninfin beguinfon. Odmar did ride twentie French leagues this day, to as he arrived there contrary to their beged. expectation, looking rather for the King then for the Enemie, and having taken much Cattell; wherewith the Countrey greatly aboundeth, he pitched his Tents, leauing the Citie betweene him and vs, and stayed for his footmen, who marched forwards in the meane space, sending continually vnto the warre, for to wearie the Enemie. This endured three or foure dayes, vntill our footmen led by this braue Christian Gennois, shewed themselves in the Playne of Paguinfon. Then the Citie was fummoned to yeeld obedience vnto the Emperour, or elfe they 20 should receive the Law of the Conquerour. They made answere, that they were determined to

line and die in the feruice of their Prince.

Now you must vinderstand that it was fortie yeeres, or thereabouts, since the Father of the Note these King which raigneth at this present ouer the Chinois, had conquered it from the Empire of the changes of Tartarians, and having driven out all the Inhabitants, they had planted therein new Colonies, flate betweet Tartarius, and nature unaction of the first remembrance, but only they of the flat Countier o trey, and imall walled Townes, who came from all parts and brought their Keyes, most willingly submitting themselues vnto the obedience of the Prince; so as there was great abundance of victuals within our Armie: and if wee had beene within our owne Countrey, there could not have come greater store; a thing which made our Prince hope for a happie successe, there 20 being no other difficulty which for the most part can ouerthrow a great Armie asours was, and withdraw them from their enterprise. And thus the Citie of Pagainfon is belieged, and our foot-men camped round about within an Arrowes shot of the walls. They within the Citie did vie great endeuour for their defence, and our Prince omitted nothing for their offence,

Axalla having viewed a great and strong Suburbe, which was in length almost halfe a league. supposed that those of the Citie kept no watch there : that this must needs bee, for that they would not make him obstinate; he had a determination to winne it in the night; and having imparted it vnto the Prince, vpon the first watch all his men were ready, all of them having made prouision of Ladders, and of such things as are necessary for winning thereof with handblowes, and having affaulted it on fundry parts, after the fight had continued two hours,

40 Axalla remay ned the Conquerour, and cut in pieces eight thousand men at the least which were A great Subwithin the same : the spoyle was great, there were many of Axalla his men slayne of one side, urbe wonneby which was that by the which they doubted to be affaulted. But on the other fide, by the which Azalla in the it was taken, there was scarce any one slayne. The taking of this Suburbe did greatly assonish mighe those of the Citie, who had marked the lustinesse of our men, and beganne to enter into doubt of their fafety, which vnto this day they accounted as most affured. Now you must vnderstand The situation that the fittation of the Citie was of hard accesse, being seated upon a Playne, the which was or me united the fittation of the Citie was of hard accesse, being seated upon a Playne, the which was or me united the cities which was or me united to the cities which was on the cities which was one cities which was on brought vs word daily, the Prince determining to goe in person and meet with the Enemie, ac-60 companied with his principall Horf-men, and to leave the greatest part of his Foot-men at the siege, whereunto he had a great defire, omitting nothing that might wearie the belieged, who detended themselues couragiously. So the Prince beganne to batter, cauting his Engines to ap- The sege of proach; as Rammes, and other munitions: infomuch as the Citie was affaulted en two fides ve- Faguicfon.

haur thereby a way for to forcour our Souldiers, which kept the pallages of the Mountaines on the enemies tide.

enuironed round about with Mountaines, one of them onely approaching the Citie, which ouerlooked it on front upon the North fide, where was a Valley by the which they poffed, and there did rume a River: on this fide wee the Suburbe fituated which had been taken, fo as the means to fuccour the Citie was flopped, our Souldiers keeping the paffiges of these Mountaines, the 50 which were in the old time the borders of the Kingdome : for Pagninfon was once governed by the Tartarians, which kept it for a defence against the Chinois, but had left the same, and these Mountaines were the limits of China against the aforesaid Tartarians, who governed Paguinfor at that time, so as these Mountaines were of hard accesse, and there remayned no other way but on the fide of the Suburbe, the which a River compaffeth about, running all along the fide of a bordering Mountaine, upon the which wee caused many bridges to be built, for to

In this meane time the King of Chinaes Armie approached which was very great, as they

Quagnifen. Fifuethousand fitte thousand men should march forwards vnto the place appointed, and where they were Chinabya feeret paffage. Prince of The of Thanais, and that every one should have one of those Lords to guide them, that by their mais and Axalla, meanes the enterprise might bee more safely directed. So having marched ten leagues, they

A fecret way found into Chima, by the con- which marched for to force their walles, affuring themselves to have the mastry, considering duct of the mountaine Lord.

Axalla onerthrew the Chi. nois that kept the wall of partition, of the Chinaia in religion.

The cuftome

wals of China. The mountain yeelded themselves after his victorie, the wing himselfe very courteous vnto the people of these 50 Lord rewarded mountaines, he gaue vnto this Lord a small portion of land, wherein there be seven or eight good gouernment.

A good aduer. General.

ry couragiously. In the end through the valour of Axalla, who gaue an affault with twenty thou-fand of his best Souldiers, he wonne the wall, and lodged there, the Prince having so commanded him to doe, to stop the heat of the Souldiers from going any further. Now the Princes purpole was to compound for the Citie, and not to force it, for two reasons. The first was, for that he feared, the Citie being great and rich, that when the Souldiers should facke it, the Enemie who was but thirty leagues from thence, should come vpon them, and by this meanes his Armie should be found in disorder, also rich Souldiers neuer serue well : The other was, for that hee would draw out of that Citie which was rich and wealthy, those commodities which were ne-ceffary for the fure accomplishing of his enterprise, seeing it was necessary to have such a Citie

the Enemies wanted not courage yet to defend themselves valiantly, looking for ayde according to the newes they had received, that the Kings Armie marched forward. Whileft thefe things were in doing, one of our Engines shooting a bullet, flue the Gouernour, whereupon they did resolue for to yeeld themselves vnto the Princes mercy, saving their lines, and the Souldiers en-ioying their horse and weapons. The conditions were agreed upon, and there came out of the Citie eighteene thouland Souldiers, the Inhabitants remayning in a manner all : there were therein thirtie thousand Souldiers at the beginning: the siege continued two moneths. The honour of taking the Citie and the happy successe therein was attributed vnto Axalla, to whom was given the government of the Citie with the Countrey already conquered. But hee befeeferued the hope of his Master, wherein hee should have part. This answere did greatly contene the Prince, for hee greatly defired the feruice of Axalla. Vpon his refufall this charge was be-flowed voon the Prince of Thanais, with the Title of Vice-roy. Now, as I have already told you, our Prince after hee had given such order as was necessary, and advertised his friends in all parts, and about all the Emperour, he marched forward, having contented his Souldiers, and made a generall muster of his Armie, as well of the horse as footmen, the which hee found to be diminished of ten thousand men onely. Now, our Prince after he had solemnely called voon enterprised to goe on forward, and to goe directly vnto the Enemie, who was at Simehu, with all his owne forces, and of all his Allies. As foone as he received newes that our Armie was paf- 30

The King of China was of the age of three and thirtie yeeres, who for the most part had beene brought up in pleasures, and not in militarie exercises, nor under the bloudie ensigne of Marie loden with Iron, boytterous and furious, not with gold, precious flones, and with fuch kinde of riches: to as he was very infolent in threatnings, branadoes, and in defying vnto the battaile;

He often faid that we had surprised him, and had not warned him to prepare himselfe, and that parts, to doe in this manner. Hee had two or three Kings also with him, his Neighbours and Allies, who marched with the fame preparation. The rumour of these riches gave great courage to the Souldiers, for they were couctous of iuft gayne, as is that gotten by a battaile. So both our Armies went forward each to approch the other, and there was a Citie yeelded vnto the Prince called Tunichenoy, the which helped our Armie greatly. The next day, to the end wee might give occasion vnto the Enemie for to approch neerer, we sent to summon, and at the same time to take possession of the Citie of Pamiba, the which in advancing forward wee left a little behinde vs. The King of Chine had put many men thereinto, and it was a Citie fufficiently well fortified : from Tianchenoy to Pagninubu there were ten leagues. He advanced his Armie within ment of the Enemies comming. The Prince commanded his Armie to take the place for the battaile, which he had chosen in his judgement with most advantage, and having set downe vnto Odmar the order he would have to be observed, he defired to see the comming of this Armie:

so sending before him fine or fix thousand Horse as Scouts, hee advanced forward, and Calibes with him. After he had feene this great confused Armie which continually came forward, hee commanded Calibes to retyre himfelfe as foone as they drew neere vnto him, and bring vnto him this great cloud, the which hee hoped foone to difperfe. So the Prince returned backe vnto his men for to affure them of the battaile: hee caused all his footmen to bee placed all along by a great Mountayne, fo as they had but one head for to doubt. And hee planted great flore fcore thousand footmen, whereof many were armed after the Christian manner, and all of Artillerie for the guard of his footmen. I am of opinion, that the Prince had about fix- 60

a league of the Citie Tiauchewoy, about noone the next day they had more certaine aduertife- 50

we had strucken him without speaking any word : for this is the custome of the people in those 40

ched the Prince that it would please him to bestow it vpon some other, and for himselse heere- 20 for to make a Store-house of necessary things for the Armie. Thus although the wall was won, to

It was concluded, and the aduice of enery one was, to conquer the Countrey by little and little, so as their enterprise was to draw directly vnto Paguinfon, which as it was a great Citie, and one of the chiefeit, so is it also strongly fortified, and well replenished with people.

Then he dispatched Odmar with fourteene thousand Horse, to advance forward and summon the same, as for to hinder victuals from being conuaved thereinto out of the champaine Countrey : to the end that the Cattell remayning in the fields, should be a meanes to maintayne and nourish his Armie. I had forgotten to tell you, that for the acknowledging of the Lord Axalla Malla made his feruses, the Prince had made him Captaine generall of all his Foot-men, which was one Captaine geof the principall honours of the Armie. Hee caused the faid Lord Arafa to march after Odmer, netall of all with all the Foot-men, which was very neere a hundred and fifty thousand men, well resonant the foot-men. 10 with all the Foot-men, which was very neere a hundred and fifty thousand men, well trayned up in the warres, and good expert fighters. He marched himselfe immediatly after with all his Horfemen, Aptilleries, Engines, and other munitions belonging vinto warre, directly vinto Pa. Pagningus beguinfou. Odmar did ride twentie French leagues this day, fo as he arrived there contrary to their fieged, expectation, looking rather for the King then for the Enemie, and having taken much Cattell. wherewith the Countrey greatly aboundeth, he pitched his Tents, leaving the Citie betweene him and vs , and stayed for his footmen, who marched for wards in the meane space, sending continually vnto the warre, for to wearie the Enemie. This endured three or foure dayes, vntill our footmen led by this braue Christian Gennois, shewed themselves in the Playne of Pagumfon. Then the Citie was fummoned to yeeld obedience vnto the Emperour, or elfe they 20 should receive the Law of the Conquerour. They made answere, that they were determined to

line and die in the feruice of their Prince.

Now you must vinderstand that it was fortie yeeres, or thereabouts, since the Father of the Nore these King which raigneth at this prefent ouer the Chineis, had conquered it from the Empire of the changes of King which raigneth at this present ouer the common has been depended therein new Colonies, flacebe.wist Tartarians, and having driven out all the Inhabitants, they had planted therein new Colonies, flacebe.wist the Taries and to thorowly, that there were but few of the first remembrance, but only they of the flat Counchinain, trey, and imall walled Townes, who came from all parts and brought their Keyes, most willingly submitting themselves vnto the obedience of the Prince : so as there was great abundance of victuals within our Armie: and if wee had beene within our owne Countrey, there could not have come greater flore; a thing which made our Prince hope for a happie successe, there 30 being no other difficulty which for the most part can ouerthrow 2 great Armie as ours was, and withdraw them from their enterprise. And thus the Citie of Paguinfon is belieged, and our footmen camped round about within an Arrowes shot of the walls. They within the Citie did vie great endeuour for their defence, and our Prince omitted nothing for their offence. Axalla having viewed a great and firong Suburbe, which was in length almost halfe a league.

supposed that those of the Citie kept no watch there : that this must needs bee, for that they would not make him obstinate; he had a determination to winne it in the night, and having imparted it vnto the Prince, vpon the first watch all his men were ready, all of them having made promision of Ladders, and of such things as are necessary for winning thereof with handblowes, and having affaulted it on fundry parts, after the fight had continued two houres, 40 Axalla remay ned the Conquerour, and cut in pieces eight thouland men at the least which were A great Sub-

within the same: the spoyle was great, there were many of Axalla his men slayne of one side, urbe wonneby which was that by the which they doubted to be affaulted. But on the other fide, by the which Axalla in the it was taken, there was scarce any one slayne. The taking of this Suburbe did greatly assouth nightthose of the Citie, who had marked the lustinesse of our men, and beganne to enter into doubt of their fafety, which vnto this day they accounted as most affured. Now you must vnderstand The Suation that the fituation of the Citie was of hard accesse, being seated vpon a Playne, the which was of the Citie of engineered round about with Mountaines, one of them one transported in the Citie of Pagainfin. enuironed round about with Mountaines, one of them onely approaching the Citie, which ouerlooked it on front vpon the North fide, where was a Valley by the which they poffed, and there did runne a River : on this fide was the Suburbe fituated which had been taken, fo as the meanes to fuccour the Citie was flopped, our Souldiers keeping the paffages of these Mountaines, the 50 which were in the old time the borders of the Kingdome : for Pagninfon was once gouerned by the Tartarians, which kept it for a defence against the Chinois, but had lost the same, and these Mountaines were the limits of China against the aforesaid Tartarians, who governed Paguinfor at that time , so as these Mountaines were of hard accesse, and there remayned no other way but on the fide of the Suburbe, the which a River compaffeth about, running all along the fide of a bordering Mountaine, vpon the which wee caused many bridges to be built, for to have thereby a way for to fuccour our Souldiers, which kept the pallages of the Mountaines on the enemies tide.

60 companied with his principall Horf-men, and to leave the greatest part of his Foot-men at the

In this meane time the King of Chinaer Armie approached which was very great, as they brought vs word daily, the Prince determining to goe in perion and meet with the Enemie, acfiege, whereanto he had a great defire, omitting nothing that might wearie the belieged, who defended themiclues couragiously. So the Prince beganne to batter, causing his Engines to ap- The fiege of proach; as Rammes, and other munitions: infomuch as the Citie was affaulted en two fides ve- Paguiajou.

The Citie of Paguinfou yeelded vnto Tamerlan vpon the death of their Gouerdxall:s choife.

kind of godli- the Immortall, Inuincible, and Incomprehensible God, and spent one whole day in prayer, wee

The King of the Aing of china his mag. cence: there was nothing to bee seene but gold and precious stones in his Armie: hee himselfe fed ouer the River of Chalifu, the King of China marched directly vnto vs with great magnifiwas commonly in a Chariot, wherein there was fuch a quantitie of gold and rich stones, that enery part was full of Diamonds, Rubies, and Pearles.

The custome

Pannibu.

The order of

as Generall.

they were commanded by fundrie Captaines; but all obeyed Axalla, who commanded them Our Horse-men were in battaile array in a great levell Playne, having the Footmen on the

The Cirie of Paguinfou yeelded vnto Tamerlax voen the death of their Gouer.

fand of his best Souldiers, he wonne the wall, and lodged there, the Prince having to commanded him to doe, to flop the heat of the Souldiers from going any further. Now the Princes purpole was to compound for the Citie, and not to force it, for two reasons. The first was, for that he feared, the Citie being great and rich, that when the Souldiers flould facke it, the Enemie who was but thirty leagues from thence, should come upon them, and by this meanes his Armie thould be found in disorder, also rich Souldiers neuer serue well : The other was, for that hee would draw out of that Citie which was rich and wealthy, those commodities which were neceffary for the fure accomplishing of his enterprise, seeing it was necessary to have such a Citie for to make a Store-house of necessary things for the Armie. Thus although the wall was won, 10 the Enemies wanted not courage yet to defend themselves valiantly, looking for ayde according to the newes they had received, that the Kings Armic marched forward. Whileft thefe things were in doing, one of our Engines shooting a bullet, slue the Gouernour, whereupon they did resolue for to yeeld themselues vnto the Princes mercy, fauing their lines, and the Souldiers enicying their horse and weapons. The conditions were agreed upon, and there came out of the Citie eighteene thousand Souldiers, the Inhabitants remayning in a manner all : there were therein thirtie thousand Souldiers at the beginning: the siege continued two moneths. The honour of taking the Citie and the happy successe therein was attributed vnto Azalla, to whom was given the government of the Citie with the Countrey already conquered. But hee befeeched the Prince that it would please him to bestow it vpon some other, and for himselfe heere- 20 ferued the hope of his Master, wherein hee should have part. This answere did greatly content the Prince, for hee greatly defired the service of Axalla. Vpon his refusall this charge was beflowed upon the Prince of Thanais, with the Title of Vice-roy. Now, as I have already told you, our Prince after hee had given such order as was necessary, and advertised his friends in all parts, and aboue all the Emperour, he marched forward, having contented his Souldiers, and made a generall muster of his Armie, as well of the horse as footmen, the which hee found to be diminished of ten thousand men onely. Now, our Prince after he had folemnely called your the Immortall, Inuincible, and Incomprehensible God, and spent one whole day in prayer, wee enterprised to goe on forward, and to goe directly vnto the Enemie, who was at Sintehn, with all his owne forces, and of all his Allies. As soone as he received newes that our Armie was pal- 30 fed ouer the River of Chalifu, the King of China marched directly vnto vs with great magnifi-China his mag- cence: there was nothing to bee feene but gold and precious stones in his Armie: hee himselfe was commonly in a Chariot, wherein there was such a quantitie of gold and rich stones, that euery part was full of Diamonds, Rubies, and Pearles. The King of China was of the age of three and thirtie yeeres, who for the most part had beene kind of godli-

The cuftome of the Chinais,

Pannibu.

He often faid that we had surprised him, and had not warned him to prepare himselfe, and that we had ftrucken him without speaking any word : for this is the custome of the people in those 40 parts, to doe in this manner. Hee had two or three Kings also with him, his Neighbours and Allies, who marched with the same preparation. The rumour of these riches gaue great courage to the Souldiers, for they were conetous of just gayne, as is that gotten by a battaile. So both our Armies went forward each to approch the other, and there was a Citie yeelded vnto the Prince called Tunichenoy, the which helped our Armie greatly. The next day, to the end wee might give occasion vnto the Enemie for to approch neerer, we sent to summon, and at the same time to take pollethon of the Citie of Pannibu, the which in advancing forward wee left a little behinde vs. The King of China had put many men thereinto, and it was a Citie fufficiently well fortified : from Tiaucheuoy to Pagninubu there were ten leagues. He advanced his Armie within a league of the Citie Tianchenoy, about noone the next day they had more certaine aduertife- 50 ment of the Enemies comming. The Prince commanded his Armie to take the place for the battaile, which he had chosen in his judgement with most advantage, and having set downe vnto Odmar the order he would have to be observed, he desired to see the comming of this Armie: fo fending before him fine or fix thousand Horse as Scouts, hee advanced forward, and Calibes with him. After he had feene this great confused Armie which continually came forward, hee commanded Calibes to retyre himielfe as foone as they drew neere vntohim, and bring vnto him this great cloud, the which hee hoped foone to differfe. So the Prince returned backe vnto his men for to assure them of the battaile: hee caused all his sootmen to bee placed all along by a great Mountayne, so as they had but one head for to doubt. And hee planted great store of Artillerie for the guard of his footmen. I am of opinion, that the Prince had about fix- 60 fcore thousand footmen, whereof many were armed after the Christian manner, and all they were commanded by fundrie Captaines; but all obeyed Axalla, who commanded them as Generall, brought up in pleasures, and not in militarie exercises, nor under the bloudie ensigne of Mars.

loden with Iron, boysterous and furious, not with gold, precious stones, and with such sinde of riches: fo as he was very infolent in threatnings, brauadoes, and in defying vnto the battaile;

The order of the Princes battaile against the

Our Horse-men were in battaile array in a great levell Playne, having the Footmen on the left hand, and on the right was the comming of the Enemie, fo as voon the least disfauour that might happen, hee would retyre to bee affitted by his footmen. Wee had four fcore thousand horie: Calibes with the Soythians were in the Auantguard, and had the commandement of thirtie thouland horse, who should receive him at such time as he did draw on the Enemie, as he was commanded. It was divided into three troupes, each one confifting of ten thousand. Odmar had also thirtie thousand horse who should affift him. The Prince remayned in the Arier-ward at the one of the wings of his footmen, which held one of his principall forces : his purpote was to fuffer the threefcore and fix thouland horfe to maintayne the fight against the Barbarians, being led by two good Captaines, and if any of them remayned, the Emperor hoped after of 10 them to have a good marker, by carling his footmen to march forward and himfelfe with whom there abode twentie thousand of the best horse, which were sufficient without hazarding his Person for to give a new battaile, if so be that any disfavour should happen vnto them : for hee had understood that this was the custome of the Kings of China, to enclose themselves within the middest of their Chariots with their footmen, and not to hazard themselues but upon the extremitie. So the Enemie fayled nothing at all to march directly vnto Calibes, and all the Atmie marched after following of him and fetting vpon him, and hee euen as the Seythians are al-wayes accustomed to doe, with his six thousand horse in retyring gaue many charges, killing some of them, and they likewise killing some of his men. It was a beautifull light to see this great Armie march, for it seemed to bee twife as great as ours, therein being an infinite number 30 of armed Chariots, wherein he put his principall trust against the furie of our Souldiers; fo many gildings of gold and filter as well in the trappings of their Horfes, as on their Armour, that it glittered, and was of vs all much admired. The Prince who with a troupe of horse did see the The beautie Armie march after Calibes, commended greatly the manner of casting their men out of the andrichnesse rankes, for to compell this troupe vnto fight, and did fee this Armie come in good order, and he of the King of tryed with his eye to note the place where the Kings Person was, having neere him the Chinas Armie. Lord to instruct him, who knew well their manner of fighting. Now, they had neither Auantguard nor battaile, but onely an Arier-ward commanded by the King, and inclosed (as I haue faid) with his Chariots : the which being shewed vnto him by this Lord, the Prince turned himfelte vnto vs, and in our language faid : Ter must wee this day differse this cloud here so gilded, Tamerlan his 30 and the King of China and my felfe must make a partition thereof.

Now, having feene the Enemie fufficiently advanced, and judging that he had had feene them march a good league, he thought it not convenient to suffer them for to take breath, nor for to put themselues againe into their order; he sent unto Calibes for to will him to set forward the fight, and that if those whom he had led with him should be weary, they should come voto him; but it was not in Calibes power to have this commandement over them. For as foone as they heard this word of fighting vttered, they required the first charge, with a young Lord, who commanded ouer them, called Ziottabanes, who made appeare vnto the Chinois to what end their flight was, charging very stiffely vpon the foremost of the Enemies, the which was an occafion to begin the first fight. And I affure you, there could not be seene a more surious thing, nor 40 any for to fight with more defire to manifest the valour of his Nation, and for to procure honour vnto his Prince. Now, this endured a long houre before the Chinois had ouerthrowne Calibes.

The Prince did see all patiently, saying alwayes, that the great multitude how confused soener The battaile it were, would carry it away from the order and valour of his Souldiers : you could not yet per- betweene the ceiue any alteration in the Princes countenance, Aduerfitie and Prosperitie were so indifferent King of China vnto him. His thirty thousand Horse were all Softbians, who observe not the same order the and Tamerian. Parthians doe. Now, before the Prince retyred with his men, hee did fee the first charge giuen. Calibes being wounded, retyred himselse neere vnto the Prince, having with him two thousand horse ioyned together againe, and many more ioyning themselues together necre vnto the Prince, who commanded that they should cure Calibes, viewing the place of his wound, hee 50 caused him to bee conducted behind his footmen, and the other which were hurt with him also. Now, Calibes was not able to pierce through this Armie, being beaten back; but Odmar with almost all the Parthian horse-men, did handle them more roughly, for hee ranne cleane thorow them, and returned by one of the right wings of the Armie, where hee fought most valiantly, and having beaten them back even within the Kings Chariots, he thought that he should not doe wifely to goe about to breake fuch forces.

The King of China comming forward, and the horse-men which had beene broken by Odmar, joyning themselves together for his ayde, Odmar onely remayning in the battaile sent vnto the Prince for the footmen, and for to let forward the Artillerie, and that hee should assure himselfe of the victorie. The Prince, who had already set forward, kept aloofe off, and fent 60 vato him fiftie thousand footmen, with a part of the Artillery, guing charge thereof vato Axalla, who forthwith let forward, having commandement to let vpon the Chariots, and to make an entrance : he fet forward the Artillery before him, the which did greatly aftonish the enemies : for the Gouernours of the horfes, belonging to the Kings Chariots, could not hold them; it made also a great spoyle. As soone as he perceived this disorder, hee fer forward, and came to hand-blowes, there were a hundred and fiftie thousand men, as yet about the Kings person. Axalla full of courage fought so valiantly, that they neuer beheld any doe more brauely. Odmer during this fight charged againe the Horlemen, who were retyred vnto the Kings avde, whom he put to flight. Then the Prince advanced forward with the rest of his Foot-men. gaue ayde vnto Axalla, and came even vnto the person of the King of China, who was as yet enclosed within a second ranke of Chariots with thirty or forty thousand men : and after hee The King of had fought two or three houres, the Horse-men affitting the Foot-men, and they principally The aing or the Prince had referred, the King remayned wounded within the power of the Prince, and taken Prie the battaile being wonne, and all the Enemies Campe forced; the fight endured eight houres. and it was even night, which faued the lives of many of the Enemies. There were flaine two 10 Kings the Allyes of the King of China, and one taken Prisoner: there was inestimable riches King of china, gotten, as well in golden Vessellas precious stones, and the most rich and faire Charlots that could be feene.

The Prince would not see the captined King vntill the next day, beeing mounted on Horse. backe, and passing through the Campe of the Battayle for to stay the slaughter, and to ioyne together againe his men, to the end the accustomed watch might bee kept, whereof hee gaue the charge vnto Axalla; to whom he gaue likewise commandement to keepe the King of China within the middeft of his Souldiers, having bin already dreffed of a wound he had received in his right arme. It was a strange thing to behold the Enemies Weapons, and the diversitie of streamers wherewith they were decked, the which feemed vnto vs afar off as beautifull, as the diversity of 20 colours plentifull. But to fay the truth, the multitude was great which this King had, not withflanding there was much difference betweene their valour and ours : and it is reported, that hee had ranged in Battayle this very day three hundred and fifty thousand men, whereof there were an hundred and fiftie thouland Horfe-men, the rest on foot: the greatest part of them were rude and barbarous people, which suffered themselves to bee slaine one vpon another, not marking their aduancage, nor having any Warlike knowledge, as our men have: there were flaine of the Enemies some threescore thousand. Now the next day after the buriall of the dead, the Prince hauing given thankes vnto God for his victorie, cauted the wounded to bee cured, and amonest the others Caliber, who by reason of the vntemperatenesse of the Ayre, rather then by the blow of the wound he had received, found himfelfe very ill, yet would he not omit his dutie, to com- 30 mand alwayes his Auant-gard, the which was a great pleasure vnto the Prince, for he alone had Commandement ouer the Emperours Forces, beeing a Scythian, and greatly beloued of his

Tam. dranke

The Prince dispatched away thirty thousand Horse in the pursuit of one of the King of Chie. mas Brothers, who was fled away, having joyned together againe some twelve or fifteene thoufand Horse. The Prince sent to summon Panning, the which did yeeld it selfe vnto him: wherevpon our Army approached neere vnto it, for to aduance our selues the further into the Countrey. Now I forget to declare how the Prince having the next day caused his Tents to bee pitched most stately, and his Guards ordered according to his greatnesse, the principall of his Army being also neere his person: for all the night hee had remayned continually on Horse-backe, 40 untill about two of the clocke, when as they brought him a Tart and his water, for hee neuer dranke Wine; and lay downe on a Carpet where hee paffed the reft of the night. I was neere vnto him and neuer left him : but I neuer heard any vaunting or boafting to proceed out of his mouth. Then hee fent a commandement vnto Axalla to bring vnto him of the king of the imprisoned King : who beeing come, the Emperour issued out of his Tents, and went of the king of China came with a very proud and haughtie countenance, and like vato the Emperour Tamer preter, which was the Emperour, and being shewed him, hee spake sercely vnto him after this manner: The Gods whom I worship, being prouoked against my Nation and people, and confoired against my good fortune, have made mee at this day thy Prisoner : but forasmuch, as it is 50 reported ouer all the World, that Tamerlan maketh warre for the honour of his Nation : thou shouldest be contented that thou hast wonne it this glory, that the Lord of the World, the Child of the Sunne, is in thy power, to receive fuch Law as it shall please thee to prescribe him. This hee faid in a braue manner, and without any other humbling of himfelfe. The Emperour on the other-fide having faluted him very courteoufly, led him into his Tent.

He is furely a great Prince, and which hath had two hundred famous Cities within his Kingdome. There be many Mynes of Gold and Siluer, much Muske, and also of an Herbe which the Christians call Rhubarbe. There bee in like manner within the Kingdome of China fifteene very large Prounces, the which have Gouernours. It is reported that hee hath threefcore and tenne Kings wearing Crownes, Tributaries vnto him. We call this Region China, the which they in 60 Tame, or Tamin their Language name Tame, and the people Tangis, the which we call Chinois. This Kingdome and Tamegius. doch abound in fifth, and in great numbers of wild-fewle, by reason of the great abundance of running waters which doe ouerflow the Countrey, the which is reasonable temperate: they aabound greatly in Silkes, and the meanest are apparelled therewith, having small quantitie of

left hand, and on the right was the comming of the Enemie, fo as voon the least disfauour that might happen, hee would retyre to bee affitted by his footmen. Wee had foure fore thousand horse: Calibes with the Scythians were in the Auantguard, and had the commandement of thirtie thousand horse, who should receive him at such time as he did draw on the Enemie, as he was commanded. It was divided into three troupes, each one confifting of ten thousand, Odmer had also thirtie thousand horse who should affist him. The Prince remayned in the Arier-ward at the one of the wings of his footmen, which held one of his principall forces; his purpose was to fuffer the threefcore and fix thouland horfe to maintayne the fight against the Barbarians; being led by two good Captaines, and if any of them remayned, the Emperor hoped after of 10 them to have a good market, by canning his footmen to march forward, and himfelfe with whom there abode twentie thouland of the best horse, which were sufficient without hazarding his Person for to give a new battaile, if so be that any disfavour should happen vnto them : for hee had understood that this was the custome of the Kings of China, to enclose themselves within the middest of their Chariots with their footmen, and not to hazard themselves but upon the extremitie. So the Enemie fayled nothing at all to march directly vnto Calibes, and all the Armie marched after following of him and ferting vpon him, and hee euen as the Seythians are alwayes accustomed to doe, with his fix thousand horse in retyring gaue many charges, killing some of them, and they likewise killing some of his men. It was a beautifull light to see this great Armie march, for it feemed to bee twife as great as ours, therein being an infinite number 20 of armed Chariots, wherein he put his principall trust against the furie of our Souldiers; fo many gildings of gold and filuer as well in the trappings of their Horfes, as on their Armour, that it glittered, and was of vs all much admired. The Prince who with a troupe of horse did see the The besurie Armie march after Calibes, commended greatly the manner of cashing their men out of the andrichness rankes, for to compell this troupe vnto fight, and did fee this Armie come in good order, and he of the King of tryed with his eye to note the place where the Kings Person was, having neere him the Chinose China Atmie, Lord to instruct him, who knew well their manner of fighting. Now, they had neither Auantguard nor battaile, but onely an Arier-ward commanded by the King, and inclosed (as I haue faid) with his Chariots : the which being shewed vnto him by this Lord, the Prince turned himselfe vnto vs, and in our language faid : Ter must wee this day difter fe this cloud here so gilded, Tamerlan his

30 and the King of China and my felfe must make a partition thereof.

Now, having feene the Enemie fufficiently advanced, and judging that he had had feene them King of Chinds march a good league, he thought it not convenient to fuffer them for to take breath, nor for to put themselues againe into their order; he sent vnto Calibes for to will him to set forward the fight, and that if those whom he had led with him should be weary, they should come wato him; but it was not in Calibes power to have this commandement over them. For as soone as they heard this word of fighting vetered, they required the first charge, with a young Lord, who commanded ouer them, called Zioctabanes, who made appeare vnto the Chinois to what end their flight was, charging very stiffely upon the foremost of the Enemies, the which was an occafion to begin the first fight. And I affure you, there could not be seene a more furious thing, nor 40 any for to fight with more defire to manifest the valour of his Nation, and for to procure honour vnto his Prince, Now, this endured a long houre before the Chinois had ouerthrowne Caliber.

The Prince did see all patiently, saying alwayes, that the great multitude how confused source The battaile it were, would carry it away from the order and valour of his Souldiers : you could not yet per- betweene the ceiue any alteration in the Princes countenance, Aduerlitie and Prosperitie were so indifferent King of China voto him. His thirty thouland Horse were all Soythians, who observe not the same order the and Tamerian, Parthians doe. Now, before the Prince retyred with his men, hee did fee the first charge given, Calibes being wounded, retyred himselfe neere vnto the Prince, having with him two thousand horse ioyned together againe, and many more ioyning themselues together neere vnto the Prince, who commanded that they should cure Calibes, viewing the place of his wound, hee 50 caused him to bee conducted behind his footmen, and the other which were hurt with him also. Now, Calibes was not able to pierce through this Armie, being beaten back; but Odmar with almost all the Parthian horse-men, did handle them more roughly, for hee ranne cleane thorow then, and returned by one of the right wings of the Armie, where hee fought most valiantly, and having beaten them back even within the Kings Chariots, he thought that he should not doe wifely to goe about to breake fuch forces. The King of China comming forward, and the horse-men which had beene broken by Od-mar, ioyning themselves together for his ayde, Odmar onely remayning in the battaile sent vnto the Prince for the footmen, and for to fet forward the Artillerie, and that hee should assure himselfe of the victorie. The Prince, who had already set forward, kept aloose off, and sent 60 vnto him fiftie thousand footmen, with a part of the Artillery, guing charge thereof vnto Axalla, who forthwith let torward, having commandement to let vpon the Chariots, and to make an entrance : he fet forward the Artillery before him, the which did greatly aftonish the enemies : for the Gouernours of the horses, belonging to the Kings Chariots, could not hold them; it made also a great spoyle. As foone as he perceived this disorder, hee set forward, and came to hand-blowes, there were a hundred and fiftie thousand men, as yet about the Kines perion. Axalla full of courage fought to valiantly, that they neuer beheld any doe more brauelv. Odmar during this fight charged agains the Horsemen, who were retyred vnto the Kings avde, whom he put to flight. Then the Prince advanced forward with the reft of his Foot-men, gaue ayde vnto Axalia, and came even vnto the person of the King of China, who was as yet encloted within a second ranke of Chariots with thirty or forty thousand men : and after hee The King of had fought two or three houres, the Horse-men affating the Foot-men, and they principally The King of the Prince had referred, the King remayned wounded within the power of the Prince, and taken Pris the battaile being wonne, and all the Enemies Campe forced; the fight endured eight houres, and it was even night, which faued the lives of many of the Enemies. There were slaine two to Kings the Allyes of the King of China, and one taken Prisoner: there was inestimable riches gotten, as well in golden Vessellas precious stones, and the most rich and faire Chariots that

Cory over the King of China.

The Prince would not fee the captined King vntill the next day, beeing mounted on Horfebacke, and paffing through the Campe of the Battayle for to flay the flaughter, and to joyne together againe his men, to the end the accustomed watch might bee kept, whereof hee gaue the charge vinto Axalla; to whom he gaue likewise commandement to keepe the King of China within the middeft of his Souldiers, having bin already dreffed of a wound he had received in his right arme, It was a strange thing to behold the Enemies Weapons, and the diversitie of streamers wherewith they were decked, the which feemed vnto vs afar off as beautifull, as the diversity of 20 colours plentifull. But to fay the truth, the multitude was great which this King had, not withflanding there was much difference betweene their valour and ours : and it is reported, that hee had ranged in Battayle this very day three hundred and fifty thousand men, whereof there were an hundred and fiftie thouland Horse-men, the rest on foot: the greatest part of them were rude and barbarous people, which suffered themselves to bee staine one vpon another, not marking their aduantage, nor having any Warlike knowledge, as our men have: there were flaine of the Enemies some threescore thousand. Now the next day after the buriall of the dead, the Prince having given thankes vnto God for his victorie, cauted the wounded to bee cured, and amongst the others Calibes, who by reason of the vntemperatenesse of the Ayre, rather then by the blow of the wound he had received, found himfelfe very ill, yet would he not omit his dutie, to com- 30 mand alwayes his Auant-gard, the which was a great pleasure vnto the Prince, for he alone had Commandement ouer the Emperours Forces, beeing a Scythian, and greatly beloued of his

The Prince dispatched away thirty thousand Horse in the pursuit of one of the King of Chimas Brothers, who was fled away, hauing ioyned together againe some twelue or fifteene thoufand Horse. The Prince sent to summon Pannha, the which did yeeld it selfe vnto him : wherevpon our Army approached neere vnto it, for to advance our felues the further into the Countrey. Now I forget to declare how the Prince having the next day caused his Tents to bee pitched most stately, and his Guards ordered according to his greatnesse, the principall of his Army being also neere his person: for all the night hee had remayned continually on Horse-backe, 49 vntill about two of the clocke, when as they brought him a Tart and his water, for hee neuer dranke Wine; and lay downe on a Carpet where hee paffed the rest of the night. I was neere vnto him and neuer left him : but I neuer heard any vaunting or boalting to proceed out of his mouth. Then hee fent a commandement vnto Axalla to bring vnto him The comming of the imprisoned King: who beeing come, the Emperour issued out of his Tents, and went china priloner to receive him. This King of China came with a very proud and haughtie countenance, and like vnto the Em- a couragious man, approaching neere vnto the Emperour, hee demanded of Axalla by an Interperour Tamer- preter, which was the Emperour, and being shewed him, hee spake fiercely vinto him after this manner: The Gods whom I worship, being prouoked against my Nation and people, and confoired against my good fortune, have made mee at this day thy Prisoner: but forasmuch, as it is 50 reported ouer all the World, that Tamerlan maketh warre for the honour of his Nation : thou shouldest be contented that thou hast wonne it this glory that the Lord of the World, the Child of the Sunne, is in thy power, to receive fuch Law as it shall please thee to prescribe him. This hee faid in a braue manner, and without any other humbling of himfelfe. The Emperour on the other-fide having faluted him very courteoutly, led him into his Tent.

Tam. dranke no Wine.

oo. Cities. Rhubarbe.

He is furely a great Prince, and which hath had two hundred famous Cities within his King-Adeleration dome. There be many Mynes of Gold and Siluer, much Muske, and also of an Herbe which the Christians call Rhubarbe. There bee in like manner within the Kingdome of China fifteene very large Prounces, the which have Gouernours. It is reported that hee hath threefcore and tenne Kings wearing Crownes, Tributaries vnto him. We call this Region China, the which they in 60 Tame, or Tamin their Language name Tame, and the people Tanges, the which we call Chinese. This Kingdome and Tamegais. doth abound in fish, and in great numbers of wild-fowle, by reason of the great abundance of running waters which doe ouerflow the Countrey, the which is reasonable temperate: they aabound greatly in Silkes, and the meanest are apparelled therewith, having small quantitie of Wooll, and not ving the same: they have much Cotton and Linnen in stead thereof. The men doe weare their haire long, the women combe them : they have as many Wives as they are able to maintayne, Next vnto the King, there is a Gouernour Generall whom they call Tuten, the which was the Brother vnto the imprisoned King. The Prince having affembled his councell to to the end he might be aduised how he should vie his Prisoners and the rest of the Victory : hee received newes by Odmar, how that the Kings Brother was arrived at Quanton, the which hee had fortified, and that great flore of forces did ioyne themselves vnto him. This was the cause that the Prince having somewhat rested his forces, commanded two thousand Parthian Horse to convey the Priloners vnto Pagninfon, and from thence after they had made about there, to paffe

To ouer the Mountaynes, and to remayne at Burda (a Citie of olde time faithfull vnto the Empe- Burda rours of Schria) and there to keepe them faithfully. The purpose and resolution of the Prince was, that it behooved to affault Quanton, and to faut vp, if it were post ble, the Kings Brother within the same, being one of the principall seates belonging vnto the King of China, and a Citie greatly peopled and ffrong : it was forty leagues from the place where the batravle was fought. But Odmer being advanced thither, would not retyre before he had expresse Commandement from the Prince, who having fent thither, pitched his Teats round about the faid Cities having fummoned many small Cities, the which yeelded themselves wholly vnto the Princes mercy, making great lamentation for their King taken. Notwithstanding, the gentlenesse vied by the Conquerour made them to take all their losses with patience: and because it was also re-20 Ported, that he had vied the King moit friendly, and all the Prisoners : the Kings Brother had tent Embaffadours to obtayne leave for to know of the Kings health, and for to fee him, the which the Prince did willingly fuffer, to the end this other should not declare himselfe Kings who would have brought him more trouble then the other. He attended for the event of Quanton, and had his eye vpon the successe of this siege. Now the Kings Brother having received newes of the Affaires of the belieged, he determined eyther to fuccourit, or to fight a Bartle. and came straight vnto Porchio, and made a bridge of Boats, whereof there be great store in their Porchio.

Now being enformed when the halfe part were passed, which was fiftie thousand men good. Odmar finding them in very ill order, and nothing at all advertised of the Enemies nearnesse, 20 gaue the charge, and verely ouerthrew them: there remayned dead you the ground form fiftie of the kings on the kings of a great Marish wherein they were encamped. Notwithstanding our Foot-men having wonne passing of a Ris the banke of the River, beganne also to winne the Boats, and to feuer them by the meanes of a uer, and flue great Boat, the which we with diligence caused to runne downe beeing full of artificiall fire, so fifty thousand as at the fame very time that they which were within the Boate did draw neere, they retyred of his men. out of the same, having fret kindled the fire within the Boate, the which with a great force rushed against the Bridge of Boats and overthrew it, and where it was resisted did burne. This did greatly aftomih them that were paffed, to fee their returne cut off. The Kings Brother was not yet passed vnto the other-side of the water, and he which first had gone over was the King 40 of Canchina, who was slayne at the first charge, fighting very valiantly, in the fere-front. The Kings Brother did fee his men flayne and drowned, and could not remedie the fame. This fecond ouerthrow was of no small importance, although it was but the third part of the Kings Brothers Army, and that there remayned vnto him as yet a hundred thousand fighting menibut there was no great hope that he durst present himselfe before our Army. The newes hereof being reported at Quantionfon, they defired to make tryall of the Emperours clemency. Axalla dispatched one of his faithfull friends of his Countrey vnto the Prince, to carry vnto him these good newes : which was more welcome vnto the Prince, then the overthrow he had given vnto the Enemy, and agreed vnto all that Axalla demanded, referring all vnto his sufficiencie and fidelitie. The Kings Brother having fent to demand fafety for to treate, the Prince granted to much vnto them, for such as would come vnto him.

50 In this meane-time Quantoufou yeelded it felfe into the hands of Axalla, who caufed the Garrison to come out of the same, received the Inhabitants into the Princes protection, and they which would might remayne therein vnarmed : and he entred thereinto with the joy of all the Inhabitants, who did determine to receive the Emperour into the same with all the magnificence that might be. He caused thirty thousand men of War to enter thereinto; vnto whom was money deliuered for to maintayne them there, vntill fuch time as all the Foot-men should receive pay for three monethes due voto them, whereof the Inhabitants of Quantonfon did turnish the Prince, to the summe of eight hundred thousand Tentins, the which do amount vnto foure hundred and fifty thousand crownes or therabout. The Prince at this present sent me vnto Axalla, whom I found feating of his Captaines and fouldiers, flaying for the commandement that I 60 brought vnto him, the which was to remaine within Quantonfon, and to cause all his footmen to fet forward directly vnto him, the which was done by the Prince, to the end it should strike a greater terror into the minds of the enemies, who feeing all his footmen arrived, he supposed they wold nothing doubt (Quantouf on being taken) but that he would march forward, infomuch Thus the Embassadors being arrived, who were of the Kings chiefest Vassals, Tamerlan recei-ued them with all humanitie, causing his greatnesse to appeare vnto them; and therewithall the agilitie of his Horsemen, to make them see with their eyes, that it would be the destruction of

An Embaffage the Chinois name, if he proceeded any further. So having faluted the Emperour with all reuefrom the King rence, they vetered their Embassage vnto him, which was that the Kings Brother had sent them

vnto him to treat for two causes: the one, was for the liberty of their King, the other, for prether vato Ta. leruation of their Countrey. The Prince having heard them, answered them, that they had reafor peace, and fon to truft vnto his mildnesse, and seeing at this present, they desired it, he would yeeld therethe Kings de- unto. Thereupon the Prince role vp, and caused to be said vnto them, that they should deliuer their offers in writing, and that present answere should bee made thereunto. Thus went they out of the Princes presence with great joy, and as it were affored of Peace, and to recouer their former prosperities. The conditions which they offered, were to leave Paguinfon, and all the Countrey beyond it, with all the Fortreffes of the Mountaynes; that they would pay all the charges of his Army, fince the day of answere made vnto his Embassadors; that they would Conditions a give two Millions of Gold, for their King. This being prefented wnto the Lord, hee made an invertebrento, which was; that he would keepe that which hee had conquered within the betweene 74.

merlan and the Countrey, which was his owne justly, seeing his armes had given it vnto him; that hee would 20. haue the River where he was now encamped to be his Frontier, ftretched vnto Hochio, Tehancezug, Cauchio, Lulun, euen vnto Poschio bordering vpon the Sea; that the King of China should pay vnto him yearely three hundred thousand Crownes, the which should bee deliuered at Paguinfon, for acknowledgement of submission vnto the Empire, as well for his Successors as himfelfe; that they should pay fine hundred thousand Crownes in ready money for the charge of the Army; that the King of China should be delivered, and all the Chinass Prisoners should pay ransom vnto particular men that took them, except those which carryed the name of Kings, who should pay one hundred thousand Crownes for peace with his Armes : that no Chinois should bee kept as slaue, nor fold for such hereaster, beeing vnder the Princes obedience, that Traffique and Entercourse of Merchants should be free betweene both the Nations; that the King of China should deliver his Brother as Prisoner, and two Kings named, with twelve principall men of the Countrey for affurance of the peace. They accepted of fuch conditions of peace as pleafed the Conquerour, hoping that time would bring againe vnto them their ancient liberty, and that for a time it behooved them to beare with patience the yoke of their bondage. Now the Prince had fent two thousand Horse, to fetch the King of China, to the end that being at liberty, he might sweare to the peace solemnly, the which he having performed at Quantonfou, whither the Prince caused him for to come, he brought with him vnto Paguin, all the pled-

> In the meane-time the Emperour, after hee had prouided for the affurance of his new conquest, he left Odmar there to gouerne them, and gaue vnto him an estate of thirty thousand Horse and fifty thousand Foot-men, to furnish all the Fortresses and strong places, the Prince having led with him many of the new conquered people, defiring to have them for to dwell within his Countrey, and to fend other Colonies in their places, to affure himfelte the better of the lightnesse of this people, having noted them to bee inclined vnto Nouelties. Hee gaue in charge vnto Odmar to make his principall abode at Quantoufou, and to fortifie well the passage: and also commanded a Fortrelle to be made at Dermio, the better to streng then his Borders : and after he had left him all things necessary, he recommended vnto him the fernices of that Lord, who had manifested vnto him his great affection. The Emperour having well tryed his faith- to fulnesse in his Affaires as they fell out, he carryed with him a Brother of his, vnto whom he gaue great gifts within Sachetar.

ges, and among it the reft, the Kings eldeft Sonne, and his Brother. The King beeing departed for to performe his promise, according to the Treaty by him confirmed, he was received, and as it were worthipped within his Countrey, with all the joy that might be.

Then we turned our faces straight vnto Cambalu, having advertized the Great Cham of the happy successe of our Affaires. The Prince remayned in deed King of China, holding in his polfellion, two of the fairest and greatest Cities of all the whole Countrey, having an hundred good leagues thereof voto himfelfe, and many leffer Cities, having extended his Borders voto a River, by which he might goe vnto the Enemy, but they could not come vnto him without paffing cuer the same : having good meanes to keepe it and with advantage. Now the Prince defired aboue all that the Idols which were within his Conquest, should be beaten downe, and commanded the worship of one God, establishing the same after the forme of his owne Countrey, for he 60 made account that in short time all would bee reduced vnto our customes. Our Army wherein was much ficknesse, began to march, and on the third day having newes of forces which came towards vs, the Prince fent them a Commandement not to come any further forward, and that they should march straight vnto Cambala, where the Prince did suppose to finde the Emperour his Vncle, who had fet forward towards that place to have the good hap for to fee him, being Cetermined to receive him at Cambalu with magnificence and triumphs, as hee well deferued. Now I will declare by the way, how Odmar being seuered from vs, all the Princes fauour was Tomerlan turturned unto Axalla, unto whom hee committed the whole charge of his Armie, infomuch as ned his fruent Axalla although he was alwaies in great reputation, notwithstanding the same was much en- vnto Axalla. creased by the Prince at Quantonfon, where the Prince did truit him with the Armie, in to weighty an enterprise as that was, and the which he forgloriously atchieued: likewise the manner of entring into the Kingdome of China, the intelligences hee had : fo as the report of his valour did flie throughout all the Empire. Calibes led the Auant-guard, and Axalla was in the to hattell neere vnto the Emperour, who gave him the chiefest place, bestowing vpon him two hundred thouland crownes yeerely, for to maintayne his ordinary expences. After certaine 200000.crowne dayes journey, wee receited newes of the Emperours arrivall at Cambala, the Prince having of yeerley tent Left his Armie in a faire Countrey for to winter, where he dismissing many of our Souldiers, given vino dewes arrived within four leagues of Cambala, whither all the Princes of the Emperours Court, len, came for to receive him, together with all the principall Inhabitants, for to gratifie our Prince for his happie Voyage. The Prince having received every one, according to his wonted curtelle, retayning notwithstanding convenient Maiestie, hee was beheld to the great contentment of all his Subjects. Hee had with him the Empresse his wife, who had not left him in his Voyage. The next day the Emperour did him fo much honour, as to come and meet him, The meeting

CHAP, 8. S.3. Tamerlans message to Baiazet. Baiazets proud answer.

20 with ail the magnificence that might bee. Hee gaue a present vnto the Emperour his Vncle, between the of all the richeft Chariots, and fairest Horses hee had wonne. The Emperour was very desi- great cam and rous to lee his daughter: he cauled her Chariotto bee vncouered, and cauled her to enter into Gine of came. his: but the Prince remayned on Horf-backe, whom the eyes of all the people could not be fa- bath in Catho, tisfied with admiring. The Prince presented Calibes vnto the Emperour, and making a recitall of his faithfulnelle, and the endeauour of enery one, hee caused the Emperour to give vnto him an lundred thouland crownes of encrease vnto his pension. Axalla was also presented vnto the Axalla rewar-Emperour, who being informed of his valour, hee was received with all the best favours that ded by the might be, and he gaue vnto him of the revenues belonging vnto the Empire , an hundred thou- great Cam for fand Tartarus of gold in a Principalitie, that he might the better declare vinto him how much use and fairly. 30 he effected of his fidelitie.

fulneffe.

ò. 111.

The differences betwixt TAMERLAN and BALAZET the Turke; his returne to Samercand, and expedition against BAIAZET; the battell, and victorie, his caging of BAIAZET, and making him his Foot-Stoole.

His ioy and pleafire continued with vs all the Winter, where the Prince having receiued aduertisement how Baiaxes Emperour of the Turkes, had enterprised to joyne the Empire of Greece vnto his owne, and fully determined to beliege Constantinople :

the which he understanding, and succour being required of him by the Greeks Emperour, he dispatched one towards Baiaxer, for to declare vnto him his pleasure herein, and war. A messagesent ned him on his behalfe, not to trouble the Empercur Paleologue who was his confederate. Now by Tomerlan this motion came from Prince Axalla, who had wrought this league, being of kinne vnto Pat vnto Bainet. leologue, and alto thrust forward with desire to maintayne his Religion in Greece, where he was borne of the Genusis race. Whereunto being answered very proudly, by Baiaxet vnto our Emperour, asking what he had to doe therewith, and that he should content himselfe, with enioying The proud an-

30 lawes vnto his Subjects, and not vnto others, seeing he was not borne his Subject. This answer secros saintee being made, Axalla procured to be very ill accepted of the Emperour, and in fuch fort, that he determined to hinder this enterprite of the Ottomans.

Now the Prince had obtayned of the Emperour his Vncle an hundred thousand Foot-men. and fourescore thousand Horse, hoping to haue as many from Sacheray, besides the Lords who would accompanie him for to winne glorie, from whom he made account also of fifty thousand men more that they would bring vnto him, befides the other forces. Hee supposed that he had abilitie to deliuer the Empire of Greece from the bondage of the Ottomans. Thus the Prince departed, leaving the Empresse with the Emperour her father, for to serue him as a comfort of his age: it was not without a hard farewell of the Emperous pare towards his Nephew; but Heavyparing: 6c more grieuous on the Princes part towards his wife, who had never left him fince the time they were married; but nothing with-held our Prince, where there was either glorie, or meanes to encrease his reputation, and profit the Common-wealth: saying often, that he was borne to this A notable sayend, and that he must take in these exercises his principall delights; for every other thing where-ing of twoin he did exercise himselfe was but borrowed, being appointed and called of God to purill the lan.

1.amerlan his

pride of Tyrants. Neither will I here omit a dreame, which our Prince had the night before hee departed from Cambalu, which was, that he did fee as hee thought, a great multitude of reuerent men, who put forth their hands vnto him, requiring his fuccour against the violence of certaine Tyrants, who did afflict them with fundry kinds of torments: he faid, that he did never fee more reverent countenances, & that some of them were apparelled in white, and others in cloth of gold, some having as it were Crowns of gold vpon their heads, and it feemed vnto the Prince. that he gaue them his hand, and lift them very high. This dreame he recited vs the next morning, but no body was able to give him the interpretation thereof, & himselfe thought no more of it.

ney against the Turke.

Tamerlan returneth from the conquest

of China voto

The Prince was accompanied also with Calibes, & he commanded the Prince of Tanais, to take vpon him the state of Colonell of the footmen, which Axalla had left : vnto whom he gaue the re charge of Lieutenant generall within his Armie, with commandement to leade his Auant-guard, and Caliber the Arere-ward, being accompanied with farre greater forces then ever he had in any of his Armies : for they came vnto him from all parts. The Chinois Lord was licenced by Odmar to goe with 20000. men of the fubicets newly conquered, being defirous to fhew himfelfe vnto the Emperour, as also for to learne our manners and fashions. The Prince tooke his Voyage directly vnto Samercand, the place of his birth, three yeeres being past since hee had beene there. Zamar came to meet him, and I verily beleeve, a smillion of men, bleffing and prayfing him in Confultation about the way the Armie Chould take to the Turkes Em-

Tamerlan his

Reigget marched varothe fiege of Conflantinople.

The govern-

all manner of tongs. All the Princes of the Countrey also ranne to visite him; he abode there a moneth. Axalla in this meane time was already at the meeting place at Ocera, who prepared all things, looking for the Princes commandement for to goe voto him, advertifing him often of 20 the doings of Baiazet. We departed from Samercand, for to goe vnto Ozara, where was the meeting place for all the Princes troupes: and having in that place taken advice for his journey, that is to fay, for to know whether should be most expedient and fauorable, either to goe by the coasts of Moscowie directly vnto Capha, or rather on the other fide of the Sea Bachu to passe by the skirts of Persia. It wis resolved in the end, after fundry opinions, although the way were the longer, to passe vnto Capta for to come vnto Trebifonda, and to the Georgians, and from thence to enter into the limits of the Ottomans. Then our Armie after the accustomed ceremonies & prayers made vnto God, wherein our Emperor hoped to finde his principall fuccours, we drew straight vnto Maranis, where the Armie abode three dayes, looking for the forces which Odmar did fend, whereof they received 30 newes. There did the Emperour cause all his Armie to be payd, and a generall muster was made. He had newes also there of the forces that the Moscowite did lend voto him : he like wife caused an infinite quantitie of victuals, and the most part of his furniture to be conseved by the Sea of Bachu, there being some twentie leagues where was want of water and victuals, through the which our Armie must needs passe, causing all things necessary to be carried by water, the which was a great commoditie vnto vs; and there was a commandement given at all the shoares of the Sea, that they should bring all the vessels for to carrie the munition of the Armie: so as this fore-Tamerlin hun- fight did greatly ease our Armie. The Prince went continually coasting the Sea-shoare, passing ted by the way away his time in hunting, and his Armie came not neere him by ten leagues, except fuch as came to feeke necessaries for the Armie, the which did extend it selfe some twenty leagues, it was fo # great. The Prince abode at Sarafich during the time his Army passed the River of Edel at Mechet, and at two or three other Bridges, the which they had caused to bee made; there had hee ceataine newes how Baiazet marched vnto the fiege of Constantinople, having reduced vnto his obedience all Bythinia, and Burfis a very noble Citie, the which hee caused to bee fortified, and divers other Cities, vring all the cruelties that might be, infomuch as all the adjoyning Prouisces yeelded themselves his tributaries; amongst the rest the noble Citie of Capha: the Citie was by the Prince given vnto Axalla for to dispose of the same: which hee did, going thither to fee his kinf-folke, and to take fuch order there, as he thought was for the prefernation of the Citie, as one not vngratefull vnto his Countrey: he rather placed his hope in this little shoare of Mar Maiore, then in the limits of Scythia and China, and for to succeed after his Master vnto 50 all his great conquests, for that he had all the Souldiers at his commandement, and great credit amongst all the people over whom his Prince commanded. Baiazet having a very great and mightie Armie, neither beleeued, nor once thought that wee would come vpon him, to exceeding barbarous was he, that he would not indure any man fo much as to speake onely vnto him of our Armie, as despiting it, he was to proud : and there he caused all the bordering people publikely to bee forbidden, to make any vowes and prayers for our prosperitie. Inflice raigned so among ft vs. infomuch as if a Souldier had taken but an Apple, he was put to death, and this was feuerely observed over all, a thing vivall, and especially in this Journey, the which was the onely cause of overthrowing the tyrannie of the Ottomans, and of this proud Baiaxet. So we arrived at Bachichiche, where the Armie refreshed it selfe for the space of eight dayes. Vn:othis 60 place came the Embassadours of Guines, vnto the Emperour, whom the Prince did greatly reusrence for his holinesse. The Emperor after he had caused generall prayers to be published, Tamerlans Armie departed from Bachichiche, and they reckoned that there was in our Armie, three huncired thousand Horse-men, and true hundred thousand Foot-men, of all kinds of Nations. Our

Armie came vnto Garga, where it passed the River Emphrates, the Avant-guard at Chinserie; and the generall meeting of the Armie was appointed to bee at Gianch, the which did yeeld it felfe: and there had we newes that Baiazet his Armie was neceevnto vs, within some thirty leagues, which caused s to march more close. All the Cities yeelded, the Emperour receiving them graciously, and those which retused obedience, were cruelly punished, especially such Inhabitants as were Turkes, but the Christians fet in full libertie, under the name of the Greeke Emperour Emanuel, whom the Emperour would wholly gratifie, Axalla having received this commandement from the Prince: fo heecaused them to sweare fidelitie vnto Emanuel. The The causes of great Armie of Baiazet thought to have surprised our men within Sennas (which they had ta. Tame lans In ken) but as foone as they drew neere, our men fet it on fire, and the greatest part retyring, there warre against remayned some hundred Horse to performe the same, who retyred themselues in very great disorder. Now, the Prince of Ciarcan had divided his men into two troupes, and given comman- A flustagem. dement vnto the first troupe, that as soone as they perceived the Enemies to pursue the hundred Horse, they should receive them, and retyre ionntly together. Now, hee had the rest of his power in a valley necre vnto a Wood, and having fuffered some two thousand of the Enemies Horle. Turkes Auant-currers to passe by him, he charged them behind, and fought with them, they not fighting but fleeing as soone as they did see themselves pressed : many were slayne, and many were taken prisoners. This was the first time wee fought, and carried away the victorie : all the priloners were lent vnto the Prince, amongst the rest the Bassa of Natolia, who led this troupe. The next day Baiacet his Armie drew neere anto the fight of ours, the which marched How Tamerian two leagues: and wee encamped within a league the one of the other. All the night long you Armie poffed might have heard fuch noyle of Horles, as it feemed the heavens were full of voyces, the aire did the night befor clound, and every one was defirous to have the night passed, for to come each one vnto the fought against trial of his valour. Vnto the Seribian Nation, the which is defirous of goods, they propounded the Turke the great riches they should get by the victorie over the Ottomans. Vinto the Parthian Nation ambitious of rule, the honour and glorie of the Nation, being Conquerours of them, who onely were able to take from them the Empire of Afia. The Christians who made the fourth part thereof affured themselves to conquer their greatest Enemie. Behold, now every one spake during the night time, according to his humour. The Prince this night went through his Campe hearing 30 all this, and was very glad to fee the hope that every one of his Souldiers did conceine already of the victorie; and I being neere him, he did me the honour to tell me, that at the time he fought the battll against the Mesconite, he did heareall themight long all kindes of songs, the which refounded in his Campe, feeing in a manner no bodie fleepe: I hoped then (faid hee) to have fome good hap, and I trust to receive the like now. Now after the second watch the Prince returned vinto his lodging, and casting lumfelte vpona Carpet thee meant to sleepe: but the defire of day would not fuffer him; he then commanded me to giue him a booke, wherein he did reade: therein was contayned the lines of his Father and Grandfather, and of other valiant Knights, the which he did ordinarily reade: he called me, having light vpon (in reading) the discourse of a battell that his Grandfather had loft against the Persians, the which he had thought to have 40 gotten (very vndifcreetly) having affaulted his Enemie, many advantages being propounded vn-

to him, whereof he might have made good vie, all which he neglected, trulting vnto his owne valour and that of his Souldiers And having ended his speech, he commanded mee to reade the fame before him, and faid vnto me, I alwaies reade this before I beginne a battell, to the end I Tamelon his should not so much trust vnto the Lions skin, wherein I wrap my arme, that I should not serue sustaine bemy felie with the Foxes, to wrap therewith my head : for thus (faid he) my Grandfather was forea battell in a place of advantage, and he went out of it to feeke his Enemie, who was lodged ftrongly, and whatforuer his men faid to him, hee went on headling, shutting his eares against all the counfell and aduite of his feruants.

Seeing the Twifib Foot-men march, whom they doe call Innivaries, the which were placed The manner 50 in the middelt, and vpon the two fronts, two great squadrons of Horse-men, the which see- of the march med to be thirty thousand Horse, and another which advanced and covered the battalion of the of the Turkifb Immarie: Hee thought this order to be very good, and had to breake, and turning him felfe Footmen. vato Axilla, who was neere vato him, he fild, I had thought to haue fought on foot, but it behooueth me this day to fight on horiebacke, for to give courage vnto my Souldiers to open the great bartalion: and my will is, that they come forward vinto mee as foone as they may: for The order of I will advance forward an hundred thouland Foot-men, fifty thouland vpon each of my two Tameston his wings, and in the middeft of them forty thouland of my best Horse. My pleasure is, that atter battell, they have tryed the force of those men, that they come voto my Auant guard, of whom I will dispose (and fifty thousand Horse more) in three bodies, whom thou shelt command, the which 6c I will affilt with fourescore thousand Horse, wherein shall be mine owne perfon, having an hundred thouland Foot-men behind me, who shall march in two troupes; and for my Arcre-ward forty thousand Horse, and fifty thousand Foot-men, who shall not march but voto my ayde. I will make choise of ten thousand of the best Horse, whom I will fend into every part where I shall thinke needfull within my Armie, for to impart my commandements. Ouer the first forty

What the Turks laniza-

Tamerian his was taken pri-Tamerlan his cause of the victorie, and wherein per-thousand the Prince Ciarcian commanded : ouer the foremost footmen was the Lord Synopes, a Genuois, kinfman vnto Azalla, and he which was his Lieutenant ouer the footmen, a Captaine of great estimation. That ouer which the Prince Axalla commanded, confisted of fine squadrons of horsemen. Baiazet his Armie seemed faire and great, which was advanced continually forward towards vs, who stirred not one whit from the place of the battaile. There were many light horse men, as well Scythians, Parthians, as Mosconites, who left their rankes, and shot Arrowes. and brake Lances betweene the two Armies. There was a Spie who brought word that Baiazet was on toot in the middest of his lanix aries, where he meant to fight, that hee did not forget to mount on horse-back, giving order over all for the wants of his Armie : but purposed to fight in the middest of those lanizaries, who are a number of trusty men, brought vp in exercises from 10 their youth to all manner of warfare, and chosen out of al Nations, the fairest and strongest men. to as they are inuincible. By this bringing up the which they have had together, they doe fight with a great force and courage for their Prince and Lord, who being in the middeft of them, they are as in a halfe circle within the Armie. Now, they were thirty thousand men in this order, wherein Buiazet put his principall hope: he had many other footmen, but gathered together of all forts. His battaile of horse was very faire, amounting vnto the number of an hundred and fortie thousand horse, well exercised in all manner of fights. The Soldan of Egypt having ayded him with thirty thousand Mammolues, very good horse-men, and with thirty thousand footmen. Their Armie in that order feemed almost as great as ours: for they were not so knit together as we were, our forces being directly one after the other, and theirs all in a front.

So the Enemies Armie aduanced forward continually with an infinite number of cryes, and ours was in great filence. After that common prayer was ended, the Emperour himfelfe aduanced continually forward, beholding the first charge given, and caused Axalla to set forward after he returned into his order, continually exhorting his men before hee left them. There could not be seene a more furious charge given, then was performed by the Ottomans upon the Prince of Ciarcian, who had commandement not to fight before they came vnto him : there could not haue beene chosen a fairer Playne, and where the skilfull choise of the place was of leffe aduantage for the one then for the other, but that wee had the River on our left hand, the which was iome aduantage for the Emperour, having given commandement, that in any cafe they should not lose the same, and that the Enemies , whatfoeuer came thereof , should not win it : this hee 30 did for to haue the advantage of the hand in fight. The Emperour, who aboue all Maximes of principall ma. warre, did vie to deale in such manner, that the Enemie might bee the first Affaulter; hee had xime of warre. Straightly commanded them which were appointed for the first charge, to suffer the Enemie for to give the on-fet. Now (as I have already declared) this young Prince of Ciarcian with his forty thousand horse was almost wholly ouerthrowne, having fought as much as hee could, but hee betweene Ta- entred even into the middeft of the lanizaries, where the person of Baiazes was, putting them merlan and Eas in diforder, where he was flaine. About this time Axalla fet vpon them with the Auantquard. where as he was not in any fuch danger; for having furprifed one of the enemies wings, hee cut it all in pieces, and his footmen comming to ioyne with him, as they had beene commanded, hee faced the Battalion of the lanisaries. The Prince feeing the charge Axalla had vpon his arme, fent ten thousand horse from his battaile for to succour him, and knit together the mayne battaile of Axalla, and to give once againe a charge v pon another Battalion of footmen , the which did shew it felfe, and came to joyne with and strengthen that of the lanizaries, who behaved themselves valuantly for the safetie of their Prince. This fight continued one houre, and yet you could not have feene any scattered, fighting resolutely the one against the other. You might have seene the Mountaynes of horses rush one against another, the men die, crie, lament, and threaten at one very time. The Prince had patience to fee this fight ended, and when hee did perceive that his men did give place, hee lent ten thouland of his Horle to joyne againe with the ten thouland appointed for the Arierward, and commanded them to affift him, at fuch time as hee should have need thereof. At 50 this very time the Emperour chargeth, and made them give him roome, causing the footmen to affault, ouer whom the Prince of Thanais commanded; who gave a furious on-fet vpon the Battalion of the Ianiz aries, wherein was yet the person of Baiazes, who had sustayned a great burthen. But the multitude, and not valour, did preuaile; for as much as might bee done in fight, was by the lanizaries performed, for to preferue the person of their Prince. But in the end the Horse-men, wherein was the Emperours person, gaue a new charge, and his Aagainst Brieger uantguard was wholly knit againe vnto him, hee renewed another forcing, and was fully viwherein bee ctorious. Baiazet having retyred on horse-back out of the troupe of Janizaries wounded, fell aline into the hands of Axalla, vnto whom hee yeelded himselfe, supposing it had beene Tamerlan: then Axalla seeing him so followed (being for a time not knowne but for some great 60 Lord of the Ottomans) twentie thousand horse did not fight at all, but onely in pursuing the vi-Ctorie, and they made a great flaughter. The Prince had his horse tlaine under him with the blow of a Lance, but he was soone remounted againe on horse-back. This day the wisdome of the Emperor gaue the victorie vnto his Souldiers; for the judgment which he had in tyring of the firong torces of the Ottomans, was the fafeguard of his. For if all had gone vnto the battaile in one front, furely ,the multitude had put it felfe into a confusion ; but this manner of aiding his men made euerie one profitable. The Emperour judging (like a great Captaine) of the need that every one of his fouldiers had, so that this manner of proceeding was the getting of the victory. They accounted threefcore thousand men flaine of the Ottomore, and twentie thousand of ours, The Prince of Tirzis was flaine, as I have faid : the head of the Georgians flaine, Calibes was verie forrie hee had so easie a reckoning in his Arier-ward, being very couragious, and a gentle Knight : the Delpote of Servia was taken prisoner, who did accompanie Baracet, and was a Christian : they gane him this day of battaile much reputation. The Emperour gaue vinto

10 him very good entertainment, reproouing him, for that hee did accompany Baiazet against him, who did come in fauour of his Emperour. Hee aniwered him, that it was not according to his dutie, but the prosperitie of Baiazet, vnto whom it seemed, that all the world did bend for to subjet it selfe vnto him, and that his safetie had caused him to set forward. The Emperour presently thereupon gaue him leaue to depart at his pleasure. Hee tooke care to get into his hands Baiazet his children : hee gaue commandement that Baiazet should be cured, and after brought before him : who at such time as hee was there never made any shew of humilitie. The Emperour faying vnto him, that it lay in him to cause Baiaget him to lose his life, he answered: Doit, that losse shall be my happinesse. And demanding brought before of him what made him for to enterprise to being into the life. And demanding transmins, with of him what made him for all, for to enterprise to bring into subjection so noble a Prince his pride,

20 as was the Emperour of the Greekes. Hee answered him, the defire of glorie and rule, Wherefore doest thou (said the Emperour vnto him ) vie so great crueltie towards men, so farre foorth that neither thou nor thine doe pardon either fex or age! This doe I (answered hee ) to give the greater terrour to my enemies. Then faid the Emperour, to shalt thou receive the like reward; and cauting him to bee conveyed againe out of his prefence, hee turned vnto his followers, and faid, behold a proud and fierce countenance, hee deserueth to be punished with cruelcie, and it is necessarie that hee bee made an exemplarie punishment to all the cruell of the world, of the just wrath of God against them. I acknowledge that God hath this day delivered into my hands a great enemy, wee must give thankes vnto God for the same: the which was performed, being yet day : for the battaile was wonne at foure of the clocke, and there 30 was as yet fine houres of day-light. The children of Baiazet were brought before him : hee cauled them to bee vied curreoully, and as the children of an Emperour. The next day hee commanded the dead to bee buried : they found the Prince of Tirzis dead in the middeft of the Janizaries, where he remained enclosed. The Emperour did greatly lament this young Prince, who was his kiniman, and would have been one day worthie for to doe him great feruice. Temerica his In that battaile there died manie Captaines, & almost the chiefe Ottomans. This was a great Bat- saying of 84taile, the which was fought from feuen vnto foure of the clocke, in fuch fort that they knew issen. not vnto whom the victorie did incline. Our Armie stayed vntill the next day, every one caufing his friends to bee buried. The Prince of Tirzis was emblamed, and conucyed with two thousand horse vnto Samarcand vntill the Emperour returned. All the other dead bodies were 40 buried at Sanas with all the honour that might be. Axalla was much grieued for his kinfman, because hee was verie well beloued of the Prince: his charge was given vnto one of his brethren who was verie famous; in fighting this fame day, we might judge the events of the matters of the world, Behold this Emperour Baiazet, who was, as hee thought, superiour to fortune, which in an instant found himselte and his estate by one battaile onely ouerthrowne euen vnto the lowest place, and at sich time as hee thought least thereof. Hee vied to say, that hee was justly punished, for despiting the multitude we had, for the assurance that hee had in the valour of his horimen, and especially of his Lanizaries. Hee was three dayes (as they report) be-of Anget asfor e he could be e pacified, as a desperate man, seeking after death, and calling for it. The Empereur he was raour did not vie him at all curreoully, but caused small account to bee made of him: and for to kenpre ner.

50 manifest that he knew how to punish the proud; vpon festivall dayes, when as hee mounted on horseback, they brought this proud man vnto him, and he serued him in stead of a foot-stoole : Bringer Tamarthis sidd he for to manifest the folly and arrogancie of men, and how justly God had humbled to mount on him. The next day the Prince marched directly towardes Barfia, whither all the remainder horeback, of Baiaxet his Armie was retired, with the Bassa Mastapha. All the countrie yeelded vnto vs, and the Prince caused all the holdes and fortresses to bee ouerthrowne and destroyed, and punished all those which were so enill adusted as to stay untill they were besieged. I had forgotten to declare, how hee caused the Prince of Tirzis bodie to bee accompanied with divers prisoners chained and tied together, whom hee did send vnto Samarcand, the which the Prince had determined to make great, for a perpetuall memorie of his greatnesse. Even so

60 had hee greatly peopled with people of China, which had beene taken in the Battailes, concrete his and of those likewite which were taken our of the two great Cities, Pagninfon, and Quan. Cities Somatoufon. Now this batta le did bring great aftonishment vinto all the countries possessed by cond. Baiazet, and no bodie reifted vs, cuen vnto Barfia, whither this Armie was fled, and therein were allo two formes of Batazer verte young, Axalla being alwaies a luanced forward before

deliuciy of

Prefents fent by Tanerlan vnrothe great

our Armie, with fortie thousand Horse, and an hundred thousand Foot-men without any carriages, who hindred the Enemies from joyning themselues againe together : and hee made a cruell Warre upon the Ottomans, deliuering the Gracians from the tyrannie of Baiazet, Hee Availe cruell approached neere vnto Bursia, where the Ottomans did not stay the comming of Axallus against the O. Armie, but only they which could not runne remayned behind. Baiazet his two Sonnes were tomass for the fent vnto the Greek fb Emperour for to bring them vp, and to have mercie vpon them; the rest went vnto Gallipoli, for to goe vnto Andrmopoli, the which they held, having conquered it from the Gracians. Now the Prince (for to returne vnto my purpole) dispatched towards the Emperour his Vncle, and vnto the Empresse his Wife, one of his Familiars, called Lieban, Captayne of his Chamber, for to carrie him newes of this Victorie, and to joyne it also vnto all the rest. He fent unto him Baiazet his Sword and Bow, and the Caparitons of his Horse, the which was efleemed to be worth aboue two hundred thousand Duckets. You may easily thinke that Prince Lieban was well entertayned of the old Emperour, and of the young Princefie, bringing word vnto them, that all the World did bend it selfe to make our Prince victorious, who surely receiued these Victories from God without infolencie, and at such time as hee sent him most glory, then did his men note him to be least puffed up. He was never bold, but in the day of battails, and on the Eeue for to command feuerely, and with greater Majesty. To tell you what he was in aduerfitie, I did neuer fee him in that effate : but it is to be thought, that they which bee not infolent in prosperitie, are not faint-hearted in aduersitie. So cur victorious Prince marched directy vnto Burfia, loaden with Spoyles and Trophees which hee daily got, departing from the 20 Cities which did come and yeeld themselves vnto him; therein observing the same manner of proceeding, the which we did in the Conquest of China; they which did yeeld vnto him without fighting, were well vied, and the obstinate well punished, the Prince knowing that reward and punishment are the Moderators of Common-wealthes, the one to bee vied towards the good, and the other towards the cuill. In the end we received newes by Axalla, that he had receined Bursia in the Emperours name, and how the Inhabitants thereof had punished the Garritons of Baiazet, having driven them away, and flaine many.

But I dare not follow our Author any further from Taxtatia, for whose sake I have entertayned him. Leauing therefore his agreement with the Greeke Emperour, and secres visiting Constantinople; his comming to Icrusalem, and Expedition against the Soldan, With his Exploits in Egypt, Syria, Perlia, me will returne with him to Samarcand.

ò. IIII.

Ersia, as long as he lived was much affected vnto him: which greatly served him for the Encrease of Samarcand; Affaires of China: Funerals of the Can; comming to Quinza, and description threess. His disposition of his estate and death.

keeping as well of Syria, as of the Soldans Empire, leauing continually men there, and drawing out Colonies, the better to fettle his Affaires in those places. So the Emperour leaving the Prince of Thanair, with his Army to attend his pleafure, he marched with therest of his forces into his owne Countrey with all the Ioyes and Triumphes that might be possible, the chiefest Prisoners marching before the Emperour, amongst the which was Bauzer Emperour of the Turkes all chayned, and was a Spectacle vnto all the World of Fortunes inconflancy : hee continued notwithstanding in the same siercenesse wis woont to be in him. So wherefoeuer the Emperour paffed, the people affembled themfelues by spoyles, in very great magnificence : where after we had beene the space of one moneth or two in Feathings and Manificences, the Emperour with his accustomed Denotion, having in great tolemnitie vowed a Church and Hofr itall vnto his God, the most magnificent that might bee deuised. Whereupon to performe the same, he began to search out all sorts of Handiciasts men for to honour this Citie, the which hee had a defire to make one of the stateliest Cities in the World. And in one of the corners thereof he began, and did build there his Temple and Holpitall, making an account to increase yet this Citie, as large againe as it was, and to people the fame, with to many feuerall kinds of people and Nations as hee had brought with him, giving libertie vinto them all to frame and build their Houses, causing money to be distributed to do the thousands, praying and tinging his Victories. We arrived at the last at Samarcand with all our so fame, and giving all kinds of Priviledges and Freedomes vnto the Prisoners, for to give them a 60 greater defire to build and fettle themfelues there : and having caused the threets and places to be plotted, and having appointed a place for every one to build vpon, hee tooke no other place

fure, neither had he any other care then the preferring the good will of his most famous Soci-diers, whole name hee having cauted to bee written in a generall Mutter-booke, the which has commanded to be made, from day to day, they (not thinking thereof) received honours. and good turnes of the Prince, in recompence of their fo great feruices. Now he declared the death of the Emperour his Vncle vnto his Councell (of which he before had received Intelligence, but kept it close) and forgot no Ceremony due vnto the honour of the faid Emperour outwardly, shewing the griefe he conceiued for his death; where after hee had rested some eight dayes, hee determined to goe vnto Quinzai for to fee the Empresse, and having left Baiazet in the cultodie of the Gouernour of Zachetay, the Emperour fet forward with his ordinary Court which was of forty thousand Horse, and threescore thousand Foot-men.

The Emperour being come vnto Cambalu, received newes of the Battell Odmar, had wonne Articles of a To against the King of Chinas, Captayne Generall, and how he pursued his Victory, having taken new spreemens three or foure great and rich Cities, the which did yeeld themselves vnto him, and that againe betweene Tathe Chinois did defire peace. The Emperour fent the Articles he required, which were that be- merion and the fore all other things the King of China should pay the Arrerages of the Tribute, the which hee had agreed with the Emperour. First, he should come in person to doe homage vnto his Majesty, and acknowledge himselfe as Vassall vnto his Empire. That the Army should withdraw it selfe during his Voyage, and he should deliuer up vnto him all his Cities, sauing three such as the Emperour should nominate; and that the things should be restored vnto the same estate they were in before the Warre, when the Emperour made the first peace; that hee should pay the Army for fixe moneths, and should also satisfie all the expences of the War, seeing he had begunne it, and 20 was Author of the breach of peace. Then the Emperour gratified Odmar, fending vnto him for Wife one of his Sifters with all magnificence that might be, for to make him the more affectioned vnto him. I will declare how the Emperour was received at Cambala by his Subjects, with all the magnificence possible, the Emperour for to gratifie them having restored their Priviledges, the which he had taken from them, for the Rebellion they had committed with Calix : fo as the Emperour went ouer all gratifying his Subjects for this new Succession that was lately fallen vnto him, all the Companies comming vnto him : for in these Countreves they have no certayne dwellings, they are alwayes wandring in troupes whereformer they goe: thither the Empresse (hauing left Prince Axalla to gouerne at Quinzai) came vnto him. The Prince remayned there almost two moneths, having in this place given order for all the Affaires he had. Cam-20 bals was also neere vnto mount Alebay, where they vie to bury the Seythian Emperours, whom we doe call the great Cham.

would conduct it with all pompe, honouring not only his body, but also all that her had loued in the World, and although it was not the custome to cause women for to affist the Funerals, yet The magnifiwould be affoord this honour vnto the Empresse, that she should assist the bringing of the body, of the great going neere vnto the same. This he did, the more to make appears how much he honoured the thome of the same of t memory of the late Emperour in his Wife, being his Daughter, and also to the end that if God taria. did take him away, his children being small, shee should have the greater authority, and bee the better acknowledged worthy to gouerne in the minoritie of his Children; and also for that thee 40 had beene brought vp alwayes in authority, even fince shee was marryed. The Prince desiring thereby the more to acknowledge the honour the Emperour his Vncle had done him, by adopting him as his Sonne, and in having left him so great and large an Empire, as that was, whereof he left vnto him the possession. Now the Emperour loued her onely, having no other affection in such pleasure, but only the happinesse of a faire Off-spring, the which he hoped for. Now the body of the late Emperour being come vnto Cambalu, he determined to conduct it vnto the buriall according vnto the accustomed Ceremony, and to put the body with the Kings and Em- Temerlanhis percurs his Ancestors. After he had from point to point performed the last Will and Ted-Ament Assessment of the late Emperour, he returned from theace vito Cambalas, where he spent all Winter in Tilt and Turnyin; some a hunting, makine his should there. Feeling have used the Winter in Tilt tooks good and Turnyin; somice a hunting, makine his should there. and Turny ing, going a hunting, making his abode there, because he was in a place nearest vnto Wise,

The Emperor caused the body of the Emperour his Vncle to be brought thither, and himselfe

the Kingdome of China, to know how matters passed there, having now brought thither his last 50 Affaires, purposing to goe thither in person the next Winter, if Odmar did not make an end of The young Aftares, purpoung to got timeer in period the track without in Commer the Hot make and the his Prince made the Wars alreadie begunne, and if the King of China did not fubmit himfelfe wholly wider his Cournous of obedience, hauing determined not to depart from Cambalu, vntill this Countrey were pacified, Quarta and the marke he fhot at, being only to keepe that which his valour was able to conquer through his ouer all the good fortune, being desirous to spend the rest of his life in enjoying the fruits of his trauchs, and Countrey; for to publish his prayles vnto his people, and with Millions to maintayne them in peace. He which feemen had also a purpose to bring vnto an end that which hee had determined to doe at Samarcand.

dalfo a purpole to bring vnto an end that which hee had determined to doe at Samarcana.

North parts of Now Asala was at Quinzai, as well vnto the contentment of all the men of Warre, as the China and per-Inhabitants, who defired much to fee their Prince, and having caused Prince Azassa in their be- haps in these halfe to beleech it, that it would pleafethe Emperour to cause his Sonne to bee brought up a times, Nan-60 mongit them there, the which he did grant vnto them in fauour of the faid Prince Axalla, eita- ouin was the mongit them there, the which he did grant vnto them in randor or the land rinter Arana, the blifting him for to command in the abience of the Prince his Sonne, whom hee made Gouer or them and or the same and nour of Quinzat, from Cambalu even vnto the Sea. This Countrey was replenished with some Quinzas, of the three hundred Cities, and was in largenesse more then foure hundred leagues, besides an finite Tartarian.

Princes Gouernour, and authorifed oner all the Goucrnour

generall. The King of omitted, asis alfo the moft part of the Booke, on of the Citte of Quinco, with the wonderfull ficus. tion thereof. ceiued with great magnificence into rich and rare The order hee tooke for his

Tamerlan his notable faying of fuccession

Parthia.

Tamerlan his recreations, and notable Laying thereof.

The admiration and exceeding lone Duingay did beare voto number of Villages. To make short, it was that the Emperour his Vncle gouerned, where this Avalla appoin. Prince Avalla was his Lieutenant generall, under the authoritie of the young Prince his fonne. ted the young vnto whom he deliuered him in charge for to be his Gouernour, authorifing him vnto the gouernement generall of all his Kingdomes: for the great wisedome that was in this Knight, made him beloued in all the Countreys under the Emperours obedience: the feruices also and great victories the which he had caufed the Emperour to obtayne by his front courage, and good Kingdomes of conduct, who for these occasions put his principall trust in him, and after himselfe hee thought him onely worthie to preserve for his children his Kingdome and Empresse.

The King of China came to visit him at his Court, according vnto the couenants offered vnto him, the which he accepted: he did sweare once againe obedience vnto the Emperour, who to china came vn. caused him to see all his greatest Cities, for to make himselfe the more to be feared of this Borto the Empe- barian, who kept no more promise then pleased himselfe. Hee was astonissed to behold so marour Tamerlant ny Souldiers, and the Countrey fo well replenished with people; and aboue all, that they vied did (weare vn. fo little curiofitie of riches in their apparell and garments, wondring that the Emperour was to him once a apparelled in meane Cloth of one colour, without any other fashion: but to counternaile than gaine obedi. he had about him men which seemed to bee Kings. At the same time when the King of China was at the Court, the Emperour received newes of the " victorie against the Soldan, for the The meane ap. which the Emperour reroyced, making feafts and turneys in his Court in token of mirth, and this rejoycing continued for the space of eight dayes. After the Emperour had given order for *This battell. the double paying of his Armie that came into Persia, vinder the conduct of the great Chamberlaine, and Synopes Colonell generall in the Imperial Armie, the Emperour went vnto Quinfa for to fee his lonne, and wifit the people of this Countrey.

The Emperour arriving neere vnto Quinfay, Prince Axalla comming to meet him two dayes journey off, with all the chiefe Lords of the Countrey, together with the principall Citizens, who were preparing for the Emperour the most magnificent receiving that might bee, as well by water as by land. As this Citie is one of the richest in the world, so is it one of the greatest. and of the most wonderfull situation, being all wholly divided and overthwarted with channels, vpon the which are framed wonderfull and flately buildings, accompanied with an infinite number of Bridges, vpon the which they passe ouer channels: this Citie aboundeth with all kinde of spices, and in great quantitie, likewise with all manner of merchandises. The Empe- 20 rour as soone as he was arrived, received presents of the Citizens, the which were esteemed to be worth about two millions of Gold, with a wonderfull variety of all rare and fingular things, the which they presented wnto him , for to testifie the love and obedience they did owe wnto him. The Emperour was defirous to fee his sonne, whom they brought vp with the accustomed greatnesse of Princes: and having caused the child to be brought before him, being of the age of feuen yeeres: he forbad from hence forward they should suffer him to weare any thing upon his head, and himfelfe did hang a Bowe about his necke, faying aloud, that they which fonnes educa- from their birth were called vnto foueraignties, should bee vied both vnto cold and heate, and should bee exercised in Armes betimes, and not brought up delicately and easily, reprehending them which had the bringing of him vp, demanding of them, if they meant to make a woman 40 of him? And they answering, that he was tender. If he be not borne (faid he) for to be ftrong in Armes, he will not be worthy to succeed mee : for he must not be an effeminate Prince that shall preserve the Parthian Empire. Now he had sent the Empresse vnto Samarcand to be delinered, where shee was honourably received, having never beene there since shee was married. The Empresse Hee received newes that shee was there delivered of another goodly sonne, a thing which hee deliuered of an caused to be published ouer all, and himselse in token of ioy, made seasts sitteene dayes, with all other some at kindes of magnificent turneys: this he did for to shew his agalitie vnto this people, to the end, that as he excelled all his Gourt in vertues, that they should also iudge him worthie to gouerne them about all other men. After he continued there a moneth, and having visited all the Seatownes neere vnto Quinfay, hunting all kindes of chases, neglecting nothing not withstanding 50 which belonged to his charge, faying often, that the recreations hee did take, were helpes for to ease him in the paines of his publike affaires whereunto God had called him. Hauing vpon his returne called together all the people, he published his lawes, which were all renerenced of this people, as though they had proceeded from the Diuinitie, fo much admiration had every one of the greatnesse of this Prince. The which I will truely declare vnto you, that so long as the Emperour was there, this people did almost nothing , being for the most part busied in beholding of him, not finding any greater contentation then that. Some of his Courtiers, and amongit the rest, Prince Axalla faid one day vnto him, that this was a Citie sit for his abode. O their Emperor, my friend, it is not so: if they should see mee daily, they would make no more account of mee, The nature of It is a maxime, that the Lord of this great Citie must not goe thither but once in ten yeeres, and when he is there, it behooueth him to temper his actions, as if he were vpon a Scaffold rea- 69 die for to play some Comedie, where granitie and good grace is necessary for to content the beholders: for the people doe eafily receive an euill impression of their Prince, as they also doe a good, if you performe it well vnto them.

Now I have forgotten to tell you how the Emperour fent Prince Avalla in his name from Prince Avalla Quinfay in O China, and his Imperiall Maiette did not depart out of the Prounce before he re- fent into the atturned ne went thither with great diligence for to establish peace there. Prince Azalla went for to establish formed towards Paguin, where he was received of the Gouernour with all pollible honour. a reacethere. Are having affembled all the Emperours forces, hee fet forward towards the borders of China. hue an enterview at Pochio, where the meeting place was agreed upon. He pasted by Quanton: went forward vnto Pochio, whither the King came also to meet with him; and hee entred full fiftie leagues into the Countrey newly conquered. It feemed vnto him a thing too much derogating from the greatnesse of the Emperour, the maiestie of whose person hee represented, if In he went any further to fee this barbarous King, being more fit that he should come forward into the Countrey conquered lately from him by Odmar, after he had obtayned the victory, then to goe into his Countreys although he had subjected them vnto the Emperour, and did pay a very great tribute. So the King of China arrived within a league of Pochio with all his Court; hee The meeting fet forward vnto a Plaine, where he and Prince Axalla did fee each other, who was much bet. of Prince A. ter accompanied, from whom the King did as much differ as from the Emperours owne person. King of Ching They met three severall times together: the King desired to bee admitted into a Citie, which at Pethia. the Emperour had granted vnto him by the treatie. Prince Odinar declared that it was of great importance, therefore Prince Axalla was by the Emperour appointed for to bee Iudge of this controuersie, In the end they required another further within the Countrey, the which the 20 King accepted: fo hee was put into possession of that Citie, the situation whereof was very pleasant, being compassed about with a Lake. Axalla having discovered that this barbarous

King, did earnestly defire it onely for his pleasure, and not for any other euill intent, the Citie which hee deliuered being feated upon a River further within his Countrey, and that other within our Countrey compafied about with our fortreffes: but Odmar did not allow of that, and supposed it to bee for an euill purpose, as for to contrine some new practises. Odmar being an olde man, who knew the kings vnfaithfulneffe, although hee had made him know it well enough vnto his fmart, having (as I have faid) wonne twenty or thirty Cities from him; and about fourescore leagues of Countrey, at such time as hee obtayned the last Battell, during the time that the Emperour was in his last Voyage against the Persians,

So the enterniew continued yet betweene Prince Analla and the King of China on the Plaine, 2 Tent being pitched, whither Prince Axalla did come vnto him, whom hee continually honoured as much as the Emperours owne perion, where after they had long time treated by Interpreters, it was in the end agreed, that the King of China should enter againe into Quinanci , not fuffering him to put any Garrison into it, nor to fortifie the same : but even as a Priloner and Subject vinto the Emperour, her should enjoy it, and it should bee his owne. enioving all the revenue thereof, neither should hee carrie any kingly Enfignes, without the express leave of the Gouernour for the Emperour: hee should not withit anding have a Theresolution the expetite rease or the endersion for the emperous and should gue knowledge vitto the faid Gouernous betweene A. of his journey, before he entred into the Emperours Countries, the which hee must passe for to xalla and King 40 goe thither. Now the Citie was fituated in the middeft of a very great Lake, in the which were of thiss. many Ilands, wherein there were an infinite number of houses of pleasure, and it had beene alwaies a very delicate place, where the Kings of China were wont to recreate themselves in all kindes of pleafures that were there to be found: in fo much as this barbarous King did not respect the conditions propounded vnto him, so as he might make his abode there, as it were in an Hermitage. Hauing left vnto his brother the gouernment of his whole Kingdome, through King of Chinac the displeasure he had of his bondage whereunto he was brought; a courage certainly magna. brother sucnimous, and worthie a Nation made civill with the belt learning, and vinworthie the name of a ceeds. Barbarian wherewith we called him.

Three times in the weeke at Samercand, Tamerlan ministred open instice vnto the meanest, The instice of 50 in his Imperial Maiestie, a thing which made him beloued of the people ouer whom hee commanded. In the other dayes hee gaue secret audience for the affaires of his Estate, and tooke aduice for matters of importance, which were decided daily in his presence. He had such severitie line. in his counsell, that they must needs deale truely before him, and without all passion in discourfing : not withflanding he alwaies shewed himfelfe courteous in his conversation, and made himtelle both beloued and feared of his people: hee neuer changed his feruants, except they committed great faults against him; of all the servants of the late Emperour his Vncle he did not change one of them, but hee did withall encrease their estates, making them in this change to feele his liberalitie, which he made strangers for to taste also, vinto whom he was accustomed to give, to binde them vnto him. He drew great store of money yeerely for tribute of the Mofeo-60 mite: but he distributed it within the fame countrey for to maintayne his authoritie there, winning those for his which might have hurt him, by meanes of giving voto them. Hee had great Tomerlin his care of his revenues, and he had such a readinesse, that he did see his estate from three moneths este of his vnto three moneths within one houre, both the ordinarie and extraordinarie expences, they remember prefented it fo well digefted vnto him.

Prince Saute-

But our hafte of other voyages permits not our flay bere. Onely we will adde, that after A things we dered, Sicknesse arrested and Death conquered this great Conquerour : and this Traueller trested the dered, solvingle arrepted and Dente comparers son green compared to way of all flesh into another world. Pretently after his death they ranne to call his fonne, those tooms as he was come that his eyes, powring out teares, a sallo did all his femunts. The tinge Samochio his eldeit fonne, within two houres after was proclaymed Emperour throughout. the whole Armie, and dispatches were made from all parts to advertise the Governours of Pro uinces thereof, the Letters being figned with the hand of the new Emperour, who having afand figured di. fembled all the Armie together, hee made an Oration vnto the Captaines and Souldiers, and caused them to make a generall muster, gratifying all the ancient Servants of the Emperour his Father: he would not dispose of any thing before he had seene Prince Axalla, and was iny ned with the Imperial Armie. This young Prince, when he came vnto this Empire was nineteene this nineteens yeeres old, hee was faire, and had much of the Emperor his Fathers naturall disposition. They hoped that hee would wifely (through the good counsell that was about him) maintayne this great Empire : but they feared greatly the young Prince Letrochio his brother (whom his mos ther loued) would cause divisions, as it happened in the times of their great grand-father betweene two brethren, who had beene occasion of the destruction of their estate, the which was releeued and lifted vp againe vnto his height by the valour of Tamerlan.

CHAP. IX.

This Citie of Succine is great and populous, with faire houses of hewen stones after our man mer: and hath many great Temples with their Idols of ftone. It is fituate in a Playne where runne infinite Rivolets; is abundant in victuals of all forts, and yeelds filke there made of the Reports of GHAGGIMENET & Perlian of Tabas in the Province of * Chilan. or Gil.m. touching his Travels and Observations in the Country of the Great Can. Unto M. G. BAPTISTA RAMVSIO.

Succeir and Campion mentioned by M.

Ambaffadour to the great Can.

E faid that he had beene at Succeir and Campion, Cities of the Province of Tanguib, in the entrance of the State of Grand Can, who (faid he) was called Daimie Can, and fent his Officers to the government of the faid Cities, which are the first toward the Muslemans , and are Idolaters. He went thither with a Cara- if uan, which went with merchandises out of Persia, and from the places adiov. ning to the Cafpian Sea, for the Regions of Cataio; which Carauan they permit No piffing in. not to pierce further then Success and Campion, nor any other Merchant therein, except he cos

Succuir descri-

black Mulberies in great quantitie: hath no Wine growing, but they make a drinke with Hopy as it were Ale. Of fruits, by reason the Countrey is cold, there grow none but Peares, Apples, Apricocks, Peaches, Melons and Cucumers. Hee faid that Rhubard (of this commeditie Memet 4 had brought great flore at that time to Vonice) growes all over the Country ; but the beft, in certaine high stony Hills neere adjoyning, where are many Springs and Woods of divers forts of high Trees, and the Land is of a red colour, and by reason of many Raynes and Springs almost alway myrie. He shewed out of his botome a picture of the Plant, brought out of the Country (which Ramusio in his Preface to M. Polo bathalfo presented with this discourse) the description of which is this. The leaves, he faid, are ordinarily two spans long, more or leffe as the Plantis in bigneffe; narrow below and broad aboue, downy with (as it were) fmall hayres in their circumference; the stalke or trunke is greene foure fingers high, and sometimes a span from the ground : the greene leaves with age grow yellow and spread on the ground. In the midst of the trunke growes a thin branch with flowres faftned within, like the Mamole violets in forme, but 10 of the colour of Milke and Azure, and greater then those violets, of a noysome sent. The roote

The Root and thigh or legge, out of which grow little Roots or Sprigs, which spread in the ground, and are luyce and pro- cut away from the great Roote; which within is yellow with many veynes of faire red, full of the Sunne may not come at them, being in two moneths drie and perfect. They ordinarily take A cold climate, it out of the ground in the Winter, the vertue being then most wnited in the Roote (the Spring 60 there beginning at the end of May) which at other times is dispersed into the leaves and flowers, that juyce also being gone and the roote light and hollow. They sell one of their Cart lodes of Roots with leaves for fixteene filuer Saggi (not much vnlike ours) for they have no Coynes, but make their gold and filter in small thin rods, and thence within ground is a span or two long, of a tawny colour in the barke, some as bigge as a mans red and yellow juyce, cleaning to the fingers and making the hand yellow: and being cut in peeces the viscous juyce issueth out and the roote becomes light; they lay them therefore on boords turning them vp and downe divers times a day, that the juyce should incorporate therein, left it lose the goodnesse; after foure or fix dayes hanging them to drie in the winde, where cut preces of a Saggio weight, which in filter is twentie Soldi Venetian, and in gold a Ducket and halfe. He laid that they would not gather it, if forren Merchants should not come to trade for it, themselves making no reckoning thereof : and that the Merchants of China and India carry away the greatest part; who if they should cut and dresse it as before is expressed, after it is brought in Cares, in foure or tix dayes it would corrupt; and feuen burdens greene (hee faid) would not yeeld about one drie. When it is greene it is intolerably bitter; and in Cataio they y'e it not for medicine, but beate and mixe it with other odoriferous compositions for persumes to their Idols. In some places there is such store that they burne it dryed in stead of wood: othere give it their crafed horses, so little doe they esteeme it in Cataio. But there they much

Six Saggi ounce.

To prize another small Roote, which growes in the Mountaines of Succesir, where the Rubard prowes, and call it Mambroni cini, very deare, yied for difeafes, those specially of the eyes; nor Mambroni cini, did he thinke any of it was brought into these parts. He faid also, that in all Cataio they much wie the leagues of another herb, which they call Chiai Catai, which growes in a place of Catai, called Caccanfu. They boyle it, whether new or drie, and taking off a Beaker or two of that decoction faffing (as hot as can be borne) takes away the Feauer, payne of the Head or Stomack, Back, loynts, and other difeates, especially the Gowt, and it is good for digestion. They vie to carry it with them in their Voyages, and will give a fack of Rubarb for an ounce of Chini Catas. And the Cataians fay, that if our Merchants, Perfians and Frankes, knew the goodnesse thereof, they would buy no Rauend Cini, fo they call Rubard.

I asked him of his Voyage from thence to Conftantinople, and hee answered mee by Mambre our Interpreter, that hee returned not that way he went with the Carauan, by reason that the Greene-head Tartars called lefeilbas, fent an Embaffador at that time when hee was to come away, with a great company, by the way of Tartaria Deserta, about the Caspian Sea to the great Turke at Constantinople, to make a league against the Persian their common enemie. Whereupon The way of he thought good to come with them, and so did to Caffa. I asked of the way he went. He faid the Carauan he should have returned from Campion to Gauta in fix dayes (eight Farsencs, each of which is betwint Tauru three Italian miles, are a dayes journey, but on the Hils and Defarts they goe not halfe so much) in Gatal from Ganta to Succeir in fine dayes, from Succeir to Camul in fifteene, here the Mufalmans (or Mahumetans) begin : from Camul to Turfon is thirteene. From Turfon they passe three Ciac ties, Chialis ten dayes journey thence, after that Cuchia other ten, and after that Acfu in twentie. From Acfa to Cafear are other twentie dayes all rough Delart, all the former way being thorow places inhabited. From Cafear to Samarcand are fine and twentie dayes. From Samarcand to Bochara in Corassam, five; from Bochara to Eri, twentie; from thence to Veremi

Now for some particulars of those places, he related that Campion is subject to Daimir Can, Campion degreat Emperor of the Tartars ; the Citie placed in a fertile Playne all cultivated and abundant in feribed. proussions. They are apparelled in black Cotton cloth, furred in Winter with skins of Wolues Apparell. and Sheepe if they be poore; the richer with Sables and Marterns of great price. They we are 40 black Bonets sharpe like a Sugar-loafe; the men rather small then great, wearing beards as we Bea ded men doe, specially a certayne time of the yeere. Their houses are of stone like ours, with two or Houses, in fitteene; from Veremi to Calbin in fix; thence to Soltania in foure, and thence to Tauris in three lotts, slope-roofed, and dinersly painted, and they have one street onely of painters. The great men for magnificence make a great Loftor Pageant, and thereon erect two Tents of filke Pageans. embroydered with gold, filter, pearles, and jewels, and therestand with their friends. This they cause to bee carried by fortie or fiftie Slaues, and so goe thorow the Citie in solace. The Gentlemen are carried on a limple Pageant, by foure or fix men without other furniture. There Temples are made like our Churches, fo great that they may contayne foure or fine thousand. Temples and persons; and have in them two Statues, of a Man and a Woman, each fortie foot long, all of one 1dols. peece, firetched on the ground, and all gilded. They have excellent flone cutters. They bring 50 quarry Hones two or three moneths journey on shod Carts of fortie wheeles very high, drawne Huge cons-

by fine or fix hundred Horfes and Mules. There are also small Images with fix or fenen heads age. and ten hands, all holding divers things, one a Serpent, another a Bird, a third a Flower, &c. There are some Monasteries in which line men of holy life, immured within their houles that Anchorete. they cannot goe our whiles they hue, and haue victuals every day brought them. There are innumerable, like our Friars, which goe vp and downe the Citie. They have a cuftome, when Friars. one of their kindred dyes, to clothe themselues in white many dayes male of Corton, their gar- White mour-ments are made long to the ground with wide sleeues. They wile Printing of their Books, which ners. he thought formewhat like those I shewed him at M. Thomas Guntos printing house. Their Ci- Printing. tie is fortified with a thick wall, within filled with earth, able to carry four Carts abreft, with Lorineasion.

6C Towres and Artillary as thick as those of the great Turke. The Ditch is wide and drie, but they can make it runne with water at their pleafure. They have a kind of very great Oxen with : he and c vit long, than and with hayre. The Cataians and Idolaters are forbidden to goe out of their Count tell of the tries, to goe on merchandife thorow the World.

Beyond the Delart about Corassan to Samarcand, and till the Idelatrons ( ities the I-Collar rebanks and luggling knaues.

The lessbas or rule, which are Tartars, Musulmans, wearing greene sharpe Turbants of felt, so making a different Green-bead rence betwixt them and the Persians, which weare them red and betwixt them two for diverfitie of opinions in Religion are continual warres, and difagreement about their Confines. Booms and Samarcand are two Cities of these Green-heads, each a Signorie of it selfe. They have chimia, Simia, three particular sciences, (himia (in the same sense as here) Limia, to make and cause love, and Simia, to make men see that which is not. The moneys which they have are not Coyned, but euery Gentleman and Merchant makes thin rods of gold and filuer, as is before faid of Campion Prating moun- and Succeir. In the market place of Compion are enery day many Mountebankes which have that science of Simia, which compassed with a great multitude present strange sights, asto cause a man to cut off his arme, or thrust himselfe thorow with a sword, and seeme to bee all to bloudy, with other like.

CHAP. X.

A Treatise of China and the adiopning Regions , written by GASPAR DA CRVZ 4 Dominican Friar, and dedicated to SEBAS-TIAN King of Portugall : here abbreuiated.

· of Camboia and the Bramenes there; the cause of his going to China : of China and the neighbouring Regions.

Camboia. Champa.

Being in Malaca building an house of my Order, and preaching, was informed that in the Kingdome of Camboia (which is subject to the King of Siam, and lyeth toward the parts of China, and doth confine with Champa, whence commeth to the most precious Calambach) was great oportunitie to preach the Gospell, and to reape some fruit. Having leave of my Prelate, I tooke the journey in hand.

And after the passing many troubles and hunger in the journey, with dangers and ficknesses, I came a land, and after I had reasonably informed my selfe by a third person, conversing with the People and with the Fathers, even before I knew it I found all to the contrary of that which they had told, and that all were deceits of the simple Laytie, which of light matters were mooued to prefume of the people that which was not in them. And besides this, I found many him-King of cam- derances for the obtayning of my defires and intent; for first, the King is a Bramene, and the bisa a Bramenes are his principall men and his fauourites, and most familiar, because they are Witches, for they are much given to bee pleased with witchcrafts, and they doe nothing without con- to fulting the Witches and Bramenes that are in the Kingdome (for by this meanes they thrine) by the Deuill. And to the first thing that the King asked me, was if I were a Witch.

Probar missur. Praiocuffur.

Men aliue

The Bramenes doe worship among others one God, which they call Probar missur (which they faid made the Heauens and the Earth; and another God, which they call Pralocusar, this also having obtayned power of another which they call Praisfur, for to give this licence to Probar millur) and I hewed them, that not onely he had not made the Heaven and the Earth, but that hee had beene a very wicked man and a great finner : wherefore these Priests said, that they would worship him no more, having worshipped him thitherto with their God Praput prasar metri: whereupon the hatred of the Bramenes increased towards me, and from thence forward I had disfauours of the King, which was mooued for the zeale of his God, and the God of his Bra- 10 menes. There met about these matters, the Priests of the Idols, and all of their troupe, which goe for Priests, and hold themselues for religious men, and in their conversation and life they are separated from all other people, which to my thinking is the third part of the people of the Land; the King thereof fetting an hundred thousand men in the field. This religious people, or that holds it felfe for fuch, are exceedingly proud and vaine, and aline they are worthipped for gods, in fort that the interiour among them doe worship the superiour like gods, praying vnto them and proftrating themselues before them : and so the common people haue a great confidence in them, with a great renerence and worship: in fort that there is no person that dare contradict them in any thing, and their wordes among them are held for fo facred, that in no wife they will endure to be gainfayed. Infomuch that it hapned fometimes whiles I was preaching, 60 many round about me hearing me very well, and fatisfying themselves of that which I said vnto them; if there came any of these Priests, and faid this is good, but ours is better, they would all depart and leaue me alone. Further, they being very ignorant prefumed to be very wife, and the common people did hold them for fuch, all their knowledge being ignorances and Heathenith

They make seuen and twenty Heauens, some where there is meate and drinke and faire wo- Twenty seuen men whether they say all living things doe goe, even the Flea and the Lowse, for they say, that Heavensas they have foules, that they must live in the other World. And to these, they say, all doe goe that are not R. ligious men as they are. They place others higher, whether they tay, their holy Priets doe goe that live in the Wildernesses, and all the selicitie they give them there, is to set refreshing themselves with the wind. They place others yet higher, the gods of the which, they fay, have round bodies like Bowles, those which goe to these Heavens, and the honour w. ich they give them is, to give them round bodies as the Gods themselves have. And even as they Thirteene make many Heatiens, lo they doe many Hels, for they make thirteene, to the which they goe Hels. to according to the grieuouinefie of the finnes of every one, eyther higher or lower.

They have a divition of their religious men, for some they call Massacraches, which are as Massacraches fupreame, which fit about the King : others they call Nascendeches, which are as our Bishoppes Nassendeches, here. Thefe fit equall with the King. Othersthey call Mitires, which are in the common de- Mitires. gree of Priests, which do sit under the King : under the which there are yet two degrees, which they call Charnizes and Sazes. And all these they ascend in degree, so they doe in vanitie and pride, and are more reuerenced. Befides all this, there is another very great inconvenience, that except the Priests and all those that holds themselves for Religious men, all the rest are slaves of the King, and when the owner of the House dyeth, all that is in it returneth to the King, and let the Wite and Children hide what they can, and begin to feeke a new life; the people of the 20 Countrey is of such a nature, that nothing is done that the King knoweth not : and any bodie be he never to fample may speake with the King; wherefore every one feeketh newes to carry vnto him, to have an occasion for to speake with him : whereby without the Kings good will nothing can be done, and wee have already shewed before, that hee is vinwilling to the matter of Chrifinitie. To these things was joyned some disorders of the Portugals, so that by all meanes I found croffes and inconveniences for to obtayne my defires and my pretence; wherefore I having beene in the Countrey about a yeare, and feeing I could make no fruit befide the paffing of grienous ficknesses, I determined to leave this Countrey, and because they told mee many things of China, and the people of it to have a disposition to Christianitie, and that they loued reason, I determined, seeing in this Countrey I did no goo 1, nor baptized more then one Gentile, which I 30 left in the Caue, to goe to China in a ship, of China which was then in the Countrey; in which they carryed me with a very good will, giving me the best roome in the hip, not taking any interest of me; yea, they dealt very charitably with me. This name China is not the proper name of the people of this Countrey, nor of the Countrey it felfe, neither is there commonly in the Countrey notice of fuch a name, onely among all the people of India, and among those which dwell in the South parts, as in Malaca, Stam, laoa, this denomination of Chinas goeth current, and also among those Chinas which doe traffique among vs. The proper name of the Countrey is Tame, the e. not well pronounced, but almost drowning it: and the name of * As this word the people of the Countrey is Tamgin, whence this name China doth come, which is currant a- Tame in English mong the strangers we know not, but it may be conjectured, that the people which in old time

40 did layle to those parts, because they passed by the Coast of a Kingdome, which they call Canchin-china, and traffique in it, and victuall, and take refreshings there for the Journey of the Countrey that lyeth forward, which is that of China, in the which Kingdome they live after the manner of the Chinas, and is subject to the Chinas, it fremeth, that omitting Cauchin, from the denomination of this other Kingdome, they called all the Countrey that lyeth along

China is a great part of Scychia; for as Herodotiu faith, Scythia extendeth it felfe vinto India, which may be understood, because the Chinas did possesse many parts of India, and did conquet them of old time, whereof at this day there are some Monuments, as in the Coast of Choramandell, which is towards the Coast of the Kingdo me of Narsinga, on that side which we call Saint Thome, because there is a House built by the Apostle, and the Relikes of his bodie. There 50 is at this day a great Temple of Idols, which is a marke for the Nauigators to know the Coaft which is very low, the which as the men of the Countrey affirme, was made by the Chinas, of whom there remayned among them a perpetuall memory, and therefore they call it Pagode, of the Chinas, which is to fay, Temple of the Chinas. And in the Kingdome of Callecut, which is the head of M. lanar, there be very ancient fruit-trees which the men of the Countrey fay The Tartarsta. were planted by the Chinas, and on the shoales of Chilao, which doe runne from the Iland of ther let forth Ceplan, toward the Coast of Cheromandel, is affirmed, by the men of the Countrey, a great Ar- ne to these Exmy of the Chinas to be cast away which came for India, which was lost, because the Chinas were plains as in Pobut young in that Nauigation. And so the men of the Countrey say the Chinas were Lords of lo you reade. all Iaoa, and of Iautana, which is the Kingdome of Malaca, Siam, and of Chapaa, as it is com-60 monly affirmed in those parts: wherefore some doe affirme, many of this people to bee like the Chinas, that is, having small eyes, flat notes, and long faces, for the great commixture that the like. But the King of China seeing that his Kingdome went to decay, and was in danger by owne Kingdome, making a publike Edict under paine of death that none of the Countrey should fayle out of the Kindome of China: the which lafteth to this day. Liquos an Iland The Liquos are not continued with mayne Land, but it is an Iland which standeth in the Sta of China, little more or leffe then thirtie leagues from China it felfe. In this Iland line thefe people, which is a well disposed people, more to the white then browne. It is a cleanly and well attyred people; they drelle their haire like women; and tye it on the fide of their head, fastened with a filter bodkin; their grounds are plentifull of many and good waters; it is a people that fayle very seldome being in the middest of the Sea. They weare good shore Swords, they were in times past subject to the Chimas, with whom they had great connertation, therefore are very to like the Chinas. Now this Iland remayning to the Sea from China, as we have faid, the Ceaftor China runneth, winding from the Prounce of Cantano, and from her Coaft vnto the Coaft of the Promince of Nanguin, whether to the Portugals have fayled, the Coast making neuera point as the Maps doe make, the which may be feene well pointed in the Sea-cards and in the their feeking to conquer other strange Countreyes, he with-drew himselfe with his men to his

Chinas had with all of them, especially with them of laon, which commonly are more China-

Maps made among the Portugals.

The Tartars are reckoned among the Scythians, and runne fo far along China, with the which it hath continuall Warre, that commonly they affirme to have betweene the Chinas and the Tag. tariant, a Wall of an hundred leagues in length. And some will affirme to bee more then a hundred leagues : the first King Jome that doth confine with it on the Sea-fide of India, is one that is called Canchin-china, which hath about an hundred leagues little more or leffe a long the Sea-10

Last, or Siones

coast, the Sea maketha great entrance betweene it and the lle Daman, which is of fiftie leagues in length, and is already of the China: and in the end of this entrance this Kingdome abutteth with the Kingdome of China, and is subject to the King of China. The people of this Kingdome in their Habit, Policie, and Gouernment, doe vie them selves like the people of China. The Countrey is much inhabited and of much people, it is also a very plentifull Countrey. They have the same Writing that the Chinas have, although their speech be divers. Beyond this Kingdome of the Cauchin-chinas, lyeth another very great Kingdome, which runneth within the Land along China, which some doe call Lass, and others Stones, Maons: this by the otherside towards India, doch confine with the Kingdome of Cambon, and with the great Kingdome of Syam, and with the rich Kingdome of Pegu, with all the which Kingdomes it hath Traffique: 3 in fort that there remay eth to this Kingdome towards the Sea of India, all the Coaft of Pega, vato the ends of the Kingdome of Champaa, which doth confine with Cauchin-china. And is there remayne to thele Laos toward the lide of the Indian Sea, the great Kingdome of Pegu, the Kingdome of Tanagarin, and that of Quedaa, and that of Malaca, and the Kingdomes of Pa, of Patane, of Syam, of Camboia, and of Champaa which abutteth vpon the Cauchin-chinas This Kingdome of the Lass, or Sions Maons, was fubdued by the Bramas (of the which we will speake presently) in the yeere of fiftie fixe, and among some which they brought captine to Pegg ther brought some (hinas which the Lass held Captines, as one George Mello affirmed vnto met, which went for Captayne of the Voyage to Pegu. And though commonly there be no Warres betweene these Lass and the Chinas, because of the great Mountaynes that are betweene them, 40 on the which the Chinas have good forces on that tide in the Province of Camfi, which doth confine with these and with the Bramas: and in the forces they have continually men in Garrifon for the defence of those parts: there bee notwithstanding, continually assults on the one fide and of the other : whereby the Lass might have some Chinas captine. Before that these Lass were subdued by the Bramas, they carryed to Sion, to Camboia, and to Pegu some very good Muske and Gold, whereof is affrmed to be great stere in that Countrey, and these people having Muske, makes a conjecture the great store of Muske which the China have, they get it from the many healts that are in the Confines of this Kingdome in the Province of Camf, from whence they bring it. The Muske is the flesh and bloud of certayne beasts, which they say, to be as bigge as Foxes, 50 the which beaten with flrokes and killed, they tye the skinne with the flesh together in lumps, the which they cut after the flesh is rotten, and so they fell it, which the Portugals do call Muske Cods. And when it commeth fresh, presently it appeareth to be rotten flesh and bloud : the rest they fell loofe, holding these Cods for the finer Muske. Returning to the Lass, whereof we were fpeaking, these be the Wares which they brought to the about-laid Kingdomes, carrying in returne Cotton-clothes and other things they had need of. This people is not very browne, they weare their haireall cut round vinderneath, and all the rest aboue russled, raysing it many times voward with their hands, that it remayneth to them like a Cap, and ferueth in Head of one, for they weare nothing on their heads; they goenaked from the middle vpward, and from the hips downward, they weare certayne Cotton-clothes girt about them all white: the women goe covered from the brefts to the halfe legge: they have their faces fome-what like the China, they 60 haue the same Heathenish Ceremonies that the Pegus and Siones, and the Cambrias: The Prichs of their Idols doe weare yellow clothes girt about as the rest of the people, and a certayne manner of yellow Copes, with certayne folds and feames in which they hold their Superflitions.

Muske what

Of this people I faw many in Camboia, which remayned there the yeere before by the way of Traffique, and that yeare that I was there, they came not because of the Warres, wherein(as I (aid) they faid they were fubdued by the Bramas. Thele Lass came to Camboia, downe a River many daies Journie, which they fay, to have his beginning in China, as many others which runne into the Sea of India: it hath eight, fifteene. and twentie fathome water, as my felfe faw by experience in a great part of it : it paffeth through many vinknowne and defirt Countries of great Woods and Forrests, where there are innumerable Elephants, and many Buffes, of which I law many wild in that Countrie, and Me- River of the 716. which is like a good Mule, and certayne beafts which in that Countrie they call Badas: of Last. To the which the Male have a pointleffe and blunt Horne in their fore-head, and fome of the Mermare Hornes are spotted with singular colours, and others all blacke, others of a waxe colour, but they kind of wild haue no vertue, but only for the Hemorroides, or Piles : and after the Elephant there is no other Bades are the greater beaft; the haire of it is browne and footed like an Elephant, the head like a Cow, and it Rhinocerores: hath a great lumpe of flesh that falleth vpon his head, whereof I did eate trauelling in those by the forepares. There are also many other wilde Beaftes. There bee some Thorny Trees, like Limons head vaderand Oranges , and many wilde Grapes through the Woodes. When these Lass doe returne to their Countrie, going against the streame, they goe in three moneths. This River cauis lower three feeth a wonder in the Land of Camboia, worthy of reciting. Comming neere to a place which the forchead. they call Chudurmuch, which is twelue leagues from the principall Citie of Camboia, it maketh Chudurmuch. 20 a passage to another River which commeth from a great Lake, that is in the vetermost parts of Camboia, and hath Siam, on the other fide : in the middeft of the which his bigneffe being great, Laste, yee can fee no Land on neither-fide, and this River paffeth by Locob, which is the principall Citie of Cambona, vnto Chudurmuch: the waters of this River, which is also verie great, the most of them doe passe to the River that commeth from the Last, neere to (budarinuch, and the rest doe run downe the River directly to the Sea, when the great Winter floudes doe come, which happen when it raines not in the Countries of Camboia. The many waters which doe come by Siller the River that commeth from the Laos, which there they call Sifter, doe make a paffage right against Chudurmuch, to the River that passeth through Loceh , with so great furie , that where the waters of Lorch did run downward, by multitude of the other that entreth into it, they are fresh Ruer 30 turned backe and run vpward with a great current : in fort that it ouerfloweth all the Countrie running vp of Camboia, whereby all the Countrie is not travelled in the time of these flouds, but in Boates, without Seaand they make their Houses all with high lofts, and underneath they are all overflowne, and force; fometimes these flouds are so high, that they are forced to make higher Roomes with Canes to keepe their houshold-stuffe in, and to lodge themselves. This River runneth vpward from July to September, and with the passing from the River that commeth from the Lass, (or from the River Sifter, which is his proper name) of fo many waters to the River of Loech, it doth not leaue his running to the Sea, making below verie great armes, and goeth verie high ouer-flowing many Countries downward, but not fo much as aboue. The Portugals did shew mee in Losch a field, a great hill of Earth, ouer the which they affirmed that in the time of the flouds a great 40 thip that was made in the Countrie did passe without touching, which thip might well have fay-led from India to Portugall.

Beyond these Lass, follow the Brames, which is a great people, and very rich of Goldand Precious stones, chiefly of Rubies. It is a proud Nation and valiant, these are now Lords of Pegs, which subdued it by force of Armes some yeares before they subdued the Lass, they are men of good complexion, and well made, they are browne. They have Pegu and part of Bengala toward the Sea of India. It is a Countrey very scarce of victuals, they apparell themselves as we faid of the Lass, but that their clothes are fine, and many do weare them painted or wrought: they are also somewhat like the Chinas in the faces, they have very rich and gallant shippings garnished with Gold, in the which they sayle in the Rivers: they vse Veffels of Gold and of 50 Siluer, their Houses are of Timber very well wrought, the Kingdome is very great, they have not commonly warre with the Chinas, because of the great Mountaynes that are betweene the one and the other, and because the Chinas are well fortified on that fide : notwithstanding this, fometimes there are Robbers on the one fide, and the other that doe make affaults, whereby the Chinas haue some Bramas Captines, as some Portugals which were Captines in those parts, which faw them did affirme, and did speake with them in the great Citie of Camsi: and these flames told them, that from thence it was not very farre to Brama, and that in Pegu, they had feene Portugals.

There followeth along the China beyond the Bramas, the KingJome of the Patanes, which The Patanets now are Lords of Bengala, and after them the Mogores. Beyond these Mogores there runneth along the China, the Tartarians, which doe extend themselves from Mogor to the Lake Meotis and the River Thanais, which is a very great Kingdome and of much and innumerable people. This people are commonly red and not white, they goe naked from the waite vpward, they eate raw fielh, and anoint themselves with the bloud of it : whereby commonly they are flinking and have an ill fent.

Wall of thing, of the Chinas, and as I have faid the Chinas have an hundred leagues (others faying there are more) of a Wall betweene them and the other, where are continually Garrisons of men for the defence of the entries of the Tartarians. It may bee beleeved that this Wall is not continued, but that some Mountaynes or Hils are intermixt betweene ; for a Lord of Persia affirmed to me, that the like Workes were in some parts of Persia, with intermixing some Hils and Mountaynes.

An old man of China did affirme vinto me, that fometimes when they came against the Countries of China, if the wind stood on that fide where they came, they were difcerned by their

See Pinto.

* Here fol-

fion of the

their Ciries,

It was affirmed to the Portugals which were Captines, and in Prifon in their Dungeons, in the yeare 1 eco. that fome yeares there is Truce betweene the Chinas and the Tartarians : and in the Tatterian rodes fame yeare the Tartarians made a great entry in China, in the which they tooke a very principall Citie from them : but a great number of people of the Chinas comming and belieging the Citie, and not being able to enter it by force of Armes, by the Councell of a man of low degree, they had a meanes whereby they killed them and their Horses, and remayned Lords againe of the Citie. The same Portugals which afterward were set at libertie, affirmed, that all the Priloners made great Feasts, and made a great stirre when the Tartarians made this entry, with the hope of being fet at libertie by the meanes of the Tartarians, if they did pol-

In the Citie of Cantan I faw many Tartarians Captines, which have no other captinitie then to ferue for men at Armes in other places farre from Tartarie, and they weare for a difference red Caps, in all the reft they are like the Chinas with whom they line : they have for their maintenance a certayne stipend of the King, which they have paid them without faile. The Chinas lowed the diui- call them Tatos, for they cannot pronounce the Letter r. Aboue the Lake where Thanais hath his beginning, they doe confront with the skirts of high Almayne , although on the fide of Europe, Countrey into and betweene them and Almayne are Hils that doe disside them: and of these people of the shires of King skirts of the Mountaines, the Chinas fay that the King of Chinas hath many men of Warre in 30 pay, that doe keepe the weake passages and the Wals on the side of the Tartarians: and say, &c. which wee they are great men with great Beards, and weare cut Hose, and Caps, and blunt Swords, and referre to later a Portugall that was carryed captine the Land inward, told me that he heard the Chinas fay, that and better In- they called their . Alimenes.

> Cantan described; the publike and private buildings and Government. The shipping and Husbandry of China; their contempt of the. idle, and provision for impotent

Eing to intreate of the Citie of Cantan, I give first a warning to the Readers, thatamong many Noble Cities, Cantan is one leffe Noble then many of China; and fante inferiour in building then many other: although it be more populous then many; this is faid by all them that faw it, and trauelled within the Land, where they faw many other. This aduice presupposed, it is to be noted, that Cantan in his compasse, is of very strong Wals, very well made, and of a good height, and to the fight they feeme almost new, beeng eighteene hundred yeares since they were made, as the Chinas did affirme: they are very cleane 50 without any cleft, hole, or rift, or any thing threatning ruine. They are of free flone about a mans height, and from thence vpward of brickes made of a clay like vnto that of the Porceline Dishes, whence it causeth them to bee so strong, that I building a Chappell in Malaca, one of thete (which was brought from China) could (carfly bee broken with a good Pick-axe, Iointly with this there is in this Citie and in all the reft an Officer of the King which onely hath care to ourr-fee the Wals, for the which he hath a good fupend. And every yeare when the Governour of the Borders commeth to visit the Prouince, hee doth visit this as well as the other Offcers, to know if he doth well his Office, and finding him in any fault, or negligence, hee is put from his Office, and punished. And if he standeth in need of any expence for the mending of the Walls, the Ouer-feer of the Rents is bound to give him that which is necessarie, ander paine, 60 that if the mending remayneth yndone, he shall bee well punished. For this cause the Wals of all the Cities are continually kept found and in good reparation. These Walles are within the Citie little more then the walke of the same Citie in their height, which is the cause of beeing much more cooler. The Wals have in compaffe 12250, paces, and it hath eighty three Bulwarks.

CHAP. 10.5.2. Large description of Cantan a Citie of China.

This Citie (and fo all thereft) hath on the one fide the River, along the which, as well this as the reltate built almost in a Valley; and on the other side they have a Ditch full of water of a Town duch. good breadth, betweene the which and the wall remayneth a good diffance where there may runne together a good troupe of people, and the Earth that was taken out of the Ditch, was call betweene it and the wall, whereby the foot of the wall remayneth a great deale higher then the other ground. Besides the dirch, notwith standing, this wall hath a great blemish, for it hath on the contraridfide to the Riner without the wals, and the ditch a little, Hillocke that difcouereth all the Citie within the wals.

This wall bath feven gates : the entries of the which are sumptious and high , strong and The Cates. To well mades watte Pinacles aboue, not square but made like steps. The other places of the wals have no Pinacles: the wall at the entring of the gates is twelve paces thicke : the gates ate all oner plated with Iron, and all of them have their draw-bridges very ftrong, which are alwayes Draw-bridges. vp, and are never let downe, but are ready against they be needfull: all the gates at the entrings have Courts, and the Courts that are toward the fide of the Suburbs, which lyethalong the Ri- Gate courts. tuer have every one three gates, one in the front and two on the fides, which remayne for the fervice of the to that ye along the wall, the wall of the Courts are almost of the height of them within ; the gate which is in the front in the Court, is like vnto that of the wals within : it hath alfo 4 draw bridge; the gates which are in the fide of the Courts are smell. The Courts that are on the other-fide of the field where no Suburbe is , have no more but one gate , and this not 20 right against that of the wills, but stand on the one side: the freets of the Citie are all drawne by a Line very straight without any manner of making a nooke or winding: all the croffe wayes are as firaight as the firests : in fort that there is neyther fireet nor traverie that maleth any tur- Strait fireets ning. All the threets and traueries are very well paued, the pauements going along the Houses, and paued. and lower in the middeft for the course of water; the principall freetes have triumphant Atches which doe croffe them, high and very well made, which make the ffreets very beautifull. and enoble the Citie: the principall streets have along the Houses close Portals, in the which and under the Arches many things are fold.

The Houses of them which rule the Countrey, are at the entrings very semptuous, with high Houses of Mar Portals, great and well wrought of Malons worke: they have in the fore-front very great gates giftrates, 30 like the gates of a Civic; with two Giants painted with Clubs in their hands ! Haw foure in one Pagode, (which is a Temple of Idols) drawne naturally from fome, which they fay, the King hath to keepe his weaked passages from Tartaria. They are of great members, of about tweloc or thirteene spans high. On the street side it hath right against the principall Porch a " receite not very great. It hath built along the street a good wall of a good height right against the Court. gate, that when the gate is open they that are within may not be gazed on by them that goe by the fireet: this gate ferueth not, neither is it opened but for dispatching of matters of luffice, and the principal of the House goe in and out at them; and others that are as honourable or more then they : at the one fide of this principall gate is another very great gate, but not fo big as the principall, which is for the feruice of the House, and of the Prisoners when the principal 40 gate is shut : and when this principall gate is shut , they set a glued Paper crosse over both the leaues, on which is written the name or firme of the principall of the House, and for to open it againe, an Officer of the House bringeth the same firme or marke on a playstered board to the Porter; that hee may open it, without the which token hee may not open it vnder a great

Entring by this gate, there is a great Court and almost square, which is almost a Horse-race, and it hatha Gallery little lelle then the length of the gate, which leadeth straight from the gate to a very great Table that stands at the end of the Court, the which is all paued with square stones with leanings as high as a mans waste, and it is high in the entry of the gate, and there Sandrie of remayneth onely one step in the end of it to the Table, and the course in the sides of the Galle- Cours, and re-50 ty is low, that they goe downe to it by steps: this Gallery of the middest is of such respect a- his b Magimong them, that in no wife it is lawfull for any one to palle through it, but onely some of the strate. chiefest of the House, or others as great or greater then they; and those that goe to nego iate with the Officer of the Houle when they enter in at the gate, they must goe presently to one side, going downe to the Court which hath very great Trees for shaddow, and they goe up againe by Heps vnto the Table about faid, which is at the end of the Court, which is very great. In the end of this Table in all his length there is a step, and within the step a very great walke, all paued with square stones as the Table without it, and very high and all wrought with Mafons worke : in the middest of it leaning to the wall of the front are two Chaires, with two Tables before them, a little distant the one from the other, one of them, which stands on the 60 left hand, serueth for the Gouernour of that house, and that of the right hand is void, for if there should come another of a higher dignitie then hee, to sit him downe. To every one of the sides there are two spaces which runne behind this Gouernour, and are of a good breadth, having placed along the ides of these two spaces in energy one fine Chaires with fine Tables before them, and as the distance from them to the principall Governour is good, they remayne though behind, in light of the principal! Gouernour. Their feree for ten Affiltanes which are with the principal pall at the dispatching of waightie matters. From these Galleries inward are great hodgings. as well for the Gouernour of the House, as for the Assistants, and for all the other Ministers and Officers of the House, which are many, as we will thew in their place.

On every fide of the Court are very great Prisons and great Longings, as well for the lay. lours (which alio are of great authoritie) as for the Watches that watch by night and by day, but neither their Prilons nor the Chambers of the Ministers of thein, nor the Lodgines of the chiefe of the House are seene outward, for they are served of all things, the doores that and bank continually their Porters. There are in Comen toure of these Houses for foure principall Officers, and in euery Pronince in the Citie, that is, the Head of the Pronince there are size of there on Houses an Cantum there are but foure; for as the Governour of Cantan is also Governour of Cant he is not refident in Cantan, but in a Citie that is in the Borders of one of the Prouinces, that the recourse in the Affaires of both the Prouisces may be the easier. Besides, these principall Houles of the chiefe Gonernours, there are many other in Cantan, the which though they bee not of fo great Maieflie as they, they are not withfranding very great, of other inferiour Officers, and chiefly those of the chiefe laylour which are very great. There is on the wals of Cantan, on the contrary fide of the River a high Towre all close behind, that they which are in it may not bee feene, nor gazed on from the Hillocke or Mountaforefaid, that was without the wals, and it is built in length along the wall, to that it is longer then broad, and it is all made in Galleries very fumptuous, from whence they discouer all the Cicie, and the Marshes and Fields beyond the to Riner, which serueth for the recreation of them that rule. In the other Cities are fuch buildings which lenue for recreation, many and very fumptuous, and of fingular building.

The Houses of the common people in the outward flow, are not commonly very faire, but Primatehouser, within are much to be admired, for commonly they are white as Milke, that they feeme like fleeked Paper, they are paued with square stones : along the ground; of a spanne little more or leffe, they are dyed with Vermilion, or almost blacke; the Timber is all very smooth and even and finely wrought and placed, that it feemeth to be all polished, or dyed, or in white, and fome there is in white to faire and pleasant to the fight, wanted Damaske-like, as it were Gold, and so bright that they should doe it injurie in painting it. I confesse, in truth, that I never faw fo fine Timber as that. It hathafter the House that is at the entrie , a Court with folices of finall po Trees; and Bowers with a faire little Fountayne : and then at the entring of the Foule where the women doe with-draw themselves, it hath a certaine manner of a Gallery open before towards the Court, where they have verie great Cubbeards finely wrought; which takes the one fquare of the House, in the which they have their Oratories, and Gods made of Wood, or of Clay: these Oratories are more or lesse curious according to the abilitie of euerie one : all the Houses are tiled with very good Tiles, better, and of more continuance then ours : for besides, they being well made, they are of verie good Clay: those which receive the water are broad and short, and the uppermost that close, the other are narrower, and at the ends toward the street fide, they are garnished with fine Workes made of Lime : for many yeares they have no need to be tiled againe, for as the Clay is very good, they are not fo mouldring as ours, or fo rough, but 40 they are very smooth and warme, and beging so well set they breed no sithinesse. There bee many Houses faire within, and very few with Lofts, the most are low Houses.

Temple and

Victuals,

Suburbes.

Pinacleon the top. The Suburbes without are very great and of many Houses, in such fort that fome Portugals would have compared them in bigneffe with them of Lifton , but to mee and to others they feemed leffe, though they bee bigger and of more Houses then the Citie within the wals. It is very populous, and the people is so much, that at the entring of the gates on the Riuer fide yee can scarce get through. Commonly the people that goeth out and in , doe cry and make a great noyfe to give place to them that carrie burthens. And the Rulers of the Citie com- 50 manding to enquire what victuals were spent enery day, it was found to spend only fine or sixe thouland Porkes, and ten or eleven thouland Duckes; besides which, they eate great store of Beeues and Buffes, and many Hens, and an infinite deale of fish, whereof the Markets and streets are full, and many Frogs and Shel-hift, great store of Fruits and all other Pulse. Hereby little more or leffe may be seene what people are in Caman, and whether it may bee compared with The Houses of the Suburbes are like those of the wals within; the streetes are so well and le-

They have in the middest of the Citie a Temple of Idols with high Towres, the wals of the

which we will speake of hereafter : they have their Melquit with Alegran very high with his uelled by Line as those within, and all for the most part paued also, and some of them are verie broad, and haue triumphant Arches, but very few. Some freets, as well without as within the wals, on the one fide and the other along the Houses, have Trees for to make sha lowes, In all the ftreets of the Suburbs at the ends of them are gates with special Porters, whose Office is to 69 locke them every night under paine of fore punishment, and every street hath a Constable and a Tayle. He stands bound, either to yeeld the Malefactor which by night doth any harme in the ffreet, are to pay for it; wherefore all the ffreets have every night a watch, the Neighbours diunding themselves in quarters : and they make every night fixe quarters or watches, and for a Watches, figne that they are awake, in enery fireet they found a Drumme, where they have all the night a Lanthorne with a light. The gates of the Citie are thut as foone as it is night, and on the two leaues is fet a paper, with the chiefe Captaines marke on every one of them, and they are opened with the Sunne, with a token from the fane Captaine to them all, with his marke written Here followed on a white boord. Euery gate hath a Captaine, a very honelt man, and euery one hath certaine much of other

Souldiers, which continually doe watch every one of the Gates by day and by night. In some Cities the water runneth almost thorow every street, and on the one side and the cause the Au-

In fome Ciries the water runneth almost thorow every street, and on the one one not and the other of the freet are Tables made of flone, for the common fertice of the people; and the other of the freet are Tables made of some of the people of the other of the people of the other of the people of the other of the people of To row all the fireets are very good and well wrought Bridges to passe from one side to another: not, but received his intelliand thorow the middest of the streets is great trafficke by water that goe from one place to an gence from Pen other. In those places whereby the water entreth into the Citie, they have made in the walls reta, I referre very good gates, which have very firong Iron grates for to flut by night : and the most of the youtohim, very good gates, which have very mrong from grates for to make by might a find the robust freets to the land inward are very well pused with frone, and (where is no flone) with small Other course freets to the land inward are very well pused with stone, and (where is no flone) with small Other course tyle. In all the Mountaines and Hills where there are wayes, they are very well made, cut with High wayes, the Pick-axe, and paued where they are needfull. This is one of the good works of China, and it is very generall in every place of it. Many Hills on the fide of the Bramas, and of the Lass, are cut in steps, very well made; and in the height of the Hill is made a low place, very well cut; in the which is a very high Towre, which about doth equall with the highest of the Mountain. 20 which is very ftrong, the wall of one of the Towres was measured at the entring of the gates.

and it was fixe fathome thicke and an halfe. There are on this fide many of these workes, and so there may be in other places. I heard of a Gentleman of credit, called Galiste Perera, Bro. Galiste Perera ther to the chiefe Iustice of Arrayolos, which abode in Canfi, being Captine, that ( with the houses of these kinsmen of the King, being so many and so great) the Citie was so bigge that hoofes of thefe kinimen of the Airg, poing to many a very little show in it: and so he had it it seemed they occupied very little of it, and make a very little show in it: and so he had it it seemed they occupied very little of it, and make a very little show in it: and so he had it written in a Rudder of his, whence I tooke a great deale * of that which is heere spoken of : written in a Rudder of his, whence I tooke a great usaic or that which is necre ipowen in the free that the greatnesse of the Citie did hide in it selfe the multitude and greatnesse of the countries.

As in the Countrey there is great flore of Timber and very cheape, and much Iron and cheap,

30 and it is very good, there are infinite number of thips and thippings; for through the Country Store of thips are infinite Groues of Firre trees, and other trees, whereby it is easie for any one though of a ping. little fubitance, to make a ship and have shippings, and this causeth the great profit and gayne that is of them with the necessitie the Countrey hath of them : for it hath not onely a great number of Ilands along ft the coait, but also a very great coast where they Nauigate: and besides this, all China wi hin is natigated, and runne through Riters which doe cut and water it all. which are many and very great. So that yee may fay le to the ends of the Land, and goe in thippings. Any Capraine along the coast may in a little spice scyne two hundred, three hundred, even to a thousand ships, if hee stand in need for to fight. And there is no small Townealong the River that is not plentifull in small and great ships. Along the Citie of Cantan, more then

40 halie a league off the River, is so great a multitule of shipping, that it is a wonderfull thing to fee them, and that which is most to wonder, is that, that this multitude neuer decreaseth nor fayleth almost all the yeere: for if thirty, forty, or an hundred goe forth oneday, as many doe come in againe the next: Ifay, the multitude never to diminish nor fayle, for though sometime there be more, some lesse, alwaies there remaynesh a maruellous multitude; and that which is more, all those that goe forth, goe laden; and all that come in, come laden; carrying goods. and bringing goods: and that which sheweth much the noblenesse of the Country, the plentie and riches thereof is, that all there ships bringing great store of merchandise of Clothes, Silkes, prouisions and other goods, some doe goe into the Land, others come from within the Land, and nothing commeth form without China, neither goeth out of it : and that which the Por- Riches of Chi-

50 tugals doe carrie, and some that they of Syam doe carrie, is so little in comparison of the great na natiche. trafficke of the Countrey, that it almost remayneth as nothing, and unperceived; feeing that out of China there goeth no more but that which the Portugals, and they of Syam doe carrie; which is as much as though they brought nothing out or China, fine or fixe thips comming laden with Silke and Porcelane: the great plentie and riches of the Countrey doth this, that it can furtayne it selfe alone: Pepper and luone which is the principall that the Portugals doe carrie, a man may well line without it, and the trafficke of merchandife that is in this Countrie, is in all the Cities within the Land, which as we have faid, are almost all built along the Rivers. The Chinas have a common speech for to shew the noblenesse of their Kingdome, that the King Prouers, of China can make a Bridge of ships from China vnto Malaca, which are neere fine hundred

60 leagues, the which though it feemeth it cannot be, yet by Metaphor it fignifieth the greatnette or China, and the multitude of flips that of it felte it can make.

The great ships they call lunks; besides which there are ships for warre, made like great ships, lunkes for war to the which they make great Fore-catiles and high, and likewife abafte, to fight from them:
Ship-fights, insuch manner that they ourt-matter their adversaries, and because they vie no Ordnance, all NoOrdnance.

They vie

the first on-let they cast a great deale of Lime to blinde the aductaries, and as well from the Cattles as from the tops they cast many sharpe pikes burned at the end, which serue for Top. darts, of a very stiffe wood; they wie also great store of stone, and the chiefest they labour for, is to breake with their ships the dead workes of their aduerfaries, that they may be masters o. uer them, having them under them, and being destitute of any thing to shelter them; and as foone as they can enter, they come to the Pike or handy-blowes, for the which they have long Pikes, and broad-pointed Swords hanging at their fides. There bee other lunkes for lading of goods, but they are not so high as those of warre, though there bee some very great. All these fhips as well of warre as of burthen vie two Oares anhead: they are very great, and foure or fine 10 men doe rowe every one of them , laying them along the ship they move them with such a fleight, that they make the ship goe forward, and they helpe very much for to goe out and in at a barre, and fetting upon the enemies for to board them : they call these Oares, Liolies: in all manner of their hippings they vie the Lioflios, neither doe they vie any other manner of Oares in any kinde of thipping. There be other leffer thippings then Linkes, fomewhat long, called Bancones, they beare three O ares on a fide, and rowe very well, and loade a great deale of goods: there be other leffe, called Lanteau, which have fixe or feuen oares on a fide, which doe rowe very Iwift, and beare a good burthen also: and these two forts of sh ps, viz. Bancones and Lantess, because they are switt, the theenes doe commonly vie. The rowing of these Oares is standing, two men at enery Oare, enery one of his fide, fetting one foot forward, another backward. In 20 the lunkes goe foure, fiue, or fixe men at an Oare.

A kinde of Gailies.

They vie also certaine shippings very long , like vnto Gallies, without Oares or beake-head, which doe lade great flore of goods : and they make them fo long , because lading bringing a great burden they may tayle the better by the Rivers, which fometimes are not rough. They have many other shippings of burther, which is superfluous to tell of every one. There be many imall boats of poore people, in which are husband and wife, and children, and they have no other dwelling but in their boat in a middle decke, for defence of the Sunne, and of the raine: as also have the Bancones, and Lanteas, and others which wee faid were like Gallies, and these deckes are in such fort, that under them are very good lodgings and chambers in the great thips, in these of the poore, they are much inferiour : there they breed their Pigs, their Hennes, a and there they have also their poore little Garden, and there they have all their poore state and harbouring. The men goe to seeke worke about the Citie to helpe to maintayne their little house; the women goe in the boats, and with a long cane that reacheth well to the bottome of the River (at the end of the which is a little basket made of rods, wherewith they get shellfi.h) with their industrie, and passing of people from one side to another, they helpe to sustaine their houshold. These poore people notwithstanding doe not line so poorely and beggarly in their apparell, as those which live poorely in Portugall. There are other great shippings, wherein is the stocke of them both , which have great lodgings where they may bestow a great deale of stuffe : these have a great stocke; they have certaine Cages made all the length of the thip with canes, in which they keepe two or three thouland Duckes, more or leffe as the veffell at is: fome of these belong to Lordships, and their scruants goe in them: they feed these Duckes.

" The husthe wines buf-WI.CIT.

they have given it them, they open a doore to the River where is a Bridge made of canes, and the note they make at their going forth is wonderfull to fee them goe tumbling one over another, for the great abundance or them, and the time they take in going out; they feed all the Duck weeders day vntill night among the fields of Rice, those which are owners of the shipping doe receive a fee of them that owe the fields, for letting them feed in them, for they doe cleanfe them, eating the graffe that groweth among them. When night commeth they call with a little Taber; and though they be in fundry Barkes, every one knowes their owne by the found of the Ta- 50 ber, and goe vnto it; and because alwaies in time some remayne without that come not in, there are euery where many flockes of wilde Duckes, and likewife of Geefe. When I faw fuch 2 multitude of Duckes in every one of these Barkes, and all of one bignesse, and thinking they could not be hatched by Duckes or Hens, for if it were fo, fome would have beene bigger then some, seeing so many could not be hatched in one, two, or fifteene dayes, I was willing to know how they hatched them; and they told mee, it was in one of two forts. In Summer, laying two or three thousand Egs in the dung, and with the heate of the weather and the dung, the Egsare hatched. In the Winter, they make a Hurdle of canes very great, upon the which they lay this great number of Egges, under the which they make a flacke fire, continuing it of one fort a few dayes till the Egges be hatched. And because they are hatched in this fort, there are so many of one bignesse, and all along the River are many of these Barkes, whereby the Countries are well prouided of this food.

After it is broad day, they give them a little fodden Rice not till they have enough, when

Sie an example in l'antoia, o this mag. There are some ships wherein the Rulers doe sayle, which have very high lodgings, and within houses very well made, gilt, rich, and very sumptuous: and on the one side, and the other they have great windowes with their Nets woven of Silke, and very fine small rods set before them, that they within feeing all them without, may not bee feene of them. Toward the fide of the Lass and the Bramaes, are continually watches and wards in the Rivers in many thips, euen a whole moneths lourney in length vnto the Citie of Canfi: these ships are in the places Ships for where the Rivers make any armes, because of the many theeues which commonly are in these guard. parts, being the vttermost of the Kingdome: and because the Rivers have many armes, many ships are placed in those parts: in every place where these shippings are, there bee two small fir ps, which continually doe goe night and day from one watch to another, because they are vety iwift, and those of the great ships doe divide themselves into watches at their quarters. for to watch as well in the small as in the great ones. The ships of passage goe alwaies a great num- Fleets ber together, that they may defend themselves, one another, while the ships of warre, and the watches do come to them, and at the watch where they make night, there they flay til the morning, and by the small boats they are delivered safe to the next watch forward, and so from watch to watch they are accompanied of the small vessels till they bee set in safetie. From the Citie of Donebeo, that is, where the Gouernour of Confi and Cantan is refident, vnto the bounds of the Province of Canfi, which are places more dangerous, are continually Armadas of fortie or fiftie hips. All these watches are paid of the common Rents of the Kingdome.

China is almost all a well husbanded Countrey : for as the Countrey is well inhabited, and Industry couse people in abundance, and the men ipenders, and ving themselves very deliciously in eating and of plentie, 20 drinking, and apparell, and in the other feruices of their houses, especially that they are great eaters, every one laboureth to get a living, and every one feeketh wayes to earne their food, and how to maintayne their great expences. A great helpe to this is the idle people to bee much Idleneffe haabhorred in this Countrey, and are very odious vinto the reft, and that laboureth not shall not ted. eate, for commonly there is none that doe give almos to the Poore; wherefore, if any poore did aske almes of a Portugal and he did give it him, the Chinas did laugh at them, and in mockage Almes dense faid: why ginest thou almes to thi, which is a Knaue, let him goe and earne it : onkly some le- ded. iters have fome reward, going to fome high placegather the people, and telleth them fome fables to get fomething. The Fathers and Priests of their Idols are commonly abhorred and not effecmed, because they hold them for idle people, and the Rulers for any light fault doe not spare ac them, but giue them many stripes. Wherefore, a Ruler whipping once before a Portugal a Priest Idle Hollof theirs; and he asking him wherefore he did vie their Priests so ill, and held them in so little Priests punish effeeme, antwered him; these are idle and wretched Knaues. One day, I and certayne Portugals ed with vinus entring into the house of the Quer-seer of the goods, about the deliuerie of certayne Portagals infisce of prothat were in prilon , because the matter belonged to him, for the great profit that came thereof lers, which that were in priton, because the matter beausges to man, to the guarantees a Prieft; almost to the King, much per pole came in with vs to fee vs, among the which there was a Prieft; almost the King, much per pole came in with vs to fee vs, among the which there was a Prieft; and would part found and would part and worft part and worft

Every one laboureth to Seeke a living; for that which hee earneth hee enjoyeth freely, and and a God of fpends it as he will, and that which is left him at his death remaynes to his children and grand their goods. 40 children, paying onely duries Royall, as well of the fruits that they gather, as of the goods they deale in, which are not heavie. The greatest Tribute they have, is every married man, or that hath house by himf-ife, payeth for every person in his house two Mazes, which are fixtie Reys. that is ad, From Champaa, which as we aid, doth confine with Canchinebina vnto India, are many vnpro. Tyrannie fitable grounds, and made Wilderneffes and Woods, and the men are generally little curious to growes poore get or gather togeth r, for they neuer gayne or get fo much but it is tyrannized from them, that grownich which they have is onely theirs as long as the King lifteth, and no more. In fuch fort that as soone as the King knoweth that any of their officers hath much money, hee commandeth him to beeput in prifon, and they vie him fo hardly, that they make him cast all that hee hath gotten: wherefore there are many in those parts, that if they get any thing or money one day or one 50 weeke, they will not lab our till they confirme all that they have earned in eating and drinking, and they doe it because if any tyrannie should chance to come, they may finde nothing to take from them. From hence it commeth, as I say, that they have in India many grounds in divers places vnprofitable; which is not fo in China, for every one enjoyeth the fruits of his labour. Hence it commeth that all the ground that in China can yeeld any kinde of fruit receiving bandrie, feede, is husbanded. The high places which are not to good for Corne, have very faire Grones of Pine Trees, fowing also betweene them some Pulse where it may be : in the drie Lands and stiffe they fow Wheate and Pulle: in the Marthes which are ouetflowed, which are many and very long, they fow Rice : and some of these Marshes doe yeeld two or three Crops a yeere. Onely the Mountaynes that are high and beaten with the weather, and are not fit to plant any thing, 60 remayne ynprofitable. There is not ing loft in the Countrey bee it neuer fo v.le: for the bones, as well of Dogs as of other Beafts, they doe vie, making toyes, and with workes in flead of Iu >- Nothing left. rie, they fet them in Tables, Beds, and other faire things : they lofe not a Ragge of any qualitie, for as well of the fine as of the course, that are not of Wool, they make fine and course Paper, Paperofduers and they make Paper of barkes of Trees, and of Canes, and of faken Ragges, and in the Paper matters.

Artificiall

made of filke they write: the rest serueth for to roll betweene the pieces of filke: even the dung or men yeelds profit, and is bought for mony or in change of herbs, and they carry it from the houses : in fort that they give money or money worth, to fuffer them to cleanle their houses of office , though it imelleth enill through the Citie : when they carry it on their backs , they carry it in Tubs very cleane without, and although they goe uncourted, not wit aftanding it shew. eth the cleanlinesse of the Countrey and Cities. In some Cities these Tubs vie to goe courted

They wie in all things more flight then force, whereby they plow with one Oxe, making the Plough in fuch fashion that it cutteth well the Earth, though the furrowes are not so biggess among vs. A thip be it neuer to bigge, and haue it neuer to great a leake, the Pomps are made by to fuch a light, that one man alone fitting mouing his feet as one that goeth vp a paire of flayres, in a very little space he pomps it out : these pomps are of many pieces as a water wheele, laid a long the fide of the ship betweene rib and rib, every piece having a piece of wood of halfe a yard little more or leffe, one quarter well wrought : in the middeft of this piece of wood is a fquare little boord, almost of a hand breadth, and they joyne one piece into another in such manner as it may double well, the joynes which are all very close, whereby this manner of pompe doth run, is within of the breadth of the little boardes of enery one of the pieces, for they are all equall; and this manner of pompe bringeth io much water as may contayne betweene the two little Pupper player. boardes. The Chinas vie also Puppers, with the which they make representations. They bring vp Nighting ales in Cages which fing all the yeere, and are vied to Puppet representa- 20 tions alto.

It is a thing worth the noting, that the blinde have a labour appointed them for to get their imporent per- food, which is to ferue in a Horie-Mill like Horfes grinding Corne : and commonly where is a fons. Secof horse-mill there are two, because two going together, they may recreate themselves in talking one with another, as I faw them going about with Fannes in their hands cooling themselves, and talking very friendly. The blinde Women are the common Women, and they have Nurces that doe dresse them and paint them with Vermillion and Ceruse, and receive the wages of their euill vie. The lame and the creeple which either haue no kindred within a certayne degree, or if they have them and they doe not provide for them that which is necessarie, or are not able to belpe them, they make their Petition to the Ouer-feer of the goods of the King, and his kindred 10 being examined by his Officers, if among them are any that can maintayne them, they doe binde the neerest to take them to them to their charge and maintayne them, and if their kindred bee not able to maintayne them, or if they have no kindred in the Countrey, the Over-feer of the goods commandeth they be received into the Kings Hospitall: for the King hath in all the Cities great Hospitals which have many lodgings within a great inclosure. And the Officen of the Hospitall are bound to administer to those that are bedred all things necessarie, for the which there are fufficient Rents appointed out of the Kings Exchequor. The lame that keepe not their bed, have every moneth a certayne quantitie of Rice, with the which, and with some Hens or a Pigge, which they bring up in the Hospitall, they have fufficient to maintayne themselves, and al thefe things are very well paid without faile: and because commonly those which are recei-40 ued into these Hospitals are incurable, they receive them for life : and all those which are receiued by commandement of the Quer-feer, are enrolled, and enery yeere the Officers of the Hospitall doe yeeld account of the expenses, and of the promision of the poorelicke, and if any fault or negligence bee found in them of that which they are bound to doe, without remission they are well punished for it,

ð. III.

Of their mechanicall Trades, Merchandises and Moneyes: their provisions of Flesh and Fish; the persons and attyre of Men and Women: their Feasts.

Shoomakers.

Here are in this Countrey many workmen of all Trades, and great abundance of all things necessarie for the common vie, and so it is requirite, for the people is infinite. And because shopes are the thing that most is spent, there are more workmen of Shoo-makers then of any other Trade. In Cantan are two particular freets of Shoo-makers then of any other Trade. makers very long, one where they fell rich shooes, and of tilke, another where they fell common shooes of leather : and besides these two streets, there are many workmen scattered about 60 the Citie. The rich Bootes and Shooes, are courred with coloured tilke, embroydered ouer with twist, of very fine workes, and there be Bootes from ten Crownes, to one Crowne price, and shooes of two Crownes and thence downward, and in some places are shooes of three pence. So that the rich and the very poore may weare shooes : and the rich as they list; the shooes of three mence, or of a Riell , are of straw, and I fay of three pence, for there is money that antwersthour three peace. There bee many dich husband men , that let men by the wayes with many pichele Grawen hoses for chargoone Francilles fand ic is no wonder to hatte this charitie Almes not among shelp infidule ) for in the parts of the India are many rich Clenerit which light very great almos the fruit houses, wheteen they spend continually matchildie, giving foode to all the poste of what quanciof mercy. notice, wherein never means to the many constitution from the profession of the poor of what quaticie locars, since will come thinder tooking can't by the tweyer they have ment for the give a continually many Cappeners, and very good working to all manner of works. They have continually many Constants of their years they have continually many Constants of their years they have variabled with a very fame tannith, or him painted, or her byned with feether, and likewife of other forts. They to have concusually a great number of Charges made, forme of very fairle white wood, and other fairely gilt and filumred, very finely wrong it.

They have also Chaires scherein the Rolers are carried on mens backs through the Citic, Chaires which are very rich, of a great price and wary faire : they have another manner of Chaires, which are high, very rich and pleafant all close; with a little window on tablifide very faire with a net made of luorie, or of Bone, or of Wood, through the Which they that goe within doe fee on the one fide, and on the other of the street without bring feene; thefe ferue for to carry the Women about the Citie when they goe abroad. The feare is of the height of one of our Chaires. where they goe fitting with their legent dongth. There he many of there Chaires very rich, and of a great price ; and there are fome plante, and have Pithelies on the sope very faire : there are also 20 many bed-steads very pleasant and very rich, all close found about, of wood firely wrought.

I being in Cantan there was a rich one made wtought with hoose, and of a fweet wood. which they call Cayolague, and of Sandalam, that was prized at four hundred Crownes, and of little Boxes gilt, and Mundes, and Burkers, Daste, and Tables, all as well gift as with Silier is without mumber: Gold-fmithe, Silver-fmitises, Copper-finithe, Iron-lmithe, and of all other Trades there he many and perfect Workmen, and great abundance of things of every Trade, and very perfect. They vie inhnite Veffels of Latten: and from China they furnish all lade and Siene, with these Vessels, which in Industry sall Enterprise; and they are in every kind very petreet. They we Skillers, and Chasing-diffues, and other Vessels of east Iron, and not only they doe cast their Veilels of Iron, but after they are broken they bey them against for to re-call them. There 30 are many Merchants of precessand Clothes of Salke, because they spend many in the large Countrie, and in Siam, and there are pieces of Damaske and Taffata among themselves for rich , that they bring them not to ve because they give them not for them what they are worth within the Land : they fell alfo great flore of fine and comfe Berge of fundry cofours. There are many Silker Merchants of white and dyed Linnen cloth, for it is that which is most pent in the Countrie.

They gave men piece of Linner cloth of about ten cubits, which was valued at tenne Crownes, there is both fine and coutfe as every one will have it.

And howfoener the Porcelane which is vied in all the Countrie of Coms, and in all India is Porcelane, of common Clay; notwithflanding, there is very much courte Porcelane, and other very fine, and there is some that is lawfull to be fold commonly, for the Rulers onely vie it because it is red and 40 greene, and gilt, and yellow : tome of this is fold but very intic, and that fecretly. And because there are many opinions among the Portugals which liate not been in China, about where this Porcelane is made, and touching the substance whereof it is made, some faying, that of Oysters finels, others of dung rotten of a long time, because they were not enformed of the truth, I thought it convenient to tell here the lubflance whereof it is made, according to the trufh of Fables of it. them that faw it. The substance of the Porcelane is a white and foft Rone, and some is fedde, which is not fo fine, or in better speaking, it is a hard tlay, the which after well heating and grinding it and laying in Cifternes of water (which they have very well made of free-flone and Howitismade some playstered, and they are very cleane) and after it is stirred in the water, of the Creame that remayneth on the top they make the very fine Porcelane : and so the lower the couffer, and

50 of the dregothey make the coursest and base, which the poore people of China doe fie. They make them first as the potters doe any other vessell; after they are made, they drie them in the Sunne, and then paint them as they lift with Azure, which is fo fine as we fee : after these Pi-Stures are drie, they lay on the Glaffe, and then harden them. The principall ftreets of the Merchants, are the most principall ftreets, which have coverts on the one fide and on the other : notwithflanding, the chiefest sale of the Porcelane is in the Gates of the Cities, and enery Merchant hath at his doore written in a Table all that is fold Merchants within his shop: those which fell simples for medicines, have at their doores tyed and hang. Tables, incline a piece of strategies. There are of the agent of Polecke has it; Rhubarbe, ing in a firing, a piece of every thing. There is in China great flore of Ruberbe, but it is not Kings Cubrought to Cantan, but fodden, there is none found raw. As the goods of China are very great from the 6c and many, fo the rents which the King of China hath in every part of his Kingdome are very 1 Or Quarters.

great. Some China Merchanes did affirme that Cantan did yeeld enery yeere to the King three y Whi has thousand Picos of Silver, and every three Picos make one Baar, every Baar hath foure Kintals, euery Kintall hath foure * Arrobas : fo that one Baar is fixteene Quarters, and three thousand weight of Su-Picos, making one thousand Baars, by consequence, one thousand Baars make 7 lixteene thouser, fand Quarters; and weefpeake of weight, for in Chinais no money of Gold or Silver, but one. ly of Braile, the Gold and Silver goeth by weight. But the feas they are popular people, though occupied in the trafficke of the Countrie, it fremes they know not well the truth of this, and that the fumme is greater which is collected of the sems Royall, for the Countrie is very great, and the merchandite many and very substantiall. I was informed by meaner of the Rulers, which is a more certaine information, because the rents doe pase thorow their hands , that ithe rent of the Salt in Cantan did yeeld alone to the King 300. Pagos of Silver, which doe make 100; Barr. which are 400. Kintals, that are 1600. " quarters of Silver.

Which is 40000. pound weight of Sile

Every one bath a paire of scales and weights in his house, which all are exceedingly perfect. The weights that they commonly hane, are from peri trownes to one, and from ten Tan to gas to one, one Tanga is nine pence. By the name of their Countrie 1 the leffer great weight is of one Tael, one Tael is fixe Mazes, one Maez is the Ametiat a Tanget of the small weights. the smallest is one Conderin, ten Conderins make one Tanga, or one Macz: one Conderin hath ten Caxos; and because the common that goeth in stead of money in Silver by weight, every one hath weights of his owne, as aboutfaid; for one laboureth by allthe meanes hee can to de ceine the other, none doe truft the scales and weights of the other, and every one that goeth to buy in the Market, carrieth a weight and balance, and broken Silver, and the balance is a little beame of luorie with a weight hanging at the one end with a ftring yand on the other end a Little scale, and the string of the weight runners along by the beames, which hath his market from one Conderin to ten, or of one Maez unto ten. I hele scales serue for to buy by retale, for a to buy by grolle they have perfect scales very curious and line, wich very perfect weights. They carrie the Silver commonly full of mixture, and because they encrease it with the mixture, from hence it commeth that he which will make good markets in the Countrie of China, and that it may be cheape, carrieth Silver rather then goods, for by the encrease which the Chinas make of the Siluer with the mixture, they give the merchandife good and cheape for the Siluer. The Merchants are commonly falle and lyars. There is great abundance of Rice in all the Countrie, for there are many marifhes, which yeeld two or three crops enery yeere. There is also much and very good Wheat, whereof they make very good Bread, which they learned to make of the Portugal; their vie before were of Beofe, and Buffes fleth, which is like Beefe : there are many Hens, Geefe, and innumerable

Duckes; there are infinite Swine, which is the fielh they moit louk : they make of the Hogs many fingular flitches, whereof the Portugals carrie an infinite number to the India, when they goe thither by way of trafficke. The Chinas doe esteeme the Porke fo much, that they give it to the ficke. They care Frogs also, which are fold in great Tube full of water at the gates, and they that fell them are bound to flay them. All floth is fold by weight alive, except Beefe, and exceeding much, and all very good, and it neuer wanteth in the markets: there be many Crabs, and Outers, and other shell-hish, and all is very good: and of all these things the markets are full. The Markets are commonly at the gates of the Cities, and under the triumphant Arches which are in the large and principall fireets, as we faid before, and along the Portals of the fame

ftreets : but not to fell here flesh or fish, for there be particular ftreets , excepting quicke flesh,

Cakes of the same Wheat. There be many French Beanes, and other Pulse : there is great store w

Very Merchants. Viduals.

Frogs.

Buffes fielh, and Porke, which commonly is fold by the pound, except if they doe buy it whole, for then they are to weigh it whole : and that it may weigh the more, they fill it first with meat and drinke: the Hens to make them weigh the more sthey fill them likewife with water, and their crops full of fand and other things. The pound of the Hen, Goofe, Ducke, and Frogs, is 4 all at one price; the Porke, Beefe, and Buffes fielh is worth leffe, and all at one price. The fifth is which is fold every where.

Markets.

Herbs.

Lechias.

houses.

Victualling

There are many Garden-herbes, fc. Turneps, Radish, Cabage, and all smelling Herbs, Garleeke, Onions, and other herbes in great abundance. There are also many fruits, fell, Peaches, Damsons, and another manner of Plummes which wee have not, with long, round, and sharpe 50 stones at both ends, and of these they make Prunes: There are many Nuts, and very good, and many Chefnuts both small and great. There is a kinde of Apples that in the colour and rinde are like gray Peares, but in smell and taste better then they. There is a fruit whereof there are many Orchards, it groweth on great and large boughed trees, it is a fruit as bigge as a Plumme round and a little bigger, they cast the huske, and it is very fingular and rare fruit, none can have his fill of it, for alwaies it leaueth a defire of more, though they eate neuer fo much, and doth no hurt. Of this fruit there is another kinde smaller , but the biggest is the best , they are called Lechias. There are Oranges, Figs, and many other fruits, which were to long to recite. And though there be particular streets of Victualling houses, yet there is through all the Citie almest in every freet of these houses. In these Victualling houses is great store of meate dressed. Ma- 60 ny Geele, Hennes, and Duckes roafted and fod, and store of other flesh and fish dreffed : I saw at one doore hanging, a whole Hog roafted, and let one aske where he will, for all is very cleanly dreffed : the showe of all the meate that is dreffed is at the doore, almost inciting them that passe. At the doore is a vessell full of Rice, well coloured and drested, and because the matters of Inflice are commonly almost from ten of the clocke forward, and many haue their houses farre because the Citie is very great, or because they which come from out of Towne with busineffe, as well Inhabitants as Strangers doe eate in thefe houses. When any man meeteth any acquaintance of his that commeth from abroad, or that he hath not feene him a long time, faluting one another, he asketh him presently if he hath dined, and if he answereth no, he carrieth him to one of these houses, and there they eate and drinke privily, for there is great store of Wine, and better then in any place of India, which they make of confections: if he answereth that he hath dined alreadie, he carrieth him where they have onely Wine and Shell-fish, wherewith they drinke, of which houses there are also many, and there he doth feaff him.

10 There is also in Cantan along the wall on the outside, a street of Victualing houses, in the which they fell Dogs cut in quarters, roafted, boiled, and raw, with the heads pulled, and their Dogs fleth. eares; for they scald them all like Pigs, it is a meate which the base people doe eate, and they fell them aline about the Citie in Cages: through every street they fell fleth, fish, herbes, fruit, and all things necessarie, crying that which they fell. In the end of Februarie, in March, and parc of Aprill, when the great flowings are , there commeth great flore of fish from the Sea to ipawne, in the mouthes of the Rivers along the Sea, whereby there breedeth infinite small fish of many forts in the pooles of the Rivers. Of thefe spawnes in these times all the Fishers along the Sea coast doe meet in their boats, and there meet so many that they couer the Sea, and lie neere the pooles. And thefe Fishers doe take great quantitie of this small fish, and cast it in Ci-20 Hernes which they have made with stakes, and a very thicke Net made of wyer, where they doe feed them, to the end of the fifting time : and at this time there are wont to come a great number of Barkes from all places of China within the Land (for I faidalreadie that all China is failed by Rivers, for it is all cut and watered with great Rivers) and these Barkes doe bring a great many baskets within and without, which are all lined with oyled paper, that it may hold water, and enery one of these Barkes doe buy the fish they have need of. Then they carrie this fish in these baskets through all the Countrie inward, changing every day the water, and all men of any possibilitie, within their grounds and inclosures have great store of fish in ponds, for the which they buy the baskets they have need, they feed this fifth in the ponds in a very thore time with Cow dung and Bulles dung, wherewith it groweth very fast. In all the ditches of the Ci-30 ties likewise they breed great flore of fish in the same fort, of which the Rulers are serued. In all the Cities which I faid alreadie, are built along the Rivers. The King hath many Sea Crowes in Coopes, in which they breed , with the which they make Royall affinings many times : all the Barkes that are bound to goe a fifting with these Cormorants, doe meet and serround in the Fifting with Riner, those that have charge of the birds, doe tye them about the crops, that they cannot swal- Gormorants, low them, and they cast them to hish in the River. They fish till they fill their crops of middle fish, and if it be great, they bring it in the beake, and come to the Barke, where they cast all the fish they have fished, forcing them to cast it : and in this manner they fish the quantitie they will. till they have to their contentment: after they have fished for the Barke they vntye them, and let them goe fish for themselues : after they be full, they come to the Boats, and are put in the 40 Coops: these birds doe fish very much. The King doth give for a favour to the Rulers one or two of these Barkes, according as the person is of qualitie for the maintayning of his house Though that the Chinas commonly are ill-fauoured, having their faces and notes flat, and are Their persons.

beardlesse, with some sew haires in the points of the chinne: some notwithstanding there are which have very good faces, and well proportioned, with great eyes, their beards well fet, and their nofes well shapen; but these are few, and it may be they are of other Nations. They weare long Coats commonly with plaites after our good ancient vie: with a flappe ouer the break to The Attire of tye on the fide, and all in generall have very long fleeues to their coats, they weare commonly the men. blacke Coats of Linnen, or of very fine Serge or course of divers colours, some weare them of Silk, many doe vie them on the Feast dayes of Silke : the Rulers weare commonly fine Serge, and on

50 their Feafts they vie very fine Silkes, chiefly crimfon, which none in the Countrie may weare but they : the poore people weare commonly Coats of white Linnen, because it costs but little : on their head they weare a high Cap made of very fine twigs, and it is round interwouen with blacke Silke, and very well made, they vie their Stockins whole footed, which are very well made and stiched, and they weare Boots or Shooes, as the curiofitie or abilitie of every one is, either of Silke or of Leather : in Winter they weare Stockins of Felt, either fine or course, but the cloth is made of Felt : they vse also in Winter their garments lined with Martines, chiefly about the necke: they vie quilted Iackets, and fome doe vie them of Felt in Winter under their Coats.

They vie long haire like women, which they weare finely combed, and they combe it many Long haire, 60 times a day, they weare it tyed on the crowne of the head, and through the knot thrust through with a long small Silver pin: those which are not married, to wit, the yong Bachelors doe weare for a denife a fillet or ribband dreffe very well made, their Cap remayning aboue it, that it may be feene: they have a superfittion in their haire, therefore they wears it so long, holding that by it they shall be carried to Heauen. The common Priests doe keepe their haire, but are shauen. for they tay they neede no helpe to carrie them to Heanen. Yet among them are some Priets of the Temple of the Idols, which among the Chinas are more reverenced then the rest; these doe weare haste on the top of the head fastued with a flick, very curiously wrought like a close hand, varnished with a very fine varnish, which they call Acharan: and these Priests doe weare black coates, the other wearing a white coate.

Courtefie.

The Chinaes are very curteous men; the common curtesie is, the lest hand close, they inclose it within the right hand, and they bring them very oft to their breft, shewing they have one another inclosed in their heart; and to this motion of the hands, they joyne wordes of curtefie, though the wordes of the common fort is to fay one to another, Chifen me fen, which is to fay, Haue wee eaten or no, for all their good in this world is refolued in eating. The particular curtefies betweene men of fort which have not feene one another a long while, are the armes bowed and the fingers clasped one within another, they stoope and speake with wordes of great curtefie, every one labouring to give the hand to the other to make him rife : and the more honorable they are the longer they stand in these curtefies. The honorable and noble People doe vie also many curtefies at the Table, the one giving drinke to the other, and every one laboureth to gue the hand to the other in their drinking, for at the table there is no other service but that of drinking. If there come any Ghest newly to his triends house, or his kinsman, if the Matter of the house be not apparelled in holy day clothes, when the Ghest commeth in, he maketh no account of him nor any mention, till he commandeth to bring his festivall apparell, and after he is 20 fo apparelled hee goeth to the Ghest, and receiveth him with many complements and curtesies. For they hold it not convenient, that a new-come Ghest and of reverence bee received with common apparell, but clothed in feast-like apparell, for in this he sheweth him that his entring into his house is a feaft day to him. Whatfo uer person or persons come to any mans house of qualitie, hee hath a custome to offer him in a fine basket one Porcelane, or as many as the persons are, with a kinde of drinke which they call Cha, which is somewhat bitter, red, and medicinall, which they are wont to make of a certayne concoction of herbes somewhat bitter : with this they welcome commonly all manner of persons that they doe respect, be they strangers or be they not; to me they offered it many times. The Chinae; are great eaters, and they vie many dainties, they eate at one table Fish and Flesh, and the base people dresse it sometime all together. The dainties which are to bee eaten at one table, are fetall together on the board, that enery one may eate where hee liketh beft, It is a cleanly and near people. The common people hath some groffe things.

Certayne noble Portugals went to shew me on a day in Cantan a banquet, which a rich Merchant made, which was worth the fight. The house where it was made, was with a loft, and very faire, with many faire windowes and casements, and all of it was a mirror : the Tables were fet in three places of the house, for every Gheft enuited a Table and a Chaire very faire and gilt, or with filter, and enery Table had before it a cloth of Damaske downe to the ground, On the Tables was neither cloth nor napkins, as well because the Tables were very fine, as because the ranges was included that they need none of these things; the fruit was set along the edges of euery Table, all fet in order, which was, rosted Chesnuts and peeled, and Nuts cracked and shaled, and fugar Canes cleane and cut in flices, and the fruit we spake of before, called Lichias, great and small, but they were dried. All the fruit was see in small heapes like Turrets very well made, croffed betweene with certayne small sticks very neat : whereby all the Tables round about with these little Turrets were very fairly adorned. Presently after the fruit, were all the feruices placed in fine Porcelan difhes, all very well drefted and neatly carued, and enery thing fet in good order, and although the dishes were set one over another, all were so finely set, in such fort that he which fate at the Table might eate what he would, without any need of flirring or remouing any of them : and prefently there were two small sticks very fine and gilt for to eate with, holding them betweene the fingers : they vie them in flead of a paire of Pincers, fo that 10 they touch nothing of that which is on the board with their hand; yea, though they eate a dish of Rice, they doe it with those sticks, without any graine of the Rice falling : and because they eate so cleanly, not touching with the hand their meate, they have no need of cloth or napkins: all comes carved and well ordered to the Table. They have also a very small Porcelan cup gilt, which holdeth a mouth full of wine, and onely for this there is a Waighter at the Table : they drinke so little that at every bit they must have the cup, and therefore it is so small. There are some Chinaes that weare very long nailes, of halfe a quarter, and a quarter long, which they keepe very cleane, and these nailes doe serue them in stead of the sticks for to eate

The Chinaes doe vie on their birth dayes to make great feasts, continuing yet in them the cu. 60 flome of the old Gentiles. In these Feasts are wont to meet all the Kinsmen and Friends, and all doe helpe him to beare the charges of the Feafts, with fending him Prefents, that when they doe celebrate their birth dayes they may pay them in the same fort and because they have these helpes , they make great expence and folemnitie. The feast lasteth all night long , for all the Gentiles as they walke in darknesse living without the knowledge of God, so all their featts t rough all places of India and in China, are made by night. In their feaths is great abun- Night feaths dance of meate and great flore of wine, all the night they fpend in eating and drinking and mulicke playing on diners instruments. Their Praests offer their facrifices to their Gods apparelled very richly. They apparell themselues in diners forts of garments, and the Priests doe fing their fongs in a very tunable voice : among these sacrifices, playing and singing, the Tables are alwayes furnished with fundrie meates, enery one taking what hee liketh best. The Priests when they have sung as all the rest, doe make at their doore triumphant Arches very well made of Paper, and Scaffolds with divers representations of Figures and to Statues, and certayne high Trees and hanging on the broken Boughes, very well wrought and painted, many lightes; and in enery place many Lanthornes very faire and well made all

In the generall Feasts of all the Towns and People, chiefly on the first day of the yeers, all New yeers the fireets and doores are very richly drefied, and chiefly they doe indeanour and labour to deck day. the triumphall Arches, couering them with many clothes of Damaske and of other filke, with many Lanthornes. There is much playing of fundrie Instruments, and finging, and icontly with this great flore of meate of fundrie kindes, and great abundance of Wine. They vie many times representations by Actors, which doe represent very well and to the life, the A-Comedici. ctors having very good apparell and well ordered, and fitting as is requilite for the person hee 20 representeth; and they that represent a Womans part, besides the apparell that is requisite for the part has representeth, they are painted with Stibium and Ceruse. Those which vnderflands them not what they represent, are sometimes wearied, but they that understand them doe delight very much to heare them : and one whole night, and two, and fome time three, they are continually bussed in representations one after another. While these representations doe last, there must been Table set with great store of meate and drinke. They have in these Actions two great inconveniences or blemishes, the one is, that if one be to represent two parts. and is to change his attyre, he doth it before all the Beholders: the other is, that the Reprefenter as well as hee that speaketh alone, doe speake in a very high voyce almost finging. Sometime they got to the thips to play, that the Portugals may give them money.

30 The Instruments they vie for to play on, are certayine Bandoraes like ours, though not fo Influenting well made, with their Pinnes to tune them, and shere bee some like Gitternes which are fmaller , and other like a Vialt de gamba, which are deffe : they vie alfo Dulcimeres and Rebeckes, and of a certayne kinde of Hoboyse, resembling our vie. They vie a certayne manner of Instrument that hath many wyer strings; they play on them with their nayles, which for that purpose they weare; they have a great sound and make a good harmonie: they play many Instruments together sometimes, consorted in source voyces which make a very good confonancy. It hapned one night by Moone-shine, that I and certayne Portugals litting at the doore of our lodging, a few young men passing the time came along the River, playing on diuers Inftruments; and wee being glad to heare the musck, fent for them to come neere where 40 wee were, and that wee would inuite them, they as gallant youthes came neere with the Boate and beganne to time their Instruments, in fuch fort that wee were glad to fee them fit themselues that they might make no discord; and beginning to sound, they began not altogether, but the one tarried for to enter with the other, making many distillions in the processe of the musick', some staying, others playing : and the most times they played all together in source parts. The parts were two small Bandoraes for the Tenor, a great one for counter-Tenor, and an Instrument called Cramo followed the rest, and sometime a Rebecke, sometime a Dulcimere for a Treble. And they vsed a good policy, that wee might remayne the more defirous, they played but two straines.

It is not lawfull for any man in all the Countrey to carry any manner of weapon, no not a Armes and knife, therefore when one quarrels with another they goe to buffets and pulling by the haire: quarrels,

50 onely the Souldiers and Ministers of the Captaines of warre doe weare swords on their hangers. When any man dyeth that hath House, Kindred, and Children, after hee hath given vothe Funerall riverghost, they wash the Coarse and put on his best apparell, and his Cap on his head, and set him on a Chaire, and then commeth his Wife and kneeleth downe before him, and with many teares and lamentable wordes shee taketh her leaue of him: and after the Wife comes the Children in their order doing the like, and after the Children therest of the Kindred, and all the rest of the House, and his Friends. The ceremonies ended, they put him in a Cossin made for him of Camfiere wood, which is prefernative for dead bodies, and smelleth well, they close it and pitch it well that no smell may come out of it; they set it vpon two little formes. and cast over it a cloath to cover the Coffin downe to the ground, whereon the picture of the

60 man deceased is pictured. They make a little house before the Cossin of white raw cloath, with a Portall right against the Coarse, where a Table is set with candle-sticks and candles lighted, and fet thereon bread and all the fruits of the Countrey. And all this they doe of superflition for a ceremonie, and there they keepe the Coarse eight or fifteene dayes, in the marrie, the Mafter giveth him a Wife, and all the Children that are borne to him remayne free, and without any Ooligation: notwithstanding, this Seruant is bound to give his Master so much by the yeere, hauing a house by himselfe: for when he marrieth they give him a house and he la-boureth, either at some Trade, or by his industrie for to earne his living. And no man may fell any of these Slaues to the Portugals, having great penalties for it. The Women, as by being common, they looke for great profit of them, in no wife they will fell them, befides the running into great penalties alio. And all those which commonly are fold to the Portugals are stollen, they carry them deceived, and fecretly to the Portugals, and fo they fell them : and if they were perceived or taken in these stealths, they would bee condemned in the vemost punishment. The for as the Men are bound to get a living for himfelfe and for his Children, if hee want the reme-die, they hold that hee is in the fault of that. And that Man may the better labour for their liuing and their Childrens. So farre is China from hauing Slaues that altogether should bee cap-tiues, that neither those which they take in warre are flaues; onely they are bound to the King, and are placed for Souldiers in places farre from their Countries where they were taken, eating of the wages they have of the King. These doe wearefor a device a red cap, as I saw the Tartari-

Lawes of China give authoritie to the Women for to fell their Children, and not to the Men.

their Heathernth inventions. There they bring many Pictures of men and women, and burne them with many ceremonies. Finally they hang fome Pictures of men and women in paper hanging on coards, and with great praying and mooning these pictures by the coards, with great crying and showting, they fay, to fend the dead man to Heaven. All day and all night while they are in these ceremonies, there is a Table set with great store of meate and drinke. These ceremonies ended, they take the Cossin and set it in a Field where the dead are, and there it confirmes with time. Their mourning which they vie is the sharpest that ener I faw. for they weare Coats after the common fort, of verie course wooll next the flesh, and girt with great coards, and on their head a Cappe of the fame cloath, made like the Caps that are to vied in the Countrey, fauing that these have certaine slappes that fall ouer their eyes. Notwithflanding, that as they are nearest in kindred so they weare the rougher mourning weed. The rest weare raw cloath, and not to course. For Father or Mother, they mourne three yeeres: and if he bee Louthia, as soone as hee heareth the newes presently he leaueth the office he serueth, and goeth to mourne to his owne house for three yeeres, which being ended he goeth to the Court to demand his office. The Women commonly, excepting those of the Sea coast, and the Mountayners, are very white and fine women, some having their nofes and eyes well proportioned. From their child-hood they wrap their feete in cloathes, that they may remayne small, and they doe it yet among the noble people, and not among the basest. They weare their hayre very well combed, close and tyed to the crowne of the head, and bound from the rootes to the toppes with a long lace very well placed. And the lace is garnished with Iewels and peeces of Gold are cloathed in white Linnen-cloath. They make curtefies as our women doe, but they make three together and very haftely. They we painting their faces with Vermilion and white Ce-ruse very well set. They commonly keepe themselves close, so that through all the Citie of they goe abroad they are not seene, for they goe in close Chayres, (whereof wee spake before ) neither when any bodie commeth into the house doth bee fee them, except for curiofitie they chance under the doore-cloath, to looke on them that come in when they are

Cantas there appeareth not a woman, but fome light hulwines, and base women. And when 30 for the China's doe holde them for finer women that have small Nofes and Feete. This is vied 20 thing womens cuitomesand cloathes... I have many China Pictures which reprefent the women either wrapped vp,or round about. They vie long Coats like the Portugall women, which have the wafte in the elie very small; same manner that they have. They weare vpper-bodies with long sleenes, they spend comtheir eyes allo monly more Silke in their garments then their husbands : but in their common apparell they tle &c. o' the reit, as in the Map is scene.

Womens regi-

Marriage.

Adulteric. Witaldrie.

Harlots.

Commonly the men haue one Wife, which they buy for their money more or leffe, according as they are, of their Fathers and Mothers. Yet may every one have as many wives as hee is able to maintaine : but one is the principall with whom they live, and the other he lodgeth in fundry houses And if hee hath dealings in divers Countries hee hath in every one a wife and house with entertainement. If the wife committeeth adulterie, and the husband accuseth her and the adulterer, both fuffer death. And if the husband doe fuffer the wife to play the adulte- 40 refle, hee is grieuously punished. I being in Cantan, faw a Marchant of China goe from Iustice to Inflice, verie sharpely handled for suffering his wife to play the adulteresse. The common women are in no wife permitted to dwell within the walls. And in the Suburbes without they have their proper streets where they dwell, out of the which they may not live : All the common women are flaues, they bring them up for that purpose from their child-hood, they buy them of their mothers, and teach them to play on an Instrument of musique, and to fing. And those that can best doe this, because they gaine most, are worth more. And those which cannot doe that, are worth leffe. The mafters either carrie them vnto the men, or fell them to them : and when they are to be fet in the ffreet of the common women, they are written by an Officer of the King in a Booke, and the Master is bound to come euerie yeere with a certaine fee to this 50 Officer, they are bound to answer their Master to much euerie moneth. When they are old, with Paynting they make them seeme young. And after they are not for that trade, they are altogether free, without any obligation either to Mafter or any bodie, and then they feed you that which they have gottten.

I spake so particularly of this matter, for to come to say that in this Countrey of China is no greater captinitie then this of these Wenches. And let no man fay, or affirme any other thing, for about the examining of it I laboured formewhat in Cantan, because forme Portugals would affirme it otherwise. The captinitie in this Countrey is in manner following. If any woman by the death of her husband remayneth a widdow, and hath nothing to maintayne her felfe with, neither the children that are left her are fuch as are able to get their hung, neither hath fhee any 60 thingto gine her children; this Woman in this necessitie, commeth to a rich man, and agreeth with him for fix or feuen Crownes, for a Sonne or a Daughter, and the price received thee deliuereth it; if it be a Daughter, shee serueth as abouesai! for a common Woman, and is broug typ for that purpose : if it be a Sonne, hee serueth his Matter some time. And when hee is of age to which their Priests of their Gods come continually by night to offer their Sacrifices, and to pray ans weare in Cantan, which had beene taken in the warres.

d. IIII.

Of their Louthias, Mandarines or Magistrates, their creation, priniledges, maintenance; Of Prisons and Tortures; of the King and of Embassadors.

PVery one that in China hath any office , command or dignitie by the King , is called Tyry one that in Come ant any omee a command or organic by the Mang, in Santa Series, How this Title is given him, we will in his Sir, Mafter, or place make mention of it. There are in euery Province of Dima one though at Less. Lotd.

This, or according to others three thoughand, betides those that are resident in the Court, by whom are ordayned all matters of the Kingdome, and to whom come all the waightie matters of all the Realme. And because they are to dispatch with the King; and connerse with Lauthius of the him within doores, and it is not lawfull for other to converse with them, neither doe other fee Court Euthem, and they have entrance where the Wives of the King are, which are many, they are com. Buchs, monly Eunuchs. In every Province are five, which among the rest are most principall, which haue a very great authoritie and majestie in their persons, and are greatly reuerenced and honored, not onely of the common people, but also of all the other Losbyas.

The principall of the fine is the Gouernour, which in their language is called Tutom, to this The Tutom; come all matters both great and small of all the Prouince, and for the authoritie and majestie of Lieutenant, 40 his person he is not resident where the other Lorby 40, that hee may not bee frequented of them, Depute or and so he may be more esteemed and seared. To these come all the Rents of the Provinces except Vice-roy. the ordinarie expences, and by him as well the businesses as the Rents that are gathered, and all that hapneth in the Prouinces are referred and sent to the Court. The second dignitic of the Provinces, is the Over-feers of the goods, which in their language is called Ponchaffi: this hath The Ponchaffi the care to fend to recouer through all the Province the Rents thereof, for the which hee hath or Treasurer. many Lothyau vnder his jurifdiction, which are particular Officers for the bulineffes and recourries of the goods. This prouideth all the ordinarie charges of the Prounce, and with that which remayneth he reforteth to the Titom, that he may fend it to the Court, this may enter-meddle in graue matters of the other Officers inferiour, and hath authoritie ouer them. Likewise, all the so matters and affaires of the Prouince relort vinto him, to bee referred by him to the Tutom. Another chiefe dignitie under this is the chiefe Iustice, which in their language is called Anchast, The Anchast or and though there be many other Officers of Justice, this is about all, and by him are the dispate chiefe lustice. ches distributed to the rest, and all matters of Iustice resort vnto him, as one that hath authoritie of the other inferiour. Another dignitie vnder this is the chiefe Captaire, who in their tongue is called Assao. To this Assao persayneth to command to prepare the men of warre, and The Assao or all that is necessarie of shipping, and victuals, and all other prouision against Enemies and against chiefe Cap-Theenes: to this belong also the businesses of strangers in cases which belong not to the goods, tame, The fift and last of the great dignities, is of the chiefe Captaine which puttech in execution the matters of warre, and is resident in the Armies which the Astao, being a land, doth ordayne:

60 when it is necessarie besides the putting matters in execution and order, if the matter require his presence, he goeth in person : and so important may the matter be that the Aitao will goe. This His Lieuteis called in the Countrie language Intiffi. In the house of every one of these, except the Luthiffi, philis, the Luthiffi, philis, which is the inferiour of the fine, are other ten which are as Affiliants, and are alfo of great and Each hanc ten thoritie, fine of these doe fit at the right hand of the Principal in fine chaires, recited before when Affilians.

at the dispatching with the principall of the house, and the Principall dying or by any other meanes wanting, one of these according to his antiquitie remayneth in his stead : and if it benecoffary to goe through the Prounce about some matter of importance, that appertuyneth to the dignitie in whole houle they affift, one of these doe goe with all the authoritie of the Principall. The flue that fit on the right hand, haue a greater degree and dignitie then the flue on the left dignitie, girdle hand. And as the dignitie confifteth in their Girdles and Canopies, those of the right hand weare Girlles of gold and Canopies of yellow, and those of the left hand weare Girdles of filuer and Canopies of blew, or of changeable colour. The Girdles are little leffe then three fingers broad. and an inch thick, and all about of gold or of filuer very well wrought made of peeces. The Ca- 10 nopies are very large and faire, which an Officer doth beare vpon a staffe a fathom long, of a Cloue tree very faire, and they are lined with filke,

The Taiffu or Shcriffe

Besides these Assistants and the fine Principall, there is among the inferiour one of greater dignitie, which is the chiefe laylor, whom they call Taiffe, which have very great houses of great receipts, where they have great prisons, but neither this nor any that are under may weare girdle of gold nor filuer, nor a yellow Canopie, except hee bee an Officer or Captaine of men of warre, that for fauour of a Gentleman may have a yellow Canopie: the rest weare girdles of Tartana ga, or of other matter made like them of gold or filuer, and their Canopies are of changeable ftuffe or blew, and all these Inferiour doe speake to the Superiour, when they are before them on their knees, and doe kneele as long as they are with them, except the Taiffu, who when he com- 20 meth in kneeleth and rifeth vp prefently, and is alwayes standing. Every one of the great ones haue many inferiour Officers vnder his iurisdiction, for the matters and businesses necessary to the Office of enery one, all which as they are the Kings officers have the Title of Lothias and their badges or fignes. The fine Principall with their Affistants doe weare for a Badge the Kings Armes on their brefts, and on their backs, which are certayne Serpents wouen with gold thred.

The Chain or Indge of the Circuit, or

Euery yeere there is one fent to euery Prouince at a Justice, which is called Chaen, which commeth to take account of all the Loibias, great and fmall, and examineth all the Scudents and choofeth Louibias, and visiteth the Prisons, and all that is necessary to be seene and prouided for in all the Prouince. He vseth all meanes to spie out their briberie and injustice, and hath power 30 to displace or preferre. When this entreth newly into this Citie, it is not lawfull for any to worke, they hut their doores and no body walketh through the street, and to preferue his worthip and authoritie they will not boldly communicate in ight of the people, and many Officers with Banners displayed of crimson like, and all the Louthias both great and small are bound to goe and meet him. The same entertainment is vied to every one of the five, when hee commeth newly to the Prouince where hee is to administer his office. There bee other dignities about all The Quinchais, these, which are called Quinchais, which is to Gy, a Plate or Scale of gold: which are not fent but about very serious matters and of great importance, for the Kingdome, or the King. Euery Losbra of what qualitie soeuer hee bee, high or low, hath for a signe or badge, besides the aboutfaid, a high Cap and round with certayne eares a-croffe, made of small twigges wouen 40 with twift.

All the Offices are given from three to three yeeres, and none is given for longer time, and all given to men that are not borne in that part of the Land, because they may not be mooued by affection in matters of Julice that belong to their offices, and also because they may not become mightie, thereby to preuent infurrections. The offices are distributed by the King with the counfell of the Eunuchs. And because the Eunuchs are those with whose counsell the offices are d stributed, they are many times mightily bribed.

yeeres Vi-

The Chaens which the King doth fend every three yeeres, commonly are found men, and bring commonly more authoritie then the reft. And these (besides the yearly (baen) are fent the third yeere, when every Officer endeth his office. After that the Chaens have taken the ac- 50 counts of the Lothyas, they visit the Prisons and give audience to the Prisoners. After this hee with the other principall Lotbias doe visit the Schollers, and all those that hee findeth to have studied well, he fauoureth and giveth them good hopes, and those which have not studied well, if hee see they have abilitie for it, he commandeth them to bee whipped. And if already they have beene whipped and have not amended, he commands them to bee put fome dayes in prilon, besides the whipping of them, that with these punishments from thence forward they may have a better care. If hee findeth that they neither learne, nor have abilitie, hee thrufts them out of the Schooles.

This doe onely the Louthias which come every three yeeres, after they have dispatched the businesses of the Prouince, hee busieth himselfe in making Louthias : which hee maketh in forme following. Hecommandeth to come to the principall Citie of the Province, all the Students 63 that have well studied, from all the Cities of the Province, and from all the great Townes, where the King hath Schoole-mafters of free Schooles, maintayned at his charge (for the Students did Itarne the Lawes of the Realme, maintayned at their fathers charge.) And all the principall

Louibias of the Prosince affembled with Chain, there examine very well every one of the Students, demanding of him many things concerning their Lawes : and if he answereth to all well: they command him to be put apart, and if he be not yet well inftructed, eyther they fend him to learne more, and if it be through his default, eyther they whip him, or being whipped they fend him to Prison, as the Partugals faw many in Prison for that fault, where they were in Prison fend him to Priton, as the Partugati saw many in ration to that along which the private state of the Partugation and the Lambias with great for all the Lambias with great Commence to state or one of them that ton and. After the analysis and Playings, they grue the degree to every one of them they Commence mentor Ad-Certainties, customers, the second of the second of the second se To Caps with eares, broad Girdles and Canopies, and there they flay the diffribution of Offices. So following Rethat in this manner they make the Lauthies , which in the Country are to administer lutice. lations of the The Louisias for war are made by Chinalries and famous Deeds which they did in war, So that Ichins in these Countries men are much honoured by their Learning, or by their Chicaltie, and yet more for their Learning, because of the Learned doe commonly come the five principal! Learning and the Affiftants.

Notwithstanding, there are many Louthies, which are made for simple faucure, either for do-Other forts of ing some particular service to the King, or to the Realme, or in some Towne, or having some par- Lambia. ticular fauour or qualitie. As they did to a young man of Chora, because the Portugals beeing in Prifon, he ferued for an Interpreter, whereby the Lautheas gave him the title and badges of Lon-

20 this, because he could speake Portugall. But these and such other doe not commonly, Grue Offices of the King, but enjoy onely the Liberties of Lombias: as the Gentlemen Portugal base their Liberties which some enjoy by fauour of the King, And these Louds have great Liberties in the Countrey : for none can doe him any injurie without punishment , neither can they bee imprisoned but for hainous faults, and they may imprison any that doe wiring them, and many o- Their Prisither Liberties. And though there were some Porjugale that reported without any certaintie ledges. that the Chinace did fludie naturall Philosophie, the truth is the chere is no other Studies nor Vinuerfities in it nor particular, but onely the Schooles Royall of the Lawes of the Kingdome. The truth is that some are found that have knowledge of the couries of Heinen, whereby they know the Eclyples of the Sunne and of the Moone, But thefe if they know it by any Writings that are found among them, they teach it to some person, or persons in particular, but of this there are no Schooles. The Chinas have no certaine Letterain their Writing, for all that they write is by Chara-Sters. Their lines are not overthwart as in the Winings of all other Nations, but are written vp

When the Loudius are dispatched at the Court with Offices for the Provinces, where they Publike Offigoe to gouerne, they depart carrying nothing of their owne more then the Apparell they are to cers shally weare, and some few Seruants to serue him, even when they have no Offices, neither need they maintayned of carry any prouision for the lourney, nor carriage or shipping at their owne charge : for through the public. all the wayes where he goeth are promitions, alwell of thipping as of necessarie carriage; and ne40 cellary food for all the Kings Officers, which are promited of the Royall Rents. In all the Ci-Houtes for ties and great Townes, the King hath many good and Noble Houses for the Louisies both great Officers. and small to lodge in, and all those which by any meanes are the Kings, have sufficient Rents for the maintenance of enery person that shall dwell in the House according to his degree. And that which is to be given to every one for his Expences is alreadie limited. Wherefore he that may lodge there being come, the Officer of the House commeth to him, and asketh him if hee will haue his ordinary in money, or in things necessarie for promision, and that which hee doth demand, as farre as the money doth extend, hee is to give him, very well and cleanly dreft, either Flefa, Fifth, Duckes, or Hennes, or what he will. And any Louthie that doth lodge there, may command the Hoast of the House to be whipped, if he serue him not to his will. And if any Low-

50 this will goe to lodge at the House of any acquaintance of his, hee taketh the Money, which the inferiour Louibiss doe also sometimes, either to spare some Money, or to bee merry at their wils more freely. And in the promisons of these Houses there is no want any wayes, for the Ponebasis have the charge to give them sufficient provision that it doe not want. And at the yeares end account is taken of the Officers of the House of the Expenses he made.

By the wayes at eurry League, and at eurry two leagues are Houtes which onely have Beds. Publike Inner. and Chaires for the Transllers to rest and ease themselves. And some of those that have care of thefe Houles, have prouision for to give Wine to the guest's others give nothing but Chas. After the Loubias come to the Citie where they are to be refulent and execute his Office, they find the Houles, where they are tolodge according to the Offices they have great or small, greater the riouses, where they are compage according to the Contest they make given on more a great of the contest of ther Ministers necessary for their Offices. For these are continually in the hooses, for to minister cea. at all times all the Offices of the Houses where they sense. And every Officer according to his House and person bath his proussion necessary for his meace, drinkes, and his apparell (limited so that it sufficeth him well) which is payed to him without faile, enery moneth-

When

Reft in age

When the Louibias are old and wearied in the charges and Offices of the Kingdome, they are lodged in their owne Countries or where they will, and the King alloweth them enery moneth to much according to their qualitie for their maintenance till they dye. And because the Ordinaries of the Lombias are commonly fufficient, and with fome abundance, they may alwayes foure forme thing to lease their Wives and Children. Before the inferiour Ministers these Officers doe all things of their Offices and matters of luftice, for they are prefent at all things, to prevent Bribes and partialitie. Whiles the Ectabia is fitting in the chaire to heare the parties and difinatching of matters, the Porters, Sertueners, Sergeants and other Ministers are at the doores and when any person commeth with any matter, one of the Porters with a high voice that hee may be heard where the Lombias inteth (for it is farre off) telleth who and wherefore he com- to meth. And none speakethico the Loubias but woon both their knees on the ground, and commonly they speake a prettie space distant from him. And from thence with a high voyce well ynderftood, he propoundeth his case, or sheweth him his Petition written in Paper, and lifting vo the hand defireth him to receive it, and to flew him Iustice, to whom a Minister runneth, the Louthia making a figne to him, and prefenteth it vnto him. After the Louthia readeth it, he eve ther dispatcheth him of that which he asketh, writing at the foote of the Petition with redde Inke, or remitteth the party to an inferiour Officer to be dispatched. So I faw it done to a Petition which a woman presented to the Ponchafi.

The prompenetic and readineffe wherewith the Louthias are ferued, and how feared they are. cannot be written with the Pen, nor expressed with the Tongue, but it must be seene with the 20 eve for to know what it is. All doe their messages running and with great speed, not onely the Scriveners and Sergeants, and other Mimilters , but also the Inferiour Louthing to the Superiour. And if any fayleth never to little of his diligence and accustomed speed, or committeen the leffe negligence in the World before the Louthia, hee hath not any remission, but immediately they put a little flagge in his hand, and he must hold it in his hand kneeling vntill the parties be difparched: and then the Loudis commandeth to give him the stripes that he thinke good: and the thripes are fuch as hereafter we will tpeake of. Whereby all the Ministers in the Houses of the Laurbias are play flored or marked with the firipes, fo that already among themselves they hold Himia fauritas it a disgrace not to be marked with the stripes, because it is a thing generally common among them. And when the Louchia waxesh angry or is moved at any thing, it is a wonder to fee the so trouble and feare that is in all the standers by.

I being in the House of the Ponchast with certayne Portugals, intreating for the deliverance of certayne Portugals that were Captines, and imprisoned in the layle, for the which wee carried him eight Ounces of Ambar (which at that time was much eftermed of them, and now by carrying fo much it is not fo much eleemed) we not being willing to give him the Ambar, without giving vs both the Portugals, he tooke an occasion for to terrifie vs, to waxe angry against the wouth, femant of a Portugall which was in our company and was our Interpretour. Wherefore he role out of the Chaire and became red as bloud, and his eyes were inflamed, and let one foote forward putting his thumbes under his Girdle, looking to the standers by with a terrible countenance "ftepping forward, life up his foot and stampt on the ground with it, and faid with a 40 terrible voyce. Tas, which is to tay, Whippe. It was a wonderfull thing to fee in how little space they tooke the youth, tyed his hands behind with a Cord, and laid him on his belly with his thighes bare, and two Beadles placed them selves on each side one, with one foote forward. and their Whip readie for to give him the ffripes that they should bee commanded to give him. Certainly it was all done in a moment. The Merchants that came in our fauour were troubled. and flood afide shaking with feare. At this time one of the Priloners faid, Sirs, be not afraid for he cannot whip that youth. And in truth we knew it was fo, for according to their Lawes there was no fault, whereby he might command him to be whipped, and there was a penaltie if hee did it. The Loutbia hearing the voyce of the Priloner, commanded to carry him with speed to the layle againe. And the Louthia did this for nothing elfe but to make vs afraid, that wee 10 thould give him the Ambar for one of the Prifoners, for he could not give vs the other because he was alreadie adjudged to dye, and the fentence confirmed by the King, which was irrenocable, and he was willing to have the Ambar, for he hoped to have of the King a greater Reward then to be Ponchast for the Ambar. For he did eate it for to sustayne life; and many dayes were past fince they had demanded it of the Portugals, but as they knew not the name we vied for it, they never understood one another till that the yeare after they had for the Auto of Cantan a little for the delivery of a Portugall: whereby he was advanced to Poschafi. And this would also have for the same effect the Ambar at our hands for to be advanced.

Notwithstanding, we seeing our selues tyed and without an Interpretour by whom to speake, and the youth in disposition of whipping, we gave him the Ambar. There came presently a Cha- 60 ting-dish forto proue it, and the Pritoner cast a little in the fire, and feeing the smoake ascend right up, he was contented, and scattering the smoake hee set his Nose over it and said, Haoa, which is to fay, it is very good. And commanded prefently to deliner vs the Prifoner free. It was wonderfull to fee with what speed it was weighed, and the pieces told and put in a Paper, and noted by the Scrivener before them all the number of the pieces, and the waight that was there. And after that Paper another, all glued presently. And after that another. And in the Manner of third, the Panchass set his Marke with Red Letters, and what was contayined within. And at their pompe in the same instant came a little Boxe, and being put in it was presently stopped, and vpon the couer a Paper glued, and vpon it the Marke of the Ponchaft: and prefently came an inferiour Lonthis Captayne of the Army with his Souldiers, and all afarre off kneeled downe, and faid at every word Quos, which is to fay, Yes, enclining their heads and hands to the ground. And receiuing his meffage, prefently as he came running, to he returned running with the Boxe to take shipping for to carrie the Amoar to the Tutaen, to bee fent from him to the King. All this that I 10 haue spoken was done in a trice before wee flirred from the place where wee were. This was allo defirous to have the Ambar of vs before the Louibia of that feate did come, which was looked for every day to come a new ; for this was onely a Lieutenant.

When any Loubis that is not of the fine, neither the Chaen, neither very inferiour, but as they say of the meaner fort, goeth abroad into the Citie, he hath before him a good space two Ministers with two Maces that seeme to be of filuer, vpon long states, made almost after our fashion, and the one goeth on the one side the street, the other on the other-side. After these a little distant, goe other two, each with a straight Cane, or Pole in his hand. After these goe other two in the same distance with two Canes trayling along the Pauements, which are the Instruments of Iustice wherewith they doe whip. After these goe other two with two Tables

20 like two Targets bowed and playstered, whereon is written the Title of the Officer that passeth. The formost tignifie in their Maces, that he which passeth is in his Office in the Kings place, And the two itraight Rods, the right of Iustice which he ought to doe. Those which carrie the Instruments of whipping, doe carrie for a figne certayne long Red Laces, with two great round Taffels at the ends. And all doe carrie very gallant Plumes very well made of the points of a Peacocks tayle. And those that goe before doe now and then say with a loud voyce Himph, which is to say, Gine place, or beware. While these doe passe it is not lawfull in any wife for any one to crosse, or goe in the middle of the street, under paine of being whipped without any remission.

It chanced two Portugals went through the middeft of a street in Cantan walking, and behind them came an inferiour Louthia, which had but foure Ministers, which came crying according to 30 their cultomethey should give place. The Portugals either gave no heed or made no regard of those that came: wherefore a Minister comming, gave a great thrust to the one of them, and the Portugall antiwered him with a boxe on the eare; and being bound with his hands behind him, was to goe to Prifon. It was necessary for the Porengall to come to the Louibia, and pacific him with faire words, and he made an end of pacifying him with fourteene Crownes that hee gaue him. After the Ministers commeth the Lombia in a rich Chaire gilt and very faire, on foure mens backes. These Chaires are great and sumptuous, and the Louthia goeth compassed with all the Scriveners and other his Ministers. And all of them while hee goeth by the fireet, goe alwayes running. And the Louthia weareth a long blacke Coate of fine Searge with long fleeues, which is the common wearing: he carrieth the armes a croffe like a Frier, and his eyes low with-40 out looking to any fide: for even with their eyes they will not communicate with the common people, for to preferue their authoritie the more with them, that may be more feared. When any of the foure Lourbias goeth abroad, except the Tutan, or the yearely Chaen, they goe accompanied with many Ministers, and fixe Officers doe carrie them on their backes , and they leade a spare Horse with a faire Saddle, and a cloth of Silke ouer it; the Chaire inherein they goe is more sumptuous and richer, they carrie before foure, fine, or fixe Maces, and two or three Instruments and more Ministers.

When the Chaen that commeth every three yeeres commeth into the Citie, or for forme im- Pompe of the portant affaires goeth abroad, or fome Quinchay, they shut vp all the doores in the freets where he passeth, and none doth worke, nor is any seene in the street when hee passeth. The shops are 30 shut vp, and every thing of sale is out of fight. The Officers with coards along the street, doe make three lanes, where the triumphing Arches are made in three Arches: and through the middest passeth the Louthis onely, and the Officers on the two fides. And it is not lawfull for charge and any to passe through the middle : they are accompanied of many inseriour Louthias that goe on Quinchage foot. And on the one fide of the ffreet, and the other are many armed men and others with Ban- iplendour. ners of red Silke aduanced, all standing in good order. In the Court of the house where he is to goe in, are many Kettle-drummes fet vpon high stakes to be well played vpon, which are couered downe to the ground with clothes of Silke quartered. After these are many placed in order, with Flags of Silke on high. After these in the same order, are many with Trumpets, and all are in great filence. As foone as the Loubia appeareth they all found their Instruments in order: Noyse and se 60 the found of the Instruments ended, they remayne all in sogreat a silence, as if there were no lence. bodie in the Court, being a great multitude of people. The people as they come in, doe place themselves on the sides, the middest betweene the Instruments remayning voide, whereby the Louibis passeth. Before these Louibias goe commonly many inferiour Louibias, of those that carrie Maces when they goe abroad. There are also in this Court many men at Armes with long gilt Lances, and with very faire Armours. This is all in the first Court. In the second, 20 long the Gallerie (whereof wee spake aboue, when wee treated of the houses of the great men, that onely the Lossibias palle through them) on the one fide and the other are many inferiour Louthias with Head pieces on their heads, some gilt, some with Silver, and with Swords hanging at their belts, and with Coats and Callocks made in fashion of Frockes with studs of Gold and Silver, that it is emuth fet vpon plates , but it is a very fine worke made vpon very fingle Silke, which serueth onely for brauerie and ornament. Some vie on their heads white Headpieces garnished with Gold, but are of a very fine leafe and thinne, that seeming an Armour, are not. In this manner also are the Loubias inferiours, which doe entiron the superiour Loubia, The Chaires where these doe goe are very rich and of great price, and very sumptions. The Tables whereon is written the titles of dignitie of these Great men are written with letters of Siluer. And when any of these doth enter newly in any Citie with these feasts and enternayn. ments, all the Louibias, great and small, receive him at a house (where hee landeth very rich and noble) and from thence they accompanie him vnto his lodging, and being lodged, all doe take their leave with many curtelies. In these receivings they vie no sumptuous apparell. The great men (when most) weare Coats of red Silke. In their owne feasts in their houses, and secretly one with another, and in banquets they vie crimion Silke, and all the brauerie in their apparell,

Manner of inquifition.

Whenfocuer by way of inquirie or examination any Witnesses are demanded, the Louthier Whenoeuer by way or inquire or beautiful of this Office, and before all the reft that by 10 doe it in publicke before the Officers and minifers of his Office, and before all the reft that by 10 any meanes chance to be there prefent, and this because no fallhood may be vied, nor any sleight in the manner of inquiring: and by consequence in writing. And first they examine the Witneffes feuerally, and if they doe agree, they ioyne them, and examine the one before the other, till they bring them to altercations and quarrelling by words, that by the words the one speaketh to the other they may come to the knowledge of the truth. And if by this meanes they doe not comprehend the truth, they give them many stripes and tortures that by one meanes or other they may know the truth of the matter they enquire or examine : they vie no Oath, for they efferme nothing of their Gods. They have notwithstanding a respect in the witnessing the persons of qualitie, and of whom is presumed that they will not easily lye. When they examine any matter of great weight, or a graue person, then they write themselues, the proceffe of the examination. It chanceth sometimes that some of the Loubius for a great bribe, or for great friendship let some Prisoner loose, and put another in his place, for there neuer wanteth one naughtipacke that will put himselse in danger of stripes, or death for interest, or they bring him in by deceit, deceiving him with words, and making the matter light votto him, and giving him some interest, they name him as the Prisoner they will let loose, that the faulte and punishments of the guiltie may fall vpon the innocent. And when sometime in this sort they cannot let the guiltie person loose, they labour to bribe all the Officers to give him for dead among those that die in the prisons. But these inventions are not yied but where the bribes are great, or the adherents very great and mightie. And for to eschew the inconveniences which great, or the auncrents very great and augment.

iometime fall out, when any are imprisoned for weightic matters, or the Prisoners have great 40 in the far as the for a state of 40 in the far as the for a state of 40 in the far as the for a state of 40 in the far as the for a state of 40 in the far as the for a state of 40 in the far as th of Prisons and adversaries, they set downe all the markes of the Prisoners, and cause them to be set at the foot of the writing, that so they may not vie any of the malices abouelaid. With how much pietie and leafure they kill, with so much crueltie and speed they whip, for in this case they forgiue none. The stripes are such that with reason it might be a sufficient puthirties.

Cane-whip. ping, Much is bere written which I have

*Huge Reed* in this case they torgue none. Incurred a transport of the transport broad, and goe straightning vpward vnto the end, where the Beadles hold them: and they are almost a finger thicke (for in those parts are canes as big as a mans leg. And because in Portugall are many witnesses of knowledge of the same, I dare simply affirme it, and they are of eighty or ninety (pans long.) And their whips are made of these canes of the height of a middle statured man to the breasts. They give the stripes on the hammes of the mans legs, being layd on his breaft, and his legs layd along, and his hands tyed behind. And the Beadles butchering, as they are commanded, the Louthias are altogether voide of compassion, talking one with another, eating and drinking, and picking their teeth. The crueltie is fuch, that the Court is full of bloud: and when they have made an end of whipping them, they carrie them not, but like Butchen Miferable ena- with much crueltie they draw them by one leg to the Prison. And when the Beadles are whipping, they tell with a loude voyce the stripes. If the miserable Prisoners which are in the Prfon for grieuous faults at the time that this correction is to bee done can get a piece of a coard, wherewith they may hang themselves, they goe to buffets who shall hang himselfe first, that that the butcherie of the stripes be not executed on them. And the Portugals affirmed, which were in Prison, that in one day fortie Prisoners did hang thems lues in the Prison where they 60 were, to escape the stripes they were rather willing to lose their lines. And they affirmed, that the coard was very short, that scarfely there was so much as to come about the necke to tye it, and on a flicke which they flucke in the wall, and because the flicke was very lowe, they pulled one another till they were choaked, going to buffers who should hang himselfe first. When any aoth kill himfelfe, or dieth in the Prison, it is the order in China to cast him in the house of office, and there to be three dayes, where the Rats doe eate him up. And fometimes the Chinaes Pritoners doe eate of them with hunger.

Euery Citie that is the Head of the Province, hath thirteene Dungeons, and in fixe of them Store of freeare the men condemned to death: there are in Cantan vpward of fifteene thousand Prisoners, people, and There are in every Dungson onely for the condemned to death, one hundred and twenty men therefore flore that ferue for watches, and have a Louthia over them as their Captaine, or Gentleman of the used libertie round. There be two fores of tortures, one for the hands, another for the feet, which are nip- and flore. ped by certaine flickes to the bruifing or breaking of the fingers or toes with cruell paines.

The King hath as many wives as he lifteth: and within doores all the feruice is almost of The King his women: whereof he hath a great multitude: and likewife great store of Eunuches, and there is wines, chilno other people within the house. The first fon that is borne vinto him of any of his wives succeedeth in the Kingdome. The reft he marrieth, and at fuch time as he marrieth them they are lodged in some of the Cities that he best liketh; where they are well provided of all things neceffarie for their maintenance, as fonnes to the King. But they neuer fee the Kings face any more after they are married.

All the Embaffadours that come to China, with Embaffages from Kings or Princss, receive of the King great rewards and fauours, and they give him Cap and fignes of Lothia, whereby he hath great priviledges in the Countrey. They may whip and punish the Chinaes themselves. Embaffadours fo that they touch not any Louthia small or great: for to meddle with these would breed great priviledges, or inconveniences. This was the cause that Fernando * Perez of Adrade going for Embassadour to * Lopo Source Chma, that the Chinaes did rife against him , and hee escaped with his hands on his head , losing was lent Vice-China, that the Chinaes did rite against tim, and there excepts with this manner of the chinaes, and they roy, Amissis fome thips: because having done vnaccustomed Justice in China, and vpon the Chinaes, and they and sent this forbearing him, he would firetch his hand to the Louthias. The goods of the Embaffadour, and Perez with a of his is free from customes, and to him and to his they give lodgings to dwell in, and all things fleet to China, necessarie while they are in the Countrie. No man, no hot a Louibia may disturbe him in any and therein thing, nor any thing of his. One Lothia would have whipped one of Siam, for having carried Thomas Perez a message to the Prison to certaine Portugals that were in Prison. One of the Officers said vnto him that was present, that he was of Siams of the Embassage, wherefore being satisfied there-enterrayned with he let him goe in peace, defiring him he would not doe to againe.

With the Chinaes being fo great as at the beginning we faid and declared, the King hath fuch tome Partugals meanes and industrie in the government thereof, that every moneth he knoweth all that passeth viurping Ta. through all the Realme, and he knoweth it in this manner. All matters of Juffice and of Warre, Hand, and exand all annuities with all that is worth the knowing in enery one of the Prounces is referred by ereifing all the Louibias, and by other persons to the Ponchast, and the Ponchast maketh a relation of all by ourrages, cauwriting to the Tman. The Tman is bound to fend a Post every moneth to the Court, which fed T. Perez afcarrieth the information in writing to the King of all things that passed in that moneth. They ter 4 monet count their moneths by the Moones, and they are to be dispatched in such fort, that at the be- Cantan to the ginning of every Moone the Posts from all the Provinces are to bee at the Court , that the first Court to bee 40 day of the Moone it may be presented to the King, as relations of all things happened in every taken for a Prouince. And although some Prouinces are farre distant from the Court, that the Posts cannot Spie, and sent come within a moneth to the Court: notwithstanding in such manner they agree that every tong where hee

Moone the King is to have the relation of every Province, though the one be of more time then died in Prilon another, because of the one Prouince being farre and the other neere. The manner of the Polts is as among vs, they carrie a Horne which they winds when they factors. See come neere to any Towne, that they may have a Horse ready in every Towne within a certaine who seemeth diffance. They are bound when they heare the Horne to haue a Horfe ready for him, which is to diffagree: or done with fuch diligence as all the other feruices of the Officers. And where hee is to passe a else his rec-Foord, as soone as he windeth his Horne with great speed they carrie him a Boat, as I saw once Ples act was so going to the Citie of Cantan, in a Towne that was in the way, called Caanan. Sometimes it him, For hee hapneth by the malice of some Londias, when they have any interest in it, to keepe some things had left 6. ships concealed that the King knoweth not: but woe to them if the King come to know it, for they there, when he are grieuously punished, as wee shall see in a case hereafter following. Being in India, and also went to Canton, in Chma, I was enformed that sometimes the King of China doth send some men of great considence disguised through diners parts of China, that they might fee how his Officers did ferue Disguised Inhim. And if there were any nouelties or changes whereof they made him not printe, or some telligencers, things that were necessarie to prouide.

). V.

of the Portugall commerce with the Chinois; of the fenere Inflice executed upon certaine Magistrates, for wrongs done to the Portugals.

Ectule we spake many times before of Portugals, captines in China, it will bee a connenient thing that the caules of their Captinitie be knowne, where many notable things will beshewed. Yee are to know, that from the yeere 1554. hitherto, the businesses in China are done very quietly and without danger : and fince that time till this day. there hath not one ship beene lost but by some mischance : having lost in times past many. Bee R cause as the Portugals and the Chinaes were almost at warres, when the Armies came vpon them, they weighed anchor and put for the Sea, and lay in places inflictered from tempefts, whereby the stormes comming, many were lost upon the coast, or upon some shelues. But from the yeere 1554. hitherto, Lionell of Sofa, borne in Algarue, being chiefe Captaine, and married in Chaul. made a couenant with the Chinaes that they would pay their duties, and that they should fuffer them to doe their bufineffes in their Ports. And fince that time they doe them in Contas, which is the first part of China: and thither the Chinaes doe resort with their Silkes and Muske. which are the principall goods the Portugals doe buy in China. There they have fure Hauens where they are quiet without danger, or any one disquieting them, and so the Chinaes doe now make their merchandife well : and now both great and small are glad with the trafficke of the , Portugals, and the fame of them runneth through all China. Whereby some of the principall of the Court came to Cantan onely to fee them having heard the fame of them. Before the time aforesaid, and after the riling which Fernando Perez of Andrade did cause, the businesses were done with great trouble, they suffered not a Portugall in the Countrey, and for great hatred and loathing called them Facui, that is to fay, Men of the Denill. Now they held not commerce with them under the name of Portugals, neither went this led Fancui, and name to the Court when they agreed to pay customes : but vnder the name of Fangin, which Name-policy. is to fay, People of another Coast. Note also, that the law in China is that no man of China doe fayle out of the Realme in paine of death. Onely it is lawfull for him to fayle along the coaft of the same China. And yet along the coast, nor from one place to another in China it selfe it is Lawfull to goe without a certificate of the Louthias of the Countrey whence they depart: in 3 which is fit downe, whither they goe, and wherefore, and the markes of his person, and his age. If he carrieth not this certificate he is banished to the Frontiers. The Merchant that carrieth goods carrieth a certificate of the goods hee carrieth, and how hee payed duties for them. In every Custome-house that is in every Province hee payeth certaine duties , and not paying them he loseth the goods, and is banished to the frontier parts. Notwithstanding the abouesaid lawes some Chinaes doe not leave going out of China to trafficke, but these never returne againe to China. Of these some live in Mallaca , others in Siam, others in Patane, and so in divers places of the South some of these that goe out without licence are scattered. Whereby some of these which live already out of China doe returne againe in their ships vato China, vader the protection of some Portugall: and when they are to dispatch the duties of their ships they take some Poringall their friend to whom they give some bribe, that he may dispatch it in his name and pay the duties. Some Chinaes desiring to get their liuing, doe goe very secretly in these ships of the Chinaes to trafficke abroad, and returne very secretly, that it bee not knowne, no not to his kindred, that it bee not spread abroad, and they incurre the penalty that the like doe incurre. This law was made because the King of China found that the much communication of the strangers might be the cause of some risings. And because many Chinaes with an excuse of fayling abroad became theeues and robbed the Countries along the Sea coast, and yet for all this diligence there are many Chinaes robbers along the Sea coast.

Couetife law-

Liampo.

These Chinaes that live out of China, and doe goe thither with the Portugals, fince the offence 30 of Fernando Perez of Andrada did direct the Portugals to begin to goe to traffick to Liampe; for in those parts are no walled Cities nor Villages, but many and great Townes along the coast, of poore people, which were very glad of the Portugals, and fold them their prouision whereof they made their gayne. In these Townes were these Merchants of China which came with the Portugals, and because they were acquainted, for their fake the Portugals were better entertayned. And as these Chinaes which were among the Portugals and the Countrey Merchants in their buyings and fellings, they reaped a great profit thereby. The inferiour Louibias of the Sea coast received also great profit of this trafficke, for they received great bribes of the one and of the other, to give them leave to trafficke, to carrie and recarrie their goods. So that this trafficke was among them a long while concealed from the King, and from the superia 60 our Louibas of the Prouince. After these matters had for some space beene done secretly in Liampoo, the Portugals went by little and little forward, and began to goe and make their merchan life to Chincheo, and to the Hands of Cantan. And other Louthes permitted them already in enery place for the bribes sake, whereby some Portugals came to trafficke beyond Namqui, which is very farre from Cantan, without the King being witting, or having knowledge of this trafficke. The matters fell out in such fort, that the Portugals wintered in the Ilands of Liampoo.

Chinches. Namqui, or Nanquin.

Some Chinaes that were among the Portugals, and some Portugals with them, came to offer Diforders of der themselues in such manner that they made great stealths and robberies and killed some of the ourragious people. These etils encreased so much that the clamour of the injured was so great, that it came chinosis, and its not onely to the superiour Londons of the Province, but also to the King. Who commanded presently to make a very great Armada in the Province of Fuquen, to drive the theeues from all the coait, especially those that were about Liampoo, and all the Merchants as well Portugals as Chinaes were reputed in this number of theeues. Being ready they went forth along the coast 10 of the Sea. And because the windes served them not for to goe for Liampee, they went to the coast of Chinches, where finding some shape of Portugals, they began to fight with them, and in no wife did they permit any wares to come to the Portugals; who stayed many dayes there ( fighting sometimes) to see if they could have any remedie for to dispatch their businesses. But feeing they had no remedy, they determined to goe without it. The Captaynes of the Armie knowing this, fent a mellage to them very fecretly by night, that if they would that any goods knowing this, tenta menage to the mount of the momething. The Portugals very glad with this Briberie, message, prepared a great and sumptuous present, and sent it them by night because they were fo admired. From thence-forward came many goods vnto them, the Louthias making as though they tooke no heed thereof, diffembling with the Merchants. And so were the businesses ended

20 that yeere, which was the yeere 1 548.

The years following, which was 1 549, there was a straighter watch vpon the Coast by the Captaynes of the Armada, and greater vigilancie in the Ports and entrances of China, in fuch fort that neyther goods nor victuals came to the Porengals : but for all the vigilancie and watching there was, (as the Ilands along the Coast are many, for they all runne in a rew along the China) the Armies could not have so much vigilancie, that some wares were not brought fecretly to the Portugals. But they were not so many that they could make vp the ships ladings, and the vetering those goods which they had brought to China. Wherefore leaving the goods which they had not vetered in two ships of Chima, of such Chimaes as were alreadie dismensbred from China, and Traffique abread under the shadow of the Portugals, (in the which they 30 left thirtie Portugals in charge with the ships and with the goods) that they might defend the thips, and in some Port of China where best they could they should fell the goods that remayned in change for some Wares of China, and having ordayned this they departed for India. As the people of the Armie of the Chinaes faw the two ships remayne alone, the other ships being gone, they came upon them, being induced by some Merchants of the Countrey, which discouered to them the great store of goods that remayned in those Vessels, and the few Portsgals that remayned to keepe them. Then they layd an ambush for them, dreffing some Chinase ashoare, which being in armes made as though they would fet vpon the ships to fight with them, because they were close to the Land, that the Portugals being prouoked, should come out of the fhips to fight with them, & fo the ships might remaine without defence to them of the Armada, 40 which lay watching in an ambush, & did accordingly set vpon the two Veffels with great furie & celeritie, and flaying tome Portugals that were in the ships, and wounding others they tooke the ships. The chiefe Captayn which is the Lutbiff, remayned so glorious, that heresed great crueltie on some Chinaes that hee tooke with the Portugals. Hee laboured to perswade source Portugals Mountayne which had more apparance in their persons then the rest, that they should say, they were Kings of Mouse birth Malaca, he perswaded them in the end, because hee promised to vie them better then the rest, and therewith he prouoked them. And finding among the cloathes that hee tooke a Gowne and a Cap, and asking of one of those Chinaes, that were taken with the Portugals what habit that was, they put in his head, that it was the habit of the Kings of Malaca, wherefore he commanded prefently to make three Gownes by that patterne, and three Caps, and to he apparelled mili rifum tethem all foure in one fort, to make his favoring true, and his allowed the state of the stat 30 them all toure in one fort, to make his fayning true, and his victory more glorious. To this was joyned the couetoufneffe of the Lutbiff to fee if hee could detayne the many goods that hee had taken in ships.

And to doe this more fafely, not to be taken in a lye, he did great executions upon the Chinaes which he tooke with the Portugals, and killing some of them determined to kill the rest. These things comming to the cares of the Airas, which was his superior, he dishiked greatly that which hee had done, and fent to him prefently that hee should kill no more of those which remayned, but that he should come to him presently bringing with him all the prize as well of the men that were yet aliue, as of the goods. The Lutbiff ordering his Lourney for to goe to the Aitao, as he was commanded, he commanded foure Chaires to be given to them, to whom hee had

60 given title of Kings, to be carried in them with more honour. And the other Portugals were Carried in Coopes with their heads out fast by the neckes betweene the boards that they could Pillory Coops. not pull them in, but having some wounds in their heads, they went bare headed to the Sunne and to the Dew, and were carried on mens shoulders. The Luthis went with this Prize through the Countrey with great Majethe, he carried before him foure Banners displayed, on the which were written the names of the foure Kings of Malaca. And when he entred into the Townes. he entred with great noyfe and Majestie, with found of Trumpets, and with Cryers which went crying the great victorie, the Luthisi (naming him) had gotten of the foure great Kings of Malaca. And all the great men of the Townes went to receive him with great Feafts and Honours, all the Townes running to fee the new Victorie.

192

When the Lubis came with all his pompe and glory where the Airao was, after the giving him particular account of all things passed and of his victory, he manifested to him his pretence and agreed with him to divide the goods betweene them both, and that he should continue the fayning of the Kings of Malaca, that both might receive of the King Honours and Rewards, This being fet downe they both agreed that to keepethis in fecret, the Lutbif should go forward to Damna le vain that which he had begun, to wit, he should say all the Chinas, that came there captine. And presently they commanded presently to put it in effect, and so they flue ninetie and odde Chinas, among whom were some young youths staine. They left notwithstanding three or foure youthes and one man, that by them (bringing them to their owne hand) they might certifie the King all that they would, that was to make of the Portugals Theeues, and conceale the goods which they tooke: certifying also by these that those foure were Kings of Malaca. And the Portugals not having the Language of the Countrey, neither had any person to intreate for or fauour them would perish : and they being mightie would make their owne Tale good, following the end by them intended. And for this cause they sue not the Portugals , but left them alive, for the greater triumph of the victorie.

·These Lothias could not doe this so secretly, but many of those which they slue had kindred in the Countrey, which did grieue at the death of theirs. Whereby, as well by these, as by some Lonthias that were zealous of Inflice, and would not give confent in to great enils and fraudulent dealings, this matter came to the Kings eares, and hee was informed now the Portugals were Merchants which came to traffique with their Merchandize to China, and they were no theeues, and how they had fallly given the Title of Kings to foure of them, to the end the King should shew great fauours, and doe them great honours; and how they had vsurped great store of goods; and that for to conceale these euils, they killed men and children without fault.

The Kings Inft:cc.

nitie.

As foone as the King was informed of all about faid, hee dispatched present from the Court a Quinchay, (of whom we spake before, that is to say place of Gold) And with him he sent other to two men of great authoritie allo, of the which the one had beene Panchafi, the other Anchafi. these two as Inquisitors and Examiners of this matter: Commanding and commending to the Chaen which that yeare went to visit the Province of Fuquen, and to the Panchasi and Anchasi. of the same Prouince, their ayde and affiltance to the Quincher, and the two Inquisitors in all things necessary for them in these businesses. The two that came with the Quinchay, as Inquifitors, went presently to certayne great Houses which had in the middest a great Court, and on the one fide of the Court were certayne great and faire Lodgings, and on the other fide others in the same fort, Each of the Inquisitors entred in one of these Houses aforesaid. The Prisoners were presently brought, and were presented to the one of them, who for courtese remitted them to the other, that he should examine them first, with many words of courtesie. The other fent 40 them againe with great thankfulnesse. So they were fundry times carried from one to another, each of them willing to give the hand to the other of beginning first, till that one of them yeelded and began. And as the matter was of great import and much commended to them, all that the guiltie and the accusers did speake these Officers did write with their owne hands. The Portugals had for a great Enemy a China man and Pilot of one of the shippes that were taken, and a China youth which was a Christian, which from a childe was brought vp among the Portugals: for they were both made of the part of the contrarie Louthias , mooned by gifts and promifes: the Louthias being alreadie depoted of their Offices, and held for guiltie, for the which they were accused before the King.

But though they were thus handled, they were so mightie and so fauoured, that they could 50 take from the Portugals a China youth that ferued them for an Interpreter, which vpontheir Manner of ex. Petition was againe delinered them. They examined them in this order, the accused were first brought and examined by one of these Officers, and they carried them to the other to bee examined againe. And while the other was re-examining the accused, the accusers were brought to him that examined first. And as well the accused as the Accusers were all examined by both the Officers, that afterward they both freing the confessions of the one and the other, they might fee if they did agree. And first they examined enery one by himselfe. Afterward they examined them altogeter, for to see if the one did contrary the other, or did contend and reprehend one another, that fo by little and little they might gather the truth of the cafe. In their Examinations the two were contrary, to wit, the Pilot, and the Christian China youth, and had many 60 stripes, because they agreed in somethings. The Loubias did alwayes shew themselves glad to heare the Portugals in their defence, who alleadged in their defence, that if they would know who they were, and how they were Merchants and not Theenes, they should send to enquire of them along the Coast of Chinches, that there they should know the truth, which they might know of the Merchants of the Countrey, with whom a great many yeares agoe they had dealt. and that they might know that they were no Kings, for Kings do not abase themselves so much as to come with so few men to play the Marchants, and if before they faid the contrary, it was by the deceit of the Luthifi, and to receive better viage of him in their persons.

Having this information of the Portugals, prefently with the opinion of the Quinebar and the other Officers, they went to Chinches both of them, to enquire of the trueth or that which the Portugals had told them; and discovering there the truth of the Portugals matter, and the lies of the Lubiff, and of the Airas, they dispatched presently a Post; wherein they commanded to put the Latbiff and the Airao in Prifort, and in good fafeguard. Wherefore from thence forward 10 all men began to fauour them very much. If notwithstanding this examination had bin made in Liampee, as it was in (binchee, the Portugals could not have chosen but have past it ill, according to the greatnesse of the euils they had done there. After the Louibias returned from Chinches, they commanded to bring the Portugals before them, and comforted them very much, flewing them great good-will, and faying to them, that they knew already they were no theeues, but were great good-win, and taying to them, as well they as their advertaries, to fee if they contra-honeft men: and they examined againe as well they as their advertaries, to fee if they contrahonet men: and they examine against the which before they had fooken. In thefe later re-examina-fallouted themselves in any thing of that which before they had fooken. In thefe later re-examina-fallouted themselves in the state of the stat tions the Pilot of China, which before had shewed himselfe against the Portugals; and had beene on the Louthias side, seeing that the Louthias were already in Prison, and that now they could doe them no good, and that the Portugals were already favoured, and that the trueth was already 20 knowne, he gainfaid himfelfe of all that he had faid, and faid that it was true that the Portugals were no theeues nor Kings, but Merchants, and very good men, and discouered the goods which the Lutbiffi had taken when he surprised the Portugals. And that till then he had said to the contrary, was for the great promifes which the Louthia promifed him, and for the great threats they wfed to him if he did it not. But freing they were already in Prifon, and he knew they could doe him no hurt, he would now speake the truth. They then commanded to torment him, and whip him very fore, to fee if he would gainfay himfelfe, but he ftill continued in the fame confession.

All the examinations and diligences necessarie in this businesse ended, the Quinchay willing The Quinchay to depart for the Court with his companie, would first fee the Portugals, and give a fight of himoffention, felfe to the Citie. The fight was of great Maieltie in the manner hee went abroad in the Citie,

30 for he went accompanied with all the great men of it, and with many men in Armes and many Ancients displayed and very faire, and with many Trumpets and Kettle- drummes, and many other things which in such pompes are vied. And accompanied in this manner, hee went to certaine noble and gallant houses. And all the great men taking their leaue of him, hee commanded the Portugals to come neere him, and after a few words he dismiffed them : for this was not but onely to see them. Before these Louibias departed they commanded the Louibias of the Countrey, and the Iaylors, that all of them should fauour the Poringals, and give them good entertaynment, and should command to give them all things necessarie for their persons. And commanded every one to fet his name in a piece of Paper, because that while they were at the Court, and their matters were dispatching, they should not craftily make some missing. And 40 they commanded to keepe the Lubsifi in good lafety, and the Aitas, and that they should not let them communicate with any person. Being gone from the Citie, they lodged in a small Towne, where they fet in order all the Papers, and ingroffing onely that which was necessarie. And because the Papers were many, and were much to write, they helped themselues with three men. And having ingroffed all that they were to carrie to the Court, they burned all the reft. And because these three men which they tooke for helpers should not spread abroad any thing Cautelousine of that which they had feene, or heard, or written, they left them that up with great vigilan- duftriccie, that none should speake with them, commanding to give them all things necessarie very abundantly vntill the King, Sentence came from Court, and were declared. The Papers being presented in Court, and all seene by the King and by his Officers , he pronounced the Sentence

50 in " manner and forme following.

Pimpu by commandement of the King. Because Chaipuu, Huchin Tutan without my commande abridged. ment, or making mee primie thereto, after the taking of so much people, commanded them to bee stayne: Sentence. I being willing to provide therein with Instice, fent first to know the trueth by Quinfituam, my Quinchei, who taking with him the Louthias which I fent to examine the trueth of the Portugals, and also of the Aitao and Luth si, which had informed mee, that the Portugals were thecues, and that they came to all the coast of my Dominion to robbe and to murther. And the trueth of all being knowne, they are come from doing that which I commanded them. And the Papers being scene by my Pimpu, and by the great Louthias of my Court, and well examined by them, they came to give mee account of all. And likewife I commanded them to be perufed by Ahimpu, and Altu Chaen, and by Athayluti 60 Chuquin, whom I commanded to onerfee those Papers very well, because the matters were of great weight; wherein I would provide with Instice. Which then being seene and perused by them all, it was manifest that the Portugals came many yeeres before to the coast of Chincheo to doe their affaires, which was not convenient they hould doe in the manner they did it, but in my Markets, as was alwaies the custome in all my Ports. These men of whom hisherto I knew not: I know now that the people of not theenes, as they had written to me they were.

case I beleeuing to be true, grieue in my heart.

194

Pantoos are Sca-watches.

Bure hely in- tented with killing of the men, but killed evildren also, custing off the feet of some, of others the bands, to solence. and at last the beads of them all: writing wnto mee they had taken and slayne Kings of Maillaca. Which ceited himfelf.

Senfu and others rewar.

A. a I doe not blame Merchants to belpe Merchants, but I put great fault in my Louthias of Chincheo . because that when any shop came to my Ports, they should have knowne if they were Merchants, and if they would pay their duties, and if they would pay them, to write prefently unto mee. If they had done fo : fo much ewill ad not beene done. Or when they were taken, if they had let mee know it, I had commanded to fet them at libertie. And although it bee a custome in my Ports the Ships that come unto * In china and them to be measured ' by cubits for to pay their duties : these being very farre off, it was not necessaries Size they pay but to let them doe their bufinesses, and goe for their Countries. Besides the my l'ontoos " which knew Custome by the fe men to be Merchants did not tell it mee, but concealed it from mee, whereby they were the case of measuring the thefe men to be Merchants did not be seen and did not the seen and d this i.o. n poop many people being taken and flame. And those that remayned aline as they could not speake, did looke to providow towa d Heanen, and demanded from their hearts instree of Heanen (they know no other God lumany cubasic premeout the Heauen.) Besides these things I know that the A.tao, and the Luthissi did so much enill for conetoufnesse of the many goods which they tooke from the Portugals, having no regard whether those which they tooke, and tooke the goods from, were good or stall men. Likewise the Louthins a-long the Sea coast knew these men to be Merchants, and certified mee not. And all of them, as distrall were the cause of so much enill. I knew more by my Quinchey, that the Aitao, and the Luthill had Letters, by the which they knew that the Portugals were no theenes but Merchants, and knowing this they were not contented with the taking of them, but they wrote many lyes unto mee, and were not con-

And because hitherto so many cruesties have beene vsed without my commandement, from hence forward I command they be not done. Besides this the Portugals resisted my Armie, being better to have let them selves beene taken, then to kill my people. Moreover, it is long since they came to the coast of our Dominion about their affaires in manner of theenes, and not as Merchants: wherefore if they had beene naturall as they are strangers they had incurred paine of death & lesse of goods, wherfore they are not without fault. The Tutan by whose commandement those men were sla ne, said " that by this deed I should make him greater; and the people that he commanded to be flame after they had no heads, their bearts, (that is their sonles and their bland ) required instice of Heanen. I seeing so great enils to be done, my eyes could not indure the fight of the Papers without teares, and great griefe of my beart. I know 30 not , my Louthias feeing they tooke this people , wherefore they let u not goe, that I might not come to know so many cruelties and so great. Wherefore seeing all these things, I doe create Senfiu chiefe Louthia, because hee did bis durie in his charge, and told mee truth, I create also chiese Louthia Quinchio, because hee wrote the trueth to mee of the Pontoos which went to doe their merchandise in fecret with the Portugals to the Sea. Those which are emill I will make them baser then they which fowe Rice.

Likewsse because Paction did trafficke with the Portugals, and for bribes did permit the Merchants of the Country to trafficke with the Portugals, and yet doing thefe things, wrote unto mee that the Portugals were theenes and that they came to my Dominions onely to steale. And the same bee said also to my Louchias (which presents answered, that he lyed, for they knew already the contrarie.) And therefore fuch a one, and fuch a one, (he nameth ten Louthias.) It is nothing that all you be banished to red Caps *, to the which I condemne you: but you deserve to be made baser as I doe make you. Chaen are the enligne for taking these men thou sayedit thou shouldest be greater, and being in the doing of so much enill thou layedit wou didit not feare mee: fuch a one, and fuch a one (he nameth nine) for the taking of thefe u the King men yee fay, I would make you great, and without any feare of mee yee all lied, juch a one, and juch a in his frontiers one (he nameth many.) I know also yee tooke bribes. But because you did so, Imake you base, (he deagainst the E- priveth them of the dignitie of Lothias.)

Such a one, and fach a one ( he nameth many. If the Aitao and the Luthiffi would kill fo many people, wherefire dud you suffer it? But seeing that in consenting you were accessarie with them in their to death, all are to the same fault. Chifun, and Chanchitun, were also agreeing to the will of the Aitao and the Luthilli, and were with them in the flaughter, as well those that were as those that were not in fault. Wherefore I condemne you all to red Caps. Lupuu let him baue a good heart, because the Tutan being willing to bell this people, he faid that he should let mee first know it. To him I will doe no harme, but good, as he descrueth, and I command that he remaine Louthia. Sanchi I make my Anchath of the Citie of Canti. The Antexio I command to be deposed of his honour. Assan feeing hee can freake with the Portugals, let him have honour and ordinarie, and he shall be carried to Chaquean, where hee was borne. (This is the youth with whom the Portugals did defend themselves, serving them for Interpreter, they gave him title of Louthia, and mayntenance.) Chinque Head of the Merchants that went to the Sea to trafficke with the Portugals, and deceined them, bringing great store of 60 goods a land, it shall be demanded of him, and set in good safeguard for the mayntenance and expenses of the Portugals, and I condemne him and his foure Companions to red Caps, and they shall bee banified whither my Louthias shall thinke good.

To the rest guilty and imprisoned for this matter, I command my Louthias to give to every one the punishment be descrueth. I command the Chaen to bring me bither the Tutan that his faults being perwed by the great men of my Court, I may command to doe instree on him as I shall thinke good. (This The Tutenty Tutan was alto a confenter in the wickednesse of the Airao and the Laubissi: for the Lutbissi, hanging himand the Airao made him partaker, and gaue him part of the booties which they tooke from the felfe Portugals, that as the head he should hold for good that which they did : for in truth they durit the Hangman, not have done that which they did if he had not given confent, and agreed with their opinion. Mangman ra-This hearing what was judged against him, hung himselfe, saying, that seeing the Heauen had there made him whole, that no man should take away his head. The Poutoos which yet are in Prison, shall be examined againe, and shall presently be dispatched. Chuichum shall presently be deprined from 10 being a Louthia, without being heard any more. Chibee, head of fixe and twenty, I command that hee and his be all fet at libertie, for I find but little fault in them. Those which owe any money it shall bee recovered of them presently. Famichin , and Tomicher Shall dye , if my Louthias doe thinke it expedient; if not let them doe as they thinke best. Altonfo of Panua, and Peter of Cea (thele were Portugals) Antonie and Francisco (these were slaves) finding them to be guilty of killing some men of my Armie, shall with the Luthilli and Aitao be put in Prison, where according to the custome of my Kingdome, they all shall dye at leisure. The other Portugals that are aline with all their Seruants which are in all fiftie one, I command them to be carried to my (title of Cansi, where I command they be well intreated, seeing my heart is so good towards them that for their sake I punish in this sort the people of my Countres, and deale so well with them; for it is my custome to doe lustice to all men. The Louthnas of the 20 Armada, finding they are in little fault, I command they bee fet free (I deale in this fort with all men, that my Louth: as may see that all that which I doe, I doe it with a good zeale.) All these things I command to be done with freed. Hitherto the fentence of the King.

The Portugals that were freed by the fentence, when they carried them whither the King What became commanded, found by the way all things necessary in great abundance, in the Houses about of the Ports. faid, that the King had in enery Towne for the Lombian when they travell. They carned gale them in seates of Chaires made of Canes on mens backes, and they were in charge of inferiour Louthias, which caused them to have all things necessarie through all places where they came, till they were deliuered to the Lourbias of the Citie of Caufi. From that time they had no more of the King every moneth but one Foon of Rice (which is a measure as much as a man 30 can beare on his backe) the rest they had need of, every one did seeke by his owne industry. Afterward they dispersed them againe by two and two, and three and three through diners places, to preuent that in time they should not become mightie joyning themselves with others, Those that were condemned to death, were presently put in Prison of the condemned. And Alfonfo of Pains had a meanes to give the Portugals to vinderstand that were free, that for his welcome they had given him prefently fortie firspes and intreated him very euill, hewing himfelfe comforced in the Lord. Those which were at libertie, now some and then some, came to the ships of the Poringals, by the industrie of some Chinas, which brought them very secretly for the great gifts they received of the Merchants of Portugall, which made their Merchandize

Of the Religion in China; difficultie of bringing in Christianitie. Terrible Earth-quakes and Tempests in N the Citie of Cantan in the middest of the River which is of fresh water and very broad, is a little Ile, in the which is a manner of a Monasterie of their Priests; and within this Monasterie I saw an Oratorie high from the ground very well made, with certayne gilt steps before it, made of carued worke; in which was a woman very well made with a childe about her necke, and ichad a Lampe burning before it. I suspecting thatto bee fome shew of Christianitie, demanded of some Lay-men, and some of the Idoll Priests which were there, what that woman signified, and none could tell it mee, nor give mee any reason of it. It might well be the Image of our Ladie, made by the ancient Christians, that Saint Thomas left there, or by their occasion made, but the conclusion is , that all is forgotten: it imght also be some Gentiles Image. The greatest God they have is the Heaven, the letter that figniheth it, is the principall and the first of all the Letters. They worship the Sun, the Moone, nignment it, is the principal another mit of an one bestern any woman and provided and discourse, and all the I mages they make without any respect. They have, not with danding. Heaven 6.6 Images of Louthus, which they worship for having beene famous in some one thing or other both God and And likewise Statues and Images of some Priests, of the Idols, and some of other men for some Character, respects particular to them. And not only worship they these Images, but what sever stone they erect on the Altars in their Temples.

Omistoffo's and

They call commonly these Gods Omittoffois, they offer them Incense, B njamin, Ciuet, and another Wood which they call Cayo, * Laque, and other smelling things. They offer them there offerings another vivos with the control of t tries behind the doores of the Houses, in the which they have their carued Idols : to the which every day in the Morning and at Evening they offer Incente and other perfumes. They have in many places (as well in the Townes as out of them) Temples of Lucis. In all the thips they fayle in , they make prefently a place for to worship in, where they carrie their idols.

Lots.

In all things they are to enterprize either Iournies by Sea or by land, they wie Lots & caft them before their Gods. The Lots are two sticks made like halfe a Nut-shell, stat on the one side, and round on the other ; and as bigge againe as an halfe Nut, and joyned with a firing. And when to they will cast Lots, they speak first with their God, perswading him with words, and promising him some Offring if he give him a good Lot, & in it shew him his good Voyage or good succeffe of his bufines. And after many words they call the Lots. And if both the flats fides fal vpward on one vp another downe, they hold it for an euill Lot, and turne them toward their Gods very melancholy, they call them Dogs, with many other reproaches. After they are wearie of rating them, they foothe them againe with faire milde words, and aske pardon, faying, that the Melancholy of not giving them a good Lot, caused them to doe them injurie, and speake injurious words vnto him: but that they will pardon them and give them a good Lot; and they promife to offer him more such a thing (because the promises are the better for them that promise them. they make many and great promifes and offerings) and fo they cast Lots so many times till 20 they fall both on the flat fides which they hold for a good Lot, then remayning well contented. Cruell men to they offer to their Gods that which they promifed. It happeneth many times when they caff

Lots about any weighty matter, if the Lot fall not out good, or launching a thip to the Sea it goeth not well, and tome euill came to it, they runne to their Gods and caft them in the water. and put them in the flame of the fire fometimes, and let them forch a little, and fpurning them often, and tread them under foot, and give them rayling words, till their businesse be ended. and then they carrie them with playing and feasts, and give them their Offerings.

Offerings.

They hold for a great Offering a Hogges head boyled: they offer Hennes, Greefe, Duckes and Rice all dreft, and a great pot of Wine. After they present it all to the Gods, they fet his portion apart, which is, to put in a Dish, the small points of the Hogs eare, the bils, and the points 30 of the clawes of the Hennes, Geefe, and Duckes, a few cornes of Rice very few, and put in with great heed, three or foure drops of Wine very heedfully, that there fall not many drops from the Pot. Thefe things fo fet in a Bason that they fet them on the Altar to their Gods for to eate, and they fet themselves there before the Gods to eate all that which they bring.

The Deuill

They worthip the Deuill also, which they paint after our fashion: and say that they worthip him because he maketh those which are good, Deuils; and the euill, he maketh Buffes, or Kine, or other beafts. And they fay that the Deuill hath a Mafter that teacheth him his Knaueries; thefe things fay the base people: the better fort fay they worship him because hee shall doe them no

When they will Lunch any new thip to the Sea, their Priests being called by them come into the ships to doe their Sacrifices with long side Garments of Silke. They set about the shippe many flags of Silke, they paint in the prow of the ship the Deaill, to the which they make many reuerences and Offerings, and fay they doe it becaute the Deuill shall doe no hurt to the ship. They offer to the Gods Papers with divers Images painted, and other of fundry kinde of cuttings, and they burne them all before the Idols with certayne Ceremonies and well tuned Songs, and while their finging doth laft, they ring cercayne small Bels, and among all they vie

In this Countrey are two manner of Priests, the one that have their head all shaven, these Paper Offeruigs.

Two fores of Pr. Ac. Monkes.

weare on their heads certayne course Caps like vnto Canopie cloth, they are high, and flat behind (higher before then behind a hand breadth) made like a Mitre with Pinacles : their wea- 50 gre .t ftore of eating and drinking.

Seculars.

Feafis,

Traditionall

ring is white Coates after the Lay-mens fathion. Thefe line in Monasteries, they have dining places, and Cels, and many pleafures within their wals. There he others whom commonly the people doe vie for their Burials and Sacrifices, thele weare their haire, and blacke filke Coates, or of Searge or Linnen, and long like the Lay-men, having for a token their haire made fast in the Crowne of the head with a flicke very well made like a closed hand, varnished blacke. None of these Priests have Wines, but they line wickedly and filthily. The first day of the yeare, which is in the new Moone of March, they make through all the Land great Feafts, they visit one another, the chiefe principally doe make great Banquets. How much these people are curious in the rule and government of the Countrey, and in their common Traffique, so much they are beaftly in their Gentilities, in the viage of their Gods and Idola-60 tries. For befides that which is faid, they have many Gentificall Lyes, of men that were turned into Dogges, and afterward into men, and of Snakes that were converted into men, and many

I entred one day into a Temple and came to an Altar; where were certaine stones set up which they worthipped, and trusting in the little estimation they held their Gods in, and in being men that would be fatisfied with reason, I threw the stones downe to the ground, whereat fome ranne very fiercely at me and angry, asking me wherefore I had done that, I went millly to them, and smiling, said to them, because they were so inconsiderate that they worshipped thosestones. They asked me wherefore should they not adore them: and I shewed them how they were better then they, feeing they had the vie of reason, feete, hands, and eyes, wherewith they did divers things that the frones could not doe, and that feeing they were better they should not abase and esteeme so little of themselves as to worthip things so vile they being so noble. They answered me that I had reason, and went out with me in company, leaving the stones To on the ground : fo that there is likelihood and shew of their becomming Christians; And it makethalio much to this purpose, their not making any difference of meate, as all the people of Indus doth. And feeing that among all the meates they efteeme the Porke most, it is almost im-polible for them to become Turkes.

Notwithstanding, there are two verie great inconveniences to make any Christians in this Countrey. The one is, that in no wife they will permit any noueltie in the Countrey, as in fome fort it may bee seene in the matter of the Moores. So that whatsoever noveltie that is in No noveltie, the Countrey, the Louthia take order presently how to represent; and it goeth no further. Whence it happened in Cantan, because they faw a Portugall measure the entries of the Gates, they fet prefently Watches that none should come in without licence, nor goe vpon the Walls.

20 The lesond is, that no strange person may enter into China without leave of the Louthids, nor be in Cantan, which doe give him a certaine time to bee in Cantan. The time of the licence ended, Provisions as presently they labour to have them depart. Wherefore because I and those which were with sainst stay of me were one moneth longer in Cantan, they fet vp written rords that none should keepe nor Surangers. harbour vs in their houses, vnder payne of fo much, till wee held it our best cheape to goe to the Ships. To the aboutfaid is joyned the common people to bee greatly in feare of the Louibias. wherefore none of them durst become a Christian without their licence, or at the least many would not doe it. Therefore as a man cannot be feeled in the Country, hee cannot continue Preaching, and by confequence he cannot fructifie and preferue the fruit. There was not withstanding one way how to Preach freely, and fruit might be made in the Countrey, without any dogge barking at the Preacher, nor any Lombia doe him hurt any way : which is, if hee hair a licence for it of the King & And it might bee obtayned if a followine Embaffage were fent with a fo- Note: license preferents the King of China, in the name of the King of Portlight, reigion, men gaing with the Ambaffadour to obtanne the licence to goe about the Canatre, security themselves to be men with. sut Armes. And how our Law is no presidence to his Dominion and Consernement, but a great helpe that all might obey him and keepe his Lames. This onely's emedie there is in China, to reape any fruit, that an import voy onto moments.) And without this it is impossible for any Relations men to Preach art suifie, and because I had not this remedie, history the abbiecaid incommeniences, I came away from China, and therefore neither I, nor they of the bompany of It's vs which enterprised alreadie this bufine fe fundry emes, could fruitsfie in China.

This people hath bendes the ignorances above faith, that fifthy abomimition, that they refraine Chizois Sode no excamong them. Notwichthanding Preaching forietimes, as well publike as prinately mices. against this vice they were glad to heare mee, faying, that I had reason in that which I sayd, but but that they never had had any that told them that was a finite, hor any thing evill done. It feemeth that because this sinne is common among them, God was willing to fend them a grieuous punishment in some places of the earth, the which was common iff all China. Theing in the Plagues hap-Citie of Contan, and being willing to know of a rich China Warchant the euils that had happe- uing in thick ned in the Countrey, and free notable to tell it me by word of mouth, gaue me a Letter which they had written vnto him of what had happened & faying to me; that I should translate it and give it him againe : but not trusting me hee translated it presently, and remayning with the 50 copie gaue me the principall, which I translated into Portugal with the helpe of one that could speake our lunguage and theirs, the tenour of the Letter is this.

The principall Londing of Sanzi and of Santon, wrote vnto the King, faying, that in those Prouinces the earth did thake terribly; and the dayes waxed darke like night (her Japh not how long) a South-fayer told them all that should happen. In the yeere before in the moneth of September, the earth opened in many places, and under it were heard great novices like the found of Bells, there followed a great winde with much rayne, and the winde ranne about all the Compatie. This winde is called in China, Tufaune, and many yeeres it bloweth but once a yeere, Tufan a terriand it is fo raging, that it driveth a Ship under fayle on the Land a great space, and the men can-bic tempost.

not keepe their feete, not leaving and holding one by another, and it doth things worthie admi-60 ration and incredible. In the yeere that I was in China, in the part where the Portugals were, they shewed the Boat of a Ship of a good bignesse, and the place where it was a land (that this winde carrayed it, might bee a great stones cast from the water) and many did affirme it to mee, that the winde had such force that it carryed it tumbling till it blew it into the Sea. And all the houses the Portugals had made of timber, and coursed with strawe, which were many and the last fell also, and onely one that was sheltered with a high place escaped that it fell not. To blow downe these houses was nothing, for it doth many other things incredible. This winde is almost euerie yeere in China, the which within twentie foure houres that it raigneth, it runneth about all the points of the Compaffe, With this winde, and the Lands being snaken with the Earthquakes, many Cities fell and were made desolate, in the which dyed innume.

CHAP. XI.

The relation of GALEOTTO PERERA, a Gentleman of good credit, that lay Prisoner in China.

His Land of China is parted into thirteene ' Shires, which sometimes were each 'You shall have one a Kingdome by it felfe, but these many yeeres they have beene all subject a more sull devnto one King.

The King maketh alwayes his abode in the great Citie Pachin, as much to fay ter Authors: in our language (as by the name thereof I am aduertifed,) the " Towne of the who yet could Kingdome. This Kingdome is so large, that vinder fine moneths you are not a Botsowell as ble to trauell from the Townes by the Sea lide, to the Court and backe againe, no not under three this, tell their moneths in Poste at your vegent businesse. The Post-hories in this Countrey are little of bodie, ceedings segment but swift of foote. Many doe trauell the greater part of this journey by water in certaine light rise, prions, Barkes, for the multitude of Rivers, commodious for passage from one Citie to another, The King, notwithstanding the hugenesse of his Kingdome, hath such a care thereof, that eue. &c. these 13. rie Moone (by the Moones they reckon their moneths) he is aduertifed fully of what focuer thing deritood behappeneth therein. Before that wee doe come to (mese, we have to passe through many places, sides the two and some of great importance. For this Countrey is so well inhabited neere the Sea side, that royall Prouin.

you cannot goe one mylebu you shall see some Towne, Borough, or Hostrie, the which are so access you cannot goe one mylebu 'you intail tee iome 1 owne, norough, or nottre, the which are 102-bundarily prouided of all chings, that in the Cities and Townes they line civilly. Neuercheffle, fuch as dwell abroad are very poors, for the multitude of them enery where fo great, then of a Tree you shall see many times swarme a number of Children, where a man would not have "Emblastic." thought to have found any one at all.

From these places in number infinite, you shall come vnto two Cities very populous, and be- same, and so ing compared with Conces, not possibly to bee discerned which is the greater of them. These the Magellicall Cities are as well walled as any Cities in all the world. As you come into either of them, fran-Pole Horfe. deth fo great and mightie a Bridge, that the like thereof I have never seene in Portugal, nor else Their months. 30 where. I heard one of my fellowes say, that he told in one Bridge fortie Arches. The occasion Excellent wals wherefore thefe Bridges are made fo great, is for that the Country is toward the Sea very plaine and an admiand low, and ouerwhelmed euer as the Sea-water encreafeth. The breadth of the Bridges although it be well proportioned voto the length thereof, yet are they equally built, no higher in the middle than at either end, in such wife that you may directly see from the one end to the other, the fides are wonderfully well engraved after the manner of Rome workes. But that wee Magnificent did most maruell at, was therewithall the hugenesse of the stones, the like wherof, as we came in_ stones, to the City, we did see many set up in places dishabited by the way, to no small charges of theirs, howbeit to little purpole, wheras no body feeth them but fuch as do come by. The Arches are not made after our fashion, vaulted with sindry stones set together: but paued, as it were, whole stones 40 reaching from one Pillar to another, in fuch wife that they lie both for the Arches heads, & gallantly ferue also for the high-way. I have been aftonied to behold the hugenesse of these aforesaid stones, some of them are twelue paces long and vpward, the least eleuen good paces long, and an halfe. The wayes each where are gallantly paued with four-foure Stone, except it be where for Wayes paned, want of Stone they vie to lay Bricke: in this voyage we trauelled ouer certaine Hills, where the bricked, or wayes were pitched, and in many places no worfe paued than in the plaine ground.

The Countrey is so well inhabited, that no one foot of ground is left untilled : small store of Culture and cattell haue we seene this way, we saw onely certaine Oxen wherewithall the countrey-men busbanders doe plough their ground. One Oxe draweth the Plough alone, not onely in this Shire, but in other places also, wherein is greater store of cattell. These countrey-men by art doe that in til-

50 lage, which we are constrained to doe by force. Here be fold the voydings of Close-stooles, although there wanteth not the dung of beafts : and the excrements of man are good marchandife throughout all China. The Dung-fermers feeke in every street by exchange to buy their durtie ware for Hearbs and Wood. The custome is very good for keeping the Citie cleane. There is great abundance of Hennes, Geese, Duckes, Swine, and Goates, Wethers have they none: the Hennes are fold by weight, and so are all other things. Two pound of Hennes flesh, Goose, or Ducke, is worth two Foi of their money, that is, three halfe pence. Swines flesh is fold at a peny the pound. Beefe beareth the same price, for the scarcitie thereof, howbeit Northward from Fuquies, and further from the Sea coast, there is Beefe more plentie, and fold better cheape, Beefe onely excepted, great aboundance of all these Viands wee have had in all the Cities wee passed 60 through. And if this Countrey were like vnto India, the Inhabitants whereof eate neither Hen; Beefe, nor Porke, but keepe that onely for the Portugals and Moores, they would bee fold here for nothing. But it fo falling out that the Chineani are the greatest eaters in all the world, they doe feed vpon all things, specially vpon Porke, the fatter that is vnto them, the leffe lothsome. The highest price of these things aforesaid, I have set downe, better cheape shall you sometimes rable people. Finganfa, Swallowed vp. quire perished, Leuchimen.

In a Citie called Vinyanfus, in this day was a great Earthquake. And on the west side a great Fire burft out, that swallowed vp all the Citie, in the which, innumerable people perished, esca- 10 ping in one place two, in another three, and so some of the Mogores chaped. In another Citie neere to this, there happened the same, but in this none escaped. In a Citie called Lenchingen. the River increased in such fort, that it ouer-slowed the Citie, where infinite people were drowned. In a Citie called Hien, was an Earthquake, with the which many houfes fell, which flew neere eight thousand soules. In Pucho, the house of the Kings kinsman fell and slew all that were in the house, except a Childe of seuen or eight yeeres old his sonne. (which was carryed to the King) and day and night was a noyle heard under the earth, like Couchue.

Puchio.

Enchineen. Inchumen,

In a Countrey called Cochne, with fire from Heauen and with many waters of a Floud many perified, and the land remayned vnable to bee cultivated againe. In a Countrey called 20 Enchmoen, at midnight the houles fell, and the Citie remayned defolate and ruined, where perished neere one hundred thousand soules. In a Citie called Inchumen, in one day and a night, the River did flow and ebbe ten times, and with the great floud many people perished. Hitherto the translation of the Letter: that which followeth, was heard by word of mouth of the Portugals that were in the Port of Causan in the moneth of May, and I received the Letter in September.

Sanxi.

In a Citie called Sanci, from midnight till fue of the clocke in the morning, the earth shooke three times, the eighteenth of lanuarie, 1556. and the next day after, from midnight till noone. happened the same: the next day following, the twentie of the sayd moneth, the earth shooke mightily after midnight with great Thunder and Lightnings, and all the Prounce was burnt, 30 and all the people thereof, and all the Suburbes, Townes, and Cities: they fay it is from bound to bound, firtie or fixtie leagues, that there was not one faued but a Childe, fonne to a kinfman of the King, which was carried to the King. And the third of Februarie in the same yeere, Bloudie showin the Citie of Panquin where the King is, fell a shower of rayne like bloud. These newes brought one of China that came to Cantan, from a Citie neere to Sanxi, to give newes to a Louthis that hee should resort to his owne house, and faid, that the Citie where he was a dweller was ouerflowne, and that he knew not whether it would perish with the reft. That which ought to bee held for truth, is, that in three Prounces which commonly are fayd to be deffroyed, there was no more destruction then of those places whereof the Letter maketh mention, or little more. The agreeing in the Childe, sheweth that the Towne whereof the Letter maketh mention with 40 the childe, was in the Province of Sanzi. This hath more apparance of truth, because the Letter was written from the Court, then to fay that all the three Prouinces perifhed.

After the happening of the things about aid: the fame yeere in the Province of Cantan, a Woman which went to the Panchasi, told him that the Province of Cansi would bee destroyed with power from Heaven, the which after thee was well whipt, was imprisoned : but in the moneth of May of the same yeere, there fell great store of rayne verie hot, with the which the earth seemed to burne, and many people perished with the great heate: but the Prouince perished not altogether: wherefore this woman was carried to the King, which was in prison in the place where the Portugals were, which told this,

Reader, for assumed as this Anthor bath often mentioned, and related also the storie of certaine Por- 50 tugals, Prisoners in China (one of which bee nameth Galotte Perera) from whom bee received great part of the China mtelligence: I have thought good to adde bother Perceas relations, translated long fince out of Italian, and published by R. Willes; busing abbreviated some things in the Free; that yes might rather have them at the first hand from this Gentleman which sam them : but abbreviated to present tediousnelle.

made of Hennes, and are good meat among it them, as also Dogs, Cats, Rats, Snakes, and all other

vncleane meates.

200

the Cities.

The Cities be very gallant, specially neere vnto the Gates, the which are maruellously great. and couered with Iron. The Gate-houses built on high with Towers, the lower part thereof is made of Bricke and Stone, proportionally with the walls, from the walls vpward, the building is of Timber, and many stories in it one about the other. The strength of their Townes is in the No Artillerie. mightie Wallsand Ditches; Artillery haue they none. The ftreets in Cinceo, and in all the rest of the Cities wee haue seene are very faire, so large and so straight that it is wonderfull to behold. Their houses are built with Timber, the foundations onely excepted, the which are laid in with Stone, in each fide of the fireets are paintefes, a continual Porches for the Marchants to walke under : the breadth of the fireet is neuerthelesse such, that in them fifteene men may ride commodiously fide by fide. As they ride they must needes passe vader many high Arches of triumph, that crosse ouer the streets made of Timber, and carved diversly, covered with Tile of fine Clay : vnder these arches the Mercers do vtter their smaller wares, and such as list to stand there are defenced from raine, and the heat of the Sunne. The greater Gentlemen have these Arches at their doores : although some of them be not so mightily built as the rest.

Legiea.

Archers.

I shall have occasion to speake of a certaine order of Gentlemen, that are called Loutea, I will first therefore expound what this word signifieth. Loutea, is as much to fay in our languageas Sir, and when any of them calleth his name, he answereth, Sir. The manner how Gentlemen 10 are created Loneas, & do come to that honour and title, is by giving a broad Girdle not like to the rest, and a Cap, at the commandement of the King. The name Loures is more generall and common vnto moe, than equalitie of honour thereby fignified, agreeth withall. Such Loneas that doe serue their Prince in weightie matters for instrice, are created after triall made of their learning : but the other which ferue in smaller affaires, as Capitaines, Constables, Sergeants by Land and Sea, Receivers, and such like, whereof there be meuery Citie, as also in this, very many are made for fauour : the chiefe Louteas are ferued kneeling.

The whole Prouince China is divided, as I have faid, into thirteene Shires, in every Shire at the cours al, cham. leaft is one Gouernour, called there Tutan, in fome Shires there be two. Chiefe in office next vnto them be certaine other named Chians, that is, high Commissioners, as you would say, or Visiters, with full authoritie in fuch wife, that they doe call vnto an account the Tutanes themselves, but their authoritie lasteth not in any Shire longer than one yeere. Neuerthelesse, in euery Shire, being at the least seuen Cities, yea, in some of them fifteene or fixteene, besides other Boroughs and Townes, not well to be numbred, these Visiters where they come, are so honoured and feared, as though they were some great Princes. At the yeares end their circuit done, they come wnto that City which is chiefe of others in the Shire, to doe Iuftice there : finally, bufying themfelues in the fearthing out of fuch as are to receive the order of Lonted; whereof more shall be faid in another place. Ouer and befides these officers in the chiefe Citie of each one of these aforesaid thirteene Prouinces, is resident one Ponchiassi, Captaine thereof, and Treasurer of all the Kings revenues. This Magistrate maketh his abode in one of the foure greatest houses that be in all their head Cities.

Anchia(si. al.Hexafi. Tuzi. TaiTu.

Prifons and fentencing offenders,

In the second great house dwelleth another Magistrate, called Anchiassi, a great officer also, for he hath dealings in all matters of luftice. Tazi, another officer fo called, lieth in the third house, a Magistrate of importance, specially in things belonging vnto warfare, for thereof hath hee charge. There is resident in the fourth house a fourth Officer , bearing name Tails. In this house is the principall prison of all the Citie. Each one of these Magistrates aforesaid may both lay enill doers in prilon, and deliuer them out againe, except the tact bee heynous and of importance: in fuch a case they can doe nothing, except they doe meet altogether. And if the deed deserve death, all they together cannot determine thereof, without recourse made vnto the Chian wheresoeuer he be, or to the Tutan: and eftloones it falleth out, that the case be referred vnto higher power. In all Cities, not onely chiefe in each Shire, but in the rest also are meanes found to make mencement or Loutens. Many of them doe studie at the Prince his charges, wherefore at the yeeres end they refort vnto the head Cities, whither the Chians doe come, as it hath beene earst faid, as well to give these degrees, as to sit in judgement over the prisoners.

The Chians goe in circuit every yeere, but fuch as are to be chosen to the greatest off ces, meet not but from three yeeres to three yeeres, and that in certain large halls appointed for them to be examined in. Many things are asked them, whereunto if they doe answere accordingly, and be found sufficient to take their degree, the Chian by and by granteth it them : but the Capand Girdle whereby they are knowne to be Lontess, they weare not before that they bee confirmed by the King. Their examination done, and triall made of them, fuch as have taken their degree 60 wont to be given them with all Ceremonies, vie to banquet and feast many daies together (as the Chineans fashion is to end all their pleasures with eating and drinking ) and soremain chofen to doe the King feruice in matters of learning. The other examinates found infufficient to proceed, are fent backe to their studie againe. Whose ignorance is perceived to come of negligence and default, such a one is whipped, and fometimes fent to prison, where wee lying that weere when this kinde of Act was, wee found many thus punished, and demanding the cause thereof, they faid it was for that they knew not how to answere vnto certaine things asked

CHAP. II. Louteas Maiestie. Manner of eating, Respect of Denills.

It is a world to fee how thefe Louiess are ferued and feared, in such wife, that in publike af- Their Mairsty. Comblies at one shrike they give, all the servitors belonging vinto lustice, tremble thereat. At their being in these places, when they list to move, be it but even to the gate, these Servitors doe take them vp, and carry them in feats of beaten Gold. After this fort are they borne when they goe in the Citie, either for their owne businesse abroad, or to see each other at home. For the digthat goeth in their feats is vibered by two men at the leaft, that cry vnto the people to give nitie they have, and office they doe beare, they be all accompanied : the very meanest of them all place, howbeit they need it not, for that reverence the common people hath vnto them. They have also in their company certaine Sergeants, with their Maces, either filuered, or altogether Silver, some two, some foure, other fix, other eight, conveniently for each one his degree. The more principall and chiefe Loutess have going orderly before these Sergeants, many other with Staues, and a great many Catch-poles with Rods of Indian Canes dragged to the ground, fo that the threets being paued, you may here a farre off, as well the noise of the Rods, as the voyce of the cryers. These fellowes serue also to apprehend others, and the better to be knowne, they weare liverie-red Girdles, and in their Caps Pecocks Feathers. Behinde thefe Louteas come 20 fuch as doe beare certaine Tables hanged at staues ends, wherein is written in Siluer letters the name, degree, and office of that Louten, whom they follow. In like manner they have borne after them Hats agreeable vinto their titles : if the Louise bee meane, then hath he brought after him but one Hat, and that may not be yellow : but if hee be of better fort, then may hee have two, three, or foure : the principall and chiefe Loutess , may have all their Hats yellow , the which among them is accounted great honour. The Lones for warres, although hee bee but meane, may notwithstanding haue yellow Hats. The Tutanes and Chians, when they goe abroad . have befides all this before them led three or foure Horses , with their Guard in

Furthermore, the Louteas, yea, and all the people in China, are wont to eat their meat fit- Manner of 20 ting on Stooles at high Tables as wee doe, and that very cleanly, although they vie neither Ta- eating. ble-clothes nor Napkins. Whatfoeuer is let downe vpon the boord is first carued, before that it be brought in: they feed with two Sticks, refraining from touching their meat with their hands, euen as we do with Forkes, for the which respect, they left doesned any Table-clothes. Neither We, that is, the is the Nation onely civil at meat, but also in conversation and in courtesse they seeme to exceed Italians and all other. Likewise in their dealings, after their manner they are so readie, that they farre passe Spaniards. all other Gentiles and Moores: the greater States are so vaine, that they line their clothes with the best filke that may be found. The Louisarare an idle generation, without all manner of exercises and pastimes, except it be eating and drinking. Sometimes they walke abroad in the fields, to make the Souldiers shoot at Prioks with their Bowes, but their eating passeth : they 40 will fland eating even when the other doe draw to shoot. The Pricke is a great Blanket spread Shooting. on certaine long Poles, he that strikethir, hath of the best man there standing a piece of Crimfon Taffata, the which is knit about his head : in this fort the winner is honoured, and the Lowress with their bellies full, returne home againe. The Inhabitants of China, beevery Idolaters, all generally doe worship the heavens: and as Idolany we are wont to lay, God knoweth it : 10 fay they at enery word, Tien Tautee, that is to fay, The Heanens doe know it. Some doe worship the Sunne, and some the Moone, as they thinke good, for none are bound more to one then to another. In their Temples, the which they doe call Meani, they have a great Altar in the same place as we have, true it is, that one may goe round about it. There fet they up the Image of a certaine Laures of that Countrey, whom they have in great reverence for certaine notable things he did. At the right hand flandeth the Deuill, much 50 more vgly painted then we doe vie to let him out, whereunto great homage is done by fuch as come into the Temple to aske counfell, or to draw lots: this opinion they have of him, that he 15 malicious and able to docenill. If you aske them what they doe thinke of the foules departed, they will answer, that they be immortall, and that as soone as any one departeth out of this life, he becommeth a deuil, if he have lived well in this world, if other wife, that the fane deuil changeth him into a Buffe, Oxe, or Dog. Wherefore to this Deuill doe they much honour, to him do they facrifice, praying him that he will make them like vnto himselfe, and not like other beasts. They have moreover another fort of Temples, wherein both voon the Altars, and also on the walls doe fland many Idols well proportioned, but bare headed : Their beare name Omishofon, accounted of them spirits, but such as in heaven doe neither good nor eaill, thought to bee such

60 men and women, as have chattely lived in this world in abitinence from Fish and Flesh, fed on- Dendimes ly with Rice and Salates. Of that Deuill they make some account, for these spirits they care lit respected. tle or nothing at all. Againe, they hold opinion, that if a man doe well in this life, the heavens will give him many temporall bleffings, but if he doe euill, then shall he have infirmities, difeafes, troubles, and penurie, and all this without any knowledge of God. Finally, this people knoweth no other thing then to line and die, yet because they be reasonable creatures, all seemed good vnto them we spake in our language, though it were not very sufficient.

New and full

Our manner of praying so well liked them, that in prison importunately they befought ys to So did the to. Write for them famewhat as concerning heaven, the which we did to their contentation, with May Auguries, fuch reasons as we knew, howbeit not very cunningly. As they doe their Idolatry they laugh Sodomie fre- at themselves. The greatest fault we doe finde in them is Sodomie, a vice very common in the meaner fort, and nothing strange amongst the best. Furthermore the Louteas, withall the people of China, are wont to folemnize the daies of the new and full Moones in vifiting one each other, and making great banquets, for to that end, as I haue faid, doe tend all their pastimes and spen- ia ding their daies in pleasure. They are wont also to folemnize each one his birth day, whereunto their kindred and friends doe refort of custome, with presents of Iewells or Money, receiping againe for their reward good cheere. They keepe in like manner a generall Feast, with great Banquets that day their King was borne. But their most principall and greatest Feast of all, and best cheare, is the first day of their new yeere, namely, the first day of the New Moone of Februarie, fo that their first moneth is March, and they reckon the times accordingly, respect being had vnto the reigne of their Princes : as when any deed is written. they date it thus ; Made fuch a day of fuch a Moone, and fuch a yeere of the raigne of fuch a King.

Birth-dayes.

Iufti: c.

Now will I speake of the manner the which the Chineans doe observe in doing Justice. Be-20 cause the Chinish King maketh his abode continually in the City Pachin, his Kingdome so great, the shires to many, as before it hath beene said : in it therefore the Gouernours and Rulers, much like vnto our Sheriffes be so appointed suddenly, and speedily discharged againe, that they have no time to grow nought. Furthermore, to keepe the State in more fecuritie, the Longest that gouerne one shire, are chosen out of some other shire distant farre off, where they must leave their Wines, Children, and Goods, carrying nothing with them but themselues. True it is, that at their comming thither they doe find in a readinesse all things necessarie, their House, Furnis ture, Seruants, and all other things in such perfection and plentie, that they want nothing. Thus King is well ferued without all feare of Treason.

In the principall Cities of the shires be fourechiefe Loutess , before whom are brought all 30 matters of the inferiour Townes, throughout the whole Realme. Divers other Loutess have the managing of Iuftice, and receiving of Rents, bound to yeeld an account thereof vnto the greater Officers. Other doe fee that there be no euill rule kept in the Citie : each one as it behoueth him. Generally all these doe imprison Malefactors, cause them to be whipped and racked, hovfing them up and downe by the armes with a cord, a thing very vivall there, and accounted no shame. These Loutess doe vie great diligence in the apprehending of the Theeues, so that it is a wonder to fee a Thiefe escape away in any Towne, Citie, or Village. Vpon the Sea neere vnto the shoare many are taken, and looke even as they are taken, so be they first whipped, and af-Hard Prilons. terward laid in Prilon, where shortly after they all dye for hunger and cold. At that time, when we were in Prison, there dyed of them about threescore and ten. Their whips be certaine pie-40 ces of Canes, cleft in the middle, in such fort that they seeme rather plaine then sharpe. He that is to bee whipped lyeth groueling on the ground. Vpon his thighes the Hangman layeth on blowes might ly with these Canes, that the standers by tremble at their crueltie. Tenne stripes draw a great deale of bloud, twentie or thirtie spoyle the fiesh altogether, fiftie or threescore will require long time to be healed, and if they come to the number of one hundred, then are they incorable.

The Italians callit the ftra-Beating with Canes.

Examinations.

The Loutess observe moreover this: when any man is brought before them to bee examined, they aske him openly in the hearing of as many as be prefent, be the offence neuer fo great. Thus did they also behaue themselus with vs. For this cause amongst them can there be no salse witnes as daily amongst vs it falleth out. This good commeth thereof that many being alwayes about 50 the Judge to heare the Euidence, and beare witnesse, the Processe cannot be fallisted, as it hapnets Iometimes with vs. The Moores, Gentiles, and Iemes, have all their fundry Oathes, the Moores doe sweare by their Mossafos, the Brachmans by their Fili, the rest likewise by the things they doe worship. The Chineans, though they be wont to sweare by Heauen, by the Moone, by the Sunne, and by all their Idols, in judgement neverthelesse they sweare not at all. If for some offence an Oath be vied of any one, by and by with the least enidence hee is tormented; so be the Witnesses he bringeth, if they tell not the truth, or doe in any point difagree, except they bee men of worthin and credit, who are beleeved without any farther matter: the rest are made to confesse the truth by force of Torments and Whips. Besides this order observed of them in Exso low, that they dare not once flure. Againe, these Lontens as great as they bee, not with standing the multitude of Notaries they have, not trusting any others, doe write all great Processes and matters of importance themselves. Moreover, one vertue they have worthy of great praise, aminations, they doe feare so much their King, and he where he maketh his abode keepeth them 60 and that is, being men to well regarded and accounted of as though they were Princes, they bee nations about measure in giving audience. Wer poore strangers brought before them might say what we would, as all to be Lyes and Falaces that they did write, nor did we stand before them with the viuall Ceremonies of that Country, yet did they beare with vs fo patiently, that they caused vs to wonder, knowing specially how little any Aduocate or Judge is wont in our Countrey to beare with vs. For wherefoeuer in any Towne of Christendome should bee accused vnknowne men as we were, I know not what end the very Innocents cause would have : but wee in a Heathen Countrey, having our great Enemies two of the chiefest men in a whole Towne, Senere Inflicewanting an Interpreter, ignorant of that Countrey Language, did in the end fee our great Adnerfaries cast into Prison for our take, and deprived of their Offices and Honour for not doing

203

To Juffice: yea, not to escape death, for as the rumour goeth, they shall bee beheaded, Somewhat is now to be faid of the Lawes that I have beene able to know in this Country, Lawes, and first, no Theft or Murther, is at any time pardoned : Adulterers are put in Prison , and the fact once proued, condemned to dye, the womans Husband must accuse them : this order is kept with men and women found in that fault, but Theeues and Murtherers are imprisoned as I have faid, where they shortly dye for hunger and cold. If any one haply escape by bribing the lave lor to giue him meate, his Processe goeth farther, and commeth to the Court where hee is condemned to dye. Sentence being given, the Pritoner is brought in publike with a terrible band of A Pillorie men that lay him in Irons hand and foot, with a board at his necke one handfull broad in length board. reaching downe to his knees, cleft in two parts, and with a hole one handfull downe-ward in 20 the Table fit for his necke, the which they encloie vp therein, nayling the board fast together, one handfull of the board flandeth up behind in the necke : the fentence and cause wherefore the fellon was condemned to dye, is written in that part of the Table that standeth before. This Ceremonie ended, he is laid in a great Prison in the company of some other condemned persons, the which are found by the King as long as they doe line. The board aforefaid fo made tormenteth the Prisoners very much, keeping them both from the rest, and eke letting them to eate

there a greater and a more principall Prison then in any of the rest : and although in every Citie there be many, neuerthelesse in three of them remayne onely such as bee condemned to dye. Their death is much prolonged, for that ordinarily there is no execution done but once a years, though many dye for hunger and cold, as we have trene in this Prison. Execution is done in this Execution manner The Chian, to wit the high Commissioner or Lord Chiefe Iuitice, at the yeares end goeth to the head Citie, where hee heareth agains the causes of such as bee condemned. Many times he deliuereth some of them, declaring that board to have beene wrongfully put about their neckes : the visitation ended, he chooseth out seuen or eight, not many more or lesse, of the greatest Malefactors, the which, to feare and keepe in awe the people, are brought into a great Market place, where all the great Loutess meete together, and after many Ceremonies and Superfitions, as the vie of the Country is , are beheaded. This is done once a yeare : who fo 40 escapeth that day, may be sure that he shall not be put to death all that yeare following, and so remayneth at the Kings charges in the greater Prison. In that Prison where wee lay were alwayes one hundred and moe of these condemned persons, besides them that lay in other Prisons.

commodiously, their hands being manicled in Irons under that board, fo that in fine there is no remedie but death. In the chiefe Cities of euery shire, as we have beforefaid, there be foure principall Houses, in each of them a Prisoner: but in one of them where the Tails maketh his abode,

These Prilons wherein the condemned captines doe remayne are so strong, that it hath not strength of beene heard, that any Prifoner in all Ching bath escaped out of Prifon, for, indeed, it is a thing the Prifons impossible. The Prisons are thus builded. First, all the place is mightily walled about, the wals be very strong and high, the gate of no lesse force : within it three other gates, before you come where the Prisoners doe lye, there many great Lodgings are to be seene of the Loutess, Notaries, Parthions, that is, such as doe there keepe watch and ward day and night, the Court large and paued, on the one fide whereof flandeth a Prison, with two mighty gates, wherein are kept 50 fuch Prisoners as have committed enormious offences. This Prison is so great, that in it are fireets and Market places wherein all things necessary are fold. Yea, some Prisoners line by that kind of Trade, buying and felling, and letting out beds to hire: fome are daily fent to Prison, some daily delinered, wherefore this place is neuer voyd of feuen or eight hundred men that goe at Store of Prife-

Into one other Prison of condemned persons shall you goe at three Iron gates, the Court paued and vaulted round about, and open aboue as it were a Cloyfter. In this Cloyfter bee eight Roomes with Iron Doores, and in each of them a large Gallerie, wherein enery night the Priioners doe lye at length, their feet in the flockes, their bodies hampered in huge woodden grates that keepe them from litting fo that they lye as it were in a Cage, fleepe if they can in the mor-60 ning they are looted agains that they may goe into the Court. Notwithstanding the strength of this Prison, it is kept with a Garrison of men, part whereof watch within the House, part of them in the Court, some keepe about the Prison with Lanthornes, and Watch-bels, answering one another fine times enery night, and giving warning to lowde, that the Loutes relling in a Chamber not neere thereunto may heare them. In theie Prifon; of condemned perions remayne fome fifteene, other twentie yeares imprisoned, not executed, for the love of their honourable Friends that feeke to prolong their lines. Many of these Prisoners bee Shoomakers, and have from the King a certayne allowance of Rice : fome of them worke for the Keeper, who fuffee reth them to goe at libertie without fetters and boards, the better to worke. Howbeit when the Loutes calleth his Checke Roll, and with the Keeper vieweth them, they all weare their Lineries, that is, boards at their neckes, Ironed hand and foote. When any of these Prisoners dyeth, he is to bee seene of the Loutes and Notaries, brought out at a gate so narrow, that there can but one be drawne out there at once. The Prisoner beeing brought forth, one of the afore. faid Parthians, striketh him thrice on the head with an Iron fledge, that done, hee is delinered unto his friends, if hee haueany, otherwise the King hireth men to carrie him to his buriall in la

CHAP. II.

Courfe for

204

Thus Adulterers and Theeues are vied. Such as be imprisoned for Debt once knowne, lye there untill it be paid. The Taiffu or Lonces calleth them many times before him by the vertue of his Office, who understanding the cause wherefore they doe not pay their Debts, appointeth them a certaine time to doe it, within the compasse whereof if they discharge not their Debts beeing Debters indeed, then they be whipped and condemned to perpetual! Imprisonment : if the Creditors be many, and one is to be paid before another, they doe, contrary to our manner, pay him first, of whom they last borrowed, and so ordinarily the rest, in such fort that the first Lender be the last Receiver. The same order is kept in paying Legacies: the last named, receiveth his portion first.

When I faid that fuch as be committed to Prison for Theft, and Murther, were judged by the Court, I meant not them that were apprehended in the deed doing, for they need no tryall, but are brought immediately before the Tatan, who out of hand giveth sentence. Other not taken so openly, and doe need tryall, are the Malefactors put to execution once a yeare in the chiefe Cities, to keepe in awe the people : or condemned, doe remayne in Prifon, looking for their day, Theeues being taken, are carried to Prison from one place to another in a Chest vpon mens shoulders, hired therefore by the King, the Cheft is fixe handfuls high, the Prifoner fitteth therein vpon a bench, the couer of the Chest is two boards; amidst them both a Pillory-like hole, for the Prisoner his necke, there sitteth he with his head without the Chest, and the rest of his bodie within, not able to moue or turne his head this way or that way, nor to plucke it in: the necessis. ties of nature he voideth at a hole in the bottome of the Cheft, the meate he eateth is put into his mouth by others. There abideth he day and night during his whole Iourney: if happily his Porters stumble, or the Chest doe jogge, or be set downe carelelly, it turneth to his great paints that fitteth therein, all fuch motions being vnto him hanging as it were. Thus were our comple nions carried from Cinces, seuen dayes journey, neuer taking any rest as afterward they told vs. and their greatest griefe was to stay by the way : as soone as they came beeing taken out of the Chefts, they were not able to stand on their feet, and two of them dyed shortly after.

When we lay in prison at Fuquieo, we came many times abroad, and were brought to the Palaces of Noble men, to be seene of them and their wives, for that they had never seene any Portugall before. Many things they asked vs of our Countrey, and our fashions, and did 40 write euery thing, for they be curious in nouelties aboue measure. The Gentlemen shew great curtesie unto strangers, and so did we finde at their hands, and because that many times we were brought abroad into the Citie, formwhat will I fay of such things as I did fee therein, being a gallant Citie, and chiefe in one of the thirteene shires afore-said. The Citie Fnquiee, is very great and mightly walled with square stone both within and without, and as it may seeme by the breadth thereof, filled up in the middle with Earth, laid ouer with Bricke, and courred with Tyle, and after the manner of Porches or Galleries, that one might dwell therein. The stayres they vie, are so easily made, that one may goe them vp and downe a Horse-backe, as eftsoones they doe : the streets are paued, as alreadie it hath beene faid : there bee a great number of Metchants, every one hath written in a great Table at his doore fuch things as hee hath to fell. In 50 like manner every Artizan painteth out his craft: the Market places be large, great abundance of all things there be to be fold. The Citie standeth vpon water, many streames runne through it, the bankes pitched, and so broad that they serue for streets to the Cities vie. Querthe ftreames are fundry Bridges both of Timber and Stone, that being made levell with the streets, hinder not the passage of the Barges to and fro, the Chanels are so deepe. Where the streames come in and goe out of the Citie, be certayne Arches in the Wall, there goe in and out their Parai, that is a kind of Barges they have, and this onely in the day time : at night these Arches are closed up with gates, so doe they shut up all the gates of the Citie. These streames and Barges doe embellish much the Citie, and make it as it were to seeme another Venice. The buildings are euen, well made, high not lofted, except it be some wherein Merchandize is laid. It is a World 60 to fee how great these Cities are, and the cause is, for that the houses are built even, as I have said, and doe take a great deale of roome. One thing we faw in this Citie that made vs all to wonder, and is worthy to be noted : Namely, ouer a Porch at the comming into one of the afore-faid foure Houses, the which the King hath in enery share for his Governours as I have before said, standeth a Towre built vpon fortie Pillars, each one whereof is but one stone, each one fortie Towers in handfuls or spans long: in breadth or compasse twelve, as many of vs did measure them. Besides dingonictrie this, their greatnesse such in one piece, that it might seeme impossible to worke them : they bee Pillers, each of moreover covered, and in colour, length, and breath fo like, that the one nothing differeth one from.

Wee are wont to call this Country China, and the people Chineans, but as long as wee were Name of China Prisoners, not hearing amongst them at any time that name, I determined to learne how they were called ; and asked fometimes by them thereof, for that they vnderstood vs not when wee called them Chineans, I am wered them, that all the Inhabitants of India named them Chineans, In wherefore I prayed them that they would tell me, for what occasion they are so called, whither peraduenture any Citie of theirs bare that name. Hereunto they alwayes answered me, to have no fuch name, nor ever to have had. Then did I aske them what name the whole Countrey beareth, and what they would answer being asked of other Nations what Countrey-men they were ! It was told me, that of ancient time in this Countrey had beene many Kings, and though prefently it were all under one, each Kingdome neuertheleffe enjoyed that name it first had, the le Kingdomes are the Prouinces I spake of before. In conclusion, they layd, that the whole Tamen the pro-Countrey is called Tamen, and the Inhabitants Tamegines, so that this name China or Chineans, pername of is not heard of in that Countrey. I doe thinke that the neareneffe of another Province therea. China Taligbout called Cochinchina, and the inhabitants thereof Cochineffes, first discourred before that China Marietti 20 ma was, lying not farre from Malacca, did give occasion both to the one Nation and to the o- necre Poles ther of that name Chineans, as also the whole Countrey to bee named China. But their proper name of Manname is that aforefaid.

I have heard moreover, that in the Citie Nanquim, remayneth a Table of gold, and in it writ- gines. ten a Kings name, as a memorie of that refidence the Kings were wont to keepe there. This ta- Tables reusble standeth in a great Palace, couered alwayes, except it bee in some of their festivall dayes, at renced. what time they are wont to let it bee feene : couered neuertheleffe as it is, all the Nobilitie of the Citie goeth of dutie to doe it every day reverence. The like is done in the head Cities of all the other Shires, in the Palaces of the Ponchiassimi, wherein these aforesaid tables doe fland with the Kings name written in them, although no reuerence bee done thereunto but in 20 Solemne Featts.

I have likewise understood that the Citie Pachm, where the King maketh his abode, is so great, that to goe from one fide to the other, be fides the Suburbs, (which are greater then the Citie it felfe) it requireth one whole day a horsebacke, going hackney pace. In the Suburbs bee many wealthy Merchants of all forts. They told me furthermore, that it was Moted about, and in the Motes great store of Fish, whereof the King maketh great gaynes. It was also told mee Their enemies that the King of China had no King to wage battell withall, belides the Tartars, with whom hee had concluded a peace more then fourefcore yeeres agoe.

There bee Hospitals in all their Cities, alwayes full of people, wee neuer saw any poore bodie beg. We therefore asked the cause of this : answered it was, that in every Citie there is a great 40 circuit, wherein bee many houses for poore people, for Blinde, Lame, Old folke, not able to trauell for age, nor having any other meanes to line. These folke have in the aforesaid houses, ever plentie of Rice during their lines, but nothing elfe. Such as bee received into these houses, come in after this manner. When one is ficke, blinde, or lame, hee maketh a supplication to the Ponchiassi, and prouing that to bee true he writeth, hee remaineth in the aforesaid great lodging as long as he lineth : befides this, they keepe in thefe places Swine and Hennes, whereby the poore bee releeved without going a begging.

I say I before that China was full of Rivers, but now I minde to confirme the same anew : for the farther wee went into the Countrey, the greater we found the rivers. Sometimes we were Store of rivers so farre off from the Sea, that where wee came no Sea-fish had beene seene, and Salt was there so very deare, of fresh-water Fish yet was there great abundance, and that fish very good : they keepe it good after this manner. Where the Rivers doe meete, and so passe into the Sea, there lyeth great flore of Boates, specially where no salt-water commeth, and that in March and Aprill. These Boates are so many that it seemeth wonderfull, neither serue they for other then to take small fish. By the rivers fides they make leyres of fine and strong Nets, that lye three Plentie of fish: handfuls vnder water, and one aboue, to keepe and nourish their Fish in, vntill such time as o- and their keether fifters doe come with Boates, bringing for that purpose certaine great Chests lyned with ping of them. paper, able to hold water, wherein they carrie their fish vp and downe the river, every day renewing the cheft with fresh-water, and felling their fish in every Citie, Towne, and Village, where they passe, vnto the people as they need it : most of them have Net-leyres to keepe Fish 60 in alwayes for their prouision. Where the greater Boates cannot passe any farther forward, they take leffer, and because the whole Countrey is very well watred, there is so great plentie of divers forts of Fish, that it is wonderfull to fee : affuredly, wee were amazed to behold the manner of their prouision. Their Fish is chiefly nourished with the dung of Busies and Oxen, that greatly fatteth it. Although I fayd their fishing to bee in March and Aprill,

Parai. Another

CHAP. 11.

at what time wee faw them doe it, nevertheleffe they told vs that they fished at all times, for that viually they doe feed on Fish, wherefore it behooueth them to make their prou-

206

He speakein of When wee had pasted Fuquien, we went into Quicen-shire, where the fine Clay vestellie regien shire. made, as I sayd before : and we came to a Citie, the one side whereof is built vpon the some Quanci where of a hill, whereby passet a River navigable: there we tooke Boate, and went by water toward the Sea: on each fide of the River we found many Cities, Townes, and Villages, wherein we faw great store of Merchandise, but specially of fine clay : there did we land by the way to buy vi-Etuals and other necessaries. Going downe this river Southward, wee were glad that we drew neere vnto a warmer Countrey, from whence we had beene farre diffant : this Countrey wee to passed through in eight dayes, for our journey lay downe the streams. Before that I doe say any thing of that Shire wee came into, I will first speake of the great Citie of Quicin, wherein alwayes remayneth a Tutan, that is a Gouernour, as you have feene, though fome Tutans doe gouerne two or three Shires.

Alys Cheuchi.

That Tutan that was condemned for our cause, of whom I spake before, was borne in this Countrey, but hee gouerned Fuquien-Shire : nothing it anayled him to bee io great an Officer. This Countrey is fo great, that in many places where wee went, there had beene as yet no talke of his death, although he were executed a whole yeere before. At the Citie Quanche whither wee came, the river was fo great that it feemed a fea , though it were fo little where we tooke water, that wee needed small Boates. One day about nine of the clocke, beginning to a row neare the walls with the streame, wee came at noone to a bridge made of many Barges, o. uer-linked all together with two mightie chaynes. There stayed we untill it was late, but wee faw not one goe either up thereon or downe, except two Louthia's that about the going downe of the Sunne came and fet them downe there, the one in one fide, the other on the other fide, Then was the bridge opened in many places, and Barges both great and small to the number of fixe hundred began to passe : those that went vp the streame, at one place, such as came downe, at an other. When all had thus shot the Bridge, then was it shut vp againe. Wee heard fay that enery day they take this order in all principall places of Merchandile, for paying of the custome wnto the King, specially for Salt, whereof the greatest revenues are made that the King hath in this Countrey. The passages of the bridge where it is opened, bee so neere the shore, that no- to thing can paffe without touching the same. To flay the Barges at their pleasure, that they goe Bridge #1114 no farther forward are vied certaine yron instruments. The Bridge confisteth of one hundred and twelve Barges, there stayed we vntill the Eevening that they were opened, lothfomly oppressed by the multitude of people that came to fee vs, fo many in number, that we were enforced to goe aside from the banke vntill such time as the bridge was opened : howbeit, wee were neuertheleffe thronged about with many Boates full of people. And though in other Cities and places where we went, the people came so importunate vpon vs, that it was needfull to withdraw our felues: yet were weeheere much more molefted for the number or people, and this bridge, the principall way out of the Citie vnto another place fo well inhabited, that were it walled about. it might bee compared to the Citie. When we had shot the bridge, we kept along the Citie vn-40 till that it was night, then met wee with another river that joyned with this, we rowed up that by the walls, vntill we came to another bridge gallantly made of Barges, but leffer a great deale then that other bridge over the greater streame : heerettayed we that night, and other two days with more quiet, being out of the prease of the people. These rivers doe meete without at one corner-point of the Citie. In either of them were so many Barges great and small, that wee all thought them at the least to bee aboue three thousand : the greater number thereof was in the lesser river, where we were. Amongst the rest, heere lay certaine greater vessels, called in their language Parai, that serue for the Tutan, when hee taketh his voyage by other rivers that ioyne with this, towards Pachin, where the King maketh his abode. Denrous to fee those Parai we got into some of them, where we found some chambers set foorth with gilded Beds very richly, 50 other furnished with tables and seates, and all other things so neate and in perfection, that it was wonderfull.

with faire

Quiacim-Shire, as farre as I can perceive, lyeth upon the South. On that fide we kept at our first entrie thereinto, travelling not farre from the high mountaines we saw there. Asking what people dwelleth beyond those mountaines, it was told me that they bee Theeues, and men of a strange language. And because that vnto sundry places neere this River, the mountaines doe approach, whence the people issuing downe, doe many times great harme, this order is taken at the entrie into Quacim-Shire. To guard this River whereon continually goe to and fro Parai great and small fraught with Salt, Fish powdered with pepper, and other necessaries for that Countrey: they doe lay in divers places certaine Parai, and great Barges armed, wherein 60 watch and ward is kept day and night in both fides of the River, for the safetie of the passage, and securitie of such Paras as doe remayne there, though the trauellers neuer goe but many in company. In every rode there bee at the least thirtie, in some two hundred men, as

This guard is kept viually, vntill you come to the Citie Oncho, where continually the Tutan of this Shire, and eke of Cantan, maketh his abode. From that Citie vpward, where the river waxeth more narrow, and the passage more dangerous, there be alwayes armed one hundred and fiftie Parai, to accompany other veffels fraught with merchandile, and all this at the Kings charges. This feemed vinto me one of the ilrangest things I did fee in this Countrey.

Moorish feet and observation. Mogores, Bremes,

When wee lay at Fuguien, we did fee certaine Moores, who knew to little of their feet, that Moores they could fay nothing elle, but that Wahomet was a Moore, my father was a Moore, and I am a Moore, with some other words of their Alcoran, wherewithall, in abstinence from Swines fiesh, they live vntill the Deuill take them all. This when I saw, and being fure, that in many

10 Chinfh Cities the reliques of Mahomer are kept, as toone as wee came to the Citie where thele fellowes bee, I informed my felfe of them, and learned the truth. These Moores, as they told me, in times past came in great Ships fraught with merchandile from Pachin ward, to a Port granted vnto them by the King, as hee is wont to all them that trafficke into this Countrey, where they being arrived at a little Towne standing in the hauens mouth, in time converted vnto their Sect the greatest Louisea there. When that Louisea with all his family was become Moorifo, the rest began likewise to doe the same. In this part of China the people bee at libertie, every one to worthip and follow what him liketh best. Wherefore no bodie tooke heed thereto, vntill fuch time as the Moores perceiving that many followed them in superstition, and that the Loutea favoured them, they began to forbid wholly the eating of Swines-flesh. 20 But all this Countrey men and women, choosing rather to forlake Father and Mother, then to leave off eating of Porke, by no meanes would yeald to that proclamation. For besides the great defire they all have to eate that kind of meate, many of them doe hue thereby : and therefore the people complained vnto the Magistrates, acculing the Moores of a conspiracie pretended betwixt them and the Louises, against their King. In this Countrey, as no suspition. no not one trayterous word is long borne withali : to was the King speedily advertised thereof, who gave commandement out of hand that the aforetaid Louten should bee put to death, and with him the Moores of most importance : the other to be layd first in Prison, and afterward to bee fent abroad into certaine Cities, where they remayned perpetuall flaues vnto the King. To this Citie came by hap men and women threefcore and odde, who at this day are brought

30 to fine men and toure women, for it is now twentie yeeres agoe this happened. Their offipring passeth the number of two hundred, and they in this Citie, as the rest in other Cities, whither they were fent, have their Moscheas, whereunto they all refort every Friday to keepe Thatistheir their Holiday. But, as I thinke, that will no longer endure, then whiles they doe line, that Temples. came from thence, for their posteritie is so consuled, that they have nothing of a Moore in them, but abstinence from Swines-fleih, and yet many of them doe eate thereof privily. They tell me that their native Countrey hath name Cumarian, a firme land, wherein bee many Kings, and the Indiff Countrey well knowne vnto them. It may to be: for as foone as they did fee our fernants (our fernants were Prenzaretes) they in ged them to hee Indians : many of their words founded upon the Perfice tongue, but none of vs could understand them. I asked them.

40 whither they converted any of the Chmijh Nation vnto their Sect : they answered me, that with much adoe, they concerted the women with whom they doe matrie, yeelding me no other cause thereof, but the difficultie they finde in them to bee brought from eating Swinesflesh, and drinking of Wine. I have learned mor over, that the Sea whereby thele Moores Is seemeth that came to China were wont to trauell, is a very great gulfe, that falleth into this Country they came up out from Tariania and Perfia, leaving on the other lide all the Countrey of China, and land the river from of the Mogernes, drawing alwayes toward the South : and of all likelyhood it is even fo, the Californies because that these Moores, the which wee have seene, bee rather browne then white, whereby they shew themselves to come from some warmer Countrey then China is, neere to Pachin, where the Rivers are frozen in the winter for cold, and many of them so vehemently, that Carts may paffe o .er them.

50 Weedid he in this Citie many Tartars, Mogorites, Bremes, and Laoynes, both men and Tartars. women. The Tartars are men very white, good Horse-men, and Archers, confining with China on that fide where Pachin standeth, separated from thence by great Mountaines that are betwixt thefe Kingdomes. Ouer them bee certaine wayes to paile, and for both fides, Ca- Monte Ulant. files continually k pt with Souldiers : in time past, the Tartars were wont alwayes to have w. rres with the Chineans, but these fourescore yeeres past they were quiet, vintill the second yeere of our Imprisonment.

The Mogores tree in like manner white, and Heathen wee are aduertifed that of one fide they border upon theie Tartars, and confine with the Perfiche Tartares on the other fide, whereof wee faw in them fome tokens, as their manner of cloathes, and that kinde of Hat the Sa-60 racens dee weare. The Moores firmed, that where the King lyeth, there bee many Tartars and Mogorites, hat I rought int. China certaine Blewes of great value.

As for the Bremes, were have beene in this Citie Chenchi certaine men and women, amongst Erines. whom, there was one that came not long time, having as yet her havre tyed up after the Pegues fashion: this woman, and other moe with whom a blacke Moore damosell in our company had conference, and did vnderstand them well enough, had dwelt in Pegbs. This new come woman, imagining that wee meant to make our abode in that Citie, bid vs to bee of good comfort, for that her Countrey was not distant from thence aboue fine dayes journey, and that out of her Countrey, there lay a high way for vs home into our owne. Being asked the way, shee answered that the first three dayes the way lyeth ouer certaine great mountaines and wildernesse, afterward people to bee met withall againe. Thence two dayes journey more to the Bromes Countrey. Wherefore I doe conclude, that Chenchi is one of the confines of this Kingdome, separated by certaine huge Mountaines, as it hath beene already fayd, that lye out towards the South. In the residue of these mountaines standeth the Prouince Sian, the Lasyns 10 Countrey, Cambaia, Chinapa, and Cochinchina,

CHAP. II.

Southward from Cherchi to the Sea. Ausins. Chenchi.

208

This Citte, chiefe of other fixteene, is fituated in a pleasant Playne, abounding in things necessarie, Sea-fish onely excepted, for it flandeth farre from the Sea : of fresh Fish so much store, that the Market-places are neuer emptie. The walls of this Citie arevery strong and high: one day did I fee the Lomeas thereof goe vpon the walls, to take the view thereof, borne in their feates I spake of before, accompanied with a troupe of Horse-men, that went two and two : It was told me they might have gone three and three. Wee have feene moreover, that within this aforefaid Citie the King hath more than a thousand of his kindred lodged in great Palaces, in divers parts of the Citie : their gates bee red, and the entrie into their houses, that they may be knowne, for that is the Kings colour. These Gentlemen, according to their 20 nearenesse in bloud wnto the King, as soone as they bee married, receive their place in Honour; this place neither encreaseth nor diminisheth in any respect, as long as the King liueth, the King appointeth them their Wines and Familie, allowing them by the moneth all things neceffarie abundantly, as hee doth to his Governours of Shires and Cities, howbeit, not one of these hath as long as hee lineth, any charge or government at all. They give themselves to eating and drinking, and bee for the most part burley men of bodie, insomnch that espying any one of them, whom wee had not feene before, wee might know him to bee the Kings Com fin. They bee neuertheleffe very pleafant, courteous, and fayre conditioned : neither did wee finde, all the time we were in that Citie, so much honour and good entertainment any where, as at their hands. They bid vs to their houses, to eate and drinke, and when they found vs not, or wee were not willing to goe with them, they bid our feruants, and flaues, caufing them to fit downe with the first. Notwithstanding the good lodging these Gentlemen have fo commodious that they want nothing, yet are they in this bondage, that during life they neuer goe abroad. The cause, as I did vinderstand, wherefore the King so vieth his Coufins, is that none of them at any time may rebell against him : and thus bee shutteth them vp in three or foure other Cities. Most of them can play on the Lute : and to make that kinde of pastime peculiar vnto them onely, all other in the Cities where they doe line, bee forbidden that Instrument, the Curtizans and blinde folke onely excepted, who bee Musicians,

No Lordsbut

This King furthermore, for the greater securitie of his Realme, and the anoyding of tumults, 40 letteth not one in all his Countrey to bee called Lord, except hee be of his bloud. Many great Estates and Gouernours there be, that during their office are lodged Lord-like, and doe beare the port of mightie Princes : but they bee so many times displaced , and other placed anew, that they have not the while to become corrupt. True it is, that during their Office they be well prouided for, as afterward, also lodged at the Kings charges, and in pension as long as they liue, payed them monethly in the Cities where they dwell, by certaine officers appointed for that purpose. The King then is a Lord onely, not one besides him as you have seene, except it bee such as be of his bloud. A Nephew likewise of the King, the Kings Sisters sonne, lyeth continu-lly within the walls of the Citie, in a strong Palace built Castle-wise, euen as his others Coufins doe, remayning alwayes within doores, serued by Eunuches, neuer dealing with 30 any matters. Their festivall dayes, new Moones, and full Moones, the Magistrates make great banquets, and so doe such as bee of the Kings bloud. The King his Nephew, hath name Vanful, his Palace is walled about, the wall is not high, but four fquare, and in circuit nothing inferiour to the walls of Goa, the out-fide is painted red, in every square a Gate, and over each gate a Tower, made of timber excellently well wrought : before the principall Gate of the foure, that openeth into the high-street, no Louises, bee he neuer so great, may passe on horsebacke, or carried in his feate. Amidft this quadrangle, flandeth the Palace where that Gentleman lyeth, doubtlesse, worth the fight, although wee came not in to see it. By report the roofes of the towers and house, are glased greene, the greater part of the Quadrangle set with faurage Trees, as Oakes, Chefnuts, Cypreffe, Pine-apples, Cedars, and other fuch like that wee doe want, after the manner of a Wood, wherein are kept Stagges, Oxen, and other beafts, for that Lord his recreation neuer going abroad, as I have faid.

One preheminence this Citie hath aboue the rest where wee haue beene, and it of right as we doe thinke, that besides the multitude of Market-places, wherein all things are to bee fold, the ugh enery threete continually are cryed all things necessarie, as Flesh of all forts, fresh-Fifh, H. arbes, Oyle, Vineger, Meale, Rice, In Jamma, all things to plentifully, that many houtes need no feruants, euerie thing being brought to their doores. Most part of the Merchants remayne in the Suburbs, for that the Civies are flut vp every night, as I have favd. The Merchants therefore, the better to attend their bufineile, doe choose rather to make their abode without in the Suburbs, then within the Citie. I have feene in this River a pretie kinde Fishing with of fishing, not to be comitted in my opinion, and therefore will I fet it downe. The King Comments, hath in many rivers good store of Barges full of Sca-crowes, that breed, are fed, and doe dye therein, in certaine Cages, allowed monethly a certaine promison of Rice. These Barges the they (wallow To King bestoweth vpon his greatest Magistrates, giving to some two, to some three of them, not their preg. as hee thinketh good, to Fish therewithall after this manner. At the houre appointed to Fish, One hash praas hee thinketh good, to thin the thinketh good, to the River is shallow, and the Crowes different all the Barges are brought together in a circle, where the River is shallow, and the Crowes different boundary.

boue, worth the looking vpon : each one as hee hath filled his bagge, goeth to his owne

Barge and emptieth it, which done, hee returneth to fish againe. Thus hauing tyed together under the wings, are let leape downe into the water, some under, some a-taken good store of Fish, they fet the Crowes at libertie, and doe suffer them to fish for their owne pleasure. There were in that Citie, where I was, twentie Barges at the leaft, of these aforesaid Crowes. I went almost euery day to see them. yet could I neuer bee throughly fatisfied to fee to strange a kinde of Fishing. ···)

T 3

PEREGRINATIONS. VOYAGES, DISCOVERIES,

OF CHINA, TARTARIA, RVSSIA,

AND OTHER THE NORTH AND EAST PARTS OF THE WORLD,

By English men, and others.

THE SECOND BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

The beginning of English Discourries towards the North, and North-east, by Sir Hven WILLOVGHBY, RICHARD CHANCEL-LOR, and others; of the Muscouie Trade, as also Voyages by Russia, ouer the Caspian Sea, and thorow divers Regions of Tartaria.

The first Voyage for Discouerie with three ships, set forth under the charge of Sir HVGH WILLOVGHBY Knight, in which he died; and Moscouia was discovered by Captaine

CHANCELLOR.

N the yeere of our Lord 1553, the feuenth of the Raigne of King Edward the fixth of famous memorie, Schaftian Cabota Seb. Cabota, was Genernour of the Mysterie and Companie of the Merchants Aduenturers for the discouerie of Regions, Dominions, Ilands, and places unknowne. Certaine inflractions were agreed See the partion by him and the faid Companie, subscribed by Matter Ca- see the partibota, the ninth of May; the Kings Letters also procured vinto fler Hacklusts remote Princes in divers languages, and a fleet of three Ships Printed Voyafet forth at that time vinder the command of Sir Hunb Wil. Sen, Ion. 1. longbby Knight, Captaine generall. which went in the Bona Esperanza Admirall, a ship of an hundred and twenty tunnes. having with her a Pinnace and a Boat : William Geffer for was Mafter of the faid ship. The Edward Bonauenture was of an hundred and fixty tunnes, and had with her a Pinnace and a Boat, in which went Rubard Chantellor, Captaine and Pilot Major of the fleet, and Siephen Burrough Matter. The Bona Confidentia of ninecy tunnes, had with her a Pinnace and a Boat, of which Cornelius Durfoorth was Mafter.

The first Voyn,e.
This difcourfe was were froz :n to Roff Hands.

212

The Captaines on I Mafters were fwome to doe their true intent, and the ships prouded of necollaries let forth on the tenth of May, 1553, for the discourse of Cathay, and divers other Regious, Dominions, Ilands, and places vnknowne. The fourteenth of July they discourted Land Eastward, and went on shoare with their Pinnace, and found thirty little houses, the Iniabi. foundwritten tants fied. The Land was full of little Hands, called as they after learned, Egeland and Hal. in the Sprange geland, in 66. degrees. The distance betweene Orfordrosse and Ageland two hundred and fifty leagues. Then we fayled from thence twelue leagues North-weft, and found many other land which were read a frage leagues. Then we fayled from thence twelue leagues North-west, and found many other Hands, where all the and there came to anchor the nineteenth day, and manned our Pinnace, and went on floure to the Hands, and found people mowing and making of Hay, which came to the shoare and welcommed vs. In which place were an innumerable fort of Hands, which were called the lles of to Rost, being under the Dominion of the King of Denmarke: which place was in latitude 66, de. grees and 30. minutes. The winde being contrarie, we remayined there three dayes, and there was an innumerable fort of Fowles of divers kindes, of which we tooke very many.

The two and twentieth day, the winde comming faire, wee departed from Roll, fayling North North-east, keeping the Sea vntill the seuen and twentieth day, and then we drew neer vnto the Land, which was fill Eaft off vs: then went forth our Pinnace to leeke harbour, and found many good barbours, of the which we entred into one with our thips, which was called Stanfew, and the Land being Hands, were called , Lewfoot, or Lefoot, which were plentifully inhabited, and very gentle people, being allownder the King of Demmarke: but wee could not learne how farre it was from the mayne Land; and we remayned there virtill the thertieth day, 20 being in latitude 68, degrees, and from the foresaid Ross about thirtie leagues North North east, The thirtieth day of July about noone, wee weighed our anchors, and went into the Seas.

and fayled along these slands North North-east, keeping the Landstill in fight votall the second

August.

Stanfer harbour.

Lofoot.

Sexua in 70.

The Edward

loft, or rather

ward found

Nicolas.

of Aveuit: then hailing in close aboord the Land, to the intent to know what Landit was, there came a Skiffe of the Hand abourd of vs, of whom wee asked many questions, who shewed unto vs. that the Hand was called Segnam, which is the latitude of scuenty degrees, and from Stanfew thirty leagues, being also under the King of Denmark, & that there was no merchandise there, but only dried fish, and Trane-oile. Then we being purposed to goe vitto Finmarke, enquired of him, it we might have a Pilot to bring vs to Finnarke, and he faid, that if we could beare in, we should have a good Harbour, and on the next day a Pilot to bring vs to Finnarke, vnto the Ward- 20 houte, which is the firongest Holi in Firmark, & most resorted to by report. But when he would have entred into an Harbour, the Land being very high on every fide, there came fuch flawes of wind and terrible whirle-winds, that we were not able to beare in, but by violence were conftrained to take the fea againe, our Pinnace being vnshipt: we failed North and by East, the wind encreasing to fore, that we were not able to beare any fayle, but tooke them in, and lay adrift, to the end to let the storme ouer-passe. And that night by violence of winde, and thicknesseof mills, we were not able to keepe together within light, and then about midnight wee loft our Pinnace, which was a dilcomfort vnto vs. As soone as it was day, and the fogge ouer-past, we looked about, and at the last wee descried one of our ships to lee-ward off vs: then wee spred an hullocke of our fore-fayle, and bare roome with her, which was the Confidence, but the Ed-40 mard we could not fee. Then the flaw formething abating, wee and the Confidence hoyfed vp our and entred the fayles the fourth day, fayling North-east and by North, to the end to fail with the Ward-house, as we did confult to doe before, in case we should part companie. Thus running North-east and by North, and North-east fifty leagues, then wee founded, and had one hundred and fixing fa-

> The eighth day much winde rising at the West North-west, we not knowing how the coust lay, firooke our fayles, and lay adrift, where founded and found one hundred and fixty fathoms as before. The ninth day, the winde bearing to the South South-east, we sayled North-east five 50 and twenty leagues. The tenth day we founded, and could get no ground, neither yet could fee any Land, whereat we wondered : then the winde comming at the North-east, we ran Southeast about eight and forty leagues. The eleventh day the winde being at South, wee sounded and found forty fathoms, and faire fand. The twelfth day, the winde being at South and by East, we lay with our sayle East, and East and by North thirty leagues.

thoms, whereby we thought to be farre from Land, and perceived that the Land lay not as the Globe made mention. Wherefore we changed our courfe the fixth day, and fayled South-caft and by South, eight and forty leagues, thinking thereby to finde the Ward-houle,

The fourteenth day early in the morning wee deferred Land, which Land wee bare withail, hoying out our Boat to discouer what land it might be : but the Boat could not come to Lani, the water was fo shallow, where was very much Icealfo, but there was no similaride of habitation, and this Land lieth from Seynam East and by North, one hundred and fixty leagues, being in latitude 72. degrees. Then we plyed to the Northward, the fitteenth, fixteenth, and feuen-

The eighteenth day, the winde comming at the North-east, and the Confidence being troubled with bilge water, and stocked, wee thought it good to seek harbour for her redresses then wee bare roome the eighteenth day South South-eafl, short feating leagues. The one and twentieth day wee founded, and found ten fathoms, after that wee founded againe, and found but feuen fathoms, to shallower and shallower water, and yet could fee no Land, whereat we maruelled greatly: to avoide this danger, we bare toomer into the Sea all that night Northwest and by West.

CHAP.I.S.I. Tedious iourney and deare bought. Arzina in Lapland.

The next day we founded, and had twenty fathoms, then shaped our course, and ranne West South-west vntill the three and twentieth day: then we descried lowe Land, vnto which wee bare as nigh as we could, and it appeared vnto vs vnhabitable. Then we plyed Westward along by that Land, which lieth West South-west, and East North east, and much winde blowing at the West, we haled into the Sea North and by East thirtie leagues. Then the winde comming 10 about at the North-east, wee sayled West North-west: after that, the winde bearing to the North-west, wee lay with our sayles West South-west, about fourteene leagues, and then descried Land, and bare in with it, being the eight and twentieth day, finding shallow water, and bare in till we came to three fathom, then perceiting it to be shallow water, and also seeing drie fands, we haled out againe North-east along that Land, viitill we came to the point thereof. That Land turning to the Westward, we ranne along fixteene leagues North-west: then comming into a faire Bay, we went on Land with our Boat, which place was vninhabited, but yet it appeared vnto vs that the people had beene there, by croffes, and other fignes: from thence we went all along the coast Westward.

The fourth day of September we loft fight of Land , by reason of contrarie windes, and the September. 20 eighth day we descried Land againe. Within two dayes after we loft the fight of it : then running West and by South about thirtie leagues, we gat the fight of Land againe, and bare in with it vntill night: then perceiuing it to bee a lee shoare, we gat vs into the Sea, to the end to have Sea roome. The twelfth of September wee haled to shoare-ward againe, having then indifferent winde and weather: then being neere vnto the shoare, and the tide almost spent, wee came to an anchor in thirtie fathoms water. The thirteenth day we came along the coast, which lay North-weit and by West, and South-east and by East. The fourteenth day we came to an anchor within two leagues off the shoare, having fixtie farhoms. There wee went ashoare with our Boat, and found two or three good Harbours, the Land being rocky, and high, but as for people could we see none. The fifteenth day we ran still along the coast vntill the seventeenth 30 day: then the winde being contrarie vnto vs, we thought it best to returne vnto the Harbout which we had found before, and so we bare roomer with the same, howbeit wee could not accomplish our defire that day. The next day being the eighteenth, we entred into the Hauen, and there came to an anchor at fix fathoms. This Hauen runneth into the Mayne, about two leagues, In this Hauen and is in bredth halfe a league, wherein were very many Seale-fifthes, and other great fifthes, and they died. vpon the Mayne wee faw Beares, great Decre, Foxes, and divers strange beasts, as * Guloines, *Or, Ellonsand such other which were to vs vaknowne, and also wonderfull. Thus remayning in this Hamen the space of a weeke, seeing the yeere farre spent, and also very euill weather, as Frost, Snow, and Hayle, as though it had beene the deepe of Winter, wee thought best to winter there. Wherefore we fent out three men South South-west, to search if they could finde peo-40 ple, who went three dayes journey, but could finde none : after that, we fent other three Westward foure dayes journey, which also returned without finding any people. Then sent we three Herreendeth men South-eaft three dayes journey, who in like fort returned without finding of people, or any Sir Hugh with fimilitude of habitation.

The River or Haven wherein Sir Hugh Willoughby with the companie of his two ships perio was written shed for cold, is called Arzina in Lapland, neere vnto Kegor. But it appeareth by a Will found withhis owne in a ship that Sir Hugh Willongbby, and most of the companie were alive in Ianuary, 1554.

note, which

A Letter of RICHARD CHANCELLOR, written to his Vncle Master CHRISTOPHER FROTHING AM, touching his discouerie of Molsonia.

Constructs as it is meet and necessaries for all those that minds to take in hand the travell into strange Countries, to endeauour themselves not onely to understand the orders, commodities, and fruits things thereof, but also to apply them to the setting forth of the same, whereby it may incourage others to the the transit is therefore have I now bought good to make a brief exheat fall of the order of thu my tra-nell in Rulla, and Mutcouit, and other Countries thereunto adopting the case it was my thones to fall with the North parts of Russia, before I came towards Moscouia, I will partly declare my knowledge therein. Rulia is very plentiful both of Land and People, and also wealthie for such commodities as they 60 bane. They be very great fishers for Salmons and small Cods: they have much Oyle which wee call Trane Oyle, the most whereof is made by a River called Dains. They make it in other places, but not Duine, so much as there. They have also a great trade in seething of salt water. To the North part of that Countrey are the places where they have their Furres as Sables, Marterns, greeffe Beuers, Foxes white, blacke, and red, Minkes, Ermines, Miniuer, and Harts. There are also a filhes teeth, which file is degrees.

W. Houghby his Land, in 72.

cili.d. 1 Morsse. The takers thereof dwell in a place called Postesora, which bring them upon Harts to Lampas to fell, and from Lampas carrie them to a place called Colmogro, where the high Market is holden on Saint Nicolas day. To the West of Colmogro there is a place called Gratanoue, in our Linguage Nouogorode, where much fine Flaxe and Hempe groweth, and also much Waxe and Home. The Dutch Merchants basea Staple-house there. There is also great store of Hides, and at a place called Plesco: and thereabout is great store of Flaxe, Hempe, Waxe, Honie; and that Towne is from Colmogro one hundred and twentse miles.

There is a place called Vologda; the commodities whereof are Tallow, Waxe, and Flaxe: but not so great plentie as is in Gratanoue. From Vologda to Colmogro there runnesh a River called Duina, Jagrens peans as a falleth into the Sea. Colmogro ferneth Gratanoue, Vologda, and the Moko, with 10 all the Country thereabout with Salt and falt Fish. From Vologia to Ieresiaue is two hundred mileswhich Towne is very great. The commodules thereof are Hides, and Tallow, and Corne in great plentie, and some Waxe, but not so plentsfull as in other places.

The Mosco is from Ierallane two bundred miles. The Country betwirt them is very well replant feed with justall illages, which are so well silled with people, that it is wonder to see sten; the ground is w. I stored with sorne, which they carrie to the Citie of Mosco in such abundance that it is wonder to fee it. You shall meet in a morning senen or eight bundred Sleds comming or going this ber, that carrie Corne, and some carrie file. You hall have some that carrie Corne to the Molco, and some that jetch Corne from thence, that at the least dwell a thousand miles off: and all their carriage is on Sleds, Those which come so farre dwell in the North parts of the Dukes Dominions, where the cold will suffer 10 no Corne to grow, it is so extreme. They bring thither Fishes, Furres, and Beasts skinnes. Inthose parts they have but (m.: Il store of Cassell, Mofce.

The Mosco st selfe is great: I take the whole Towne to be greater then London with the Suburbes: but it is very rude, and standeth without all order. Their houses are all of timber very dangerous for fire. There is a faire Castle, the walls whereof are of bricke, and very high : they say they are eighteene foot thicke, but I doe not beleeve it, it doth not so seeme; notwithstanding, I doe not certainly know it for no stranger may come to view it. The one side is disched, and on the other side runneth a Riner, called Moti ua , which runneth into Tartarie, and fo into the Sea, called Mare Calpium : and on the North side there is a base Towne, the which hath also a Bricke wall about it, and so it in neth with the Castle wall. The Emperour lieth in the Castle, wherein are nine faire Churches, and therein are Reli- 30 gious men. Also there is a Metropolisan with diners Bishops, I will not stand in description of their buildings, nor of the strength thereof, because we have better in all points in England. They be well furnished with Ordnance of all forts.

The Emperours or Dukes house neither in building nor in the outward shew, nor yet within the house is so sumptuous as I have seene. It is very lowe built in eight square, much like the old building of England, with finall windowes, and fo in other points.

Now to declare my comming before his Maiestie: After I had remained twelve dayes, the Secreturie which hath the bearing of strangers did send for mee, advertising me that the Dukes pleasure was to have me to come before his Masejtie, with the King my Masters Letters: whereof I was right glad. Hee commeth and fo I gauc mine attendance. And when the Duke was in his place appointed, the Interpreter came 42 for mee into the outer Chamber, where sate one hundred or moe Gentlemen, all in cloth of Gold very Sumpruoses, and from thence I came into the Counfell-chamber, where fate the Duke himselfe, with his Nobles, which were a faire companie: they sate round about the Chamber on high, yet so that he himselfe (ate much higher then any of his Nobles, in a Chaire gilt, and in a long garment of beaten Gold, with an Imperiall Crowne upon his head, and a Staffe of Crystall and Gold in his right hand, and his other hand halfe le ning on his Chaire. The Chancellour flood up with the Secretarie before the Duke. After my distie done, and my Letter delivered, he bade me welcome, and enquired of mee the health of the King my Master, and I answered, that he was in good health at my departure from his Court, and that my trust was, that he was now in the same. Upon the which he bade me to dinner. The Chancellor presented my Present unto his Grace bare-headed (for before they were all conered) and when his Grace 50 bid received my Letter, I was required to depart: for I had charge not to speake to the Duke, but when be frake to mee. So I departed unto the Secretaries Chamber, where I remained two hours, and then I was fent for againe unto another Palace, which is called, The golden Palace, but I fam no cause why it should be so called; for I have seene many fairer then it in all points: and so I came into the Hall, which was small and not great as is the Kings Maiesties of England, and the Table will covered with a Table-cloth; and the Marshall sate at the end of the Table with a little white rod in his

Dineth with

before the

boord of Plate. From thence I came into the during Chamber, where the Duke himselfe sate at kis Table without Cloth of estate, in a Gowne of Silver, with a Crowne Imperiall upon his head, he fate in a Chaire sime- 60 what high: there fate none neere himby a great way. There were long tables fet round about the chamber, which were full fet with such as the Duke had at dunner: they were all in white. Also the places where the tables stood were higher by two steps then the rest of the house. In the middlest of the chimber food a Table or Cupboord to fet Plate on; which feedfull of Cups of Gold: and among tall the band, which Board was full of vessell of Gold: and on the other side of the Hall did stand a faire Cap-

CHAP.I.S.I. Order of feruice, His forces, Armour and attyre, Hardinesse, rest there stood source maruelloms great Pots or Crudences as they call them, of Gold and Silver: I thinks they were a good yard and abalfe high. By the Cupboa'd flood two Gentlemen with Napkins on their shoulders, and in their hands each of them had a Cup of Gold set with Pearles and Precious Golden Vell-1. Stones, which were the Dukes owne drinking Cups: when hee was disposed, hee drunke them off at a draught. And for his seruice at meate it came in without order, yet it was very rich seruice: for all were served in Gold; not onely be himselfe, but also all the rest of us, and it was very massive: the Cups also were of Gold and very massie. The number that dined there that day was two bundred persons and all were ferued in Golden Vessell. The Gentlemen that wayted were all in Cloth of Gold, and they ferned him with their Caps on their heads. Before the fernice came in , the Duke fent to enery man a 10 great shines of Bread, and the Bearer called the party so sent to by his name alonds, and said, should be Bastlinich Emperour of Russia, and great Duke of Moscoura, doth reward thee with Bread: then must all men stand up, and doe at all times when those words are spoken. And then last of all kee gineth the Marshall Bread, whereof he eateth before the Dukes Grace, and so doth renerence and departeth. Then commeth the Dukes service of the Swans all in pieces, and every one in a severall dish: the which the Duke sendeth as be did the Bread, and she Bearer saith the same words as bee said before. And as I faid before, the service of his meate is in no order, but commeth in Dish by Dish: and then after that the Duke fundeth drinke, with the like faying as before is told. Also before Dinner be changed Crowne chanhis Crowne, and in Dinner time two Crownes; fo that I faw three severall Crownes upon his head in ged. one day. And thus when his seruice was all come in, hee gaue to enery one of his Gentlemen Wayters 20 meate with his owne hand, and so likewise drinke. His intent thereby is, as I have beard, that enery man

Shall know perfectly his sernants. Thus when Dunner is done hee callesh his Nobles before him name by name, that it is wonder to beare how he could name them, having so many at hee hath. Thus when Dinner was done I departed to my Lodging, which was an houre within night. I will leane this, and Speake no more of him nor his Housbold: but I will somewhat declare of his Land and people, with their nature and power in the Warrer. This Duke is Lord and Emperour of ma- Dukes forces. ny Countries, and his power is marnellous great. For bee is able to brung into the field two or three bundred thou fand men : be neuer goeth into the field him felfe with under two hundred thou fand men : And when hee goeth himselfe, hee farmisheth his Border; all with men of Warre, which are no small number, Heleaneth on the Borders of Liefland forthe thou fand men, and upon the borders of Letto, fixthe thon-30 fand men, and toward the Nagayan Tartars fixthe thousand, which is wonder to heare of : yet doth hee neuer take to his Warres neither Husbandman nor Merchant. All his men are Horfe-men: hee ofeth no Foot-men, but such as goe mish the Ordnance and Labourers, which are there ibousand. The Atmourand Horse-men are all Archers, with such Bowes as the Turkes have, and they ride stort as doe the Turkes. richaryse. Their Armour is a Coate of Plate, with a skull on their heads. Some of their Coates are concred with Velues or Cloth of God : their defire is to be sumpsuosus in the sield, and especially the Nobles and Gentlemen: as I have heard their trimming is very costly, and partly I have seene it, or else I would scarcely haue beleened it : but the Duke humselfe is richty attyred aboue all measure : hie Paution is concred eyther with Cloth of Gold or Silmer, and so set with stones that it is wonderfull to see it, I have seen the Kings Maiesties of England and the French Kings Paulions, which are faire yet not like onto his. 40 And when they be fent into farre or strange Countries, or that strangers come to them, they be very gorgeom. Elfe the Duke himselfe goeth but meanly in apparell: and when hee goeth betwirt one place and another bee is but reasonably apparelled ouer other times. In the while that I was in Mosco, the Duke fent two Ambassadours to the King of Paleland, which had at the lest fine hundred Horses; their sumptuousnesse was about measure, not onely in themselves, but also in their Horses, as Velues, Cloth of Jampinsus see the second mediace, not one; y micromether, one my method for the second of Extremether (Sold, and Cloth of Silver fee with Pearles, and one search, What shall I further say? I never beard of Extremether (Sold and Cloth of Silver fee with Pearles, and one search that the second of Extremether (Sold and Cloth of Silver fee with Pearles). nor faw men so sumptnous : but it is no daily guize, for when they have not occasion, as I saidbefore, all their doing n but meane. And now to the effect of their Warres: They are men without all order in the Vadiciplined field. For they run hurling on heaps, and for the most pare they never give hattayle to their Enemies: but Souldists.

that which they do, they do it all by sealth. But I believe they be such men for hard lining as arens under SO the Sunne : for no cold will have them. Tea, and though they be in the field two moneths, at fuch time as Hardinetic. is shall freeze more then a gard thicke, the common Souldier bath neither Tent nor any thing else ouer to your present of the place and the weather to a Felt, which is fet against the wind and one ocean : oce comp un season or some or automotion of and makesh him a fire, and legeth him downer weather, and when Swar commeth he dothe cast it off, and makesh him a fire, and legeth him downer thereby. Thus doe the most of all bie men except they be Gentlemen which have other provision of their owne. They tying in the field is not so strange is is their hardnesse: for every man must carrie and make prossition for himfelfe, and his Harfe for a moneth or two, which is very wonderfull. For hee himfelfe shall twe voon water and Oate-meale mingled together cold, and drinke water thereto: his Horse Pall cate greene wood, and Juch like bag sage, and shall stand open in the cold field without court, and ye will bee liber and first bim right well. I pray you amongst all our boufting Wariours bow many Jes min nee sucom and serve men reger neu. 1 pray you among et au our couping ou man serve of 60 seould we find to endure the field with them but one moneth. I know no such Region about us that becareth that name for man and beaft. Now what mught bee made of these men of they were trayned and broken to order and knowledge of Civil Warres: if this Prince had within his Countries such men as could make them to understand the things aforefaid. I doe believe that two of the best or greatst Princes in Christendome were not well able to match with bins, considering the greatnesse of his power and the hardnesse of his people, and straight lusing both of people and Horse, and the small charges which his Wars frand him in: for he questo no mages, except to firangers. They have a yearely firpend and not much. As for bu swne Countreymen, enery one serueth of his swne proper costs and cl. arges, saving that hee gineth to bit Harquebusters certains allowance for Powder and Ibst: or elfe no man in all bit. Country

216

Knights Fee. buth one penie wages. But if any man hath done very good firmce, be gineth him a Ferme, or a piece of Land; for the which be is bound at all times to be readie with so many men as the Duke shall appoint; who considereth in his minde, what that Land or Ferme is well able to find: and so many shall be be bound to furnish at all and enery such time as Warres are holden in any of the Dukes Dominions. For there is no man of lining, but be is bound likewise, whether the Duke call for either Souldier or Labourer, to furnish them with all such necessaries as to them belong.

Duke heire Generall

Alfo, if any Gentleman or man of living doe dye without Ifice Male, immediately after his death the Duke entreth bis Land, notwithstanding be base neuer so many Daughters, and peraduenture guest it forth with to another man, except a small portion that he spareth to marry the Daughters withall. Alle. if there be a Rich man, a Fermour, or man of Liuing, which is stricken in age or by chance is maymed. and be not able to doe the Duke fernice, fome other Gentleman that is not able to line and more able to doe service, will come to the Duke and complaine, saying, your Grace bath such an one, which is vemeete to doe fernice to your Highnesse, who hash great abundance of wealth, and likewise your Grace hath many Gentlemen which are poore and lacke liming, and we that lacke are well able to doe good fersice. your Grace might doe well to looke upon him, and make him to beloe those that want. Immediate. ly the Duke senderh fortheo inquire of his wealth: and if it be so proved, hee shall be called before the ab Duke, and at shall bee fand unto him, Friend, you have too much liming, and are unserwiceable to your Prince, lesse will serue you, and the rest will serue other men that are more able to serue. Whereupon immediately his living shall be taken away from him, saving a little to find himselfe and his Wife on and be may not once repone thereat : but for an swere hee will say, that bee bath nothing, but it is Gods and the Dakes Graces, and cannot fay, as wee the common people in England fay, if wee have any thing; that it is Gods and our owne. Men may fay, that these men are in wonderfull great awe, and obedience, that thus one must give and grant his goods which he hath beene scraping and scratching for all his life to be at his Princes pleasure and commandement. Ob, that our sturdie Rebels were bad in the like subsection to know their dutie toward their Princes. They may not fay as some Snudges in England fay, would find the Queene a man to ferue in my place, or make his Friends tarrie as home if mony base the W opper hand. No. no st is not fo in this Country; for be Shall make bumble fute to ferne the Duke. And whom he fendeth most to the Warres hae thinketh he so most in his favour : and yet as I before have faid. be givet bno wages. If they knew their strength, no man were able to make match with them : for they that dwell veere them should have any rest of them. But I thinke it is not Gods will : For I may compare them to a young Horse that knoweth not his strength, whom a little (bild ruleth and guideth with a bridle, for all his great strength: for if he did, neither Child nor man could rule him. Then Warres are holden against the Crimme Tarrarians, and the Nagayans. I will stand no longer in the rehearfall of their power and Warres. For it were to tediom to the Rea-Centlemen, der. But I will in part declare their Lawes, and Tunishments, and the execution of Inflice. And first

No wages.

I will begin with the Commons of the Country, which the Gentlemen nauerule on : And that is, that 40 enery Gentleman bath Rule and lustice upon his owne Tenants. And if it fo fall out that two Gentlemens Servants or Tenants doe disagree, the two Gentlemen examine the matter, and bane the parties Suits & tryals. before them, and fo give the Sentence. And yet cannot they make the end betweet them of the Controuerfie, but e ther of the Gentlemen must bring bis Seruant or Tenant before the high Sudge or Luffice of that Country, and there present them, and declare the matter and case. The Plaint: fe faith, Irequire the Law; which ss granted : then commeth an Officer and arresteth the partie Defendant, and ve feth him contrary to the Lawes of England. For when they attach any man, they beate him about the legs, untill such time as he findeth Sureties to answere the matter : And if not, his hands and necke are bound together, and bee is led about the Towne, and beaten about the legs, with other extreme pumph. ments till be come to his Answere: And the Suffice demandeth if it bee for Debt, and Sarth : Owest 50 thou this man any such Debi? He will, perhaps, say nay. Then saith the Indoe: Art thou able to dem it? Let us beare bow? By Oath, faith the Defendant. Then he commandeth to leave beating him till further tryall be had. Their order in one point is commendable. They have no man of Law to plead their Causes in any Court : but every man pleadeth his owne Caufe, and giveth Bill and A fivere in writing : contrary to the order in England. The Complaint is in manner of a Supplication, and made to the Dukes Grace, and delinered him into his owne hand, requiring to have Instice as in his Complaint is alleaged. The Duke sineth sentence himselfe upon all matters in the Law. Which is very commendable, that such a Prince will take paines to fee ministration of Inflice. Yet notwithstanding it is wonderfully abused : and thereby the Duke is much deceived. But if it fall out that the Officers be effied in cloking the truth shey have most condigne punishment. And if the Plaintiffe can nothing prove, then the Defendant must take 63 bis Oath upon the Crucifice, whether he be in the right or no. Then is demanded, if the Plaintiffe bee Combattiall. any thing able further to make proofe: if he be not; then sometimes he will say, I am able to proue it by my body and hands, or by my Champions body, so requiring the Campe. After the other hath his Oath, it is granted as well to the one as to the other. So when they goe to the field, they sweare upon the Crucifixe, that they bee both in the right, and that the one shall make the other to confesse the truth before they depart foorth of the field: and so they goe both to the bastell armed with such weapons as they wie m that Country : they fight all on foot, and seldome the parties themselves doe fight, except they bee Gentlemen, for they (tand much upon their reputation, for they will not fight, but with such as are come of as good an house as themselves. So that if either partie require the combate, it is granted unto them, and no Champion is to serue in their roome; wherein is no deceit; but otherwise by champions there is, For although they take great oathes upon them to doe the battell truely, yet is the contrary often seene : because the common Champions baue no other lining. And assome as the one partie bath gotten the victorie, hee 10 demandeth the debt, and the other is carried to Prifon, and there is hamefully a fed till bee take order.

No Lawyer.

CHAP.I.S.I. Punishments, miserable poore, Service, Prazers, Creed, GC.

There is also another order in the Law, that the plaintiffe may sweare in some causes of debt. And if the partie defendant bee poore, bee shall be set under the Crucifixe, and the partie plaintiffe must sweare ouer his bead, and when bee bath taken his oath, the Duke taketh the partie defendant home to his house, and vieth him as his bond-man, and patteth him to labour, or letteth him for hire to any Bondage. such as neede him, untill such time as bu friends make provision for his redemption : or else bee remayneth in bondage all the dayes of his life. Againe, there are many that will fell themselves to Punishments Gentlemen or Merchants, to bee their bond men, to have during their life, meate, drinke and cloath, for Crimete and at their comming to base a piece of money, yea, and some will sell their wines and children to be bawds and drudges to the buyer. Also they bine a Law for Fellons and pickers contrary to the Lawes of Eng-20 land. For by their Law they can hang no man for his first offence ; but may keepe him long in Prison, and oftentimes be ate him with whips and other punishment: and there bee shall remaine untill his fisends bee able to bayle him. If hee be a picker or a cut-purse, as there bee very many, the second time he is taken, hee bath a piece of his Nose cut off, and is burned in the fore-head, and kept in prison till be finde sureties for his good behaviour. And if bee be taken the third time, he is hanged. And at the first time hee is extreamely punished and not released, except be baue very good friends, or that some Gentleman require to have him to the warres : And in fo doing, hee shall enter into great bonds for him : by niteman require to country is brought into good quietnesse. But they bee naturally given to great de-Beating, ceit, except extreame beating did bridle them. They bee naturally ginen to bardlining as wellin fare as in lodging. I beard a Ruffian say, that it was a great deale merrier liuing in Prison then foorth, 30 but for the great beating. For they have meate and drinke without any labour, and get the charitie of well disposed people: But being at libertie they get nothing. The poore is very innumerable, and line most miserably: for I have seene them eate the pickle of Herring and other stinking Fish: nor the Fish. cannot bee fo flinking nor rotten, but they will eate it and praise it to bee more whole some then other filb or fresh meate. In mine opinion there bee no such people under the Sunne for their hardnesse of lining. Well, I will leave them in this point , and will in part declare their Religion.

They doe observe the Law of the Greekes with such excesse of superstition, as the like hath not beene Superstition, beard of. They have no graven Images in their Churches, but all painted, to the intent they will not breake the Commandement: but to their painted Images they we such Idolatrie, that whe like was never Images and heard of in England. They will neither worship wor bonour any Image that is made foor th of their owne Pidures. 40 Countrey. For their owne Images (fay they) have Pictures to declare what they bee, and how they be of God, and he not ours: They for, looke how the Painter or Caruer hath made them, he wee doe wor-loop them, and they woofloop none before they bee Christened. They fay wee be but halfs Christians: because we observe not part of the old Law with the Turkes. Therefore they call themselves more boly then us. They have none other learning but their mother tongue, nor will suffer no other in their Coun- Mothet tongue trey among them. All their service in Churches is in their mother tongue. They have the old and new Testament, which are daily read among them : and yet their superstation is no lesse. For when the Service. Priests doeveade, they have such trickes in their reading, that no man can understand them, nor no man givetheare to them. For all the while the Priest readeth, the people fit downe and one talke with another. But when the Priest is at fernice no man litteth, but gaggle and ducke like so many Geese. And as 50 for their prayers they baue but little skill, but vife to fay, As bods pomele : As much to fay, Lord have Prayers.

mercie vpon me. For the tenth man within the Land cannot fay the Pater nofter. And at for the Creed no man may bee so bold as to meddle therewith but in the Church : for they say it should not be spo. Creed. ken of, but in the Churches. Speake to them of the Commandements, and they will say they were given Commande. to Moses in the Law, which Christ hath now abrogated by his precious Death and Passion : there- ments, fore, (say they) wee observe little or none thereof. And I doe beleeve them. For if they were examined of their Law and Commandements together, they flould agree but in few points. They have the Sacra-ment of the Lords Supper in both hindes, and more ceremonies then we have. They prefers them in a diffe en both kinds together, and carrie them round about the Church upon the Priests head, and so doe minister at all such times as any shall require. They bee great offerers of Candles, and Sometimes of money, which Candles,

60 wee call in England, Soule pence, with more ceremonies then I am able to declare. They have foure Leuts in the yeere, whereof our Lent is the greatest. Looke as wee doe begin on the Foure Lenis. Wednesday, so they doe on the Munday before : And the weeke before that they call the Butter weeke: And in that weeke shey eate nothing but Butter and Milke. Howbeit I beleeve there bee in no other Countrey the like people for Drunkennesse. The next Lent is called Saint Peters Lent, and begin-

Vices.

Abbies.

218

noted alwayes for corrumany news 1950s a some common, non someon we walth feters kenen. If they should be pake that Fall, their beliefe is, that they should not come in as. Heavier gates. And when any of them day, they beam a session with whom the four comments to Heavier gates it may deliner the same to Saint Peter, which declareth that the partie is a true and both Ruffin, The third Lent beginneth fifteene dayer before the later Lady day, and orders on our Lady Ecnes, The fourth Lent beginneth on Saint Martins day, and endeth on Christmas Ection : which Lent is Chiefe Sainte, fulled for Saint Philip, Saint Peter, Saint Micholas, and Saint Clement. Per they foure ber the fassed for Saint Philip, Saint Peter, Saint Baichdag, and Saint Clement. For they foure bee the principal and greates Saint in that Construct. In these tenses they eare neither Busice, Egges, Addig, now Cheese; so we they are every fireignly how which 2%, Cohadrage, and Reviews. And his of first Louis, they observe reach the Cohadrage and Foodages throughout the years; and on the Saingled they are set such as a great number of Redgeme were: which we bleek Alamber, and they care as Idea throughout they are not been such as the cohadrage and they care as Idea throughout the years, but Fish, Addig and Butter. By they are they were the cohadrage and the co Monket, and they act we Bidle torougness the years, was bise, cause and water. By their order they found date we fright by, and in bore terms they act we thing has Colomors, Cabbages, fair Commbert, with other reases, as Radio and help below Their drube is the own period det, and as salted Quiff. They have corriected in their Councies; and off as agas to fermice was hourse before day, and their is end by day light. At since of the clark they are to Maffe: these ended, so Bomes, and offer that to fractice against and their to Suppose. They have described in the condition of the Galaul that day: has been they went and mules we retrieved. sice agains: and then to Supper. Two field underfland that as comine dismort and fupper they have di-clared the exposition of the Cofficial back as; how how they week and moune she Septente and that to, gether, by report is in wanderful. It is the theoretimes and Drumbanusfe these bearing field liming, and for Extroition, they here the mild design that the same. How indees of short behinds, And have truly at mostly lead at the Darke brought hat he has up to be in readmark error with the field at they. They they lack brides of any of the power and fumple, here hash is by an order. When the Abbes of any of their Indias daysh, show the Darke bash at his copied mountaints on the mountaints. It is that the Sacqiffian beyond at the Darke bands is and by they means they her the New Years with Darke bank. Thus with their Relians I was a made and maddles. Let best Fermer; the Dake bath. Thus with their Rollings I make an end, profine bereafter to know

Some additions for better knowledge of this Voyage, taken by Chement Adams, Schoole-maßer to the Queene Henhamen, from the month of Captaine Chament hance how.

Thane this booke of clement Adams, is Latine, written in a very elegant hand and elegant ftile to King Philip; (as I Sill cheed Chancelor with his Ship and companie being thus left alone, and become very pensiue, heavie, and somowfull, by this dispersion of the Fleet, hee (according to the order before taken, dapeth his course for Ward boufe in Normey, there to expect and abide the arruell of the safe of the Shipe, And being come thither, and having flave ed there the space of season dayes, and looked in vaine for their comming, hee determined at fength to proceed-done in the puspoice soyage. And as hee was preparing himselfe to depart, it happened that hee fell in companie and speech week certains Scotton aren: who having vo-40 deritanding of his intention, and withing well to his actions, began earneftly to diffwade him from the further profesurion of the discourie, by amplifying the dangers which hee was to fell into, and omitted no reason that might serve to that purpose. But he holding nothing so ignominious and representatillas incontancie and leurite of minde, and perswading himtelfe that a man of valour could not commit a more dishonourable part, then for feare of danger to anoyd and the great property of the state that to paffe which was intended, or elfe to dye the death,

And as for them which were with Master Chancelon in his Ship, although they had great cause of discomfort by the lost of their companie (whom the forestaid tempest had separated 5) from them, ) and were not a little troubled with cogitations and perturbations of minde, in refrect of their doubtfull course ; yet not withstanding, they were of such confert and agreement of minde with Master Chancelor, that they were refolute, and prepared wnder his direction and gover ment, to make proofe and tryall of all adventures, without all feare or miltruft of future dangers. Which constancie of minde in all the companie did exceedingly increase their Captaines carefulnesse; for hee being swallowed up with like good will and love towards them, feared left shrough any errour of his, the fafesic of the companie should bee indangered. To conclude, when they faw theirdefire and hope of the arrivall of the rest of the Ships to bee enery day more and more frustrated, they prouided to Sea againe, and Master Chancelor held on his courie towards that volknowne part of the world, and layled fo farre, that hee came at last to the 60 place where hee found no night at all, but a continuall light and brightnesse of the Sunne shi-Thoy arise in ning electely upon the luge and mightic Sea. And having the benefite of this perpetuall light the Bay of Saint Nitholar.

For certaine dayes, at the length is pleated trod to bung them line activation for mewhat farre within was of one hundreth miles or there about oner. Whereinto they entred, and formewhat farre within within it cast anchor, and looking every way about them, it happed that they espeed a farre off a certaine Fisher-hoate, which Master Chancelor, accompanied with a few of his men, went towards to common with the Fishermen that were in it, and to know of them what Countrey it was, and what people, and of what manner of living they were : but they being amazed with the strange great nesse of his ship, (for in those parts before that time, they had never seene the like) began prefently to auoyd and to flee : but hee still following them, at last ouertooke them. and being come to them, they (being in great feare, as men halfe dead ) proftrated themselves before him, offering to kiffe his feete : but hee (according to his great and fingular courtefie,) looked pleasantly upon them, comforting them by signes and gestures, refusing those duties and To reverences of theirs, and taking them up in all louing fort from the ground. And it is strange to confider how much fauour afterwards in that place, this humanitie of his did purchase to himselfe. For they being dismissed, spread by and by a report abroad of the arrivall of a strange Nation, of a fingular gentlenesse and courtesse: whereupon the common people came together, offering to these new-come ghests victuals freely, and not refusing to traffique with them, except they had beene bound by a certaine religious vie and cuttome, not to buy any fortaine commodities, without the knowledge and confent of the King.

CHAP. I. S.I. Difcouerie of Russia by Englishmen, their Entertainment.

By this time our men had learned, that this Countrey was called Ruffia, or Mufcouie, and The Difeour that Inan Vallimich (which was at that time their Kings name) ruled and governed farre and ricos Russia wide in those places. And the barbarous Ruffer asked likewise of our men whence they were, and what they came for : whereunto answer was made, that they were Englishmen sent into those coasts, from the most excellent King Edward the fixt, having from him in commandement certaine things to deliuer to their King, and feeking nothing elie but his amitie and friendthip, and traffque with his people, whereby they doubted not, but that great commoditie and profit would grow to the subjects of both Kingdomes.

The Barbarians heard these things very gladly, and promised their ayde and furtherince to acquaint their King out of hand, with so henest and a reasonable a request. In the meane time Mafter Chancelor intreated victuals for his money, of the Gouernour of that place (who together with others came abourd him) and required hostages of them likewise, for the more affurance of safetie to himselfe and his companie. To whom the Governours answered, that they 30 knew not in that case the will of their King, but yet were willing in fuch things as they might lawfully doe, to pleasure him : which was as then to affoord him the benefit of victuals.

Now, while these things were a doing, they secretly sent a messenger vnto the Emperous, to Messengerseas certifie him of the arrivall of a strange Nation, and withall to know his pleasure concerning to the Empethem. Which message was very welcome vnto him, infomuch that voluntarily he inuited them rour. to come to his Court. But if by reason of the tediousnesses of so long a journey, they thought it not best so to doe, then hee granted libertie to his Subiects to bargaine, and to traffique with them: and further promised, that if it would please them to come to him, hee himselfe would beare the whole charges of poste Horses. In the meane time the Gouernours of the place, differred the matter from day to day, pretending divers excuses, and saying one while, that the consent of all 40 the Gouernours, and another while, that the great and weightie affaires of the Kindome compelled them to differ their answer: and this they did of purpele, so long to protract the time, vntill the messenger (sent before to the King) did returne with relation of his will and plcasure.

But Master Chancelor, (seeing himselfe held in this suspense with long and vaine expectation, and thinking that of intention to delude him, they posted the matter off so often,) was very inflant with them to performe their promile : Which if they would not doe, hee told them that he would depart and proceed in his voyage. So that the Muscounter (although as yet they knew not the minde of their King) yet fearing the departure indeed of our men, who had such wares and commodities as they greatly defired, they at last resoluted to surnish our people with all things necessarie, and to conduct them by land to the presence of their King. And to Master 50 Chancelor began his journey, which was very long and most troublesome, wherein he had the vie of certaine fleds, which in that Countrey are very common, for they are carried themselves vpon fleds, and all their carriages are in the same fort, the people almost not knowing any other manner of carriage, the cause whereof is, the exceeding hardnesse of the ground congealed in the Winter time by the force of the cold, which in those places is very extreame and horrible, whereof hereafter wee will fay fomething. But now they having passed the greater part of their journey, met at last with the Sled-man (of whom I spake before) sent to the King secretly from the lustices or Governours, who by some ill hap had lost his way, and had gone to the Sea-side, which is neere to the Countrey of the Tarters, thinking there to have found our thip. But having long erred and wandered out of 6 his way, at the last in his direct returne, hee met (as he was comming) our Captaine on the way. To whom hee by and by deliuered the Emperours letters, which were written to him with all courtefie and in the most louing manner that could bee; wherein expresse commande. The Emperor. ment was given, that post Horses should be gotten for him and the rest of his company without ters to Master any money. Which thing was of all the Ruffes, in the rest of their iousney so willingly done, thancier, Country, &c.is

Hondivs bis Map of Ruffia.

Riphean hils,

Roffomakka, 2

Touching the Replean Mountainer, whereupon the Snow lyeth continually, and where hence in times past it was thought that Tanais the river did spring, and that the rest of the wonders of nature, which the Grecians fained and invented of old, were there to bee feene : our men which lately came from thence, neither faw them, nor yet haue brought home any perfect relation of them, although they remayned there for the space of three moneths, and had gotten in that time fome intelligence of the language of Mosconie. The whole Gountrey is plaine and champion, 50 and few hils in it : and towards the North, it hash very large and spacious Woods, wherein is great store of Firre trees, a wood very necessarie, and fit for the building of houses: there are also wilde beafts bred in those woods, as Buffes, Beares, and blacke Wolves, and another kinde of beaft vnknowen to vs, but called by them Roffomakka: and the nature of the same is very rare and wonderfull : for when it is great with young, and ready to bring foorth, it feeketh out some narrow place betweene two stakes, and so going through them, present it selfe, and by that meanes is eased of her burthen, which otherwise could not bee done. They hunt their Buffes for the most part a horse-backe, but their Beares a foot, with woodden forkes. The North parts of the Countrey are reported to bee to cold, that the very Ice or water which diffilleth our of the moyst wood which they lay vpon the fire, is presently congealed and frozen : the diuersitie 60 growing fodainly to bee to great, that in one and the felfe-fame fife-brand, a man shall fee both he and ice. When the winter doth once begin there, it doth fill more and more increase by a perpetuitie of cold: neither doth that cold slake, whill the force of the Sunne beames doth different colds. folie the sold, and make glad the earth, returning to it againe. Our Mariners which weeleft in the ship in the meane time to keepe it, in their going vp onely from their cabbins to the hatches, * The rest of had their breath oftentimes fo fuddenly taken away, that they eft-foones fell downe as men ve- M. Adams conry neere dead, fogreat is the sharpenesse of that cold Climate: but for the South parts of the training a description of the countrev. they are somewhat more * temperate.

V٤

CHAP.I.S.I. Duke of Muscouic bis Letters, to King Edward the fixt.

The Copic of the Duke of Mosconic and Emperour of Russia his Letters, fent to King EDWARD the Sixth, by the hands of RICHARD CHANCELOVA.

The Almiphie power of God, and the incomprehensible boly Trimite, rightfull (briftian Beliefe, Inen Vassimkt), or the Grace of God great Lord and Emperous of all Kut., that is only, the thought of the Control of the The great Duke of Volodemer, Moico, and Nouograd, King of Kazan, King of Altracan, Lord of Belliam, na grea Duce of Smolensko, of Twerra, loughoria, Permia, Vadska, Bulghoria, and others, Lord and great Duke of Smolensko of Twerra, loughoria, and others, Lord and great Duke of Nouograd in the Low Commercy, of Chemistry Rezan, Polotskoy, Roffoue, Yaruslaueley, Bealozera, Liesland, Oudoria, Obdoria, and Condenfa, Commander of all Siberia, and of the North parts, and Lord of many other Commiries, greeting. Before all, right, great and worthy of bonour Edward King of England, &c. according to our world heartie and good zeale, with good intent and friendly defire, and according to our boly Christian Faith, and great Governance, and being in the light of great understanding, our Answere by this our Honosand great Concernance, and occup in the ugos of great small planning, one empires of the one transac-rable Writing unto your Kingly Governmen, at the request of your factbful Scraws: Richard Chance-lout, with his company, as they shall let you wish know is this. In the strength of the twentieth years of our Genernance, be it knowne, that at our Sea-coasts arrived a stip, with one Richard, and his comof our conservance, or it geomet, some on won conservance of any open must were solution, on one com-pary, and faid, that he mai defront to come into our Dominion; and according to his request, but been our Maiestie, and don't eyes: and hath declared onto vs your Maiesties desire, as that wee should define is, grant onto your Subjects, to goe and come, and in our Dominions, and among our Subjects, to frequent come into our from the continuency, we make common the common, and among our suscept, to frequent from Marty with all forts of Marchanders, and spon the forms to have marret for their returne, and prefence, they have all of alchimered vi your Letters which declare the fame trapall. And between wee basee they have all the substructions of the continuency of the contin ons, to be well entertayned, who as yet is not arrived as your Seruant Richard can declare.

And we wash Christian beliefe and faithfulnesse, and according to your Honourable request, and my Honour able commandement will not leave it unders: and are furthermore willing that you fend unto us your thips and Velfels, when and as often as they may have passage, with good assurance on our part to see your popt and a especiation name to grow many many property and provide mich visibere by pair Com-them harmfelfe. And if you fend one of your Machies counfell to treate with visibere by your Comtrey Merchant may with all kindes of Wares , and where they will make their Market in our Domiusons, they shall have their free Mart with all free Liberties through my whole Dominions, with always, very promounts over processing the second processing to this our Letter, our Word and our Scale which we base commanded to be under feeled Written in our Dominion, in our Citie and our Palace in the Caffle of Molco, in the yeare 7060, the second

This Letter was written in the Mossonian Tongue, in Letters much like to the Greeke Letters, very faire written in Paper, with a broad Scale hanging at the same, scaled in Paper vpon waxe. This Seale was much like the Broad Seale of England, having on the one fide the Image of a man on Horfe-backe in complete Harnesse fighting with a Dragon. Vinder this Letter was another Paper written in the Duch Tongue, which was the Interpretation of the other written in the Mofconian Letters. These Letters were sent the next yeare after the date of King mera socies, 23),49 After this, entercourfeef Letters and Emballages palfed betwirt King Philip and Queene Marie, and the Molcouite and the Molcouie Company was inflituted and received Printedges both from their and the Molecountersan communication company was sufficient for the Maj. 1555, and Mafter George come and that Fortame Prince, a ficond Forge beeng fet for the Maj. 1555, and Mafter George Killingworth was made their first Agent: the parisculars whereof are found at large in Master Hakinyte first Tome of Voyages, as also other thougs concloung that Trade other stiled: which here I omit, and come to Matter lenkinions Voyage to Moico, and thence to Tartaria.

* Hee made three others after, one as Embaffidour from Queene Firsheth to the Muscourte.

The first * Voyage made by Master ANTHONIE IENKINSON. from the Citie of London, toward the Land of Ruffia, begunne the twelfth of May, in the yeare

Irft, by the grace of God, the day and yeare aboue mentioned, I departed from the land Citie, and the fame day at Granefend, embarked my felfe in a good hip, named the firme from the grape proported, although nwortly, chieft Captaine of the firme the Primrofe, being appointed, although vnworthy, chiefe Captaine of the time, and alfo of the other three good ships, to say, the lobn Euw gelift, the Anne, and the 10

Trinitie, having also the conduct of the Emperour of Ruffia, his Ambafiade ur named Ofen Nove Gregoriesch, who passed with his company in the faid Primrofe. And thus our foure tall ships being well appointed, at well for men, as victuals, as other necessary furniture, the said twelfth day of the moneth of May, we weighed our Anchors, and departed from the faid Grauefend, in the after-noone, and plying downe the Thames, the wind being Easterly, and faire weather the thirteenth day we came a ground with the Primrofe, vpon a fand called the blacke tayle, where wee fate fast vitill the fourteenth day in the morning, and then God bee prayfed, shee came off : and that day we plyed downe as farre as our Ladie of Holland, and there came to an Anchor, the winde being Eafterly, and there remayned vntill the twentieth day; then wee weved and went out at Goldmore gate, and from thence in at Balfey flade, and fo into Orwell wands, where 20 we came to an Anchor : but as we came out at the faid Goldemore gate, the Trinizie came on ground on certayne Rockes, that lye to the North-ward of the faid gate, and was like to be bilged and loft. But by the ayde of God, at the last she came off againe, being very leake: and the one and twentieth day the Primrofe remaining at an Anchor in the wands, the other three ships bare into Orwell Hanen, where I caused the said Trinitie to be grounded, searched, and repayred. So we remayned in the faid Hauen, vntill the eight and twentieth day : and then the wind being Westerly, the three ships that were in the Hauen, weighed and came forth, and in comming forth the Iohn Enangelist came on ground vpon a Sand, called the Andros, where the remayned one tyde, and the next full Sea the came off againe without any great hurt, God be prayfed.

The nine and twentieth day in the morning all foure ships weighed in the Wands, and that 30 tyde went as farre as Orfordnesse, where we came to an Anchor, because the wind was Northerly : And about fixe of the clocke at night, the wind vered to the South-west, and we weighed Anchor, and bare cleere of the Neffe, and then fet our course North-east and by North vntill mid-night, being then cleare of Tarmouth fands. Then wee winded North and by Weft, and North North-west, vntill the first of June at noone, then it waxed calme, and continued so vntill the second day at noone: then the wind came at North-west, with a tempest, and much raine, and we lay close by, and caped North North-east, and North-east and by North, as the wind shifted, and so continued untill the third day at noone : then the winde vered Westerly againe, and we went North our right course, and so continued our way vntill the fourth day at three of the clocke in the after-noone, at which time the winde vered to the North-west 40 againe and blew a fresh gale, and so continued vntill the seventh day in the morning, wee lying with all our thips close by, and caping to the Northwards; and then the winde vering more Northerly, we were forced to put roomer with the Coast of England againe, and fell ouerthwart New-castle, but went not into the Hauen, and so plyed upon the Coast the eight day

The tenth day the wind came to the North North-west, and wee were forced to beare roomer with Flamborow head, where we came to an Anchor, and there remayned vntill the feuenteenth day. Then the wind came faire and we weighed, & fet our course North and by Failt time and so continued the same with a merry wind vntill the one and twentieth at noone, at which we took the Sunne, and had the latitude in fixtie degrees. Then we shifted our course, and went 50 North North-eaft, & North-eaft and by North, vntill the five and twentieth day. Then we dif-Heiliek Ilands couered certain Hands, called Heiliek Ilands, lying from vs Northeaft, being in the latitude of fixty fixe degrees, fortie minutes. Then we went North and by West, because we would not come too nigh the Land, and running that course foure houres, we discovered, and had fight of Ross Hands, joyning to the mayne Land of Finmarke. Thus continuing our courte along the Coast of Normay and Furmarke, the feuen and twentieth day we tooke the Sunne, being as farre flot as Lofoot, and had the latitude in fixtie nine degrees. And the same day in the atternoone appeared ouer our heads a Rain-bow, like a Semicircle, with both ends vpward. Note, that there is betweene the faid Roll Hands and Lofoot, a Whirle-poole called Malestrand, which from halfeebbe vntill strange whirle halte floud, maketh such a terrible noyse, that it shaketh the Rings in the doores of the Inhabi-60 tants Houles of the faid Hands ten miles off. Also it there commeth any Whale within the current of the same, they make a pittifull cry. Moreouer, if great Trees be carryed into it by sorce of threames, and after with the ebbe be cast out againe, the ends and boughes of them have beene so braten, that they are like the stalkes of Hempe that is bruized. Note, that all the Coast of the shoare of this Coast, there is one hundred, or one hundred and fiftie fathomes of water in depth. Thus proceeding and fayling forward, we fell with an Iland called Zenam, being in the Zenam Iland. latitude of feuentie degrees. About this Iland wee faw many Whales, very monitrous, about our flips, fome by estimation of fixtie foote long; and being the ingendring time they roared and cryed terribly; From thence we fell with an Hand, called Kettlewicke.

CHAP.I. S.2. Zenam and Kettlewike Ilands. Cattell fed with fish.

This Coast from Rost vato Lofoot lyeth North and South, and from Lofoot to Zenam North. east and South-west, and from Zenam to Kettelwicke, East North-east and West South-west. From the faid Kettelwicke we fayled East and by North ten leagues, and fell with a Land called Inger found, where we filled, being becalmed, and tooke great plentie of Cods. Thus plying a. Inger found. long the Coast, we fell with a Cape, called the North Cape, which is the Northermost Land The North that we passe in our Voyage to Saint Nicholas , and is in the latitude of seventie one degrees Cape and ten minutes, and is from Inger found East, and to the North-wards fifteene leagues. And being at this North Cape the fecond day of July, wee had the Sunne at North foure degrees aboue the Horizon. The third day we came to Wardboufe, having such mists that we could not Ward-house. fee the Land. This Wardhouse is a Castle standing in an Iland two miles from the mayne of Finland, subject to the King of Denmarke, and the Eastermost Land that he hath. There are two other llands necre adjoining vinto that, whereon the Caffle of Wardboufe Handeth. The Inhabitants of those three flands line onely by fifting, and make much Stock-fish, which they dry with Frost: their most feeding is fish; bread and drinke they have none, but such as is brought them from other places. They have small store of Cattle, which are also fed with fish. From Cattell fed W. without we fayled South South-east ten leagues, and fell with a Cape of Land called Kegor, with fifth, the Northermoit part of the Land of Lappia. And betweene Wardhouse, and the faid Cape is a great Bay, called Dommes haff, in the South part whereof is a Monastery of Monkes of the The Monaster Ruffes Religion, called Pechinchon. Thus proceeding forward and fayling along the Coast of ricof Pechinthe faid Land of Lappia, winding South-east, the fourth day through great mists and darknesse chow. we loft the company of the other three ships, and met not with them againe, vntill the seventh day, when we fell with a Cape or head-land called Swetings, which is the entring into the Bay of Saint Nieholas. At this Cape lyeth a great fione, to the which the Barkes that paffed there-

30 by were wont to make Offerings of Butter, Meale, and other Victuals, thinking that vnleffe they did so, their Barkes or Vessels should there perish; a sit hath beene often times seene: and there it is very darke and mystie. Note, that the fixt day wee passed by the place where Sir Hugh Willoughby with all his company perished, which is called Arzina reca, that is to fay, the dizinareca the

The Land of Lappin is an high Land, having fnow lying on it commonly all the yeere. The loughly was people of the Countrey are halfe Gentiles: they live in the Summer time neere the Sea fide, frozen, and vie to take fish, of the which they make bread, and in the Winter they remove up into the Countrey into the Woods, where they vie hunting, and kill Deere, Beares, Wolues, Foxes, and other bealts, with whose fiesh they be nourished, and with their skins apparelled in such frange

40 fashion, that there is nothing seene of them bare but their eyes. They have none other habita- The Lappine: tion, but only in Tents, remouing from place to place, according to the feafon of the yeere. They covered all faknow no arte nor facultie, but onely shooting, which they exercise daily, as well men as wo- ungtheir eies, men, and kill fuch beafts as ferue them for their food. Thus proceeding along the coast from Swetinez aforesaid, the ninth day of July wee came to Cape Grace, being in the latitude of 66. degrees and 45. minutes, and is at the entring in of the Bay of Saint Nicolas. Aboard this Land there is twentie or thirtie fathoms water, and fundry grounds good to anchor in. The current at this Cape runneth South-west and North-east. From this Cape wee proceeded along The current at untill we came to Croffe Hand, which is feuen leagues from the faid Cape South-west: and from Cope Grace. this Iland, wee fet ouer to the other fide of the Bay, and went South-west, and fell with an

Head-land, called Foxenofe, which is from the faid Iland fine and twentie leagues. The entring The entring 50 of this Bay from Croffe Hand to the neerest Land on the other fide is feven leagues over. From or the Bay of Foxenofe proceeding forward the twelfth day of the faid moneth of fully, all our fource hips arri-ued in latery at the Road of Samt Nicolas, in the Land of Paffia, where we anchored, and had fayled from Landon write the fail Road dieron hundred and fifty language. fayled from London unto the faid Road feuen hundred and fiftie leagues. The Ruffian Ambaffa- leaft, dour and his companie with great joy got to shoare, and our ships heere forthwith discharged themselves : and being laden againe, and having a faire winde, departed toward England the first of August. The third of the faid moneth I with other of my companie came vnto the Citie of August. Colmogo, being an hundred verites from the Bay of Saint Nicolas, and in the latitude of 64. degrees 25. minutes. I tarried at the faid Colmogro vntill the lifteenth day : and then I departed in a little Boot up the Ricer of Duina, which runneth very swiftly, and the felfe same day paffed 60 by the mouth of a Riner called Pinego, leaving it on our left hand fitteene verites from Colmogro. Pinego Riner On both fides of the mouth of this River Pinego is high Land, great Rockes of Alabatter, great Woods, and Pine-apple trees lying along within the ground, which by report have lyen there face Noer fine !. And thus proceeding forward the nineteenth day in the morning , I came to Finnarke is high Mountaynes and Hils, being coursed all the yeare with Snow. And hard aboard

Sir Hugh Wil-

LIB. II.

e to a Towne called Temps, an hundred verites from Colmogro. All this way along they make much Tarre, Pitch, and ashes of Aspen trees. From thence I came to a place called Offing, an ancient Citie, the last day of August. At this Citie meet two Rivers: the one called Iug, and the other Sucana, both which fall into the aforesaid River of Duna. The River ing hath his spring in the Land of the Tartars, called Cheremizzi, joyning to the Countrey of Permia: and Smana hath his head from a Lake not farre from the Citie of Vologda. Thus departing from Ufing, and passing by the River Sucana, we came to a Towne called Torma. About this place the water is very thallow, and stonie, and troublesome for Barkes and Boats of that Countrey, which they call Nasfades, and Dosneckes, to passe that way: wherein merchandise are transported from the call Nasjades, and Dojnerges, to patte that way . The veffels called Nasfades, are very long builded, aforefast Colmogra to the Citie of Vologda. These veffels called Nasfades, are very long builded, 10 broad made, and close aboue, flat bottomed, and draw not aboue foure foot water, and will carrie two hundred tunnes: they have no Iron appertayning to them but all of Timber, and when the winde serueth, they are made to sayle. Otherwise they have many men, some to hale and draw by the neckes with long small ropes made fast to the said Boats, and some set with long poles. There are many of these Barkes vpon the River of Daine: And the most partof them belongeth vnto the Citie of Vologda: for there dwell many Merchants, and they occupie the faid Boats with carrying of Salt from the Sea fide vnto the faid Vologde. The twentieth of September I came vnto Vologda, which is a great Citie, and the River paffeth through the midft of the same. The houses are builded with wood of Firre trees, joyned one with another, and round without: the houses are foure square without any Iron or stone worke, coursed with 20 Birch barkes, and wood ouer the same : Their Churches are all of wood, two for euery Parish, one to be heated for Winter, and the other for Summer. On the tops of their houses they lay much earth, for feare of burning: for they are fore plagued with fire. This Volegda is in 59. degrees II. minutes, and is from Colmogro, one thousand verites.

The descrip-Naffades.

All the way I neuer came in house, but lodged in the Wildernesse, by the Rivers side, and carfor Travellers, ried provision for the way. And he that will travell those wayes, must carrie with him an Hatchet, a Tinder boxe, and a Kettle, to make fire and feethe meat, when he hath it: for there is small succour in those parts, valesse it be in Townes.

The first day of December, I departed from Velogda in poste in a Sled, as the manner is in Winter. And the way to Moscua is as followeth. From Vologda to Commelski, Seuen and twentie verstes; fo to Olmer fine and twentie verstes, fo to Telogiske twentie verstes, fo to Vrethir. 30 tie verstes, so to Volbanske thirtie verstes, then to Teraslame thirtie verstes, which standeth vpon the great River Volga, fo to Roflome fiftie verftes, then to Rogarin thirtie verftes, fo to Peraflane ten verstes, which is a great Towne, standing hard by a faire Lake. From thence to Doub. nay thirtie verites, fo to Godoroke thirtie verites, fo to Owchay thirtie verites, and laft to the Emperour of Mosco fine and twentie verstes, where I arrived the fixt day of December.

There are fourteene Posts called Tames, betweene Vologda and Mosco, which are accounted fiue hundred verftes afunder.

The tenth day of December, I was fent for to the Emperours Caffle by the faid Emperour. and deliutered my Letters vnto the Secretarie, who talked with mee of divers matters, by the 40 commandement of the Emperour. And after that my Letters were translated, I was answered that I was welcome, and that the Emperour would give mee that I defired.

The fine and twentieth day, being the day of the Natinitie, I came into the Emperours prefence, and kiffed his hand, who fate aloft in a goodly Chaire of effate, having on his head Crowne most richly decked, and a staffe of Gold in his hand, all apparelled with Gold, and gar nished with Precious stones. There sate distant from him about two yards his Brother, and next vnto him a Boy of twelue yeeres of age, who was Inheritor to the Emperour of Cafan, conquered by this Emperour eight yeeres past. Then fate his Nobilitie round about him, richly apparelled with Gold and stone. And after I had done obeyfance to the Emperour, he with his owne mouth calling me by my name, bade me to dinner, and fo I departed to my lodging till dinner time, which at fixe of the clocke, by Candle light.

Multipude of

The Emperour dined in a faire great Hall, in the midst whereof was a Pillar foure square, very artificially made, about which were divers Tables set, and at the uppermost part of the Hall fate the Emperour himfelfe, and at his Table fate his Brother, his Vicles fonne, the Metropolitan, the young Emperour of Casan, and divers of his Noblemen, all of one fide. There were divers Embassadours, and other thrangers, as well Christians as Heathens, diversly apparelled, to the number of fixe hundred men, which dined in the faid Hall, belides two thouland Tartars, men of warre, which were newly come to render themselues to the Emperour, and were appointed to ferue him in his warres against the Lief-landers, but they dined in other Halls. I was let at a little Table, having no stranger with mee, directly before the Emperours face. Being 60 thus fet and placed, the Emperour fent mee divers bowles of Wine, and Meade, and many dishes of Meate from his owne hand, which were brought mee by a Duke, and my Table ferued all in Gold and Silver, and so likewise on other Tables, there were set bowles of Gold, set with Stone, worth by estimation 400. pounds sterling one cup, besides the Plate which scrued the tables.

There was also a Cupboord of Plate, most sumptuous and rich, which was not vied: among Rich femice. the which, was a piece of Gold of two yards long, wrought in the top with Towers, and Dragons heads, also divers barrels of Gold and Silver, with Castles on the bungs, richly and artificially made. The Emperour, and all the Hall throughout was ferued with Dukes: and when dinner was ended, the Emperour called mee by name, and gaue me drinke with his owne hand. and fo I departed to my lodging. Note, that when the Emperour drinketh, all the companie fland up, and at every time he drinketh, or tafteth of a difh of meate he bleffeth himfelfe. Many other things I faw that day, not here noted.

The fourth of Januarie, which was Twelf-tide with them, the Emperour, with his brother Twelf-tide, 10 and all his Nobles, all most richly apparelled with Gold, Pearles, Precious stones, and cottly Furres, with a Crowne vpon his head, of the Tartarian tashion, went to the Church in Procesfion, with the Metropolitan, and divers Bishops and Priests. That day I was before the Emperour againe in Ruffe apparell, and the Emperour asked if that were not I, and his Chancellour aniwered, yea. Then he bad me to dinner: then came hee out of the Church, and went with the Proceilion upon the River, being all frozen, and there standing bare-headed, with all his Nobles, there was a hole made in the Ice, and the Metropolitan hallowed the water with great Mosto Riuck folemnicie and feruice, and did cast of the faid water voon the Emperours sonne, and the Nobi- ballowed. litie. That done, the people with great thronging filled pots of the faid water to carrie home to their houses, and divers children were throwne in, and ficke people, and plucked out quickly a-20 gaine, and divers Tartars christned : all which the Emperour beheld. Also there were brought the Emperours best Hories, to drinke at the said hallowed water. All this being ended, hee re-Riverof holy turned to his Palace againe, and went to dinner by Candle light, and fate in a woodden house, water for horse very fairely gilt. There dined in the place, aboue three hundred strangers, and I fate alone as I and man, did before, directly before the Emperour, and had my Mear, Bread, and Drinke fent mee from the Emperour.

The Citie of Mosco is great, the houses for the most part of wood, and some of stone, with Citie of Mosco. windowes of Iron, which ferue for Summer time. There are many faire Churches of Rone, but more of wood, which are made hot in the Winter time. The Emperours lodging is in a faire and large Castle, walled foure square of Bricke, high, and thicke, situated vpon an Hill, two 30 miles about, and the River on the South-west file of it, and it hath fixteene gates in the walls. and as many Bulwarkes. His Palace is separated from the rest of the Cassle, by a long wall going North and South, to the River fide. In his Palace are Churches, fome of stone, and some of wood, with round Towres fairely gilded. In the Church docres, and within the Churches are Images of Gold : the chiefe Markets for all things are, within the faid Castle , and for fundry things fundry Markets , and enery science by it halfe. And in the Winter there is a great Market without the Callle, vpon the River being frozen, and there is fold Corne, earthen Pots, Tubs, Sleds, &c. The Castle is in circuit two thousand and nine hundred paces,

The Countrey is full of marish ground, and Playne, in Woods and Rivers abundant, but it The Countre, bringeth forth good plentie of Corne. This Emperour is of great power: for he hath conquered 40 much, as well of the Lieflanders, Poles, Lettoes, and Swetbens, as also of the Tartars, and Gensiles, called Samoeds, having thereby much inlarged his Dominions. Hee keepeth his people in great fubiection : all matters paffe his judgement, bee they never fo small. The Law is sharpe for all

The Metropolitan dealeth in matters of Religion, as himselfe listeth, whom the Emperour The Metropolitan greatly honoureth. They wie the Ceremonies and Orders of the Greeke Church. They worthip litanmany Images painted on Tables, and specially the Image of Saint Nicholas. Their Priests bee married, but their wives being dead, they may not marry the fecond time, and fo become Monks, whereof there are a great number in the Land. They have foure Lents in the yeere, and the weeke before Shrouetide, they call the Butter weeke, &c.

50 They have many torts of meats and drinks, when they banket and delight in eating of groffe Means and meates, and flinking fish. Before they drinke they vie to blow in the Cup : their greatest friend-drinkes. ship is in drinking : they are great Talkers and Lyars, without any faith or trust in their words, Flatterers and Dissemblers. The Women be there very obedient to their Husbands, and are kept straightly from going abroad, but at some seasons.

As my being there, I heard men and women that drunke away their children, and all their Drunkennesse, goods at the Emperours Tauerne, and not being able to pay, having impawned himselfe, the Tauerner bringeth him out to the high way, and beats him upon the legs : then they that paffe by, knowing the cause, and having peraduenture compassion upon him, give the money, and so hee is ranfomed. In enery good Towne there is a drunken Tauerne, called a Cursemay, which the 60 Emperour sometime letteth out to farme, and sometimes bestoweth for a yeare or two on some Duke or Gentleman, in recompence of his service : and for that time hee is Lord of all the Towne, robbing and fpoyling, and doing what pleafeth him: and then hee being growne rich, is taken by the Emperour, and fent to the warres againe: where hee shall spend all that which he hath gotten by ill meanes: so that the Emperour in his warres is lette charged, but all the burden lyeth upon the poore people. They wie faddles made of wood and finewes, with the tree gilded with damaske worke, and the feat couered with cloth, fometimes of gold, and the reft Saphian leather, well stitched. They vse little drummes at their saddle bowes, by the found whereof their hories vie to runne more iwifuly.

Saddlers.

The Ruffe is apparelled in this manner: his vpper garment is of cloth of gold, filke, or cloth. long, downe to the foot, and buttoned with great buttons of filuer, or elfe laces of filke, fet on with Brooches, the sleenes thereof very long, which he weareth on his arme, ruffed vp. Vnder that he hath another long garment, buttoned with filke buttons, with a high coller flanding vp of fome colour, and that garment is made straight. Then his shirt is very fine, and wrought with red filke, or forme gold, with a coller of pearle. Vnder his shirt he hath linnen breeches, vpon his to legs, a paire of hote without feet, and his bootes of red or yellow leather. On his head hee weareth a white Colepeck, with buttons or filter, gold, pearle, or ftone, and vnder it a black Foxe cap, turned up very broad. When he rideth on horfe-back to the warres, or any journey, he hath a iword of the Tw kifb fashion, and his Bowe and Arrowes of the same manner. In the Towne he weareth no weapon, but onely two or three paire of kniues, having the hafts of the sooth of a Fith, called the Morfe.

In the Winter time, the people travell with Sleds, in Towns and Country, the way being hard, and smooth with snow: the waters and Rivers are all frozen, and one horse with a Sled. will draw a man upon it foure hundred miles in three dayes : but in the Summer time, the way is deeps with myre, and trauelling is very ill.

The Ruffe, if he be a man of any abilitie, never goeth out of his house in the winter, but vpon his Sled, and in summer vpon his Horse: and in his Sled hesits vpon a Carpet, or a white Beares skin : the Sled is drawne with a Horse well decked, with many Foxes and Woolues tailes at his necke, and is conducted by a little boy vpon his backe : his ferunts stand vpon the taile of the Sled, &c.

ð. III.

Notes taken out of another mans Relation of the Same Poyage, touching the Ruffian Rites.

N Christmasse day we were all willed to dine with the Emperors Majestie, where for bread, meate, and drinke, we were ferned as at other times before : but for goodly and rich Plate, we never faw the like or to much before. There dined that day in the Emperors presence aboue fine hundred strangers, and two hundred Russes, and all they were ferued in veffels of Gold, and that as much as could fland one by another vpon the Tables. Befides this, there were foure Cup-boards garnished with goodly Plate both of gold and filuer. Among the which there were twelve barrels of filuer, contaying about twelve gallons a piece, and at each end of every Barrell were fix hoopes of fine gold : this dinner conti-40

nued about fix houres. The hallowing Euery yeere vpon the twelfth day, they vie to bleffe or fanctifie the River Mofens, which of the River of runneth through the Citie of Mofco, after this manner. First, they make a square hole in the Ice about three farhoms large enery way, which is trimmed about the fides and edges with white boords. Then about nine of the clocke they come out of the Church with procession towards the

First and foremost there goe certaine young men with waxe Tapers burning, and one carrying a great Lanthorne : then follow certaine Banners, then the Croffe, then the Images of our Lady, of Saint Nicholas , and of other Saints , which Images men carry vpon their shoulders : after the Images follow certaine Priefts to the number of one hundred or more : after them the Metropo- 50 litan who is led betweene two Priests, and after the Metropolitan came the Emperour with his Crowne voon his head, and after his Maiestie all his Noble men orderly. Thus they followed the Procession vnto the water, and when they came vnto the hole that was made, the Priests set themselves in order round about it. And at one side of the same Poole there was a Scaffold of boords made, upon which stood a faire Chaire in which the Metropolitan was fet . but the Empercurs Majestie stood voon the Ice.

After this the Priests began to fing, to blesse and to sense, and did their service, and so by that time that they had done, the water was holy, which being fanctified, the Metropolitan tooke a little thereof in his hands, and cast it on the Emperour, likewise vpon certaine of the Dukes, and then they returned agains to the Church with the Priests that late about the water : but that prease that there was about the water when the Emperour was gone, was wonderfull to behold, 69 for there came aboue fine thousand Pots to be filled of that water: for that Moscomite which hath no part of that water, thinks himselfe vnhappy. And very many went naked into the water, both Men and Women and Children : after the prease was a little gone, the Emperours Jennets and Horses were brought to drinke of the same water, and likewise many other men brought their Horfes thither to drinke, and by that meanes they make their Horfes as holy as themselves. All these ceremonies being ended, we went to the Emperour to dinner, where we were served in vessels of filter, and in all other points as we had beene beforetime.

The Rulls begin their Lent alwayes eight wocks before Eafter: the first weeks they cate Egs, The Kulles Milke, Cheefe and Butter, and make great cheare with Pan-cakes, and fuch other things, one Ltate friend visiting another, and from the same Sunday vacill our Shroue-funday, there are but few Ruffes fober , but they are drunke day by day , and it is accounted for no reproach or fhame a-

The next weeke being our first weeke in Lent, or our cleanting weeke, beginning our Shrousfunday, they make and keepe a great Fast. It is reported, and the people doe verily beleeve that the Metropolitan neither eateth nor drinketh any manner of thing for the space of seven dayes, and they fay that there are many Religious men which doe the like. The Emperous Maielie eateth but one morfell of bread, and drinketh but one draught of drinke once in the day during that weeke, and all men that are of any reputation come not out of their houses during that time, so that the streets are almost voide of companie, saving a few poore solkes which wander to and fro. The other fixe weekes they keepe as we doe ours, but not one of them will eate esther Butter, Cheefe, Egs, or Milke.

On Palme-funday they have a very folemne Proceffion, in this manner following. First, they Palme-funday haue a Tree of a good bigneffe which is made fast vpon two Sleds, as though it were growing Procession, there, and it is hanged with Apples, Raifins, Rigs, and Dates, and with many other fruits abundantly. In the midft of the fame Tree stand fine Boyes in white vestures, which sing in the Tree, hefore the Procession : after this there followed certaine young men with Wax Fapers in their hands burning, and a great Lanthorne that all the light should not goe out; after them followed two with long Banners, and fixe with sound plates fet vpon long states : the plates were of Copper very full of holes, and thinne: then followed fixe, carrying painted images upon their shoulders, after the Images followed certaine Priests, to the number of one hundred of more, with goodly veftures, whereof tenor twelue are of white Damaske, fet and embroidered round about with faire and orient Pearles, as greates Peale, and among them certaine Saphires and other 20 Rones. After them followed the one halfe of the Emperours Noblemen: then commeth the Emperours Maiestie and the Metropolitan, after this manner.

First, there is a Horse coursed with white linner cloth downe to the ground, his eases being. The Emperor made long with the same cloth, like to an Affes cares. V.pon this Horse the Metropolitan fit-lead h the made long with the tame costs, use to an after cares. Your time more the metropowen in-teth fide-long like a woman; in his kappe ketch a fire Booke, with a Crucifixe of Gold-fmith. Hote indres, worke voon the couer, which he holderh fast with his left hand, and in his fight hand he hath a coffien. Crosse of Gold, with which Crosse he ceaseth not to blesse the people as hee rideth. There are to she number of thirtie men which fpread abroad their garments before the Horfe; and as foone as the Horse is past ouer any of them, they take them vp againe and runne before, and faread them againe, so that the Horse doch alway goe on some of them. They which spread 40 the garments are all Priests sonnes, and for their labours the Emperour giveth wato them new garments.

One of the Emperours Noblemen leadeth the Horfe by the head, but the Emperour himfelfe going on foot , leadeth the Horfe by the end of the reyne of his Bridle with one of his hands, and in the other of his hands hee had a branch of a Palme tree : after this followed the reft of the Emperours Noblemen and Gentlemen, with a great number of other people. In this order they went from one Church to another within the Caftle, about the distance of two flight shot: and fo returned againe to the Emperours Church , where they made an end of their service. Which being done, the Emperours Maiestie, and certaine of his Noblemen went to the Metronolitan his house to dinner, where of delicate fishes and good drinkes there was no lacke. The reft of shis weeke vntill Easter day they kept very solemnely, continuing in their houses for the 50 most part, and vpon Munday or Thursday she Emperour doth alwaies we to receive the Sacrament, and so doe most of his Nobles.

Vpon Good-friday they continue all the day in contemplation and prayers, and they wie euery yeere on Good-friday to let loofe a Prisoner in the stead of Barrabas. The night following they goe to the Church, where they sleepe vntill the next morning, and at Easter they have the Refurrection, and after every of the Lents they eate fielh the nexe weeke following, Friday, Sa-

They have an order at Easter, which they alwaies obserue, and that is this: every yeere against Easter to dye or colour red with Brazell a great number of Egges, of which every man and woman gineth one vnto the Priest of their Parish vpon Easter day in the morning. And on Baffer day, but allo three or four dayes after, and Gentlemen and Gentlewomen have Egges. gilded which they carrie in like manner. They vie it, as they say, for a great loue, and in token of the Refurrection, whereof they reloyce. For when two friends meet during the Eafter holy dayes, they come and take one another by the hand : the one of them faith, the Lord or Christie rifen, the other answereth, it is fo of a truth, and then they kiffe and exchange their Egges both men and women, continuing in kiffing foure dayes together.

Kiffing vfed in

His Majestie heareth all Complaints himselfe, and with his owne mouth giveth sentence and judgement of all matters, and that with expedition ; but Religious matters hee medleth no: withall, but referreth them wholly vnto the Metropolitane. His Majestie retayneth and well rewarderh all strangers that come to serue him, and especially men of Warre. He delighteth nor greatly in Hawking, Hunting, or any other pastime, nor in hearing Instruments or Musicke, but fetteth all his whole delight vpon two things: First, to serue God, as vndoubtedly hee is very depout in his Religion, and the fecond, how to subdue and conquer his enemies.

He hath abundance of Gold and Silver in his owne hands or Treasurie: but the most part of his know not a Crawne from a Counter, nor Gold from Copper, they are fo much cumbred therewithall, and he that is worth two, three, or foure Grotes, is a rich man. They have both Monkes, Friers, and Nunnes, with a great number of great and rich Monasteries; they keepe great Hospitalitie, and doe releeve much poore people day by day. I have him in one of the Monasteries called Troietes, which is walled about with Bricke very strongly like a Castle, and much Ordnance of Brasse vpon the walls of the same. They told mee themselves that there are seuen hundred Brethren of them which belong vnto that House. The most part of the Lands, Townes, and Villages which are within fortie miles of it, belong vinto the jame. They shewed me the Church, wherein were as many Images as could hang about, or upon the wals of the Church round about, and even the Roofe of the Church was painted full of Images. The chiefe Image was of our Ladie, which was garnished with Gold, Rubies, Saphirs, and other rich Stones abundantly. In the midft of the Church flood twelue Waxe Tapers of two yards long, and a fathome about in bignesse, and there stands a Kettle full of Waxe with about one hundred weight, wherein there is alwayes the wicke of a Candle burning, as it werea

Monasteries and Monker,

Miracles.

They shewed mea Coffin couered with Cloth of Gold, which stood upon one side within their Church, in which they told me lay a holy man, who never eate or dranke, and yet that he liueth. And they told me (supposing that I had beleeved them) that he healeth many Diseases, and giveth the blind their fight; with many other Miracles, but I was hard of beliefe, because I ... faw him worke no miracle whillt I was there;

Lampe which goeth not out day nor night.

Drinkes and

After this they brought me into their Sellers, and made me taffe of divers kinds of Drinkes. both Wine and Beere, Meade and Quaffie, of fundry colours and kinds. Such abundance of Drinke as they have in their Sellers, I doe suppose few Princes have more, or so much at once. Their Barrels or Veffels are of an vnmeafurable bigneffe and fize: some of them are three yards long and more, and two yards and more broad in their heads: they contayne fixe or feuen tuns apiece: they have none in their Sellers of their owne making that are leffe then a tunne. They have nine or ten great vaultes which are full of those Barrels which are seldome removued : for they have trunkes which come downe through the Roofe of the vaults in fundry places, through which they powredrinke downe, having the Caske right under it to receive the same, for it to should be a great trouble to bring it all downe the staires.

The Hospitalitic of their Monasteries,

They give Bread, Meate, and Drinke vnto all men that come to them, not onely while they are at their Abbey, but also when they depart, to serue them by the way. There are a great number of fuch Monasteries in the Realme, and the Emperours Majestie rideth oftentimes from one to another of them, and lyeth at them three or foure dayes together. The same Monkes are as great Merchants as any in the Land of Russia, and doe occupie buying and felling as much as any other men, and haue Boates which palle to and fro in the Riners with Merchandize from place to place where any of their Countrey doe traffique. They eate no flesh during their lines as it is reported : but vpon Sunday, Munday, Tuesday,

Monke Merchants.

Dyerand Ap-

Thursday, and Saturday, it is lawfull for them to cate Egges, Butter, Cheese, and Milke, and at 10 all times to eate fish, and after this fort they lead their lines. They weare all blacke Garments, and so doe none other in all the Land, but at that Abbey onely.

They have no Preachers, no not one in all the Land to instruct the people, so that there are many, and the most part of the poore in the Countrey, who if one aske them how many Gods there be, they will say a great many, meaning that every Image which they have is a God : for rance and Ido. all the Countrey and the Emperours Majestie himselfe will blesse and bow, and knocke their heads before their Images, infomuch that they will cry earneftly vnto their Images to helpe them to the things which they need. Al men are bound by their Law to have those Images in their Houses, and ouer every gate in all their Townes and Cities are Images fet up, vnto which the people bow and bend, and knocke their heads against the ground before them: as often as they come by any Church or Croffe they doe in like manner. And when they come to any House, they bleffe themselves three or soure times before they will salute any man in the

They reckon and hold it for great finne to touch or handle any of their Images within the CHAP.I. S 2. Priests, Sacraments, Baptisme, God-fathers and God-mothers. Circle of the board where the painting is, but they keepe them very daintily, and rich men deck them over and about with Gold, Silver, and Stones, and hang them over and about with Gloth Sinnes of Su-The Priests are marryed as other men are, and weare all their Garments as other men doe, Priests. except their Night-caps, which is cloth of some fad colour, being round and reacheth vnto the

eares; their crownes are shauen, but the rest of their haire they let grow, as long as Nature will permit, so that it hangeth beneath their eares upon their shoulders : their Beards they never shaue : if his Wife happen to dye, it is not lawfull for him to marry againe during his life.

They minister the Communion with Bread and Wine after our order, but hee breaketh the Sacraments. To Bread and putterhit into the Cup vnto the Wine, and commonly some are partakers with them: and they take the Bread out agains with a Spoone together with part of the Wine, and fo take it themselves, and give it to others that receive with them after the same manner. They will not permit any Nation but the Greekes to be buried in their facred Burials, or Church-yards. All their Churches are full of Images, vnto the which the people when they affemble, doe bow and knocke their heads, as I have before faid, that fome will have knobs upon their fore-heads with knocking, as great as Egges. All their feruice is in the Ruffie Tongue, and they and the com- All-heir fermon people have no other Prayers but this, Ghofpods lefus Christos efine vone ponuloi nafbe. That wice is in their is to lay, O Lord Ielus Chritt, Sonot God have mercie vpon vs : and this is their Prayer, fo that Mother the mort part of the volearned know neither Pater Nofter, nor the Beliefe, nor Ten Comman-tongue. 20 dements, nor fearcely understand the one halfe of their Seruice which is read in their Churches.

When any child is borne, it is not baptized votill the next Sunday, and if it chance that it be not baptized then, it must tarry vntill the second Sunday after the birth, and it is lawfull for them to take as many God-fathers and God-mothers as they will, the more the better.

When they goe to the Church, the Mid-wife goeth foremost, carrying the Childe, and the Baptifine God-fathers and God-mothers follow into the midft of the Church, where there is a small Table readie iet, and on it an Earthen Pot full of warme water, about the which the God-fathers and God-mothers, with the Childe, fettle themfelues : then the Clerke giveth vnto every of them a small Waxe Candle burning, then commeth the Priost, and beginneth to say certayne words, which the God-tathers and God-mothers must answere word for word, among which

30 one is, that the Child shall forfake the Deuill, and as that name is pronounced, they must all spit at the word as often as it is repeated. Then he bleffeth the water which is in the Pot, and doth breathe ouer it : then he taketh all the Candles which the Goffips have, and holding them all in one hand letteth part of them drop into the water, and then giveth every one his Candle againe, and when the water is fanctified, he taketh the Child and holdeth it in a small Tub, and one of the God-fathers taketh the Pot with warme water, and powreth it all voon the Childes head. After this he hath many more Ceremonies, as anounting Eares and Eyes with Spittle, and making certayne Crosses with Oyle vpon the backe, head, and brett of the Childe : then taking the Childe in his armes, carryeth it to the Images of Saint Niebolas, and our Ladie, &c. and fieaketh vnto the Images, defiring them to take charge of the Childe, that he may live, and believe 40 as a Christian man or woman ought to doe, with many other words. Then comming backe from the Images, he taketh a paire of sheares and clippeth the young and tender haires of the Childes head, in three or foure places, and then deliuereth the Childe, whereunto every of the God-fathers and God-mothers lay a hand: then the Priest chargeth them, that the Childe bee brought up in the faith and feare of God or Christ, and that it be instructed to clinege, and bow to the Images, and so they make an end : then one of the God-fathers must hing a Crosse about the necke of the Childe, which hee must alwayes weare, for that Rolle which hath not a Crosse about his necke they efteeme as no Christian man, and thereupon they tay that wee are no Chris itians, because we doe not weare Crosses as they doe.

Their Matrimonie is nothing folemnized, but rather in most points abominable, and as neere Of their 1869-50 as I can learne, in this wife following.

First, when there is loue betweene the parties, the man fendeth voto the woman a small Cheft or Boxe, wherein is a Whip, Needles, Threed, Silke, Linnen Cloth, Sheares, and fuch neceffaries as she shall occupie when she is a Wife, and perhaps sendeth therewithall Raisins, Figs, or some such things, giving her to vinderstand, that it she doe offend, she must be beaten with the Whip, and by the Needles, Threed, Cloth, &c. that the should apply her selfe diligently to few, and doe such things as the could best doe, and by the Raifins or Fruits he meaneth if the doe well, no good thing shall bee with drawne from her, nor bee too deare for her; and shee sendeth vinto him a Shirt, Hand-kerchers, and some such things of her owne making. And now to the effect.

When they are agreed, and the day of Marriage appointed, when they shall goe towards the 60 Church, the Bride will in no wife confent to goe out of the Houfe, but relifteth and ftriueth with them that would have her out, and fayneth her felfe to weepe, yet in the end, two women get her out, and lead her towards the Church, her face being couered close, because of her diffimulation, that it should not be openly perceived for thee maketh a great noyle, as though the were folding and weeping, untill the come at the Church, and then her face is vincouered. The man commeth after among other of his friends, and they carrie with them to Church a great Port of Wine or Meade : then the Priest coupleth them together much after our order, one promiling to love and ferue the other during their lives together, &c. which being done, they beginnne to drinke, and first the woman drinketh to the man, and when he hath drunke he letteth the cup fall to the ground, hafting immediately to tread vpon it, and so doth she, and whether of them tread first upon it, must have the victorie and be Master at all times after, which commonly happeneth to the man, for he is readiest to set his foot on it, because he letteth it fall himselfe, then they goe home againe, the womans face being vncouered. The Boyes in the fireets cry out, and make a noyfe in the meane time, with very dilhonest words.

When they come home, the Wife is fet at the vpper end of the Table, and the Husbandnext 10 vnto her: they fall then to drinking till they be all drunke, they perchance have a Minftell or two, and two naked men, which led her from the Church, dance naked a long time before all the company. When they are wearie of drinking, the Bride and the Bridegroome get them to Bed, for it is in the Euening alwayes when any of them are marryed; and when they are going to Bed, the Bridegroome putteth certayne Money, both Gold and Silver, if he have it, into one of his Boots, and then fitteth downe in the Chamber, croffing his legges, then the Bride must pluck off one of his Boots, which she will, and if she happen on the Boot wherein the Money is, shee hath not onely the Money for her labour, but is also at such choice, as she need not cut from that day forth to pull off his Boots, but if thee miffe the Boot wherein the Money is, the doth not onely lole the Money, but is also bound from that day forwards to pull off his Boots 20

Then they continue in drinking and making good cheere three dayes following, being accompanied with certayne of their friends, and during the fame three dayes, he is called a Duke, and the a Dutches, although they be very poore persons, and this is as much as I have learned of their Matrimony : but one common rule is amongst them, if the woman be not beaten with the Whip once a Weeke, she will not be good, and therefore they looke for it orderly, and the wemen lay, that if their Husbands did not beate them, they should not love them.

They vie to marry there very young, their Sonnes at fixteeene and eighteene yeares old, and the Daughters at twelue or thirteene yeares or younger: they wie to keepe their Wines very closely, I meane those that be of any reputation, so that a man shall not see one of them but at 30 a chance, when shee goeth to Church at Christmasse or at Easter, or else going to visit some of

The most part of the women vie to ride a-stride in Saddles with stirrops, as men doe, and fome of them on Sleds, which in Summer is not commendable. The Husband is bound to find the Wife colours to paint her with all, for they vie ordinarily to paint themselues: it is such a common practice among them, that it is counted for no shame: they greafe their faces with such colours, that a man may discerne them hanging on their faces almost a flight shoot off: I cannot fo well liken them as to a Millers Wife, for they lookeas though they were beaten about the face with a bagge of Meale, but their Eye-browes they colour as blacke as leat. The best propertie that the women haue, is that they can fewe well, and imbroider with Silke and Gold 40 excellently.

Of their Bu-

When any man or woman dyeth, they firetch him out, and put a new paire of shooes on his feet, because he hath a great Iourney to goe : then doe they wind him in a sheet, as wee doe, but they forget not to put a testimonie in his right hand, which the Priest giveth him, to testifie vnto Saint Nicholas that he dyed a Christian man or woman. And they put the Corse alwayes in a Coffin or Wood, although the partie be very poore : and when they goe towards the Church. the Friends and Kinfmen of the partie departed carrie in their hands small Waxe Candles, and they weepe, and howle, and make much lamentation. They that bee hanged or beheaded, or such like, have no testimonie with them : how they are recived into Heaven, it is a wonder, without their Palport.

There are a great number of poore people among them which dye daily for lacke of fustenance, which is a pitifull case to behold : for there hath bin buried in a small time, within these two yeares, about eightie persons youg and old, which have dyed onely for lacke of sufferance, for if they had had straw and water enough, they would make shift to live : for a great many are forced in the Winter to dry straw and stampe it, and to make bread thereof, or at the least they Bread made of eate it in stead of bread. In the Summer they make good shift with grasle, herbes, and roots: barkes of Trees are good meat with them at all times. There is no people in the World, as I sup-The winterest pole, that line fo miferably as doe the pouertie in thole parts: and the most part of them that have sufficient for themselves, and also to relieue others that need, are so vinmercifull that they care not how many they fee dye of famine or hunger in the streets. It is a Countrey full of Discases, divers, and evill, and the best remedie is for any of them, as they hold opinion, to goe often vnto the Hot-houses, as in a manner every man hath one of his owne, which he heateth commonly twice every weeke, and all the houshold tweat, and wash

The first and principal Meade is made of the juyceor liquor taken from Berrie, called in I ne mit and printing and printing and the soft a manuellous sweet tatte, and of a Carmolant colour, which Berrie I of Russia. Malieno, which is of a manuellous sweet tatte, and of a Carmolant colour, which Berrie I haue feene in Paru. The fecond Meade is called Vifnona, because it is made of a Berrie fo called, Drinkes, reand is like a blacke Goofeberrie; but it is like in colour and tafte to the red Wine of France. The ported by The third Meade is called Amarodina or Smorodina, short, of a small Berrie much like to the small mas Balley. Railin, and groweth in great plentie in Ruffia. The fourth Meade is called Chereunikyna, which as made of the wild blacke Cherrie. The fift Meade is made of Honey and Water, with other mixtures. There is allo a delicate Drinke drawne from the Root of the Birch Tree, called in the Ruffe Trongue Berozewites, which drinke the Noblemen and others vie in Aprill , May, and 10 June, which are the three moneths of the Spring-time : for after those moneths , the sap of the Tree dryeth, and then they cannot have it.

I have by me a Letter of Master Christopher Hoddesdon, written the seventeenth of November 1 1 55. wherein he writes, that it feemes, there is no great puni hment for breaking their Region, some of them aduenturing to eate Milke with him on a Fasting day, which yet others refused. Tarolasty (so he cals the Towne where he writ) is fairer then Volga, the River almost a mile broad : he was asked feuen Altines for a Sturgeon, he had given at Danske nine Mark-sprace for a worfer; neither had he feene fuch abundance of Ling in England, as there of Sturgeons. there being in that dayes Market, about three thousand,

d. IIII.

The Voyage of Master Anthonie Ienkinson, made from the Citie of Mosco in Russia, to the Citie of Boghar in Bactria, in the yeare 1558. written by himselfe to the Merchants of London, of the Moscouic Company.

Hethree and twentieth day of Aprill, in the years 1558. (hairing obtayned the Em- Moleon 55.de* perour of Russia his Letters, directed vnto fundry Kings and Princes, by whose Domi- grees, to mimons I should passe) departed from Mosco by water, having with mee two of your nutes. Semants; namely, Richard Iobason, and Robert Iohnson, and a Tartar Tolmach, with divers parcels of Wares, as by the Inventoric appeareth : and the eight and twentieth day wee came to a Towne , called Collone , distant from the Mascotwentie leagues , and passing one league beyond the faid Collom, we came voto a River, called Occa, into the which the River Mosco falleth, and loseth his name : and passing downe the said River Occa eight leagues, wee came vnto a Castle called Terremettuke, which we lest vpon our right hand, and proceeding forward, the second day of May, wee came vino another Castle, called Perollane, distant eight leagues, leaving it also on our right hand. The third day we came vnto the place where old Re. Reg. 7. 40 zanwas structe, being now most of it ruined and ouer-growne, and distant from the faid Pera-flave, fixe leagues: the fourth day we pasted by a Castle, called Terreconia, from Rezan twelve leagues, and the fixt day we came to another Castle, called Cassim, under the government of a cassim. Tartar Prince, named Utzar Zegoline, sometime Emperour of the worthy Citie of Cazan, and now subject vnto the Emperour of Russia. But leaving Cassing on our left hand, the eight day Moron, we came vnto a faire Towne, called Morom, from Caffon twentie leagues, where wee tooke the Sunne, and found the latitude fiftie fixe degrees: and proceeding forward the eleventh day, wee came voto another faire Towne and Caffle, called Note Nongrod, fituated at the falling of the Note Nongred. foresaid River Occa, into the worthy River of Volga, distant from the said Moron five and twentie leagues, in the latitude of fiftie fixe degrees eighteene minutes. From Rezan to this Nyfe

50 Nonegrad, on both files the faid River of Occa, is ray fed the greatest flore of Waxe and Honey Honey and in all the Land of Russia. We tarryed at the foresaid Nyse Nonograd vntill the mneetenth day, Wasc. for the comming of a Captaine which was sent by the Emperour to rule at Assacas, who being arrived, and having the number of five hundred great Boates vinder his conduct, fomeladen with Victuals, Souldiers, and Munition: and other some with Merchandize, departed altogether the had nineteenth day from the faid Nyfe Novogrod, and the two and twentieth wee came vnto 2 Cattle, called Vasiliagorod, distant fue and twentie leagues, which wee lest vpon our right hand. This Towne or Caftle had his name of this Emperours Father, who was called hand. This towns or Cause has his aware or this impercular rather, better Falline . And Gored in the Ruffe Tongoe is as much to lay, as a Caffle, for the Falline Publishered. gread is to fay , Vafilms Calile : and it was the furthest place that the faid Emperour 6c conquered from the Tartars. But this present Emperour his Sonne , called Inan Vasition wich, hath had great good fucceffe in his Warres, both against the Christians, and also the Mabometists, and Gentiles, but especially against the Tartars, inlarging his Empire even to the

Culpian Sea, having conquered the famous River of Volga, with all the Countreyes thereabout

the poore, Stones or Baths viuall with the Mof-adjacent. This proceeding on our journey, the fine and twentieth day of May afore-fail, the two and twentieth day, and passing by another great River called Samar, which falleth out The River of the aforesaid Countrey, and runneth through Nagay, and entreth into the faid River of Volgs, or Samer. The eight and twentieth day we came vnto a great Hill, where was in times past a Castle made by the Crimmes, but now it is ruined, being the just mid-way betweene the faid Cazan and Afrachan, which is two hundred leagues or thereabout, in the latitude of one and fittle degrees, fortie seuen minutes. Vpun all this shoare groweth abundance of Licoris, whose Root runneth

Thus going forward, the fixt day of July we came to a place called Perouolog, fo named be- great plantic, 10 cause in times past the Tartars carried their Boats from Volga, vnto the River Tanais, otherwise Donor Tanais, called Don, by Land, when they would rob fuch as paffed downe the faid Volga to Aftracan, and also such as passed downe by the River Tanais, to Afon, Cassa, or any other Towne situated vpon Mare Enzimum, into which Sea Tanais falleth, who lith his Springs in the Countrey ot the Rezam, out of a plaine ground. It is at this streight of Perouolog from the one River to the other, two leagues by Land, and is a dangerous place for Theeues and Robbers, but now it is not so euill as it hath beene by reason of the Emperour of Russia his Corquests.

within the ground like a Vine.

Departing from Peronolog, hauing the Wildernesse on both sides , wee fawa great Heard of Nagayans patturing, as is abouefaid, by estimation aboue a thouland Camels drawing of Cares with Houles vpon them like Tents, of a strange fashion, seeming to bee afarre off a Towne:

20 that Herd was belonging to a great Murse, called Smille, the greatest Prince in all Nagar, who hath flaine and driven away all the rest, not sparing his owne Brethren and Children, and hauing peace with this Emperour of Ruffia, hee hath what hee needeth, and ruleth alone : to that now the Ruffer live in peace with the Nagayans, who were wont to have mortall Warres

The fourteenth day of July passing by an old Castle, which was Old Astracan, and leaving it vpon our right hand, we arrived at Now Afracan, which this Emperour of Roffia conquered fixe yeares paft, in the yeare 1552. It is from the Mojeo vnto Afracan fixe hundred leagues, or Afracan thereabout. The Towne of Astracan is fituated in an Iland vpon a Hill fide , having a Castle within the fame, walled about with Earth and Timber, neither faire nor firong : The Towne is 30 also walled about with Earth: the Buildings and Houses (except it be the Captaines Lodging, and certaine other Gentlemens) most base & simple. The Ilanu is most destitute and barren of wood and patture, and the ground will beare no Come : the A re is there most infected, by reason (as I Store of Sturfuppole) of much fish, and specially Sturgeon, by which onely the Inhabitants live, having geon, & flyest great scarsitie of slesh and bread. They hang up their sish in their streets and Houses to dry for their prouision, which causeth such abundance of flyes to increase there, as the like was never feene in any Land, to their great Plague. And at my beeing at the find Afracan, there was a great Famine and Plague among the people, and specially among the Tartars, called Nagayans, who the same time came thither in great numbers to render themselves to the Ruffer their Encmies, and to feeke fuccour at their hands, their Countrey being destroyed, as I said before : but 40 they were but ill entertayned or releeued, for there dyed a great number of them for hunger, which lay all the lland through in heapesdead, and like to beafts unburied, very pittifull to behold : many of them were also sold by the Ruffer, and the rest were banished from the Hand. At that time it had beene an easie thing to have converted that wicked Nation to the Christian Figh, if the Ruffer themselves had beene good Christians; but how should they shew compassion vnto other Nations, when they are not mercifull vnto their owne ? At my being there I could haue bought many goodly Tartars Children, if I would have had a thouland, of their owne Fahaue bought many goosily sarrars sometimes, in whose for a Loste of bread worth fixe pence in England, there and Mothers, to fay, a Boy or a Wench for a Loste of bread worth fixe pence in England, Miferible Fabut we had more need of victuals at that time then of any fuch Merchandize. This Afracan is the furthest h...ld that this Emperour of Russia hath conquered of the Tartars towards the Ca-

50 fixen Sea, which he keepeth very strong, sending thither enery yeare promision of men, and victuals, and Timber to build the Caftle. There is a certayne Trade of Merchandize there yied, but as yet fo Inall and beggerly, that it is not worth the making mention, and yet there come Merchants thather from chers places. The chiefest Commodities that the Russes bring thither are red Hides, red sheeps skinnes, woo iden Veilels, Bridles, and Saddles, Knines, and other Trifles, with Corne, Baton, and other Vi-Stuals. The Tartars bring thither divers kinds of Wares made of Cotton Wooll, with divers kinds of wrought Silkes : and they that come out of Persia, namely, from Shamacki, doe bring fewing Silke, which is the courseft that they vie in Ruffeland, Craffs, divers kinds of pide Silkes for Girdles, Shirts of Male, Bowes, Swords, and fuch like things; and some yeares Corne, and

6 Wal-nuts, but all fuch things in fuch small quantitie, the Merchants being so begge. Iv and prore that bring the same, that it is not worth the writing, neither is there any hope of Trade in all those parts worth the following.

This foreignd Hand of Astracan is in length twelse leagues, and in breadth three, and ly the Eaft and West in the latitude of fortie sound degrees, nine minutes: we tarred there would the

we came to another Cattle called Sabon bare, which wee left on our right hand, diffant from Valiliagorod, fixteene leagues. The Countrey hereabout is called Mordonits, and the Habitante did protesse the Law of the Gentiles : but now beeing conquered by this Emperour of Russia most of them are christened, but lye in the Woods and Wildernesse, without Towne or Ha-

Sugarlo. Caran ftinds in

The feuen and twentieth day we passed by another Castle, called Swyaske, distant from Shabonfbare aforelaid, twentie fine leagues : we left it on our right hand, and the nine and twentieth 55 degrees 33. came vnto an Iland one league from the Citie of (azan, from which falleth downe a River called Cazanhareca, and entreth into the forefaid Volga. Cazan is a faire Towne after the Ruffe or Tartar fashion, with a strong Castle situated vpon a high Hill, and was walled round about with 10 Timber and Earth, but now the Emperour of Ruffis hath given order to plucke downe the olde wals, and to build them againe of free stone. It hath beene a Citie of great Wealth and Riches, and being in the hands of the Tariars, it was a Kingdome of it felfe, and did more vexe the Ruffes in their Warres, then any other Nation : but nine yeares paft, this Emperour of Raffia conquered it, and tooke the King capeine, who being but young is now baptized, and brought vpin his Court with two other Princes, which were also Kings of the faid Cazan, and being each of them in time of their Raignes in danger of their Subiects through civill difcord, came and rendred themselues at seuerall times vnto the said Emperour, so that at this present there are three Princes in the Court of Ruffia, which had beene Emperours of the faid Cazar, whom the Emperour vieth with great honour.

We remayned at Cazan till the thirteenth day of June, and then departed from thence ; and The Iland of the fame day pailed by an Hand called the Hand of Merchants, because it was wont to be a place where all Merchants, as well Ruffes and Cazanites, as Nagayans and Crimmes, and divers other Nations did refort to keepe Mart for buying and killing, but now it is forfaken, and flandeth without any fuch refort thither, or at Canan, or at any place about it, from Moles vnto Mare Thus proceeding forward, the fourteenth day we passed by a goodly river called Cama, which The River of Vactors.

we left on our left hand. This River falleth out of the Countrey of Permis into the River of Volga, and is from Cazan fifteene leagues: and the Countrey lying betwixt the faid Cazan, and the faid River Cama on the left hand of Volga is called Vachen, and the Inhabitants bee Geniles, and line in the Wilderneffe without House or Habitation: and the Countrey on the other side of Volga, oner against the faid River Cama, is called the Land of Cheremizes, halfe Gentiles, halfe Tarters, and all the Land on the left hand of the faid Volga, from the faid River vnto Ailraca, and so following the North and North-east side of the Caspian Sea, to a Land of the Tartars Mangat or Na. called Turkemen, is called the Countrey of Mangat or Nagay, whole Inhabitants are of the Law of Mahomet, and were all destroyed in the yeare 1558, at my beeing at Afracan, through Ci-uill Warres among them, accompanied with Famine, Peftilence, and fuch Plagues, in fuch fort that in the faid yeare there were confumed of the people, in one fort and another, aboue one hundred thousand : the like Plague was never seene in those parts, so that the faid Countrevol Nagay, being a Countrey of great Pafture, remayneth now vnreplenished to the great contentation of the Ruffes, who have had cruell Warres a long time together. The Nagayaus when they flourished , lived in this manner : they were divided into divers companies called Hords, and every Hord had a Ruler, whom they obeyed as their King, and was called a Murfe, Towns or House they had none, but lived in the open fields, every Murie or King having his Hords or people about him, with their Wives, Children, and Cattell, who having confumed the Pasture in one place, removed vnto another; and when they removue they have Houses like Tents set upon Waggons or Carts, which are drawne from place to place with Camels, and therein their Wines, Children, and all their Riches, which is very little, is carried about, and every man hath at the leaft foure or five Wives belides Concubines. Vie of money they have none, but doe barter their Cattell for apparell and other necessaries. They delight in 50 no Art nor Science, except the Warres, wherein they are expert, but for the most part they bee pasturing people, and have great store of Cattell, which is all their Riches. They eate much fielh, and especially the Horse, and they drinke Mares Milke, wherewith they be oftentimes drunke: they are feditious and inclined to Theft and Murther. Corne they fow not, neither doe eate any Bread, mocking the Christians for the same, and disabling our strengths, saying, wee line by eating the top of a Weed, and drinke a Drinke made of the fame, allowing their great denouring of flesh, and drinking of Milke to be the increase of their strength. But now to proceed forward

The Crimme

All the Countrey vpon our right hand the River Volga, from over against the River Cama vnto the Towne of Aitracan, is the Land of Crimme, whole Inhabitants bee also of the Law of 60 Mahomet, and live for the most part according to the fashions of the Nagares, having continual Warres with the Emperour of Ruffia, and are valiant in the field, having countenance, and hipport from the great Turke.

The fixteenth day of June we paffed by certayne Fishermens Houses, called Petowse, twentie

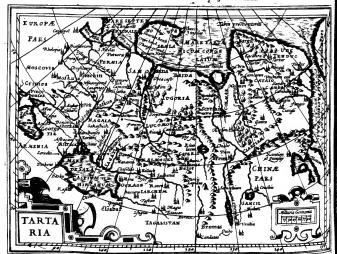

fixt day of August, and having bought and provided a Boate in company with certains Tartars and Persians, wee laded our goods and imbarked our selves, and the same day depar-They enter in. ted I, with the faid two lohnfons, having the whole charge of the Navigation downe the to the Calpiur faid River Volga, beeing very crooked, and full of flats toward the mouth thereof. Wee entred into the Caspian Sea the tenth day of August at the Easterly side of the said River, being twentie leagues from Affracan aforelaid, in the latitude of fortie fixe degrees, twentie

Volga. Volga hath feuentie mouthes or fals into the Seatand we having a large wind, kept the Northeast shoare, and the eleventh day we sayled seven leagues East North-east, and came vnto an Hand having an high Hill therein, called Accurgar, a good Marke in the Sca. From thence to East ten leagues, we fell with another Iland, called Bambiota, much higher then the other. Within thefe two Hands to the Northwards, is a great Bay called the Blue Sea. From thence wee fayled East and by North ten leagues, and having a contrary wind, wee came to an Anchorina fathome water, and fo rid untill the fifteenth day, having a great florme at South-east, being a most contrary wind, which we rid out. Then the wind came to the North, and wee weighed, and fet our course South-east, and that day fayled eight leagues.

Thus proceeding forwards, the feuenteenth day we loft light of Land, and the fame day fayled thirtie leagues, and the eighteenth day twentie leagues winding East, and fell with a Land Baughlesta be- called Baughleata, being seuentie foure leagues from the mouth of the laid Volga, in the latitude ing 74. eagues of fortie fixe degrees fiftie foure minutes, the Coast lying neerest East and by South, and West 20 and by North. At the point of this lland lyeth buried a holy Prophet, as the Tartars call him, of their Law, where great denotion is vied of all fuch Mahometiffs as doe paffe that way.

Hondivs bis Map of Tartaria.

The nineteenth day the winde being West, and wee winding East South-east, we sayled ten leagues, and passed by a great River called Iaic, which hath his spring in the Land of Siberia, Iaic River. nigh vnto the forefaid River Cama, and runneth through the Land of Nagay, falling into this Mare Caspinen. And up this River one dayes journey is a Towne called Serachicke, lubject Serachicke, to the forelaid Tartar Prince , called Murfe Smille , which is now in friendship with the Emperour of Russia. Heere is no trade of merchandite vied, for that the people have no vie of money, and are all Men of warre, and Pallurers of cattell, and given much to theft and murcher. Thus being at an anchor against this River laie, and all our men being on Land, saving I, who lay fore ficke, and fine Tarrars, whereof one was reputed a holy man, because hee came from 10 Mecca, there came vnto vs a Boat with thirtie men well armed and appointed, who boorded vs, and began to enter into our Barke, and our holy Tartar, called Azy, perceiving that, asked them what they would have, and withall made a prayer: with that these Rouers stayed, declaring that they were Gentlemen, banished from their Countrey, and out of living, and came to fee if there were any Ruffer, or other Christians (which they call Caphars) in our Barke: To whom this Azi most stoutly answered, that there were none, anowing the same by great oaths of their Law, (which lightly they will not breake) whom the Rouers beleeved, and youn his words departed. And so through the fidelitie of that Tartar, I with all my companie and goods were faued, and our men being come on boord, and the wind faire, we departed from that place, and winding East and South-east, that day being the twentieth of August failed fixteene leagues.

The one and twentieth day we passed ouer a Bay of fixe leagues broad, and fell with a Cape of Land, having two Ilands at the South-east part thereof, being a good marke in the Sea: and doubling the Cape the Land trended North-east, and maketh another Bay, into which falleth the greater River Tem, fpringing out of the Land of Colmack. The two and twentieth, tirree and twentieth, and foure and twentieth dayes, we were at anchor. The fine and twentieth, the The Country winde came faire, and we fayled that day twentie leagues, and passed by an Iland of lowel and, and thereabout are many flats and fands: and to the Northward of this Iland there goeth in a great Bay, but we fet off from this Iland, and winded South to come into deepe water, being much troubled with shoalds and flats, and ranne that course ten leagues, then East South-east, twentie leagues, and fell with the maine Land, being full of copped Hills, and passing along the 30 coast twentie leagues, the further we sayled, the higher was the Land.

The feuen and twentieth day we croffed ouer a Bay, the South shoare being the higher Land, and tell with a high point of Land: and being ouerthwart the Cape, there role such a storme at the East, that we thought verily we should have perished: this storme continued three dayes, From this Cape we passed to a Port called Manguslaue. The place where we should have arriued at the Southermost part of the Cafpian Sea , as twelve leagues within a Bay: but we being Manguflane fore tormented and toffed with this forefaid fforme, were driven vnto another Land on the other fide the Bay, ouerthwart the faid Mangustane being very lowe Land, and a place as well for the ill commoditie of the Hauen, as of those brute field people, where neuer Barke nor Boat had before arrived, not liked of vs.

40 But yet there we fent certaine of our men to Land to talke with the Gouernour and People, as well for our good viage at their hands, as also for prouision of Camels to carrie our goods from the faid Sea fide to a place called Sellyzare, being from the place of our landing fine and twentie dayes journey. Our Mellengers returned with comfortable words and faire promifes of all things.

Wherefore the third day of September 1558, we discharged our Barke, and I with my companie were gently entertayned of the Prince, and of his people. But before our departure from land thence, we found them to bee a very bad and bruish people, for they ceased not daily to molest vs, either by fighting, flealing or begging, rayling the price of Horie, and Camels, and Victuals, double that it was wont there to be, and forced vo to buy the water that we drinke : which 50 caused vs to hasten away, and to conclude with them as well for the hire of Camels, as for the price of such as wee bought, with other proussion, according to their owne demand: So that for every Camels lading, being but foure hundred weight of ours, we agreed to give three Hides of Raffia, and foure wooden dithes, and to the Prince or Gouernour of the faid people one ninth, and two feuenths: namely, nine feuerall things, and twice feuen feuerall things: for money they vie none. And thus being ready, the fourteenth of September we departed from that place, being a Carauan of a thousand Camels. And having travelled fine dayes journey, wee came to another Princes Dominion, and vpon the way there came vnto vs certaine Tartars on horsebacke, being wellarmed, and seruants vnto the said Prince called Timor Sultan, Gouernour of the said Coun-60 trey of Manguslaue, where wee meant to have arrived and discharged our Barke, if the great The Country forme aforelaid had not disappointed. These aforesaid Tarters stayed our Caranan in the name it stands in of their Prince, and opened our Wares, and tooke fich things as they thought best for their 45. faid Prince without money, but for such things as they tooke from mee, which was a ninth (after much diffention) I rode vnto the same Prince, and prefented my selve before him , requesting his fanour, and Pasport to travell thorow his Countrey, and not to be rolled or spoyled of his people: which request he granted me, and entertayned me very gently, commanding me to be well teafted with flesh and Maresmilke: for Bread they vie none, nor other drinke except water: but money he had none to give me for such things as he tooke of me, which might be of value in Russe money, fifteene Rubbles, but hee gaue mee his Letter, and a Horse worth seuen Rubbles. And fo I departed from him being glad that I was gone: for he was reported to bee 2 very tyrant, and if I had not gone vnto him, I vnderstood his commandement was, that I should have beene robbed and deffroyed.

This Sultan lived in the fields without Castle or Towne, and fate, at my being with him, in a little round house made of reeds courred without with Felt, and within with Carpets. There to was with him the great Metropolitan of that wilde Country, effeemed of the people, as the Bishop of Rome is in most parts of Europe, with divers other of his chiefe men. The Sultan with this Metropolitan demanded of mee many questions, as well couching our Kingdomes, Lawes, and Religion, as also the cause of my comming into those pars, with my further pretence. To whom I answered concerning all things, as vnto me seemed best, which they tooke in good part. So having leave I departed, and overtooke our Caravan, and proceeding on our Twentie daves iourney, and trau lled twentie dayes in the W Herneffe from the Sea fide without feeing Town or habitation, carrying provision of victuals with vs for the same time, and were driven by necefficie to ease one of my Camels and a Horfe for our part, as other did the like: and during the faid twentie dayes we found no water, but fuch as we drew our of old deepe Wells, being very 20 brackish and salt, and yet sometimes passed two or three dayes without the same. And the fire day Another Gulie of October enfuing, we came vnto a Gulfe of the Calpian Sea againe, where we found the water very fresh and sweet: at this Gulte the Customers of the King of Turkeman met vs, who tooke cultome of enery fine and twentie one, and finen ninths for the faid King and his brethren. which being received they departed, and we remay ned there a day after to refresh our selves.

Note, that in times palt there did fall into this Gulfe the great River Oxm, which hath his fprings in the Mountaines of Paraponifus in India, and now commeth not fofare, but falleth in-Will, de Rubricis to another River, called Ardock, which runneth toward the North, and confimeth himselfe in describeth this the ground, patting under the ground about fine hundred miles, and then iffueth out agains and Riut of Ardok, falleth into the Lake of Kuhay.

trivel in the

Wilderneffe.

or water.

We having refreshed our felues at the foresaid Gulfe, departed thence the fourth day of Octo-Sellinare, or ber, and the fewenth day arrived at a Cattle, called Sellinare, where the King, called Azim Can, remayined with three other of his brethren, and the ninth day I was commanded to come before his presence, to whom I delivered the Enperours Letters of Russia: and I also gave him a Prefent of a ninth, who entertay ied me very well, and caused me to cate in his presence as his brethren did, feasting me with fielh of a wilde Horse, and Mares milke without Bread. And the next day he fent for me againe, and asked of me divers questions, as well touching the affaires of the Emperour of Ruffa, as of our Countrey and Law:s, to which I answered as I thought good: fo that at my departure he gaue mee his Letters of fafe conduct.

This Calle of Sellizare is ituated upon an high H II, where the King called the Can lieth, 40 whose Palace is built of earth very basely, and not strong: the people are but poore, and have little trade of merchandife among them. The South part of this Ca'lle is low land, but very fruitfull, where growe many good fruits, among which there is one called a Dynie, of a great bigneffe. and full of moisture, which the people doe eate after meate in stead of drinke. Also there growes another fruit, called a Carbufe, of the bigneffe of a great Cucumber, yellow, and fweet as Sugar: alio a certaine Corne, called legar, whose stalke is much like a Sugar cane, and as high, and the Grane like Rice, which groweth at the top of the cane like a cluster of Grapes; the water that ferueth all that Countrey is drawne by disches out of the River Oxus, vnto the great deftruction of the laid River, for which cause it falleth not into the Caspian Sea , as it hath done in times part, and in short time all that Land is like to be destroyed, and to become a Wildernesse 50 for want of water, when the River of Oxus shall faile.

The fourteenth day of the moneth wee departed from this Castle of Sellieure, and the fix-Vignice, in 43. teenth of the same wee arrived 10 a Citie called Orgence, where we payed Custome as well for degras, min. our owne heads, as for our Camels and Hories. And having there to our ned one moneth, attending the time of our further trauel!, the King of that Countrev calle. Aly Sultan, brother to the fore-named Azym Can, returned from a Towne called Corafan, within the borders of Persia, which he lately had co. quered from the Persians, with whom hee and the rest of the Kines of Terraria have continuali warres. Before this King alfo I was commanded to come, to whom I likewife prefented the Emperours Letters of Ruffia and he entertayned me well and demanded of me divers questions, and at my departure gave me his Letters of safe conduct.

This Citie or Towne of Urgence standeth in a plaine ground, with walls of the earth, by effi- 60 mation four miles about it. The buildings within it are also of earth, but ruined a dout of good order: it hath one long freet that is covered about, which is the place of their Market, It hath beene wonne and loft foure times within feuen yeeres by civil warres, by meanes whereof there

CHAP.I.S.4. Vigence. Vicious living. Huge Sheepe, Rovers and theeves. are but few Merchants in it, and they very poore, and in all that Towne I could not fell about foure Kerfeys. The chiefest commodities there fold are fuch wares as come from Boshar, and out of Persia, but in most small quantitie not worth the writing. All the Land from the Castian Sea to this Citie of Urgence, is called the Land of Turkeman, and is subject to the said Azim The Country Can, and his brethren which bee fine in number, and one of them hath the name of the chiefe of Turkemen. King called Can, but he is little obeyed fauing in his owne Dominion, and where hee dwelleth: for every one will be King of his owne portion, and one brother feeketh alwaies to deftroy another, having no natural loue among them, by reason that they are begotten of divers women. and commonly they are the children of flaues, either Christians or Gentiles, which the father 10 doth keepe as Concubines, and every Can or Sultan hath at the least foure or five wives, besides young maidens and boyes, living most viciously: and when there are warres betwixt these brethren, (as they are feldome without) he that is ouercome if hee be not flaine, fleeth to the field with fuch companie of men as will follow him, and there liueth in the Wilderneffe, reforting to watering places, and so robbeth and spoyleth as many Carauans of Merchants and others, as they be able to our roome, continuing in this fort his wicked life, vntill fuch time as he may get power and aide to inuade fome of his brethren againe. From the Caspian Sea vnto the Castle of Sellizare aforelaid, and all the Countries about the faid Sea, the people line without Towne or habitation in the wilde fields, removing from one place to another in great companies with their Cattell, whereof they have great flore, as Camels, Horses, and Sheepe both tameand 20 wilde. Their sheepe are of great stature with great buttockes, weighing sixtie or eightie pound in weight. There are many wilde Horses which the Tartars doe many times kill with their Hawkes, and that in this order.

The Hawkes are lured to feize upon the beafts neckes or heads, which with chafing of themfelues, and fore beating of the Hawkes are tyred: then the Hunterr following his game doth flay the Horse with his Arrow or Sword. In all this Land there groweth no graffe, but a certaine brush or heath, whereon the Cattell feeding become very fat.

The Tartars neuer ride without their Bowe, Arrowes, and Sword, although it bee on hawking, or at any other pleasure, and they are good Archers both on horse-backe, and on foot also. Theie people haue not vie of Gold, Siluer, or any other coyne, but when they lacke apparell or other necessaries, they barter their Cattell for the same. Bread they have none, for they nei-30 ther till nor fowe: they be great denourers of flesh, which they cut in small pieces, and eate it by handfuls most greedily, and especially the Horse flesh. Their chiefest drinke is Mares milke fowred, as I have faid before of the Nagayans, and they will bee drunke with the fame. They haue no Rivers nor places of water in this Countrey, vntill you come to the foresaid Gulfe, difrant from the place of our landing twentie dayes journey, except it bee in Wells, the water whereof is laltish, and yet distant the one from the other two dayes iourney and more. They eate their meate vpon the ground, fitting with their legs double vnder them, and so also when they pray. Arte or Science they have none, but live most idlely, sitting round in great companies in the fields, deuifing, and talking most vainely.

They fixe and twentieth day of Nouember, wee departed from the Towne of Vrgence, and The River of hauing trauelled by the Riuer Oxas one hundred miles, wee passed ouer another great Riuer, Andochfalleth called Ardocke, where wee payed a certaine petie custome. This River Ardocke is great, and into the Lake very fwift, falling out of the forelaid Oxus, and passing about one thousand mile to the Northward, it then confume that felfe in the ground, and palling vnder the fame about fine hundred miles, issueth out againe, and salleth into the Lake of Kinay, as I have before declared.

The feuenth of December following, we arrived at a Castle called Kair, Subject to a Sulian The Castle of called Sarames Sultan, who meant to have robbed all the Christians in the Caraum, had it not Kast. beene for feare of his brother the King of Vrgence, as we were informed by one of his chiefest Counfellours, who willed vs to make him a present, which he tooke, and deliuered : besides, 50 Wee payed at the faid Caitle for Custome, of euery Camell one red hide of Russia, besides petie gifts to his Officers.

Thus proceeding in our journey, the tenth day at night being at rest, and our watch set, there came vnto vs foure Horlemen, which we tooke as Spies, from whom we tooke their weapons, and bound them, and having well examined them, they confessed that they had seene the tract of many Horsemen, and no footing of Camels, and gaue vs to vnderstand, that there were Rouers and theeues abroad: for there travell few people that are true and peaceable in that Countrey, but in companie of Carauan, where there be many Camels: and Horse-feeting new without Camels were to be doubted. Whereupon we confulted and determined amongst our schoes, and fent a Poste to the said Sultan of Kaite, who immediatly came himselfe with three hundred 60 men , and met these source suspected men which wee sent vinto him , and examined them to straightly, and threatned them in such fort, that they confessed, there was a banished Prince with fortie men three dayes journey forward, who lay in wait to destroy vs, if hee could, and that they themselves were of his companie.

The Sultan therefore vinlerstanding, that the Theenes were not many, appointed vs eightie men well armed with a Captaine to goe with vs, and conduct vs in our way. And the Sultan honfelfe returned backe again, taking the foure theeues with him. Thefe fouldiers trauelled with vs two dayes, confuring much of our victuals. And the third day in the morning very early they fet our before our Caravan, and having ranged the wildernesse for the space of foure hours, they met vs, comming towards vs as fall as their horfe could runne, and declared that they had found the tract of hories not farre from vs, perceiving well that wee should meete with enemies, and therefore willed vs to appoint our felues for them, and asked vs what wee would give them to conduct vs further, or elfe they would returne. To whom wee offered as we thought good, but they refused our offer, and would have more, and so wee not agreeing they departed from but they refuted our otter, and wouth man more, and to they refuted our otter of the configuration vs, and went backet o their Sultan, who (as wee coniectured) was print to the configuration vs, and went backet o their Sultan and an appropriate alled hole were the configuration. But they being gone, certaine Tartars of our companie called holy men, (because they had been at Mecca) cauled the whole Carauan to stay, and would make their prayers, and divine how we thould prosper in our journey, and whether wee should meet with any ill companie or no : To which, our whole Caravan did agree. And they tooke certaine sheepe and killed them, and tooke the blade bones of the same, and first sod them, and then burnt them, and tooke of the

bloud of the faid sheepe, and mingled it with the powder of the said bones, and wrote certaine

Characters with the faid blood, vfing many other ceremonics and words, and by the same di-uined and found, that wee should meete with enemies and theeues (to our great trouble) but should ouercome them, to which forcerie, I and my companie gaue no credit, but wee found it true : for within three houres after that the fouldiers departed from vs, which was the fifteenth as

Diaination by day of December, in the morning, wee escryed farre oil divers horsemen which made towards vs, and we (perceining them to bee rouers) gathered our felues together, being fortie of vs well appointed, and able to fight, and wee made our prayers together enery one after his Law, profelling to live and dye one with another, and to prepared our felues. When the theeues were nigh vnto vs, wee perceiued them to be in number thirtie feuen men well armed, and appointed with bowes, arrowes, and fwords, and the Captaine a Prince banished from his Countrey. They willed vs to yeeld our feloes, or elfe to bee flaine, but wee defied them, wherewith they shot at vs all at once, and we at them very hotly, and so continued our fight from morning verill two houres within night, diuers men, horses and camels being wounded and slaine on both parts: Hand-sunsve- and had it not beene for foure hand-guns, which I and my companie had and vied, wee had a beene ouercome and destroyed : for the theenes were better armed, and were also better Archers then wee; But after we had flaine divers of their men and hor es with our Guns, they durk not approach fo nigh, which caused them to come to a truce with vs vntill the next morning, which wee accepted, and encamped our felues vpon a hill, and made the fashion of a Cassle, walling it about with packes of wares, and layd our Horses and Camels within the same, to saue them from the shot of arrowes : and the theeues also incamped within an arrow shot of vs, but they were betwixt vs and the water, which was to our great discomfort, because neither wee nor our Camels had drunke in two dayes before. Thus keeping good watch, when halfe the night was spent, the Prince of the Theeues sent a

Fight with

Buffirmans, or

meslenger halfe way vnto vs, requiring to talke with our Captaine, in their tongue, the Cara-40 uan Balba, who answered the messenger, I will not depart from my companie to goe into the halfe way to talke with thee : but it that thy Prince with all his companie will sweare by our Law to keepe the truce, then will I fend a man to talke with thee, or elfe not. Which the Prince understanding as well himselfe as his company, swore so loude that wee might all heare; And then we fent one of our companie (reputed a holy man) to talke with the same messenger. The message was pronounced aloude in this order. Our Prince demandeth of the Carauan Basha, and of all you that bee Buffarmans, (that is to fay, Circumcifed) not desiring your blouds, that you deliner into his hands as many Caphars, that is, unbelieners (meaning vs the Christians) as are among you with their goods, and in so doing, bee will suffer you to depart with your goods in quietnesse, and on the contrarie, you shall bee handled with no lesse cruelty then the Capitars, if hee ouercome you, as hee doubteth not, 50 To the which our Caranan Balka answered, that hee had no Christians in his companie, nor other flrangers, but two Turker which were of their Law; and although hee had, hee would rather dye then deliner them, and that wee were not afraid of his threatnings, and that should hee know when day appeared. And so palling in talke, the Thecues (contrary to their cath) carried our hely man away to their Prince, crying with a loude voyce in token of victorie, Ollo, ollo. Fidelitieofan Wherewith wee were much discomforted, fearing that that holy man would betray vs: but he being cruelly handled and much examined, would not to death confesse any thing which was to vs prejudiciall, neither touching vs, nor yet what men they had flaine and wounded of ours the day before. When the night was ipent, in the morning wee prepared our felices to battell againe : which the theeues perceiving, required to fall to agreement, and asked much of vs : And to bee briefe, the most part of our company being loach to goe to battell agains, and having lit- 60 tle to lofe, and fafe conduct to passe, wee were compelled to agree, and to give the theeues twentie ninths (that is to fay) twentie times nine seuerall things, and a Camell to carrie away the same, which being received, the theeres departed into the Willernesse to their olde habitation, and wee went on our way forward. And that night came to the River Ox 201, The river of where wee refreshed our felues, having beene three dayes without water and drinke, and tarried there all the next day, making merrie with our slaine Horses and Camels, and then departed from that place, and for feare of meeting with the faid theeues againe, or fuch like, wee left the from this place; and to the faid River, and passed through a wildernesse of faid, and trauelled foure dayes in the fame before wee came to water : and then came to a Well, the water of tind, being very brackish, and we then as before were in need of water, and of other victuals, being forced to kill our Horses and Camels to eate.

In this wildernesse also, wee had almost fallen into the hands of Theeues: for one night be-40 ing at rest, there came certaine scouts, and carried away certaine of our men which lay a little separated from the Carauan where with there was a great shoute and crie, and we immediatly laded our Camels, and departed being about midnight, and very darke, and droue fore till we came to the river Ozm againe, and then wee feared nothing being walled with the faid river : and whether it was for that wee had gotten the water, or for that the same threues were farre from vs when the foots discouered vs, we know not, but week aped that danger.

So vpon the three & twentieth day of December, we arrived at the Citie of Boehar in the land Boghar a Citie of Baltria. This Bogbar is lituated in the lowest part of all the Land, walled about with a high of Eastria in wall of earth, with divers Gates into the same : it is divided into three partitions, whereof two Journates parts are the Kings, and the third part is for Merchants & Markets, and every Science hath their

20 dwelling and market by themselves. The Citie is very great, and the houses for the most part of Earth, but there are also many Houses, Temples, and Monuments of stone sumptuously builded, and gilt, and specially Bath-stones so artificially built, that the like thereof is not in the world; the manner whereof is too long to rehearie. There is a little river running through the A ftrance midft of the laid Citie, but the water thereof is moit vnwholesome, for it breedeth sometimes in Wome in men that drinke thereof, and especially in them that bee not there borne, a Worme of an ell mens lege. long, which lyeth commonly in the leg, betwire the fleth and the skin, and is pluckt out about the Ancle with great art and cunning, the Surgeons being much practifed therein, and if shee breake in plucking out, the partie dyeth, and every day the commeth out about an inch, which is rolled up, and so workerh till the bee all out. And yet it is there forbidden to drinke any o-20 ther thing then water, and Mares milke, and who oeuer is found to breake that Law, is whipped and beaten most cruelly through the open markets, and there are Officers appointed for the lame, who have authoritie to goe into any mans houle, to fearch if hee have either Aquanta, Wine, or Brag, and finding the same, doe breake the vessels, spoyle the drinke, and punish the mafters of the house most cruelly ; yea, and many times if they perceine but by the breath of a man that hee hath drunke, without further exa mination he shall not escape their hands.

There is a Metropolitane in this Boghar, who causeth this law to be so straightly kept : and he is more obeyed then the King, and will depose the King, and place another at his will and pleafure, as hee did by this King that raigned at our being there, and his predecessour, by the meanes of the faid Metropolitan : for hee betrayed him, and in the night flew him in his chamber, who 40 was a Prince that loued all Christians well,

This Countrey of Boghar was somtime subject to the Persians, and doe now speake the Per- Thesa are of from tongue, but yet now it is a Kingdome of it felfe, and hath most crueli warres continually the testion with the faid Persians about their Religion, although they bee all Marometists. One occasion of Tartars. their warres is, for that the Persians will not cut the hayre of their upper lips, as the Bogbarians and all other Tartars doe, which they account great finne, and call them Caphars, that is, vibeleeuers, as they doe the Christians. The King of Bogbar hath no great power or riches, his revenues are but small, and hee is most maintained by the Citie : for he taketh the tenth penie of all things that are there fold, as well by the Graftimen as by the Merchants, to the great imposerishment of the people, whom hee keepeth in great subjection, and when hee lacketh money, he sendeth his officers to the Shops 50 of the faid Merchants, to take their wares to pay his debts, and will have credit of force, as the like hee did to pay me certaine money that he owed me for nineteene pieces of Kerley. Their money is filter and copper, for gold their is none currant: they have but one piece of filter, and The Coyne of that is worth twelue-pence English, and the copper money are called Pooles, and one hundred Bother .. and twentie of them goeth to the value of the faid twelue-pence, and is more common payment then the filter, which the King caufeth to rife and fall to his most advantage every other month, and fomtimes twife a moneth, not caring to oppresse his people, for that he looketh not to raigne about two or three yeeres, before he bee either flaine or driven away, to the great destruction of

The twentie fixth day of the moneth, I was commanded to goe before the faid King, to whom 60 I presented the Emperour of Rossia his letters, who entertained vs most gently, and caused vs to eate in his presence, and druers times hee sent for me, and denised with me familiarly in his secret chamber, as well of the power of the Emperout, and the great Turke, as allo of our Countries, Lawes, and Religion, and caused vs to shoote in hand-guns before him, and did hims lee practife the vie thereof. But after all this great entertainment, before my departure hee thewed Avery Tast. 1. himselfe a very Tastar: for he went to the warres owing me money, and faw me not payed before his departure. And although indeed her gaue order for the same, yet was I very ill satisfied, and forced to rebate part, and to take wares as payment for the rest contrary to my expectation : but of a begger better payment I could not have, & glad I was fo to be payd and difpatched.

But yet I must needs praste and commend this barbarous King, who immediately after myarriuall at Bogbar, having understood our trouble with the Thecues, fent one! undred men well armed, and gaue them great charge not to returne before they had either flaine or taken the favd theeues. Who according to their commission ranged the wildernesse in such fort, that they met The Kings iuwith the faid companie of Theeues, and flew part, and part fled, and foure they tooke and to brought vinto the King, and two of them were fore wounded in our skirmish with our Guns: And after the King had fent for me to come to fee them, hee caused them all foure to bee hanged at his Palace gite, because they were Gentlemen, to the example of others. And of fish goods as were gotten againe, I had part reftored me; and this good Iuffice I found at his hands.

There is yearely great refort of Merchants to this Citie of Boghar, which travell in great Ca. ranans from the Countries thereabout adiopning, as India, Persia, Balgh, Russia, with diversothers, and in times paft from Cathay, when there was paffage : but thele Merchants are fo beggerly and poore, and bring to little quantitie of wares, lying two or three yeeres to fell the fame. that there is no hope of any good trade there to be had worthy the following. The chiefe commodities that are brought thither out of their forelaid Countries, are thefe following.

The indians doe bring fine Whites, which the Tartars doe all roll about their heads. and all other kindes of Whites, which ferue for apparell made of Cotton-wooll and Crafe ca, but Gold, Silver, precious Stones, and Spices they bring none. I enquired and perceived that all fuch trade passeth to the Ocean sea, and the veynes where all such things are gottenare in the subjection of the Portugals. The Indians carrie from Bogbar againe wrought Silkes, red Hides, Slaves, and Hories, with fuch like, bur of Kerleis and other cloath, they make littleaccount. I offered to bartar with Merchants of those Countries, which came from the furthest parts of India, even from the Countrey of Bengala, and the river Ganges, to give them Kerfeis for their commodities, but they would not barter for fuch commoditie as Cloath. The Persians doe bring thither Craska, Woollen-cloath, Linnen-cloath, divers kindes of 30 wrought pide Silkes, Argomacks, with fuch like, and doe carrie from thence red hydes with other Ruffe wares, and Slaues, which are of divers Countries, but cloath they will buy none, for that they bring thither themselves, and is brought vnto them as I have inquired from Alego Merchandife. in Syria, and the parts of Turkie. The Ruffes doe carrie vnto Bogbar, red hydes, sheepe skinnes. woollen cloath of divers forts, woodden veffels, brydles, fadules, with fuch like, and doe carne away from thence divers kindes of wares made of cotten-wooll, divers kindes of filkes, Crafes, with other things, but there is but finall viterance. From the Countries of Cathay are brought thither in time of peace, and when the way is open, Muske, Rubarbe, Satten, Damaske, with diners others things. At my being at Bogbar, there came Caravans out of all thele forefaid Coun-Merchandise tries, except from Cathay : and the caule why there came none from thence, was the great & warres that had dured three yeeres before my comming thither, and yet dured betwixt two great Countries and Cities of Tartars, that are directly in the way betwixt the faid Boghar and the faid Cathay, and certaine barbarous field people, as well Gentiles as Mahometifts bordering to the faid Cities. The Cities are called Taskent and Caskar, and the people that warre against Taskent are called Coffacks of the law of Mahomet : and they which warre with the faid Countrey of Caskar are called Kings, Gentiles and Idolaters. These two barbarous Nations are of great force, living in the fields without House or Towne, and have almost subdued the forelaid Cities, and to Hopped up the way, that it is impossible for any Carauan to passe unspoyled : fo that three yeeres before our being there, no Carauan had gone, or vied trade betwixt the Coun-

Merchandife

of Cathay. Wares. Taskent and

> To foeake of the faid Country of Cathay, and of such newes as I have heard thereof, I have thought it best to reserve it to our meeting. I having made my solace at Boobar, in the winter time, and having learned by much inquitition, the trade thereof, as also of all the other Countries thereto adjoyning, and the time of the yeere being come, for all Carauans to depart, and alfo the King being gone to the warres, and newes come that hee was fled, and I aduertifed by the Metropolitan himielte, that I thould depart, because the Towne was like to bee beseged : I thought it good and meete, to take my journey fome way, and determined to have gone from thence into Persia, and to have seene the trade of that Country, although I had informed my felfe sufficiently therof, as well at Astracan, as at Boghar: and perceived well the trades not to be much vnlike the trades of Tartaria: but when I should have taken my journey that way, it was 60 let by diners occasions: the one was, the great warres that did newly begin betwixt the Sophie, and the Kings of Tartaria, whereby the wayes were deftroyed : and there was a Caravan deitrayed with rouers and theeues, which came out of India and Persia, by safe conduct : and about ten dayes tourney from Bogbar, they were robbed, and a great part flaine. Also the Metropoli-tries of Cathay and Boghar, and when the way is cleare, it is nine moneths journey.

ton of Boobar, who is greater then the King, tooke the Emperours letters of Ruffia from me. without which I should have beene taken Slave in every place : also all such wares as I had recrited in barrer for Cloath, and as I tooke perforce of the King, and other his Nobles, in payment of money due vnto me, were not vendible in Perfia : for which causes, and diners others. I was constrained to come backe againe to Mare Caspium, the same way I went : so that the eight of March, 1559, wee departed out of the faid Citie of Bogbar, being a Carauan of fixe hunfred Camels : and if wee had not departed when we did, I and my companie had beene in dan- March, 1559. ger to have lost life and goods. For ten dayes after our departure, the King of Samarcand came with an armie, and belieged the faid Citie of Baghar, the King being ablent, and gone to the 10 warres against another Prince his kinsman, as the like chanceth in those Countries once in two or three yeeres. For it is maruell, if a King raigne there about three or foure yeeres, to the great de-

Araction of the Countrey, and Merchants.

The fine and twentieth of March, we came to the foresaid Towne of Urgence, and escaped the Vrgence, danger of foure hundred rouers, which lay in wayte for vs backe againe, being the most of them of kindred to that companie of theeues, which wee met with going foorth, as we perceived by foure foves, which were taken. There were in my companie, and committed to my charge, two Ambaffadors, the one from the King of Bogbar, the other from the King of Balke, and were fent The King of vnto the Emperour of Ruffia. And after having tarried at Vrgence, and the Caftle of Sellyfure, eight Bale, or Ealgh dayes for the affembling, and making ready our Carauan, the second of Aprill wee departed from

20 thence, having foure moe Ambastadours in our companie, fent from the King of Vrgence, and other Sultans, his brethren, vnto the Emperour of Ruffia, with answer of such Letters as I brought them : and the same Ambassadours were also committed vnto my charge by the said Kings and Princes: to whom I promised most faithfully, and swore by our Law, that they should bee well vied in Rusland, and suffered to depart from thence againe in safetie, according as the Emperour had writtenallo in his letters : for they somewhat doubted, because there had none gone out of Tartaria into Rullia, of long time before.

The three and twentieth of Aprill, wee arrived at the Mare Caspinan againe, where we The Caspina found our Barke which wee came in, but neither Anchor, Cable, Cocke, nor Sayle : neuerthe- fea. leffe we brought Hempe with vs, and fpun a Cable our felues, with the reft of our tackling, and 30 made vs a fayle of cloath of Cotton-wooll, and rigged our Barke as well as wee could, but boate or anchor we had none. In the meane time being denifing to make an anchor of wood of a Cartwheele, there arrived a Barke, which came from Astracan, with Tartars and Russes, which had Woodden and two Anchors, with whom I agreed for the one : and thus being in a readinesse, wee set sayle and chor. departed, I, and the two Iohn fons, being Master and Mariners our selues, having in our Barke the faid fixe Ambassadours, and twentie five Russes, which had beene Slaves a long time in Tartaria, nor euer had before my comming, libertie, or meanes to get home, and these Slaues served to row when need was. Thus fayling iometimes along the coaft, and iometimes out of fight of land. The thirteenth day of May, having a contrary winde, we came to an anchor, being three leagues from the shoare, and there arose a fore storme, which continued fortie foure houres, and our ca-40 blebeing of our owne spinning, brake, and lost our anchor, and being off a lee shoare, and having Dangerous no boate to helpe vs, wee hoysed our sayle, and bare roomer with the said shoare, looking for pre-tempest, and fent death; but as God prouided for vs, we ranne into a creeke full of Oze, and fo faued our felues vie of the with our Barke, and lived in great discomfort for a time. For although wee should have escaped with our lives the danger of the fea, yet if our barke had perished, we knew we should have been either destroyed, or taken slaues by the people of that Countrey, who live wildly in the field, like beafts, without house or habitation. Thus when the storme was feafed, wee went out of the creeke againe : and having fet the land with our Compaffe, and taken certayn markes of the fame. during the time of the tempest, whilest we rid at our anchor, wee went directly to the place where we rid, with our Barke againe, and found our anchor which we loft : whereat the Tartars

50 much maruelled, how we did it. While wee were in the creeke, we made an anchor of wood of Gart wheeles, which we had in our Barke, which we threw away, when we had found our Iron anchor againe. Within two dayes after, there arose another great storme, at the North-east, and we lay a trie, being driven farre into the fea, and had much adoe to keepe our Barke from finking, the billow was fo great : but at the last, having faire weather, wee tooke the Sunne, and knowing how the Land lay from vs, we fell with the River Taik, according to our defire, whereof the Taik, Tartars were very glad, fearing that wee should have beene driven to the coast of Persia, whose people were vnto them great enemies.

Note, that during the time of our Nauigation, we fet up the red Croffe of Saint George in our The English flagges, for honour of the Christians, which I supposed was never seene in the Caspian sea before. flag in the Casp 60 Wee paffed in this voyage duers fortunes: notwithflanding, the eight and twentieth of May we fames, the arrived in lafetie at Afracan, and there remayned till the tenth of June following, as well to County increased by prepare vs small Boates, to goe up against the streame of Volga, with our goods, as also for the companie of the Amballadours of Taxarie, committed vinto me, to be brought to the prefence of the Emperour of Ruffia,

This Capian fea (to fay fomething of it) is in length about two hundred leagues, and in breadth one hundred and fittie, without any iffue to other Seas : to the East part wheref, ioyneth the great defart Countrey of the Tartars, called Turkemen : to the Weit, the Countries of the Chyraffes, the Mountaines of Caucasius, and the Mare Euxinum, which is from the field Cassi. Another de Control an Sea, a hundred leagues. To the North is the river Volga, and the land of Nagay, and to the the Ciffianties. South part toyne the Countries of Media and Persia. This Sea is fresh water in many places, and in other places as falt as our great Ocean: It hath many goodly Rivers falling into it, and it auoydeth not it selse except it bee vnder ground. The notable Rivers that fall into it, are brit the great River of Volga, called in the Tartar tongue Edell, which springeth out of a lake in a marrish or plaine ground, not farre from the Citie of Nouogrode in Ruffia, and it is from the ipring to 10 the Sea, aboue two thouland English miles. It hath divers other goodly Rivers falling into it, as out of Siberia, Taic, and Tem: Allo out of the mountaines of Cancasus, the Rivers of Crue and Arash, and divers others.

As touching the trade of Shamakie in Media and Tebris, with other Townes in Persia, I have enquired, and doe well understand, that it is even like to the trades of Tartaria, that is little vtterance, and small profite: and I have been advertised that the chiefe trade of Persia is into St. ria, and so transported into the Leuant sea. The few ships upon the Cassian Seas, the want of Mart and port Townes, the pouertie of the people, and the Ice, maketh that trade naught.

At Altracan there were Merchants of Shamakie, with whom I offered to barter, and to give Afternation 47.

Action 14.7.

Action 14.7. Countrey, as I offered them, which was fixe rubbles for a Kerfie, that I asked : and while I was at Boghar, there were brought thither out of Persia, Cloath, and divers commodities of our Countries, which was fold as good cheape, as I might fell ours.

The tenth day of Iune, wee departed from Astracan towards the Mosco, hauing an hundred gunners in our companie at the Emperours charges, for the fafe conduct of the Tartar Ambassadours and me. And the eight and twentieth day of July following, we arrived at the Citie of Cazan, having been upon the way from Aftracan thither, fixe weekes and more, without any refreshing of victuals : for in all that way there is no habitation.

The feuenth of August following, wee departed from Cazan, and transported our goods by Zerous in 55 deg 33 min. Water, as farre as the Citie of Mouns, and then by land: so that the second of September, wee His arrival arrived at the Citie of the Mosco, and the sourch day I came before the Emperous Maieslis, Mojes the fe-kiffed his hand, and prefented him a white Cowes tayle of Cathas, and a Drum of Tartaria, which hee well accepted. Also I brought before him all the Ambassadours that were committed to my charge, with all the Ruffe fluies : and that day I dined in his Maiesties presence, and at dinner, his Grace tent me meate by a Duke, and asked me divers questions touching the Lands and Countries where I had beene. And thus I remayned at the Moseo about your affaires, vntill the seventeenth day of Februarie that your wares were sent downe: and then having licence of the Emperours Maiestie to depart, the one and twentieth day I came to your house to Vologhds, and there remay ned vntill the breaking vp of the yeere; and then having feene all your goods laden into your Boates, I departed with the jame, and arrived withall in fafetie at Colmogro, the 40 minth of May 1560. And heere I ceale for this time, intreating you to beare with this my large discoarse, which by reason of the varietie of matter, I could make no shorter, and I beseech God to prosper all your attempts.

I have certaine notes which seeme to have beene written at Boghar by some of Masser lenkinsons companie: which containe intelligences there received touching Cathay and the wayes thither. But I bope thereof in that which followes to give better intelligence. It is there faid that the people of Comoron are very beautifull, and that they wee Kniues and Forkes of gold and silver to eate their meate, not tonching it with their hands : that the Mink-beast is as big as a Hound. In Teray they worship the taintie in Goes. Fre, which is thirtie foure dayes iourney from Cathay, At Cascar is resident the Can. From Cascar to Cocheke is foure weekes ; it is the first Land of the Emperour of Cathay : and then to Camche 10 fine dayes by land, and to Catalo eight weekes. In this last sourney is plentic of all things : both Horse to bee bad, and Women at too easie rate, &c. which as newes to them I have beere touched, rather then related. I have also by me, the last Will of Gabriel Willoughbie, kinsman to that honourable Martyr of English Northerne Discoueries Sir Hugh Willoughbie, mentioned in the beginning of this Chapter, and subscribed with his Name, the worth whereof hath caused heere also this subscription. It was found in the Ship where they were frozen.

Memoriallof

è. V.

Aduertisements and reports of the sixth * Voyage into the parts of Persia and Media, gathered out of fundry Letters written by CHRISTOPHER BVE-ROVOH; and more especially a voyage over the Caspian Sea. and their hipwracke and miferies there endured by the Ice.

Irft it is to bee understood, that the ships for the voyage to Saint Nicholas in Russia, in which the Factors and merchandise for the Persian voyage were transported, departed from Gravefend the nineteenth of June, 1 579, which arrived at Saint Nicholas in Ruffia, the two and twentieth of July, where the Factors and Merchants landed, and the merchandise discharged and laden into Doshnikes, that is, barkes of the Countrey, to becarried from thence up by River unto Vologda. And the fine and twentieth day of the faid July, the Doshnikes departed from Rose lland by Saint Nicholas vp the ruer Dwing Peremene, that is to fay in poste, by continuals fayling, rowing, setting with poles, or drawing of men, which came to Colmogro the feuen and twentieth day, and departed thence the nine and twentieth of Colmogra-Iuly up the faid river Dwina, and came to Vilyong (which is at the head of the river Dwina, and mouth of Sughano) the ninth of August, where they flayed but a small time, promising some vi-

20 Auals, and flutting certaine of their Coffacks or Barkmen, and so departed thence the same day vp the Sughano, and came to Torma (which is counted somewhat more then halfe the way from Vityoug) the fifteenth day, where they shifted some of their Cossacks, and departed thence the fame day, and came to the Citie Vologda the nineteenth of August, where they landed their goods, and stayed at that place till the thirtieth of the same. Hauing prouided at Vologda, Telegas or Waggons, whereupon they laded their goods, they departed thence with the same by land toor Waggons, whereupon use; and was a superior of the clocke in the morning, and came to the Eaft file of the river Volga, ouer against Tenglasse, with five and twente Telegas laden Yanglass. with the faid goods, the feuenth of September at fine of the clocke afternoone. Then the three strongs or barkes, prouided to transport the faid goods to Aftracan, (where they should meete the 30 thip that should carrie the same from thence into Perfia) came ouer from Terallane Into the same fide of the river Volga, & there tooke in the faid goods. And having prepared the faid Barks ready with all necessarie furniture, they departed with them from Terassame down the river of Volga, on the fourteenth day of September at nine of the clocke in the morning, and they arrived at Niz- Niznanagrad. nowogrod the feuenteenth day at three of the clocke afternoone, where they shewed the Emperours letters to passe free without paying any custome, and tarried there about three houres to prouide necessaries, and then departing, arrived at Cazan (or neere the same Towne) on the two Cazan. and twentieth of September at fine of the clocke afternoone, where (through contrary windes. and for providing new Coffacks in the places of fome that there went from them) they remayned till the fixe and twentieth day, at what time they departed thence about two of the clocke

40 after noone, and arrived at Tetulhagorod, which is on the Crim fide of Volga, and in latitude 55. degrees 22 minutes, the eight and twentieth day at ten in the forenoone, where they anchored and remained about three houres, and departing thence came to Oneak, which is on the Crims fide (on the Westerne fide of Volga) the lift of October about five of the clocke in the morning. fide (on the Welterne nac or y nga) into an one Cazan and Africam : and heere there groweth This place is accounted halfe the way betweene Cazan and Africam : and heere there groweth great store of Liquuris: the soyle is very fruitfull: they found there Apple-trees, and Cherrie-Liqueits. trees. The latitude of Oneak is 51 degrees 30 minuts. At this place had beene a very faire stone Castle called by the name Oneak, and adjoyning to the same was a Towne called by the Russes, Sadem: this Townse and part of the Cattle (by report of the Ruffer) was swallowed into the sadem earth by the inflict of God, for the wicked nelle of the people that inhabited the Jame. Therere-Strange indge-

50 mayneth at this day to be seene a part of the ruines of the Castle, and certaine Tombes, wherein ment. as it seemeth haue beene layd noble personages : for vpon a tombe stone might be perceived the forme of a Horse and a man sitting on it with a Bow in his hand, and Arrowes girt to his side : there was a piece of a Scutchion also vpon one of the stones, which had characters grauen on it, whereof some part had been confumed with the weather, and the rest left unperfect : but by the formeof them that remained, we judged them to be characters of Armenia: and other characters were grauen also vpon another tombestone. Now they departed from Oneak the faid fift of October at fine of the clocke after noone, and came to Peranolok the tenth day about elemen or Peranolok twelve of the clocke that night, making no abode at that place, but passed alongst by it. This word Perauolok in the Ruffe tongue doth fignifie a narrow straight or necke of land between two

60 waters, and it is so called by them, because from the riner Volga, at that place, to the riner Don or Tanais, is counted thirtie versts, or as much as a man may well trauell on foot in one day. And seuen versts beneath, vpon an Iland called Tfaritfna, the Emperour of Ruffia hath fiftie Gunners all Thirifue. Summertime to keepe watch, called by the Tastar name Caravool. Betweenethis place and Afracan are five other Caramools or watches.

* The other voyages are in Mafter Haklig! this I have for Tariaria and the Caffian lea brought hi-

The First is named Kameni Caramool, and is distant from Peranelok one hundred and twentie verites. The fecond named Stupino Caronool, distant from the first fiftie verites. The third called Pology Caronool, is one hundred and twentie verftes diffant from the fecond. The fourth named Keezeyur Caramool, is fiftie verfles distant from the third. The fift named lebkebre, is thertieverites distant from the fourth, and from lebkebre to Afracan is thirtie verftes.

Lee at Allracan tor foure mo-

244

The fixteenth of October they arrived at Afracan. The ninteenth of November the winde being northerly, there was a great frost, and much Ice in the River: the next day being the twentieth of Nouember, the Ice flood in the River, and to continued vntill Eafter day.

The fixth of Ianuarie being Twelfe day (which they call Chreshenia) the Ruffes of Afracan 10 brake a hole in the Ice vpon the River Volga, and hallowed the water with great folemnitic, according to the manner of their Countrey, at which time all the Souldiers of the Towne flot of their small Peeces vpon the Ice, and likewise to gratifie the Captaine of the Caltle, being a Duke, whose name is Pheodor Michalonich Troiscouria, who stood hard by the ship, beholding them as they were on the River, was shot off all the Ordnance of our ship being fifteene Peter ces, viz. two Faulcons, two Faulconets, foure Fowlers, foure Fowlers Chambers, and three oother small Preces made for the Stroogs to shoot Haile-stones, and afterwards the great Ordnance of the Castle was shot off.

An Eclip'c.

On the one and thirtieth of Ianuarie there happened a great Eclipse of the Moone, which began about twelue of the clocke at night, and continued before thee was cleere an houre and an 10 halfe by estimation, which ended the first of Februarie about halfe an houre past one in the morning : fhee was wholly darkned by the fpace of halfe an houre.

The variation of the Com-

The fenenteenth of Aprill, the variation of the Compasse observed in Afracan, was 13. degrees 40, minutes from North to West. This Spring there came newes to Afracia, that the Queene of Persia (the King being blind ) had beene with a great Armie against the Turkes that can, was 13 de were left to possesse Media, and had given them a great overthrow: yet notwithstanding Derbent, and the greatest part of Media were still possessed and kept by the Turkes. The Factors of the Companie consulting upon their affaires, determined to leave at Aftracan the one halfe of their goods with Arthur Edwards, and with the other halfe, the other three Factors would proceed in the thip on their purpoted Voyage to the coast of Media, to fee what might bee done 30 there: where, if they could not finde lafe trafficke, they determined to proceed to the coast of Gilan, which is a Prouince neere the Caspian Seabordering vpon Persia: and thereupon appointed the faid goods to be laden aboord the ship, and tooke into her also some merchandise of Tifks or Persian Merchants.

Gilan.

The second of May they weighed, and plyed downe the River Volga, toward the Caspian Sea. The fewenth of May in the morning, they paffed by a Tree that flandeth on the left hand of the River as they went downe, which is called Mahomet Agatch, or Mahomets Tree, and about three verites further, that is to fay, to the Southwards of the faid Tree, is a place called Vchoog , that is to fay, The Ruffe Weare: (but Ochoog is the name of a Weare in the Tanar tong ie) where are certaine Cotages, and the Emperour hath lying at that place certaine Gun- 40 ners to guard his Fisher-men that keepe the Weare. This Veboog is counted from Afracan fixty

Peboog.

verites: they proceeded downe the faid River without flaying at the Veboog. The ninth and Shallow water, tenth dayes they met with shallow water, and were forced to lighten their ship by the Paus: The eleventh day they fent backe to the Voboog for another Passos: This day by mischance the thip was bilged on the grapnell of the Panos, whereby the companie had fultayned great loffes, if the chiefest part of their goods had not beene layd into the Paus: for notwithstanding their pumping with three Pumps, heaving out water with Buckets, and all the best shifts they could make, the ship was halfe full of water ere the leake could be found and stopt. The twelfth day the Panor came to them from the Vehoog, whereby they lighted the ship of all the goods. The thirteenth day in the morning there came to them a fmall Boat, fent by the Captaine of Afra- 50 can, to learne whether the ship were at Sea cleare off the flats. The fifteenth day by great industrie and trauell they got their ship cleare off the shoales and flats, wherewith they had beene troubled from the ninth day vntill then: they were forced to passe their ship in three foot wa-Chetera Bougori, ter or leffe. The fixteenth day they came to the Chetera Bougori, or Iland of foure Hillockes, which are counted fortie verifes from Vchoog, and are the furthest Land towards the Sea. The feuenteenth day they bare off into the Sea, and being about twelve verstes from the Foure hillockes, riding in fine foot and a halfe water about eleven of the clocke in the fore-noone, they tooke their goods out of the Panofes into the ship, and filled their ship with all things necessarie. The eighteenth day in the morning about feuen of the clocke, the Panofes being discharged departed away towards Aftracan, the winde then at South-east, they rode still with the ship, and 60 nineteenth day, the winde South-east, they rode still. The twentieth day, the winde at North-

Slars.

The Caffian

45. deg. 20.mi- obseruing the elevation of the Pole at that place, found it to be 45. degrees 20. minutes. The maccentuday, the winde South-eart, ency look can also and Heered thence South by Well, within in the well, they fee fayle about one of the clocke in the morning, and Heered thence South by Well, with they fee fayle about one of the clocke in the morning, and Heered thence South by Well, and South South-west, about three leagues, and then anchored in fixe foot and a halfe water, about nine of the clocke before noone, at which time it fell calme: the eleuation of the Pole at that place 45. degrees 13. minutes. The one and twentieth, having the winde at North-west. they fet fayle, and steered thence South by West, and South vntill eleven of the clocke, and had then nine foote water : and at noone they observed the latitude, and found it to bee 44. degrees 47. minutes: then had they three fathoms and a halfe water, being cleare off the flats. It is counted from the Foure hillockes to the Sea about fiftie verifes. From the faid noone-tide vntill foure of the clocke, they fayled South by East fine leagues and a halfe : then had they fine fathoms and a halfe, and brackish water: from that till twelve at night they fayled South by Brackish water East halfe a league, East ten leagues : then had they eleuen fathoms, and the water salter. From

CHAP.I. S.5. The Bashaes entertainment of the English at Derbent.

10 that till the two and twentieth day three of the clocke in the morning, they fayled three and fiftie leagues, then had they fixteene fathoms water: from thence they fayled untill noone South and by West Seuen leagues and a halfe, the latitude then observed 43 degrees 15.mi- 43 degrees nutes, the depth then eight and twentie fathoms, and shallow ground : from that vntill eight 15, minutes, of the clocke at night, they fayled South by East five leagues and a halfe, then had they three and fortie fathoms shallow ground. From thence till the three and twentieth at foure of the clocke in the morning, they fayled South South-west three leagues and a halfe : then could they get no ground in two and fittle fathoms deepe. From thence vntill noone they fayled South nine leagues, then the latitude observed, was 42, degrees 20 minutes. From that till the foure and twentieth day at noone, they fayled South by West feuenteene leagues and a halfe, then the lati-20 tude observed, was one and fortis degrees two and thirtie minutes. From noone till seven of the 41. degrees clocke at night, they fayled South South-west four leagues, then had they perfect sight of high 32-minutes. Land or Hills, which were almost couered with Snow, and the midst of them were West from the ship, being then about twelue leagues from the neerest Land: they sounded but could finde no ground in two hundred fathoms. From thence they fayled South-west vntill mid-night: about three leagues from thence till the fine and twentieth day, foure of the clocke in the morning, they fayled West three leagues, being then little winde, and neere the Land, they tooke

they founded but could get no ground in two hundred fathoms. At foure of the clocke in the 14. minutes. after-noone, the winde North-west, they set their sayles: and from thence till the sixe and 30 twentieth day at noone, they fayled East South-east foure leagues. From thence they sayled till eight of the clocke at night South-west three leagues, the winde then at North. From thence they fayled vntill the feuen and twentieth day two of the clocke in the morning, West Southwest eight leagues, the winde blowing at North very much. From the faid two till foure of the clocke, they fayled South by West one league: then being day light, they saw the Land plaine, which was not past three leagues from them, being very high ragged Land. There were certaine Rockes that lay farre off into the Sea, about five leagues from the fame Land, (which are called Barmake Talb) they sayled betweene those Rockes and the Land, and about fine of the clocke they paffed by the Port Bilbill, where they flould have put in but could not: and bearing long it the shoare about two of the clocke after noone, they came to Bildib in the Countrey of Media Bilbill. 40 or Sheruan, against which place they anchored in time foot water. Prefently after they were at anchor, there came aboord of them a Boat , wherein were feuen or eight persons , two Tarkes, the rest Persians, the Turkes vassals, which bade them welcome, and seemed to be glad of their arrivall, who told the Factors that the Turke had conquered all Media, or the Countrey Sheruan, and how that the Turkes Balha remayned in Derbent with a Garrison of Turkes, and that Shamaky was wholly spoyled, and had few or no Inhabitants left in it. The Factors then being defirous to come to the speech of the Basha, sent one of the Tiskes (or Merchants that went over with them from Afracan, paffingers) and one of the Companies feruants Robert Golding, with those Souldiers, to the Captaine of Bachn, which place standeth hard by the Sea, to certifie him Bachn Poize of their arrivall, and what commodities they had brought, and to defire friendship to have quiet

50 and fafe trafficke for the same. Bachu is from Bildih, the place where they rode, about a dayes iourney, on foot easily to be translled, which may be fixe leagues the next way over Land: it is a walled Towne, and strongly fortified. When the faid Messenger came to the Captaine of Bachu, the faid Captaine gane him very friendly entertaynement.

In the morning very early, hee fent Horse for the rest of the companie which should goe to Derbent, fending by them that went, ten Sheepe for the fhip. Whileft they were at breakfast, Master Turnbull, Master Tailboyes, and Thomas Hudfon the Master of the ship, came thither , and when they had all broken their faits, they went to Bachn. And from Bachn they proceeded towards Derbent, as it was by the Captaine promised, being accompanied on their way for their fafe conduct, with a Gentleman, and certaine Souldiers, which had the Captaine of Bachs his

60 Letters to the Balba of Derbent, very friendly written in their behalfe. In their journey to Derbent they for fooke the ordinarie wayes, being very dangerous, and travelled thorow Woods till they came almost to the Towne of Derbent : and then the Gentleman rode before with the Captaines Letters to the Basha, to certifie him of the English Merchants comming, who receiving the Letters, and understanding the matter, was very glad of the newes, and fent forth to re-

in their fayles, and lay bulling: at noone the latitude observed, was 40. degrees 54. minutes: 40. degrees of Bildib 40.

The receiving of the English

The latitude

deg.25.min.

The variation of the Com-

paffe todeg.

ceiue them certaine Souldiers Gunners, who met them about two miles out of the Towne, faluting them with great reuerence, and afterwards rode before them : then againe met them other Souldiers, somewhat neerer the Cattle, which likewise having done their salutations rode bea fore them , and then came forth Noblemen, Captaines, and Gentlemen, to receive them into the Castle and Towne. As they entred the Castle, there was a shot of twentie Peeces of great Ordnance, and the Bafina fent Mafter Turnbull a very faire Horse with furniture to mount on, esteemed to be worth an hundred Markes, and so they were consayed to his presence; who atter he had talked with them, fent for a Coat of cloth of Gold, and caused it to be put on Ma. fter Turnbuls backe, and then willed them all to depart, and take their case, for that they were fter Turnbut backe, and then wince them an output, and talke further with them. The next day to when the Factors came agains to the presence of the Basta, according to his appointment, they requested him that he would grant them his primitedge, whereby they might trafficke safely in any part and place of his Countrey, offering him, that if it pleafed his Maiestie to have any of the commodities that they had brought, and to write his minde thereof to the Captaine of Be. chu, it should be delivered him accordingly. The Bashaes answere was, that he would willingly giue them his priviledge: yet for that he regarded their fafety, having come fo farre, and knowing the state of his Countrey to be troublesome, he would have them to bring their commoditie thither, and there to make fale of it, promifing he would prouide fuch commodities as they nee, ded, and that he would be a defence vnto them, so that they should not be injured by any: wherevpon the Factors fent Thomas Hudfon backe for the ship to bring her to Derbent, The latitude of Bildib by divers observations is 40.deg, 25.m. the variation of the Compas 10.deg.40.min.from North to West. They arrived at anchor against Derbent East and by South from the said Castle in foure fathom & a halfe water, the two and twentieth of June at ten of the clock in the morning: then they tooke vp their Ordnance, which before they had stowed in hold for easing the ship in her rolling. In the afternoone the Balba came down to the water fide against the ship, and having the faid Ordnance placed, and charged, it was all shot off to gratifie him: and presently after his departure backe, he permitted the Factors to come abourd the ship. The nine and twentieth day their goods were vnladen, and carried to the Balbaes Garden, where hee made choice of such things as he liked, taking for custome of every five and twentie Kersies , or whatsower, one, orafter the rate of foure for the hundred. The Factors after his choice made, determined to fend a part of the rest of the goods to Bachu, for the speedier making sale thereof. They departed from Derbent with the faid Barke the nineteenth of July, and arrived at Bildib the fue and twentieth day. Robert Golding defirous to understand what might bee done at Shamaky, which is a dayes journey from Bachn, went thither, from whence returning, he was fet on by theeues, and was shot into the knee with an Arrow, who had very hardly escaped with his life and goods, but that by good hap he killed one of the theeues Horfes with a Caliner, and shot a Turke thorow both cheekes with a Dag. On the fixt day of August, the Factors being aduertiled at Derbene that their thip was so rotten and weake, that it was doubtfull shee would not carrie them backe to Aftracan, did thereupon agree and bargaine at that place with an Armemian, whose name was Iacob, for a Barke called a Buffe, being of burden about fine and thirtie 40 tunnes, which came that yeere from Afracan, and was at that instant riding at an Iland called Zere, about three or foure leagues beyond, or to the Eastward of Bildin, which Barke for their more fafety, they meant to have with them in their returne to Afracan, and thereupon wrote vnto Wincoll and the rest at Bachu, that they should receive the same Busse, and lade in her their goods at Bildib, tot be returned to Derbent, and to discharge their first Boat, which was observed by them accordingly. When all their goods were laden aboord the faid Buffe at Bildib, and being readie to have departed thence for Derbent, there arose a great storme with the winde out of the > king out of the Buffe, fell by the Barkes fide into the water amongst the Rockes, and sowas loft. The packes of Cloth which they could not well take out of the Buffe were also loft : other things that were more profitable they faued. The third day of October all things were brought from the shoare abourd the ship: and that day the Factors went to the Balba to take their leave of him, vnto whom they recommended those the Companies servants, &c. which they had sent to Bachu, making account to leave them behind in the Countrey : who caused their names to be written, and promised they should want nothing, nor be injured of any. After this leave taken, the Factors went aboord, purpoling prefently to haue fet fayle and departed towards Afracan, the winde feruing well for that purpole at South South-east : And as they were readie to fet sayle, there came against the ship a man, who weued : whereupon the Boat was fent ashoare to him, who was an Armenian fent from William Wincoll, with his writing tables , wherein the faid Wincoll had written briefly, the mil-hap of the loffe of the Buffe, and that they were comming from Bildib towards Derbent,

Zere Hand.

The English luffer thip-

Sea, by force whereof the Cables and Halfers were broken, and their Veffell put ashoare, and broken to pieces against the Rockes : every of them that were in her saved their lives, and part had receised for the commodities of the Companie, which they fold at Bachs, which at the ta-of the goods. But there was a Carobia or Chift, wherein were Dollers , and Gold , which they so they, and such things as they saued with a small Boat, forced to put ashoare in a place by the they, and use it things as any state of the that with the Southerly winde that then blew, they would come from the place they were at Village. to the ship, but if they could not come with that winde, they meant to sayle with the ship, with the next wind that would ferue them, against the place where they were, and take them in, if they could : which stay and losse of those Southerly winds , was a cause of great troubles, that they afterwards fustayned through Ice, &c. entring the Volga as shall be declared.

The latitude of Derbent (by divers Observations exactly there made, is fortie one degrees fif. The latitude tie two minutes. The variation of the Compaffe at that place about eleuen degrees from North degrees 52, min IO to West. From Derbent to Bildib by Land fortie fixe leagues. From Derbent to Shamaky by nutes. Land, fortie fine leagues. From Shamak y to Bachn, about ten leagues, which may bee thirtie The variation miles. From Bachn to Bildib fiue or fixe leagues by Land, but by water about twelue leagues, of the Com-From the Castle Derbent East-wards, there reach two stone wals to the border of the Castian Pasic. Sea, which is distant one English mile. Those wals are nine foot thicke, and eight and twentie or thirtie foot high, and the space betweene them is one hundred and fixtie Geometricall paces. that is, eight hundred foot. There are yet to bee perceived of the ruine of those wals, which doe now extend into the Sea about halfe a mile : also from the Castle West-ward into the Land. they did perceive the ruines of a stone wall to extend, which wal, as it is reported, did passe from thence to Pontus Euxinus, & was built by Alexand. the great, when the castle Derbons was made.

20 The fift of October about noone, the winde North North-east they weighed Anchor, and fet sayle from Derbent, being along it the Coast to the South-wards to feeke their men; but as they had failed about foure leagues the winde scanted Easterly, so that they were forced to Anchor in three fathome water.

The feuenth day about feuen of the clocke in the morning, they fet fayle, the wind Southwest. They confidered the time of the yeare was farre ipent, the ship weake, leake, and rotten. and therefore determining notto tarry any longer for Wincoll and his fellowes, but to leave them behind, bent themselues directly towards Afracan: and fayling North North-east untill midnight about fixteene leagues, the wind then came to the North North-west, and blew much, a very storme, which caused them to take in all their Sayles, sauing the fore Corse, with which 30 they were forced to steere before the Sea, South by West, and South South-west, And on the eight day about two of the clocke in the morning, their great Boat funkeat the ships sterne, which they were forced to cut from the ship to their great griefe and discomfore : for in her they hoped to faue their lives if the ship should have miscarried. About ten of the clocke before noone; they had fight of the Land about fine leagues to the South of Derbent, and bare along ft the they nau in the cast-wards vito Nexasso, where they came at Anchor in three fathomes, Nexasso. and blacke Ozie, good Anchor hold, whereof they were glad, as also that the winde was shifted to the North-west, and but a meane gale. Wincoll and the rest of his fellowes being in the Armsman Village, which is about eighteene Versts to the West-wards of Nezanoo, the place where against they rode at Anchor, saw the ship as she passed by that place, and sent a man in the night 40 following alongit the Coaft after her, who came against the ship where shee rode, and with a fire-brand in the top of a Tree made fignes, which was perceized by them in the ship, wherevoon they hoyled out their Skiffe, and fent her ashoare to learne what was meant by the fire: which returned a Letter from Wincoll, wherein he wrote that they were with fuch goods as they had at the Armenian Village, and prayed that there they might with the fame goods bee taken

The tenth day they sent their Skiffe to the Armenian Village to setch those men and the Theparicugoods they had, with order that if the winde ferued, that they could not returne to fetch the larsof their fhip, they of the ship promised to come for them, against the faid Village, But in their want God returns are four them two Course of Partridges, that came from the shores and little mitted. fent them two Cours of Partridges, that came from the shoare, and lighted in and about their Aftrange ac-30 thips, whereby they were comforted, and one that lay ficke, of whose life was small hope, re-eident of pro-

Pausses were sent from Astracan, in which they laded the ships goods, leaving her at Anchor their relative with Ruffes to keepe her.

The thirteenth of November they departed also in those Lighters, with the goods towards the Chetera Bongori, leaving the ship at Anchor, and in her two Ruffer, which with three more that went in the Panoles to prouide victuals for themselnes and the reft, and therewith promised to returne backe to the ship with all speed, had offered to vindertake for twentie Rubbles in Money, to carrie the ship into some Harbour, where shee might safely winter, or else to keepe her where the rode all Winter, which was promifed to bee given them if they did it : and the fame 60 day when with those Lighters they had gotten fight of the foure Ilands, being about eight Verftes South-west from them, the wind then at North-east, did freele the Sea to as they could not row, guide, stirre, erremoue the faid Lighters, but as the wind and Ice did force them. And so they continued driving with the Ice, South-east into the Sea by the space of fortie houres, and then being the fixteenth day, the Ice flood. Whiles they droue with the Ice, the dangers which they incurred were great : for oftentimes, when the Ice with force of wind and Sea did breakes pieces of it were tolled and driven one vpon another with greatforce, terrible to behold, and the same happened at sometimes so neere vnto the Lighters, that they expected it would have ouer-whelmed them to their veter destruction : but God who had preserved them from many perils before, did also saue and deliver them then.

Trauell vpon

Within three or foure dayes after the first standing of the Ice, when it was firme and strong they tooke out all their goods, being fortie and eight Bales or Packes of Raw Silke, &c. laid it on the Ice, and couered the same with such proussions as they had. Then for want of victuals, &c. they agged to leave all the goods there vpon the Ice, and to goe to the shoare; and therevpon brake vp their Chefts and Corobius, wherewith, and with fuch other things as they could to get, they made Sleds for enery of them to draw vpon the Ice, whereon they layed their clothes to keepe them warme, and fuch victuals as they had, and fuch other things as they might conveniently carrie, and so they departed from the said goods and Panoses very early, about one of the clocke in the morning, and trauelling on the Ice, directed their way North, as necessary they could judge, and the same day about two of the clocke in the after-noone, they had fight of Chetera Balbas. the Chetera Babbas (foure Hillocks of Ilands fo called) vnto the fame they directed themselves and there remayned that night. The goods and Panofes which they left on the Ice, they judged to be from those Chetera Babbas, about twentie Versts. And the next morning departed thence East-wards, and came to the Chetera Bongories (or foure Ilands before spoken of) before noone (the distance betweene those places is about fifteene Versts) where they remained all that night, 20 departing thence towards Aftracan : the next morning very early they loft their way through the perswasion of the Russes which were with them, taking to much towards the left hand contrary to the opinion of Master Hudson) whereby wandering vpon the Ice source or five dayes, not knowing whether they were entred into the Crimme Tartars Land or not, at length it fortuned they met with a way that had beene travelled, which croft back-wards towards the Sea: that way they tooke, and following the same, within two dayes trauell it brought them to a place, called the Crashoyare (that is to say, in the English Tongue) Red (liffe, which divers of the

There they remay ned that night, having nothing to eate but one Loafe of Bread, which they happened to find with the two Ruffer that were left in the ship, to keepe her all the Winter (as 30 is aforefaid) whom they chanced to meet going towards Aftracan, about fine miles before they came to the faid Crasnogare, who certified them that the ship was cut in pieces with the Ice, and thip cut in pie. that they had hard icaping with their lines.

In the morning they departed early from Grafnoyare towards the Ouchooge, and about nine of the clocke before noone, being within ten Yersts of the Vebooge, they met Amos Riall, with the Carpenter, which he found at Ouchooge, and a Gunner newly come out of England, and also fixtie fine Horses with so many Cassacks to guide them, and fiftie Gunners for guard, which brought prouision of victuals, &c. and were sent by the Duke to fetch the goods to Astracan. The meeting of that company was much joy unto them.

The Factors fent backe with Amos Riall, and the faid company to fetch the goods, Thomas to Hudfon the Master, Tobias Paris his Mate, and so they the faid Factors and their company marched on to the Uchooge, where they refreshed themselves that day, and the night following. And from thence proceeded on towards Astracan, where they arrived the last day of November. These that went for the goods after their departure from the Factors, trauelled the same day vntill they came within ten Versts of the Chetera Babbas, where they rested that night. The next morning by the breake of the day they departed thence, and before noone were at the Chetera Babbas, where they stayed all night; but presently departed thence Thomas Hudson with the Carpenter and Gunner to feeeke where the goods lay : who found the same, and the next day they returned backe to their company at the Chetera Babbas , and declared vnto them in what fort they had found the faid goods.

Affaulted by

The third day early in the morning, they departed all from the foure Babbas towards the faid goods, and the fame day did lade all the goods they could finde upon the faid fleds, and withall convenient speed returned backe towards Aftracan. And when they came to the Chetera Bougori, where they rested the night, in the morning very early before the breake of day, they were assulted by a great company of the Nagars Tartar's Horse-men, which came shouting and hallowing with a great noyle, but our people were so inuironed with the sleds, that they durst not enter upon them, but ranne by, and shot their Arrowes amongst them, and hurt but one man in the head, who was a Ruffe, and so departed presently. Yet when it was day, they shewed Their returne themselues a good distance off from our men, being a very great troope of them, but did not as-fault them any more. The same day our men with those carriages, departed from thence to-60 wards Aftracan, where they arrued in safetie the fourth of December, about three of the clock in the after-noone, where our people greatly rejoyced of their great good hap to have elcaped so many hard events, troubles and miseries, as they did in that Voyage, and had great cause therefore to prayle the Almightie, who had to mercifully preserved and delivered them.

CHAP.I. S.5. A Letter of Master Lanes to bis friend in England.

They remay ned the Winter at Astracan, where they found great fauour and friendship of the Duke, Captaine, and other chiefe Officers of that place : but that Winter there hapned no great matter, worth the noting.

In the Spring of the yeere 1581, about the middt of March, the Ice was broken vp, and cleare Thebreiking cone before Altracan.

A Letter of Master HENRIE LANE to the worshipfull Master WILLIAM SANDERSON, containing a briefe discourse of that which passed in the North-east discouerie, for the space of three and thirtie veeres.

After Sanderson, as you lately requested me, so have I sought, and shough I cannot finde some things that heretofore I kept in writing, and lent out to others, yet perusing at London copies of mine old Letters to content one that meaneth to pleasure many, I have breefly and as trucky as I may, drawne out as followeth: The rough bewing may bee planed at your leafure, or as pleaseth him that shall take the paines.

First, the honourable attempt to discouer by Sea North-east and North-west named for Cathay, being 20 chiefly procured by, primiledge from King Edward the fixt, and other his Nobilitie, by and at the coff and fute of Master Sebastian Cabota, then Gouernour for Descoueries, with Ser Andrew Judde. Ser George Barnes, Sir William Garrard, Mafter Anthony Huffie, and a companie of Merchants, was Anno 1553. in the last years of his Maiestres raigne, 1953. The generall charge whereof was committed to one Sir Master William Hugh Willoughbie Knight, a goodly Gentleman, accompanied with Sufficient number of Pilots, Ma- Eurough was fiers, Merchants and Marriners, basing three Ships well furnished, to wit, The Bona Sperança, the then young, and with his Edward Bonauenture, and the Confidentia. The Edward Bonauenture, Richard Chancelor be- brother in this ing Pilot, and Steuen Burrough Master, having discovered Ward-house voon the Coast of Finmark, first voyage, by florme or fogge departed from the rest, found the Bay of Saint Nicholas, now the chiefe Port of Ruf- Newnoxis ha, there winsred in safetie, and had ayde of the people at a Village called Newnox.

The other two ships attempting further Northwards (as appeared by Pamphlets found after written by Westwards s. Sir Hugh Willoughbie) were in September encountred with fuch extreame cold, that they put backe to miles. seeke a winstring place: and missing the said Bay fell upon a desart Coass in Lappia, entring into a Rosser immediately frozen up, since discourred, named Arzina Reca, distant East from a Russian Monasterie of Monkes called Pechingho, from whence they never returned, but all to the member of seventic persons perished, which was for want of experience to have made Cames and Stones. These were found with the Ships the next Summer, Anno 1554. by Ruffe-fishermen : and in Anno 1555. the place fent unto by English Merchants, as hereafter appeareth.

Anno 1574. the faid ship Edward Bonauenture (although robbed homewards by Flemings) returned with her companie to London, shewing and setting foorth their entertainments and discoverie of the 40 Countries, even to the Citie of Molco, from whence they brought a priviledge written in Ruffe with the Kings or great Dukes feale, the other two frips looked for and unknowne to them where they were. Anno 1 555, the faid companie of Merchants for a discouerie upon a new supply, sent thather agains with two Ships, to wit, the Edward Bonauenture, and another bearing the name of the King and Anno1555. Queene, Philip and Marie, whose Maiessies by their Letters to the said Mulcounce, recommended The King and Sundry their subjects then passing, whereof certaine, to mit, Richard Chancelor, George Killing- cers. worth, Henrie Lane, and Arthur Edwards, after their arrivall at the Bay, and paffing up Dwina to Nologda, went first up to Mosco, where, upon knowledge of the faid Letters, they with their trayne had speciallentertainment, with houses and dyet appointed, and shortly permuted to the Princes presence, they were with Gentlemen brought through the Citie of Molco, to the Caftle and Palace, replenished with numbers of people, and some gunners. They entred fundry roomes, furnished in shew with ancient 50 grave per sonages, all in long garments of sundry colours, Gold, Tissue, Baldekin, and Violet, as our Vestments and Copes have beene in England, Sut able with Caps, Lewels, and Chaines. These were found to bee no Courtiers, but ancient Mulcouites, Inhabitants, and other their Merchants of credit, as the manner is, furnished thus from the Wardrobe and Treasurie, wasting and wearing this apparell for the time, and fo to restore it.

Then entring into the Presence, being a large roome floored with Carpets, were men of more estate, Entertainand richer shew, m number aboue one hundred fet square : who after the faid English-men came in, do mentby the ing reservence, they all flood up, the Prince onely fitting, and yet rifing at any occasion, when our King and Duke. Queenes names were read or poken. Then after speeches by interpretation, our men kissing his hand, and bidden to dinner, were stayed in another roome, and at dinner brought through, where might bee seene

60 massie silver and gelt Piate, some like and as bigge as Kilderkens, and Wast bowles, and entring the Dining place, being the greater roome, the Prince was fet bare-headed, his Crowne and vich Cap ftanding upon a pinacle by. Not farre distan sate his Metropolitan, with ainers other of his kindred, and chiefe Tartarian Captaines : none fate oner against him, or any, at other Tables, their backes towards him.

Note.

and adventures this way (as divers doe now adayes other wayes) as worthic Gentlemen sent from Prinecs, to doc their Countrey good, I put them in your memorie, with my heartie farewell. From Saint Marsarets neere Dartforth in Kent.

251

To the Reader.

Haue had much trouble to give thee this Authour, both for his Language, being Portugall (which for this, and some other parts of this worke, I was forced to get as I could) and for the raritie of his Ic Kelations, seeming both in themselves so stupendrous, and not seconded in many things, that I say not contraried, by other Authors. Besides his booke came not ont, till himselse was gone out of the world. I answere, that Ricius the Islante his Relations came not to vs, till humfelfe was likewise gone; and that that might rather plead not onely for the Matoritie, but the sinceritie, by that Callan rule, Cui bono; for whom should a dead man flatter, or for what should bee lye? Tea, bee little spares his owne companie and Nation, but often and easerly layeth open their vices: and which is more, I finde in him little boafing, except of other Nations; none at all of himselfe, but as if be intended to expresse Gods glorie, and mans merat of nothing but miserse. And how soemer it seemes incredible to remember such instinite sarticulars as this Booke is full of, yet an easie memorie holdeth strong impressions of good or bad: Scribune in marmore lati, is fand of one; and of the other, Omnia que curant fenes meminerunt. Nei-20 ther is it likely but that the Authour wrote Notes, which in his manifold disaduentures were lost otherwise, but by that writing written the firmer in his memorie, especially new whested, filed, forbushed with so many companions of miserie, whom in that state, Hac olim meministe junabat; their best mulicke in their chaines and wandrings being the mutuall recountings of things seene, done, suffered. More marnel it is, if a lyar, that he frould not forget himselfe, and contradict his owne Relations; which somtimes he may seeme to doe in the numbers of the seere of the Lord; yea, and other numbers: but his leaves were lest comperfect at his death, and those numbers perhaps added by others after : and besides, mine owne Note so num experience halb often found figures mistaken from my hand, which being by the Compositor set at large, bets (if great have runne at large by ten times fo much; and girt in other whiles as narrow with the tenth place dumini- care bee not fied, or one signe set for another. And none out the Authors, or be which knowes the subsett, can eathed how can file amend that fault being so great by so small and extend land. The another interest of along I do. fly, how dan-3c filt amend that fault, being fo great by fo fmall and casie a lapfe. The graduations of places I doe congroully misfeste otherwise then in the letuites, and as I suppose not so truely as theirs: for I thinke that he neuber taken. had Arie " or Instrument to calculate the same, but contented himselfe in the writing of this Booke to " So it feemes leole into the common Maps of China, and to fellow them in setting downe the degrees, and so the bland by those words led the blind into erreur; no printed Map that I have seene being true. And perhaps the Chronicler to Of his fol, 122. whem the papers were brought unfimilited might out of those Maps doe it; erring either of innorance, or aimdaque con-swhich we have often seene in Carde of remote places Fast and West bourneless. I have the file que me (which we have often seene in Cards of remote places East and West) purposety, to conceale from others falls a milber, that which they have found sweet and gainfull; the Mariner and Merchant not looking with the gene- que be taker de row eyes of the ingenious, ingenuous Scholer.

For his repute at home; it was dedicated to King Phillip the Third of Spaine, which impudence day a enten-40 would not have obstruded (if allogether a tale) on such Maiestie; licenced by the Holy Office, and prin-der o clims & a ted at I whom translated into the Scoully for the I institute of the Holy Office, and prin-dlurades ted at Lisbon; translated into the Spanish by the Licentiate, Francisco de Herrera Maldonado, Canon grass &c. of the Church Riall of Arbas, and dedicated to a Clergie-man Scottin de Faria, Printed 1620. at Falle gradua-Madrid (and small credit it had beene to the House of the Farias, that one of them should publish in tions a com-Pertugall, and in Callile to another sould be dedicated, a frinolous tale and deuised foolerie. I adde monthing in also the Authours still Gretinious, and his atem watershiring, his continue to the sould be a also the Authours file so religious, and his often protestations: his credit, as Herreta reporteth with and Wester-King Philip the Second, who frent much time in discourse with him about these things. I might adde dies. the Spanish Translators Apologie at large, and out of him Fr. Andrada the Portugall Chroni-

If this moue thee not to believe, yet believe thus much, that I have no minde to deceive thee, but give 5C thee what I found, onely much contracted, and not going all the way with our Authour, whose original Booke is about one bundred and fiftie speets of paper in tolio, but contented with his China and Tartaria Relation:: that also too much, if not true. And yet I would not have an Author rejected for sit speeches framed by the Writer, in which many Historians have taken libertie; no, if sometimes be doth mendacia dicere, fo as he doib not mentiri; that is, if he be fo credulous to believe, or fo improvident to proffer to others faith, probable fallhoods related by others (as I will not sweare but of himselfe hee might miffike, and by others be mif-led, the Chinois bere might in relating the feranties to him enlarge, and de magnis maiora lequi) so as be still be religious in a init and true delinerie of what himselfe bath seene, and bely e not his owne eyes: the former is rashnesse and distassful, the later is dishonest and detestable. Once, the Sunne Rising bath found many worshappers, but the Westerne Sunne is neerer night:

6¢ and neerer observice and meannesse are our Westerne assures then those China Raies of the East; and wee were Backes and Owles not to beleene a greater light then our felues fee and vie. All China Au-Velinomea toours how diversified somer in their lines, jet concurre in a centre of Admiranda Sinarum, which great leave if others have not so largely related as this, they may thanke God they payed not so deare a price to see wrote a booke them; and for mee, I will rather beleene (where reason emets not an electione firm) then seeke to fer with that title-which tables all furnished with ghests set, there was for the English men, named by the Russes, Ghosti Catabelski, to wis, Strangers or Merchants by ship, a table in the midst of the roome, where they were fet direct against the Prince: and then began the service, brought in by a number of his young Lords and Gentlemen, in such rich attire, as is aboue specified: and still from the Princes table (notwithstanding their owne furniture) they had his whole melles fet oner all in massie fine Gold, delinered enery time from him by name to them, by their fener all Christian names, as they fate, viz. Richard, George, Henne, At. thur. Likewife Bread and fundry drinkes of purified Mead, made of fine white and clarified Hong. At their rifing, the Prince called them to his table, to receive each one a Cup from his band to drinke, and Mister Killing. tooke into bis band Master George Killing worths beard, which reas beth oner the table, and pleasant. tong one one one came crayes that time it was not onely shicke, broad, and yellow coloured, but in length five foose and two inches of al size. Then taking leave, being night, they were accompanied and followed with a number, carrying put of drinke, and dishes of meate dressed, to our lodging.

This yeare the two Ships, with the dead bodyes of Sir Hugh Willoughbie, and his people, were for unto by Master Killingworth, (which remayned there in Mosco Agent almost two yeeres) and much of the goods and victuals were recovered and (aned.

of a muruel-

lous length.

Auno 1556. The Companie fent two Ships for Russia, with extraordinarie Masters and Saylers to disaftrous voy- bring home the two ships, which were frozen in Lappia, in the riner of Arzina aforesaid. The two ships fent this yeere from England fayling from Lapland to the Bay of Saint Nicholas, tooke in lading with paffengers, to wit, a Russe Ambassadour, named loseph Napea, and some of his men Shipped with Riv m chard Chancelor in the Edward. But so it fell out that the two which came from Lappia, with all then new Master and Marriners, neuer were beard of, but in foule weather, and wronght Seas, after their two geeres wintring in Lapland, became, as is supposed, unstanch, and sunke, wherein were drowned also diuers Russes Merchants, and servants of the Ambassadour. A third ship the Edward aforesaid, falling on the North part of Scotland, upon a rocke was also lost, and Master Chancelor with divers other. drowned. The faid Russe Ambassadour hardly escaping with other his men, Marimers, and some goods Saued, were fent for into Scotland, from the King, Queene, and Merchants, (the messenger being Mafter Doctor Laurence Huslie, and others: ) And then, as in the Chromicles appeareth, honorably entertayned and received at London.

Serchthrift.

This yeere also the company furnished and sent out a Pinnesse, named the Serchthrift, to discover the 2 Harboromes in the North coast from Norway to Wardhouse, and so to the Bay of Saint Nicholas, Suppos Borough There was in her Master and Pilot, Stephen Borough, with his brother William, and eight other, Their disconerse was beyond the Bay, toward the Samoeds, people dwelling neere the River of Ob, and found a found or fea with an Island called Vaigats, first by them put into the Card or Map. In the place they threw Snow out of their faid Pinnesse, with shouels in August, by which extremitie, and lacke of time, they came backe to Russia, and wintred at Golmogro.

Anno 1557. The companie with four e good Ships, fent backe the faid Roffe Ambaffadour, and in companie with him, fent au an Agent, for further discouerie, Master Antonie Ienkinton, who aftermard Anno 1558. with great fanour of the Prince of Muscouiz, and his letters, passed the riner Volez to Cazan, and meaning to seeke Cathay by Land, was by many troupes and companies of encivil Tarta-40 rians encountred, and in danger : but keeping companie with Merchants of Bactria, or Boghar, and Vigeme, trauelling with Camels, he with his companie, went to Boghar, and no further: whose entertain-Mufconie trade ment of the King is to be had of Master Ienkinson, which returned Anno 1559. to Mulcouie. Andin long vnfortu-Anno 1560. hee, with Henrie Lane, came bome into England : which yeere was the first safe returns, without losse or shipmracke, or dead fraight, and burnings. And at this time was the first trafficke to the The first trade Natue in Liuonia, which confines with Lituania, and all the Dominions of Rullia : and the Markets, Faires, Commodities, great Townes and Riners, were fent onto by diners fernants: she reports were taken by Henrie Lane, Agent, and delinered to the companie, 1561. The trade to Rie, and Revel, of old time hath beene long since frequented by our English Nation, but this trade to the Narue was hitherto concealed from vs by the Danskers and Lubeckers.

Anno 1 561, the faid Master Antonic Ienkinton went Agent into Rusha, who the next yeere after, passing all the river of Volga to Astracan, and over the Caipian sea, arrived in Persia, and opened the Alcock flaine in in Media. Edwards dyed at Afracan.

Also betweene the yeeres of 1568. and 1573. Sundry Voyages after Master Ienkinsons, were made by Thomas Alcock, Arthur Edwards, Master Thomas Banilter, and Master Geffrey Ducket, whose returns (if spoyle neers Volga had not presented by rouing Theenes) had altogether salned and recovered the Companies (called the old Companies) great loffe, charges, and damages: But the Saying is true, By vnitie small things grow great, and by contention great things become small. This may bee understood best by the Companie. The fromardnesse of some few, and enill doing of some uniust Factors, was cause of much of the enill successe.

Arthur Edwards was sent againe 1579, and died in the voyage at Astracan. About which 60 matters, are to bee remembred the Voyages of Master Thomas Randolph Esquire, Ambassadour Anno 1567. And late of Sir Icrome Bowes, Anno 1583. both tending and treating for finither Discoueries, Freedomes, and Printedges, wherewith I meddle not. But in conclusion, for their paines and foot, and threw him into Sea with a great stone tyed about his necke: The ship also sunke, and little was faued. They went to Arquico (then ) in the Countrey of Preste Iohn; to deliver a letter to Aurique Barbofa, the Factor of Antonio Sylveira, fent three yeeres before by Nuno de Cunha, who with fortie others escaped from the rebellion Xael, in which Dom Manoel de Meneses, with one hundred and fixtie Portugals were taken, foure hundred thousand Duckets, and fixe Portugall Ships, which were those that Solyman Baffa A. 1538. brought with prouision for his Armada to the fiege of Din ; the King of Xael having fent them with fixtie Portugals for a Cairo prefent; the Xael or Iael inreit hee bestowed as almes on Mabomets house at Mecca. I with three others, were sent some surrection. In dayes journeys into the Countrey to Barbefa, then in the Fort of Geleptor in guard of the Queene. mother of the Preste lobn, who welcommed them, as the nightly dew to the flowerie Garden, and as Helena to Ierufalem . fo were they ( faid the ) to ber eyes .

But (to leave those things ) he went thence to Ormsu, and then to Gos; there offered his feruice to Pero de Farsa Captaine of Malaca, which entertained him. The occurrences of Bata. Achem, Aaru in Samatra, Queda in the continent, and his imployments in those parts, as also of Sinca, Paon, Patane, 1 omit.

He faith that hee was wracked at Sea comming from Aarn; of eight and twentie, five onely escaping, two of which the Crocodiles denoured. Hee was taken and sold to a Moore, which carried him to Malaca. Thence Pero de Faria fent him to Patane in trade : from thence againe, imployed by Antonio de Faria to Lugor, Coia Acem a Guzarate Pirate fet vpon them, tooke, and killed all Berall and Pinto only escaping, which leaping into the Sea were referred by a Barke, and fent to Patane. Faria afraid to return to Malaca, where he was to indebted for those goods, vowed to be reuenged of the Pirat. And by helpe of his friends armed a Junke with fine & fifty Souldiers. of which I and Borall (extreamely both indebted and wounded) were. From Patano we fet forth in May, 1 540, and to a Hauen called Bralapifson, some fixe leagues off the firme Land, where we Bralaviston. found a lunke of the Lequios , bound for Siam with an Embassadour of Namaquim de Lindau, Prince of the lle of Tofa fituate in fix & thirty degrees, which feeing vs come, haited away with Tofa Spen Loffa. all speed. Faria sent a Chinese Pilot to them with faire offers of love and courtesie, who returned 30 with a prefent, a rich Sword, and fixe and twentie Pearles in a Boxe of Gold, with this answer.

That the time would come, when they should communicate with vi in the Law of the true God of infinite A strange are mercy, who by his death had given life to all men, with a perpetuall inheritance in the haufe of the good: (were, and hee beleeved that this should bee after the halfe of the halfe of time were past. Neither could Antonie de Faria returne any thing in recompence, they being gotten farre into the Sea. Heere wee watered, and after coasted to fearch the River of Pale Cambins, which divides the Palle Cambins

Kingdome of Champas, from the Seniorie of Cambois in the height of nine degrees. Thither we came in the end of May, and the Pilot went up the River three leagues, to a great Towne called Catimpara, where we stayed to take in prouision twelue dayes. Faria being curious, defired to Catimeral. know whence that River came, the original thereof ( they told him ) was a Lake called Pinater. 40 Eastward from that Sea, two hundred and fixtie leagues in the Kingdome of Quitirvan; which Lake Finater. Lake was compassed with high Hills, at the bottome of which, alongst the waters side, were eight Quitivuan. and thirtie Townes, thirteene great, the rest small. One of these Great ones was named Xin-Xintales. calen, where was a great Gold Mine, whence every day was taken a Barre and a halfe of Gold. which in our money amounteth by the yeere to two and twentie millions of Gold. Foure 21- Millions Lords are sharers, and arestill at warres for a singular proprietie. They said that one of these called Duckers. Raiabitan, in the Court of his house in iarres, had set up to the necke in earth six hundred Bars of Gold mines, & Gold in poulder, as good as that of Menancabo in Samatra; and that if three hundred of our men were feut thither, with one hundred Caliners, they would without doubt become mafters thereof. They faid also that in Busquirim, another of those Townes, was a Rocke of Diamonds, better Rocke of Diamonds, then those of Laur and of Tanismoura in the He of Laur so then those of Laue, and of Taniampura in the Ile of Iana. Proceeding along the Coast of Champaa, from Pullo Cambim, we came to a shelfe called Salersacuss, and the next day to the River Toobafoy, in the mouth whereof a lunke passed by, to which Similara Piwe offered the courtefie of the Sea, and they in scorne made shew of a Negroes Buttockes, with rate taken. many trumpets and other iollitie. Hence grew displeasure: in the night three Barks came to affaile vs, which we tooke, with the Captain, two Acheners, a Turke, & the Negro. This Negro confesfed himselfe a Christian, laue to Gasper de Mello a Portugall, whom that dogge (he pointed to the bound Captaine) flew two yeerestince in Liampoo, with fixe and twentie Portugal; befides with him in the Ship. What faid Faria, is this Sumilan? Yea, faid he, and he had thought in fo small a Barke, there had not beene aboue fixe or feuen, and hee would have bound your hands and feet, and impaled you as hee ferued my master. Faria having served him and his with the same 60 fauce, tooke the Junke, in which was thirtie fix thousand Taeis of Japon Silver, which make fiftie foure thousand Cruzados or Duckets, besides much good merchandize.

Faria proceeded along it the Coaft of Champaa, and came to the River Timasorn, by our men Timasorn, or called Varella: into which enter the Ships of Siam and the Malaya Coast, which goe for China. Tan'achim, or and Truck for Gold, Calamba and Juory, whereof that Kingdome hath flore. Many Paraos cr at the Authors rate; and if he hath robbed the Altars of Truth, as he did those of the Calemphre Idols, yet in Pequin equity we will not cut off the thu mbs (according to Nanquin rigour) upon bare furmile without any enidence avainst him, However, cheaper I am sure he is by farre to thee then to mee. n ho would have beene loth to be so true a labourer in a tring Authour, willingly or commonly (in my con. cett) sulffring his owne fight, though perhaps not seldome deceived in things taken up on China ment trust, or entred into their China Bookes, Such as be here often citeth. Men refusenot Silver for the Oare ; gather the Rose notwithstanding the prickles; neglett not Harnest mixed with weeds, Wheat with the chaff, Frust for the shelt, and hate not Home for the Bees sting, nor will seither in product suite the chaff, Frust for the shelt, and hate not to reset the most of that which here I present. Us then thy freedome, and him at thy pleasure (I say not mee) and if thou wilt not pardon such a briefe to collection, thou wouldit hardly gime Castilian entertainement to all, and more then all, often yeelding brauadoes and enlarging flouriftes of file, beyond a translation, as if his Authour had not said enough The variety, if it had beene meerly deuised, presents I know not how many entercourses as interludes of Comicke and Tragicke enents, more worthie the reading then most in this kinde, and as fit to recreate: how much more, where vertite is (as I suppose) the ground and substance, though perhaps intered with other phantasses among. That the sellutes in some things differ, is their authoritie against bu, who as more learned and indicious, and longer experienced, might finde out some truths better then bee; which various fortunes, and that time, might let him see many particularities which they could not, writing sixtie jeeres after. In many things they both agree : and Gaspar de Cruz hath many the same things: and that his strange Relation of the Crosse in China and the Hungarian of the Mount Sinai, is delle 19 uered by Lucena, perhaps learned by some of His companie: and these exceptions by mee mentioned, are rather praoccupations of censorious indging my indgement, then my indiciall sentence, which the indicions will supend, and leane to better experiense. Indicent posteri; veritas Temporis filia.

CHAP. II.

Observations of China, Tartaria, and other Easterne parts of the World, taken out of FERNAM MENDEZ PINTO bis Peregrination.

MENDEZ his many miserable adventures, his strange expedition with ANTONIO DE FARIA; divers coafts visited, Pirats tamed, miseries suffered, glorie reconered.

Ernam Mendez. Pinto, borne at old Montemor in the Kingdome of Pertugal, was placed in fertue at ten or twelve weers of one in Tillians. cember, An. 1521. on the day of breaking the Scatchions, or publike mourning for King Emanuel. A yeere and halfe after he fled vpon occasion of a suddenaccident, and got aboord a Caruile which was taken by a French Pirat, which would have made fale of them at Larache to the Moores. But a fortnight after taking another Portugall ship comming from Saint Thome worth 40000. Duckets, they returned for France, carrying fome with them for Sea feruice, the rest they fet on shoare by night on the shoare of Melides, naked ; which came to Santiago de Cacem, where they were relieved so Thence he went to Setunal, and served Francisco de Faria a Gentleman belonging to the Master of Santiago, and after that was Page to the Mafter himfelfe. But his meanes being fhort hee * See of Gama left his feruice.

An. 1537. he went for India in a Fleet of fine thips; the Admirall was Don Pedro de Sylua, sonne of Vasco * da Gama (first Discouerer of the Indies, whose bones he carried with him in the ship at his returne, which were received by King Iohns appointment in greater Funerall pompe, then had beene feene done to a Subiect.) They arrived at Din the fifth of September. Thence after seuenteene dayes he went with two Foists for the Straight of Mecca, and came in tora before the fight of Curia Muria, and Abedalcuria, almost wracked with foule weather, and comming to Sacotora, watered neere the Fortreffe which Francisco d'Almeida first Vice-roy of India, had 60 built, 1507. Hauing received some refreshing of the Christians there, they departed, and in the Mahomat. Mar- heighth of Masua tooke a ship, but fine men being therein left of eightie; one of which was trem non pana the Capteine, a Renegado of Malorquy, who for love of a Moorgh woman had denyed his Faith, and refuling to returne to Christiannie, notwithstanding all perswasions, wee bound him hand tom.1.pag.26. Straight of Mecca or the Portugall For-A Marryr of Curchetes, or

Couramay.

finall Barkes came aboord vs, and wondred to fee white men with beards. They told him that if he would goe up the River to the Citie Pilaneacem, where the King refides, hee might in five dayes fell his goods: for great Merchants relorted thither from the Lauhos, and Pagnass, and Gue. os. That River they fand came from the Hill Moncalor, eightie leagues from that place, and bevond that Hill it is much larger, but shallower, in some places making shallow fields, where bred infinite flore of Fowles which couer the ground, in such innumerable numbers, that two and fortie yeeres before they caused the Kingdome of Chintaleuhos, (which is eight dayes journey) to be dispeopled. Beyond that Country of Birds, is another wilde and mountainous, where abide many creatures much worse then those Birds, Elephants, Rhinocerotes, Lions, Wilde-swine. Buffals, and Wilde-kine. In the midft of that Land or Kingdome ( fo it had beene in old time) to is a great Lake, which the Natiues call Cunebetee, others Chiammay, from which proceeds this river, with other three ingreat quantitie washing that land. That lake, as some write, containeth in circuit fixtie Iaons (each of which is three leagues) along ft which are Mines of Silver, Copper, Tinne, and Lead, carried thence by Merchants in Cafilas, with Elephants and Badas (Rhinoce. rotes ) to the Kingdomes of Sornan, or Ssam, Passiloco, Sanady, Tangu, Prom, Calaminhan, and other Kingdomes. Being asked of the weapons of those Countries, they answered, That they have none but Poles burned, and fhort Crifes of two fpannes. They might not go vp the River in leffe might dispatch in eight or ten dayes.

* Ganias.

Faria going from thence, came to Pallo Champeiloo, an Iland not inhabited in fourteene degrees 10 and twentie minutes, at the entrie of the Bay of Canchin-China : and thence having fitted his Ordnance to Ainam, to feeke Coia Acem : and being come to Pullo Capas, a Fleet of fortie great Iunkes, of two or three Deckes a piece was feene in the River by Boralho, whom Faria had fent to discouer, and after that another seeming two thousand saile great and small, and a walled Towne of some ten thousand houses. At his returne hee saw also one Junke in the Barre of the Quia Taiam, a River at anchor, which feemed of another Coast. Faria supposed this last was of that Pyrat Cois then two months, or two and a halfe, by reason of the force of the water, which way downe, they

Thomas Ma-

Acem, which therefore hee affailed and tooke. One of the company was a Christian of Mount Sinai, named Tome Mostangue a Merchant, whose Barke Solyman Bassa had taken A. 1538 in the flangue his ad- Port of Indaa, with feuen others to be victuallers for his Armada of fixtie gallies, wherewith he was fent by the Great Turke, to restore Sulian Baadur to his Kingdome of Cambaya, whereof the 30 Mogor had then dispossed him, and to drive the Portugalls out of India. And when he demanded of the Turkeshis freight, which they had promifed, they tooke his wife and his daughter, and openly rauished them before his eyes; his sonne, which cried at that specacle, they threw into the Sea bound hand and foot : and laid himselfe in yrons, tooke away his goods, worth aboue fixe thousand Duckets. His wife and daughter died, and he as desperate leaped one night into the Sea, at the Bar of Din, with a some which there hee had and got to Surat, and came thrice to Malacca in a Ship of Garcia de Saa ; whence by Stephen Gama he was fent for China, with Chris flouan Sardinba, Factor of Maluco; whom riding at anchor in Cincapura Quiay Tayiam, Captaine of this lunke flew with fix and twentie Portugals, and faued him aliue because he was a Gunner. Faria cried out that he had heard of this Quiay Tayiam, that he had killed aboue one hundred Por- 10 tugals, and spoiled them of one hundred thousand Cruzados, and that since he killed Sardinha, he caused himselfe to bee called by his name. Hee asked this Armenian where he was, hee shewed where he with fixe or feuen others were hidden in the Ionke. Faria went and opened the skuttle, and Taiam with his company began a new fight, killed two Portugals and feuen boyes, and wounded twentie; but in the end were flaine. Faria hafted away for feare of the lunkes in the River, and came to the Coast of Canchin-China where he rifled this Junke, and found in her Spices and other goods, to the value of fixtie thousand Crozados, betides Artillery, which the Pirate had taken out of the Ships of Sardinha, Olineyra, and Matos.

Pearle-fishers.

The next day hee fet faile agains for Ainam, and by the way lighted on Boates fifting for Guamboy, and Pearles, to whom they offered contract, who told them that Guamboy, a Port somewhat before, 10 (as in Cantan, Chincheo, Laman, Combay, Sumbor, and Liampeo, and other Coast Cities) was a place of trade for itrangers, and counfelled him to goe thither : for there they had nothing but Pearles, which they fished for the treasure of the Sonne of the Sunne, by the command of the Tatan of Combay, Supreme Gouernor of all Canchin-China. And that the law was, that if any Barke besides the appointed entred, it should bee burnt with all the people therein. And because hee was a stranger, it was best for him to faile away before Buhaquirim the Mandirin, which was but feuen leagues thence came; who had fortie great Iunkes, with two thousand Mariners, and five thousand Souldiers; and did abide there the fixe moneths of fishing, from March to August both included. They much maruelled at the Portugall fashion, having neuer feene any fuch men, Aynam or Hai and suspected them theeues (they professing themselves Merchants of Siam) with gifts and 60 courtetie they wonne good estimation of these Fishers. One of these being asked touching Afnam, answered, That it was once an absolute Kingdome gouerned by Prechau Gamu, who dying without an heire there arole fuch contentions, that in foure yeares and a halfe there dved fixteen Lacafaas of men, which are so many hundred thousands, whereby the Land was so dispeored, Citiesof China, Sunne, title of the King of

IlandS, from that the Cauchin King made himfelfe mafter thereof, with feuen thousand Mogores, which the Tartar lene him from Tiopmican, then the chiefe Citie of his Empire. Hee fet ouer the fame Horba Paguard, who rebelled and made himfelfe tributarie to the King of China, paying fixe hundred thousand Duckets, or foure hundred thousand Taeis yearely : and dying without heire, two hundred thirtie fine yeares fince, hee declared the King of China his Successour : and fo it hath continued. He countelled him not to goe to Aynam; because they were Diffemblers, nor would the Moniton fuffer him to go to Liampoo; but to go to the good river Tananquir, ftil founding as he Tananquir. went for the shoalds; there he should have fure Anchorage, and in little space hee might sell all his goods; where yet it was not fafe by reason of reasonlesse men to adventure his goods on Land, To that Riner we went, and in the mouth thereof nor able to flemme the Current, two lunks affayled vs, and their first Language was fixe and ewentie Perces of Ordnance : the Iffue was, Faris tooke them both, most of their men being drowned or flaine, and found therein feuenteene Christians Prisoners, by whom hee learned that the Captayne was a Rouer which bare two names, one of a Christian, Francisco de Saa, the other of a Gentile, Necoda Xicanlem. Fine yeares Xicanlem ano he had beene a Christian at Malaca; Garcia de Saa Captayne of the Fortresse, in his Baptilme ther Pyrate, imparting his owne name to him, who married him to a Gentlewoman of Poringall. But hee going, Anna 1534, for Chincheo in a China Iunke with twentie Portugals and his Wife, flue both her and them at Pulo Caran and the next yeare took another Portugall lunke at Chincheo, which came from Sunda, and thie ten Portugals in her, and thence-forth practifed Pyracie on Chine- A Renegado 20 fes, (es hee thought vs to bee) and Portugals. The goods of the two lunkes amounted to fortie China Robber, thouland Taris, and lenenteene Brafle Perces. The Captayne of this place was in league with him, and thared a third of his Pyracies. Faria therefore went to another Port fortieleagues Eastward, called Musipinan, wherein were many Merchants which came in Cafilas from the Land of the Lauhos, and Paguass, and Guess with great flore of filuer. The current ferring flrong against vs at the Rock of Tilauinera. Wee came to Muripman, and learned that the River was Mulipinan deepe, the best in that Bay; the people peaceable, that Merchants had come nine dayes before from the Kingdome of Benan in two Cafilae, each of fine hundred Oxen, with store of Silver, Benan, Iuory, Waxe, Benioyn, Camfire, Gold in poulder, to:buy Pepper, Drugs, and pearles of Aynam; that they had not any Armada of great ships because the Wars which the Prechas (King) of the Canchins made wereby land, that he abode at Quangepaaru, 2 Citie twelue dayes journy thence;

CHAP. 2. S. I. Faria tamer of Pirates. Piraticall Dillanies rewarded.

that his Mynes yeelded him fitteene thousand Pites of Silver, halfe of which by Divine Law Quengepears. belonged to the people, which had remitted it tohim on condition to pay no other tributes, wherto the ancient Prechaus had sworne to keepe it, as long as the Sun should give light to the Earth. There treefold a great part of his goods till newes of the Tananquir Rouer made them afraid to come aboard : fo that he was forced to fee faile. Thus after many dayes spent in this Bay of Cauchin-china; because Coia Acem and the Py-rates which robbed Christians were in league with the Mandarines , and fold that which they had gotten in Ainan, he purfued that purpose againe, and came to Anchor in Madel a Hauen in that Iland where he encountred with Himmilau, a Chinese Rouer which had become lately a Moore, and bitter enemy of Christians, of which Religion hee had also beene. Fine Portugal Himmius an Captine Boyes, which were aboard him, cryed out for mercy, whereby Faria mooned, fent to fine Moore know what they were, which answering with stones on their heads that came in the Boat, Pyrace. a cruell fight followed, in which Faria remayned Vilter, and feifed of the Captaine with fifteene others left aliue. He demanded for the Portugall Boyes, who told them they were in the Prow under Hatches; whereupon fending to fee, they found them lying on a heape with their heads off, a woman with her two children being also so served. Faria asked why hee dealt so with the small innocents? He answered, it was sufficient that they were children of Portugals. Being asked why he had forfaken the Christian Religion: he faid, because the Portugals had respected him being a Gentile, with Cap in hand saluting him Quisy Nicoda, but after hee was

Christian, made little account of him; whereupon he became a Moore in Bostam, and the King of lantan vied him with much honour, his Officers called him Brother, and hee fware on a Booke to become an Enemy to the Portugall and Christian Name as long as he lined, the King and Priest applauding and promising all happinesse to his soule. Seuen yeares he had beene in execution of that Oath, and had taken a lunke of Luys de Pauis in the Ruer of Liampoo, with foure hundred Bares of Pepper, flue eighteene Poringals, besides slaues: and after that had taken at times foure ships, in which he had slaine neere three hundred persons, seuentie of them Portse gali, and taken ifteene or fixteen hundred Bares of Pepper and other Commodities, of which the King of Pan had halfe, to secure him and let him have tale: in the River Choabsque on the Coast of China, he had killed Ruy Lobo, his old acquaintance, with seuenteene Portugals, escaping 2 60 wracke, and taken into his lunke on condition to pay him two thousand Cruzados, to let him on shoare at Pasane; which notwithstanding, hee slue him and the rest by the Moore; counsell one night as they were affeepe. Faria would heare no further, but caused him to bee flaine and cast into the Sea. In Silke and other goods he found in the Junke to the value of fortie thousand Tacis: the lunke he burned, having none to man her,

The other Necodas or Captaynes of the Iunkes, feeing what Faris had done, confulred together, and feeing he might also doe as much to them, fent two chiefe men to him, defiring him as King of the Sea, to give them fecuritie to paffe, in dispatch of their businesses before the Monfon were ended, and that as his Tributaries, they would give him twentie thousand Taxis of Silver: to which he sware, and that no Thiefe should rob them; and with a Present received the Mo. ney brought him within an houre after. A Boy which writ their Paffes, gayned in thirteene dayes aboue fourethouland Taeis (behides gifts for dispatch) each Junke giving fine Taeis and treat him to ferue the Sonne of the Sunne as Admirall from Laman to Liampeo, at ten thousand the leffe Barkes two. The Vice-Roy also of Amen fent him a rich Prefent, with a Letter to in-Tacis annuall wages, befides (after three yeares end) further advancement : wheretake excufed to his vinworthineste, and departed to Quangipara, a Citie of fifteene thousand Housholds, and fo coafted all along ft the Hand of Ainan feuen monethes space, till the Souldiers were wearie, and required their shares as had been e agreed; which was quieted with promise to winter at Some and having there made Money of all to give each man his part. With this agreement they came to an Hand, called Theener Hand, because standing out of the

Tiha des Ladre

Miferable wracke, and their fortnights mife-

Bay, it is their place to take the first of the Monson. Here at the new Moone in October wee were encountred with a cru ll Tempest in the night, by which the foure Vessels were broken in pieces, fine hundred eightie fixe perfons drowned, of which eight and twentie Portugals : three and fiftie of vs by Godsmercie faued, Faria being one, and one and twentie other Portugals, the rest Slaves and Mariners. They spent two dayes and a balfe in Buriall of their dead, and to as get fome of their prouision, which yet having taken Salt-water, would not last aboue five days of the infreene they flayed there. Faria comforted them faying , that God would not permit for much eail but for a greater good; nor would base taken from them fine bundred thousand Cruzades. but to give them fixe bundred thousand : God doth not punishmith both hands, his mercie curme the wounds which his luftice maketh. Thus we walked naked, and bare-foot on the Strand & in the Wildernes, fuffering hunger and cold, many of our companions dying, not fo much for want of food, as the stinke and putrified

Reliefe almost miraculous. * Milhano. Wonderfull prouifion.

Admirable

vibolformeffe thereof. In this disconsolate plight, a Sea-kite " came flying from behind the South Cane of the Iland; and let fall from his Talons a Mullet a span long; which he taking vp with great prayle to God, and Prayer to Ielus Christ, not to confider their merits, but bis merits for 10 them, hee canfed it to bee roffed and given to the ficke. Looking to the place whence the Fowle came, they faw more of them flying vp and downe, and going thitherwards, discoursed a Valley with divers Fruit-trees, and before they came at it, they found a Deere which a Typre had newly killed, and with their generall cry was scarred from it, having begun to eate it. Wee feafled with it, and with many Mullets which those Sea-kises got, and (scarred with our cries) let fall. This fishing they continued from Munday till Saturday, and then seeing a faile they his themselves in the Woods. It was a Laures or Barke with Oares, which came thither with this tie persons to wood and water; and whiles they were disporting themselves, and had left their Barke vnmanned, Farra apprehended the occasion, and having instructed them, at the name of lefus they all ranne vponit, entred without gain-faying, and looking the Prow put to Sea, The & Chinois feeing their Lantes taken, hafted to the shoare, but scarred with a little Iron-pieceout of their Lantes, they fled to the Thickets. We presently fell to eate, what an old man was dreffing for the Chinos, and after fearched and found Silkes, Damaskes, Muske, and other goods worth foure thousand Cruzados, besides Rice, Sugar, Hennes, which we most esteemed for recourse of the ficke. There was a Boy of twelue or thirteene yeares old, whom Faria asked, whence and whose the Lantea was : hee answered, it was his Fathers, from whom they had unhappily takenis lesse then an boure, all hee had gotten in aboue thirtie yeares : bee came from a place, called Quoaman, where in bartar for Silner be had gotten those goods, which he was going to sell to the lunkes of Siam is the Port of Comhay : and now bee going to Supply his want of water, you have taken away his goods without feare of the Instruct of Heaven. Faria promifing to vie him as his Sonne; then, faid hee, so fet me on floare in that miferable Land where my true Father is, with whom I had rather dye then line with fo bad people. Much reasoning passed, and he said, they could speake well of God, but little vied his Law : neither would he eate in three dayes space.

We determined to goe for Liampoo, two hundred and fixtie leagues Northwards from thence, and to get if we could, a better Barke, this being little, and fearly able to brooke those New Moone-stormes on the Coast of China. At Sun-let wee fet fayle, and next morning going East North-east, came to an Ile called Guimes, where we tooke a fisher-barke with store of fresh fish, Whence we tooke what we thought fit, with eight men of her, twelve to ferue for the Lantes, our men being weake. They told vs that eighteene leagues thence was a good River, called Xinguan, within which was a poore fisher-village, called Xamoy, and three leagues higher vp. a Citie 60 of good Trade. The next day in the evening we came to Xamoy, where a lunke rode fitter for Farsas purpose, which in the night he tooke, the men being afleepe; whom he bound, threatning Pullo Quirim. to kill them all if they made any cry; and fayled prefently with her to the lie Pullo Quirim, nine leagues off, and in three dayes after to an Hand called Lucitar, where for the recourty of the ficke hee flayed fifteene dayes. In the lunke hee found no Merchandize but Rice, the most of which he cast into the Sea to lighten her, and fit her for our Voyage. Thence wee put forth for Liampoo, where we heard were many Portugals from Malaca, Zunda, Siam, and Patane, which vied there to winter.

New Moone.

In the way we encountred, after two dayes fayling, with a Iunke of Patane, which belonged to a China Pyrate, called Quiay Panian, a great friend of the Portugals, of whom he had thirtie in Quiay Panian: his company entertayned in his pay. They not knowing vs, began with a terrible falutation of china Pyrate. fifteene Peeces of Artillery, but by Croffes in their Banner, we knew them and made fignes, by which both congratulated each other with heartieft greetings, and Quiay Panian and he joyned To in league to pursue their Fortunes together. They now purpoled to goe to Chincheo, and there chinches. found fine fayle of Porngals, which told them of a great Fleet of foure hundred lunkes, with one hundred thousand men gone to the Iles of Goto, in succour of Sucan of Pontir, who had volun- Goto, tarily subjected himselfe to the King of China, in one hundred thousand Taeis Tribute yearely, We tooke out of those fine ships thirtie fine Souldiers more, and proceeded on our way for Liampoo. In the way we encountred a fmall Paraoo with eight Portugals forely wounded, whereof Antonio Anriquez, and Mem Taborda were, rich men of great efteeme.

These recounted to him that a Guzerate Rouer, Coia Acem, with three Iunks and foure Lantest News of Coia (in which were fine hundred men, one hundred and fiftie of them Moores) fet vpon them (ha- Acen. uing parted seuenteene dayes agoe from Liampoo, for Malaca, purposing to goe for India, if the 20 Monion had permitted) before the Ile Gumbor, and after some houres fight tooke them; eightie two persons (eighteene of them Portugals) were slaine, and as many others cap: inted, with one hundred thousand Taeis value in their lunke : one of the Pyrats lunks was fired and burnt to the water. Thefe few in the furie of the entry escaped in the little Boat which hung at sterne; they being busied in the spoyle, and the Sunne tnen set, could not follow, but went into the River with much triumph.

Faria and Quiay Panian who had kindted at La loo, prouided themselves there of Powder, Laise, Lead, Victuals, and other necessaries for Money, by leave of the Mandarine, (no Countrey in the World being like China for all kind of provisions) and there get two greater lunkes in truck of the other, and two Lantess, and one hundred and fixtie Mariners, fo that they were in all fine 30 hundred persons of which ninetic fine were Portugali. They had one hundred & fixty Harquebuf-

fes. forty Braffe Peeces, & fixty Quintals of Powder, nine hundred pots of Powder, foure thousand Darts headed with Iron, Arrowes, and many Fire-workes, with other Weapons. Thus prouided, they fet forth in pursuit of Coin Acem, and by a Fisher-boat learned that he was in the Riuer Tinlan, there to turnish and fit the lunke lately taken from the Portugali, to goe with it and two others for Siam (where he was borne) about ten dayes thence. Faria fent Vicente Morola in the Fisher-boat, with some of his company to informe himselfe more fully, which making a flew of fifting with the reft, he early did, and brought word aboard of the eafineffe of the artempt. In the night they anchored, and went up the River in the morning, the enemy knowing nothing till they came in fight, and Faris crying out, Hej,my Masters, in the Name of Christ.

40 to them, to them, Santiage, off went the Ordnance, the small shot succeeded, that none now in the Iunkes durft appeare. His small Vestels (Lorche) comming from the shoare with succour were fo entertayned with great shot that they could not helpe themselues, and by our small Vesfels were fired with the fire-pois; in three of them two hundred persons were flaine. Out of the fourth they leaped into the water, and were most slaine by Panians men.

Coia Acess which before was not knowne, feeing his Moores ready to try the waters courtehe to escape those fiery enemies, armed in Buffe, with Plates fringed with Gold, cryed out aloud that he might be heard, La Hab ill. llab Muhamed rocolalab : what shall you Muslemans and inst men of the Law of Mahemet, Suffer your selves to be conquered of so feeble a Nation as are these Dogges, which have no more heart then white Hent, and hearded women to them, to them, the Booke of Flowres hath given promise from our Prophet to son and me, to bathe our selves in the blond of these Castres with-

50 one Law. With these curfed words, the Deuill 10 animated them, that it was fearefull to see how they ranne on our Swords. Faria on the other fide heartned his in the name of Christ crucified, and with a zealous fertiour reached Coin Acem, such a blow with a two hand Sword on his and with a zeatous transon reached. Opina pound, and with another blow cut off his legges, Opina pound, lead-piece of Maile, that he funke to the ground, and with another blow cut off his legges, opina from the control of the contr Whereupon his men with fuch furie allayled Faria, not caring for thirtie Portegals which flood flaine, about him, that they gaue him two wounds, which put fuch i pirit into our men, that in little space, eight and fortie of the Enemies lay dead upon Coia Acem, and therest they sue all but fine; whom they tooke and bound, the Boyes cutting the others in quarters, and throwing them into the water with Cota Acem, and the King of Birtans chiefe Cacia, or Priest, the Predder and The Cacia ha

the drinker of Portugall blond, as he stilled himselse in the beginning of his Writings, for which med of Chris 60 hee was of that curied Scot much honoured.

Of the Enemies were flaine three nundred and eightie, of ours fortie two (eight of which were Portugals, Faria learched the Iland, and found a Village therein of fortie or fiftie houses, which Coia Acem had facked, flaying some of the Inhabitants. Not faire off was a great house feeming a Temple full of ficke and wounded men, ninetie fixe in number, which the Pyrathed there in cure, whom he burned, fetting the house on fire in disers places, those that sought to escape being received on Pikes and Launces. The Innke which they had taken from the Portugali fixe and ewentie dayes before, Faria gaue to Mem Taborda, and Antonio Anriquez in Almes forre. million of his finnes, taking their Oath to take no more but their owne. He tooke speciall care of the wounded, and caused the slaues to be set free. After all this, there remayned of cleere gaines, one hundred and thirtie thousand Taeis in Siluer, of Impar and other goods, which that Pyrat had taken along that Coast from Sumber to Fuches.

ANTONIO FARIA bis taking of Nonda a Citie in China, triumah at Liampoo ; strange Voyage to Calempluy , mi-Serable Shipwracke.

the fecond

Aria hauing recouered his ficke men, fet fayle for Liampoo, and beeing commeto the point of Microy in fixe and twentie degrees, by a frorme he was driven youn Rock in the darke night, and was forced to call out all the goods. in the darke night, and was forced to cast out all the goods, and cut all their Masts 20 ouer-board; and with much adoe we escaped with their helpe (two and twentie drowned by ouer-haftinesse) to the Iunke of Mem Taborda. The second day after came two Neuday.

Portugals from Quiay Panians Iunke, and plained to vs their almost like misfortune (one guft hauing taken away three men, and cast them a stones cast into the Sea) and the losse of the small lunke with fiftie persons, most of which were Christians, and seuen Portagals. One of the Las. teas came and told of their difaduenture, the other Lantes loft, only thirteene men escaping, which the Countrey people carryed Captines to Nonday: fo that two lunkes and a Lantea with aboue one hundred perions were loft, and in Munition and other goods, aboue two hundred thoufand Cruzados, the Captayne and Souldiers having nothing left but that on their backes. The china pecillous Coast of China is subject to these strokes more then other Countries, so that none can sayle m thereon one yeare without difafters, except at the full and change, they betake them to their Ports, which are many and good, without barred entries, except Laman and Sambor.

Faria went and anchored before Nouday and fent fome to found, and to take some of the people to enquire of his men, who brought a Barke with eight men and two women, one of whom (having first iworne by the Sea, that it below, and the winds above should pursue him if her brake bis Faith, and the beautie of the starres whose eyes beheld all wrong, as the Chinese requested) told him that he taking them to be Sea Rouers and Robbers, had taken them and cast them in Irons. Farta writ to the Mandarin by two of those Chinois, with a Present worth two hundred Duckets to returne his men, which returned the next day with an Answere written, that himfelfe (hould come and demand Iuftice at his feet, and he would doe as hee faw caufe. Hee wrote to againe, offering two thousand Taeis for their Redemption, fignifying that hee was a Portugal Merchant, which came to trade at Liampoo, and payd Customes without any Robbery; and that the King of Portugall his Lord was in true amitie with his Brother the King of China, and in Malaca his subjects vied the Chinois juilly. This calling the King of Portugall the King of Chinas Brother, he tooke fo hainoully, that he caused the China Mellengers to be whipped, and their eares cut, and fent them backe with a railing Answere written to Faria, which had so proudly blasphemed, calling his King the Brother of the Sonne of the Sunne, the Lian crowned untb incredible power in the Throne of the Vninerse, under whose feet all (rownes of all that gonerne the Earth, are placed with all their Seniories, as all Writers affirme in their Histories. For this Herefie he burned his Writing with his Picture, as he would doe to himfelfe, charging him prefently to fet fayle 50 and be gone, Faria enraged, refolued to affault the Towne, having three hundred men, (feuentie of them Porsugals) with the company of Quiay Pansan, for that feat.

Nonday affaul

Having therefore taken foure Barkes, the next morning betimes with them, three Iunkes and a Lorcha or Lantea, he went up the River, and had fixe fathomes water and an halfe anchoring by the wals. And striking sayle without salutation of Artillery, we put off our Flagge of contract, after the China custome, to fulfill all complements of peace, fending new offers of love and further latisfaction for the Priloners. But the Mandarine full of indignation, hardly vied the Messengers on the wall in fight of the Armada; whereupon, Faria desperate of doing any good that way leaving order with the Iunkes continually to shoot at the Enemie where they were thickest, he with his company landed without contradiction, and marched to the Towns. When we were comne within little more then a Calieuer that of the Ditch without the wall, 69 there islued by two gates one thousand, or twelve hundred; about one hundred of them Horsemen, or Hackneymen rather (for they rode on leane Iades) which began to skirmish in such disordered fort, encountring one with another, and many of them falling to the ground, that they feemed to be of fome neighbour Villages, which came more of force then with force or heart to the bulineste. Faria expected them, encouraging his men, and making a figne to the funkes.

The Horsemen dissided themselves, and wheeled about, as if that would have searred vs. which feeing, without effect they joyned in one bodie or heape rather; whereat the Captavne commanded all the Caleguers to shoot off at once, with furth successe, that the former halfe of the Horsemen fell to ground. And then wer which till that time had stood fill gaue the affanit. crying on the name of Iefus, infomuch that they fied fo confusedly, that they fell one wooh another, and when they came to the Bridge over the Ditch, they thronged themselves fo that none could goe forward. In this case we came on them, and slue about three hundred, none of them In fearly drawing Sword to defend themfelies. Wee profecuted the victory to the gate; in which was the Mandarine with fixe hundred men fairely mounted, armed with a Corflet of Crimfon Veluet silded, which we knew after to have belonged to Tome Perez, which King Emanuel of Thomas Perez, tric of the gate, more valorous then the former, till a Boy of ours difmounted the Mandarine The Mandarine from his Horfe with a Harquebuffe (bot thorow the breast, which caused the rest disorderly to flaine, glorious memorie had fent Embaffadour to China. Hee and his began a fight with vs in the enflee, and we with them into the Towne. They calling downe their weapons ranne out at another gate toward the Countrey, none remayning. Antonio Faria gathering his companie together, marched orderly to the Chifanga, the Priton where our men were, brake up the gates and grates, and freed his men. Then did he appoint halfe an houre to his people for spoile, himselfe Prisoners loo-20 going to the Mandarines liquie, and had 8000. Taeis of Silver there, & five great boxes of Muske: fed.

The Towns

the reit he gane to the Boyes, which was much Silke twifted, and vnwrought, Damaske, Sate ficked. tin. Porcelane : the facke was fo rich, that foure Barkes or Veffels in which they came went foure times laden therewith to the lunkes, that there was neither Boy nor Mariner which had not a Chift or Chifts of pieces, belides what they had fecretly. Having fpent an houre and halfe. he feeing night now come on, let fire in ten or twelve parts of the Citie, which being built of Pine timber fuddenly arofe into fuch a flame, that it feemed a Hell. And without impediment, he embarked his company with much riches, and many faire Girles eyed by foures and fines with Match, they crying, our striumphing. It was now late, yet had Faria care of the wounded, which were fiftie of them, eight Ports.

30 gals, and to burie the dead, which were nine only one Portugall; and keeping good watch that night, as foone as it was day, he went to a Village on the other fide of the water, and found not one person in it, the houses still furnished with goods and provisions, with which he laded the lunkes: and departed for a defart Hand fifteene leagues from Liampio, called Pullo Hinber, where was good water and anchorage. After wee had fayled fine dayes betwire the Hes Comolem and Comelem the continent, Premata Gandel a Rouer which had done much damage to the Portugals in Pa- Hands. tane, Sunda, Siam, taking vs for Chinefes, fet vpon vs with two great lunkes, in which were two hundred fighting men befides Mariners, and grapling with the lunke of Mem Taborda, fiad almost taken it, when Quian Panian came to her succour with such a stroke on her quarter, that both lanke ; the three Lorche which Faria brought from Nonday comming in, faued most of our

40 men, the enemies being all drowned , and Mem Taborda freed. Meane while, Premaid Gundel Another lead had with two hookes and Iron chaines fathed himfelfe to Fanat lunke, both in the poope and prow, it has a cruell battell following, that in leffe then an houre most of Fanat when shall him.

And another and another chain the father than t ielfe were wounded, and twice in danger of taking, when the three Lorebs, and is lively limbse (nice which Pero Sylms had taken at Nonday, came in to his fuccour, fo that eightie fixe Mooret which I said vidorie. had entred Farius Iunke were flaine, who had cooped our men before in the poop-roome; and thence entring the Pirats lunke , put all therein to the fword.

This victorie coft feuenteene of ours their lines, fine of them of the best Portugal Souldiers, belides three and fortie wounded. The prize was valued at eightie thousand Taers, the most of 120000 Cruit lapan Silver, which the Pirate had taken in three Iunkes, come from Firanda bound for Chin- 23dos.

50 cheo. In the other funken lunkes was faid to be as much. With this prize Faris went to a little Iland, called Buncalon, foure leagues off, and stayed there eighteene dayes, making Cottages for Buncalon, the wounded, which there recoursed health. Thence they departed, Quiay Panian going in that Iunke of the Pirate, with 20000. Tae's over and above for his part : in fixe dayes we came to the Ports of Liampoo, which are two lles, in which the Portugals made at that time their Liampoo, a Porcontractation, and was a Towne of one thousand houses, and sixe or seven Churches built by sugal Tawne them, with Sherifs, an Auditor, Alcaides, and other Officers; the Notaries ving, to write, China, feuen I, N. publike Notarie for the King our Lord, in this Citie of Liampoo, &c. as if it had beene feat leagues from ted betwixt Santarem and Lifton: and fuch was their forwardnesse, that some houses cost Liampo. three or foure thouland Cruzados, all which were razed afterwards by the Chinois; fo vncer-

60 tame are the things of China (which in these parts are so effected) so subject to disaftres and difaduentures. When Faria was come to Portas de Liampoo, he fent Mem Taborda, and Anriques first to acquaint the Townel-men what had passed, who sent leronymo do Rego with two Lanteau, to thanke him for the bountie shewed in the case of Cois Acen, and with refreshings; and for the bufinefle at Nouday, he need not be afraid there to winter, the King of China being as they faid. Civil warres lately dead, and civill warres succeeding, thirteene competitors being in Armes to enforce their Cimil warres later) usua, and claim wastes in the Man No, which was next perion to the King in all the Go. perment, with meere and mixt Empire of Maiestic Regall, was besieged in the Citie of Que. ansij, by Preehau Muan Emperour of Cauchinas; in whole fauour it is holden for certaine, that the King of Tartaria is comming with an Armie of nine hundred thouland men; and that in this troubled estate Nonday would not be thought of, which was in comparison of many other Cities in China leffe then Ociras compared with Lisbon. He was fixe dayes after with great triumph and glorious shewes, made of his owne Fleet, and of the many Boars, Barkes, and Citie umpn and glorious mewes, make the being three hundred men in fefticull apparell, with many to Gold Chaines, and gilded Swords, till he came into the Port, in which rode in a rew, twentie ix Ships, and eightie Junks, besides a greater number of smaller vessels, fastned one before another in two wings, making a street betwixt them, adorned with Lurell, and other greene boughes, and fweet herbs, the Ordnance thundring on both fides a congretulation. The Chinesis wondred, and asked if he were Brother or neere Kinfman to their King, they received him in fuch honour; Nay, faid a conceited Portugal, but his father shooed the Kings Horles, and therefore is he work this of this honour. Hereat they were more then amazed, and faid, There were great Kings in the World, of which their Authours had made no menuon, and the King of Portugal termes one of them, and much to exceed the Cauchim, or the Tartar, and it were no finne to lay he may hold compare with the Sonne of the Sanne, the Lion crowned in the Throne of the Worl, 20 Others confirmed the same, alledging the great riches which the bearded men generally posses fed. A glorious Lantes was purpotely adorned for his person in which hee went, with many Muricall Instruments of the Chinas , Malayos, Champaas, Siamites , Borneos, Leguios, and other Nations which there fecured them lefues vader the Portugals, for feare of Roners which filled libendu mearie you to let you see the rest of this pempous speciacle, and more to heare their Oratins preserving him before Alexander, Scipio, Annibal, Ponpey, Czelar: Neither will Religion let me goe with him to their Masse: nor doe I ener dine worse then at selemme Feasts; and others will grudge me arconne at Comedies : all which pompes I will leane to our Author, enlarged by the Spanish translator, Canon of the Church of Arbas, as dedicated to Manuel Seuerin de Faria. There hee flayed five 30 moneths, spending the time in Hawking, Hunting, Fishing, Feating. Quay Passas in this time dyed, After hee made ready to goe to the Mines of @mangaru. Others diffwaded him by rea-fon of warees in those parts, and a famous Pyrat called Similar, cold him of an Iland called Calmapluy, in which seuenteene Kings of China were buried with much treasures, in Vests, and Idols of Gold, and other incredible riches; which hee on no other testimonie embraced, (without confulting with his friends, who not a little blamed him therefore) and went with Similan in feafch of this Hand, fetting out May the fourteenth, 1542.

which great thips cannot flemme, by reason of the ouer-flowings from Tartaria and Nixibian 4

Flaon, in those moneths of May, June, and July. He had with him fixe and fiftie Portugals, with a Priest, and fortie eight Mariners of Patane, and fortie two Slaues : more our Pilot Similar would not admit, fearing suspition in trauerfing the Bay of Nanquin, and entry of many Rivers much is habited. That day and night wee cleared the lles of Angum, and followed our voyage thorow a Sea before neuer layled by Portugals. The hrit fine dayes, we fayled with good winde, in fight of land to the entrie of the Bay of Nanquar islnings, and passed a gulfe of fortie leagues, and had fight of a high Hill called Nangafu, alongit which we ranne to the North fine dayes; at the end whereof, Similar put into a small River, the people whereof were white, of good stature, with small eyes like the Chinose, but differing in speech and behausour. After three dayes fing another gulfe, there was a straight open to the East, called Silenpaquim, ten leagues in the the tempest ceasing, we set sayle East North east seven ayes together in sight of land, and cros- 50

He set foorth with two Panonras, which are as it were Frigots, but somewhat higher: Iunkes he yied not, both for secrecie, and because of the Currents which set out of the Bay of Nanquin,

Currents in Angitur.

Nameaniu.

mouth, within which we sayled fine dayes in fight of many Townes and Cities very faire; and this River or straight was frequented with innumerable shipping; insomuch that Faria was afraid to bee discouered, and would needs against Similars minde turne some other way. Thus out of the Bay of Nanquin (Similan : elling them of a moneths worke of fayling by the Riuer Sumbepaden, one hundred and feuentie leagues distant thence to the North) wee fayled fine dayes, at the end whereof wee faw a very high Hill called Faniss, and comming neere it, entred a goodly rode, where one thousand ships might ride at anchor. Wee sayled thence thirteene dayes along the coast, and came to the Bay of Buxipalem in 49. degrees, where wee found it som-Strange Fiftes what cold and faw Fiftes of strange shapes, some like Thornbacks, aboue source braces or fa-60 thoms compaffe, flat nofed like an Oxe ; some like great Lizards, speckled blacke and greene, with three rewes of prickles on the lacke, like briftles, three spannes long, very sharpe, the rell of the body full, but of shorter ; these Fishes will contract themselves like Hedge-hogs, and looke fearefully; they have a sharpe blacke snout with tuskes, after the manner of a Bore, two spanies long. Other deformities and diversities of Fishes we saw. Fifteene leagues further, we came to an another fairer Bay called Calnidan, fixe leagues in compaffe fet round with Hills, diverlified Calnidan. with Woods and Rivers, foure very great. Similar favd that she filth of dead Carcaffes of creatures, proceeding from the operflowings.

specially in November, December, and Januarie, at the full of the Moone, caused the generation of fuch dissertitie of Fiftes and Serpents in that Bay, and the former, which were not feene in other pasts iff that Coathe Farinaskes him whence those Rivers came, and hee faid that he knew not but if it were true which was written, two of them came from a great lake called Mofcum. Mofcumbis. bis, and the other two from a Prouince of great Mountaines, which all the yeere were covered so with mow, called Alimonia, and in Summer when great part of the fnow was melted, they be- Alimonia. came fo impatuous, as wee now faw : and for that River in the mouth whereof we were entred, called Pastebenem, were mow in the name of the Lord of heaven to turne the Prow to the Pastebenem East, and East Southwest * to fearth against the Bay of Nanquim, which we had left behind two * Alelte a hundred and fixtie-leagues, all which way we had made higher then Calemplay. The second day leffuste. we came to a high Maussaine called Barnafan, flored with divers kindes of wilde beafts, which Botinafan. continued neere fiftie leagues and fixe-dayes fayling; and after came to another Hill as wilde as the former, called Gungineson, and all the way forward was mountainous, and so thicke of trees Ganzitanou, that the Sunne could not pierce. Smillan layd, that in ninetic leagues space there was no habytation, and in the skires thereof lined a deformed faunge people onely by their Hunting, and 30 fome Rice which they got in China, by exchange of wilde beafts skinnes, which hee fayd came to aboue a million yeerely. Of these Giganbos, wee law a beardlesse youth with fixe or feuen Kine before him, to whom Similan made a figue, and hee flayed till we came to the Bankes fide, and shewing him a piece of greene. Taffata (which hee fayd they much esteemed) with a harili voyce he fayd, Quites paran fanfan, words which none vnderstood. Faria commanded to give Giants. him three or foure Conados of the taffata, and one Porcelanes, which he received with much joy, faving, Par param porby pilaca humangue doren, figuing with his hand to the place whence hee came, and feating his Kine, he ranne thither. He was cloathed with a Tygers skin, the havre outward, his armes, head and logges bare, with a rude pole in his hand; well shaped, feeming ten palmes or spans long, his hayre hanging on his shoulders. Within a quarter of an houre hee re-30 turned with a line Deere on his backe, and thirteene persons with him, eight men and fine women, with three Kine tyed in coards dancing at the found of a Drum, giving now and then five dances firokes on it, and other fine with their hands, crying aloude, Cur cur himan falcos. Amonio de Faria, capied to thew them fine or fixe pieces and many Porcelanes. All of them were cloathed in like manner, only the women had on their wrifts groffe bracelets of Tin, their hayre longer then the men, and full of Flowers, and on their necker a great neck-lace with coloured Shels, as big as Oyster-shels. The men had great poles in their hands, furred halfe way with such Pelts as they wore ; they were strong fet, with thicke lippes, flat moses, great open nostrils, bigge faces. Faris canfed to meature them, and none of them were higher then ten fpannes and a halfe, one old man nigh eleuen, the women not ten : but I suppose the most sauage 40 that ener yet were discouered. Faria gaue them three corges of Porcelane, a piece of greene Taffara, and a basket of Pepper; and they fell on the ground, and lifting up their hands with A Corgeis so. their fifts flut, fayd, Ummenabilen opomenapan lapan, lapan, lapan. They gave vs the three Kine and the Deere, and after many words, in three houses conference returned with like dance

Wee followed our way fine dayes more up the Riner, about fortie leagues, in which we had fight of that people, and fixteene dayes more without fight of any, at the end of which we came to the Bay of Nanguins, hoping in five or fixe dayes to effect our defires. Similar willed Faria not to let his Portugal; be seene. And having sayled sixe dayes East and East North-east, we had fight of a great Citie called Sileupamor, and entred into the Port two hours within night, being Sileuparte.

50 a faire Bay almost two leagues in circuit, where abundance of shipping rode at anchor, seeming about three thouland : which made vs fo afraid, that our againe we went, and croffing the Riuer (which may bee about fixe or feuen leagues ouer) were ranne along it a great Champaine the rest of the day with purpose to get some refreshing, having passed thirteene hungry dayes. We Tanamadel. came to an old building called Tanamadel, and got prouition to our mindes. This place, the Chiwois which wee found there, told vs. belonged to an Hospitall two leagues thence for entertainment of the Pilgrims, which vilited the Kings Sepulcher. Wee continued our voyage feuen dayes more, hauing spent two moneths and a halfe tince wee came from Liampoo, and now Faria could no longer conceale his discontent, that hee had thus followed Similars project, and recei-

uing of him answer little to the purpose, had stabbed him with his Dagger if others had not in-60 terposed Similar, the night following as wee rode at anchor neere the land, swam a shoare, the watch not perceining, which Faria hearing was fo impatient, that going on shoare to feeke him, hee returned frustrate, and found of his fixe and fortie Chinais, two and thirtie fled. Full now of con ufion, it was by counfell resoluted to seeke Calemplay, which could not be farre off: and the next night entred a Barke riding at anchor, and tooke fine men sleeping therein; of whom hee

This lland was feated in the midit of the River, and feetned to bee a league in Compatie. His ther came Faria with trouble and feare, three houres within night, anchoring about a chamber thot from it. In the morning it was agreed, first to goe about it to see what ontrances it had and what impediments might befall their defigne. The Iland was all environed with a rampine of Hewen Marble, fire and twentie spannes high, so well cut and set together, that all abreval seemed but one piece, the like whereof wee had never seen in sada, or elsewhere : from the box. tome of the water to the brim, it contayned other fixe and ewentle spannes. In the top ware border of the same worke round ingirting it, like a Priers girdle, of the bigneffe of a rundlet to of twelue gallons, on which were fet grates of Latten turned, euery fixe fathoms faftened into holes of the fame Latten ; in each of which was the idollof a woman, with a roundball inher hands, norte knowing what it fignified. Within these grates, was a rew of marry Monflere of cast Iron, which in manner of a dance hand in hand, compassed the lie round. Further inwards from those monstrous Idols, in the same ranke, was another of Arches of sich worke pleafant to behold. And all from hence inward, was a grove of dwarfe Orange-trees thicke let; in the midft whereof were builded three hundred and fixtie Hermitages, dedicated to the Gods of the yeere, whereof those Paynims have many fabulous prairies. A quarter of a league higher, on a hill to the Eaft, were seene buildings with seuen fronts of houses like Churches, all from the top to the bottome wrought with gold, with high Towers feeming Bell-fleeples; 16 and without, two streets with Arches which encompassed these buildings, of the same worke with the fronts; and all from the highest top of the steeple pinacles to the bottom wrought with gold; whereby we judged it fome fumptuous and rich Temple.

After this view taken, Farin resolved (though it were late) to goe on shoare, to see if he could speake with any in those Hermitages; and so (leaving sufficient guard in the Barkes) with sortie Souldiers, twentie Slaves, and foure Chinois; (which knew the place, and had beene formetimes there, and might serue vs for Interpreters) he committed the two Barkes to Father Diego Lobato, and entred at one of the eight Entrances; walking thorow the Orangetto-groue to an Hermitage, two Caliuer shorts from our landing place, with the greatest silence that might bee, and with the name of lefus in our heart and seputh. Having yet feene no person, he felt at the doore of the Hermitage with his Halberd, and perceined it locked on the infide : hee bade one of the Chinois knocke, which having done twice he heard an answer within answering, Praised bes the Creator which gilded the beautious Hearins, see about and I will know thy businesse. The Chinos went about and entring the backe coore, epened that where Faria frood, who with his com-

He enters an panie going in, found one man feeming aboue one hundred yeeresold, in a long Russet Damaske

Iefusmade a patron of

thecues.

garment, by his presence seeming Noble (as after wee learned he was) who seeing such a troupe fell downe, trembling hand and foot. A good while it was before hee could speake, and then afked what wee were, and what we fought. The Interpreter answered by Farias command, that hee was the Captaine of these strangers of Siam, who bound for the Port of Liampoo in trade of and an Hermit Merchandite was wracked at Sea; hee and these escaping miraculously, and therefore yowing 40 to come to that Holy land on Pilgrimage, to praise God for deliverance from so great a dan-Abfairm vowes ger, and was now come to fulfill it; and withall to demand formewhat in almes to relieue him for his returne, protesting after three yeeres to restore it double whatsoeuer hee nowitooke. Hisicon (that was his name) answered, I have well beard what thou hast faid, and that damnable designe whereto thy blindnesse (as the Pilot of Hell) bath drawne thee and thing affociates to the bostome of the lake of night. For in stead of thanker for so great a benefit, then commest to rob: and what I pray thee will the Dinine instice repay thee at thy last breath? change thous thy smill purpose, and (beleene me) God will change thy punishment. Faria prayed him, hee would not bee angry, faying, hee had no other remedie of life : whereat the Hermite lifting his hands and eyes to Heauen, sayd, weeping. Blessed bee thou Lord, which sufferest on earth men. 30 which take for remedie of life thine offences, and for certaintie of glorie will not serve thee one day. And then turning his eyes to the companie which were rifling the Hangings and Chefts, taking the filuer from amongst the bones of the deceased therein, hee fell twice from his seare with griefe; and pensuely put Faria in minde of his last breath, of restitution, of penance perpetuall to his flesh, and liberall and discreet communicating to the poore, that the seruant of night should have nothing to accuse him in the day of account : praying him also to command his companie, to gather up the bones of the Saints, that they should not lye contemp-Compleathy. tible on the ground. Faria gaue him many good words and complements, professing himselfe (which hee whispered neerer) forrie of what had passed, but it hee should not doe it, his companie had threatened so kill him. If it bee so, faid the Hermit, then fball the paine bee 60 lesse then these ministers of night, whom as hungry Dogs, it seemes all the silver of the world would

> Thus with many good words hee tooke leaue of the Hermit (hauing taken all they could get) Who told him his knowledge might make bis sinne more penall. Nuno Coelho praying him not to be so angry for so small a marter, hee replyed, More small is the feare which thou hast of death, when having spent thy life in foule facts, thy soule shall stand as soule at the passage of this dung-bill of thy fielb. And if thou seekest more Silver to fill thy infernall appetite, thou mayst finde in the bouses adiorning enough to make it files, as well in danger of Hell for this already, faue that more burthened thou Shalt descend swifter to the bottome. Przy, sayd Coelho, take all in patience, for to God hath commanded in his holy Law : the Hermit shaking oft his head, fayd, I now see that which I never thought to have heard, Inbred wickednesse and vertue fained, the same man stealing and preaching: and turning to Faria, prayed him that hee would not fuffer them to fpet on the Altar, being liefer to dye a thousand times then to see it, which he promised. Hee then demanded of Hus-

CHAP.2. S.3. The Foxe preacheth, prayeth, preyeth, payeth for all at last.

10 con, what persons lived in all those houses; who answered, three hundred and fixtie Talagrepos onely, and fortie Menigrepos which ferued them without, for their prouision, and the care ges, Hermite of the Sicke. Hee asked if the Kings vied to come thither : no layd he, The King being fonne of & attendance. the Sunne, can absolue all and none may condemne him. Asked of their Armes, hee fayd, To goe as Lay breto Heaven, there needed not armes to offend, but patience to suffer. For the mixture of that Silver thren. with dead bones in the chefts, hee answered, that it was the Almes which the deceased carried Papellpower with them, to provide them of necessities in the beauen of the Moone. Asked of women with them. hee layd, that the Bee stings those which eate the honey, and pleasures of the slesh needed not to the life of the Soule. And thus parted hee from the Hermit with embraces, with purpole to returne the next day (it being now night) to the other houses, and not taking aboard with him this 20 Hermit, as hee was admifed, faying, his gowtie legges could carrie no tydings of va: which yet hee did, creeping to the next, and bidding him goe call the Bonzij.

For an houre after midnight, wee faw fires in a rew, which our Chinois told vs, were fignes They are diffe of our discouerie, and therefore aduised vs to haste away. Faria was awakened, and would needs coursed a shoare with fixe men, and ranne like a mad-man from one place to another : his companie requeited him to haite away, and he answered, for his honour hee would first see the danger, and intreated them to stay one halfe houre, and swearing hereto, away hee goeth, and followes the found of a Bell to an Hermitage, in which were two men in religious habits; the place was richer then the former wee had beene in. They tooke thence an Idoll of Silver from the Altar with a myter of Gold on his head, and a wheele in his hand, and three Candletticks of filter 20 with long chaynes; and taking the two Hermits with them, returned aboard the Barkes with great haite. Of one of thele, they learned that Pilan Angiroo had come to the house of the Sepulchers of the Kings, and cryed out to them to awaken out of their fleepe, telling them of their oath to the Goddesse Amida, of Strangers with long beards and Iron bodies, which had robbed the Saints, and would kill them all, whence followed the fires, and fending to give notice to the Cities Corpilem, and Fumbana for ay de, their Religion prohibiting them to handle any thing which mighe draw blond. Farsa now having gone downe the River a great way, was much enraged for omitting fuch oportunitie, plucking his beard, and beating himfelfe with anguish, till not long after his heate was cooled.

III.

Their Shipwracke in which Faria and most of them were drowned; the miserable wandrings of the rest to Nanquin: their Imprisonment, sentence and appeale to Pequin ; rarities observed in those places and wayes ; of the beginnings of the China Kingdome, and of their ad-

Euen dayes wee layled thorow the Bay of Nanquim, the force of the current carrying vs more (peedily, and came all discontent to a Village called Sujoquerim, and there promided our felues of victuall and instruction, and entred into a straight called Xalin-Xalingua. gau, in which wee ranne in nine dayes one hundred and fortie leagues, and turning to enter the same Bay of Nanquim, which was there ten or twelve leagues wide, wee sayled with Westerly windes thirteene dayes: and being in the sight of the Mines of Conxinacan in 41. degrees and two thirds, there a Tufan or tempelt from the South, tooke vs with windes and raines feeming more then naturall, and the winde chopped into the North North-west, the Sea going fo high that (except our prouisions and Chests of plate) we threw all into the Sea, cut both our masts ouer-board, and about midnight heard a great cry in the Papura of Antonia de Faria, Faria dion-Mercy Lord God, whereby wee imagined flee was caftaway; we reconded the same cry, but ned and book heard no answer. Our Baske also the next day, split on a Rocke, and of flue and twentie Porta- the Basko 60 galt, cleuen were drowned, besides eighteene Christian boyes, and seuen China Mariners. This we used hapned the firth of August, 1542. Wee fourteene which escaped, the next day transled into the Land, along it a Hill, and differuered a Lake, without the w of Land, which made vs returne backe, where wee found our men cast on shoare, to the renewing of our forrow, and the next day buried them, that the Tigres (of which there are many) should not eate them. In this, having nothing but our hands to doe it, and they thirtie fixe now flinking, wee spent the most part of the day. Thence wee went Northward thorow the Woods three dayes, till weecame at a straight, without fight of any person. In swimming ouer three men and a boy were drowned, being faint, the current strong, and the water somewhat spacious: the men were two brethren Belebior and Gaff ar Barbola, and Francisco Borges Capeiro, all of Ponte de Lima, and of good account. Wee which remayned (cleuen men and three boyes) passing that obscure nights winds, raines, and cold, imitated by our disconsolate sighs, teares, and feares, saw before day a fire Eastward, and went right towards our disconsolate igns, scares, and traveling along the River, we came in 10 it, commending our felues to God our only hope. And traveling along the River, we came in 10 the euening where fiue men were making Coles, and casting our selues at their feet, defired them to take pitie on vs, and helpe vs to some place where wee might finde reliefe. They gauevsa little Rice and warme water, and shewed vs the way to a Village where was an Hospitall, to which wee came an houre within night, and found there foure men appointed to that charge, which vsed vs charitably.

Foure other

An Hospitall,

* Maleca is faid to fland in the Kingdome of

The next day they asked what wee were, and whence: and wee told them, strangers of Stam *, which came from the Port of Liampoo to the fishing at Nanguim, where by tempest we lost all but our battered flesh. They asked what wee intended to doe, and wee answered, to goe to Nanquim, to get pallage to Cantan, or Combay, where our Countrey-men have tradely licence of the Aitao of Paquim, under the shadow of The Sonne of the Sunne, the Lion crowned in 20 the Throne of the World; for whole fake we defired them to let vs flay there till we had recousred strength to travell, and to give vs some clothing to couer vs. They carried vs about the Village, and begged some old clothes and viotuals, and two Tacis in money for our reliefe, and gage vs two Taeis of the House; and with words of much comfort to trust in God, they gaue vsa Letter of commendation to the Hospitall of Siley iacan, which was in a great Towne three leagues thence, and had better maintenance. Thither we went, and shewed our Letter from the Ouerfeers of Buatendoo, in the faid Village of Catiboran to the Officers of this house, which fate then at Table in confultation, and the Scribe reading the Letter, they accommodated vs in a neat roome with fourteene Beds, a Table, and many Stooles, and Meate; and next morning examined vs, wee answering as before. They gave charge to a Physician to cure vs, and wrote a our names in a Booke, to which we subscribed. In eighteene dayes wee all recouered, and went thence to a place called Sujoanganee, fine leagues off, and fate downe wearie at a Well, where one came to vs with a handful of Wheat eares, which he wetted in the water, and adjured vs holding the same in our hands, by these substances of bread and water, which the high Creator had made for the fullenance of man to tell the truth what we were, &c. which we did, answering as before; and he gaue leaue to his neighbours to relieue vs. They layde vs in a Church Porch, and gaue vs victuals, and the next day we begged from doore to doore foure Taeis, which well helped our wants.

Siley iacau.

X'angulee hard

Thence we went two leagues to Xiangules, with intent to goe to Nangnim, one hundred and fortie leagues diftant. Comming thither late, three boyes which were feeding Cattell, ranne 40 into the Towne with an out-crie of Theenes; the people running out, and so welcomming vs, that one of the boyes died with the blowes. They kept vs two dayes in a Cifferne of water up to the wafte, full of Horf-leaches, without victuals, and our hands bound; whence by a man of Suzanganee, wee were freed, reporting better things of vs. Thence wee went to Finemilan ( in the way finding good reliefe at a Gentlemans house) still auoyding Cities and Townes of note, for feare of fricter inftice, two moneths holding on our way, fometime in, fometimes out, from Village to Village, one of which was Chautir, where a woman was then buried which had made the Idoll her Heire, and we were inuited as poore men to eate at her Graue, and had fixe Taeis given vs to pray for her foule. At Tapper an Officer charged vs to be Rogues, begging against the Law, and therefore layed vs in Prilon, where we continued fixe and twentie dayes, 50 in which Rodrigues Brano, one of our companie died. Thence wee were sent to Nanguins, and there continued fixe weekes in a miserable Prison (in which was said to be soure thousand Prifoners) where two of our companie and a boy died of the whipping, and the rest hardly escaped; being besides sentenced also to have our thumbs cut off as theeyes, After this bloudy whipping, they brought vs to a house within the Prison where wee were cured, being as it were an Hospitali for the ficke, where in eleven dayes wee were pretily well recourred, but lamenting the cutting off our thumbes according to the rigour of the Sentence which had beene giuen, one morning came in two honourable persons which were Procurers of the poore. These questioned vs of our case, and hearing the same, made a Petition to the Chaem on our behalfe, and the eight Conchacis, which areas it were Criminall Iudges; and being there delayed, they made another Petition to another Table, called Xinfan nicor pitan, where are foure 60 and twentie Talagrepos affiftants, austere Religious men, as Capuchmes amongst vs, which retiew the cases of the poore, which prohibited the Chaem to proceed, and granted an appeale to the Airan of Airan in Pequins to moderate the Sentence, which the two Procurers brought vs.

Taypor.

Chautir.

Wee and thirtie others were embarked, chained with long chaines, the two Procurers procuring vs fome clothing, and Rice, and commending vs to Chifu, the Officer or Captaine appointed to carrie vs, with a Certificate in our behalfe to procure vs almes. The Rivers being then high swollen hindred our sourney. Three dayes wee stayed at a Village called Minca: ntem. where Chifu dwelt, and embarked his wite and children; wee were tyed to the feats where wee Where Costs awers, and embassed us with the Cities, yet thus much wee observed. Manquim place this Cities, we thus much wee observed. Manquim place this Cities is in 39, degrees and a third, washed by the Ruert Batampina, which fignified The flower of fifth: use in 33, and which River, as I was then told and after faw, comes from Tartaria, out of the Lake Fanofir, in other places nine leagues from the Citie Lançame, where Tamerlane King of the Tartars resided. This Lake they bkewice to is eight and twentie leagues long, and twelue broad, very deepe, and yeelds fine Rivers; first, difagree in their calculathis of Batampina, tunning thorow the midfl of China three hundred and fixtie leagues, and entition. The reaction tring the Bay of Nanquin in 36. degrees. The second Lechune which goeth alongst the Hills of son I suppose Pancruum, & dividing the Land of Cauchim, and Catchenan, which within the Country confines is, the P. 110 Pancrum, & did ding the Land of assessments of assessment which we contract country comings mear obler-with the Kingdome of Champas in 16. degrees. The third is Tangaday, that is, The mother of near obler-tion of the Champas in 16. degrees. The third is the Champas of Marchael (2) Land when the Marchael we ded the leight With the Anguone of Vacatass (a Land whence China was by left unent, paffing Welt North-west by the Kingdome of Vacatass (a Land whence China was by left unent, peopled) and falls into the Sea in the Kingdome of Sorman, or Siam, by the Barre of Cuy an hunnor printings dred and thirtie leagues beneath Patane, The fourth River is Batobaso, which palling by the hid skill there-Prounce of Sanfim (which was drowned An. 1556.) goeth into the Sea by the Barre of Cof-by this he conmm in the Kingdome of Pegis. Legicary is the fifth, runner the aftward to the Archipelagus of the Archipelagus of the Chinas to the Chinas (2) of the Chinas (2) of Xinxinpas, which confineth the Chafenines, entring into a Sea innain-followed the Chinas (2) of the Chinas (2) of Xinxinpas, which confineth the Chafenines, entring into a Sea innain-followed the Chinas (2) of the Chinas (2) o gable, as being in 70. degrees of latitude. The Chinois affirme, that in Nangain are eight hundred Maps which thouland housholds, foure and twentie thousand houses of Mandarines, fixtie two great market at histerurne thou and housholds, four and twente thouland houses of Mandarines, there two great marker places one hundred and thirtie fhambles, each hunging eightic blockes; eight thouland firetes, he law, which have placed to the hundred and thirtie flam the places one hundred and thirtie flam the places of latent no house his deal all language transfer. The places of the house places of the places of the hundred and thirtie flam the places of the hundred and thirtie flam the hundred and the hundred a of which the fixe hundred principall have grates of Latten on both fides all alongst; two thou- Nonquess in fand three hundred Pagedes or Temples, one thousand of which are Monasteries of Religious perfons, richly built, with Towres of fixtie or feuentic Bells of Metall and Iron, which make a falfly, as I connoile horrible to heare; thirtie Prisons great and strong, each having two or three thouland Pri- cine to keepe foners, and an Hoipitall. The houses of the Mandarines are of earth, encompassed with Walls others from the nucleon. and Dirches, with faire Bridges, and rich Arches. The principall Magistrates have high Towers legged the 30 with gilled pinacles , where are their Armories and Treatures. The Street-arches with their pains, a thing night that Gates, their new and full Moone feaths, incredible fithings, their ten thousand Silke-vivall in the loomes, one hundred and thirtie Gates in the strong wall, with as many Bridges over the ditch old Maps of (a Porter, and two Halbardiers in each to fee what goeth in or out) (wellae Fortreffes with Bul-Wiffjartsof warkes and Towers, but without Artillerie, the value to the King three thousand Cruzados a the World: day, or two thouland Tacis, I can but touch. The rarities of China, compared with the things and fometimes cene at home, iceme countries of increases.

In the first two dayes wer law in our journey by the River no notable Citic or Towne, but failed spaces.

Software and Labourer and mithing the labourer and mithing the labourer and mithing the labourer and labourer and mithing the labourer and l of Villages a great quantitie which feemed to be of Fisher-men and Labourers, and within times,

Land as farre as we saw, appeared woods of Pines and other trees, Orange groues, fields of Nanaundestein 40 Wheat, Rice, Millet, Panike, Barley, Rie, Pulse, Flaxe, Cotton, and Gardens with houses for bed: See of it Where, Rice, Millet, Panike, Darrey, Mis, Func, Funce, Octoon, and Gracins with notices for the Grander. Cattell appeared along it the Reuers as much as in Prese lobus Country. On the in Panisis of Country, On the in Panisis, Cattell appeared along it the Reuers as much as in Prese lobus Country. On the in Panisis. the Granger, Lauren appears assign tops of Hills were seen Temples with gilded * Steeples shining farrer off. On the fourth day type ter from the fourth day by the fourth day by the from the fourth day by the fourth day we came to a good Citie called Poeaffer, twice as big as Cantan, well walled with Townes and Nanquin to Pe-Bulwarkes, in manner like ours, with a Hauen before the wall of two Falcon flors long, faithed q-ia.

with Iron grates in two rewes, with Gates for the entrance and valualing of flips, which come This plane is the state of the contract of thither from all parts. In the end of the Towne on a Mount flood a Caffle with three Bulwarks and fine Towers, in one of which the Chinoir told vs, that the Father of this king held which the Chinoir Prifoner nine yeeres a King of Tartaria, poisoned at last by his owne vasfals, vnwilling to give any hour loofo much to redeeme him as was demanded. In this Citie, Chifu gaue leaue to three of ws nine, to him like gold.

50 goe (with foure Halbardiers to guard vs) and begge Almes, which in fixe or feuen freets gat the Possifire goe (with four charges to guest *) and money, belides Flefh, Rice, Fruits, and Meale; halfe Pritoner. of which our Guard had according to the custome. They carried vs to a Temple where was great concurse of people that day, being solemne to that Sect of Taubinarel (one of their 32. Gentile Sects.) That House they said had beene the Kings, and that this Kings Grand-tather was borne there, his Mother dying in child-birth, in honour of whose death and buriall in the same chamber he had dedicated this Temple in that Palace. All the Building with the Offices, Gar. Aponfile Pa. dens, and all the appurrenances are founded in the aire on three hundred and fixtic Pillars (each dens, and an encappurerances are commend in the annex of the three hundred and fixthe and of one flone) feuen and twentie frames high, bearing the names of the three hundred and fixthe and of one flone) feuen and twentie frames high, bearing the names of the three hundred and fixthe and the seedays. dayes of the yeere; and in each of them is a feelf with much almes, bloody Sacrifices, and of theyeree.

6c dances to the Idoll of that day and Pillar, which flands therein richly enfirined, with a Silver Lampe before him. Beneath goe eight fireers or wayes encloted on both fides with Latten Queens filter grates, with doores for the people which come to those feafls.

Ouer the house where the Queene was buried was a round Chappell all lined with Silver, fee, the notes and ming richer in the worke then matter. In the midft was a filter Throne of fifteene fteps, round image others a to t'e top encompassed with fixe rewes of filuer grates with the tops gilded. On the highest of them was a great Globe, and thereon a Lion of filter, bearing vp a chift of Gold three ipans fquare, in which they faid were her bones, by the blind people worshipped as great Relikes. There hung on foure filuer tyres which croffed the Houle, fortie three filuer Lampes (fo many yeares she lived) and seven of Gold in memory of her seven Sonnes. Without at the entry were two hundred fiftie three filuer Lampes great and rich, which the Chaens and great mene Wines presented in her honour. Without the doores were in fixe rewes round about Statues of Giants fifteene spans high, well proportioned of Brasse, with Halberds and Maces in their hands, which the Chinois faid were twelve hundred. Amongst them were foure and twentie Serpents of Braffe very great, each having a woman fitting thereon with a Sword in her hand of to the same metall, and a filuer Crowne on the head : so many had facrificed themselves at her death te doe her fernice in the next World. Another compasse environed that of the Giants, all oftrium. mant Arches gilded, with a great quantitie of filuer Bels hanging on filuer chaines, which by the motion of the Aire continually yeelded a strange found. Without those Arches in the same proportion stand two rankes of Latten grates encircling the whole worke, set in spaces with Pillars of the fame, and thereon Lions fet on balls, which are the Armet of the Kings of China.

The Ichits fay

At the foure corners were placed foure Monsters of Braste, one (which the Chinese call the Denouring Serpents of the deepe Cause of the House of Joseph in the figure of a dreadfull Serpent, with feuen Serpents comming out of his breft, fpotted with greene and blacke with many 20 prickles more then a fpan long, quite thorow the bodie like Hedge-hogges, each having in his mouth a woman ouerthwart, with disheuelled haires, looking deadly. The old or great Serpent holds in his mouth a Liz-rd halfe out, of aboue thirty spans in length, as bigge as a Pipe, with nofe and lips full of bloud, and in his hands he holds a great Elephant fo forcibly, that his entrailes seeme to come out of his mouth; all to naturally represented, that it is most dreadful to behold. The folds of his tayle were about twentie fathome long, enfolding therein another Monfter, the fecond of the foure, called Tarcamparoo, which they fay was the Some of that Serpent, which flands with both his hands in his mouth, which is as bigge as a gate, the teeth fet in or. der, and the blacke tongue hanging out aboue two fathomes. Of the two other, one was the Figure of a woman, named Nadelgau, Euenteene fathomes long, and fixe about, from whose waste 30 iffued a beake or face aboue two tathomes, which cast smoake out of the nosthrils, and slames of fire out of the mouth, which they make therein continually, faying, fiee is the Queene of the Fierie Spheare, and shall burne the Earth a the end of the World. The fourth is like a man, fet cowring with cheekes puffed like thips fayles, fo monftrous that a man could not endure the fight. The Chinois call him Vzanguenaboo, and fay, that it is hee which makes Tempests in the Sea, and throwes downe Housesby Land, to which the people give much Almes not to hurt

Xinfigau.

The second day we went from Pocasser, and came to another Citie called Xinligan, very great, well built, walled with Tyles, ditched about; with two Castles at the end, having their Towres, Bul-warkes, and Draw-bridges : in the midft of each Cattle was a Towre of fine 40 Lofts with many workes painted, in which the Chinois faid, were fifteene thousand Picos of filter, of the Rents gathered in that Archipelago, which this Kings Grand-father there lavd vp in memory of his Sonne Lenguinan, which tignifieth the toy of all, holden for a Saint, because he dyed a Religious man, and lyes there buried in the Temple of Quiay Varatel, the God of all the Fishes in the Sea, of whom they have large Legends. In that Citie and another five leagues from it is made the great off part of the Silke of that Kingdome, the waters there giving quicker colours (they fay) then in other parts. The Weauers Loomes of these Silkes, which they Huge pastures, affirme thirreene thousand, pay yearely to the King three hundred thousand Taeis. Going further up the River, wee came the next day Evening to a great Champaigne, continuing ten or twelue leagues, in which were many Kine, Horits, and Mares, pastured for the shambles 10 as well as other fielh, and kept by many men on Horle-backe. These Champaignes past, wee came to a Towne, called Junquilen, walled with Tyles, but without Towresor Bul-warkes. Here wee faw a stone Monument with an Inscription , Heere beth Transocem Mudeliar, Vn-Sectional librar cle to the King of Malaca, who dyed before hee was revenged of Captayne Alboquerque, the Lion of Sea Robberies. We enquiring hereof, an old Chinese faid, that about fortie yeares agoe, the man there interred had come Embassadour from a King of Malaca, to sue to the Sonne of the Summe, for succour against a Nation of a Land without name, which had comne from the end of the World, and taken Malaca, with other incredible particularities printed in a Booke hash, the Pally, which hee made thereof. Hauing fpent three yeares in this Suite, and brought it to some maakind of Palife turrite, hee fickned of the Aire one night at Supper, dyed in nine dayes, and left this 60 gotten by ftroke or bla.

P4E.31.

Wee proceeded on our way the River growing leffe, but the Countrey more peopled, fearly a stones cast free of some House, eyther of a Pagede, or Labourer. And two leagues higher on a Hill compassed with Iron grates were two Brasse Statues standing on their feete, one of a man, the other of a woman, both feuentie foure spans long with their hands in their mouthes, Two monand puffed cheekes; fastned to Cast-Iron Pillars, seven fastnomes high. The Male was named firms status Quiay Xingatalor, the woman Apancapatur. The Chinois told vs that the man was Fire-blower and their dein Hell to torment fuch as in this life gaue them no Almes : the woman was the Hell-Porter, upposs, which suffered the Almef-givers to five by a River of cold water, called Ochilenday, and hid them their from the Deuils hurting them. One of our company laughed at this Tale, whereat a Bonzo was so offended, that hee set Chris in rage with vs, who bound vs hand and foot, and gaue vs one hundred stripes a-piece. Twelue Priests were incensing these Monfters when wee were there with Silver-cenfours full of fweet Odours, Saying, as wee ferne 10 thee, helpe thou vs: another company of Priests answering: So I promise thee as a good Lord. And thus went they on Procession about the Hill an houres space sounding certayne Bels cau-

ting a dreadfull novie.

Hence wee passed up the River eleven dayes, all peopled with Cities, Townes, Villages, Frequenic of Castles, in many places, scarsly a Calieuer shot distant one from another: and all the Land in China people, compalle of our fight had flore of great Houses, and Temples with gilded Steeples, which amazed vs with the fight. Thus wee came to the Citie Sampitay, where wee flayed fine dayes Sampitas. by reason of the ficknesse of Chifus Wife. There by his leane wee went thorow the streets, a begging, the people wondering at vs, and giving vs largely. One woman amongst others which bufily questioned with vs, shewed vs a Crosse branded on her left arme, asking if we knew 20 that figne, and wee deuoutly answering, yes, shee lifted up her hands to Heauen, and favd, Our Father which art in Heauen, hallowed be thy Name, in Portugues, and could speake no more, See Maff. 6. but proceeded in China speech, and procured leave to lodge vs at her House those fine dayes; tel- these Perugali ling vs the was named Inez de Leiria, and was the Daughter of Thomas Perez, which came Rebels had Embaffadour to China, and by reation of a Rebellious Portugall Captayne, hee was taken as a poffcifed Ta-they dyed in milery, only Vafco Caluo, being now left alme. Her Father, the faid, was banished alland, whence to this Towne, and there marryed with her Mother having somewhat to mayntaine her, and sollowed that by him made a Christian. They hued together many yeares like good Catholikes, and conuer- out rage to Peued many to the Faith of Christ, in that Citie three hundred aftembled on Sundayes to her house reg after foure 3c. to their holies, She shewed vs an Oratorie in which was a Crosse of wood gilded, with a Canuellition Canuellition Candlefficke and filter Lampe. Wee asked her what they did, when they came there, and shee faid, torto the nothing but kneele before that Croffe, with their hands and eyes lifted to Heaven, and fay, Lord Court, Lopez Ieliu Chrift, as it is true that thou are the true Sonne of God, conceined by the Holy Ghost in the wombe Soarez which lesia Christ, as it is true that those art the true Sonne of Uoa, conceined by the true y Under mine womove of the Haly Virgin Mary, for the falsation of Simors, so pardon ear first, that wee may obstype so see thy seem to early the true of the Haly Virgin Mary, for the falsation of Simors, so particularly the true was the true of the Haly Virgin Mary, for the falsation of the Haly Virgin Mary, for the H face in the glory of thy Kingdome, where them fittest at the right hand of the Highest. Our Eather which Come, with ting friendly with each other. Her Father (the faid) had left other Prayers written, which the ans and Chri-Chinois had ftolne away, so that now they could say no more. Whereupon we promised to leave 40 her other Prayers, and taught the Christians seuen times there, and Christopher Borrall writin Chma Letters the Lords Prayer, Ane Mary, Creed, Salue Regina, Tenne Commandements, and other good Prayers. Shee had given a Present to Chifus Wife to deale with her Husband to gine vs this leave, and to vie vs kindly, and the Christians there gave vs fiftie Tacis of Silver, and Inez de Leiria other fiftie closely, de ring vs to remember her in our Prayers.

We continued our journey up the Batampura, to a place called Legainnan, of tenne crtwelue Legainnan, thousand Houses. Necre to the wall stood a long house with thirtie Furnaces for the puritying Mynes of Taxs of filter which was taken out of a Hill fine keagus diffant, called Tuxengnim; in which Mine: "systim, the Chinais told ve, there continually laboured one thousand men, and that it world no the Kine." [2000, Pleoss of meer was caken on of a time meeting and that it yeeled to the King is a Million of yearely fine thousand . Pales of filter. We departed thence in the Eneming, and the n-xt Ene- 13ets. 10 ning anchored betwixt two small Cities standing over against one another, one named Pacam, the Pacam and Neother Nacass, both well walled and builded. These two Cities occasion mee to recite what I rass. haue heard often heard read in the thirteenth Chapter of the first Chronicle of the four-score which they have of the Kings of China; that fixe hundred thirtie nine yeares after the Floud, there was a Land, called Gnantipocau, in which lived a pettie Prince, called Turban, which had by his Concubine Narcas, three Sonnes, refuting to marry, and entring into Religion of the idoll China Chroni-Gizom (fill much effeemed in Iapon, China, Canchina, Cambona, Siam, of which I have eles and Le feene many Temples) appointing his clieft Sonne by the faul Nancaa his heire. His Mother then living was against this, and marryed herfelie with Solan a Priest, and flue Torban, where-vpon Nancas and her children fled downe the River feveritie leagues, and fortified a place which 60 the called Pilannera, that is, the refuge of the poore. Five yeares after Silan prepared a Fleet of thirtie Barkes to destroy her and all her faction, thinking that her Sons comming of age might dispossesses having Intelligence, having of men, women, and children, not about one dispositified him. But the harming intelligence, naturing or men, women, and contact the contact harming intelligence in though and three hundred perfons, and but three or four: Boats not fufficient to contact having beginning of thousand and criter number personal on three or our thought the few, by common confent and aduice appointed a three dayes Fall thereinto begge functor to had your art in Heauen, hallowed be thy Name. In the Name of the Father, and of the Sonne, and of the Hoty 1515. Ghest, Amen. And so kitting the Crosse, hey embraced one another and went home; alway li- China Christi-of God, in all which time none might eate aboue once, in paine of death. This Fast ended they cast Lots and the Lot fellon a Boy of seven yeares old, which was also named Silan, whom after all Ceremonies ended) they bid lift up his hands to Heauen, and tell them some remedie to these dangers. Who prophefied Victory to her ouer the Tyrant Silan, commanding her to embarke hers in her Enemies Barkes, and at the found of the waters to runne along the Land, till God shewed where shee should found a habitation of great name, which through all times should fend out his mercy with voyces and bloud of strange Nations: after which words the Boy fell

Legend of Pe-

The thirty Barkes came (faith the Storie) fine dayes after without any people therein : for at a place called Catebasy, a blacke Cloud arose ouer them, which rayned on them scalding drops, to which destroyed them all. Nancas with teares and thankes embarked her three Sonnes and the rest, and went downe the River conducted by the found fortie seven dayes, and then came to the place where Pequim now stands. Fine dayes after they came aland, was the first stone lave thereof by Pequim, eldeit Sonne of Nancan, and the Citie called by his owne name. And affluer shield hangeth on the Arch of the chiefe gate Pomosicotay, and hath this inscribed, in which are fortie Warders, and in the rest ordinarily but foure. The day also of the foundation (beeing the third of August) is kept with great Solemnitie, and thereon the King vieth to shew himselfe to the people. The later Kings also have made a Law that no Strangers, except Embassadours and Slaves should enter the Kingdome. The two other Brethren founded these two Cities, called by their owne names Pucan and Nacan, and their Mother founded Nanquin, which tooke the 20 name of hers.

The wall of mos de largo.

Vion todas

Fine Rivers

the wall. Wall-fores.

Thus in Spaine, Chaens of the

IN the fift Booke of the chiefe places of that Empire, is written, that King Crifnogol (which reigned as we may accord our computation with theirs) about the yeare of our Lord 528 builded the wall, the people contributing ten thousand Pikes of filter (which are fifteene Millions of Cruzados) and two hundred and fiftie thouland men (thirtie thouland Officers and the rest Labourers) which was continued feuen and twentie yeares, and then finished, being, faith that Booke the length of feuentie Iaons (every Iaon is foure leagues and an halfe) which make three hundred and fifteene leagnes. The Priefts and Iles are faid to contribue as many, and the King and Officers another third, so that seuen hundred and sittle thousand men laboured therein. This 30 wall I have feeneand measured, being generally fixe fathomes high, and fortie spannes thicke: and foure fathomes runneth a kind of Rampire, twice as thicke as the wall strengthened with a Bituminous substance on the out-fide like Potters worke; and in stead of Bulwarkes it hath houfes of two lofts with beames of blacke wood, called Cambefy, that is, Iron-wood, feeming ftronger then if they were of stone-worke. This wall or Chanfacan (so they call it, that is, frong refifrance) runneth with an equal course till it encounters with Hils, which are all Chanfred and made so that it is stronger then the wall it selfe, the wall being only in the spaces twixt Hill and Hill, the Hils themselves making up the rest.

In all that way are but fine entrances, caused by the Tartarian Rivers, which with impetuous force cut the Countrey aboue fine hundred leagues entring the Sea of China, and Canchin-china: 40 And one of them more forcible then the others enters the Kingdome of Sornan (commonly called Siams) by the Barre of Cuy. At every of those five entrances the King of China hath one Fort and the Tartar another: in every of the China Forts there are feven thousand men fix thousand fand foot, and one thousand Horse, in continual pay; most of them Strangers, Mogors, Champaas, Pancrus, Coracones, and Gizares of Persia, the Chinois being but meane Souldiers. In all the space of this wall are three hundred and twentie Regiments, each of fine hundred men (in all one hundred & fixty thousand) besides Ministers, Commanders, and their retinue which the Chinois faid, made in all two hundred thousand men, allowed by the King only sustenance, all or most of them being condemned to that service, and therefore receiving no pay. And in Pequim is a great and admirable Prilon-house, in which are Prisoners continually for the Fabricke 52 of this wall of three hundred thousand men and vpwards, most of them from eighteene to to the Gallies, fine and fortie yeares old: whereof some are men of good qualitie, which for their ill behaviours or Garnions of Oran, Penan, ecc and enormities are hither fentenced, expecting to be removed hence to the fervice of the wall: whence they may have returne according to the Statutes thereof made, and appropuled by the Chaens, which therin difpense the Regall power with meere and mixt Empire. There are twelse of them which may pay to the King a Million of Gold for Rent,

d. IIII.

ð. IIII.

Mindo Salt-pits: Mines of Coretumbaga, Copper-workes; Idolatry and Chri-Stianitie; China Trades, and River Faires; their comming to Pequin, tryall and fentence. Rarities of

O returne to our Voyage, from Panan and Nacan, wee passed up the River to Mon. Mindel, do, a greater Citie then either of the former, which on the Land fide had a great Lake of Salt-water, with great flore of Salt-pies therein, which the Chinou fiid, didebbe and flow like the Sea, from which it is about two hundred leagues distant; and that this Citie Rents to the King yearely one hundred thouland Taeis, of the thirds of the Salt, and as much more of the Silkes, Sugars, Porcelane, Camfire, Vermillion, Quick-filter, 300000. Cruwhich are there in great quantitie. Two leagues about this Citie were twelue long Houses, in zados. which many men were founding and purifying Copper, making fuch a noyfe with the Hammers that this place (if any on Earth) may refemble Hell. In each House were fortie Furnaces, twentie on a lide, with forcie great Anuiles, on each whereof eight men were hammering round. with fuch quicknes as fearce permitted the eyes observance; so that in eachhouse there were three 3840- Hamhundred and twentie continual Labourers, besides Workmen of other kinds. Wee asked how mer men. much Copper they might make yearely, and they answered, betwixt one hundred and ten, and APicois 1000. one hundred and twentie thousand Pikes, of which the King had two parts, because the Mynes Taeis. were his; the Hill where the Mine was, is called Coretumbage, that is, River of Copper, which in two hundred yeares (to long was fince the Discouery) was not emptied.

About thefe Houses one league neere the River, wee law on a Hill encompassed with three rewes of Iron Grates, thirtie Houles in fine rankes , very long , with great Towres of Bels of Metall, and Cast-Iron, with gilded Pillars and carried workes, and artificiall Frontifpieces of stone. Here we went on Land by Chifin leave, because hee had so vowed to that Pagede, which is called Bigaspotim, that is, the God of one hundred and ten thousand Gods, Corcheo, Fun. Bigaspotim. gane, ginate ginaca, ftrong & great (lay they) about all the rest. For they hold every thing hath a particular God which made it and preferues it in its nature, & that this Bigappotime brought forth all of them at his arme-pits, and that of him they all hold their being, as of a father by filiall vnion, which they call Byaporentefay. In Peon where I have beene formetimes, there is a Pagode like this (there called Ginocoginana, the God of all greatnesse) whose Temple was built by chinaruledo. the Chinois when they ruled in India, Which was after their Computation accorded with ours uer India. from Anno Dom. 1013. till 1072. conquered by Oxinagan, whose Successor seeing how much bloud was payd for fo little good, voluntarily relinquithed it. In those thirtie Houses stood a great quantitie of Idols of gilded wood, and as many more of Tinne, Copper, Latten, Iron. Porcelane, fo many that I dare not mention the number. Wee had not gone thence fixe or feuen leagues, when we faw a great Citie nuined with the houses and wals on the ground, seening a league in citcuit. The (boose said, that it had beene called Cobilouxas, that is, Flowre of the field, Cobilouxas. fometimes prof perous; and that one hundred fortie two yeares fince, as is written in a Booke, na-

Witch, and because they could not hold dispute with him, prouoking the people against him, faying, that if they did not kill him, God would punish them with fire from Heauen. The in- A Christian raged multitude killed one lobn a Weauer, where he fojourned, and his two Sonnes in Law, and marryred. his Sonne; which fought to defend him, and when they had gone about to burne him, in vaine, the Bonzos floned him, preaching Christ ynto them, which had conthe fire being extinct, the Bonzos Roned him, preaching Christ vnto them, which had come 50 from Heauen todye for Sinners, and to give life to all which professed his Law with Faith and Works, They fay, that the bodie was cast into the River, which for the space of five dayes would not runne lower, and thereby many were moued to professe that Religion : and as wee doubled a point of Land, we faw a Croffe of itone on a little Hill enuironed with Trees. Chifu Wife fal- A Creffe. ling into travell (of which she dyed) we stayed there nine dayes, and did our Deuotions thereto, proftrate on the Earth. The people of the Village (called Xrfangu) maruelling, came running to the place and falling on their knees, kiffed the Croffe often, faying, Christo lefu, lefu Christo, Maria Micau, late impone Mondel, that is , was a Virgin in his Conception, Birth, and after it. They asked if they were Christians, and we affirming it, had vs to their Houses and vsed vs kindly, being all of that Weauers Posteritie and Christians. They also confirmed that which

me Toxefalem, there came in company of Merchants from the Port of Tanacarim, a man which wrought Miracles, in a moneths space raising vp fine dead persons, the Bonzos saying, he was a 60 the Chinois had told vs, and shewed vs the Booke printed of his Miracles, which they faid was named Matthew Escandel, an Hungarian by Nation, an Heremite of Mount Smay, borne at Bu. Mat. Escandel da. That Booke tels that ninedayes after his death, the Citie Cobilonza shooke so, that the people ranne out into the fields, and abode in Tents; to whom the Bonzos came and bid them feare Earthquake. nothing, for they would bekeech Quiay Tignarens, The God of the night, to command the Earth Plate.

to doe fo no more, otherwise they would give him no Almes. Thus went the Prieffs alone in Procession to that Idols House, and making their night-Sacrifices and Perfu nes, the Earth quaked about eleuen of the clocke at night, and ouer hrew the whole Citie (one only of about tours thousand Bonzos remayning aline) into a Lake more then one hundred fathomes deepe, called after this Finnganorfee, that is, punified from Heaven.

Iunquil nau.

Sem colares. nem algemas.

Hence we came to a great Citie, called Innquilinau, very rich, with many Junkes and Barkes. where we ft. ved fine dayes, Chifu there celebrating his Wines Exequies, and gining vs food and rayment for her foule, freeing vs from the Oare, and giving vs leave to goe on Lan' when wee would, without our . Collers, which was very great ease to vs. Thence we went up the River. fill feeing on both fides many and faire Cities and Townes, and other very great populations, to firongly walled, and Fortreiles along it the water with Towres and rich Houles of their Sects, with innumerable cattell in the fields, and shipping in the River, in some places sue hundred fix How such infis hundred, yea, one shouland sayle, in which were fold all things could be named. Many Chinair affirmed, that there were as many lived in that Empire on the water, as in Cities and Townes:

fo many in both, that were it not for the good government of their Trades, they would eate one an other. As in Duckes, one trades in buying and hatching the Egges, and felling the young; another in breeding them for fale when they are great, others in the Feathers, others in the heads, and in wares, others in the Egges, &c. none interloping the others Trade under paine of thirtie stripes. In Hogs, one trades in selling them together aliue, others kill them, and sell them by weight, others in Bacon, others in Pigges, others in Soufe. So in fifth, hee which fels freih 20 may not fell falt, some fell them alive, &c. and so in Fruits and other things. And none may change his Trade without license. They have also along this River of Batampina, in which wee from and flore went from Nanquin to Pequin, (the distance of one hundred and eightie leagues) such a number of Ingenios for Sugar, and Preffes for Wines, and Oyles made of divers forts of Pulfe and Fruits, that there are streets of them on both sides of the River, of two or three leagues in length. In other parts are many huge store-houses of infinite prouisions of all forts of stelln in which are salted and imoked Beefe, tame and wilde Hogs, Ducks, Geefe, Cranes, Bustards, Emes, Deere, Bustals, Ants, Horse, Tygres, Dogs, and all flesh which the Earth brings forth, which amuzed and amezed vs exceedingly, it feeming impossible that there should bee people in the World to eate the fame. Wee faw also great store of Barkes senced at Poupe and Prow, with Reedes of Canes full to of Ducks to fell, in divers lofts over one another, which goe out at foure frokes of a Drumme, fixe or feuen thousand together to feed, where they fet them, at the found of the Drumme returning againe, with like exceeding crie. In the like fort they let them out to lay on the graffe. They that hatch them have long houses with twentie Furnaces full of dung, with some hundreds of Egges concred therein, and hatched by that heate, the mouth stopped till they thinke fit time, then putting in a Capon halfe plucked and wounded on the breft, they that it agains. and after two dayes, the Capon hath drawne them all forth, and they put them into holes prouided for them. We saw along the River in some places store of Swine wild and tame kept by men on Hork-backe, in other places tame Deere kept by Footmen, all maymed in the right foreleg, that they 40 should not runne away, which they doe when they are young. Wee faw Pennes full of little Dogs for meat, Dogges to fell, Barkes full of Pigges, others of Lizards, Frogs, Snakes, Snailes, all being meate with them. In these (being of small price) they may fell many kinds. Yea, the dung of men is there fold, and not the worfe Merchandize, that stinke yeelding sweet wealth to some, who goe tabouring wp and downe the streets to signific what they would buy. Two or three hundred favle are seene sometimes fraighted with this lading in some Port of the Sea; whence the satned foyle yeelds three Harueits in a yeare.

Paffures of

Wee came to a Faire of China where on the water 2000. Barkes, besides small Boats which Moneable Ci. goe vp and downe and small Barkes were assembled in one place, and made a Citie with threets in the water aboue a league long, and a third part of a league broad. Thele Faires are principally 10 on the Holy day of some Pagede, whose Temple is by the waters side. In this Water-citie, by the order of the Aitao of Bitampina (who is chiefe President of the thirtie two Admirals of the thirtie two Kingdomes of this Monarchie) are fixtie Captaynes appointed; thirtie for the gouernment and ordering of the same in matters of Justice, and other thirtie to guard the Merchants in comming fafely secured from Theeues. Ouer all these is a Chaem, which hath Mere and mixt Rule in Caufes Civill and Criminall without Appeale. These Faires last from the new Moon to the ful, in which it is a goodly thing to fee two thousand streets or ranks strait, enclosed with Barkes, most of them flourishing with Streamers and Banners, and railes painted, whereon are fold all things that can be defired, in others Mechanike Trades, & in the midit Boats going up and downe with people to trade without any confusion or tumult. As soone as it is night, the 60 fireets are enclosed with Cables. In every fireet is ten Lanthornes lighted on the Masts (which yeelds a fairer lustre then the former fight by day) to see who goeth by and what is his businesse. In each of these streets is a Watch-bell, and when that of the Chaems sounds, all the rest answer with as strange an Object to the Eare as the former to the Eye. In every of these Vowes are

Beautics and glories of this Oratories built on Barkes with gilded Tents, where the Idoll and Priests receive the Deuotions and Offerings of the people. Amongst other remarkable things we saw one rew, or street of about one hundred Barkes laden with Idols of gilded wood of divers fort, which are fold to be offered in the Pagedes; and belides, feet, legs, armes, and heads, which ficke folkes offered for Denotion. Other Barkes there are with Tents of Silke, in which Comedies and pattimes are represented. In others are fold Letters of Exchange, the Prietts giving them Bils to receive in Heaven what their folly lay downe there, with great increase (Our Scrimeners would scarly grow rich bere with that Trade) others are laden with skele of dead men, they dreaming that alithe Almes of those men, whole skuls these 10 have beene, shall belong to their foules, and that the Porter of Heaven feeing them come with thus many attending, will open to him as an honourable perion Others have Cages of Birds, and call to men to fet free those Captines, which are the creatures of God, with their Almes which they which doe, let loofe the Bird and bid him tell God what he hath done in his Service : others do the like with living fiber affering their freedome to the charitable Redeemers which themselves will not give them; which like the fale of Indulgences) (aying, they are Innocents which never finned, which freed by Almes are let goe in the River with commendations of this their Redeemess Service to the Creator. Other Barbes carry Friders and Muficians to offer their Service : Others (the Priefts) fell Harnes of factificad Beafts, with promite of I know not what Feafts in Heauen : others had Tents of forrow, Tombes and all Funerall appartenances with Women-mour-20 ners, to be let out for Burials: others laden with Books of all forts of Historie, and there also have Scripeners and Proctors; others have fuch as offer their fartice to fight in defence of their honour; others have Mid-wines, others Nurses; others carry grame wen and women to comfors those that haue loft Husbands, Wines, Children, and the like disconsolate persons: others Boyes and Girles for fermice; others offer Counfellers in Cales of Law or Learning; others Phylicians : and to conclude, nothing is to bee fought on the Land which is not here to be found in this Water eine.

Once, the cause of the greatnesse of this Kingdome of China, is this case concourse of all parts by water and Rivers : some of which in narrow places have bridges of stone like ours, and fome made of one only stone laid over, sometimes of eightie, ninetic, or one hundred spanner, long, and fiftgene or twengie broad. All the High-wayes have large Causies made of good stone, Bridges, and 30 with Pillers and Arches fairely wrought inferibed with the Founders names and prayies in gol-admirable. den Letters. In many places they have Wels to refresh the Trauellers. And in more barren and leffe inhabited places are fingle women which give free entertainment to fuch as have no monie, Filihy charity. which abuse and abomination, they call a worke of Mercie, and is prouided by the deceased for good of their foules, with Rents and mayntenance. Others have also bequeathed in the like places, houses with Lights to see the way, and fires for Trauellers, water and Lodging. I have in one and twentie yeares unfortunate travels feene a great part of Affs, and the riches of Enrope, but if my testimonic be worthy credit, all together is not comparable to China alone: such are the endowments of nature in a whollome Ayre, Soyle, Rivers, and Seas , with their Policie, Iustice , Riches and State, that they obscure all the lustres of other paris. Yet such is their 40 bestiall and Deuillish Idolatry, and filthy Sadomitry publikly permitted, committed, taught by their Priefts as a vertue, that I cannot but griege at their vagratitude.

Departing from this admirable Citie, we failed up the River, till on the ninth of October, on opinion Tuefday we came to the great Citie of Pequin, whither wee were fent by Appeale. Wee went Pequin. three and three as Prisoners, and were put in a Prison called Gofaria serca, where for an entrance they gaue each of vs thirtie stripes. Chifu which brought vs presented to the Aitao our Proceffe figned with twelve seales from Nanquin. The twelve Conchelis which are Criminall Indges, fent one of their company with two Notaries, and fixe or feuen Officers to the Prifon where wee were, and examined vs, to whom we answered as before, and hee appointed vs to make petition to the Tauigores, of the holy Office by our Proftors, and gaue was Taell for 50 almes, with a caueat to heware of the Prifoners that they robbed vs not; and then went into another great Roome, where he heard many Prisoners Caules, three houres together, and then caufed execution to be done on feuen and twentie men, sentenced two dayes before, which all dyed with the blowes to our great terrour.

And the next day wee were collared and manicled, being much afraid that our Calemplay: bu-vige, finefic would come to light. After feuen dayes the Tangeres of the Hospitall of that Prison came in, to whom we with pitifuli lamentation gaue the Certificate which wee brought from Nanquin. By their meanes the Conchalis petitioned the Chaem to renoke the Sentence of cutting off our rhumbs, feeing there was no teltimonic of theft by vs committed, but only our pouer- Their Caufe tic, we more needed pitie then rogour. He heard the pleading for and against vs for disers daies, heard. 60 the Prometor or Fiscall laying hard against vs that wee were thesees; but being able to proue The Fiscall (see nothing, the Chaem fullpended him from his Office, and condemned him in twentre Taris to vs. from shythe which was brough: vs. And at last we were brought into a great Hall painted with divers re- tudge which presentations of execution of Iustice for severall crimes there written, very fearcfull to behold : had seveneed and at the end a fairer gilded roome croffed the fame, where was a Tribunall with feuer steps, them; juni-

The Authors

Tribunal and pompe.

pearle, having a Canopie of Damaske franged with Gold and greene Silke, and vnderneath a Chaire of Silver for the Chair, and a little Table before him, with three Boyes attending on their knees richly attired, with chaines of gold on their neckes; the middlemost to give him his Penne, the other two to receive Petitions and to present them on the Table; two other Boyes flanding at his fide in exceeding rich aray, the one representing lustice, the other on the right hand Merer, without which conjoyned, the Judge (they fay) becomes a Tyrant. (The refl of the flate and ceremonic 1 omit) week kneeling on our knees, with our hands lifted up, and our eyes caft downe to the ground, heard gladly our Sentence of absolution. Only we were for one yeere Small works, banished to the workes of Quanty, and eight moneths of that yeere ended to have free parout to goe home, or whither we would. After the Sentence pronounced, one of the Conching the vp, and fine times demanded aloud if any could take exception against the Sentence: and all being filent, the two Boyes reprefenting Inflice, and Mercy, touched each others Enfigues which they had in their hands, and fand aloud, let them be free according to the Sentence, and prefently two Chumbims tooke off our Collars and Manicles, and all our bonds. The foure moneths (the Tanigores told vs) were taken off the yeere, as the Kings almes in regard of our pourtie; for had wee beene rich, wee must have ferued the whole yeere. They gave vs foure Taeis of almes and went to the Captaine which was to goe for 2 manff to commend vs to his charitie, which vied vs accordingly.

The Kings

Description of the Chinais call is Pequim. Aquelendos 2

1600, houles for Deputies.

24000. Barge.

14000, Pur-Currefan ftreet.

rococo.Lin-1300 . Mona-Reries.

other men.

260. Gates

DEquin may be called the Mother Citie of the Worlds Monarchie for the wealth, govern-Pment, greatnesse, inflice, prouisions. It stands in the height of 41. degrees to the North; it contayneth in circuit, as the Chinois (and as I after heard read in a little Booke written of the greatnesse thereof , called Aquesendoo, which I brought with mer into this Kingdome) thirtie Booke written leagues, ten in length, and five in bredth, all which space is environed with two Walls, and innumerable Towers and Bulwarkes. Without is a larger space, which they say, was anciently peopled, which now hath but Hamlets, and scattered Houses, and Garden-houses (of which fixteene hundred are of principall note, in which are the fixteene hundred Proctors for the fixteene hundred Cities and Townes of note, of the two and thirtie Kingdomes of this Monarchie, which refide there three yeeres for the faid Townes. Without this circuit or wall, there a are in the space of three leagues broad, and seuen long, foure and twentie thousand Sepulchres of Mandarmes, with their little gilded Chappels, encompassed with grates of Iron and Latten, with rich Arches at their entries. Neere to them are Gardens, Groues, Tankes, Fountaines; the walls lined within with fine Porcelane, adorned also with Lions and Pinacles of divers pain-Hofoirals 500, tings. There are in that space fine hundred Lodgings, called Houses of the Sonne of the Sunne, for entertainment of Souldiers maimed in the Kings warres (besides many others for the old and ficke) every of which receive their monethly allowance, and have in them as they faid two hundred men, in all one hundred thousand. Wee saw another street very long, where lived foure and twentie thousand Rowers for the Kings shipping : and another aboue a league long, where lived fourteene thousand Tauerners for provision for the Court; and another where were 40 infinite Curtefans freed from tribute (which those of the Citie pay) for service of the Court. many running from their husbands, and here protected by the Tutan of the Court, which is fupreme in cafes of the Kings house.

In that compasse also line the Landerers of the Citie, which were as they told vs, aboue one hundred thousand, there being many Tankes or Ponds compassed with stone and Rivers. There are therein, as that Booke fayth, thirteene hundred Noble houses of Religious men and women, which professe the source chiefe Sees of the two and thirtie which are in that Kingdome: some of which, they say, have aboue one thousand persons within them besides servitors. There are other houses flore with great walls in which are Gardens, and Groues with game for hunting; and are as it were the Halls of Companies where many refort to fee Playes, and the great men 50 make their feafts there with incredible costs. Some of these houses cost about a million, maintayned by Companies of rich Merchants, which are faid to gaine * much thereby. And when any will make a feat, he goeth to the Xipatom of the house, who sheweth him a Booke wherein is contayned the order of feafts and feruices (which Booke I have feene and heard read) of all forts, and of what prices they are, whether Sacred to their Idols, or Secular, (of which our Authour bath a large Chapter, here omitted.)

Now for Peaum, it hath three hundred and fixtie Gates, each having a Casslet with two Towers, and a Draw-bridge, a Notarie, and foure Warders, to take notice of those which goe in and out, and an Idoll proper according to the dayes of the yeere, every of which is feltivall in one of them. The Chinois reported that there are therein three thousand eight hundred Temples or Pagodes, in which are continually facrificed birds and wilde beafts, which they fay, are more 62 acceptable then tame : those especially very faire which are of the Menigrepos, and Conquisis, and Talagrepos, the Priests of the foure chiefe Sects, of Xaca, Amida, Gizon, and Canom. The ftreets are long and large, the houses faire, of one or two lofts, encompassed with Iron and Lat-

ten grates, and at the streets end are triumphall arches, closed at night; in the chiefe are Watchbells. Euery ffreet hath a Captaine and foure Quarter-masters or Corporals, which every ten dayes acquaint the Lonchaeys or Chaems with occurrents. That Booke reports of one hundred and twentie water-passinges, fixe fathome deepe of water, and twelue wide, with many stone 120, Rincrets, bridges, which are faid to be eighteene hundred rich and faire, with arches, pillars, and chaines: 1800. Bridges. it tels also of one hundred and twentie Market-places, each of which haue their monethly 120, Market-Faires, (which make some foure faires a day thorow the yeere) of which we saw ten or twelue places. in our two moneths free abode, very full of horfe-men and foot-men with all commodities to be fold. Thereare one hundred and fixtie Shambles, each having one hundred blockes for Flesh of 160. Shambles to all forts, the price fet downe on euery blocke, and besides the shop-weights, are weights at euery Gate to examine the weight againe. And besides those generall shambles, euery street hath fine or fixe shops which sell all kinde of Flesh : houses also for Poultrie, and for Bacon,

ð. V.

Foure Buildings incredibly admirable in Pequin, and divers of their superstitions: their Hospitals and provisions for the Poore. The Kingsrevenues and Court : their Sects.

and hanged Beefe.

Vt nothing feemed to me more admirable, then the Prison, called Xmanguibalen, that is, Prisonof the the Prison of the exiled, whose compasse contayneth about two leagues square, as well exiled to the in length as breadth, walled high and ditched deepe, with draw-bridges hanged on Testarian wall, Iron cast pillars very great. It hath a high arch with two towers, whereon are fix great watch- almost eight Bels, at the found whereof the rest within answer, which are sayd to bee one hundred. In this leagues com-Prifon are continually three hundred thouland men from " fixteene to fiftie yeers of age, all con- "Or 18.10 45. demned to banishment, for the fabrike of the wall betwixt Tartaria and (bina; whom the King 30 findes maintainance onely, without other pay. After they have ferued fixe yeares they may goe Multirudes of out freely, the King freely remitting their lentence in latisfaction of their labour. And if in Prisoners and the meane time, they kill an enemie, or haue beene thrice wounded in fallies, or performe any in the wall. worthy exploit, he is also freed. There are " two hundred & ten thousand employed in that fer- Before hee nice of which yearly in those that dye, are maimed or freed, one third part is set off, and supplyed fayd 200000. from that Prilon, which was builded by Gozeler the fuccessor of Crisnagel, the founder of the wall. brought thither from all parts of the Realme, and lent to the Chaem of the wall at his appointment. These prisoners are sent from other prisons, being loose, saue that they weare at their necke, a board of a spanne long and foure tingers broad, inscribed with their name, and sentence of exile, such a time. In this Prifon are two Faires yeerely, one of which wee faw, kept in Iuly Huge Faires.

40 and Ianuarie, franke and free without payment of tolls ; to which are thought to affemble three millions of persons : the Prisoners being meane-while shut vp. The Prison hath three Townes, as it were, with itreets and Officers, belides the Chaems lodgings, fit to entertaine a King. There are also all necessaries fold. Their are groues, and tankes of water for washing, Hospitals also and twelve Monasteries, with rich houses, wanting nothing that a rich and noble Citie should have : the Prisoners having their Wives and Children with them, the King allowing a competent house for them.

Another building about as great as that, was the Muxiparan, or treasure of the Dead, compass Another adfed with a strong wall and ditch, with many stone Towers and painted pinacles : the wall on mirable Fathe top in iteal of battlements, was compassed with Iron grates, close to which were set great brikes fore of Idols of different figures, of Men, Serpents, Hories, Oxen, Elephanes, Fishes, Snakes, 50 monstrous formes of Wormes, and creatures neuer seene; all of Brasse and cast Iron, and some of Tinne, and Copper; a fight more admirable to the view, then can be imagined. Palling by a bridge ouer the ditch, wee came to a great Hill, * at the first entrie all enuironed with thicke grates of foafter. Latten, floored with stones white and blacke, so shining that a man might see himselfe therein, as in a glasse. In the midst of that Hill stood a marble pillar of fixe and thirtie spannes high, all feeming to bee but one stone; on the top whereof stood an Idoll of filuer with a womans face, with both hands griping a Serpent sported with blacke and white. And further, before the gate (which flood betwix: two high towers, borne vpon foure and twentie bigge flone pillars) flood two figures of men with Iron maces or battle Axes, in their hands, as guarding the paffage, one hundred and fortie spannes high, with dreadfull countenances, called Xixipitan Xalican, that is, 60 the Blowers of the House of Smoake. At the entrie of the gate, flood twelve Halberdiers, and two Fire blowers Notaries at a table, which writ downe all that en red. After wee were entred, we came into a of Helllarge ftreet let on both fides with rich Arches, with infinite bells of Latten hanging thereon, by latten chaynes, by the mooning of the ayre yeelding a great found. The fireet was almost halfe

a league

a kague long, and within those arches were two rankes of houses, like as it were great Churches soo Hules with galled pinacles, and painted inventions, in number as the Chinosis affirmed three thousand, all its in the bottome to the roote full of Sculls of dead men. Behind those houses was a hill of Bones, reaching to the rootes of the houses, of the same length of halfe a league and very broad. Wee asked the Chinois, if any account were kept thereof, and they answered, that the Talagrapor which had the government of thole houses, had registers for them all, and that every house cting Charnel yeelded two chouland Taes rent, left thereto by the deceased for their foules discharge, the Ring having therof the fourth part, and the Talagrepos the reft for expences of the Fabrike; the Kings fourth part was ipent on the exiled Prifoners of Xmamquibalen. Arti per was ipent on the exhete printers of a management.

Wee walked thorow the fireer, and in the midd is was great bill round encompaffed, with two

A third building wee faw without the walls, sumptuous and rich, named Nacapiran, which 30

fignifieth, The Queene of Heauen; which they meane not of the Virgin Marie, but thinke that kedly Religious men and women; in enery of which, were fayd to bee foure hundred persons. which come to fixe and fiftie thousand; besides seruitours, which have not yet vowed the profession, as those within, who goe in facred habite of red with greene stoles, their beards and heads 40 shauen, with beades about their neckes, for their prayers, but aske no almes, having sustenance of their owne proper. In this Edifice of Nacapiran, the Tartarian King lodged, Anno 1544 when hee layd fiege to this Citie, as shall after bee delinered; wherein for a dinellish and bloudie Sacriof Quiay Figrau, Gol of the Motes of the Sunne, and of Quiay Ninardel, God of the Battelli, and of Suits a great, Go to the course of the Marke, Dang Champon, Parisy Chalder, and Make of Compound, and of four others, Daisy Anthre, Dang Champon, Parisy Chalder, and Make Lacasas, whose since Seets, are the chiefe construction and thirtie. Within this building weeks divers memorable things. One was a Wall against the other, almost a league compasse, borne vp

The Douils banner tryumrewes of Latten grates; in the midst whereof was a brazen Serpent, aboue thirtie fathoms in her phant in ftupendious Sercircles, well proportioned, notwithstanding that incredible massinesse. This monstrous Spake pents; then which the Chinois call the Serpent denonrer of the House of smoothe, had let in his head, a Ball or which neither Bullet of cast Iron of two and firtie spannes circumference. Aboue twentie paces further, was figure por the figure of a Man in braffe, of Giantly limbes and proportion, who fuftained withbothis ereature bach been more a hands another bullet, which (eying the Serpent with an angry vilage) made as though he threw hands another course, which course is a superior of the first supe vp to him as in admiration: and in foure wyres of Iron enuironing, were one hundred and fixtle his conquest, two filter Candlestickes, each having fixe, seven, and ten nosles. This Idoll gave name to the his conquest, two filter Canalestickes, each nating tax, seven, and temporars, a many particles of the Ges. 3, shough whole Fabrike, and was called Muchiparom, who was, fayth the Chinest, the Trafferent of 10 a fronger then the bones of the dead, and that Serpent comming to rob them, hee threw that bullet in his hands, he ropte inted and made her flee to the darke bottome of the house of smoake, where God had cast her for her Superit, 106.3. badnesse: And that three thousand yeeres before hee made the former throw, and that three high taken the thousand yeeres after, he shall make another, and so each three thousand yeeres another, till the ed Serjon and hith which shall kill her: after which all these bones shall returne to their bodyes, to remayne alway in the house of the Moone. This their Bonzos preach, and that those soules shall bee hapcaprur, and briketie Ser. pie, whole bones are thither brought, fo that no day passet in which two thousand bones are not brought thither. And they which are too farre diffant to haue their bones brought, fend which heere a Tooth or two, which with their almes will doe as much good as the whole : fo that I suppose feemes intenthere are teeth enough in those houses to lade many ships.

ded with Fthn.ke vanitie. The third as temporall Kings are married, to also is the Heauenly, and that the Children which hee get-Arange Æditeth of Nacapiran, are the Starres; and when the starres seeme to shoute or fall in the ayre, that fice of Nacaria then one of those Children dye, all his brethen weeping so many teares, that the Clouds are therewith filled, and water the earth, and make it fruitfull, as being the almes which God gives rau the Iuni of 140.Monaftefor the foule of the deceased. Wee saw heere one hundred and fortie Monasteries, of their wic-

Nunnes forced fice, he commanded 30000 persons to be slaine: fifteen thousand of which were Women, or girles to diners Gods rather, the Daughters of the chiefe men of the Kingdome, and Religious, professed of the Sects with stone arches, and in stead of battlements, arounded with Latten grates, and at every fixe so fathoms, Iron workes on pillers of Braile failtened one to another, whereon by chaynes hung innumerable bells, making a continual litrange noyfe, with the motion of the ayre. At the great Gate of this second wall, in terrible shapes, flood the two Porters of Hell (as The Porters of they call them) Bacharons and Queifau, with Iron Maces in their hands, terrible to looke on. Paffing under an Iron chayne, fattened to the brefts of these Diuels, wee came into a faire street long and wide, compassed with painted arches, on the top whereof were two rankes of Islosall that length, in which were about five thousand Images, week new not of what matter, being all gilded, with Myters on their heads of divers inventions. At the end of this fireet, was a great square Hill set with blacke and white shining stones, the whole square compassed with source rewes of Giants of mettall, each of fifteene spannes, with Halberds in their hands, and gilded 60 beards. At the end of all stood Quiay Huiaon, God of the Raine, fee vp against a batton or berder, feuencie spannes long, and his head to high, that it reached to the buttlements of the tower, (which were about twelve fathoms) by his mouth, eyes, notirils, and brefts, caffing our water, which the people below gathered as a great relique. This water came from the top of the tower

Liciter or God of Rayne.

* Encoftado à bunbord in.

by fectet pipes. Wee passed vinder his legges, which stood as a great portall, and came to a large house like a Church, with three Iles on marble pillars, and on the walls on both fides, many Idols great and small of divers figures, all gilded, set on their bases in good order. At the end of this house on a round of fifteene steps, stood an Altar made in fashion of a Throne, and thereon Golden status the Image of Nacapiran, like a goodly woman, with her hayre loofe, and her hands lifted to hea- of Nacapiran uen, all of gold fo burnished, that it dazeled the eyes. About that tribunali in the foure first steps, flood twelue Kings of China crowned in filuer. And beneath, were three rewes of gilded Idols on their knees, with their hands lifted up, many filuer Candle-sticks hanging about them. Going thence, wee came to another street of arches like the former; and from thence by two oto there of rich buildings, to a great hill, in which were eightie two Bells of metiall very great, hanging by chaynes from Iron beames sustained with Iron Columnes. Thence wee went to aftrong Gate twixt foure towers, in which stood a Chifie with thirtie Halberdiers, and two Notaries, which tooke the names of all passengers, to whom wee gaue thirtie Reis

The fourth remarkable and famous building, was in the River of Batampina, in an Iland about The fourth a league in compasse, walled round with stone eight and thirtie spannes aboue water, within fil- glorious Ediled with earth, round encompafied with two rewes of Latten grates; the vttermost live spannes hee. high for people to leane on, the inner of nine, holding filter Lions with balls, the Armes of the China Kings. Within thefe grates in good order, were placed one hundred and thirteene Chap- 112. Chappels, 20 pels, in manner of round Bulwarkes; in each of them, was an alabafter Sepulcher feated on the and their conheads of two filter Serpents, with faces of women and three hornes on their heads. In every of tents them were thirteen Candlesticks of filter, with seuen lights in each burning. In the midst of a spa- sickes. cious place compassed with three rewes of grates, with two rankes of Idols, stood a high Tower with fine fleeples of divers paintings, and on their tops, Lions of filter; in which tower the Chinese favd, were the bones of the one hundred and thirteene Kings, worshipped by them for great reliques. These bones say they, every New Moone, feast one with another, whereupon the yulgar at those times, offer to them infinite store of Fowles of all fores, Rice, Kine, Hogges, Sugar, Honey, and other prouision ; which the Priests receive, and deceive them in recompence, with as it were lubilees, of plenarie Indulgences, and remission of sinnes as they Indulgences.

In this Tower wee faw a rich house all lined with silver plates, from the top to the bottome, Rich silver in which flood those one hundred and thirteene Kings statues, and the bones of each King in his Temple. owne ftatue; and they fay, that by night thele Kings communicate and paffe the time together, which none may fee but the Cabizondos, (a higher degree of Bonzos, as that of Cardinals with ys) which fables they beleeve for very certaintie. In this great c reuit wee told three hundred and fortie Bells of mettall and cast Iron, in seuenteene places, by twentie in a place, which all found on those New-moone feasts abouesayd. Neere to that tower, in a rich Chappell built on feuen and thirtie columnes of stone, stood the Image of Amida made of filuer, with the hayres Lady Amidailof gold, on a Throne or foureteene steps, all wrought with gold, the hands eleuated to Heaven : mage.

40 beneath her shoulders, hung (like lines of beades) many little Idols, as big as the middle finger: and the fecret parts were coursed with two great Oyffer-pearles, gamiffed with gold : They being demanded the meaning of this mysterie, sayd, that after the generall Floud in which all mankinde was drowned, God tent Amida from the Heauen of the Moone, (being great Chambri, neco Na. berlaine to Nacapitan his wife) to reftore the destroyed world; who setting heere fecte in Ca- capitan, as in lemplay before mentioned, being lately freed of the waters, shee turned it into gold, and there to lune; a rile standing on her feet with her face in heaven, a great quantitie of Creatures iffued from downe perhaps duiher arme; downe her right hand Males, and Females downe the left; having no other place in fed thou that has held a where to have been expensed by the body to be the second of the seco her bodie whence to bring them foorth, as other women of the world, whom for finne God uenant, Gong. hath subjected to filthinesse of corruption, to shew how filthy sinus is. After shee had finished 15, as that 10 this trauell or child-birth of 33333. Creatures, (as they number) one third part Males, and two which follow-parts Females; thee remayned to weake, having no bodie to provide her any thing, that with eth from Gon. dizzinesse shee fell to the ground dead without recouerie. Whereat the Moone in condoling her 3.16. death covered her felfe with forrow, which are those shadowes wee see from the earth; which fay they, shall remaine so many yeers as the produced Creatures (33333) & then the Moone shall put off her maske of forrow, and the night shall bee after as cleere as the day. Such and other like mad stuffe did they tell, which might make one wonder, and more to weepe, that the Deuill should gull them with such manifest lyes, being otherwise so understanding a people.

From this Hill we went to another Temple of Nuns, sumptuous and rich, in which they told A Nunnerie, vs was the Mother of this King, Nhay Camifama, but would not let vs enter being strangers. 60 Thence by a street of Arches, wee went to a hauen called Hicharioo Topilen, where was store of strange shipping of divers Kingdomes, which come continually to that Temple for a plenarie Inbilee, which the King with many priniledges hath granted them, and dyet on free cost. To speake of other Temples and matters of China, which wee faw in our two moneths libertie

Th:

How the poore children are

The King of China most resideth at Pequin, for so he sweareth at his Coronation. There are Inc. and of the state of the st is, The Schoole of the poore, in which Orphans which know no father are taught to write and 15, for scroone of the power, in with the Capitalings. Of thefe Houles they have about two has reade, and mechanike trades to earne their limings. dred, and as many more of poore Nurfes which give facke to Children, expoted or caft footh by their Parents (which are punished if they beeknowne) and after they are weaned, are committeel tratents (which are pulmies a vary) teel to the former houses. And if any by naturall defect are viable to learne a Trade, they apply him to that whereto he is able, as those that are blind to Mills, two to grind, and one to lift; and to in other cafes. Bendes, no Tradef-man may keepe shop without licence, which is not granted to in other cares. Denkes, no them former of their poorer. The Miller is to give meate and drinke to g each of those blinde persons, and clothes, and fifteene shillings yeerely, which when he dieth Frace, each or those suitase persons, and coolers, and arrived meanings, years, which were interested in Speed, Amietes, he may give for his foule, that no poore should perish, according to the fourth precept of * Ani. Prouif ns for da. For Greeples which cannot goe, they place them with makers of Frailes, Baskets, and o ther handliworkes : and those which cannot vse their hands have great Hampers given them, and Baskets to ferue for Porters to carrie what men buy, from the Markets to their houles; fuch as have neither hands nor feet to vie, are placed in great houses like Monasteries, where are maplaced to ny mercenary women which pray for the dead, halfe of the Offerings remayning to them, the

they are fullayned with the Fines imposed on Regraters and scolding women. For common women which are difeafed they have other houses, where they are cured and provided for, at the 20 costs of other common women, each paying a monethly fee. The Dowries or loynters of connicted Adultereiles are bestowed on the Hospitals of semale Orphans, that honestie may gains by dishonesties losse. Other honest poore men are maintay ned in other streets, at the charges of Soll:citors and Lawyers which maintayne vniuft Suits, and of partiall bribed Judges. Prouision a-For the provision of the poore I have further heard read out of their Chronicles that Chanfeguind fireility, ran Punagor, Great Grandfather of the King now reigning, defiring to doe God fernice (beng other halfe to the Priests. If they be dumbe, they place them in a house like an Hospitall, where blinde after a fickneffe which he had ) ordayned that in every Citie there should be store-houts of Wheat and Rice, that if any dearth should happen, there might be a yeeres prouision, and the poore should not perish: and to this purpose he applyed the tenth part of the Kings Customes. They fay, that God recompensed this his charitie with reflitution of his fight, which continued fourteene yeeres after till his death. This is still observed, and the number of those Storehouses is said to be fourteene thousand. At Haruest the old is duided to the Inhabitants as they haue need, which after two moneths are to lay in as much new, and fixe in the hundred more, that the store be not diminished. But if the yeere proue barren, it is divided to them without gaine : and that which is given to the poore which have not to (atisfie, 15 paid out of the Kings Kents of that place, as the Kings Almes. And all the rest of the Royall revenues are divided nus how differ into three parts; one for maintenance of the Kings efface, and for the government of the King-The tefaiteral dome; the second for the defence of the Country, for Ports, Fleets, and the like; the third is put up in the Treasurie at Pequin, with which the King by ordinary power may not meddle, being deputed for defence of the Kingdome against the Tanars, and other warres with confi-40 a pleasure dining Kings; this part of the treasure is called Chidampur, that is, The wall of the Kingdome. For they lay, that if such occasions happen, the King shall not lay tribute whiles that sasteth, nor shall the people be vexed, as in other Countries, where such providence is not vsed.

King cannot

Admiranda Pe

quini. " Minapau the Kings Palace: the number of Eunuches perhaps is mistaken by the Printer: 20000, and in the Palace

Were 16000 Eunuchs.

Indeed I feare to particularize all that we law in this Citie, left the Reader should doubt or Note com-pare China with mutter at the raritie, measuring things by that little they have seen, and indging by their owne curtalled concerts the truth of those things which mine eyes have feene. But high capacities, haughtie spirits, and large understandings, that measure not other states by the miteries and meannesse before their eyes, will perhaps be willing to heare things so rare; which I hold the more pardonable in others to doubt of, foralmuch as I verily confesse, that I my selfe which beheld them with mine eyes, am often amazed, when with my felfe I recount the greatneffes of 50 Pequim, in the admirable estate of that Gentile King, in the Iplendor of the Chaens of Iustice, and of the Anchaeys of government, in the terror and dread caused in all by their Officers, in the fumptuousnesse of the Houses and Temples of their Idols; and of all the rest therein. For only in the Citie Minapan which stands within the wall of the Kings Palace are 100000. Eunuchs, and 30000. women, 12000. men for his Guard, and 12. Tutans, which is the greatest dignitie, 18000-one ci. and commonly called the Sun-beames, as the King is called, the Sonne of the Sunne, whole perphet life. Yet and commonly the phet life. Yet and the phet life is a phet life. Yet and the fon they represent. Beneath these 12. are 40. Cheen as Vice-royer, besides the inferiour dignities, as Anchaeys, Aytaos, Ponchaeys, Lauseaus, and Chambins, all which in the Court are above when he writ, 500. and none of them haue leffe then 200. men depending, the greater part of which are Mogores, Persians, Coraçons, Moens, Calaminhans, Tartars, Cauchins, and some Bramaus; the 60 Naturals being little effeemed as effeminate, and wanting valour, how wittie Lewer in Atts a.d husbandrie. The women are white, chafte, more given to labour then the men.

The earth is fertile, which their ingratitude rather aftribes to the merit of their King, then the providence of God, Some Priests also barrer with them woon Bills of exchange to bee reCHAP.2. S.6. China Sects. Goatswooll-quarrell. Peacebreake-paritie. Caluo. 277

payed an hundred for one in Heauen, which Letters they eall Cuchimiocos. Other Priests are of Sects in Cities another Sect, called Nauftolins, which denye the Scules immortalitie, and therefore teach to Carbinings. take their pleasures in this life. Another Sect is called Trimecan, which holds, that a manihall Naussolins. folong lie in his Graue as hee hath lued aboue ground; after which, by the prayers of their Transchave Prieffs, the Soule shall returne into another creature seuen dayes, and then seeke for the old bodie left in the Graue, to carrie it to the Heauen of the Moone, where it shall sleepe many yeeres, till it be converted into a Starre, and there remayne fixed for ever. Another beautly Sect, called Gizem, holds that Bealts onely shall ensoy Heauen, in recompence of their penance and tra- Gizers uels here sustayned, and not Men which follow their lusts, except they leave to Priests at their to death, to pray for them.

Their remove to Quanty, quarrels, miseries; Tartarian huge Armie, and losse at the siege of Pequim, reported. Quanty taken, and Nixianco: MENDEZ his exploit. Their entertaynment by the Tartar King, and going to Cauchinchina with his Embassadours, with many Tartarian obseruations.

Fter we had two moneths and a halfe gone vp and downe in the Citie of Pequim, on Saturday the thirteenth of Ianuary, 1544, they carried vs to Quanfy to fulfill our Quanfy Sentence, where we were brought before the Chaem, who made vs of his Guard of eightie Halbarders allowed him by the King, which made vs thankfull to God, being ilrife betwixt two of our companie, which in reasoning about the Families of the Madurerras. rell. and the Fonfecas, whether were more eminent, grew to heate, thence to brauing words, and after to blowes and wounds, not onely of those two, but by part takings of fine of the reft. The Chaem and Anchaeys fentenced vs to thirtie blowes a man, which made vs more bloudy then our wounds. Then they carried vs to a prison, where we lay in Irons fixe and forty dayes. After which we were brought to the Barre, and received other thirty stripes, and removed to ano- Paritie a ther priton, where we stayed two moneths, then removed to certaine Iron-works five moneths. Peace-breaker. much pinched in backe and belly, and being difeafed with a contagious ficknesse, they fent vs forth to begge, which wee did foure moneths. In this miferie wee fware to each other to line Christianly and louingly, and that each moneth one should bee chiefe, whom all the rest should obey, whereby wer after lived in peace.

a place of little labour and more maintenance and liberty. But after a moneth, the Devill fowed

Christonan Borralbo the chiefe for that moneth, distributed vs by couples to take their turnes weekely to begge, two to fetch water, and make ready what we got, two to get wood. I and Gaff ar de Meyrelez went one morning to the Wood, and Meyrelez being Muficall played on his Viall, and fung; a thing pleasing to that people, which spend much time in pastime and banquets, and profitable to vs in procuring almes. As wee went, wee met with a Funerall pompe Mutick for the with Mulicke in the midft: one of which Mulicians knowing Meyrelez, prayed him to play and comferred the fing as loud as he could, that this dead man wee now carrie to buriall may heare thee, to comfort him in leaving his wife and children, whereto he was much affected. Hee modeftly refufing, the other angerly answered, and others intreated, and almost forced him to goe with them to the burning Buriall after their cultome. I thus left alone, went and got my bundle of wood on my backe. In the way homeward I met in the way an old man, clothed in blacke Damaske furred with white Lambe, who having shewed mee a filter Crosse, told me, that he was a poore To Portugall, Vafco Caluo, which fenen and twentie yeeres fince was captized with Tome Pirez, Vallo Caluo.

aduentures, and I ours to him: and at his request I fetched the rest of our companie to his poore house. Hee brought vs to another roome, where his wife was, with her two little formes, and two small daughters. Shee entertayned vs louingly, and shewed vs her Closet with an Altar, and a Crosse thereon, secretly kept; shee also and her children faid a Portugall Prayer, with the whom Lope Source had fent Emballadour to China, which had a milerable fuccelle by reason of a Stathe former Portugall Captaine. Hee brought me to his house, and told me the storie of his and his fellowes note $-3.

Pater nofter, Creed, and Ane Maria, to our great ioy. Eight moneths being spent in this our miserie and beggerie, on Wednesday the thirteenth Rewes of the of July, a great tumult and crie arole amongst the people, by reason or newes of the Tartarian Tastarian Ar-60 King his comming to Pequin, with a greater power then ever any King had in the World; that there were in his Armer 1800000, men. 600000 of which were Horte, men, which had not be the form. there were in his Armie 1800000. men, 600000, of which were Horle-men, which had comme by Land from Las game, and Famfin, and Mecuy, with 80000. Badas ' to carrie their proution. Longare. Twelue bundred thouland Foot-men had comne in fixteene thouland Laulees and langas downe "Ringo en is the Batampina. And because the King of China durift not relift fo great a power, hee waspen.

D' anfi.

to Nangum. Moreouer it was faid that in the Pmall of Manicataron, a league and halte off was Nantieer com- lodged one Nanticor, a Tartarian Captaine with 70000. Herle, who within few houres would bee at that Citie. This newes much terrified vs, and the next morning the Enemie appeared with Colours quartered greene and white in feuen battels, neere to a Pagode called Petilan Na. meioo, a little from the walls. From that Pagode they came with found of Instruments of warre in one große Sq jadron like a halfe Moone and encircled the Citie: and being within Caliner shot, they made a shout as if Heauen and Earth would have gone together, and scaling it with two thousand Ladders which they brought with them, affaulted it in all places they could very resolutely, and at last brake into the gates by certaine deutices of great fron Presses, and the Chaese with many Mandames, putting the Citie to the fword, lacke, and fire; killing 10 as was thought, 60000. perfens, and after stay of feuen dayes there, went for Pegum, where their King was. Two dayes after they were gone, they came to a Castle called Nixiamcoo, which he besseed

Nauticor called the feuentie Captaines to confultation, and agreed to male ready fine hundred Nixiamco a Clana Calile affaulted.

Ladders that night for the next dayes affault. The next day their Paling windoens ( fo they call their Martiall Instruments) founded, and fourteene battalions marched, and gaue affault with great cries, scaling the walls, and fighting furiously; the belieged also defending themselves couragionsly, and in two houres killing three thousand Tartars, the rest sleeing; many wounded with The Tartars

Mendez his

The Caftle

Lautimey.

poiloned Arrowes, whereof they died. A Countell of Warre was hereupon called, one of them being the man which had vs in cultodie; who returning with two Captains of his acquaintance an to supper, in their discourse of that misfortune they calt eyes upon vs there prisoners, and questioned of what Nation we were, and whether our Kings vsed to warre, and whether any ot vs knew any Stratagem to get that Castle, promiting our freedome if we could effect it. To wha we answered accordingly, and George Mendez undertooke the deligne against our likings fearing his difabilitie , and our turther danger. One of these Captaines told the Mitagner (Namicor) hereof, who lent to Tileymay the Captaine which had charge of vs, to bring vs to him. He gate vs a grave welcome (being now in counfell with the fenenty Coronels, two houres after midnight, and first made vs to eate, having taken off part of our Irons; and then made large promifes to George Mendez if he could doe as he had said; to which he answered, that hee could anfwere nothing till he law it, and then he would tell him the way to take it. Wee were remo- 10 ued to a Tent adioyning, and there graided, full of feare left this undertaking would coft our lives with a People to cruell. The next day George Mendez and two others of our companie were carried with a band of Horte-men about the Caffle to view it, and then brought to the Mitaquer, to whom he professeth great facilitie of effecting his purpose: which so contented him, that he sware by the Rice he cate to present vs to the King, and to fulfill his promises, prefently taking off the remainder of our Irons. Hee made vs to eate neere him, and did vs other honour. After which, George Mendez as Camp-maiter appointed store of Chists, Boxes, and matterials to fill up the ditch, and three hundred large scaling Ladders able to hold each three Souldiers, against the next morning to be made ready two hours before day. All this was happily effected, the ditch filled, and Mendez wi h two others of vs first scaled the wall, and fet up the 40 Tartars Colours; fine thousand Tartars gallantly seconding, so that with a hoteskirmish the befieged were all slaine, and the Castle taken; the gates opened to the Muaquer, who with great ceremonies tooke thereof possession. He caused George Menden and the rest of vs to eate neere him, razed the Caitle, and taking Mendez with him on horse-backe returned to his Tent, giuing him 1000. Taeis, and each of vs 100, the cause of much emulation in some of our conpanie, who by his meanes had obtayned libertie. Thence the Mitaguer marched by places deiolate, to a good Towne by the Rivers fide, called Lautimes, the people whereof were fled; the Towne these barbarians fired, as they did other places where they came. The next day they burned Bunxay, a fowne held of aboue fixe leagues circuit, most Wheat; and came to the Hill Pommitay, and the next day to the River Palemzitau, within two leagues of the Kings Campe. 50 Guijar Paran sonne of the King of Persia, at the Castle of Lamir, by the Kings appointment flayed for him; to whom Mitaguer on his knees delivered his Scimitar, having first kissed the ground flue times. Hee welcomed him with honourable termes, and after that, slepping backe two or three paces with a new ceremonie, and with a voyce high and feuere (as he which reprefented the Kings person) laid, He, whose rich border of his garment my mouth continually killeth. whose great power ruleth oner others by Land, and on the Iles of the Sea, sends to tell thee by mee his Slave, that thy honour able comming is as welcome to his presence as the sweet Summer morning, wherein the bathing of cold water most delights the flesh; and that without delay thou hastenest to heare bis voice, mounted on this Horseruchly furnished out of his Treasurie with mee, that thou mayest be equal in bonour with the principal of his Court, and they which fee thee thus bonoured may know that thou are 60

a strong member, whose valour deserves this reward. Thus with great state and pompe they went to the King : and fifteene dayes after he brought vs to the Tents of the King well horied, then in the sumptuous House of Nacapiran. When he came to the Trenches, bee descended from his Litter (wee from our Horses) and asked leave of Nautaran to enter, which granted, he againe went to his Litter, and we followed on foot: at Stare of the the next passage he descended, and went in leaving vs to expect him. An houre after he returned with foure faire Boyes gallantly arayed in greene and white, with their golden Xorcas on Campe and their feet, to whom all the people rose vp, and drawing their Scimitars laid them on the ground, Tent Reyallfaying three times, A bundred thousand yeeres line the Lord of our heads. Wee lying proftrate with our faces on the ground, one of the Boyes faid to vs with a loude voice, Retoyce yee men of the Worlds end, for the houre of your defire is comne, in which the libertie which the Mitaquer promifed you in the Cafile of Nixianco, shall bee granted you. Lift up your heads from the ground, and your hands to Heanen, giving thankes to the Lord which made the Stars. Wee autwered as wee were In taught, Let it bee our fortune that his foot tread on our beads: the Boy answered, The Lord grant

Their foure Boyes with Mitaguer guided vs on thorow a Gallerie standing on fixe and twentie Pillars of Braffe, from which wee entred a great Hall of timber, in which stood Mogores, Persians, Berdios, Calaminhans, and Bramas : thence wee came to another Hall, called Tigibipas. where were great flore of armed men in five files quite thorow the Hall, their Swords garnished with Gold. There Mitaguer performed some ceremonies, swearing on the Maces which the foure Boyes carried, kneeling and kiffing the ground three times. Then we passed another gate, and came to a square great Hall like the Clouter of a Monasterie, in which stood source files of brazen Images like Sauages with Maces and Crownes, feu in and twentie spannes high, and fixe 30 broad, which the Tartars faid were the three hundred and fixty Gods which made the dayes of the yeere; which the Tartar King had taken out of a Temple, called Angicamor, in the Citie Xipatom, in a Chappell of the Sepulchres of the Kings of China, to carrie home in triumph. In Xipatom. this Hill was a Garden of firange herbs and flowers, and therein a Tent vpon twelve rurned posts of Camphire wood, in which was a Throne all garnished with much curiositie of Gold Curious and Silver workes, representing very lively the Sunne, Moone, Starres, Cloudes. In the midit of the Throne flood a filuer great Statue, called Abicannilancor, that is, God of the bealth of Kings. (taken alfo from Angicamoy) about which flood foure and thirt.e Idolsas big as children about fixe yeeres old, in two rankes let on their knees and hands lifted up as in veneration. At the entrie of the Tent were foure Boyes gorgeoutly arayed which went about it with Cenfers, and 20 at the found of a Bell proftrated themselves on the ground, and centing, faid, Let our crie come unto thee as a sweet sauour that thou mayest beare us. That Tent was guarded by lixtie Halbarders, standing a pretie distance from it round about. Beyond that Hill wee entred another place. where were foure rich roomes, in which were many great persons.

Thence we followed Mitaguer and the Boyes vnto a great Hall like a Church , where flood fixe Porters with Maces, which with new ceremonie let vs in. Here was the King of Tartars, The Tartar accompanied with his Grandes, among which were the Kings of Pafua, Mecuy, Capimper, Rasa His State. Benam, and the Anchesacotay, and other Kings to the number of fourteene, all in rich attire, placed at the foot of the Throne, two or three paces diffant; and a little further off flood two and thirtie faire women, playing on divers Inffruments. The King face on the Throne, encom-

40 passed with twelue Boyes on their knees, with small Scepters of gold on their shoulders; amongst which was a faire Damsell which ever and anone fanned the King. This was the fifter of Mitaquer, who by her meanes enjoyed that grace and respect in the Armie. The King was His person. about forcie yeeres old, tall, not flefhy, well fet; his beard fhort with Mostachos like the Turks, his eyes somewhat small, his countenance seuere; clothed in a shining reddish vesture set with Pearles; on his feet certaine Shppers greene wrought with Gold and Pearles; and on his head a kind of Sallet with a border of Diamonds and Rubies. Before we came at him by ten or twelve paces, we made our courtelle, three times killing the ground, with other ceremonies which wee were taught. The King commanded the Mutike to cease, and bid Mitaquer aske this Nation of the end of the world, it they have a King, and how their Land is called, and how farre it is from 30 China. One of vs answered for the rest, that our Land was called Portugall, our King was great and mightie, and from thence to Pequin was about three yeeres Voyage; whereat he much maruelled, as not thinking the World to great; and tiriking on his thigh faid about with eyes to Heauen, O (reator of all things, which of us poore Ps/mires on the Earth may be able to comprehend the maruels of thy greatnesse? And tigning with his hand he made vs come never to the tieps of the Throne where the fourteene Kings were placed, and demanded vs againe, how faire? and when we faid, three yeeres; he asked, why we camerather by Sea then by Land? wee answered, that the discritic of States and Kings in the way hindred. He asked, What doe you feeke with to farre trauels and great troubles ? wee gaue as good reason as we could; whereat he shaking his head, faid to the King of Benan, an old man, that it feemed that our Countrey had much 6c Couerouinesse, and little Instice; so, said the other, it appeares; for those men which flie on the top of all waters, by wit and industrie to get that which God hath not given them, either pouerty forceth to forlake their Countrey, or vanitie and blindnesse caused by couetousnesse, makes them forget Ged and their Fathers. After this, the women began againe to play, and the King retired himfelie into a house alone with his women which played, and the Damiell that fanned. One of the twelue Scepter-boyes told Mitaquer from his Sifter, that the King commanded hee should not goe away, which he tooke for a great grace, and wee returned to Tarters loff: Confultation.

280 Tartars for sake Pequin, Incredible losse, Eastern Princes Ambassages. LIB, II

Si ge of Pe-

anim breakes

The Kingsre-

Fortie and three diyes after we came to the Campe Royall (in which space were many fights betwixt the befiegers and befieged, two affaults by icaling with the Tartars loffe) the Tartarian called a Councell, where were affembled feuen and twentie Kings, and many great men and Captaines, which agreed that feeing Winter was now comming, and the waters of both Rivers had rifen and filled the Trenches, and many were ficke (foure or fine thousand dying daily) that it was best to ray se the siege. The King therefore embarked the Foot-men with the munitions. fired the Tents, and went away with 300000. Horse by land, and 20000. Badas, 450000. men 10 being found by accounts, to have dyed in this expedition, moll of sicknesse, 300000. Horses and 60000. Badas, for want of prouisions the two last moneths and a halfe of this Siege (which endured fixe moneths and a halte.) Besides, 300000, had runne to the Chinois, wonne by their great pay. Hee lodged the first night of his departure at a River called Quaytragum; the next day he came to Guijampee, which hee found wholly fortaken ; thence to Liampen, and after leuenteene dayes (eight leagues a day) he came to Guanxitms, and forced it, committing therein cruell flaughters, to prouide his Armie of necessaries by the spoyle thereof. The next day hee came to Caixilo, which he medled not with being great and ftrong, having therein 50000, men, of which 10000. were Mogores, Cauchins, and Champaas, better Souldiers then the Chinois, Thence hee passed to the walls of Singrachiron, and the next day to Xipator, and then sent away 20 most of his Souldiers, spending seuen dayes in the pay, and execution of Iustice on Prisoners, Thence discontent, hee went to Langame by water, (with onely one hundred and twentie Laulees, in which were some ten or twelue thousand men) where sixe dayes after hee arrived in the night without any pompe. There he stayed fixe and twentie dayes, till all his companie were come both of horse and foot.

after which hee went to a greater Citie called Tunnican, where he was personally visited by confining Princes and Ambassadours from remoter Kings, Xatamas of Persia, Stammon Emperour

Langame.

Caran.

A Marriage treated on heand Tarter.

They depart

Uzaneuee.

Puxanznim. Guns of wood.

of the Guess, which within the Countrey confine with Brama of Tangu, the Calaminhan Lord of the brute force of Elephants, the Sornau of Odiaa, (intituled King of Siam) whose Segniorie comprehendeth feuen hundred leagues of coaft, from Tanançarim to Champaa, containing feuen- 30 teen Kingdomes; the King of the Mogores whose Kingdome lyes within land, betwixe Coracas tered, & fince neere Perfia, and the Kingdome of Dely and Chitor, and an Emperour called Caran, whose Segnithe time Lord orie confineth within the Mountaines of Goncalidan, with a Nation which the Naturals call Moscobr, of whom wee saw some in this Citie, ruddie, of bigge stature, with shooes, and furred cloathes, having some latine words, but seeming rather for ought wee observed Idolares then Christians, and much giuen to vnnaturall lust. To the Ambasadour of that Prince Caran, better entertainment was given then to all the reft. Hee brought with him one hundred and twentie men of his guard, with Arrowes and gilded quiuers, all cloathed in Shamois skinnes murrie and greene; and twelue Porters on horsebacke with Maces of Silver, leading twelue Horses in their right hands with rich embroidered Furnitures. After whom followed twelue men of high 40 and Giant-like sture, cloathed Sauage-like in Tygers skinnes, leading great Grey-hounds in chaynes and collers of Siluer, muzled. Then came twelue Boyes, faire and well proportioned of equall stature in gallant array, & next them Leixigan the Ambassador himselfe, in a Charlot (they call it a Pirange) with three wheeles on a fide, garnished with Siluer and a Chayre of the same, attended with fortie Foot-men in marrie and greene, yeelding a goodly fight, all things manifesting the greatnesse of his Lord. Wee were one day in his lodging with Mitaquer, who was fent to visit him, where amongst other strange things, we saw five roomes hanged with Tapeftrie of Frogges very rich, like that vied amongst vs, as if they had come from one place; the Canopies, Siluer-tables, Furniture and State, all rich. This Ambassadour came not only to welcome home the Tartar, but to treateal so of a Marriage for his Lord, with one of the Tartars Si- 50 treated on be-twistibe Caren flers, named Meica Vidin, a woman of thirtie yeeres, very charitable to the poore, whom wee haue often feene in their Festivall dayes.

Mitaquer at our request mentioned vs to the King, who sayd, he would fend vs with his Ambaffador shortly to Canchenchina; and caused vs to be brought againe to his presence with great ceremonie of State and Maiestie as before at Pequins, where hee questioned vs, if we would serve him, which we excused saying, we had Wines and Children in our owne Countrey; and asking George Mendez, hee accepted. Eight of vs were commended to the Ambassadour which was to goe to Vzanguee in Cauchenchma, & we went in the same Barke, We set forth from Taymican the ninth of May, and came to a Schoole or Vniuerfitie called Guatipamor, where wee lodged in a Temple (or Monasterie) called Naypatim. Next morning wee followed our voyage downe the 60 River, and two houres within night came to Puxanguim, a finall Citie, well torofied with Towers and Bulwarks after our fashion, with store of Artillerie of wood, like the Pumps of ships, the stocks where the Barrels were fastned being plated with Iron, and carrying a builet as bigge as a Falcon: which invention they fay, they received of a people called Alimanis, of a land named Mulcoo, which by a great and deepelake of falt water, came thither with nine Barkes of oates, in companie of a Lady, which was tayd to bee exiled out of her Countrey by a King of Denmarke. The next day wee came to Linxan, and fine dayes after we continuing our course Linzan. downe the River, came to Singuafatur, a huge Temple, more then a league in compafie; in which Singuafatur space were built one hundred and fixtie foure large and long houses full of Skuls, the other bones Templaand lying without in great piles. On a Hill compassed with nine grates of Iron, was standing against superstinions. a ftrong ftone wall, a monstrous statue of Iron thirtie braces high, and fix broad, in both his hands holding a bullet fixe and thirtie spannes about, of cast Iron also. (This to wound the Serpent which came to robbe them) himfelfe being hee which should one day restore the fielh to their To owne bones, if they gaue Almes, otherwise to the most vnable and putrid : his name Pachinaran Dubeculem Pinanfaque, who 74000. yeeres agoe, was borne of a Tortoyfe named Migania. and of a Sea-borfe one hundred and thirtie braces long, named Tibremoucan. The Ambasladours told vs. that of his Confraternities, there arose to him of annual rents about 200000. Taeis, and as much more of the Sepulchers of the Nobles, which were by themselues; that there belonged to him twelue thousand Priests preying on him, and praying for the dead, who might not without their Superiours licence depart out of that Circuit. These Priests once a yeare may defile Monkes and themselves in fornication within that Circuit; without, as oft as they will, without sinne, the Nous, ch. ste Chifangues permitting egreffe. There are many women also enclosed, who by their Libangus or name. Prioreffes leaue, permit themselues to those Priests.

CH AP. 2. S. 6. Tartars Pope, Monks, Nuns, Refurrettion, Idols, Huge Lake 281

The fecond day after, wee came to a great Citie on the River fide called Quanginan, where the Oxentinan. Ambaffadours flayed three dayes for prouision, and by reason of a Feast at the entrance of Talapicor of Lechune, who is there as a Pope : who had priviledged thefe inhabitants to be all Privite, A Genile Pope authorised to Sacrifice and give Bills of exchange for money to bee repayed in Heaven. He gave the Ambassadour grace to legitimate in his Countrey for money, and to give tycles of Honour; which hee recompenced, giving to the Priests all that he could make, and two thousand Taxis the King had given vs, for whith he gave vs fifteene in the hundred. Foure dayes wee paffed Lechune. downer he River to Lechuse the mother Citie of that falle Religion of Gentilitie, as Rome is with vs, wherein is a sumptuous Temple, in which are seuen and twentie Tartar Emperours buried in rich Chappels lyned with Silver, having abundance of filver Idols. On the North-fide a little Idols. 30 from the Temple, was a notable strong great wall, within which were built two hundred and eightie Monasteries, of men and women; in which were fayd to bee two and fortie thousand re- Monasteries.

ligious professed, besides feruitours. In those Houses are many Brazen pillars with Idols of their Saints thereon, to much more gilded as efteemed. In one of them was the Kings Sifter a widow, which had beene wife of Raia Benan, Prince of Pafus, after whose death shee entred Religion with fixe thousand women. The Ambassadour vitited her, and kissed her foot as a Saint. Departing thence downe the River five dayes, wee came to a great Citie called Rendacalem. Rendacalem. in the confines of Tartaria. And thence forwards began the Segniorie of Xmaleygram, thorow Ximalegrams which wee trauelled foure dayes, and then came to a Towne called Voulem, where the Ambaifadours were well received, and provided of Pylots for those Rivers; which wee descended feuen dayes without feeing any thing of note, and then came to aftraight called Quatanque, into which the Pylots entred to cleape a Pyrat, which had spoyled the most part of the Countrey. Singapunor Thus wee came to the Lake Sing apamor, called by the Naturals Cunebetee, and fayd to contayne Lake of Cunefixe and thirtie leagues in Circuit. Foure Rivers runne thence, Ventram Eastward thorow Siam, bette, entring the Sea by the barre of Chiatabu, in twentie fixe degrees; Jangumaa Southwards by the Ventices. Lass and Guess, and part of Dabambu enter the Sea at Martanan, in the Kingdome of Pegu; bishura. Pumfilen runnes thorow all Capimper and Sacotay, and all the Empire of Monginoco, with part Pumfiles. of Meleytay and Sonady, and to to the barre of Cofmin, neere Arracan. Of the fourth River the Ambaffadours could give vs no inftructions, but fome thought it to bee Ganges ... In fourn dayes more, wee came to a place called Calespute, where they threw itones at vs, and would not fuffer so vs to land. Thence we fayled by another larger River nine dayes, and came to Tarem a good cale pute.

Towne, subject to the Cauchim, where we were well received: and in seven dayes more came to Taren. a good Cirie called Xolor. There were Silver mines, in which one thousand men were at worke, Xolor.

whence they fayd was yeerely taken fixe thousand Pikes, which makes eight thousand Quintals of ours. Thence wee went other fine dayes by that great River, the Countrey being well peopled, and came to the Citie Manaquileu at the foot of the Hills Combay in the borders of China, combay, and Cauchim; thence to Tinamquaxy. Thence they fent their foure Barkes to Huzamquee, the Huzamquee. chiefe Citie of Cauchim, and went by Land to Fanaugrem, where the King was. Their entertainment there and journey thence to Iapan, I omit, with their following long Pilgrimage in that Easterneworld; wherein I am afraid to mander in places and affaires so uncouth. Wearie al-60 readie of things fostrange, and therefore uncertaine, I will passe to other Authors; and first to the Philippina's and Spanish Commerce of China. The Voyage of Legalpi, is taken out of a Latine Manufeript, the rest out of Mendoza, bis Spanish discourse of China, and certaine Frears which went this ther; the two Letters except, borrowed of an Italian Author.

Bb ;

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

Spanish plantation of the Philippinas, and what entercourse bath thence bapned between them and the Chinois.

First discouerie of the Philippinas : written by Frier IV AN GONZALES DE MENDOSA.

ftraights.

Agalianes, was the first that discouered these Ilands, having passed the straight (which vnto this day beareth the tytle of his name) and came vnto the lland of Zubu, whereas they did Baptife certaine of the Inhabitants, and afterwards in a banquet, the same llanders did kill him, and other fortie of his companions, which was the occasion that Sebastian de Guetaria, a natural Biskin borne, forto escape with his life, did put himselfe in a ship that remay ned of the voyage (which afterwards was named the Vistorie) and in her, and with a few people that helped him, with the Fausur of God hee came vnto Simil, having compaffed the whole world, from the O- 10 rient vnto the Ponent, a thing which caused vnto all men great admiration, but in particular vnto the Emperour Charles the fift of famous memorie, who after he had given many gifts and fauours vinto the fayd Sebassian de Gnetaria, he gaue order that a new Armie should bee made readie, and to returne againe in demand of the layd Hands, and to discouer that new world.

The fecond Villa Lobos.

So when all things were in a readinesse, for to depart on their Voyage (the which was done with great breuitie) they orday ned for Generall of all that fleete, one Villa Lobos, commanding him to goe by the Nuona Espania, The Villa Lobes, arrived at the Hands or Malucas, and at those of Terrenate, and at other Hands joyning vnto them, the which Hands were layd to gage by the aforefayd Emperour vnto the Crowne of Portugall. In these Hands they had great warres by meanes of the Portugals, and seeing themselves with little helpe and small resistance, forto 30 goe forwards with their conquest, they left it off, and went to the most part of them with the aforesayd Portugals, vnto the India of Portugall, from whence afterwards, they sent themas prisoners vnto the sayd King of Portugall, as oftenders, that had entred his Hands withouthis licence : who did not onely leave to doe them any harme, but did intreate them very well, and tent them vnto their owne Countrey of Spaine, and gaue them all things necessarie for their journey, and that in abundance. Then certaine yeeres after, Don Philip King of Spaine, being very willing that the discourring should goe forwards, which the Emperour his father had so earnestly procured, sent and commanded Don Luys de Velasco, who was his Vice-roy of the Nuona Espania, that hee would ordayne an armie, and people for to returne and discouer the sayd llands, and to send in the sayd to fleete for Gouernour, of all that should bee discourred. Miguel Lopez de Legaspi, who did accompilsh all that his Maiestie had commanded, and made the discouerie thereof as followeth,

When the Spaniards came vnto them, they were without Lord or head, or any other to whom they should shew dutie, but hee which had most power and people, did most command : so that this (and that there were so many of equall power) was the occasion that civill warres continued, without any respect of nature, kindred, or any other dutie, but like vnto brute Brasts, killing, spoyling, and captilling one another, the which was a great helpe vnto the Spaniard, for to fubic Canhar Country with 10 great ease voto the King, and called them the Ilands Philippinas, in respect of his name. They did vie amongst them, to make Captines and Slaves, such as they did 50 take in value full warres, and for trifling matters, the which God did remedie, by the going thither of the Spaniaras: for you should have a man with fortie or fiftie friends in his companie, or feruants, that vpon a sodaine, would goe and set vpon a small Village of poore people and vnprouided, and take and binde them all, and carrie them away for Slaves, without any occasion or reason, and make them to serue them all the dayes of their life, or else sell them to other llands. And if it so chanced, that one did lend vnto another, a basket or two of Rice (the which might bee worth a Ryall of plate) with condition, to returne it agains within ten dayes: if the debtor did not pay it the same day, the next day following hee should pay it double, and afterward to double it enery day, so long as he did keepe it, which in conclusion, would grow to bee so great, that to pay the same, hee is forced to yeeld himselfe for Captine and Slaue.

But vnto all fuch as were captized in this order, or in fuch like, the King of Spaine hath commanded to give libertie, yet this just commandement is not in every point fulfilled and accomplished, because such as should execute the same, have interest therein. All these llands were Gemiles and Idolaters, but now there is among it them many thousands Baptiled, vnto whom the

CH AP.3. S. I. Ancient Rites of the Philippinas. Their batred to the Spaniards. 283

King hath shewed great mercie, in sending vnto them the remedie for their soules in so good time: for if the Spaniards had stayed any more yeares, they had beene all Moores at this day. for that there were come vnto the Hand of Burnes, tome of that Sect that did teach them, and lacked little, for to worship that false Prophet Mahomet, whose false, peruerse and corrupt memory, was with the Gotpel of Christ eatily rooted out.

In all thefe Hands they did worship the Sunne and Moone, and other second causes, figures of men and women, which are called in their Language Maganitos, at whole Fealts (which they doe make very fumptuous, with great Ceremonies and Superstition) they doe call Magaduras, But among it them all, they have in most veneration an Idoll, whom they called Batala, the to which reuerence they had for a Tradition, yet can they not fay what should be the occasion that he should deserve more then any of the rest, to be had in so great estimation. In certayne Hands not farre off, called the Illocos, they did worship the Deuill, and made vnto him many Sacrifices. The Deuil was in recompence of a great quantitie of Gold he had given vnto them, but now by the goodnesse of God, and the great diligence put and done by the Fathers of the Order of Saint Auftin (who were the first that passed into those parts, and lived worthily) and also by the Friers of Saint Francis, which went thither ten yeares after, all these Hands or the most part of them are baptized, and under the Enfigne of Ielus Christ : and the rest which doe remayne and are not, is more for lacke of Ministers and Preachers, then for any obstinacie of their parts. There is now gone thither certayne Fathers of the Order called Iesuits, who will be a helpe vnto them with their accustomed zeale and labour. And now goeth thither many other Religious men, very well learned and Apottolike, of the Order of Saint Dominicke, who will doe their endeuour to convert them vnto Christ, as it behooueth Christians to doe.

They of these Ilands were accustomed to celerate their Feasts aforesaid, and to make Sacrifices vnto their Idols, by the order of certayne women which were Witches, whom they doe Witches. cal in their Language Holgoi, that were had in as great estimation among it them, as be the Priests among it Christians. These did talke ordinarily with the Deuill, and many times in publike, and doe Deuillish Witch-crafts both in wordes and deedes : into whom it is to bee beleeved that that the Deuill did enter, for that straight-wayes they did answere vnto all things that were demanded of them, although for the most part they would tell a Lye, or else such words that 30 might be given divers interpretations of, and of divers vinderstandings. They did also vie to cast Lots, they were great Agorifmers, or observers of times : in so much that if they beginne any Iourney, and at the beginning they meete with a Cayman or Lizard, or any other fauage Worme, they know it to be a figne of euill fortune, whereupon they would ftraight-wayes leane off their Iourney, although it did import them very much, and returne vnto their Houses, saying, that the Heaven will not that they should goe forwarde on that Journey : but all these lyes and fallenesse haue beene taught them, and they perswaded to by the Deuill, are ouerthrowne and taken away by the Law of the Gospel (as aforesaid) and have now amongst them many Monafteries full of Religious men, of the Order of Saint Austine, Saint Francis, and of Iefuits. According vnto the common opinion, at this day there is concerted and baptized more then foure 40 hundred thousand soules, which is a great number ; yet in respect of the quantitie that are not as yet conuerted, there are but a few. It is left vindone (as aforefaid) for want of Ministers , for that, although his Majestie doth ordinarily send thither, without any respect of the great charge in doing the same, yet by reason that there are so many Iland, and every day they doe discover more and more, and being so farre off, they cannot come vnto them all, as necessitie requireth. Such as are baptized doe receive the faith with great firmenesse, and are good Christians, and would be better, if that they were holpen with good enfamples: as those which have beene Spaniards haved there follong time are bound to doe: that the lacke thereof doth cause some of the Inhabitants nat. so much to abhorre them, that they would not see them once painted upon a wall. For proofe whereof (and for to mooue such as have power and authoritie to put remedie in the same, I will declare vnto you here a strange case, the which royally did passe of a truth in one of these Ilands,

50 and is very well knowne amongst them : that is, there chanced to dye an Hander, a principall man amongst them : a few dayes after that he was baptized, beeing very contrite for his sinnes, the which he had done against God before he was baptized, and after hee dyed. So after by the spanish report Dinine permission of God he appeared vnto many of that Iland whom hee did perswade forth of a Vision. with to receive the Baptisme, with reasons of great efficacie, and declared vnto them (as one that had experienced the fame) the reward of that good deed which without all doubt should be given vnto them, if they would receive the same, and liveafter conformable, and according vnto the Commandements of Christ, for the which he told them, and faid, that forth-with is foone as he was dead, he was carried by the Angels into glory, there whereas all things were of delight, pleature, and content, and did communicate onely in the fight of God, and that there

60 was none that entred therein, neither could enter, except he were baptized, according vnto the preaching of the Spaniards, of whom and of others that were like vnto them, there was an infinite number. Therefore, if to be that they would goe and enjoy of those benefits and delights, it is necessary that first they should be bartized, and afterwards to observe and keepe the Com-

284 Godreielled for malice to men. Commodities there. Theeues Ilands, LIB. II

The Indians would not goe into Heauen because there

Ciuir.

Honey.

mandements that be preached unto them by the Fathers, that are amongst the Castillas, and therewith he vanished away, and they remayned treating amongst themselves, concerning that which they had heard, and was the occasion that some of them forth-with received the Baptilme, and that others did delay it, faying, that because there were Spaniard Souldiers in glorie. they would not goe thither, because they would not be in their company. All this hurt is done by one peruerfe or impious man, and with one euill ensample, the which amongst many good. as you have in those parts : but especiall amongst them in particular, it ought to beereprehended and punished feuerely with rigour.

These Ilands at the first discouery of them, had the fame to be Mal Saues, or vnwholesome. but fince experience hath shewed and proued it to the contrary : It is a Countrey maruellous fer- 10 till, and yeeldeth very much Rice, Wheate, Goates, Hennes, Deere, Buffes, Kine, and great flore of Hogges, whose flesh is so sauourie as the Mutton they have in Spaine : there be also many Cats that yeeld Cinet, great flore of fruits which be very good and fauourie : great abundance of Ho. ney, and Fish, and all fold at so small a price, that almost it is fold for nothing. Also there is great Cinamon.

Linfeed Oyle, flore of Cinamom, but no Oyle of Oliues, but that which is carried thither out of the Numa Espania: they have much Oyle of Algongoli, and of Flaxe-seed, the which they doe spend ordinarily in that Countrey, so that the Oyle of Oliues is not missed with them.

There is great flore of Cloues, Saffron, Pepper, Nutmegs, and many other Drugges: great ftore of Cotton and Silke of all colours, the which is brought vnto them by Merchants of China, euery yeare a great quantitie, from whence commeth more then twentie ships laden with pieces 20 of Silkes of all colours, and with Earthen Vessell, Powder, Salt-peter, Iron, Steele, and much Quick-filuer, Braffe, Copper, Wheate, Flowre, Walnuts, Bisket, Dates, Linnen Cloth, Counting Chefts very gallantly wrought, Calls of Net-worke, Buratos, Efpumillas, Basons and Ewres, made of Tinne, Parchment Lace, Silke Fringe, and also of Gold, the which is spunne and twifted after a falhion neuer seene in all Christendome, and many other things of great curiositie, and all this aforesaid is sold very good cheape. Likewise such things as the llands doe yeeld, are fold very good cheape, for you shall have foure Roues of Wine, which commeth of the Palmetree for foure Rials of Plate (the which for lacke of that made of Grapes is very good) twelve Haneges of Rice for eight Rials of Plate, three Hens for one Riall, a whole Hogge for eighteene Rials, a whole Buffe for foure Rials, a Deere for two Rials, and yet it must bee both great and in good, foure Roues of Sugar for fixe Rials, and the like.

ð. I I.

First Plantation of the Philippinas, by MICHAEL LOPEZ DE LEGASPI.

* This I trans. lebact * Lopez. de Legasse , Generall of the Spanish Armada, on Tuesday the one and de twentieth of Nouember, Anno Dom. 1565, let forth of the Hauen of Natinitie in Manuscript Lating which!

New Spaine, and (ayled betwixt the South and the Weft, and after Weft-ward, till Lating which!

New Spaine, and (ayled betwixt the South and the Weft, and after Weft-ward, till Lating which! make for the Philippinas. After eight dayes, the ship called Saint Luke was milling, the Cap-

Natiuty Port. tavne whereof was Alfonfus de Arellano, suspected to have maliciously with drawne himselite. that de las Rejes The Fleet continuing their course in nine and ten degrees, after fiftie dayes had fight of an Hand of Fishermen and many other small Ilands not inhabited, which they passed by. It was agreed that they (hould heighthen their course to thirteene degrees, in which way they came on Monday the feuenteenth of Ianuary, 1366. to one of the Hands of Theeues, called Goean, and fayling toward it, fixe miles off, fiftie or fixtie Paraos fwift fayling Barkes with eight or ten men 18 quite naked met them and inuited them to their Habitations, where at night they anchored. The next morning, fixe hundred of their Parass came about them with victuals to fell, Rice, Honey, Sugar-canes, Plantans, Fruits of divers kinds, and Ginger whereof there groweth great ftore naturally. Their principall defire in barter was Iron Nailes , giving a large facke of Rice for a Naile; their fackes deceitfully filled with gravell and chaffe , with Rice in the top. Their people are well proportioned and ilrong. They fought with the Spaniards which were watering, and in the time of fight would be trucking with the ships, as sendlesse of their danger. A Mariner which itayd behind was flaine, whose death they revenged with many of the Sauages flaine in the night, one of them being taken and fent into New Spaine. Their name fits their Theenish

The Philippines disposition. called also the Eleuen dayes after the fleet renewed their Voyage, and course in thirteene degrees eleuen dayes longer, and then had fight of the Philippinas, having failed from the Port of Nativitie, eight thousand miles. They anchored in a faire Bay called Baia de Sibabas, and there rode tenen Bais de Sibabae, dayes; whiles two Boats went to discouer, one to the North, the other Southward...

CHAP. 3. S. 2. Bloudy leagues. Vicious, Sufficious, Portugal spite to Spaniards. 285

A Gentleman of one of them was flaine by an Indian, rashly leaping on shoare. These Indian's haue Iron Launces, with a head or tongue a handfull and halfe long. They have also shields, Bowes and Arrowes. In making peace each man takes two or three drops of bloud of his arme or breft and mixe both in some Vessell together, which is drunke with Wine and Water. Many Paraos came to the Spaniards with a white flag in the Prow, in token of peace, and the Admiral erected the like in her Poope to fignifie their leave to enter. Thele Indians are clothed, but barefoot. The Spaniards demanded prouision, which the other promised, but gaue only to the Captayne a fucking Pigge and an Egge. These people are very timorous, perhdious, and therefore suspicious. The Ilands beare Hogges, Goats, Hennes, Rice, Millet, Potatoes, Pome-citrons, 10 Frifoles, Cocos, Plantans, and many forts of Fruits. They weare Bracelets, and Earings, and Gold Chaines, and whitherfoeuer the Fleet went, was flew of Gold in the Land, whereof Gold. they digge but for necessary vies : the Land is their Money bagge.

The Fleet departed hence, and two dayes after came to the Port of the Ile Tandoia, where a Tandoia fmall River enters; vp which they went in Boats, and came to a Towne called Camingo, There Canunge, they were well entertayned, and had victualls fet them : which whiles they were cating an Indian (pake forme Spanish words, and asked for Anionie Baptista Villalobos, and Captaine Cabeca de Vaca: for which the Lord of the place was angrie with him, and hee appeared no more. The next day the Spaniards returning found them armed, threatning them if they came on shoare. They minding not to deale cruelly, Martin de Goste was tent to discouer some convenient har-20 bour, who faw the Citie Tandaya, and other Townes of other neere Hands, and having gone fix- Tandaya. tie miles found the great Bay where was Cabalia a Towne well inhabited. Thither went the Fleet, and the Inhabitants fled. Onely Camathan the fonne of Malataque a blind man, chiefe of that place, came to them, whom they detayned thinking thereby to get some prouision; but in vaine. He fant forth Souldiers which brought him fine and fortie Hogs, leaning in lieu form what for exchange, and dismissing Camatuan, who had taught the Captaine the names of the neighbouring Hes and of their Governours. Hee brought them to Mefagua two and thirtie miles off, Mefagua, and then was fent away apparelled and joyfull. The Iland Majagua hath beene frequent, but then had but twentie Inhabitants, which would not fee the Spaniards. They went to another Iland where the people were fled with their goods. Then went they to Butuan which is fubiect

30 to the Ile Vindena or the Ilands Corrientes. The winde draue them to Bobol, where they ancho- Bobol. red. The next day they law a lunke and fent a Boat to it, which wounded fome of their men-They had Arrowes and Lances and a Bale, and two braffe Peeces. They cryed to the Spaniards abordo, abordo. The Spaniards ient out another Boat better fitted, which tooke eight, the rest were flaine or fled, having fought valiantly. In the lunke they found white sheets painted; Silke, Almayzarez, Callicos, Iron, Tin, Braffe, and some Gold. The lunke was of Borneo, and so were these Moores. All was restored ( their intent being to get friends, and the Burneois fatisfied.

The Captaine femt the Saint Iohn to discouer the Coast of Butuan, and learne where the Cinamon was gathered, and to find some good Port in he place to build. The Burneous told the Wicked poli-40 Captaine the cause of the Indians flight, that about two yeeres before some Portugals bearing cy, an Indian themselves for Spaniards, had comne thither from the Melucas, and having made peace with pefficience them, fet on them and flue aboue a thousand Indians, the cause of that depopulation. This the which since Portugals did to make the Spaniards odious, that if they came thither, they might not be admit. hath infected ted. The Captaine fent a well furnished ship to search the Coast, which came to a place where the Borneo Gouernour faid he had friends, and leaping on shoare hee was slaine of the Indians. The Saint John returned from Buthuan, which faid, they had feene the King, and two lunkes of Moores in the River at anker, and that the lland was great and rich, and exchanged with them fine Gold for Testons, one for fix in equall weight. They bought Wax of the Moores but had Moores to be Earth inclosed in the Cakes; they also incensed the Indians against the Castilians, which would nage.

50 haue made purchase of them, but were forbidden by the King. They faid, they had there seene Wax, Cinamon, Gold, and other precious things.

On Easter Euen the other ship returned to their great ioy, which had thought her lost, having flaid twentie dayes longer then her limited time. They had failed about the Hand Igla the space 1gla, of fix hundred miles : and in their returne came to Subo a well peopled Hand, and plentifull of Subo. all things. The Captaine determined to goe thither to buy prouision, or else to force them. For Magelane had beene there; and the King, and most of the Inhabitants were baptifed, and acknowledged the Catholike King; Magelane also dying in their detence, and thirtie other Soul- See tout. 1.12 diers in Matan. They also had broken league and flaine some of Magelane Souldiers. On Fri- c. 2. day April twentie scuen, the Fleet arrived at the Port of Subo, and one came from King Tupar

60 to them, faying, that Hee with ten chiefe men would come to them. The Captaine expected them a whole day and the next, in which space the Handers hid their goods in the Woods. The third day the Captaine fent his brother Andrew and the Camp-mafter, to admonish the King in the Malayan tongue, to receive them, as Vaffals of the Spanish King. Which not succeeding, hee resolued to vie force. The Indians out of other Hands had attembled together to the number of head. The Vice-row incontinent did gather together people necessary, and in great haste to follow him. The which being knowne vnto Limahon the Rouer, who faw, that with the people hee had, he was not able to make reastance against so great a number as they were, and the eminent danger that was therein, hee called together his Companies, and went from thence vnto a Port of the Sea, that was a few leagues from that place and did it to quickly and in fuch ficret, that he fore the people that dwell therein, could make any defence (for that they were not accustomed to any fuch affaults, but lived in great quietnesse) they were Lords of the Port, and of all such thips as were there; into the which they imbarked themselves fraight-waves, weighed Anchor to and departed to the Sea, whereas they thought to be in more fecuritie then on the Land (as it was true.) Then he feeing himfelfe Lord of all those Seas, beganne to rob and spoyle all ships that hee could take, as well strangers as of the naturall people: by which meanes in a small time he was prouided of Mariners, and other things which before hee lacked, requifite for that new Occupation. He facked, robbed and spoyled all the Townes that were vpon the Coast, and did very much harme. So hee finding himfelfe very ftrong with fortie ships well armed, or those he had out of the Port, and other that hee had taken at the Sea, with much people fuch as were without shame, their hands imbrued with Robberies and killing of men, he imagined with himfelfe to attempt greater matters, and did put it in execution : he affaulted great Townes, and did a thousand cruelties. So he following this trade and exercise, he chanced to meete with another Vintequian a 20 Rouer as himselfe, called Vintoquian, like wise naturally borne in China, who was in a Port void by this Rouer.

of any care or mistrust, whereas Limaton finding opportunitie, with greater courage did fight with the ships of the other : that although they were threescore ships great and small, and good Souldiers therein, he did ouercome them, and tooke five and title of their ships, so that Vintoquian elcaped with fine ships. Then Limaton seeing himselfe with a fleet of ninetie fine ships well armed, and with many flout people in them, knowing that if they were taken, they should be all executed to death; feeting all feare apart, gave them felies to attempt new inventions of euill, not onely in robbing of great Cities, but also in destroying of them.

For the which, commandement was given straight-wayes vnto the Vice-roy of that Prouince (whereas he vied to execute his euill) that with great expedition he might be taken, who 30 in few days did fet forth to Sea, one hundred and thirtie great thips well appointed, with forty thousand men in them, and one made Generall over them all, a Gentleman called Omoneon, for One hundred to goe feeke and follow this Rouer with expresse commandement to apprehend or kill him. Of and thirtie all this prouision, Limahon had aduert ifemant by some secret friends, who seeing that his Ene-great ships of Warre with mies were many, and he not able to countervaile them, neither in shippes nor men, determined forty thousand not to abide their comming, but to retyre and depart from that Coast: fo in flying he came vnto an Iland in fecret, called Tonznacaoucan, which was fortie leagues from the firme Land, and is in Omoncon

the right way of Nauigation to the Hands Philippines. From this Iland they did goe forth with some of their ships robbing and spoyling all such as they met with Merchandize, and other things that they carried from one Iland to another, and 40 from the Iland vato the firme, and comming from thence among ft them all, they cauled to take two ships of Chma which came from Manilla, and were bound to their owne Countrey. And hauing them in their power, they fearched them under hatches, and found that they had rich things of Gold, and Spanish Rials, which they had in trucke of their Merchandize, the which they carried to the Ilands. They informed themselues in all points of the State, and fertilitie of that Countrey, but in particular of the Spaniards, and how many there were of them in the Citie of Manilla, who were not at that prefent aboue feuentie persons, for that the rest were separated in the discourring and populing of other Hands newly found, and understanding that these few did line without any lutpition of Enemies, and had neuer a Fort nor Bulwarke, and the Ordnance which they had (although it was very good) yet was it not in order to defend them-nor offend their Enemies , hee determined to goe thither with all his fleete and people, 50 for to destroy and kill them , and to make himselfe Lord of the said Iland of Manilla, and other adjacent there nigh the fame. So with this determination hee departed from those Hands whereas hee was retyred, and went to Sea, and fayling towards the Hands Philippinas, they passed in fight of the Ilands of the Illocos , which had a Towne called Fernandina, Illocos. which was new founded by the Captayne lobn de Salzedo, who at that instant was in the same for Lieutenant to the Governour: Foure leagues from the same they met with a small Galley, which the faid Iohn de Salzedo had fent for victor is. He cast about towards her, and with great eale did take her, and did burne and kill all that was in her, and pardoned one of them. This being done, heeded profecute his Voyage according vnto his determination, and paffed along ft, but not in such secret but that he was discouered by the Dwellers of the Towne of Fernandina, Fernandina,

60 who gave notice thereof vnto the Lieutenant of the Governour aforesaid, as a wonder to see so many ships together, and a thing neuer seene before at those Hands. Likewise it caused admiration vinto him, and made him to thinke and to imagine with great care what it might be, he faw that they did beare with the Citie of Manille, and thought with himfelfe, that to great a fleet two thousand, which prouoked our men, but at the report of the Ordnance ran away, and the two thousand, which produced our men, out at the topological and the land, and being Spaniards wan the Towne. Many figures of Gold and Gemmes appeared in the Iland. And being fituate to neere to the richeft Regions, the Governour hopeth accesse thereby to the increase and glorie of the Spanijb Crowne, it Spanifb Colonies be there planted. The Captaine from the Citie of Subo lent the Admirall fhip with his brother Andrew de Vrdanera, to certific the L. Lemp de Velasco, the sonne of the Vice-roy, what had beene done,

This which

Mignel Lopez de Legaspi, Generall or the Fleet , and Gouernour of the Countrey which they This which followith its: (hould discour, dyed in the faid Hands with the Title of Adelantado, having first peopled some ken out of Fray of them to the vis of His Maiestie, especially that of Manilla, which is fine hundred leagues in nam Gravales circuit; in which is feated the Citie of Lufon (called also Manilla) as the Metropolitan of all to the Hand where the Governous have fetted their relidance were times the first different de Mendofahis the Iland, where the Gouernours have fetled their refidence ever fince the first discourie. They Strong Action on of China, & have there founded a Cathedr. Il Church, and Friar Dom. Domingo de Salachar was confectated is bere much the first Bishop thereof in Madrid, 1579. At this present there be three Monasteries of Religi. ous men in that Iland, the one of the Order of Saint Austine, and were the first that by the Commandement of his Majestie did enter into this Hands, preaching the Law of the Gospell, which was great profit vito their foules, yet great travell vito them, & cost many of them their lines in doing it the other Monasterie is of barefoot Friersof the Order of S. Francis of the Prouince of S. lofeph, who have bin great Examples, with great profit vato them of those Parts. The third are of the Order of S. Dominicke, or Preachers, who have done their dutie in all things fo well as the other. These three Orders were alone in those Hands for certayne yeares, till now of 20 late time have gone thither lefuits, which have bin a great ayde and helpe vnto their Religion,

1 ney

When theie Spaniards were come unto their Ilands, they had ftraight-wayes notice of the mightie Kingdome of China, as well by the relation of them of the llands (who told vnto them the maruels thereof) as allo within a few dayes after, they did fee and understand, by ships that came into those Ports with Merchants, that brought Merchandize and other things of great curiosit ie from that Kingdome, and did particularly declare the mightinesse and riches thereof. This being knowne unto the Religious people of Saint Ansim, who at that time were alone in those llands : but in especiall vnto the Prounciall, Frier Marin de Herrada, seeing the great capacitie or towardnesse which the Chinois had more then those of the Ilands in all things, but in especial in their gallantnesse, discretion and wit : hee straight-wayes had a great desire to 30 goe thither with his fellow to preach the Gospell unto those people, of so good a capacitieto receive the same : who with a pretended purpose to put it in vre and effect, he began with great care and studie to learne that Language, the which he learned in few dayes: and did make thereof a D. Etionarie. Then alterwards they did give great entertaynment and Prefents vnto the Merchants that came from China for to procure them to carrie them thither, and many other things, the which did flew their holy zeale : yea, they did offer themselues to bee slaves your the Merchants, thinking by that meanes to enter in to preach: but yet none of these diligences did take effect, till such time as the Duine Majestie did discouer a better way, as shall bee declared vnto you in this Chapter following.

ð. III.

of LIMAHON a China Robber and Rouer, by mbofe occasion the Spaniards fent into China.

Limabes a Chi-

#He Spaniards did enjoy their neere habitation of Manilla in great quietnesse & in obedience vnto the Christian King Don Philip, and in continual! Traffick with the Chinois. But being in this securitie and queenesse, vnlooked for, they were beset with a migh- 50 tie and great Armada or Fleet of ships, by the Rouer Limaton, of whose vocation

na Rouer.

there are continually on the Coast, the one by reason that the Countrey is full of people, where as of necessitie must be many idle persons : and the other and principall occasion, by reason of Whete Lima. the great tyrannie that the Gouernours doe vie vnto the Subjects. This Limaton came vpon them bus was borne. With intent to doe them harme as you shall understand. This Rouer was borne in the Citie of Trucheo, in the Province of Cuytan, which the Portugals doe call Catim. He was of meane Parentage, and brought up in his youth in libertie and vice, he was by nature Warlike and cuill inclined. He would learne no Occupation, but was ginen to rob in the high-wayes, and became so expert that many came vnto him and followed that Trade. Hee made himselfe Captaineouer them which were more then two thouland, and were fostrong that they were feared in all 63 that Province where as they were. This being knowne entothe King and to his Councell, they did straight way command the Vice-roy of the Province whereas the Rouer was, that with all the hafte possible he should gather together all the Garrisons of his Frontiers, to apprehend and take him, and if it were possible to carry him aline vnto the Citie of Taybin, if not his

as that was, could not goe to the place which they bare in with, for any goodnesse towards the dwellers therein, who were voide of all care, and a small number of people, as aforefaid: Wherewith he determined with himfelfe with to great speed as it was postible, to soyne tose. ther fuch Spansards as were there, which were to the number of fiftie foure, and to depart and produce to get the fore-hand of them, to advertise them of Man.lla, and to aide and helpe them to put their Artillerie in order, and all other things necessarie for their defence.

This Limaton was well prouided of prouision, and all other things neculiarie, and having the wand faire, hee was alwayes in the fore-front, and came in the light of Manilla vpon Saint Andrewes Eue, in the yeere 1574. whereas hee came to an anchor that night with all his

For all the contradiction of the winde this same night the foure hundred Chinois did put 16 themselues within a league of the Citie, vpon Saint Andrewes day at eight of the clocke in the morning, whereas they left their Boats and went on land, and in great hafte began to march forwards in battel aray divided in two parts, with two hundred Harquebuffes afore, and immediate ly after them other two hundred Pike-men: and by reason that they were many, and the Countrey very plaine, they were straightwaies discourred by some of the Citie, who entred in with a great noise, crying, Arme, arme, arme, the Enemies come. The which aduice did little profit, for that there was none that would believe them : but believed that it was some falle alarme done by the people of the Countrey for to mocke them. But in conclusion, the Enemies were come Martin de Goy vn: othehoule of the Generall of the Field, who was called Martin de Goys, which was the first house in all the Citie that way which the Enemies came. And before that the Spaniards and Sould:ers that were within the Towne could be fully perswaded the rumour to be true, the Enemies had fet fire voon his house, and slue him and all that were within.

Guidade Laba-

At this time, by the order of his Maiestie was elected for Governour of these Ilands Philippi. nas, Guido de Labacates, after the death of Miguel Lopez de Legaspi, who understanding the great fleet and power of Lymabon the Rouer, and the small relitance and defence that was in the Citie of Marilla, with as much speed as was possible he did call together all their Captaines and dwellers therein: and with a generall confent they spared no person of what qualitie and degree soener he was, but that his hand was to helpe all that was possible, the which endured two dayes and two nights, for follong the Rouer kept his ships and came not abroad. In which time of their continual labour, they made a Fort with Pipes and Boards filled with fand and other necessaries thereto belonging, such as the time would permit them: they put in carriages, some excellent Peeces of Artillerie that were in the Citie. All the which being put in order, they gathered all the people of the Citie into that little Fort. The night before the Enemie did gint affault voto the Citie, came thither the Captaine lobu de Salzedo, Lieutenant voto the Gouernour. The Rouer in the morning following, before the breake of the day (which was the fircond after he gaue the first affault) was with all his fleet right against the Port, and did put a-Indixe hundred Souldiers, who at that inflant did fet voon the Citie, the which at their pleafure they did facke and burne. They did affault the Fort with great cruelty, as men fleshed with the last flaughter, thinking that their reliffance was but small. But it fell not out as they did beleeue, for having continued in the fight almost all the day, with the losse of two hundred men, that were flaine in the affault, and many other hurt, he straightwaies departed from thence, and returned the fame way that he came, till they arrived in a mightie River, fortie leagues from the Citie of Manilla, that is called Pangasinan, the which place or soyle did like him very well, and where he thought he might be fure from them, who by the commandement of the King went for to feeke him. There hee determined to remayne, and to make himfelfe Lord over all that Countrey, the which he did with little trauell, and built himfelfe a Fort one league within the River, whereas he remayned certaine dayes, receiving tribute of the Inhabitants thereabouts, as though he were their true and naturall Lord: and at times went forth with his ships robbing and (poyling all that he met vpon the coaft. And spred abroad, that he had taken to himselfe so the Ilands Philippinas, and how that all the Spaniards that were in them, were either flayne or fled away. With this confideration they entred into counfell, and did determine to joyne together all the people they could, and being in good order, to follow and feeke the Rouer. Then the Gouernours commanded to be called together all the people bordering thereabouts, and to come vnto the Citie whereas hee was. Likewife at that time hee did give advice vnto fuch as were Lords and Governours of the Ilands, called Pintados, commanding them to come thither, with fuch fhips as they could spare, as well Spaniards as the naturall people of the Country. The Generall " of the field with the people aforefaid, did depart from Manilla the three and twentieth day of March, Anno 1575, and arrived at the mouth of the River Paganjinan vpon tenable Wednesday in the morning next following, without being discouered or any. Then 60

straightwaies at that instant the Generall did put a land all his people and foure Peeces of Ar-tillerie, leaving the mouth of the River thut vp with his shipping, in chayning the one to the other, in such fort, that none could enter in neither yet goe forth to gine any aduice vinto the Rouer of his arrivall: he commanded fome to goe and discouer the fleet of the Enemie, and the rede who uc. creded Gari, and was Neprice to Michael Legafi.

great authoritie, who was called Omoncon, who brought a Commission from their King, and thewed it vnto the Spaniards, and vnto the Father Provinciall: in the which the King and his Counfell did pardon all those Souldiers that were with Limabon, if that forthwith they would leaue him and returne vinto the Kings part: and likewife did promifegreat gifts and fauour vinto him that did either take or kill the aforefaid Rouer. Then did Sinfay declire vinto him of the The Captaine Omoneon reloyced very much of these newes, and made many fignes of great taine Gabriel de Ribera, that straightwaies he should depart by Land, and that vpon a sudden he should strike alarme vpon the Enemie, with the greatest tumust that was possible. Likewife he commanded the Captaines Pedro de Canes and Lorenfo Chacon, that either of them with forty Souldiers should goe up the River in small ships and light, and to measure the time in such fore. that as well those that went by land , as those that went by water , should at one instant come vpon the Fort, and to give alarme both together, the better to goe thorow with their pretence: and he himselfe did remayne with all the rest of the people, to watch occasion and time for to 10 aide and succour them if need be required. This their purpose came so well to passe, that both the one and the other came to good effect : for those that went by water, did let fire on all the fleet of the Enemie : and those that went by land at that instant had taken and set fire on a Trench made of timber, that Limation had caused to bee made for the defence of his people and the Fort: and with that furie they flue more then one hundred Chinas, and tooke prisoners ieuenty women which they found in the fame Trench, but when that Limahon vinderitood the rumour, hee tooke himfelfe straightwaies to his Fore which hee had made for to defend himfelfe from the Kings Nauie, if they should happen to finde him out. The next day following, the Generall of the field did bring his Souldiers into a square battell, and beganne to march towards the Fort, with courage to affault it if occasion did ferue 20 thereunto: hee did pitch his Campe within two hundred paces of the Fort, and found that the Enemie did all that night fortifie himselfe very well, and in such fort, that it was perillous to affault him, for that he had placed upon his Fort three Peeces of Artillerie, and many Bafes, besides other Engines of fire-worke. Seeing this, and that his Peeces of Artillerie that hee brought were very small for to batter, and little store of munition, for that they had spent all at the affault which the Rouer did give them at Manilla, the Generall of the field, and the Captaines concluded amongst themselues, that seeing the Enemie had no ships to escape by water, neither had he any great store of victuals for that all was burnt in the ships, it was the best and most furest way to besiege the Fort, and to remayne there in quiet vntill that hunger did constraine them either to yeeld or come to some conclusion: which rather they will then to

This determination was liked well of them all, although it fell out cleane contrarie vnco Limaber ofter their expectation; for that in the space of three moneths that siege endured, this Limabon three moneths did so much that within the Fort he made certaine small Barkes, and trimmed them in the buff segeofcoperb, manner he could, wherewith in one night he and all his people escaped.

It happened vpon a day, that there came to the Campe a ship of Mignell de Loarcha, wherein was Friar Martin de Herrada Prouinciall of the Angustine Friars. Seuen leagues after they were out of the mouth of Pagafinan, they met with a thip of Sanglejes, who made for the Port, and thinking them to bee Enemies, they bare with them ( having another ship that followed them for their defence) and had no more in them but the faid Prouinciall and fine Spaniards, be-40 fides the Mariners. This ship of Sangley seeing that hee did beare with them, would have fled, but the winde would not permit him, for that it was to him contrary, which was the occasion that the two ships wherein the Spaniards were, for that they did both fayle and rowe, in a finall time came within Cannon shot. In one of the ships there was a Chino, called Sinfay. This Smfay went straightwaies into the fore-ships, and demanded what they were, and from whence they came: and being well enformed, hee understood that hee was one of the ships of warre that was fent out by the King of China, to feeke the Rouer Limabon, who leaving the reft of the fleet behind, came forth to feeke in those Ilands to fee if hee could discover him to be in any of them: and the better to bee enformed thereof, they were bound into the Port of Bnliano, from whence they came with their two thips: from whom they would have fled, thin-50 king they had beene some of the Rouers ships. Being fully perswaded the one of the other, they joyned together with great peace and friendship: the Spantard straight waies entred into their Boat, and went wnto the ship of the Chines, and carried with them the aforesiad Smfay, for to be their Interpreter, and to speake vnto the Chinos. In the said ship came a man of comming of the Rouer vnto the Ilands, and all that happened in the fiege of the Citic, as a-60 forefaid: and how they had him befreged in the River of Paganfinan, from whence it was not content, and did embrace the Spaniards many times, and gaue other tokens whereby hee did manifest the great pleasure her received, and would therewith straightwaies depart vinto the Souldiers, to whom they did appertaine, all whatfoeuer they should bee valued to bee worth.

CHAP. 3. S. 2. China Compasses, insufficiency of Mariners. Idolatrous morthipina, 291

Vpon a funday at the break of day, being the fine and twentieth of June, after they had prayed vnto God to direct their voyage, they fet fayle with a prosperous wind : there were with the Friars, Souldiers and men of feruice, twentie persons, besides the Chines that were captines, and They departed the people of the Captaine Omoncon. They were not to foone off from the coast, but the wind towards Coast, abated, and they remayned becalmed certaine dayes: but afterwards they had a luftic gale, that carried them forwards. The Chines doe gouerne their thips by a compaffe divided into China Comtwelue parts, and doe vie no Sea Cards, but a briefe description or Ruter, wherewith they fayle: pailes divided and commonly for the most part they never goe out of the fight of Land. They maruelled very into 1. parts. no much when that it was told them, that comming from Mexico vinto Philippinas, they were Mannets. three moneths at the Sea and neuer faw Land. Vpon the Sunday following, we had fight of the Land of China: fo that wee found all our Voyage from the Port of Bulsano, from whence wee had last departed, vnto the firme Land to bee one hundred and fortie leagues; and twentie leagues before they came in the fight thereof, they had founding at threefcore and ten and fourefcore fathom, and so waxed lesse and lesse vntill they came to the Land : which is the best and furest token they have to bee nigh the Land. In all the time of their Voyage the Captaine Omoncon with his Companie shewed such great courte fie and friendship to our men , as though they had beene the owners of the faid ship : and at such time as they did embarke themselves, hee gaue his owne Cabine that was in the sterne to the Friers, and vnto Pedro Sarmiento, and 20 to Miguel de Loarcha, hee gaue another Cabine that was very good, and commanded his companie in the ship that they should respect them more then himselfe: the which was in such fort that on a day at the beginning of their Voyage, the Fathers found them making of Sacrifice vnto their Idols, and told them, that all which they did was a kinde of mockage, and that they should worship out onely one God: and willed them to doe so no more. Who onely in respect of them did leaue it off, and not vie it after in all the Voyage : whereas before they did vie it enery day many times. Besides this, they would worship the Images that the Friers They leave did carrie with them, and kneele vpon their knees with great flew of denotion: who now the worthingdid carrie with them, and kneere vpon them after with great men of deceasing which ping of one having fight of the firme Land, in fo thort time, and paffed that finall Gulfe fo quietly, which biolity were the label to were was wont to bee very perillous and full of stormes: they did attribute it vnto the Prayers of flip another. 30 the Friers, their companions and Souldiers. As they drew neerer the Land, they might discouerfrom the Sea, a very gallant and well towred Citie, that was called Titubul, whereas the Titalight in the King hath continually in Garrison ten thousand Souldiers, and is under the government of Province of the Pronince of Chinches. The next day wee came vnto a Watch-towre, which was fitua- Chinabes. ted vpon a Rocke at the entrie into a Bay, who had discouered our ship, and knew the Standard or Flagge to bee the Kings: and made a figne vnto feuen ships which were on the other fide of the Point, which was part of a companie ordayned for to keepe and defend the coaft, which were more then foure hundred. Straightwayes the Captaine of the leuen thips came forth to know what wee were. Hee iffued forth from behind the Point, with three thips that did rowe with Oares very fwift: and when he came nigh vnto them, he shot at them to make 40 them to amaine: the which Omoncon would not doe, for that he supposed (as afterwards hee did confesse) that he should be some man of little estimation, and not the Generall of the coast, But as he drew nigher vnto him, he did know him by the Flagge hee bare on the sterne, in the Foift wherein he was himselfe with his Souldiers, and straightwaies caused to amaine his tayles, and tarried for him. The Generall did the like, and stayed behind, fending a Boat for to bring the Captaine vnto him, and to declare what hee was, and from whence hee came. Omoneon did forthwith embarke himselfe into his Boat without any refistance, but rather with teare that he should be punished for that hee did flee from him. The Generall gaue him good entertainment.

This Generall was a goodly man of person, and was very well appeared and did fit in a Chaire in the sterne of his ship, the which was all couered to keepe away the Sunne: he comso manded the Captaine Omoncon to fit downe by him vpon the hatches, without Chaire or any other thing, who did obey him, although first he did refuse it with great modestie, as not worthie to haue that honour, which was not esteemed a little. After that he was set, hee gaue him to vnderstand in effect of all his voyage and successe, and in what extremitie see left Limahon, and also how that he carried with him the Friars and other Spaniards, which went to carrie the newes, and to treat of peace with the Vice-roy of Aucheo: vnto whom, and vnto the Gouerneur of Chincheo, he carried presents, sent from the Gouernour and Generall of the field of the llands Philippinas. When the Generall had heard this relation, he commanded the Boat to teturne and to bring them before him, that he might fee what manner of men they were of perfon, and the vie of the apparell : and likewife to latisfie himselfe of other delires that came in-60 to his mind by that which Omoneon had faid of them. The Fathers and their companions did obey the commandement, and did embarke themselves in the Boat, and came visto the ship whereas the Generall received them with great courteile after his fashion.

and ice the Generall of the field in Paganfinan, and carrie with him Sinfay, one that was known both of the one and the other: by whole meanes they might treate of such things that beff accomplished the confirmation of the peace and friendship betwixt the Chinois and the Spamards, as also of the death or imprisonment of Limabon. With this resolution, the one departed vnto Pagansman, whereas they arrived the same day, and the others vnto Manilla, whither they went for victuals.

Rouer, the better to enforme himselfe: hee determined (for that it was fough hand) to goe

with him pledges to their content.

Omoncon remayned there certaine dayes, after the which he feeing that the fiege did long endure, and that his staying might cause suspicion of his death: and againe, that the whole steet in did tarrie his comming to his intelligence of the Rouer, being fully perswaded and certaine, that he could not escape the Spaniards hand : they had him in fuch a straight, and that they would without all doubt, fend him vnto the King alive or dead (as they promifed him) hee was determined to returne vnto China, with the good newesthat hee had understood, with a determined nate intent, to return a againe and carrie the Rouer, after that they had him prisoner. With this resolution in the end of certaine dayes hee went vnto the Gouernour, certifying him of his pretence, whereby hee might giue him licence to put it in execution. The Gouernour did like well of his pretence, and did promise him the same, the which the Generall of the field did offer vnto him : and which was, fo foone as the Rouer should be taken prisoner, or slavne, to fend him vnto the King without any delay, or elfe, to put him whereas he should be forth-comming, 20 and to give them advertisement to send for him, or come himselse : and did offer him more, that for his voyage he should bee prouided forthwith of all things necessarie, without lacking of any thing. Omencon did give him great thankes for the same, and in recompence thereof did promife vnto the Gouernour, for that he vnderstood, and had intelligence of the Fathers, of Saint Augustine, that his Hopour, and his Antecessor, and the Adelantado, Miguel Lopez de Legafii, lad defired many times to fend vnto the Kingdome of China fome Religious men, to treate of the preaching of the Gospell, and to see the wonders of that Kingdome, and how that they never could put this their defire in execution, for that those Chinose which came this ther, although they did offer them what soener they would demand, fearing the punishment that should be executed on them according vnto the Lawes of the Kingdome : hee did promise to him, that he would carrie them with him voto China, fuch Religious men as his Honour would that hee carried, to runne in no danger of the Law, neither the Vice-roy of Aucheo to thinke

euill thereof, and for a more securitie that they should not bee euill entreated, hee would leave the Augustine Friers, who was elected but few dayes past: his name was Frier Alonso de Al-

The Gouernour being very joyfull of these newes, did therewith send for the Provincialist mit throcar- command, and fome Souldiers, such as would goe with them: hoping with the good news Vato China.

A good pre-names that went to China.

A token that fine cloth is esteemed.

warado, vinto whom hee declared the offer that the Captaine Omoneon had made vinto him, whereat he reioyced. They determined that there should goe but two Religious men, by refon that at that time there was but a few of them, and two Souldiers in their companie. The 46 Religious men should be , Frier Martin de Herrada of Pamplona, who left off the dispitie of Prouinciall: and in companie with him should goe, Frier Hieronimo Martin, who also was very well learned, and of the Citie of Mexico: the Souldiers that were appointed to beare them companie were called , Pedro Sarmiento, chiefe Sergeant of the Citie of Manilla of Vilorado, and Miguel de Loarcha, both principall men, and good Christians, as was convenient for that which they tooke in hand. There Fathers did carrie them for this purpose, that if they did remaine there with the King, preaching of the Gospell, then they should return with the newes thereof, to give the Gouernour to vinderstand of all that they had seene, and happened vinto them : and likewise vnto the King of Spanne, if need did so require. And the Gouernour in token of gratitude, did give vnto the Captaine Omoncon in the presence of themall, a gallant 50 Chaine of Gold, and a rich Robe of crimton in graine: a thing that her efteemed very much, and much more efteemed in China, for that it is a thing that they have not there. Belides this, Spanishbounty, they did ordayne a reasonable Present for to send voto the Governour of Chinches, hee that dispatched Omoneon by the commandement of the King , to goe and feeke the Rouer : also another Present for the Vice-roy of the Prouince of Ochian, who was at that present in the Citie of Aucheo. And for that Sunfay should not finde himselfe agreeued ( who was a Merchant well knowne amongst them, and perhaps might bee the occasion of some euill and disturbance of their pretence ) they gaue vnto him also another Chaine of Gold, as well for this, as also for that hee was ever a fure and perfect friend vnto the Spaniards. Then firaightwaies by the commandement of the Gouernour there were brought together all fuch Chiness as were 60 captine and taken from Limahon out of the Fort aforefaid, at Pagansinan, and gave them vnto Omencon, to carrie them free with him : and gaue likewise commandement that the Grnerall of the field, and all fuch Captaines and Souldiers that were at the fiege of the Fort, should give vnto him all such as did there remaine: binding himsefe to pay vnto the

ò. IIII.

Friar MARTIN DE HERRADA, and other Spaniards entertaynment in China, and their returne to the Philippinas.

Tanfujo, or

Ithin a little while after, Omoneon and his companie arrived at the Port of Tarfula hard by, voon Wednesday in the evening, being the fift day of July. This Tarfulo is a gallant and fresh Towne of foure thousand Housholders, and hath continually a is a gattant and item a own to a compassed about with a great and strong wall, 10 and the gates fortified with plates of Iron, the foundations of all the houles are of Lime and Stone, and the walls of Lime and Earth, and some of Bricke: their houses within very fairely wrought, with great Courts, their streets faire and broad all paued. Before that Omencon die come vnto an anchor, they faw all the Souldiers and the people of the Towne were gathered together upon the Rockes that were joyning unto the Port, all armed ready unto the battell. amongst whom there was a principall Captaine, and three more of his companions, that were fent him by the Gouernour of Chinches, whom they doe call in their language, Influente, who had understanding of the comming of Omoncon, when the ship entred into the Port, Omoncon did salute the Towne with certaine Peeces of Artillerie, and discharged all his Harquebusses fixe times about, and therewithall tooke in her fayle, and let anchor fall. Then fraightwaies the 20 Captaine whom the Insuanto had sent, came abourd the ship, who had express commission, not to leane the companie of our people after that they were difembarked, till fuch time as they came whereas he was, but to beare them companie, and to prouide them of all things necessarie: the which he did accomplish.

Enfignes to

All these Captaines and Ministers of the King doe weare certaine ensignes for to be known. from the common people, to wit, broad Wastes or Girdles embossed after divers manners : some of Gold and Siluer, some of the Tortois shell, and of a sweet wood, and other some of Juorie. the higher estates hath them embroidered with Pearles and precious stones, and their Bonnets with two long eares, and their Buskins made of Sattin, and vnshorne Veluet.

Board-licence.

Then after, fo foone as they were come to an anchor in the Port, the Iustice did fend them 30 a Licence in writing for to come forth of the ship, as a thing necessarie, for that without it the Waiters or Guards of the water side, will not suffer them to put foot on land. This Licence was written vpon a boord whited, and firmed by the Iuftice, whose charge it is to give the Licence. The first lan-Then when they came ashoare, there were the Souldiers that were appointed by the Institute in a readinesse to beare them companie, and diddirect and leade them vnto the Kings houses of the faid Citie: the like hath every Citie almost throughout all the Kingdome, and there they bid lodge them. These houses are very great and very well wrought, and gallant, with faire Courts below, and Galleries aboue: they had in them Stanges or Ponds of water full of fifth The people of the Citie did preffe very much to see these strangers, so that with the preffe, as 49

also with the great heate, they were maruellously afflicted: which being perceived by the Iuflice, he gaue order that they might bee eased of that trouble, and caused Sergeants to keepe the doore, and their Yeomen to make relistance against the people. When night was come, the Juflice of the Citie did make a Banquet according to the fashion of the Countrey : and it was in their banquets the fashion following. They were carried into a Hall that was very curiously wrought, wherein were many Torches and waxe Candles light, and in the midft thereof was fet for every one of the Gueffs a Table by himselfe, as is the vie and fashion of that Countrey; every Table had his couering of Damaske or Sattin very well made, the Tables were gallantly painted, without any Table-clothes, neither doe they vie any, for they have no need of them, for that they doe eate all their victuals with two little flickes made of Gold and Siluer, and of a maruellous 50 odoriferous wood, and of the length of little Forkes, as they doe vie in Italie, with the which they do feed themselues so cleanly, that although their victuals be neuer so small, yet doe they let nothing fall, neither foule their hands nor faces. They were fet downe at thefe Tables in very good order, and in gallant Chaires, in such fort, that although they were every one at his Table by himselfe, yet they might see and talke one with another, they were served with diuers forts of cates, and very well dreffed, both of flesh and fish, as gamons of Bacon, Capons, Geese, whole Hens, and pieces of Beese, and at the last, many little baskets full of sweet meats made of Sugar, and Marchpanes all wrought very curioufly. They gaue them Wine of an indifferent colour and tafte, made of the Palm-tree. All the time that the supper lasted, there was in the Hall great store of Musicke of divers Instruments, whereon they played with great con- 60 fort, some one time and some another. The Instruments which they commonly doe vie, are Hoybuckes, Cornets, Trumpets, Lures, fuch as be vied in Spaine, although in the falhion there is some difference. There was at this Banquet (which endured a great while) the Captains that was ordayned for their Guard, and the Captaine Omoncon, and Smfay. When Supper was done, they were carryed into very faire Chambers, whereas were faire Beds, where they flept and eated them felues.

Wine of a

The next day in the morning, was brought vnto them their ordinarie victuals, and that in a bundance, as well of Flesh as of Fish, Fruits and Wine, to be dressed vnto their owne content, and according vato their manner they would take nothing for the fame, for fo they were commanded by the Infuantes. This was brought vnto them every day, fo longas they were there, & in the way when as they went vnto Chinches. The same day arrived a Captayne of fortie Ships in the same Captains of Port, and so soone as hee was ashoare, he went straight-wayes vnto the Palace for to see the form Shipsi firangers : who being aduertised of his comming, came foorth and received him at the Palace

10 gate, whereas, was vied betwixt them great courtefie. The Captayne came with great Majestie. with his guard of Souldiers and Mace-bearers before him, with great mulicke of Hoy-buckes, Trumpets and Drums, and two Whiffelers, or Typ-staues, that made roome, putting the reople afide : also there came with him two executors of Iustice, having each of them in their hands a Sergente-Set made of canes, which is an instrument wherewith they doth whip and punish offenders. When this Captayne came vinto the Palace gate, whereas the father Friars and their companions did receive him, he was brought on the shoulders of eight men very richly apparelled, in a chayre wrought of Iuorie and Gold, who stayed not till they came into the inner Chamber, whereas he did alight from the chayte, and went straight under a Cloath of estate, that was there originarily for the same purpose, and a Table before him : there hee sate downe, and straight-wayes arose vp, and standing he did receive the strange ghests, who did courtese vnto him according vnto their fashion, which is to joyne their hands together, and to stoope with them and their heads downe to the ground : hee gratified them againe, with bowing his head a little, and that with great granitie. These speeches being finished, there was brought foorth certaine pieces of blacke Silke of twelue vares long a piece. And his Officers did put on the Friars shoulders each of them two. which was for either shoulder one, and was brought about their bodies and girt therewith : the like was done in order vnto the Spanish Souldiers, and vnto Omoncon, and Sinfay, and to their Interpreter. But vnto Omoncon, and Sinfay, was given vnto either of them a branch or Nofegay made of Siluer, which was fee vpon their heads, which is accustomable honour, that is done vnto fuch as have done some great enterprise, or such like. After that this ceremonie was done, they 20 played vpon the Instruments aforesayd, which came with the Captayne. In the meane time of their mulicke, there was brought foorth great store of Conserues, March-panes, and things made of Sugar, and excellent good Wine : and to being on foote standing, hee caused them to eate, and hee himselfe from the Chayre whereas he sate, did give them to drinke every one in order, with out rifing vp, which is a ceremonie and token of great fauour, and of love.

This being done, hee arose from the chayre vnder the Cloath of state, and went and sate downe in that which was brought on mens backes, and with declyning of his head a little, hee departed out of the Hall and out of the house, and went vnto his owne house, whereas by the counsell of Omoncon, and Sinfay, within an houre after they should goe and visite him, the which they did: hee received them maruelloufly well and with great courtefie: who maruelled at his 40 great Maiestie and authoritie, for that Omoneon and Sinsay, when they did talke with him were vpon their kness, and so did all the rest. Hee gaue them againe in his owne house a gallant banquet, of divers forts of Conserves and Fruits, and excellent Wine of the Palme-tree, and did talke and reason with them in good fort, and was more familiar than at his first visitation.

After that the Fathers with their companions had remained two dayes in the Port of Tanfulo, the thrid day they departed in the morning towards (binches. At their going forth of the Town, they were accompanied with a great number of Soldiers, both Harquebulles & Pikes, and before them a great noyle of Trumpets, Drums, and Hoy-bucks, till fuch time as they came vinto the Riuers fide, whereas was a Brygandine prouided and made readie in all points, to carrie them up the River : all the streets alongst whereas they went, there followed them so much people that it 50 was innumerable, and all to fee them. All alongit the Rivers whereas they went, was feated with Villages very gallant and fresh, both on the one side and on the other.

At the end of the two leagues, they came vnto a great Bay, where was at an Anchor a fleete of more then one hundred and fiftie Ships men of warre, whose Generall was this Captaine, whom wee haue spoken of. At such time as the sleete did discouer them, they began to salute them, as well with great pieces of Artillerie, as with Harquebulles, and other kinde of paltimes, which commonly they doe vie at fuch times,

Our Spaniards did travell up the Riner more than three leagues, having continually both on the one fide and on the other, very many and faire Townes, and full of people. In the end of the three leagues, they went aland halfe a league from the Towne of Tangos, whereas straight-60 wayes all fuch things as they carryed with them, were taken upon mens backes, and carryed unto the Towne before them, whereas they were tarrying their comming, for to give them great entertaynment. At their going ashoare, they found prepared for the two Religious men, little Chayres to carrie them vpon mens backes, and for the Souldiers and the rest of their companions horse. The Fathers did refuse to bee carryed, and would have gone a foot, but Omoncon, and the other Captayne would not confent thereunto. The Fathers obeyed their reasons, and entred into the Chayres, and were carryed with eight men a piece, and the other their companions with foure men a piece, according vnto the order given by the Governour. Those that carryed the Chayres, c. it with fo good a will, that there was ffriuing who should first lay hands to them. This Fowne of Tangoa, hath three thousand Souldiers, and is called in their language Co. an : at the entring in, it hath many Gardens and Orchards and a street where through they care ryed the Spaniards vnto their lodging, they aff rmed to bee halfe a league long, and all the ffreet whereas they went, was full of boards and stalles whereon was layd all kinde of Merchandife very curious, and things to bee eaten, as fresh Fish and falt Fish of divers forts, and great abundance of Fowle, and Flesh of all forts, Fruits and greene Herbes in such quantitie, that it was to fufficient to ferue fuch a Citie as Simili is. They were brought vnto the Kings house, which was very great, maruelloufly well wrought with stone and bricke, and many Halls, Parlours, and Chambers, but none aboue, but all below. So foone as they were a foote, there was brought from the Captayneor Iuffice of the Towne, whom they doe call Ticoan, a meffage, bidding them welcome, and therewith a present, which was great store of Capons, Hennes, Teales, Duckes, Geese, Fleih of foure or fine forts, fresh Fish, Wine, and fruits of diners forts, and of so great quantitie, that it was sufficient for two hundreth men. All the which they would have given for a little coole ayre, by reason that it was then very hot weather; and againe, the great number of people that came thither to fee them did augment it the more. In the Euening the two Spa-Souldiers went foorth into the streets to walke abroad, and left the two Friars within their 20

lodging, vnto whom afterwards they did give intelligence of all things that they had seene, which did cause great admiration : the wall of the Towne was very broad, and wrought with china Women. lyme and ftone, full of loope-holes and watch-towers. And as they paffed through the ffreets there came foorth of a house a very honest man, as it seemed, who was very well apparelled and stayed them, for that in the same house, there were certayne Dames principall personages, that did fee them a farre off, and not content therewith, they did request them with great curtefie for to enter into the house, that they might the better fee them : the which they did ftraightwayes accomplish, and entring in, they were brought into a court, whereas was fet Chayres for them to fit downe, and the Ladies were there a little from them, beholding them with great honeftic and granitie. Then a little after, they fet them a banquet with March-panes and fweet 30 meats made of Sugar, which they did eate without any curiofitie, and drunke after the fame. The banquet being done, they made fignes and tokens vnto them, that they received great content with their light, and that they might depart when that their pleasure was, the which they did, after that they had made great curtefies with thankes, for their friendship received of both parts, House of pleas. So after they had taken their leave, they went to see a House of pleasure, that was hard by the Towne-wall, wrought vpon the water, with very faire galleries and open lodges to banquet in, made of Masons worke, and therein many Tables finely painted, and round about it Cisterns of water, wherin was store of Fish, and joyning Into them Tables of very faire Alabaster, all of one ftone, and the least of them was of eight spannes long : and round about them were brookes of running water, that gaue a pleafant found in the meane time they were banquetting, and nigh 40 thereunto many Gardens full of all forts of Flowers. And a little from that Aace they faw a S:one-bridge. Bridge all of Masons worke, and the stones very well wrought and of a mightie bignesse, they meafured fome of them, that were twentie and two and twentie foote long, and five foot broad, and seemed voto them, that it was a thirg impossible to bee layd there by mans hands. Of this bignesse, yea and bigger they did see layd vpon many other Bridges, in the discourse of their voyage, going to Chincheo and Aucheo. The next day in the morning when they were vp and readie, they found in the house all things in a readinesse and in very good order, for their departure, as well their little Chayres, and Horse, as for men to carrie their stuffe and apparell, which did not a litle make them to maruell, how that every one of them with a waster vpon their shoulders, did divide their burthen in two parts, fixe roues before and fixe roues behinde, and did trauell 50 with the same with fo great ease and swiftnesse, that the Horse could not indure with them. They went vnto the Tiesan his house. They found him with great Maiestie, but yet gaue them great and good entertaynment. Hee did likewife put youn each of them, two pieces of Silke, in the same order as the Gouernour of Tanfuso did.

From this Towne of Tangoa vnto Chincheo, is thirteene leagues, and so playne way that it Thriftie tillage giveth great content to travell it : in all the way they could not fee one spanne of ground but was tilled and occupied. The like they doe fay, is of all the ground that is in the whole Kingdome : it is full of people, and the Townes one so neere to another, that almost you can not indge them to bee many Townes but one, for that there was but a quarter of a league diffant, one Towne from another, and it was told vnto them that in all the Prouinces of the Kingdome, it is 60 peopled in the same order. All their ground they till is watred, which is the occasion of the fruitfulneffe therof, fo that they doe gather fruitall the yeere long, and our Spaniards did fee in all pla-

Plowing with ces whereas they came, that they were gathering of Rice, some new spraing up, some with eares, and some rice. Then they were gathering of Rice, some new spraing up, some with eares, and some ripe. They doe plough and till their ground with Kine, Bufalos, and Bulls, which are very tame, and although they bee very great, yet be their hornes but of a spanne long and turning backwards to the tayle, in such fort that they cannot doe any hurt or harme with them ; they doe gouerne them with a coard that is made fast to a ring that is in their nose, and in like fort doe they gouerne the Bufalos. They doe feed them commonly in the fields of Rice, for that Paffunce they have no other graings, and all the time that they are feeding, a Boy doth ride on every one of them to disturbe them, that they doe no harme therein. But to eate the weedes and graffe

All the high-wayes are coursed with the shadow of very faire Orchards, which doe garnish it very much, and they are planted in very good order : and among it them there are Shops, where-10 as is fold all manner of Fruits, to the comfort of all fuch as doe travell by the way, which is an infinite number, some on foote, some on horse-backe, and others in little chaytes. Their waters by the high-wayes, are very good and light. The fame day when they had trauelled halfe way, they faw a farre off comming marching rowards them in very good order, a fquadron of Souldiers, which at the first caused them to maruell, and to bee atrayd, till fuch time as they drew nigher, it was told vnto them, that it was the Captayne of the guard vnto the Infuanto, or Gouernour of Chinches, who came by his order to receive them with four hundred Souldiers, very well armed with Pikes and Harquebuffes, and well apparelled. So foone as the Captayne came vnto them, hee was mounted on a bay Horie, but of small flature, as they for the most part bee in all that Prounce, hee alighted and came vnto the Fathers, and his companions (who likewile 20 did alight from their little Chayres) and did falute the one the other with great courtefie.

The Captayne came very well apparelled with a Chayne of gold about his necke, a man of a good audacitie and understanding. Hard unto his stirrop hee had a Page that went with him, and carryed a great Tira fol, made of Silke, that did shadow him all ouer. Hee had before him Athing to great mulicke of Trumpets and Hoybuckes, whereon they played in great concord. This Cap- keepe away tayne with his foure hundreth Souldiers, did continually guard them for pompe, not necessitie; the Sunne; for the people may not weare weapons but the Souldiers. In this high-way continually there went and came many packe-Horses, laden with Merchandite and other things, but the most part of them were Mules. The high-wayes are very broad, that twentie men may ride together High wayes; on a ranke, and one not hinder another, and are all paued with great stones.

TPon a Saturday being the eleventh of July, came our Spaniards vnto the Citie of Chincheo, Chincheo hath foure houres before it was night. This Citie is of the common fort in that Kingdome, and sevente thoumay have feuencie thousand housholds. It is of great trafficke and well provided of all things, for sand houshold: that the Sea is but two leagues from it : it hath a mightie River running along it by it downe into the Sea, by which is brought by water and carryed downe all kinde of merchandile. There is Faire Bridge a Bridge ouer the fayd River, which is supposed to bee the fairest that is in all the world : it hath a draw bridge to ferue in time of warres, or for any other necessitie : the Bridge is eight hundred paces long, and all wrought with flones of two and twentie foote long, and fine foote broad, a thing greatly to bee maruelled at : at the entrie thereof, there were many armed Souldiers rea-

40 die to hight, who when they came within Harquebuffe shot did salute them in very good order, There was nigh vnto the favd bridge in the River riding at author, more then a thouland Ships A thouland of all forts, and to great a number of Boates and Barkes, that all the River was covered, and every one full of people that had entred into them for to fee the Caffillas, for fo they did call the Spa- River. wiards in that Country, for the ftreets in the Suburbes, nor in the Citie could not hold them, the number was so great, yet their streets are as broad as our ordinary streets in any Crtie in all Spaine, This Citie is compassed with a strong Wall made of stone, and is seven fathom high, and source fathom broad, & vpon the Gates many towers, wherein is placed their Attillerie, which is all their They have no @ strength, for that they doe not vie in their Kingdome strong Castles, as they doe in Europe. The vicot Castles houses of the Citie are all built after one fort and falhion, but faire, & not very high, by reason of Earthqu's to

50 the Earthquakes which are ordinarily in that Country. All the fireets (but especially that wherin they passed at their comming thicker) have on the one fide and on the other, Sheds, under the Rich Merwhich are shops, full of rich Merchandise and of great value, and very curious. They have in e- chandite. quall distance the one from the other, many triumphant Arches which doe set out the streets Triumphant very much, and is vied in euery principall fireet throughout all the Kingdome, in the which Arches. they have excellent Market-places, whereas is to bee bought all things that you will defire to be eaten, as well of Fish, as of Flesh, Fruits, Hearbs, Comfits, Conserues, and all things fo good cheape, that it is almost bought for nothing.

The Infuanto or Governour of the Citie, did fend that forthwith they should goe vnto his The Inflation House, for that hee had great delire to see them. In the midst of the streete, where was no lesse 60 number of people then in the other, whereby they entred into the Citie, they met with a Lop. tia, that came to entertaine them with great Maiestie, and had carryed before him many Banners, Mace-bearers, and Tipstaues, and others which carryed Sets or Whips, which they did trayle after them, made fast vnto long flickes, which were the Executioners, the which doe goe alwayes making of way, parting the people before the Loginas, as you have heard. The mainthe

An Affiftant. Serpents knot-

and company wherewith he came was to great, that they verily did beleeue him to be the Infinante: but being certified, they understood that it was one of his Counsellors that came from the Gouernours home to his owne house, which was in the same street whereas hee met with them. This Counsellor was carried in a Chaire of Juorie, garnished with Gold and with Curtaines of Cloth of Gold, and on them the Kings Armes, which are certayne Serpents knotted togo. ther (as hath beene told you.) But when he came tight against the Spaniards, without any flaying he made a figne with his head, and commanded that they should returne backe againe vnto his house, which was hard by : the Captaines did straight-wayes obey his commandement, and returned with them. The Counsellor entred into his house, which was very faire, hee had in i a faire Court, and therein a gallant Fountaine and a Garden. After him entred the Spaniards all 10 alone, the reft remayned without in the fireet at the Lopius commandement, hee entertayned them with very good words of semblance, and commanded a Banquet to be brought forth, and Wine to drinke, he began first both to eate and drinke. Then he commanded to call in the Captaine, vnto whom was given the charge to beare them companie, and didchide with him very fharpely and feuerely, because he did carrie them on foot (they could not understand whether it were done for a policie, or of a truth, although the effects wherewith heedid chide feemed of a truth) hee straight-wayes commanded two rich Chaires to bee brought forth to carry the Fathers, and to give vnto their companions Horses: the which beeing done, hee willed them to goe and visit the Gouernour, who did tarrie their comming: and that another time at more lei-They followed their way all along ft the street, which seemed vnto them to bee more fairer

then the other wherein they entred, and of more fairer houses and triumphane Arches; and also the shops that were on the one side and on the other, to bee better furnished with richer things then the others, in so ample fort, that what therewith, as also the great number of people which they saw, they were so amazed, that they were as people from themselves, thinking it to bee a Dreame. To conclude, after they had gone a good while in that ifreet, delighting their eyes with new things neuer feene of them before : they came into a great place, whereas were many Souldiers in good order with their Harquebuses, Pikes and other Armour in a readinesse, apparelled all in a Livery of Silke, with their Ancients displayed. At the end of this place, was there a very faire and sumptuous Palace, the gate was wrought of Masons worke of itone, very 30 great and full of figures or Personages, and aboue it a great window with an Iron grate all gik: they were carried within the gates, the Soulders and the people which were without number, remayned without and could not be auoyded but with great difficultie. When they were within the first Court, there came forth a man very well apparelled and of authoritie, and made signes with his hand vnto them that brought the Spaniards, that they should carrie them into a Hall that was voon the right hand, the which was straight-wayes done. The Hall was very great and faire, and at the end thereof there was an Altar, whereon were many Idols, and all did differ the one from the other in their fashion : the Altar was rich and very curiously trimmed with burning Lampes: the Altar-cloth was of cloth of Gold: and the fruntlet of the same.

After awhile that they had beene there whereas the Idols were, there came a Seruant 40 Stare-ceremo. from the Gouernour and faid vnto them in his behalfe, that they should fend vnto him the Interpreter; they straight-wayes commanded him to goe. And the Gouernour said vato him that he should adulie the Fathers and the rest of his companions, that if they would talke and treate of fuch bufineffe as they came for, that it must be done with the same ceremonie and respect, as the Nobles of that Prouince doe, vie to talke with him, which is vpon their knees (as afterwards they did fee many times vsed) if not that they should depart vnto the House whereas they were lodged , and there to tarrie the order that should be sent from the Vice-roy of Auchee.

The Spaniards were of divers judgements, striving amongst themselves a good while, but yet in conclusion, the Religious Fathers, whom the Gouernour of the Ilands had ordayned and sent as principals in this matter, and whose judgement they should follow, said, that they ought to 50 accept the condition, feeing that by no other meanes they could not come vnto that they pretended; and not to leave it off for matters of small importance, for that therein they make no offence vnto God, and it may be a meane vnto the converting of that mightie Kingdome.

When that the Insuante vinlerstood that the Spaniards would enter with the reverence accustomed, and in such order as was declared vnto them, hee straight-wayes commanded that they should come into the Hall whereas hee was, they entred into another Hall as bigge as the first : whereas were many Souldiers with their weapons in their hands in very good order, and richly apparelled, and next vnto them were many Tipstaues and Sergeants, with different Ensignes or Badges, all apparelled with long Robes of filker, garded and embroydered with Gold, and every one of them had a Helme on his head, some of tillier and other some of Tinne gilt ouer, which 62 was a gallant thing to fee : all had long haire and died yellow, which hung downe behind their eares vpon their backes : they were placed in very good order, and made a lane that the Spaniards might paffe thorough: then they came into a Gallerie, which was joyning vnto the Chamber where the Gouernour was, and there they heard such a noyse of Instruments of divers scree, which endured a good while, and was of fo great melodie, that it feemed wnto them that they neuer before heard the like : which caused vinto them great admiration to see to great Majestie among it Gentiles. When the Muficke was ended, they entred into the Hall aforefaid, and had Great Mais Ry. not gone many fleps, when as they met with the Counfailer that met with them in the fireet afore-faid, and with him other two of his companions all on foot and bare-headed before the Gouernour, and their Entignes of Majestie left off: which is generally vied in all the Kingdome, the inferiour to make any shew when that he is before his Superiour. Then they made fignes vnto The Instantos them for to kneele downe, for that the Infnanto was nigh at hand in a rich Towre, under a Ca- person and en. nopie of great Riches, and did represent so great Majestie as the King himselfe : hee did enter- terraynment.

10 tayne them with tokens of great loue, and humanitie, and told them by their Interpreter, that they were very well welcome, and that hee did greatly rejoyce to fee them, with many other words of great fauour. This Gouernour was a man of goodly person, well fauoured, and of a merry countenance, more then any that they had seene in all that Countrey. Hee caused to bee put vpon the shoulders of the Fathers and of the Souldiers that were with him, every one of them two pieces of filke, which was croffed about them like Skarfes, and likewise to either of them a branch of filuer: the like courtefie he did vnto the Captaine Omoncon, and vnto Sinfay, and commanded to give vnto all their Servants every one of them a Mantle of Cotton painted. This being done, the Fathers did give vnto him the Letters which they carried from the Gouernour and Generall of the field, and a note of the Present that was sent him : crauing pardon for 20 that it was fo small, but time and oportunitie would not serue as then to fend vnto him a thing of greater price and valour : certifying him, that if the friendship which they pretended did goe forwards, and come to be established, that then all things should be amended and amplified. Hee answered vnto their profices with words of great fauour, and made signes vnto them to arise, and to goe and take their reits there, whereas they were lodged: the which they did, and found all things in very good order and well furnished, as well of Beds as of all other necessaries, which was done by the commandement of the Gouernour. Before they departed out of the Palace the Captaine of the guard did carrie them vnto his Lodging, which was within the Court, and there he made them a Banquet with Conferues, and Fruits in abundance : the which being done, hee and other Gentlemen of the Palace did beare them company until they came to their Lodgings, 20 which they greatly defired, for that they were wearie of their Iourney, and also with the trouble of the great presse of people that pressed on them in the streets, & otherwise for to see them: the which Captaine of the guard did appoint a Company of Souldiers for to guard them both night and day, the which was done more for Maiestie then for necessitie or securitie of their perfons. They had a Steward appointed to prouide them and all their company of all things neceffary, and that in abundance, and not to take of them any thing, which was given by particular commandement by the Gouernour.

The next day, many of the Gentlemen of the Citie did goe vnto the Spaniards to visit them, and fuch as could not goe themselues did send their Servants, bidding them welcome. The Spaniards did make answere, and gratified them all, in the which visitation they spent all the whole 40 day, having great admiration to see the good behaviour, nurture, and gallant demeanour of those Gentlemen, and the great discretion they had in the demanding of any thing they would know as also in their Answeres made to our requests. The next day the Infuanto sent a commandement wherein he willed the two Fathers to remayne in their Lodgings and take their eafe : but the two Souldiers Pedro Sarmiento, and Miguel de Loarcha, should come and speake with him, and that they should bring with them their interpreter, for that hee had one there with him (who was a Chino, and vinderstood the Language of the Philippinas, but so badly, that they could not by his Interpretation talke of any matter of importance. So when they came thither, they were brought whereas he was, but with leffe ceremonie, he requested them to declare vnto him the whole circumstance of the comming of Limaton the Rouer, vnto the Ilands, and how the Spaniards dealt with him: that although he had beene informed particularly in all things, by the 50 Captaine Omoncon and Sinfay, yet he was in a lealousie that they told him not the truth. Hee was nothing deceived in that he suspected,) for after that our Souldiers had made a true Relation of the comming of the Rouer vnto Manilla, and of all the rest, hee found that they differed very Vainc glory. much, the one from the other, for that they did attribute it wholly vinto themselves to get honour and benefit: but the Instanto like a wife man straight-wayes vnderstood their pretence, But when that he perceived that Limaton was neither dead nor Prisoner, but onely belieged, he offered vnto them that if they would return againe vnto Pagansinan vpon him whereas he was, he would give vnto them five hundred ships of warre, with people sufficient to serve both by Sea and Land, and more if they would request. They answered him, that all such cost and labour were but in vaine, for that the Generall of the field who hath him in siege, with the people and 60 thips that he hath are lufficient to end that Enterprize, and to fend him hither alive or dead, and that long before that their fleet should come thither. And besides this, their Ilands were poore Bo itingof victuals, and could not sustaine so great an Armie many dayes. Beeing satisfied with these reasons, he gaue place that the Interpreter which they brought should come in where as they were, for he remay ned at the doore without, for that hee would bee fully certified to avoid the fulpitious doubt he had before he come in prefence, yet he did helpe them very much. So when their Interpreter was come in, the Spaniards feeing good occasion and oportunitie for to declare that which passed the day before, betwire them and the Fathers, touching the speaking vito him on their knees: and feeing, as it feemed vnto them, that he was at that time in a good mind for to heare them, they did vtter vnto him all the whole contention (after that they had declared many reasons of great consideration, to give them to understand that it was not convenient to doe it, but especially to religious men, who were there as principals ouer the rest, vnto whom the King of Spaine (their Lord) himselfe doth stand on foot, when as they doe intreate of any matter, although it be but of small importance : for that they are Priests and Ministers of God, 10 whom he doth worship and reuerence.

Morrified

Table-rite.

The Infnanto with a merry countenance did answere them, that wnto that time hee vnderflood no more of them, then in that he was informed by the Captaine Omoncon, and did not acknowledge them to bee any other but Castillas : without knowing wherefore they came . nor from whom, for lacke of the Letters fent from their Gouernour, and Generall of the field, the first time that hee spake with them : neither had hee any knowledge of the custome of their Countrey : yet notwithstanding, that which hath passed heere, without any exception of perfon, if they would take it in good part, in that which is to come shall be amended and from that day forwards, at all times when seuer it were their pleasure to come of themselves, or at such time as they were fent for, for to talke with him as they doe vie in Castilla or Spaine, vnto such of their dignitie and vocation, the which hee granted with a very good will; although hee not grant vnto any that pre-eminence, no not vnto a Vice-roy, except he were an Ambalfador fene from fome King.

The next day, the Gouernour called a Gentleman of his House voto him, and commanded him to go and visit the Spaniards, and to informe himselfe of them if that they lacked any thing, And also that he should in his name inuite them for the next day following to dine with him in his House. This Gentleman went vnto them and accomplished his message : and the Spaniards answered, kissing his hand for the great care he had of them : they were carryed into a Hall that was below in the second Court, whereas were many Chaires of Veluet and Tables that were painted with their frontals before. In the first Chaires they caused the Friers to fit downe, euery one at a Table by himselfe, and each of them other fixe Tables, placed in order, compassing round like a Circle : then were the Spanifb Souldiers fet in the same manner, and each of them had fine Tables, and next vnto them the Captaine of the guard belonging vnto the Gouernour. and two other Captaines : and every one of them had three Tables. For that it is the cuftome A Cornedy & of that Countrey to make a difference in the qualitie of the gueffs, by the number of the Tables. other ports. All these were placed in circle or compasse (as aforesaid) that they might see one another. In the midft betwixt them there was a round compaffe, whereas was represented a Comedie with much pustime, and indured all the Dinner time, and a good while after. There was also great ftore of very good and excellent Muficke, accompanied with gallant voyces, also Jesters with Puppers, and other things of great pastime, to drive the time away. On the first Table was set to every one of the guests, little Baskets wrought with Gold and Silver wyre, full of sweet meates made of Sugar, as March-panes, Caftles, Pitchers, Pots, Difhes, Dogges, Buls, Elephants, and other things very curious, and all gilt : befides this there were many Diffies full of fielh, as Capons, Hennes, Geefe, Tcales, Gamons of Bacon, pieces of Beefe, and other forts of fieth wherewith all the Tables were replenished, faming that whereat they did sit to dine, which was replenished with victuals that was dreffed (for all the other was raw) and was of so great abundance, that there was at times more then fiftie diffies, and they were ferued with great curiofitie. They had Wine of divers forts, and of that which they doe make in that Country of the Palme-tree, but of so great excellencie, that they found no lacke of that which was made of Grapes. The Dinner endured foure houres, in fo good order that it might have beene given vnto any Prince in the World.

Their Servants and Slaves that they brought with them at the fame time, did dine in another Hall nigh ynto the fame, with fo great abundance as their Matters. When Dinner was done, the Gouernour commanded the people to come vnto him, with whom hee did talke and common with great friendship, and good conversation, and would not confent that they should kneele downe, neither to be bare headed. So after that he had made vnto them tokens of friendship, and detayned them a while, in demanding of many things, laftly, he told them that there was an order come from the Vice-roy of Auche, that they should goe thither with great speed. So hee tooke his leaue of vs with great friendship and courtefie. At their going forth out of the Hall, they found the Captaine that did dine with them, and with him many other Gentlemen that 60 tarried their comming for to beare them company vnto their Lodging : going before them many Serumts, that did carrie the raw meate, that was voon the other Tables over and above that which they did eate on, the which was done for great Maiestie, and a Ceremonie very much viel in that Kingdome, so many times as they doe make any Banquet.

When

When they came vnto their Lodging they found that the Infuance had fent them a very good Prefent, in the which was for every one of them foure pieces of filke, and counting chifts with other things, and certayne painted Mantles for the Servants and Slaves. After they had taken their leaue of the Captaines and Gentlemen that did beare them company home, they beganne with great toy to put all things in order for their Journey the next day following.

He next day in the morning, before that the Spaniards were stirring, there was within the House all things necessary for their Journey, as well of Litter chaires, as of Horses and Men for to carrie them, and their stuffe, the which they did with fo good a will (as aforefaid) that they did fall out and thrine amongst them selves, who should be the first that should receive their

10 burthen. So all things beeing in good order, they departed, having in their company the same Captaine and Souldiers, that vnto that time had beene their guard, vntill they came vnto the Citie of Ancheo, whereas the Vice-roy was. This day by reason they understood that they should depart, the prease and multitude of the people was so great, that although they had ducker. Tip-staues before them, to beate the people away and to make roome, yet was it almost night before they could get out of the Citie : fo that they were constrained to remaine in a Towne there hard by all that night, whereas by the commandement of the Governour they were very well lodged, and their Supper made readie in very good order, as it was in feuen dayes together. till fuch time as they came vnto Aucheo, without taking for the fame, or for any other thing necessarie for their sustentaion, any price or value. There went continually before them Post

20 with a prouision from the Gouernour, written in a great board wherein was declared who they were, and from whence they came, and commanding that there should be prouided for them all things necessarie in abundance, vpon the Kings cost, which was the occasion that so much people came for to fee them, that in the high-waies they were many times disturbed with great trouble, the third day they came vnto a Citie which was called Megon , which was formetimes Megon a great the head government, the which was of forty thousand housholds, but a great part thereof was Citic spoyled dispeopled : the occasion thereof they told vs (and was) that about thirtie yeares past, the lapo by lapanders. nes, who brought for their Guides three Chinois, came vpon that Citie (to reuenge theinfelies of Strategen an injurie that was done vnto them) che which they put in execution with fo great fecrecie and policie, that they made themselves Lords of the Citie without any danger or burt vnto them-30 selues : for that fiftie Iapones, men fit for that purpose, did apparell themselues in Chinois apparell without being knowne, and came vnto a Gate of the Citie, whereas the Souldiers that had the charge thereof were void of all suspition. And within a little while after that, followed two thousand that did dis-imbarke themselves in a secret and vnknowne place, and came in very fecret order, because they would not be discouered, and did befet that gate of the Citie, whereas their companions were, which they fent before : who fo foone as they faw them nigh at hand. drew out their weapons, the which they carried hid under their apparell, & fet upon the Soldiers (that were void of feare and vnarmed) with so great furse and force, that they being amazed were easily slain, so that they were Lords of the Gate, whereas they left very good guard, and followed

40 their victorie, and made themselues Lords of the Citie, without any danger vnto their persons. and did possesse the same certaine daies, and did sacke the same in spite of them all, with great harmeand loffe vnto the Inhabitants thereof, vntill fuch time as the Vice-roy of Anches did letile an Armie together of threefcore and ten thusand men, but they seeing that they could not defend themselues against so many, in one night they left the Citie and went vnto their ships, whereas they had left them in very good order, and carried with them the spoile of the Citie, leauing it beaten downe.

So loone as they came thither, the Friers remayned in their Lodgings, but Pedro Sarmiento and Mignel de Loarcha went to vifit the Gouernour, ving the Spanis courtefie with him : and he received them with great joy and courtefie. After they had taken their leave and returned vitto their Lodgings, the Gouernour fent to visit them El Tyn, who is the ancientest of his Coun-

50 cell. At their depirture from this Citie, trauelling towards Ancheo, they paffed ouera mightie Admirable great River, by a Bridge all made of itone : the goodlieft and greatest that ever they had seene, whose greatnesse did cause wonderfull admiration, so that they stayed and did measure it from one end to another, that it migt be put among ft the wonders of that Countrey, which they tooke a note of. They found that it was one thousand and three hundred foot long, and that the leaft stone wherewith it was built, was of seventeene foot, and many of two and twentie foot long, and eight foote broad, and feemed vnto them a thing impossible to bee brought thither by mans art, for that all round about fo farre as they could fee, was plaine ground without any Mountaines : by which they judged them to be brought from farre. When they were paffed that Bridge, they travelled all the rest of the day till night vpon a Cawsie that was very broad and 60 plaine, and on both fides many Victualling Houses, and the fields sowed with Rice, wheate, and other Seeds : and fo full of people as in the streets of a good Towne or Citie After they had travelled more then halfe a league in the Suburbs of the Citie of Auchee, they met with a Post that came from the Vice-roy: who brought order that they should re-

300

mayne in a house that was appointed for them in the fayd Suburbes. So soone as they were alighted, there came a Gentleman to visite them, sent from the Vice-roy to bid them welcome. and to know how they did with their sourney, and also to see that they were well provided for that night, of all things necessarie, and that in abundance. After this Gentleman, came other Captaynes to visite them, and brought with them great store of Conserues, Wine and Fruit; which is a common custome among st them, when that they goe in the like visitation, and it is carryed by their fernants in little Baskets very curioufly wrought, or elie in Barrels made of earth all gilt. Within two houres after their comming thither, there came another meffeneer from the Vice-roy, with many men laden with Capons, Hennes, Geefe, Teales, gamons of Bacon and Conferues of divers forts, and of great abundance, fufficient for one hundred men to Ja suppe that night, and for their dinner the next day. The next day in the morning very earely. there came much people vinto their lodging, fent by the Vice-roy, and brought with them two rich Chayres, for to carrie the Fathers in, and the Gurtaines tyed vp, that they might the better bee feene, and for their companions very good Horfes, fadled after the fashion which they doe vie. They foorthwith made hafte for to depart, and alchough they made great speed, yet were they a good houre and a halfe, before they could come vnto the gates of the Citie, and seemed wnto them that they had trauelled two leagues in the Suburbes: well peopled, faire houses, and many shops full of Merchandise. Before they came vnto the Gates, they passed a mightic River three times over Bridges, that were great and very faire, and the River so deepe, that great Ships came up the same, but their 20 mastes stooping downe, to passe vnder the bridges. This Citie is the head Citie of all the Prouinge, verie rich and fertile, and many Townes belonging vnto it, and but eight leagues from the Sea. They had no leafure to tell the Souldiers, but they faw that from the Gate vntill they came vnto the Vice-royes Palace on both fides, which was a good way, to bee full of them, and all richly apparelled and of one colour. The people that were at the windowes and in the ffreet, betwixt the houses and the Souldiers were so great a number, that it seemed to be doomes day, and that all the people in the world were there joyned together in that fireet. When they came unto the Palace which was two houres after day, the Gentlemen that were their guides, did cause the Spaniards to enter into a roome which was hard by, till such time as the Cate was open, for that it is open but once a day, and so continue no longer time then the audience endu- 30 reth, which is done by the Vice-roy once every day, and that is but a small time. But first, beforc he doth enter into audience, there is shot off foure peeces of Artillerie, with a great noyle of Trumpets, Drums and Waytes. And there is no day that paffeth without audience, as our people did see by experience so long as they were there, and were likewise informed of others. The houre being come, and the ceremonie done as aforefayd, the Gates were opened, and there was in the Court many Souldiers, apparelled in the fame linerie that those were of in the street, From the midst amongst them came foorth a Gentleman, who was as it was told them, the Captayne of the guard of the Vice-roy, who came with great grauitie and authoritie, towards the place whereas our people were, and after they had faluted the one the other, hee made fignes vnto them, that they should goe towards the gates of the Palace. When they were with- 40 that they should doe the like.

once a day.

Stite.

Then straight-wayes came foorth of the Hall a man apparelled in a long Robe, of good perfonage, and asked of the Spaniards, if they would speake with the Vice-roy, and they answered, yea : then asked hee againe from whom they came, and by whom they were fent, they answered, that they were fent by the Gouernour of Philippinas, who was feruant vinto the mightielt 50 King in all Christendome. When he had this answer, he returned agains into the Hall, and within a little while after he came foorth, and bad them come in, but gaue them to understand, that in entring into the hall whereas the Vice-roy was, that they should kneele downe, and talke with him in that order, till hee commanded to the contrarie, if they would vie this Ceremonie. that then they should come in, if not, that they should returne backe againe. They sayd, that they would observe the order given vnto them. Therewith hee went in, who seemed to bee the Mafter of ceremonies, making a figne that they should follow after him, and doe that which hee willed them to doe. At the entring in at the doore, they stayed a little, and then kneeled downe right ouer against there whereas the Vice-roy sate, in a Chayre very high like vnto a Throne, with a Table before him, and was in fo darke a place that almost they could not see his sace very 60 well. On the one fide of him, there were fome like vnto Heralds of Armes, with Scepters in their hands, and on the other fide, two men of a gallant comlinesse armed with Corslets, made of scales of Gold downe to the calfe of their legges, with Bowes in their hands of gold, and Quiuers at their backs of the same. Both the one and the other were vpon their knees. There was in the first Court, which was great and wrought with mightie pillars, there was a great number of Souldiers, and many Sergeants, that entred into another great court, and mounted up a payre of stayres that was on the one fide, whereas all the people were with great filence, fairing the

Captayne of the guard, who went with our people till they came to the gates of the Hall, where was the Vice-roy, at which gate hee stayed with his head discovered, and made signes vinto ours

voon the Table before him, paper and all things necessaries to write: which is an ordinarie vse Lions he among ft them at all times, when there is any publike audience, and on the one fide of the board Armersot that among it them at an times, which was (as after they vinderstood) the Armes of that Province. Province, per. So firaight-wayes hee made fignes vnto them to draw neere, which they did, and kneeled hapsthisdedowne a little from the Table which was whereas the Master of Ceremonies did will them, In coued Pinte, this fort they began to talke with him by their Interpreter, and told them the occasion of their who mistooke this fort they began to talke with him by their interprets, and from whom and wnto whom they were fent. But them (feeing comming into that Citie and Kingdome, and from whom and wnto whom they were fent. But them common hee made fignes vnto them that they should arise, the which they did with a very good will, on pillars &c.) and did perfeuer in their intent. But the Vice-roy did cut them off before they could make an to be the Kings 10 end, and asked if they had brought any Letter from their King, vnto the King his Lord, whom Armer, which they would goe to fee and talke with ; but when they answered no, hee ftraight-waves tooke Werebut of his leave of them, faying, that they were welcome, and that they should depart vnto their lode ines and to take their eafe, for that afterwards they should have occasion to declare their mindes vnto him, and hee would give them their answer, for that the King was farre off, and it requireth along time to come whereas hee is, but he would write vnto him, and according vnto his commandement, he would make them answer. And therewith hee tooke the Letter, and the memoriall of the prefent, and commanded in his prefence, to put about the neckes of the Friare in manner of a scarfe, to either of them fixe pieces of Silke, and vnto the Soldiers their companions, and vnto Omoncon, and Sinfay, each of them foure pieces, and to every one of their feruants 20 two a piece, and to give voto the two Friars and the Souldiers, Omoncon, and Sinfar, every one of them two branches of Siluer.

With the Silke about their neckes, and with the branches in their hands, they returned out of the Hall and downe the stayres the way they came, and so through the court into the streets, from whence they law them that the Court gate with fo great a noyle, as when they did open it. From thence at the request of Omoneon, and Sinfay, they went vnto the house of Totoc, who Totoc. is the Captayne generall of all the men of Warre, and vnto the house of Cagnitoc, who is the chiefe Standard-bearer : their boufes were nigh the one the other, very faire and great. They found them with as great Maiestie as the Vice-roy, and in the same order, with a Table before them, and had on each tide of them armed Souldiers, kneeling on their knees. Yet did they not

20 vieour men with the courtefie that the Vice-roy vied, to cause them to stand vp, which was the occasion, that straight-wayes they made a show that they would depart and bee gone, complain ning of Omoncon, and Smfay, for that they did carrie them thither, and told them with anger, that the Governour of Manila, did intreat them in a different lort, who was there refident for the mightieft Prince in all the world, and they but easie Merchants, neither was their going thither to bee equalled, voto the benefite that they came thither for. This discontent the which they received, was the occasion that they would not goe to make any more visitations, although the fayd Ommeon, and Sinfay, for their owne interest, would have carryed them to the houses of other Officers, and Gentlemen of the Court,

At their comming thither, they found all their stuffe in good order, and their dinner marvei-Olous well prouided, and the whole house hanged and trimmed, as though it had beene for the Kings owne person, with many wayting men and Souldiers, those which did guard them both day and night, and hanging at the doore two tables or boards (commanded by the Vice-roy) whereon was written who they were, that were there lodged, and from whence they came, and wherefore, and that none whofoeuer, should bee so hardie as to offer them any wrong or diflurbance, vpon payne to bee for the same offence seuerely punished. In this house they were more in quiet, then in any other place, whereas they had beene, neither did the people give Reports of Pethem so much trouble, by reason of the great care which the Judges had in putting order for the quin, called fame, by the commandement of the Vice-roy, yet was it the greatest Towne and most populed, of all that Province (although in other Provinces there bee that be much bigger) and is affirmed Suntiem. that the Citie of Taybin, or Suntiem, (there whereas the King and his Court is resident) hath Nantin, or three hundred thouland housholds, and yet there is a bigger Citie in the Kingdome cal- Nanquin. See

This Citie of Muches, hath a very faire and firong Wall made of stone, which is five fathom Auches descrihigh, and foure fathom broad, the which was measured many times by our people, for that bed, they had a gate out of their lodging that did open to the fame. This wall is all covered over with tyles to defend the rayne-water for hurting of it, which could not to the contrarie but receiue damage, for that there is no lyme vied in the whole wall. They have not one Cattle in all this Citie, neither is there any yield in all that Kingdome, for all their force and strength is in their Gates, the which bee made very strong, with a double wall, within very broad, betwixt the which are continually many Souldiers, such as doe keepe watch and ward both day and 60 night. Vpon these gates they have much Ordnance, but very ill wrought. The whole wall is Ordnance bad full of battlements, and thereon written the names of fuch Souldrers as are bound to repayre this ther in the time of necessitie. At enery hundred paces they have lodgings, the which are very huge and great : there whereas in the time of necessitie doe remayne and dwell their Captaynes,

Tabin also and

China Feast begun with Sunne-superstition. Tumblers. Play. LIB. II to long as their troubles doe indure, all the wall is fortified with two great mores or ditches, the The Cart

d use noted one within and the other without, the which they doe fill at all times when they please, by fluces which they have from the River for the same purpose, and dee serue of water almost all the houses in the Citie, whereas they have their stanges for the most part full of Fish. This mightie Officis si uated in a great playne, and compassed round about with mightie Rockes and Mountaines, which is the occasion that it is not so healthfull, and the Inhibitants say, that it is by re son of the Mountaines, and many times it is over-flowen in the winter, by spring-tydes from the River. And in that yeere that this doth happen, it doth defirey and ruinate agreat Immigations. part of the Citie, as it was at that time when our people did fee it, for that in the winter before they were troubled with these great tydes, which did them much harme.

Vice-royes

The next day after that our people came into the Citie, the Vice-rey did fend to invite them to dinner to his owne house, whereas he made them a great banquet in the forme following. At their comming vnto the Palace there came forth a great number of Gentlemen, fernants vnto the Vice-roy, to bid them welcome, with great flore of muficke and tokens of mirth. Bung entred into the first Court, they brought them into a mightie Hall that was maruellously well trimmed, wherein was a great number of Tables fet in fuch order, as they were in the banquet that was made them by the Gouernour of Chuncheo, (as hath beene told you) although the number and farniture did farre excell the other. But before they did fit downe, there came vnto them two Captaynes principall men, vnto whom the Vice-roy had committed the charge of the banquet, to doe all things in his name, for that it is a custome in that Kingdome, that Noble men zo must not be present in their banquets they make. So the charge was given vnto them, to make them be merrie, & to bid his ghetts welcome. When they came vnto them they vied great courtefie, and paffed away the time in gallant discourses, till it was time to go to dinner, and that they began to bring in their victuals. Then before they did fit downe, the Captaynes did take each of them a cup in his hand, in manner of a Sorlue, as they doe vie, and being full of Wine, they went together whereas they might discouer the Heaven and offered it vnto the Sunne, and vnto the Saints of heaven, adding thereunto many words of prayers : but principally they did request that the comming of their new ghests might be profitable visto them all, and that the friendship which they did pretend to establish, might be for good both vnto the one and to the other. This their prayer being done, they did spill out the Wine making a great courtefie, then were they to ftraight-wayes filled againe, and making reference vnto their ghefts enery one by himfelfe, they let the Cups downe voon the Tables whereas the Fathers should dine, whereas they were fete. uerie one by himfelie. This being done, the first feruice was fet vpon the boards, and the Captaynes were fet at other Tables. The time which the banquet indured (which was very late) there was great store of muricke of divers Instruments, as of Vials, Gitterns, and Rebuckes, and with them many lesters did make them merricat their dinner. The which being done, the Liyd

Captavits did beare their ghests companie out of the Palace, whereas they did anew invite them to dinner for the next day, in the same Hall: they obeying their request did come, whereas was made unto them a banquet more notable than the first. This day at the banquet was present the Totog. In this second banquet they had as the day before, very much musicke, and a Comedie 10 that indured long, with many prettie and merrie iests : there was also a Tumbler, who did his feates very artificially, as well in vauting in the ayre, as vpon a staffe that two men did hold on their shoulders. Before the Comedie did begin, by their Interpreter the signification thereof was Idolatrous rice to the Same.

Comedies. Tomblers.

Taibino: Pa. qua; asuceff 1 called, other by real on of diuers linguapella:me ges or because they give apnames (as the Tartars call the Cambain, that

All things good cheape.

told them, that the better they might content themselves in the conceiving. The next day they fent the prefent, and those who carryed it in, did afterward give our prople to understand that in opening the prefent, there was a note thereof taken before a Notatie, and straight-wayes put in againe where it was taken out, before the fayd Notarie and other witneffes, the which being done, hee fested it vp, and fent it vnto the Citie of Taybin, vnto the King and his Counfell, for that they have a rigorous Law in that Kingdome, that doth prohibiteall fuch as haue any office of Gouernment, to receiue any present of what qualitie foeuer it bee, 50 without licence of the King or of his Counfell. This is conformal le vnto that, which the Gouernour of Chin, hee did in the presence of our people.

The next day following, the Vice-roy did tend to visite them, and to aske of them a Sword, a Harquebusse and a Flaske : for that hee would cause others to bee made by them, the which they did fend, and afterwards understood, that they had counterfeited the same, although not Citi.) thereto. in fo perfect manner.

Then after a time our people feeing, that their being in that Citie feemed to be long and like to be longer, they did procure to drive away the time in the best manner they could, and went abroad into the Citie, and did by either of them that which they thought best. Whereof they found great abundance, and or to small price, that they bought it almost for nothing. They bought 60 many Bookes that did intreat of divers matters, which they brought with them to the Ilanis. The next day they went to fee the Gates of the Citie, and all fuch curious things as were to bee feene, fofarre as they could learne or understand, which were many. But amongst them all, they one Chappell. faw a jumptuous Temple of their Idols, in whose chiefe Chappell they counted, one bundred and eleuen Idols, besides a great number more that were in other particular Chappels, all were of Three besided and cream toos, one and and gilded; but in especiall three of them that were planinge. ced in the midft of all the rest, the one had three heads proceeding out of one bodie, the one loo- A woman with king on the other in full face, the second was the forme of a Woman with a Child in her armes, childe, the third of a Man apparelled after the forme and rashion, that the Christians doe paynt the Apofiles. Of all the rest some had four armes, and some had fixe, and other eight, and other some maruellous deformed monsters. Before them they had burning Lamps, and many tweet perfumes and finels, but in especiall, before the three above specified.

But when that the Vice-roy did understand, that our people did goe viewing the Citie gates Vice royes In and Temples (and perceiveth that they that gave him the notice did suspect it, that it was to icalouse. some ill intent) therewith hee straight-wayes commanded, that they should not goe forth of their lodging, without his licence : and likewife commanded the Captayne that was their guard not to confent thereunto, as he had done, and likewife that none should carrie them any thing for to fell for he that did it should be punished with whipping. Yet not with standing, they had euery day very sufficient necessaries for their personages in such ample wise, that there did always remayne, and not lacke. In this closenesse and keeping in, they suffered many dayes with much fadnesse, and oppressed with melancholicke humours, to see that their purpose wherefore they went thither feemed to be long, and enery day was worfe and worfe. Yet notwithstanding they did paffe it ouer in the best wife they could, in committing it with heartie zeale vnto God, for whose honour and glory they did attempt that voyage, and prayed vnto him for to moone their 30 hearts to confent, that the religious Fathers might remayne in that Countrey, for to learne the language (as they had begun many dayes before) by which meanes their foules might be faued, and clearely deliuered from the tyrannie of the Deul , who of truth had them in possession, So after many dayes, that they had remayned in that close estate, as aforesayd, they determined for to goe and talke with the Vice-roy, and to bee fully refolued, either to tarrie or returne from whence they came, but were not permitted.

In this order they remayned in the Citie certayne dayes, and for to conclude, either to stay there, or depart the Kingdome, they were resolute, and determined to write a Letter vnto the the Vice-roy. They could finde none that would write this letter for them, although they would

30 haue payed them very well for their paines. Till in the end, by great request and prayings, the Captayne Ononcon did write it for them, and straight-wayes departed vnto the Citie of Ampin, Ampin, that was not farre off, to put away the suspition they might conceiue, that hee did write the letthat was not tarroun, or possible to the first territory of the periodenture the Vice-roy would take it in ill part. Their letter being written, they people in great territory of the periodenture the first territory of the periodenture that the first territory of the periodenture that the periodenture the periodenture that the p found great difficultie in fending the same, for that there was none that would carrie it, neither subjection would they consent, that our men should enter into the Palace to deliver it. But in conclusion, what with requests and gifts, they perswaded their Captayne of their guard to carrie it, who did deliuer the same vnto the Vice-roy, in name of the Castilles, saying, that he tooke it of them to bring it vnto him, for that they did certifie him, that it was a thing that did import very much. Hauing read the letter, he answered that he would give the King to vinterstand thereof, 40 ashee faid at the first time. And in that, touching the Friars remaining in that Countrey to preach, at that time he could make them no answer, for that in such matters, it was first requisite to have the good-will of the Royall Countell. Yet would hee make answer visto the Letter they brought from the Gouernour of Manilla, and that they might depart, and returne againe at such time as they brought Limation prisoner or dead, the which being done, then shall the friendship be concluded which they doe pretend, and to remayne and preach at their will. With this anfwer they remayned without all hope to remaine there, and did incontinent prepare themseliles for to depart from Manilla, and bought many bookes to carrie with them, wherein was comprehended all the fecrets of that Kingdome. By reason whereof, they might give large notice vinto the royall Maiestie of King Philip. The which being understood by the Vice-roy, who had fet

30 fpyes to watch their doings, he did fend them word that they should not trouble themselves in the buying of bookes, for that he would gue them freely, all such bookes as they would define to haue : the which afterwards hee did not accomplish.

In the meane time that they stayed in this Citie, amongst all other things that they underflood, to drive away the time was one, it was given them to understand that in one of the Prifons, there was a Portugall prisoner, who was taken in a ship of the Iapones, with others of his Nation, who were all dead in the Prifon, and none left aftue but hee alone. Our people being very definous for to fee him, and to learne of him some secrets of that Country, for that hee had A Paragal private of the country of the cou beene there a great while, they did procure to talke with him, asking licence of the supreame soner. ludge and Lieutenant vinto the Vice-roy, who did not onely refuie to grant it them, but 6c did make diligent inquirie who they were, that did give them to understand thereof, for to

Vpon a sodaine there came newes vnto the Citie, that the Rouer Limahon, was vpon the coast of Chineheo, vsing his old accustomed cruelties, and how that he had spoyled and robbed a Towne . Pon the fea coalt. This newes was throughout all the Citie, and appeared to bee true, touching

Su:pition of

304

Tascay another the effect of the deed : yet falle touching the person, for that the Rouer was called Tascay, an Pirat, taken to enemie, and contrarie vinto Limahon : but a friend vinto Vintoquian, of whom wee have spoken of. But thereupon the Vice-roy, and all of the Citie, were comformable in the suspition that they had received, which was that our people were come into that Kingdome vpon some euill pretence, and to fee the fecrets thereof, to fome euill end, which was the occasion that from that time forwards, they shewed them not so good countenance as they did before. These newes was not fo foone come, but straight-wayes the Vice-roy did fend for Omoncon, (who was then returned from his vifiting) and Sinfay, vnto whom he had done courtefie, and given them the tytle of Lortius and Captaynes, and hee did reprehend them very sharpely for that they had brought ouer people thither, and fayd, that they had told him alve, in faying that Limaton was belieged, 10 in such fort that hee could not escape, neither had the Castillos burnt his Ships, and that all was but a made matter amongst themselues, and how that the Captiues which they brought, and fayd that they had taken from Limahon, they had robbed from other places, and fayd that the Spaniards, were spyes that came to discouer the secrets, and strength of the Kingdome, and that they had brought them thither, by force of gifts that they had given them. They answered him with great humilitie, in faying, that in all that which they had fayd they did speake the truth, and that it should appeare at such time, as the newes of the Rouer should bee better knowne, the which if it shall appeare to be contrarie, they were there readie for to suffer whatfoeuer punishment that should bee given them. The Vice-roy being somewhat satisfied with this their iustification, bad them to depart, remitting all things vnto time for the true declarati- 20 on thereof. Then Omoneon, and Sinfay, came straight-wayes to give the Spaniards to vinderstand of all that had passed with the Vice-roy, and what they understood of him, which caused in them so great feare, that for the time which it indured (which was till such time as they vnderflood the truth as aforefayd) they payed very well for their feafts and banquets the which they had made them. All this happened in the time that Omoncon, and Sinfay, were at variance, and fpake many injurious words the one of the other, discouering their intents and deuises, whereby it plainely appeared, that in all that which they had told vnto the Vice-roy, they lyed, but in especiall Omoncon. Sinfay did diffemble, for hee fayd and told vnto all people, that by his order and industrie, our people did fire the Ships of Limabon, and befieged him, with other speeches in the like fort, yet twentie dayes before his comming thither, all was ended and done 30 as appeared. The occasion of their enmitte and falling out, was for that the Vice-roy had giuen vnto Omoneon, a tytle and charge of more honour, then vnto Sinfay, having made betwixt them a confort, that the reward or dignitie should bee equally divided betwixt them, and that the one should speake of the other the best they could, because the Vice-roy should doe them friendship. This condition and confort (as appeareth) was euil performed by Omoncon, being addicted vnto felfe-loue, and feemed vnto him that Sinfay, did not deferue fo much as hee did, for that he was a base man, and of the Sea, and hee of the more nobilitie, and had the office of a Captayne.

Ith this griefe and care remay ned the Spaniards certaine dayes kept close in their lod- 40 gings, and were not visited to often as they were when they first came thither, which did augment very much their feare, till fuch time as they understood, that the Vice-roy either of his owne good-will, or elfe by some particular order from the King and his Counsell, had called together all the Gouernours of that Prouince of Aucheo, to intreat of matters touching Limahon, as also in particular, why and wherefore the Spaniards came thither, and to resolue themfelues wholly in all things require for the fame. So when that they were all come together, Generall con- which was in a short time, and amongst them the Gouernour of Chincheo, who by another name was called Infuanto, they had particular meetings together with the Vice-roy, in the which they were all agreed to have a generall meeting, whereunto should bee called the Castillos, and to demand of them in publike audience, the cause of their comming and being heard, to give 10 them their answer according as they had determined : for the which vpon a day appointed they met all together (but not the Vice-roy) in the house of the Cagontoc, and commanded to come before the Castillos, who did accomplish their request with a great good-will, for that they vnderstood that they were called to entreat of their matter, either to tarrie or depart. So when they came thither, they were commanded to enter into a mightie Hall, whereas they were all fet in verie rich Chayres with great grauitie and maiestie. The Insuanto seemed to bee the chiefest amongst them, but whether it was for that hee was the principallest next vinto the Vice-roy (or as it was told them) for that it was hee that fent Omoncon, in the chase of the Roser Limahon, they knew not, but fo foone as they were entred into the Hall, they were commanded to draw nigh, there, whereas they were all placed, without bidding them to fit downe, neither did 60 they vie any particular circumstances or courtefie. The Infuanto tooke vpon him the charge, and demanded of the Spaniards (by meanes of the Interpreters) what was the occasion of their comming into that Countrey. The Spaniards answered as they thought : and supposed, that at that time it could not bee, but that Limahon was either taken prisoner or slaine. Then did the Insuanto conclude his speech, in saying vnto them that they should returne vnto their owne Countrey to the Hands, and at fuch time as they did bring Limaton, they would conclude all things touching the friendship they requested, and also for the Preaching of the Gospell.

So from that day forwards, they did procure with all hafte for to depart, and gaue the Viceroy to vinderstand thereof, who answered them and sayd, that they should comfort themselves and receive joy and pleafure, and that hee would dispatch them, so soone as the Visitor of that Province was come to Aucheo, which would bee within ten dayes, for that hee had written vnto him, that he should not dispatch them vntill his comming, for that he would see them. From that day forwards, he commanded that fometimes they should let them goe foorth abroad New-moone to recreate themselues, and that they should shew vinto them some particular pleasure or friend. Musters, fhip. So one of them was carryed to fee the Multering of their men of warre, which they have in a common custome throughout all she Kingdome, to doe it the first day of the New-moone. and is fure a thing to bee feene : and they doe it in the field which is joyning vnto the walls of the Citie, in this manner following. There were joyned together little more or leffe then twen- Their admitte, tie thousand Souldiers, Pike-men and Harquebusse shot, who were so expert, that at the sound their Picco, & of the Drum or Trumpet, they straight-wayes put themselves in battle aray, and at another tobe paughts found in a fquadron, and at another the shot doe duide themselves from the rest, and discharge their Pieces with very gallant and good order, and with a trice put themselves againe into their places or flandings : this being done, the Pike-men came foorth and gaue the affault all together, with so good order and consort, that it seemed vnto the Spaniards, that they did exceed all the warlike orders vsed in all the world: and if it were so, that their stomacks and hardinesse were equall vnto their dexteritie, and number of people, it were an easie thing for them to conquer the dominion of all the world. If it so chance, that any Souldier should lacke in his Office, Souldiersare and not repayre to his place appointed, hee is straight-wayes punished very croelly, which is the punished, occasion, that every one of them hath a care vinto his charge. This their Muster indured foure houres, and it was certified vnto the Spaniards, that the fame day and houre it is done in all Cities and Townes, throughout the whole Kingdome, although they are without suspection of enemies.

Fine and twentie dayes after that the Infuance had ginen the resolute answer vnto the Spanse 30 mds, came the Visitor thither : and the whole Citie went foorth to receive him, who entred in with fo great Maiestie, that if they had not knowne who hee was, they could not have been perswaded, but that he had beene the King. The next day following, the Spaniards went to vilite him, for duties fake, as also for that hee had a defire to see them. They tound him in his lodging, where he began to make visitation of the Citie. In their Courts were an infinite number Manner of his of people, which came thither with Petitions and complaynts, but in the Halls within, there Courts, was none but his Seruants and Sergeants. When that any came for to prefent his Petition, the Porter that was at the entrie made a great noyle, in manner of an O est, for that it was a good way from the place whereas the Visitor did fit, then commeth foorth straight-wayes one of his Pages, and taketh the Petition, and carryeth it vnto him. At this time it was told him how 40 that the Castillas were there : hee commanded that they should enter, and talked with them a few words, but with great courtefie, and all was touching the Imprisonment of Limabon, without making any mention of their departure or tarrying. So after a while that hee had beheld them and their apparell, he tooke his leave of them, faying that by reason of the great businesse hee had in that visitation, he could not shew them any courtese, neither to vinderstand of them what their request and defire was, but gaue them great thankes for their courtefie snewed, in that they would come to visite him.

Three dayes after the Visitor was come thither, the Infuanto departed for his owne house, with order that with all speed possible, hee should ordayne Ships wherein the Castellas should returne vnto the Philippinas. Likewise the same day, all those that were there assembled by the 30 order of the Vice-roy, departed vnto their owne houses. And the Spaniards were commanded for to flay vntill the full of the Moone, which should bee the twentieth of August, and that day they should take their leave of them: for on that day amongst them, it is holden for good to begin any thing what soeuer. Wherein they doe wie great superfittion, and doe make many ban. Superfittion.

quets, as voon New-yeeres day.

The day before the departure of the Spaniards, there came forme in behalfe of the Vice-roy to inuite them, and made them banquet in the order and fashion as at the first : alchough this (for plement, that it was at their departure) was more sumptuous, wherein was represented a Comedie, which was very excellent and good, whose argument was first declared vnto them. All the which they did represent so naturally, and with so good apparell and personages, that it seemed a thing to 6c passe in Act. There was not in this banquet the Vice-roy, but those Captaynes which were there the first time : and another Captayne, vnto whom was given the charge to bring the Spaniar de vnto Manilla, who was called Chantalay, a principall Captayne of that Prouince. When the banquet was ended, they were carryed with great companie from the Hall whereas the banquet was made, vnto the house of the Cogontoc, who was the Kings Treaturer, & dwelt there hard by Treaturer.

306 Presents for the Spaniards China superstition at the Friers parting LIB. II.

Prefence.

of whom they were maruelloully well received with louing words and great courtefie: in fav. ing that he hoped very shortly to fee them againe, at such timeas they shall returne with Limabon, and that as then their friendship should be fully concluded, and would intreat with them in particular of other matters. This being done, he gaue wnto them a Present for to carrie wnto the Gouernour of Manilla in recompence of that which was fent vnto the Vice-roy: the Prefent was forty pieces of Silke and twentie pieces of Burare, a Litter Chaire and gilt, and two Quitafoles of Silke, and a Horfe. Likewise hee sent the like Present unto the Generall of the field, and to either of them a Letter in particular; these things were put in Chists which were very faire and gilt. Belides this he gaue other forty pieces of Silke of all colours for to bee parted afaire and gult. Beindes this ne game some 100.5 percease of the field of Limabon, with three hundred mongfield Captaines and other Officers that were at the field of Limabon, with three hundred mongfield Captaines. Befoles ill that he follows: blacke Mantles and as many Quitafoles to be parted among it the Souldiers. Besides all these, he gaue vnto the Friers each of them eight pieces of Silke, and vnto the Souldiers their companions foure pieces of each of them, and to every one his Horse and a Quitasol of Silke; their Horfes were very good to trauell by the way. This being done, the Cogorroe sooke his leave of them, and willed them to goe and take leave and licence of the Vice-roy and the Vistor, that they might depart, for that all things were in a readineffe for their Voyage: the which commandement they did straight-wayes accomplish, being very well content and satisfied of the great fauours and courtefies, the which they received both of the one and the other: Likewise of the Torce, is Captaine Generall, whom they also did visit and tooke their leaue.

Captains General, whom they also one vine and cooks who a Tuefday, being the three and The Spaniards departed from the Citie of Auctor, appearance of the Citie who came forth to Captain 10 twentieth of August in the fight of all the people of the Citie, who came forth to fee them with fo great presse and throng, as they did when they first came thither into the Country; they were all carried in Litter Chaires, yea, their very flaues, for that it was so commanded by the Vice-roy : the Friers were carried by eight men a piece, and the Souldiers by foure men a piece, and all their Seruants and Slaues were carried by two men a piece. Looke so many men as was to carrie them, there went fo many more to helpe them when they waxed wearie, befides foure and twentie that carried their Stuffe. There went alwayes before them a Harbinger for to prouide their Lodgings, and with him went a Pay-master, whose charge was to ordaine and prouide men for to carrie their Litter Chaires , and to give them for their travell that which is accustomed, and to pay all costs and charges spent by the Spaniard.

After that they departed from Anches, they made of two dayes Journey one, which was the 30 occasion that they came to Chinches in foure dayes. At their entring into the Citie they found a Servant of the Infinante, with order and commandement, that they should proceed forwards on their lourney, and not to flay in the Citie, but to goe wato the Port of Tanfuso, whither he will come the next day following. They obeyed his commandement, and made so much haste that in two dayes they came vnto the Village of Tangon, whereas they had beene before, and particular mention made thereof. In the same Village they were lodged, well entertayned and had great good cheere : from thence they went in one day to Tanfujo, which was the first Port wheras they did dif-imbarke themselues; when as they came from the Hands vinto that firme Land: the Intice of the Towne did lodge them in the same House whereas they were first lodged, and 40 did provide for them of all things necessary and needfull, and that in abundance, till the comming of the Infuanto, which was within foure dayes after, for that hee could not come any fooner (although his desire was) for that it was very foule weather.

The third of September, the Infranto fent and commanded the Spaniards that they should imbark themselues, for that it was that day the conjunction of the Moone (although at that time the thips were not fully in a readinesse.) They obeyed his commandement, and the Infranto himselfe went to the water fide, in whose presence came thither certaine Religious men of their manner, and after their fashion they made Sacrifice with certaine Prayers, in the which they craued of the Heanens to give good and faire weather, and a fure Voyage and favourable Seas vnto all those that faile in those thips. This Ceremony being done (which is a thing very much vsed in that to Countrey) the Spaniards went unto the Infuance, who was there with great company and Maiestie: he entertayned them very friendly and with cheerefull words making an outward shew that he bare them great loue, and that their departure was vnto him a great griefe. Then he requested them to give him a remembrance of such things as was necessary and needfull for their prouitiou for the Sea, for that he would give order for the prouiding of the fame, the which hee did, and was with so great abundance that they had for the Voyage, and remayned a great deale to spare. He then commanded to be brought thither Cates to eate and drinke, and gaue it them with his owne hands, as well the one as the other: he himtelfe did eate and drinke with them, which is the greatest fauour that can be shewed amongst them. The Banket being ended, he commanded them in his presence to goe aboard their ships, because that was a luckie day, and allo to 60 accomplish that which the Vice-roy had comanded, which was that he should not depart from thence, vntill they had first seene them imbarked. The Spaniards obeyed the commandement, and tooke their leane of the Infuanto, with great courtefie and reverence, and with outward shewes that they remayned indebted for the great courteste & good will that they had received:

CH AP. 3. S.4. Oxe facrificed. Farewell-feaft. Ilands on the Coaft.

and therwith they departed to the waters fide, towards the Boat which was tarrying for them. As they paffed by the Religious men (that before we spake of) they saw a great Table set, and vpon it a whole Oxe with his throat cut, and hard by the fame a Hogge and a Goate, and other things to be eaten : the which they had ordained for to make Sacrifice, which they doe vie in the

They being imbarked in the Boate, they were carried aboard the Admirall, which was the thip appointed for them to goe in : then presently they beganne to flirre the thip, from one place vnto another with certaine Boats and Cables which they had there readie for the same purpose. The ship did not so soone begin to moone, but the Religious men ashoare did beginne their Sato crifice, the which did indure vntill night, ending their Feafts and Triumphs in putting forth of the Citie, and upon their Gates many Creffets and Lights. The Souldiers shot off all their Harquabuffes, and the shippes that were in the Port shot off all their Artillerie, and on the shoare a great noyle of Drummes and Bels : all the which being ended and done, the Spaniards went ashoare againe vnto their Lodging: but first the Infuanto was departed vnto his owne House, with all the company that he brought with him.

The next day the faid Influente did inuite them vnto a Banket, which was as famous as any Influentes farewhich had beene made them vnto that time. He was at the Banket himselfe, and the Captaine well Feat. Generall of all that Province. There was abundance of meates and many pretie deuises to passe away the time, which made the Banket to indure more then foure houres: the which being done, 20 there was brought forth the Present which the Insuano did fend vnto the Gouernour of Manil-

lain returne of that which was fent to him. The Present was fourteene pieces of filke for the Gouernour of Manilla, and ten pieces for the Generall of the field : he also commanded to be given vnto the Friers each of them foure pieces, and vnto the Souldiers each of them two pieces, and unto their Seruants and Slaves certaine painted Mantels, and therewith hee tooke his leave of them very friendly, and gaue vnto them Letters, the which he had wrote vnto the Gouernour. and vnto the Generall of the field, answere vnto those, the which they had wrote vnto him, and faid that all things necessary for their departure was in a readinesse, with victuals for tenne Tenmonths moneths put aboard their ships, so that when as wind and weather did serue they might depart. prousson

Alfo that if in their Voyage it should so fall out, that any of the Chinois that went in their ships.

30 should doe vnto them any euill; either abroad or at the Ilands : that the Gouernour thereof should punish them at his pleasure, and how that the Vice-roy will thinke well thereof : In conclusion, he said vnto them, that he hoped to see them there againe very shortly, and to returne againe with Limaton, and then he would supply the wants which now they lacked. The Spamiards did kiffe his hands, and faid; that they had received in courtefie more then they deferred, and that in all things, there did abound and not lack, that they remained greatly indebted vnto him for their friendship, and would give their King notice thereof, that whensoever occasion should be offered, to repay them with the like : and therewith the Infrante departed to his owne House, leaving in the company of the Spaniards five Captains, those which should go with them in their company to Sea, and also Omoncon and Sinfay who were that day in the Banket, with 40 the Habit and Enigne of Loytin, for that the day before it was given vnto them by the Infamento. Vpon Wednesday which was the fourteenth of September, the wind came faire, wherewith they hoyfed up their Sayles and went to Sea : at their departure there was at the waters fide the Infranto and the Inflice of Chinches to fee them fayle, they fayled forwards directing their course towards a small Hand that was not farre off, with determination there to take water for their ships, for that it had in it many Rivers of very sweet water. Within a small space they arriued there, and it had a very faire and fure Port, wherein might ride in fecuritie a great Nauy of thips. All Thursday they were there recreating and sporting themselues, for that it was a pleasant Iland, and full of fresh Ruiers. Vpon Friday being the fixteenth of September, the day being somewhat spent, they made saile and tooke Port source leagues from that place in another 50 Hand called Lands, for to put themselves in a new course, different and contrary vnto that which Lands, they tooke when they came vnto that Kingdome, for that the Chinois had by experience proued, that in those monethes the winds were more favourable then in other monethes, and for Monsons. the most part North and North-east winds: all that night they remained in that Iland, and the next day following they fayled unto another Hand which was called [haminho, not farre diffant chaninho, from that of Lauls. This lland was full of little Townes, one of them was called Gantin, which Gautin. had fine Forts of Towers made of Lime and stone, very thicke and strongly wrought: they were all foure square, and fixe fathome high, and were made of purpose for to receive into them all the people of those little Townes, to defend themselves from Rouers and Theeves that daily

They very much noted, that although this Hand were rockie and fandie, yet was it tilled and fowed full of Rice, Wheate, and other Seeds and Graine. There was in it great store of Kine Kine and and Horie, and they understood that they were gouerned, not by one particular man, to whom Commonthey were subject, neither by any other among it themselves, nor of China, but in common yet wealth. notwithstanding they lived in great peace and quietnesse, for that every one did content himselfe with his owne. Vpon Sunday in the afternoone they departed from this Hand, and fayled their course all that night, at the next morning they arrived at another Iland, called Corche, which was twentie leagues from the Port of Tanfuso, from whence they departed. The Speniards feeing what leiture they tooke in this their Voyage, they requested the Captaines to command the Mariners that they should not enter into so many Ports or Harbours. The Captaines and fwered , and requested them to haue patience , for that in making their Iournies as they did. they doe accomplish and follow the order set downe by the Vice-roy and Infranto, the Chimic are very fearefull of the Sea, and men that are not accustomed to inguise themselues too farre, Accon.

Corcha.

Neere vnto this Hand there was another somewhat bigger, which is called Ancon, wholly to dispeopled and without any dwellers, yet a better Countrey and more profitable for to sow and reape then that of Corchu. The Spaniards being at an Anchor there, vnderstood by the Chinese that in times past it was very well inhabited, vinto the which arrived a great Fleet belonging to the King of China, and by a great storme were all cast away vpon the same: the which lose and destruction being understood by another Generall that had the Guard of that Coast, suspecting that the dwellers thereof had done that flaughter, hee came to the shoare and slue many of the Inhabitants, and carried all the reft in their ships vnto the firme Land, who afterwards would neuer returne thither againe, although they gave them licence after that they understood the truth of that successe: so that vnto that time it remained dispeopled, and full of wilde Swine, of the brood that remained there at fuch time as they were saine and carried away as you have 20

A ftraight.

This lland and the rest adjoyning thereunto (which are very many) have very excellent and fure Ports and Hauens, with great store of fish. These Ilands endured vntill they came vnto a little Gulfe, which is fine and fortie leagues ouer, and is fayled in one day, and at the end shereof is the Port of Cabite, which is necre vnto Manilla. So when that winde and weather ferued their turne, they departed from the lland of Ancon, and failed till they came vnto another lland called Plon, where they understood by a ship that was there a fishing, how that the Rouer Limabon was escaped in certaine Barkes, which he caused to bee made very secretly within his Fort, of such Timber and Boards as remained of his ships that were burnt, the which was brought in by night by his Souldiers, on that fide of the Fort which was next vnto the River, and were 20 not discourred by the Castillas, which were put there with all care and diligence to keepe the mouth that come in to helpe them. And towards the Land there whereas he might escape, they were without all suspection (they were so strong) and did not mistrust that any such thing should be put in vre, as afterwards did fail out, the warch was executed with fo great policie and craft, that when they came to viderstand it, the Rouer was cleane gone, and in safeguard, calking his Barkes at the Iland of Tocaorican, the better for to escape and saue himselfe, and they said, that it was but eight dayes past that he fled. With this newes they all received great alteration. but in especiall Omoncon and Sinfay.

After they had remained three weeks in that Harbour detayned with a mighty North-wind, that neuer calmed night nor day in all that time. The eleventh day of October two houres before 40 day, they set layle and went to Sea. Sixteene leagues from the Port, failing towards the South, they discourred a mightie Hand very high Land, which was called Tangarruan, and was of three fcore leagues about, all inhabited with people like vnto those of the Hands Philippinas. Vpon Sunday in the morning being the seuenteenth day of October, they discourred the Iland of Ma-From the Phi. milla, of them greatly defired, they fayled towards the Hand that they follong defired to fee, and lippinato the came thither the twentie eight day of October, as aforesaid. So that from the Port of Taninio, which is the first Port of China, till they came vnto the Iland of Manilla, they were five and fortie dayes, and is not in all tul two hundred leagues, which may be made with reasonable weather in ten daves at the most. I could have here added two other Voyages of Franciscans, to China, the one by Peter de Alfaro, 10 and other three of his Order, 1579. the other 1582. by Ignatio, &c. both written at large by Mendo-Za. But I haften to our lefuites exacter Relations. Only I will conclude thu Storie with Alfaros returne from China to the Philippinas; and his Relation of their Witch-crafts vied in a Tempel then happening : after that two Letters mentioning English ships on that Coast.

But it so fell out, as they were going along it the Coast of the lland for to enter into the Port of Manilla, and being within fine leagues of the entry thereof, vpon a fudden there arose the North-wind with fo great furie, and caused so great a Sea, that they found themselues in a great deal- more danger then in the other storme past, in such fort that they sponed before the winde with their fore fayle halte Mast high, shaking it selfe all to pieces, and in every minute of an houre readie to be drowned. The Chinois for that they are Superfittious and Witches, beganne 69 to invocate and call upon the Deuill, for to bring them out of that trouble (which is a thing commonly vied among it them, at all times when they find themfelues in the like perplexitie) also they doe request of him to thew them what they should do to bring themselves out of trouble. But when the Spaniards understood their dealings, they did diffurbe them that they should not perfeuer in their Lots and Inuocations, and beganne to conjure the Deuils, which was the occation that they would not answere vnto the Innocation of the Chines, who did call them after guinft conjuduers manners, yet they heard a Deuill fay, that they should not blame them because they did ring. not answere into their demand, for they could not doe it for that they were disturbed by the conjuration of those Spanish Fathers, which they carried with them in their ship.

So presently when the night was come, God was so pleased that the storme ceased, and became in few houres very calme, although it endured but a while, for as they began to fet fayle to nauigate towards the Port, and almost at the point to enter into the same, a new storme feized on them, and with fo great force, that they were constrayned to returne vnto the Sea, for to feare to bee broken in pieces vpon the shoare. The Chimos began anew to innocate the Deuils Innocation by

by writing, which is a way that they neuer let but doe answere them, as they did at this in- writing, flant , and were not diffurbed by the conjurations of the Fathers, yet notwithflanding they lyed in their answer, for that they faid, that within three dayes they should be within the Citie of Manilla, and after it was more then foure dayes.

In conclusion, having by the favour of almightie God overcome all their travels by the Sea. and the necessitie of the lacke of water and victuals, they arrived at the defired Port the second day of February, Anno 1580, whereas they were received by the Governour, and of all the rest with great ioy, &c.

Two Letters taken out of BARTOLOME LEONARDO DE ARGENSOLA his Treatife, called Conquista de las Islas Malucas, Printed at Madrid, 1609. pagg. 336.

337. mentioning the comming of two English ships to China: which seeme to bee two thips of the fleet of * BENIAMIN WOOD: The former written by the Visitor of Chincheo in China.

vnto the Gouernor of the Philippinas, Don PEDRO DE ACVINA.

* See sup. L3.

30 To the grand Captaine of Luzon. Becanse wee have understood, that the Chineses, which went I sound this to trade and trafficke into the Kingdome of Luzon, have beene staine by the Spaniards, wee have translat with made inquisition of the cause of these samplests, and have befought the King to doe sustice on him, that half been the cause of so great muschiefe, to procure a remedie for the time to come, and that the Mer. chants may like in peace and fafety. In the yeares past, before I came hither to be Visitour, a certaine Sangley, called Tiones, with three Mandarines or ludges having the Kings Paffe, came to Cabit in Tiones. Luzon, to feeke Gold and Silver: which was all lyes: because he found neither Gold nor Silver. And therefore I befought the King, that he would punish this decemer Tioneg, that the good instice that is vied in China might be knowne. In the time of the former Vice-roy, and Capado, Tioneg and his companion Yanlion delinered this virtuth. I afterward befought the King , that hee would cause all

40 the Papers of the cause of Tiones to be coppied out, and that he would send for the said Tiones with his processes before himselfe: And I my selfe saw the said Papers, and caused it to appeare that all was but lyes which the faid Tioneg had faid. I wrote vato the King , faying , That by reason of the lyes which Tioneg had made, the Castillians suspected that wee sought to make warre upon them: and that therefore they had slayne about thirtie thousand Chineses in Luzon. The King did that which 30000 chineses I befought him. And so be chastisfed the faid Yanlion, commanding him to bee put to death. And flaine in the hee commanded Tioneg bead to be cut off, and to be put in a Cage. The people of China which were flame in Luzon, were in no fault. And I with others regotiated this businesse with the King , that I might know his pleasure in this affaire: and in another matter, which was this: That there came two Two English might know his pleasure in this affaire: and in another matter, which was this: 1 that there came two thirs on the English ships to these coasts of Chincheo; a thing very dangerous for China: That the King might coast of this. consider what was to bee done in these two matters of so great importance. Likewise were wrote vato theo in China,

50 the King, that be would command the two Sangleys to be punished, which thewed the Hauen to the Eng- I salouke of lithmen. And after wee had written thefe things aforefaid to the King, he as fivered us that wee should Strangers. tearne, wherefore the English forps came unto hina? whether they came to robbe or no? That they should dispaich from thence a Messenger immediatly to Luzon: and that they should signific to them of Luzon, that they stould not give credite to the base and lying people of China : And this forthwith they Should put to death those two Sangleyes, which shewed the Hanen to the Englishmen. And touching Danger of the rest that wee wrote unto him, wee would doe as wee thought best. After wee had received this or- bringing thips der, the Vice-voy, the Capado, and I fent this meffage to the Gouernour of Luzon : That his Lordfing uen, might know the greatnesse of the King of China. Seeing bee is so mightie, that bee governeth all that China ambi. the Moone and Sunne doe thine upon. And also that the Gonernour of Luzon may know the great tion. 60 wifedome wherewith this might; Kingdome is governed. Which Kingdome this long while none durst lajonian at-attempt to offend. And albert the Japonians have presended to disquiet Corea, which is under the Go-Core is vadet wermment of China: yet they could not obtayne their purpose : but they were driven out of it : And China. Corea hath remajned in great peace and fafety, as at this day they of Lazon doe well underflard.

The Answer of Don PEDRO DE ACYNNA, Gouernour of the Philippina, to the Visitour of Chincheo in China.

"He Couernour answered these Letters by the same Messengers that brought them: vsing terms The Control of apparent toojs Letters of the June supering the Singleyes, from the beginning:
full of course fie and authoritie. Her rebearfed the rebellion of the Singleyes, from the beginning: He sufficed the defense of the Spaniards, and the pansforment that was executed upon the Offenders. Hee faid, that no Common wealth can be gonerned without chaffifing the bad, nor without temading the good. And therefore that he did not repent him of that execution: because it was done for reprethe good. And therefore come neumon superior to the good of the state the case should happen in China. That the griefe that be bad was , that he could not same certaine Sangleyes Merchants Annayes, which died among the offenders : But that this was unpossible to be remedied; because the surve of warre doth not give leave to kill some, and to save others, especially being not area; vecume of the Soulders in the heate of battell. That ofing mercy to those that remayned aline, condenned them so rowe in the Galleyes: which is the funiforment, which is order ned among the Castillians for those that have described death. Test if it seems in China that it ought to be moderated, bee would grant them libertie. But let it be considered, faid Don Pedro, that this may be a cause, that in not chassis. fing fo great an effence, they may bereafter fall egame into the fame. A thing that wend fint up all acciffe uno fauour. Tout the coods of the Chinetes that were flame are in fafe cuffodit. And that it may be feene, that no other affection moneth mee then that of suffice, I will frontly fend them to be deli- 20 sured to the right Herres, or unto fuch persons as of right they belong unto. None other respect mounts mee to any of these things, but that of reason. Whereas you tell mee, That if I will not set at theorie shofe presoners, licence will be granted in China to the kinsfelke of those which died in the Rebillion, to come with an Armie to Manila, it breedeth no feare in mee. For I hold the Chineses to be fo wife, that they will not be moved to such things upon so weake a ground: especially none occasion thereof buy given them on our part. And in case they should be of another minde, wee Spaniards are a People which know very wellhow to defend our Right, Religion , and Territories. And let not the Chineles thinks, that Chinaptide te- they are Lords of all the World, as they would have vs thinks. For wee Cafillians, which have meafured the World with spannes, know perfectly the Countrejes of China. Wherefore they shall doe well to take knowledge , that the King of Spaine bath continual warres with as mighty Kings as theirs is, 30 and doth suppresse them, and putterb them to great troubles. And it is no new case, that when our enemies thinke that they have varquished vs, they finde vs marching and destroying the Consines of their Land, and not to cease, untill wee have east them out of their Thrones, and taken their Scepters from them. I would be much grieved with the change of the commerce: But I believe also that the Chineses would not willingly lose it, since that thereby they obtaine so great profit, carrying to their Kingdome our Siluer, which neuer faileth in trucke of their merchandife, which are flight things, and

The ships of the Englishmen, which arrived on the coast of China, it was determined not to receive: because they be no Spaniards, but rather " their enemies, and Pirats. Wherefore if they come to Mathips spoken of nila, they shall be pumished. Finally, b. cause wee Spaniards doe alwaies instifice our causes, and doe boait 40 tions to you we promise to many the major to be used to have the variety other ment pelfellion; no runde our free that the things other ment pelfellion; no runde our freends, that that the fall be fulfilled which is here promised. And from home for and it is them know in China, according to that weeneuer doe any thing for feare, nor for threats of our enemies. Don Pedro concludeth, offering consumance of amitie by new bonds of peace with the Kingdomes of China: and that he will fet at the bertie in due time the Prisoners which he held in the Gallytes: albeit he thought to vife them, as he did, in the voyage of Maluco; which be put in execution with speed. And all this he precisely performed.

CHAP. IIII.

The report of a Mahometan Merchant which had beene in Cambalu: and the troublesome trauell of BENEDICTY'S GOES, 4 Portugall Icfuite , from Lahor to China by land , thorow the Tartars Countreyes.

Epift. Eman.

the mucuall

hestilitie of those times.

310

Xatai and Xam. balu, for Carai and cambaly.

Erome Xauere a lefuite, in a Letter from Labor in India, fubiect to the Mogoli, dated, August, 1598, relateth that an old man there knowne to have distributed 100000. Peeces of Gold at Mecca, affirmed to the Prince that he had lived in Xatai thirteene yeeres, in Xambalu the chiefe Citie; that the King thereof 69 was mighty, and had in his Empire one thouland and fiftie Cities, fome very populous; that he had often feene the King, with whom no man speakes but by cagar.

a Supplication, nor is answered but by an Eunuch. And asked how hee had accesse thither, he faid, he being a Merchant sultayned also the person of the Embassadour of the King of Congar.

and being detained in the first Citie by the Magistrate, he shewed his Commission, and Poste was presently fent to the King, who returned in a moneth, riding ninety or an hundred courses a A Course or day, with change of Hories; bringing him Letters of admission. Hee faid that they punish Co'eisamile theenes senerely: that these Xaitaians are white, long bearded, personable, and comely, therein and halfe, and to be preferred before the Rumes or Turkes; in Religion Ifamtes (Christians, to called of lefus) includes and many Mahamatan information that they bound to be miles. fome Musanites or lewes, and many Mahametans, infomuch that they hoped to bring the Chrisfian King to that Sect. They had ( he faid to the lefaire in another conference) many Temples. and Images painted and grauen, and Crucifixes which they with great denotion worshipped; many Priests, much reuerenced, each having his owne Church; to whom they offer their gifts, 10 they lived fingle and kept Schooles; one supereminent: at the Kings tharge were the Churches built and repaired; they ware blacke clothes, and on holidayes red; with Caps like the lefantes; but greater; many Monasteries of both Sexes, and some in their owne houses, observing a single life: the Countrey rich, having many filter Mines; and that the King had foure hundred Elephants, which they faid were brought from Malaca, and that Merchants referred thither; the Voyage fixe moneths. Xauerius addeth, that in Caximir he heard of many Christidins in Rebat, a Kingdome adioyning to Catai, with Churches, Priests, and Bishops. These reports (sayth the like, which the Deuill hath imitated among the Chinois like to our (Romillo) Rites, Their reports caused the lefuites in India to thinke of fending one of their Society into those parts. Pimenta the Father Vilitour fent notice thereof to the Pope, and to the King of Spaine, who tooke Order with the Vice-roy to be aduised herein by Pimenta. Benedictus Goez a brother of that Society and Coadjutor to Xauerine, was thought hit for that deligne, having the Persian tongue. And having come from Echebar (father of the present Mogol) who had lately taken De chris.exp. tongue. And latting come from ecosoar (latter of the present exagger) who had lattery saach Brampor, with his Legat, to Goa; hee was fent backe to Labor, to accompanie the Merchants; ditaps small; cityling. which every fifth yeere, as that Saracen related, with title of Legats of the King of Persia, and Lamethe free, other Easterne Kings (not otherwise admitted ) went thither. In the yeere therefore 1602, he Inditaction went to Agra, where Echebar applauded his purpose, and gaue him foure hundred Crownes for his iourney, besides a thousand Rupias hee had already spent. He changed his habite, and dif-

Trigantino) the Saracens made, either of purpose to deceive, after their wont; or were deceived by like shew of Holies in Images, Lamps, Altars, Priests vestments, Processions, Singings, and 30 guifed himselfe like an Armenian Merchant, and so went to Labor, calling himselfe Branda Abedula, whither he came on the eight of December. He went to the house of Iohn Galisco a Venetian, and there provided himselfe of necessaries, wearing his haire and beard long, and Leo Grimone a Greeke, well skilled in Turkish and Persian, undertaking to be his companion, with Demetrius another Greeke, and Isaac an Armenian. Furnished with diners writings and a Catalogue of moucable Feaths till An. 1610. he fet forth An. 1603, the fixth of Ianuarie from his Superiour, and in Lent after from Labor, with the companie of Metchants which got from the Mogols to Cafear, almost fine hundred men, with many Camels and carriages.

In a moneths journey they came to a Citie called Atbee; in the Province of Labor; and after Albee, fitteene dayes, passed a River a slight shot broad, where they stayed five dayes, being told of 40 theeues in great number at hand. Two moneths after they came to another Civie called Pallanr, Pallann, where they rested twentie dayes. Thence they going to another small Towne, met with a certaine Anchorite a stranger, by whom they understood that thirtie dayes off was a Citie named Capherstam, into which the Saracens are not permitted entrance, and if they enter are put to Carberstam. death. But Erhnike Merchants are admitted their Citie, yet not their Temples. Hee faid, that the Inhabitants of that Region goe to Church all of them in blacke; their Countrey fertile, and plentifull of Grapes. Hereby Goes forposed that they were Christians, In the place where they found this stranger, they stayed other twentie dayes. And because the way was infested with Theeues they received of the Lord of the place a Conuoy of foure hundred Souldiers, In fine and twentie dayes they came from hence to a place called Ghideli, all which way their carriages Ghideli, 50 went at the foot of a Hill. The Merchants with Armes on the tops of the Hill made fearth for Theeues, which vie to throw Hones from thence on the Paffengers, except thus prevented. In this place the Merchants pay Tribute. Being affaulted by Theeues many were wounded, and they had much adoe to faue their lives and goods. Benedict escaped by flight into the Woods. At night they came againe together, and anoyded the Theenes. Atter other twentie dayes iourney they came to Cabul, a Citicand Mart frequent, not yet having paffed the Mogols Do- cabul, minions. Here they stayed eight dayes : for some of the Merchants would goe no further, and others durst not, being so few. In this Mart the Sister of the King of Cafear, by whose Dominion they were to passe to Catay, happened on the Carauan. The Kings name was Massamet Can; this his Sifter was Mother to the King of Cotan , and called Agebanem ( Age is a title gi-60 uen by the Suracens to those which have beene on Pilgrimage at Mecca, whence she now returned.) Being destitute of prouision for her journey, shee demanded aide of the Merchants, promifing to reftore all faithfully with encrease when they were comne to her Kingdome. Goes thought it a ht occasion to procure the friendship of another King, his Mogoll Patents now wearing out. Hee lent her therefore on fale of fome goods fixe hundred Crownes, refuing any contract of interest, which shee bountifully repayed in pieces of Marble much esteemed in Coma, the best merchandise for such as goe to Catag. Lee Grimane the Priest, wearied with the Miroje much vilued in china tedioutnetle of the journey, went no further, and Demerius stayed in this Citie on merchandifing affaires. Goes held on with Isaac the Armenian, in the companie of other Merchants, which gaus likelihood of better fecuritie. The first Citie they came at was called Corracor, in which place is great flore of Iron. Here Goes was not a little troubled, the Mogols Seale in these his borders being neglected, which all this way hitherto had freed him from payment Paramenthe ex- of Cultomes, Ten dayes after they came to a small Towne, called Paramen, the vimost of the of the Mogoll.

A kind of Ciaracar.

Aingbaran. Gialalabath.

Cheman.

After fine dayes flay, they had twentie dayes journey ouer high Mountaines into a Region 10 named Aingharan. In fifteene dayes more they came to Calora. The people of this Region hath yellow haire on head and beard like the Low-Countrey-men, and dwell in divers Villages. Ten dayes after, they came to a place called Gialalabath, where the Bramanes exact Customes granted them by the King Bruarase. After other fifteene dayes they came to Talban, where Civil broiles detayned them a moneth; the Calciums rebelling and endangering the wayes, Hence they passed to Cheman. Vnder Abdulaban King of Samarban, Burgania, and Bacharate, and of other neighbouring Kingdomes, is a small Towne, the Captaine whereof sent to the Merchants to containe themselues within the walls, the Calcians infesting all without. They answered. that they would pay their Cultomes, and purfue their iourney by night. But hee forbad them, faying, that the Rebels had no Hories as yet, which if they could take from the Carauan, they 16 would proue more mischieuous: much better it were, if they would ioyne with him to repell them. Scarcely were they comne to the walls, when the rumour came of the Calcians comming : at which newes the Captaine and his ranno away. The Merchants erected a sudden fortification of their packes, and carried into the same great store of stones to serve their turnes if Arrowes failed. The Calcians perceiuing that, fent a meffage to the Merchants, that they should feare nothing, for they would accompanie and defend them. They durst not trust them, but resolued to flee to the next Wood, the Theenes taking out of the packes what they pleafed, and then calling them forth, and permitting them with their emptied packes to enter the emptie walls. Benedict lost nothing but a Horse, for which also hee after received Cotton clothes. They hued within the walls in great feare. But at that time a great Captaine, named 10 Olobet Ebadafcan, fent his Brother out of the Bucharate Region to the Rebels, which caufed them to permit the Merchants to goe freely: in all which iourney the Rere was vexed with Pilferers. Foure of them fet vpon Goes, to escape whom hee threw amongst them his Persian Turbant, whereof they making a foot-ball, hee meane while fet spurres to his Horse and ouer-Eight dayes after with a tedious passage they came to Badascian, called Tengi, which signifieth A troublesome way : for there is space but for one to passe, and that on the high banke of a great River. The Inhabitants with a companie of Souldiers fet vpon the Merchants, and tooke from Goes three Horses, which he after redeemed with gifts. Here they stayed ten dayes, and open field, and were besides assaulted by Theeues. Ten dayes after they arrived at Serpanil, a place quite forfaken. They climbed into a high Hill, called Sacretbma, whither the ftrongest Horses were only able to passe, the rest going about. Two of Goes his Horses halted, and had much adoe to our take their fellowes. In twentie dayes journey comming to the Province Sarcil, they there found many neighbouring Villages. After two dayes stay for refreshing, they in two dayes more came to the foot of a Hill, termed Ciecialish, which they alcended, thicke co-nered with Snow, wherewith many were frozen, and Goes was in great danger. For the Snow held them fixe dayes; after which they came to Tangetar, which belongs to the Kingdome of Cafear. There Ifaac the Armenian fell from the banke of a great River into the water , and fuch an ill way that Goez loft fixe Horfes with the travell. In five dayes he got ( halting before the companie) to the chiefe Citie named Hiarchan, whence hee prouided his companions of ne-was eight houres space halfe dead. In fifteene dayes more they attayned the Towne laconich, so thence in one day came to Ciarciunar, where they were hur dayes detayned with raines in the 40

TengiBadascian.

Serpanil.

Sarcil. Snowie way.

Hiarchan.

Hiarchan the Seat Royall of the Kingdome of Cascar, hath great refort of Merchants, and is also well flored with variety of merchandile. The Carauan of Cabul here ends their Voyage: Catag-Carenan and from thence to Catag is a new one furnished, the Captainship whereof the King sellethat ceffaries, who foone after arrived there in November, 1603.

Precious

a great price, and conferreth on the Captaine Regall power over the Merchants thorowall that way. It was a yeeres space before they could all bee ready to so long and dangerous a journey, which required many persons. Neither is it performed every yeere, but by them onely which know they shall be admitted into Catay. There is no better merchandise (as before is faid) then 60 a certaine shining Marble, which wee are wont to call lasper, for want of a fitter word; which the King of Catay buyeth at a great price; and what hee leaueth they may fell to others at exceeding rates. Of it they make divers ornaments for Veffels, Garments, Girdles, with leaves and flowers artificially engrauen. The Chinois call it Tusce; and of it are two kinds, one more precious which is taken out of the River Coran, not farre from the Citie Royall, in manner as the Divers fish for Pearles, and is brought out like thicke flints; the other meaner is digged out of Hils, and is fawed into broad stones aboue two Ells wide, after fitted to the Voyage. This Hill is twentie dayes Iourney from that Citie Royall, and is stiled Canfangui Caseio, that is, The stonie Mountayne. They are thence taken with incredible labour, both for the defertnesse of the place, and the inexorable hardnesse of the Marble, which they say is forced with fire made thereon to yeeld: the license also to take it, is deere fold by the King to some one Merchant, who purchafeth the Monopoly; and when they goe thither they carrie a yeares prouision for the Labourers, which in that space returne not.

Goez vilited the King, whose name is Mahamethin, and presented him with a Watch, a Glasse Mahamet Con and other European Commodities, which made him very welcome. Hee would not at first tell King of Cafeer, him of going to Catay, but only spake of the Kingdome of Cialis East-ward from thence, and Cialis. procured his grant thereto, affitted by the Sonne of his Sifter the Pilgrime Queene before metitioned. Sixe moneths passed, and Demetrine one of his old Societie which standat Cabul, came thither. At that time by the Kings License one of the Merchants was stilled Emperour as in jeft, to whom the other Merchants after the cultome gaue Presents, which Demetring refusing. was in danger to be imprisoned and beaten (for fo large is his power) had not Benedict interceded and by a gift compounded the businesse. Theeues also brake into the House and setting a Sword to the Armenians breit terrified him from crying; but our Brother Demetrius hearing, 20 cried out and fearred them away. Benedict was gone to the King of Quotans Mother for payment of his Debt : his Residence was ten dayes Journey thence, so that he spent a moneth therein before his returne. In this space the Saracens raised a report that he was dead, slaine by their Priests for refusing their holies. Now because he dyed intestate, they sought to seize on his goods, which was very troublesome to Isaac and Demetrius, both for defence of the goods, and loffe of their Friend, which redoubled their joy at his returne with plentie of that Marble, and hee in thankfulneffe gaue much Almes.

On a day as he was eating with other Saracens, one came in armed, and letting his Sword to his breft, charged him to inuoke . Mahomet. He answered, that in his Law there was no such . Towie (22 it name innoked, and therefore refuled : and by the company that mad fellow was extruded. The seemes) those 30 like zeale oft endangered him on like termes of Mahumetan profession. On another day he was words to illab called by the King of Cascar in the presence of his Casiar, the Profess we have Action and illabels, Mehacalled by the King of Cafear in the presence of his Cacifes, the Priests, & the Mulles or learned motificialists, men, and asked what Law he professed, whether that of Moses, of Danid, or Mahumes , and the Charactewhich way he turned himselie in praying. Hee answered, that hee professed the Law of Iesus, tilikal note of whom they call //a. and curned any way when he prayed, beleasing that God was every where posterior which rofe among it them great controversie, they wing to turne to the "West: yet hey "D Messey below they below the state of the "West: yet hey "D Messey is the state of the "West: yet hey "D Messey is the state of the "West: yet hey "D Messey is the state of the "West: yet hey "D Messey is the state of the "West: yet hey "D Messey is the state of the "West: yet hey "D Messey is the state of the "West: yet he was the state of the "West: yet he was the way the state of the state of the way the state of the state of the state of the way the state of the way the state of the s concluded that our Law also might feeme good. Meane-whiles one Agrafi of that Countrey was named Captaine of the future Caravan, who inuited our Brother to his House (having heard well of him) to a Feast, wherein they had Muficke after their manner. At the end, hee defired his company to Cates, which lie much defired, 60 but had learned by experience how to deale with the Saracest, and would be intreated, that he might seeme to doe, rather then receive, a Fauour. The Captaine vieth the Kings mediation, who defired him to accompany the Carauan Baffa, which he accepted upon condition of his Carauan Baffa. Letters Patents for all that way. His Cabul companions were herewith offended, as loth to lofe See before in Letters reaches for all that way. The Lorent companions were loth here to the like lour-his company, and much diff waded him; but hee made fliew as though hee were loth hereth to the like lour-th like lourdisplease the King, and for his sike had promised the Caranan Bassa, which now hee might not negard the reuoke. They faid that thele people were perfidious, and would denoure him and his: nor was lameplaces, their feare caussesse, for many of the Natiues had told them, that those three Armenians (so they called all these three Christians) as soone as they were out of the walles would be flaine.

This terrified Demetrius from going further, who also diffwaled Goee but in vaine, saying, he 50 would not disappoint the hopes of so many, the Archbishop of Goa, and the Vice-roy to lose his expences, but would adventure his life in the Defigne.

Hee prouided ten Horfes for his Carriages, and for his fellow, having another at home. The Baffa was gone to his house fine dayes sourney thence to make all readie, and thence sent to

Anne 1604, about the midft of Nouember, they came to a place called Ielei, where they Voyage to Cevie to pay Cuttomes, and their Commissions are examined. Hence they went to Hancialize in from History Alcegbet, to Hagabateth, to Egriar, to Meseteles, to Thalee, to Horma, to Theartac, to Men-then. Alceghet, to Integenates, to Egrear, to Inspection, to Innec, to 120 ma, to 100 Ciscor, to Place girds, to Captuleol Zilan, to Sare Guebedal, to C Acfa: in this way they ipent fue and twentie dayes, the way troubletome, both with flore

60 of thones or Rockes, and with Sands. Acfais a Towns of the Kingdome of Cafear, the Governour whereof was Nephew to the King, then twelve yeares old. Hee would needs fee Goez, who went and gaue him childish Piesents, Sugarand the like, and was gently entertayned of with well and gaus mittennount exercits, sugarant the rice, and the good, success him. There being then a folerane dancing before him, he requested our Brother to dance, which Gordsneeth.

These walls were built on the West of China, as it trends North-wards, about the space of two hundred * miles, where the Tartarian out-roads are now lefte dangerous. Against them are * This 200, is builded two fortified Cities with choise Garrisons. They have a peculiar Vice-roy and other tobe vnder-Magistrates over them, which are commanded only from Pequin. In one of these Cancen in the stood of the

In Prouince of Scenfi) the Vice-roy resideth with other chiefe Magistrates. The other (named So- Westernepare con) hath a speciall Gouernour, and is distributed into two parts; in one of which the Chinois or perhaps all (whom the Saracens here call Catayans) in the other the Saracens, have their Habitation, which natural of come from (afear, and the like Westerne Kingdomes for Merchandizing Affaires. Some of rockes or hiles them, as the Paringals at Amacao, in the Province of Canton, lettle their abodes and have wives or Triganina and children, accounted as Native subjects. But those Portugals live according to their owne Dutchman Lawes, and have Magistrates of their owne, whereas these Surveys are governed by the Chin might meane nois, and energy night are flux up by them within their owne Citie, inclosed with peculiar walls. Discombes. The Map ex-The Law is, that he which hath flayed there nine yeares, may not returne to his Countrey. The preficth about Merchants come viually from the West to this Citie, which with fayned Embassage, by an- 1000 miles.

20 cient leagues of feuen or eight Kingdomes with that of China, have obtayned, that every fixth The reports yeare feuentie two in name of Legats should pay Tribute to the King, that shining Marle, pre- are duters as cos of Diamonds blue colour and other chinary thence they goe to the Court on Milliant from reports: ces of Diamonds, blue colour and other things; thence they goe to the Court at publike charge; for who could and likewife returne. Their Tribute is rather by way of honour or homage then any way profine feet all and table; for no man payes dearer for this Marble then the King himfelie, who esteemes it a disho; what good nour to take my hing of Strangers for nothing. And they are so entertayned at the Kings cost, would see, that all things reckoned, they get every day about their, necessarile there is a supportant of the support of t Hence are many ambitious of this Embalinge and purchase it of the Caranan Baffa (who hath men in few the nomination) at great price : at that time counterfeiting their Kings Letters, acknowledging dayes might the nominatory at great price. The like Embifages the Chinois admit from duers Kingdomes, paffe.

Availables to the King of China. The like Embifages the Chinois admit from duers Kingdomes, paffe.

Contact the China China China China and Samue of the Torian Kingdomes are switched. Duers Embig. 30 from Canchus china, Stam, Leuchien, Corea, and some of the Tartary Kingdomes, not without incredible expenses of the publike treasure : of which fraud the Chinau are not ignorant, but flac-feued. ter with their King, as if all the World paid Tribute vnto, him, when as rather the Chinesi in. this manner pay Tributes to them.

At the end of the yeere 1005. Our Benedilt came to Secen, growne wealthy by his long. Iourney; having thirteene Horles, fine hired Servants, two Boyes, which hee bought, and the most precious Marble of the rest, all valued at 2500. Duckets. Hee also and Isaac were well in health. In this Citie he lighted vpon other Saracens returned from Pequin, which confirmed Reportrof ret health. In this Catte ne agraced vpouroiner oursesson, iccurate a round a system of the thing the former Reports of the Fathers, with other things beyond all mealure of Fathers the King weighed. of China paid them money daily by a certaine meafare and not by weight. Hee writ presently

40 to Father Matthew to Pequin, to acquaint him with his comming, and gaue the Letters to certaine Chinois: but because he knew not the China name wherewith Ours were called, and the Region where they resided, and writin European Characters, those Chinose could not deliver them. The next yeare at Easter, he sent againe by a Saracen Fugitive (for they may neither goe in nor out without the Magistrates leque) and writ to them of his Voyage and state, defining them to take some course to tree him from that Prison, that he might returne by Sea into Indus, . the Portugall way. The Kather had long before learned by Letters from India, of this intended Journey, and yeerely expected him, and made much enquirie of those counterfeit Embassadors, but could not till now heare of him. They were now therefore much joyed to read his Letters, which in November following came to their hands, and one was preferrly fent, to bring him by Novem 1606:

50 some meanes to Pequa, not one of the Societie left one stranger should hinder another, but a Papill which lately admitted, had not yet entred his probation, named Iohn Fernandus a wife young man, with a companion, a new Conuert, skilled in those parts. And if hee could not bring him thence by the Magistrates leaue or by other Arts, he should flay there with him, and write to the Company, who by their friends would procure him pallage.

This lourney was varea sonable in the hardest of Winter, being almost four emoneths sourney from Peguin. Yet would not Father Matthew deferre any longer, which if he had done, Gora would have beene dead before his comming. Hee and two others of the Societie writ to him. Meane-while Goes fuffers more wrongs of the Saracens in this place then hee had done in the way, and was faine to fell his Marble halfe under the price for proutions, whence he made 1200. 6c Duckers and paid his Debts, and furfained his Family a yeere. Means-while, the Caraual carbe Carauan conference of the with their Capraine, and he with enterrainments was againe forced to borrow, and because hee meth, was chosen into the number of the seventie two, he prouded him of some Marble pieces, without which had beene no going to Pequin. Hee hid one hundred pounds in the ground that the Saucess should not know thereof. Ferdinandus went from Pequin the eleventh of December,

The Saracen Nations bordering on these parts of China, might easily by the Chinois bee subdued, as being not warlike men, if the Chinois cared to enlarge their Dominions. In this way one night Beneditt fell from his Horse, his company going on and not missing him till they came to their Lodging, and then I face went backe to feeke him and found him by the found of the Name lefus, almost despairing to see his company any more.

He writed also his Mother and shewed her his Patent, which was with great reverence admitted : to her he gaue a Chrystall glaffe, a Calico cloth of India, and the like. The Childs Go. uernour alfo, or Protector, which fwayd the publike Affaires, fent for him. In this way one of Goez his Horfes fell into a fwift River, and escaped to the other fide ; and came againe of himtelfe, the Name of lefus being inuoked.

Caracathai, the first place of the Tartars Conquest. See before in F. Becen, Ruis. Acfin.

In this way the Defert is passed called Caracathai, that is, The blacke Land of the Catharan: in which they fay the Catayans stayed long. In this Towne they stayed fifteene dayes for other Merchants, and then departing went to Onograch Gazo, to Cafciani, to Dellai, to Saregabedal. to Vgan, and after to Cucia, a small Towne where they stayed a whole moneth to refresh their bealts, which by the irkiomnesse of the wayes, and weight of the Marble, and want of Barley 10 were almost spent. Here the Priests demanded of Goez, why in their Solemne Fast (Lent) he fasted not, and almost forced him in hope of some Largeste or Fine. After they were gone hence in fine and twentie dayes they came to the Citie Cialie, which was little, but well fortified. This Countrey was gouerned by a base Sonne of the King of Cascar, who hearing that Goes professed Country was gone been to year life him. Saying, it was a bold part for a man of another profef, fion to enter those parts: for he might lawfully take from him his life and goods. But when he read his Letters Patents he was pacified, and with a Present was madealso a friend. One night disputing about their Law, with the Priests and Learned men, he sent for Benedict into the Palace (whereupon suspition arose of some ill intent being at so vnseasonable a time) hee went and being commanded to dispute, with force of Arguments silenced the Aduersaries. The Vice-roy 30 alway protected him, approuing his Sayings, and concluding that the Christians were the true Misermans, saying, that his Progenitors had professed the same Law. After the Disputation hee made him a Banquet, and caufed him to lye that night in the Palace, so that Isas was weeping at his returne, and almost in despaire to see him. In this Citie they stayed three moneths. For the Caraman Bassa would not depart without a great company (it being so much more gaine to him ) nor fuffer any man to goe before. Goez weatied with this tedious stay and chargeable expence, with a Gift obtayned leane of the Viceroy, the Caranan and Captaine being against it. He then intended to proceed from Cialis, when the Merchants of the former Caravan returned from Caray. These faining an Embassage (after their wont) had pierced into the Royall 30

Seat of Caray, and having converfed in the same Palace of Strangers with our (lesuites) repor-three moneths with ours, and told him that the Fathers had prefented to the King, Watches, Pictures and other European Presents, and were much respected in the Palace, of the greatest, and (adding some lies) faid that they had often spoken with the King. They reasonable well painted their faces, but knew not their names : by reason that after the China manner they had taken other names. And for further Argument they thewed a Paper written in Portneall. which they had taken out of the duft, when the Servant (wept the Chamber, to shew in their

owne Countrey. This cheared Goez hearing that Cater was Chana, and that Peguin the Royall 40

The Vice-roy gave him his Letters for fecuritie, and demanding whether he would be inscribed a Christian, he answered yea; for all this way he had comme, called by the Name of Isa, and fo would hold out to the end. An old Saracen Prieft hearing this, caft his Cap on the ground, applauding his resolute Zeale, saying, that theirs are reported to diffemble and alter their Religion with the Region. Goez went on with his companion, and a few others, and in twentie dayes came to Pucian a Towne of the same Kingdome, where the Gouernour vsed him kindly and amply prouided him out of his owne House. Thence they proceeded to Turphan, and flaid a whole moneth in that fortified Citie. Thence they passed to Aramath, and after to Cannel, a for-the Kingdome of Cialis, which ends at this Towne. From Canual in nine dayes they came to the Northerne wals of China, to a place called Chiaicnon, where they staid fine and twentie

tified place where they refreshed themselues another moneth, because they were well vied in all 50

Newes of F M. Ricins and ted strange and certaine newes of Father Matthew and the Companie, to Goez, who wondred the lemirs. that Catay was become China. Thefe Saracens were the fame hereafter reported of, which lined In Pantois and Ricius.

that is right

Names chan-

Citie was Cambalu.

Pueien.

The wals of Chiaicuon.

Socieu in China.

Borderers

daves for the Answere of the Vice-roy of that Prouince. After this they were admitted entrance within the walles, and in one day came to Societa Citie, where they heard much of Pequin, and other names knowne; so that now hee was out of all doubt that Catay and China differed only in name. All the way from Cialis to the borders of China, is infamous with incursions of the Tartars: and therefore Merchants passe these places with great feare, fearching by day from the Neighbour Hils whether there bee any out-rode of Tariars, and if they judge the wayes fecure they trauell by night with filence. In the way they found many Saracons miferably flaine, having adventured to goe alone : although the 60 Tartars seldome kill the Natiues, saying, they are their Slaues and Herdimen, from whom they take away their flocks of Sheepe, and Herds of Bullocks. They eate no Wheate, Barley, nor Pulie, faying, it is food for beafts, not men. They feed only on flesh, not sparing Horses, Mules, Camels, and yet are taid to live one hundred yeares.

The

and his Servant ranne from him at Singhan, the Mother Citie of the Province of Scianfi, carrying away halfetheir prouision. At the end of March, 1607, he yet made shift to get to Socen, and found Goez lying on his Death-bed, who had dreamed that one of our company would come thither the next day, and fent I face into the Market who brought Ferdmanday to him. Having receiued the Letters, he brak into a Nune dimittis, as feeming to have ended his Pilgrimage. Eleuen daves after Goez dyeth, not without inspition of Poylon from the Saracens. They had perpetual Spies to watch and catch what he left, which they did most barbarously execute, and amons if the reft his Journall was loft which he had written in very small Letters. They sought for it to preuent payment of Debts there entred. They would have buried him like a Saracen, but Ifage and Ferdinand excluded them and buried him , with a recitall of the Rofaria , in defect of other to Bookes. Thus died Benedict Goez, a man of great parts, which had after his admission done great feruice to the Societie (howfoeuer he was not a Prieft) much esteamed by the Great Morell. whom he auerted from the Warre of India. He diffwaded before his death that Ours should not trust the Saracens, nor adventure this way, as unprofitable and dangerous. And although hee dved without Confession in so many yeeres, yethe was cheerefull in the mercie of God, and professed that his confcience did not accuse him of matters of any moment,

By a Tartarian custome they divide the goods of the deceased among st them all, and therefore bound I face threatning to kill him if he turned not Mahumetan; but Ferdinand put vp 2 Supplication to the Vice-roy at Cancen, who subscribed that the Gouernour of Sosen should examine the businesse. He first was fauourable, but corrupted by bribes threatned to whip him, and held a him in Prison three dayes. But he fold his Garments for want of Money, and continued the Suit fine moneths, not being able at first to conferre with I face for want of Language, I face only vetered a few Portugall words , and the Judge had thought they had spoken in the Canton Tongue. At last, Ferdinand learned to speake Persian, and was able to conferre with him. The Saracens pleaded that Ferdinand was a Chinese by his countenance, the other a Saracen : hee anfwered that his Mother was a Chinese, whom he resembled. But nothing moued the Judge more then that he was an enemy to their Religion, and pulling a piece of Porke out of his fleeue, they both did eate it; whereupon with laughter of the Affembly, the Saracens abhominated both, fpitting at the Armenian, and leaving the Suit, faying, that the Armenian was deluded by the Martinumey. China-coorener. For in all the way to present offence, Benedit and I face had abstiyined from 10.

Porke. And thus all was by the Iudges semence restored to Ferdinaid which had beene Benedit in the ground, which was fold, and yeelded to pay their Debts and prouision for their Journey to Pegain, whither both of them came. They brought a faire gilded Croffe-Picture and the Charters of three Kings, Cascar, Quotan and Cialis, which are referred at Peguin for a memoriali. Isaac related all this Storie to Father Matthew upon credit of his memorie, and having stayed a moneth, was fent the wonted way to Amacaa; where being well entertayned, hee in tayling thence to India, was taken by Hollanders, and loft both goods and libertie. But the Portugals of Malaca redeemed him, and he held on his course to India, and hearing of his Wiues death, went not to the Mogols Countrey, but flaid at Chant, and is now at the writing hereof aline.

Chaul.

CHAP. V.

A Generall Collection and Historicall representation of the Islantes entrance into lapon and China, Intill their admission in the Royall Citie of Nanquin, of Francis Xavier, Melchior Nunnes, Valignanys, RUGGERIVS and PASIUS.

Oralmuch as we have failed so lately from the Philippinas to China, and backeagaine with our Friers, and have given you a lesuits Land Iourney, we thought it worthy our labour alfo to launch into the deepe of their Nauigations, and to honour the Iefuits, (to whom in the following parts of this Hiltorie we are fo in-63 debted) with observing their Observations of Iapon, and the intercourse thereof with Ching; and from it (as the greatest and most glorious Easterne Jesuiticall Conquest) to thip our felnes in their Barge to China. How Francis Xanier (new Sainted at Rome, together with Ignatius Loisla, first Founder of that Order) laboured the Conversions of CHAP. S.S. I. Ieluites glorying of Connersions : their Proselites examined.

Gentiles and Pagans to Christianitie, as in other parts of the Indies, so heere in I apan I willingly acknowledge; yea, so farre am I from enuying either him or his Order, or any other Order the led Religious, their Trophees of Convertions, that I could wish the Pope seated in Miaco, and all the Ieluits, & Friers, yea, all his Ieluited Clergie fully possessed of the Bonzian Colledges & Temples in Iapon; whence a double good might issue; to the Ethnikes some light in stead of a totall darkneffe, a diseased life being better then death; and to Europe, to be lightned of their burthen. where professing themselves Lights, they prove Lightnings, and raise so manifold combustions. And most especially could I with this honour to my Countrey-men the English Iesuites, and Priefts, Popili Emissaries of whatloeuer Order, that they were there ordered, or (which fits to their ambition better) ordering that Eatterne World, rather then here difordered and difordering , playing the Lords of Mif-rule in the West. The very Name of Christ is sweet to mee, euen in lapan, yea, from a lefuites mouth, or a lefuites Conuert; and would God they taught them Ielus more, and leffe Ieluitish tancies of exchanged worship of Creatures, howsoeuer gilded with Christian Names, that the Iaponians might learne to acknowledge Iefus and Maria truly, and not with Names and Images of they know not what, to worthip Venus and her Sonne Cupid, This happened in stead of the Blessed Virgin, and that incarnate Blessednesse her blessed Sonne, who is God oner in Capt. Saits

One told Cortes the Mexian Conqueror then speaking great words, that there is much difference in conquering Neighbours at home, and naked Americans; I adde, that a man may be Chri-20 stened, and yet farre short of Christianine, (euen by Jesuites * testimonies) and that somewhat * See sup Lose. more is required to a Christian then Christian Names, given in Baptisme to hundreds at once, as 12 $65. and the some have done without further instruction. Denotion is rather to be prized by weight and last Chapter of worth, then by tale and numbers, as happens in their Beades here, and too often in their Con- my Pulgrimage gersions there: which were they indeed so much to be magnified and gloried in, would aswell pressile in men of capacitie to ouerthrow firms bolds and high imaginations, as here to worke on 1.64.104. our filly women laden with finnes, hoping for their Confession-cure; and there, with fillinesse it selfe, or such as Reason turnes Coriftians because they will not runne madde with their owne SeeSir T. Ree to fuch Monsters as their Bonzs teach them. Themselves confesse, that it is not much, they can and M.Terry, premaile with Mahametans any where or here in China: and Ours have found them to fay more [40] $1.148a. and 30 then they had done in that little.

I should much rejoyce that their Reports were true, and that as an Orator of theirs hath so fiems that lemnized the Canonization of Loisla, their Patriarke, and Xasier the Indian Apossic (so hee sti- with Megala & leth them) this Samt Francis had connerced three hundred thouland Soules, of innumerable changing the Nations; yea, all Heretikes in neere fixteene hundred yeeres, had not converted fo many, nay, are best Con-Nations; yea, all Heretuses in neere unsured minured yeeres, nad not converted to many, nay, uert. in. had not peruerted io many not Christians, to all their Herefes together, as he alone adjoyned to "Adulstibut." Christin eleven yeeres. I am glad to heare it, and that which hee addeth, that all Heretickes tomas. Colon.d. whatfoeuer had not infect dio many Languages and peoples, as those of which hee had illustra- 1622-1873.6. ted many with Christian Truth and Pietie. Doth this man consider how much of the World hath beene Christian, and how much after that Herecical! how many more Nations the Nosto-

40 rian Herene hath infected then Xanier faw, leavening, in manner, all Afia from Constantinople where it began, vinco Tartarial Cashay, or China, and the Index, and hath not the Income He. See before in sefie prevailed over Africat and before that the Arrism , over all the World, which as Saint Hie . Pole, cont. ov. rome latch, ground and wondred to lee it felie growne. Arrians But these perhaps rather permetted.

Christians then any way connected Esbaikes 1 Yer the erest Nations of the Gaskes and Facility of the standard of the control of the Christians then any way converted Estimbes! Yet the great Nations of the Goibes and Vandales were of Ethnikes made Arreans, the great Nations of the Lithuanians, Mufconites, Ruffes, &c. have not many hundred yeeres fince of Ethnikes beene converted to the Greeke Church, which they hold not Catholike (that I mention not the Armenians, Georgians, and others) one of which numbreth many times three hundred thousand.

And that one Impietie of Mahannee hath more Followers many, then all whatfoeuer professional 50 ons of Christiannie in all Languages, Nations, Rites whatfocuer (I greeue to tell ir) and that from perueric Ethnikes and peruerted Christians. And although Lather and Calnin Went not out of Germanie and France (which he objects) yet their found, the Gospell which they preached bails gone over all the Earth, (as these our Relations shew in the Voyages of English, Dinich, French, yea, the Apostles themselues) and they have shaken the Towres of Babylon in Europe, where they were ftrongest (where Antichnet hathhis Throne, a Conquest more then Indian or Inponian) and when the Prophesie of Babylons vtterruine is fulfilled, the same wordshall conquer (I hope) both lewer and Gentiler, yea, these letuites and their Preachings, may by Duine Dif. Apr. 18.

pensation become Harbengers to the Gospell hereafter, as the Iemph Dispersions in the Translations of the Scripture and profession of the true God, were fore-runners of the Apostles preations out to start the start of the time to ti Wolses enter, and make vs to leave the Pharifer glorie of compating Sea and Land to wime Pro-Alisa Glasson chair shair Harry and Sun A. felace to these their Heires and Successors in this, as in many other things. But I will leave them glorying of their Convertions, grieving that they are not herein better then their reports. I will glorying of their Comiernous, greening that they are not necessively even their reposition of follow them to these parts of (bins, and here for Chinas sake to Japon , and with that Rule of Chinas sake to Japon , and with that Rule of Chinas sake to Japon , and with that Rule of Chinas sake to Japon , and with that Rule of Chinas sake to Japon .

1.1.4c.r.p.367.

Caffin

Cassium (Cus bono) observe them, in things not gainefull to their Religion, approve and appland their in Justrie, yea, accept and thankfully acknowledge their authoritie. In their Conversions rothe Faith, I suspend my faith in the qualitie, if I admit their quantitie. For how could one man well instruct so many in so little time, except hee could have given the Holy Ghost, as the Apostles in their convertions did.

How little in

Francis Xanier, in the yeere 1541. Sayled from Lisbon, wintred at Mosambique, whence hee passed into India, after that to Malaca, and to Iaponia, & Canillas oras (fayth the former Au. thor) quas Oceanus ab Indico mari vsque ad extremos Sinas, id est totius Orbis dimidimo, circum. companion was Pash, from flust, Enangelica predicatione illustrants & implenit, (Iapon was first discourred and knowne to the Journalism oil- Portugals by Mosa, carryed out of his course to China thither by tempes, 1542.) Heedyed, 10 Anno 1552, the fine and fiftieth of his Age, of his Indian peregrination the element, in the He Sancian, on the Coast of Chma. This was the Indian Standard-hearer to all of that Societie (beginning his trauell to Lisbon the first yeers of their Confirmation 1540.) and now desired of Canonized, and inuoked by Doctor Schulchenius, Chancellor of Collen his Orator, Ignatio France cifee vestris succerrite precibus, co. A Letter of his written from lapon, in November, 1449, Wee came by Gods grace in August to Iapon, on the Feast day of the Assumption of the Virgin Marie, having let forth from Malaca on Midsommer day, The Master of the Ship was a Chinese, which had beauty is verticious accessing to the most accessing to the Malaca, and layled professing till the Malier altered by minde (at these Barbarians are vsually inconstant) and layred long amongs the Ilandi in the may, 20 This trendled vs in two respects principally, but for the last of the last on the may, 20 This trendled vs in two respects principally, but for the last of the season which God offered, and which being past, wee were compelled to winter on the Coast of China; and againe, because in the same Ship thippecaby the was carried an Idoll of the Denill, to which the Mariners in fight and spight of vs, sarificed after the manner of their Countrey. They also by lots demanded answers thereof, touching their Voyage; which (as they (and and beleened) were sometimes good, sometimes bad. Abundred leagues from Malaca, holding our course to China, wee stayed at an Iland, where after many Ceremonies the Deuill was consulted, what fortune wee should have, who answered, very prosperous: Whereupon with great alacritic wee set sayle: they worshipped the Idoll placed in the poope, with Candles burning and incense of sweet Wood; wee trusted in God she Creator of Heaven and Earth, and in his Sonne our Lord Ielus Christ, desiring to carrie his Religion into those parts. When wee were under sayle, they demanded of the Denill, whether 30 this Ship should return from lapon to Malaca : the answer was made by the lot-casters, that it should goe to lapon, but not returne to Malaca; which made them alter their mindes, thinking it better to winter in China, and to deferre the voyage to Iapon till the next yeere. You may well thinke bow it griened vs, that the Denill must bee consulted touching our course. After this we came to Cauchinchina, where two adverse things bappened, Emanuel Sina our companion, by the rolling of the Ship in the troubled

Letter of Xauis

Sea fell into the fine, almost dead with the bruise and water, but in few dayes reconcred : which before it was ended, the Masters Daughter with the like rolling of the Ship fell into the Sea, and in all our sight was drowned, and much lamentation followed. The Barbarians prefently sught to pacific the Denill, and without rest all the day and night, tooke paines to kill Birds to the Idoll; and to set dishes (of meate before it, ) and by lots consulted to know the cause of that misfortune. The answer was, that if Emanuel 40 which first fell in, had dyed, the Girle had not fallen into the Sea. You fee in what danger the Denill hereby badcaft us, if our Lord bad not reftra ned his rage, or c.

ons and Pira-

The tempest being asswaged, wee came in few dayes to the Port of Canton in China. And there they purposed to Winter, notwithstanding all our intreaties and exposmlations : but I know not how on a Sudden they would goe to Chincheo, on the Same Coast. And when wee were almost there, the Master Lapon Paul had was certified by some which sayled by, that there was store of Pirats at Chincheo; whereupon the winde beene in India, being faire for Iapon, and croffe for Canton, they brought us to Cangoxuma, the Country of our and was Baptis friend Paul, whose friends wied we unkindly. There wee frent forte dayes in learning the Elements of the Iaponian tongue with great labour, and began to publish the Decaloque, and other beads of Christian learning, which Paul had accurately connerted into his owne Language; and wee purposed speedily to 50 Print them, whereby the knowledge of Christ is further and more easily founded, oc. The occasion of his journey thither, heesheweth in another Letter, that some Portugals being lodged in a House poffeffed by Denuls, compaffed the fayd boufe with Croffes, and that there was great hope of good to bee done in those parts: whereupon, notwithstanding those Seas are very tempestnous, and much insested with Pirats, hee resolued to goe thither.

Ricius and Trigantius, adde that the Iaponian Priests alledged in defence of their Idolatries, the Chinois wisedome against him, whereupon hee returned to India, to adulte with the Vice-roy to fend an Ambassage into China, without which there was no entrance, and obtayned that I ames Pereira was named Legate, with whom he had before conferred about the businesse at Sancian, where the Portugals at that time vied to trade with the Chinois, (Amacao not yet (Rablifhed) 60 but Aluarn: Tardius the Captayne of Malaca opposed. Xanier loath herein to bee crossed, vied the Popes Bull, which constituted him Apostolicall Runcio, and grieuously Cursed all that should hinder his proceedings in promoting Religion. And when Alwarus would not otherwise relent, hee interdicted him and his followers. Soone after Aluarus was pollefled with a Lepro-

CHAP. S. S. I. Xauiers zeale, Portugals trade with Chinois, Amacao, Nunez. 310

sie, and further contemning the Vice-roy, was taken and cast in Irons, and dyed miserably. Xauier burning with zeale of his China expedition, lought to get fome Chinois by fauour or re- Xauier zeale. ward, to convergh him by Health into China, and to expose him some-where on the Continent. although hee knew that imprisonment attended fuch strangers, as came into China without licence. Being admonished to take leave of the Captayne, What, sayd hee, Sould I goe to salute an Excommunicate person ? I shall never see him, nor bee me, inthis life, nor after, but when in the Vale of Iofaphat I Shall accuse him before the Indge, Christ. And praying for him, after with a counter Sencial thirds nance full of Maiestie, hee put off his shooes, and shooke off the dust, according to the Evangelical leagues from precept. Thus he came to Sancian a Delart Hand, where the Portugals vied to make outher of the China

Io boughes or ftraw, (for the time of their Trading with the (binois) with whom hee confulted a- shoare. bout some way to effect his desires, though with losse of libertie or life. At last he agreeth with a China Merchant, for as much Pepper (given him of the Portugall Merchants in almes) as was worth about two hundred Duckets, to fet him and his Interpreter on shoare secretly. Hee vindertooke it, but either fecretly terrified by other Portugals, or with his owne danger, his Inter-Sec Fita Kaus-Dreter for sooke him : and after that, the Merchant alio vanished. He stayed yet wayting for THE F.Pinto. him, till a Feuer tooke him out of the world, in December, 1552. His corps was after tran- & Eman. Asofta flated to India.

The Portugals of those times, were very desirous of Trade with the Chinois, who on the other ", oc. fide were very suspitious of them, both by that which they saw of their Ships and Ordnance, 20 and by that which the Moores at Canton reported of these Franks, (so the Mahametans * call *Since the Exand by that which the Magnesiat Canton reported of these France, (10 the Magnesians - Call Pedition of Europeans) that they were warlike and victorious, as appeared in Malaca and all India, under the Westerne colour of Merchandife subjected to the Portugals. The Chinois at Canton call them still Falanks : christians (the for they want the R, and pronounce not two conforants without a vowell interpoled. By the chiefe of fame name they call allo the Portugals Ordnance. Yet delire of gaine preuayled, that they were which were admitted to fuch a trade as ye have heard, to as the Mare ended, they mult away with their goods pranty) to me conquetto its. to India. That course continued divers yeeres, till the Chimos growing leffe fearefull, granted raidem. them in the greater lland a little Peninsula to dwell in. In that place was an Idoll, which still remayneth to beefeene, called Ama, whence the Peninfula was called Amacao, that is, Amac APeninfulan Bay. This Rocke indeed rather then Peninsula, began to bee inhabited not onely of Portugals, compassed

30 but of the confluence of all neighbouring Nations, in regard of the commerce of Commodities of with water ex-Europe, India, and the Moluccas, brought in Portugals Ships, and especially loue of the Silver cepton one Coynes, brought the Chinois thither to dwell. In continuance of time, a Citie began by degrees Beginnings of to bee built, and the Porsugals made not onely contracts of Merchandife, but of Marriage, with America. the Chinois, and so the Paninsula was filled with private houses, and out of a barren Rocke arose a noble Mart. And as gayne brought Merchants thither, fo the care to keepe and to get foules, brought thither Priests and Religious men, and the Poringall Kings primiledged the place with the tytle of a Citie, and made it a Bishops See. There the lesites fixed a relidence, and first ere-Red a Church to our Ladie, and after that diners others. For it seemed convenient to their defignes, the world of China lying to the North, the Molaccas to the South, Iapon, and the Philip-

40 pinas to the East, to the West Cochinchina, Camboia, Stam, and others.

From hence, many intended the China imployment without successe, those fields not then white to the haruest. Meichior Nunnes, (Anno 1555.) from Canton, writes of his accidentall Melchur Nun. going a shoare on China, in his voyage to lapan, occasioned by a terrible tempest whereto those Seas are much subiect. They came in July to Sancian an Iland, thirtie leagues from Canton, being much indangered by the Rockes in the way, and there hee fayd Maffe ouer the place where Xauier had beene buryed; and eafily obtayned admission into Carton. This is reported to bee the content least of all the Mother Cities of the Proninces, yet seeming to exceed Lisbone, in frequencie. The buil- Mettopolitan dings are good, the walls strong: a thousand Arches with inscriptions are seene therein, which the Ma-Citic. giftrates of faulty leave as Memorials at their departures. The people are given to their bellies, and to the field histely. 50 pleasure. The Government is admirable. The Chiefe Influe they call Hexais, the Treasurer Pontions could chall, the Admirall and Governour of Strangers, Altan. The Chaens Enfignes, are a Hand and an you have to Eye; bis office is to fee the Execution of the Kings Sentences, to order or deprine Magifrates. The much before Tutan is Once-roy, conspicuous by his Cap and his Garments, wroughs with a gilded Lion, which " is dies, dies, or Tutan is Vice-vey, complement by his Cap and his Garments, wronghe with a guided Lion, which is thinked the Kings Armes: in Statebee excelleth European Kings, The Portugall Captaynes and weeffeake 500 pinted 0, not to him, but alcofe on our kneet. If any will feake with him, at enery Gate of his fampinous Palace, butthis the bee must aloud viter his businesse, before the Porter admits him. Hee hath many for his Guard. And Provinces one hundred thou fand men are sayd to be emaint ayned at the Kings cost, for the keeping of this Province, Asmes not the Kings

His Officers goe two and two and make way with great cryes. Their Cane-whippings are terrible, the Kings. Canes burned at the end, a subite long, foure fingers broad, oc. The Chinois are wittie and indicious, 60 in matters of the world: but have luttle care of the fortle, ignorant of its "immortalitie, of one God, and mmatter of the worth, was came interest on joine, ignorant of 113.

Feternall revards and purishments. Their Priefs base a kinds of Miter or the bead, are shaken some Sede. peter and reverse a compression of the Freeze state of the state of th their Ceremonies, and the lawe: of their Holies. The Imbabitants all hame Idols, which they incerfe; more other and dinine by less, beating the Idols if the Lots prone unluckie. I was twice at Canton, and front in this.

moneths there to redeeme Portugall presoners. The Chinois kill or captimate the Portugals, which are wracked on that Coast, which yet they cease to dae, since they pay their Customes. I went thence mi Sinensis exlefuites Epiftles published by

tant with the

lo. Hayus.

Alexander Valignanus, was fent by the Iesuiticall Generall into India as Visitor, and having visited other parts, came to Amacao, in his way to lapon, forced to stay there ten moneths with the lessites. There hee more fully informed himselve of the state of Chima, and raised the embers Admiranda reg- of the almost extinguished zeale of that expedition. Hee is thought to bee the Author of the treatile called Admiranda Regni Smensis, contayning a summarie of the wonders in China, worthy heere to have beene inferted, but that wee rather ayme at things feene then heard, as having better certaintie. Oculatus testis vinus prestat auritis decem., Vpon the confideration of their wits, Peace, Policie, fludies of Learning, hee conceiued that if any were skilfull of their Language and Letters, he might doe some good for their Conversion. Hereupon hee resolved to imploy some that way, although many others of the companie which had experience of the Chime affayres, held it labour in vayne. Yet hee went on and because of the paucitie of oursat at least one Priest for that purpose. And he going to Japon, left order what hee which was sent in May to Iapan.

Mich.Ruggeri-

Michael Ruggerius, an Italian of the Kingdome of Naples, was fent, and came to Amacao, in July, Anno 1579. and applyed himselfe to learne the language which the Courtiers in China vie, and is common thorow all China, (the Provinces having otherwife peculiar languages) also to learne to reade and write their Characters, which are as many as words. That language was verie hard both in it felfe, and for the want of teachers. For thole Christian Chineis which lived at Amacao, in habit of Europeans, & those which came thither in Merchandise, were almost as ignorant of the Court tonque, as of the Portugall : and though they understood it, yet they could not well pronounce it. And for the Characters, they know those which belonged to their Merchandifing and common vie. Labor improbus omnia vincit. With pictures his teacher was often for-Portugal trade ced to supply characters. And whereas the Portugals twice a yeere in the Mart feafon have acceffe to Canton, about I anuarie and I une, he went with them thither. For in time they obtayned day, and extru- this libertie, that not in a defart Iland, as first, nor in the Amacao Hauen, but in the Metropoliean Citie two dayes up the River, they might have trading by day, but lye aboard at night, with io many eyes and watches on them, as it is manifest they are not altogether free of 30 their former feares.

Amacao, and none fo fit for that designe, hee sent into India to the Promincial, to fend thither

Rugg,first en-

These Marts continue two moneths each of them, or longer, and have beene the onely meane of admitting the lefastes into China, by the industrie and pietie of other Portugals. Ruggerius therefore with his merchandife also adventured with them, and found an impediment at first. Another lestite which before had gone thither had converted a youth, Disciple to a Priest, and closely conue yed him to Amacae. His Master made complaint and procured the Magistrate to fetch him backe by force, to the great trouble of Ours, and feeming discredit as if by ill arts they had feduced Children from their Parents, which is a thing at Canton, both vitall and Capi-Ruggeriss freed tall. Ruggeriss enterposed himselfe with great care and discretion, and appealed the Admirals or by the Hai-tao, Which hath the command of Strangers, who hereby had an opinion of his vertue, and delighted to feehim studious of the China pookes. He therefore permitted him to stand at his side when others kneeled, and freed him also from the going aboard at night, and allowed him a Ambassage of place in the Palace, where the Ambassadours of the King of Siam were visually entercayned, bringing their present or tribute (such as you have heard in Goez) to the King. There hee studied night and day the China bookes, and on Sundayes and Holy-dayes, the Portugals came thither to him to Maffe and to receive the Sacraments. This continued whiles they continued, for when the Mart ended hee was commanded to returne with them. The Father procured acquaintance also with the chiese Captayne of the Souldiers of that Province (the Chinois call him Zumpin) to whom hee gaue a watch. By this meanes many of thole which came to Amacao, began to shake off their Ethnike darknesse, and the devout Portugals erected a House for the Catechumen

Zumpim oz Chumbim.

(new Conuerts to bee instructed in Christian mysteries before Baptisme) where hee instructed them, and more freely followed his China studies, by helpe of Interpreters. One businesse hindred another, and his Marts absence (which tooke vp neere halfe the yeere) this Catechising, and a tongue is hardly learned by fludie without vie; and therefore the Vifitor fent for Masthen Ricins out of India, (which had come out of Europe with Ruggerins, and now had finished his Diminitie course at Goa) to bee his youke fellow, one to whom the China expedition is most

Anno 1 82. Valignamus the Visitor, carryed certayne I apoman Princes sent to Rome to yeeld fubiection to the Pope, in the name of those Kings which fent them, as you shall heare. He stay- 60 Francrinice of ing for the Monfon at the Colledge of Amacao, tooke great paines to advance the China bulineffe. And to that purpose hee instituted the Fraternite or fellowship of lesus in our House, with lawes fitting to New Converts; forbidding any Portugals to bee therein admitted, but onely Chinois, and Imponians, and those which were newly concerted of other Nations : alway to bee

gouerned by one of those Fathers which should bee assigned to the China Expedition, called, The Father of the new Connerts, taking care not onely of their faluation, but their other affaires

The Vice-roy of Canton Province is one of the chiefe Vice-royes, because his Province is farre Vice-roy of from Pequin, and coasting on the Sea; infested therefore with often Piracies, especially I apoman. Continu Hereupon the Canton Vice-roy exercifeth iuridiction also in the adioyning Prouince Quample, Quamp if occasion require to leuie more Souldiers, although Quamif hath also a Vice-roy of her owne. For this cause the Canton Vice-roy resideth not at Canton, but at Scianquin, a Citie bordering Scianquin.

on both Prounces. At this time Cinfus borne in the Prounce of Fuguen, was Vice-roy, a couetous man, who to get money of the Amachons fent thither his Writ for the Bulhop and Cape taine to come to his Court, vinderstanding that they commanded all there. They thought it not agreeing to the Portugall honour to goe, nor to their fafety to neglect his fummons, and therefore by Valignarus his aduife, Ruggerius was fent in the name of the Bishop, to see if hee could get a perpetuall Station in that Kingdome, and Penella the Auditor, in place of the Captaine, And to obtaine his fauour, that he should not disturbe their merchandising, a Present was feet him at publike charge, of fuch things as the Chinois most regard, as waved garments of filke Dat maske (which the Chinois then knew not how to make) Crystall Glaffes, and other things valued at 1000. Duckets. The Vice-roy received them in great pompe, more to terrifie then henour them; but at the fight of the Presents (the scope of his purpose) hee became gentle and courteous, and decreed that they might line in his Port in manner as hitherts they had done, obeying the Lames of the China Magistrates: which words seeme formall, the Peringals living there after their owne Lawes ; and other Nations, yea the Chinon themselues which are Christians in habite and religion, being subiect to them. The other Chenois are subiect to common Officers fent thither from Canton. The Vice-roy would have nothing, but hee would pay for it, which heedid because bribes and gifts are there seuerely punished : but privily hee sent to them, that Bribettiches.

money was given them to procure him as many other like.

Ruggeriss defired that which he came for, faying, he learned the China Tongue and read their Bookes, which he seemed much to like, and gaue him hopes at his next returne to obtayne it. And having given them weight of Silver; with provision, great attendance of Magistrates and 30 Souldiers, much Musicke of Hoybuckes and other Instruments, hee sent them pompoully thorow the publike streets of the Citie to their hipping. So weighty is hope of gaine. In August had comne (as they vie) Portugall thips to Amaeas, in them of our Society not a few, and an mongst others , Father Matthew Ricius , w .o brought with him an artificiall Watch from the Mat. Ricius, Provinciall for the advancing this China buineffe. About that time the Captaine of Amacao having made readie thole things which the Vice-roy prescribed, sent backe the Auditor to Sciauguin, but Ruggerius vnicasonably (or seasonably rather as the eacht manifested) fell ficke; yet fent word to the Vice-roy that he could not come to him as he had promifed : and withall, that he had a Clocke-watch which did without any striker found the houres, a thing even still of Clocke-watch much wonder to the Chinois. Hearing of his ficknesse, hee seemed forrowfull, but this Watch

40 awaked him, and caufed him to make his Secretarie prefently write a Licence for the Father to come to him with that admirable worke, as foone as he should bee able. When this Charter was read at Amacao, it contayned more; for the Fathers were muted by publike Authoritie to erect a publike and private house in that Citie, which caused great toy. But the Visitor was afraid as yet to fend Ruggerius, as not turnished fully for that deligne; the beginning of a thing being the greatest part. The other lesuites perswaded, and Father Francis Passus bound for lagon, a man well qualified for gouerning was fent, and Ruggerius adioyning his Colleague. Ricius was made Gouernour of the Colledge of the Catechumen, and appointed to follow the other two, if occafion serued. And if the butinesse proceeded not, Passa was to proceed to Iapon, and the other two to attend better opportunitie in their China bulineffe. Those two lesuites went to Sciauguin, and offered their Watch with a triangle Glaffe pre- 10/4/11/15 fift fenting variety of colours, a thing admired of the Chinais as a precious lewell: both which the contra were exceeding welcome to the Vice-roy, who affigned them a connenient flation in a Suburbian Temple, called Thien-min-zn, whither he often fent them divers viands, and often admitted them in Visitation to his Palace. There they abode foure or fine moneths, often visited in that Temple by principall men and Magistrates of the Citie, and were in hope of their perpetuall continuance, having obtayned licence of the Secretarie alfo for Ricins to come, who was preparing for the Voyage, when all was diffurbed on a fudden, the Vice-roy being I know not for what fault, deprined of his place. He fearing least in the chiefe Citie the presence of Strangers might further hurt him, difmiffed the leswies to, as hee permitted them to flay at Canton, 6c commanding the Magistrate there to provide them a house and ground. The Chinois call that well knew that his committion was of no force, yet they went, and the Haitan, to whom the true name of Charter was directed was abient, and no regard being had thereof, they were not permitted to Canton. aftend the bankes, and therefore with griefe returned to Amacao. Pafins presently sayled according to the Visitors appointment to Iapon, and after divers yeeres labour there, was Vindera provincial of the China and Iaponian Missions : and when both of those expeditions were by the Generals order made a Prouince, he was declared Visitour thereof, and came to Amagao, to take order for China, where within few moneths he died.

Citie Quam-chen which the Portugals (by the name of the Pronince deluded) call Camen. They Quam-then the

ð. I I.

Iaponian Embassage to the Pope; Of Nabunanga and Quabacondono their gouernment; Corai inuaded, Embassage from China, Talcosamas Temple, and OGOSHOSAMAS succession.

Iapmian Embiffigetothe Ed dit Hen.

Curciius.

Auing mentioned that Embaffige of Isponias Kings fent to the Pope by procurement of the Isfaites, out of their writings I have heere added for further illustration, the acts of the publike Confiftorie in this forme of words. Pope Gregorie the thirteenth, fitting in the Halldefigned for entertaynment of Kings, and their Embaffages on the three and twencieth of March, 1,85. in the morning, in a most ample Session of the Cardinals of the Holy Romane Church, and in a great assembly of Princes and Prelates with greatest industry, and most frequent attendance of all Orders: Man- 20 time and Michael (who was also of the Prince of Omner) two Legates of Isponian Kings, were brought in and one of the two laponian companions of the lame Embassage, of principall Nobilitie, to wit, Martine, for Inlian the other of them was withholden by tickneffe.) After folemne adoration of the Pope, and the kiffes of his bleffed feet, received of him with great demonstration of beneuolence and charitie, they went aside into a place appointed them with great modeftie. Afterwards, the Letters of the Kings which they had brought are publikely read, being translated out of the laponian Tongue into the Italian, and thence into the Latine. First, that King of Bunges of Francis King of Bunge, who therein profeseth the Distine bountie in fending the lesuites foure and thrite perez before mus those parts, whose seed had taken some rooting in his breast, which her a scribes to the Popes prayers and merits. And had it not beene for his age, marres, and sicknesse, bee would have visited those body places, and have histed his body feet, and set them on his bead, and recined. bu bleffing, bis breast croffed by his most boly band : but so detayned, had thought to baue sent his listers Sonne, the Lord Ierome, Sonne of the King of Flunga his Embassadour, whose Cousin-german Mantius in his absence he now sent; thankes him for the Relikes sent him, &c. Ian. 11.1582. Inscribed, To the great and most boly Pope to be addred, and bolding on Earth the place of the King of Heauen. Subscribed, Francis King of Bungo, prostrate at your Blessedows most boly feet. Not much valike was the tenour of the second Letter, sent from Protasius King of Arima, who detayned by diuers lets, had fent his Cousin-german in his roome, to his Holineffe, which with fincere and humble minde hee adoreth. Inscribed, To the great and boly Lord whom I adore, holding the roome of God. The Prince of Omer tent also the said Michael his Brothers Sonne with a Letter of like import, 40 interibed. With lifted up hands adoring I offer thefe to the most holy Lord the Pope , Vicar of the great God. Subfcribed in fubitance as the first.

After this, filence was commanded; and in the name of the faid Kings and Legates, Galper

An ha was more worth then both /#discreathe.

This the most acceptable myferie of Papail Faith.

Gonfaluas a Portugall Issuite made an Oration vnto the Pope, comparing and preferring this Embassage with that of certaine Indians to Augustus, and the conversion of Britaine by the first But that Hor. Gregorie with this of Iapon, and other Ilands by the Thirteenth, fucceeding and exceeding that, now fallen from the Pope; applying Efays Prophecies of the Churches encrease to this Iesaittcall Haruest, and magnifying the great glories of that Pope, founder of Seminaries, and magnified extra anni Solifa, vias. Antonio Buccapadulso answered in the name of the Pope, That Francis King of Bungo, Protatius King of the Arimans, and Bartholmew bis Uncle, Prince of Omur, 30 Pope, See sup. bath fent you their kinsmen to him from the remote Iaponian Ilands to the veneration of that power in presence, which by Gods bounty be holdeth, they have done godly and wisely. For there is one Faith, one Catholike Church, one made Gouernour over the faid Church, and Pafter of Christs Flocke, that is, of all Catholikes throw the World, in the succession of Peter, the Roman Bishop. That they acknowledge and professe this, together with the mysteries of the orthodoxe Faith, our most holy Lard reiosceth, and giveth immortall thankes to the Divine bounty, and indges this to be the most true toy which proceedeth from the studie of Gods glorie, and the saluation of Soules. Therefore most willingly, together with thefe his venerable Brethren, Cardinals of the Roman Church, hee embraceth the teffification of their Fauth, Obedience, Denotion. He wisheth and prayeth that by their example other Kings and Princes also of those lles, and of the whole World, retecting the worship and errour of Idols, min know the 60 true God, and whom he hath sent Iesus Christ; for this is life eternall.

This done, the Confiftorie was difmiffed. The Legates when they had attended the Pope, after the custome, into the inner roomes, were first entertayned of the Popes brothers some, the Cardinall of Saint Sixtus, with a Banket; after that admitted to the Popes pre trace and &- miliar conference, they discoursed by Interpreters with him of many things, touching the Journey and Religion : then went to Saint Peters Church, and the holy Thresholds of the Apostles pioufly faluted, at night were honourably brought to their lodging.

CH AP. 5. $.2. Romish boasts: Papall favors. Nabunanga, Quabacondono.

Church, then the Deuill hath seduced in the North.

This was prepared and furnished in the lessues Colledge by the Popes appointment at their Extrall, eliteral first comming to Rome, the two and twentieth of March, who also fent two troops of Horse to Roma milit. guard them. They went from their Charet to the Temple, and whiles they praifed God, and worshipped at the greatest Altar, the Students of the German Colledge in a double Quire sanga Te Deum landamus. The Legates next day had audience as yee have heard; their Veftment was parti-coloured and embroidered, a short Sword on the left hand, an Arab Dagger on the right, to the other part of their habite laponian. The pompe of all forts, and the Ordnance attended them to the Vatisan, & there the Italian Garrison, and Helaetian Guard with their Preces and military Musicke received them. Then were they lead into the Hall, and after all things there finished, the Legates carried the Popes traine at his departure. And on the five and twentieth day, festinall for the Annuntiation, the Pope going on folemne Procession , these Legates rode in the last place. What should I say more! (sayth our Authour) it cannot be told, how all magnifie the Scethelast mercy of God which brings farre more at this time from the East and West to the Catholike chip of my Charles then the Davill hack feducad in the North

